W. T. SPARGO DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Was Prominent Granite Manufacturer And Had Been Councilman

William Thomas Spargo, organizer and first president of the Granite Cutters' International Association, a prominent granite manufacturer of the city and for three years a member of the Quincy City Council, passed away Sunday afternoon at his home, 160 Franklin street, South Quincy, at the age of 74 years, after a long illness. His entire family were at his bedside.

Mr. Spargo was born Nov. 8, 1841 in Penzance, in the county of Cornwall, England. In his youth he learned the granite work and at the age of 20 was in the service of the British government, constructing light houses, remaining at such work for ten years; during with time they built Wolf Rock lighthouse in Monts Bay, ten miles distant from his birthplace and the world known setting of the famous play, "The Pirates of Penzance." During the construction of this lighthouse workmen suffered many hardships and often were forced to labor 18 and 20 hours a day.

In March 1871, Mr. Spargo left the British Isles to seek his fortunes in America. Landing in Boston he went to Dix Island, Me., where he plied his trade as a granite cutter on American government work.

Later Mr. Spargo returned to England and brought his family to the states. He resided at Clark's Island, Me., until April 1884, when he came to Quincy.

While at Clark's island, Mr. Spargo was prominent in forming the first granite cutters union, of which he was chosen the first president. Later this organization spread to Rockland, thence to other granite towns in America, until today it is recognized as one of the strongest and best organized in the country.

In January 1888 he purchased the granite business of a stock company and began to manufacture. When his sons grew up they also learned the granite cutters business and were later admitted to the firm, and under the name of W. T. Spargo & Co., his firm became widely known. Some years ago he purchased a large quarry in Westerly, R. I., which he operated in connection with his cutting business in Quincy.

Always a Republican he for many years took an active interest in the affairs of that party especially in Ward Three, his home ward, and served on the ward committee, at one time being its chairman. His first political office was that of a member of the city council. His first term as a member of that body being in 1901. The following year there was a fractional contest in his ward and he was defeated. He was however returned to the councils of 1904, 1905 and 1906. During the latter part of his service in the city council he served on the finance committee. During the years 1902 and 1903 he served as a member of the Board of Managers of Public Burial places under Mayor Bryant. He was a candidate for the nomination as representative in the general court at one time but failed to secure the nomination.

Of late years he has devoted his entire time to the management of his granite business. For some years he has not enjoyed the best of health, which has gradually declined and although able to be at his office a greater part of the time the active duties of his business were left to his sons.

In the loss of Mr. Spargo, the granite industry mourns the absence of a conscientious man, ever striving for betterment, and in him Quincy, loses one of its most popular and beloved citizens.

He is survived by his wife and six children, Mrs. William C. Hinckley of Stony Creek, Ct., Mrs. James W. McLaughlin of Wollaston, Charles H. Spargo of Stonington, Me., Frederick J. Spargo, Miss Nellie A. Spargo and William J. Spargo of Quincy.

His funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon at his home, 160 Franklin street. Burial will be in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

He was an honorary member of the Granite Cutters International Association, and affiliated with the Granite Manufacturers association.

COVERS INTRUDER WITH REVOLVER

George Day, 16, 4 Union Park street Boston, was discovered in the cellar of the house at 30 Kemper street, Wollaston, on Sunday evening. When the police arrived he was backed up in a corner with an ugly looking revolver in the hand of George Whitehead covering him.

The police say Day has admitted he was one of three boys who have been raiding cellars here the past month and that he was the overgrown boy who wore short pants for whom they have been searching in connection with the raids.

Day was accompanied by two others who made their escape when George Whitehead investigated noises in the cellar. He maintains that he does not know the names of the other boys. His mother accompanied him to court this morning but was unable to get definite information from him. His case has been continued to March 4th.

Mrs. Charlotte Dorley and her daughter Mrs. John A. Silva of River street, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Pitts of Concord, New Hampshire.

OPPOSES DR. ELIOT IN STIRRING TALK

Rev. Ora Samuel Gray Speaks Under Auspices of Local Y. M. C. A.

FIRST MEN'S MEETING

Ora Samuel Gray, in addressing nearly 500 men under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at the Kincaide theatre Sunday afternoon took exceptions to what he called Dr. Charles W. Eliot's belief in a human Christ and promised New England an awakening when Billy Sunday comes to Boston.

Mr. Grays address was the feature of the first of two meetings to be held here Sundays. A concert by the Wollaston band opened the afternoon program and there was a singing of hymns by the men, under the direction of A. Fitch Bromfey, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The opening prayer was by Rev. Rufus B. Tobey.

Mr. Gray's topic was "Will the old ship survive the storm?", the subject of a cartoon, inspired he said Dr. Eliot's recent remarks. "I think," said Mr. Gray, "it is unfortunate that he should become a pessimist. If I had his attitude I would believe as he does, but you and I don't turn to the human Christ of Eliot but to the divine Christ of Calvary.

Mr. Gray said there was a great moral wave now sweeping across the country and said that if the government can regulate the hoof and mouth disease it can protect our farms and manhood by enforcing the regulations of prohibition.

"Wait until Billy Sunday gets to Boston and things will take a different aspect," said Mr. Gray. "New England is the slowest part of the country to awaken. There is more drinking today in New England on Sunday than in the great West and yet we boast of our proud ancestry. The best of us have drifted away. We need to be awakened.

"The four great anchors of religion are the divinity of Jesus Christ, the Bible, conversion and immortality. There is nothing on earth in the last sad hour that can give a man as real satisfaction as a belief in another life.

"God bless the great Cathoiic church which preaches it, God bless any church that preaches it, said Mr. Gray.

"Let Persident Eliot have his distress, you and I believe the religion of Christ will live until our feet shall press the heavenly city."

"The Y. M. C. A. said the speaker, is not a religious institution, it is smply one of the arms attempting religious work."

Several in the audience stepped to the stage after the address of Mr. Gray to shake his hand.

CEDARCREST IS BURNING

Famous Structure May Be Totally Destroyed

The Cedarcrest Outing club on the Whinwright estate at East Braintree is burning and the appearances are that the large structure will be totally destroyed before five o'clock. The building caught from a grass fire on the estate and before the department arrived the flames had been communicated to the house. The loss will be at least $$12000.

MIDNIGHT FIRE IN S. BRAINTREE

New Motor Apparatus Responds to Alarm From Danger Box

Just before midnight Sunday an alarm from box 43, the danger box of South Braintree, followed immediately by a second, sent people hurrying toward a bright glare which proved to be coming from a fire in the house occupied by Edward Kaloust and family, corner of Summer and Central streets.

Mrs. Lily Howland who lives nearly opposite on Central street discovered the fire and roused her sons who got into action at once, Dudley running to pull the alarm while Walter and Louis awoke the inmates of the burning house.

The flames were bursting from the shed on the back end of the building and on account of the proximity of so many wooden structures, night officer John P. Shay sounded a second alarm at once. The auto combination arrived in record time and its quick and efficient work drowned the blaze out in short order.

The shed was gutted and the back of the house scorched badly but the interior of the main part was not damaged. The cause of the fire is not known as members of the household had been in the shed shortly before and everything looked all right. The damage was estimated at about $500. The hose wagon from Braintree arrived in response to the second alarm but its services were not needed as the chemical stream from the auto combination smothered the flames very quickly and two hydrant streams turned on in about as quick time finished the work.

The prompt arrival of the auto chemical demonstrated the value of this machine in a most conclusive way

ONCE OWNED HALF OF QUINCY POINT

Preston P. Kittredge Dies This Morning In His 92nd Year

SURVIVED BY WIDOW

Preston P. Kittredge, a resident of Quincy for 67 years, and at one time owner of more than half of Quincy Point land, died at his home at 425 Washington street this morning after an illness of several months. He was in his 92nd year and until he contracted the illness which caused his death was one of the most vigorous residents of the city.

Mr. Kittredge passed his 92nd birthday at his home at 425 Washington street on Sept. 23rd, this year. He was born in Billerica and came to Quincy 69 years ago and in the barn at his home is the old buggy he drove over the road from Billerica to Quincy and which was after driven over 12,000 miles.

Mr. Kittredge was in the hog business and because he saw nothing travelling by cars he used a horse. His first dinner here was eaten in the home now occupied by Arthur Hultman, assistant court officer.

He was married in 1852 by Parson William Lunt of the First Parish church.

Mr. Kittredge said he believed his thrift was responsible for his wealth and that it was all the result of 18 hours work per day for 40 years and he was sorry, he remarked one day, he hadn't worked 20 hours.

Mr. Kittredge had one setback in business because of sickness. He recovered to find himself with but 70 cents in his possession and that was his capital for a new start. At one time he owned nearly half of Quincy Point.

In politics, Mr. Kittredge had positive ideas. He was a Democrat twice and belonged to the Know Nothing movement but ceased his membership when he forgot the password. He said there could be but two political parties in discussing the subject one day. A man can either be right or wrong and he could see no reason for the existence of the Progressive party.

Mr. Kittredge never joined secret societies. In 50 years, he missed no more than ten Saturdays in Boston. He leaves two sons, Henry P. Kittredge of City Square and Edward Kittredge, a farmer and also a widow.

ABNORMAL MAN FOR AN ABNORMAL AGE

Rev. C. E. Campbell Who Knows Billy Sunday Tells How Latter Works

The religious stress of the times is responsible for Billy Sunday, who is an abnormal man for an abnormal age, according to Rev. Clarence Campbell Sunday at the evening service of the First Presbyterian church

Mr. Campbell is a personal friend of Mr. Sunday and has had actual contact with Sunday's work in the Middle West. He says that not in our human history has one had the privilege of speaking to as many people in one day as does Billy Sunday—from 60 to 75,000 people hear him. Chrysostom, Savanarola and Whitefield the greatest preachers of the Christian church would envy Sunday this unparalleled opportunity.

Now that Sunday is coming for a mission to greater Boston with his 42 centimeter guns of evangelism, everyone is ablaze with excitement. An eager crowd that filled every available seat listened to the young clergyman characterize the work and personality of Billy Sunday. His discourse in part follows:

"I know Sunday personally and have observed him in several campaigns and am very familiar with his methods and manners. I have no hesitancy in saying his methods are not my methods. His ways and means of giving expression to great theological doctrines of human experience are not my ways of expression. But who am I, working in my quiet field of community building, that I should condemn this wonder worker, solely be cause he follows not after our ways.

"If he can go into our largest cities and for ten weeks make religion and God the paramount interest of a million people then he is doing something that should be done and I welcome him as one of God's agencies. It is an inspiring sight to see American life,— so filled with thing of the market, so engrossed in functions of society and sensational scandals of the divorce courts,—forget for a time at least all these little things and give undivided heed to a mere man with his old time preachments of God and the human soul. Only 20,000 people can hear his voice at one time but the public press enlarges that voice until it is heard by millions. There is no one human interest that can so intendedly grip a community and for so long as a Sunday campaign. If he comes to Boston and anyone of our great dailes refused to cover the campaign not a newsdealer in the city could dispose of a single copy of that paper. The campaign takes precedence of all news and fills from one to four pages of the daily press. "Have you heard Sunday-" becomes the greeting to everyone to whom you speak. No, not every new convert holds out, neither do all business adventures succeed. His theology is old fashioned—so are the large majority of folks. True, in his intensness he often uses pungent slang—so do a vast majority of the great unchurched. Like Lincoln and Jesus and most of our neighbors, he holds no diploma from an historic university, but that is no final proof of being uneducated."

THE KALEVALA.

Although not ranking with Homer's "Iliad" and "Odyssey," Virgil's "Aeneid," Dante's "Divine Comedy," and Milton's "Paradise Lost" the Kalevala is nevertheless one of the great epic poems of the world. In rhythm and in thought it is of the elementary stage in the evolution of literature but as Dr. R. G. Moulton says in his book on "World Literature" "not only does the Kalevala touch every reader with the spell of its intrinsic beauty, but it has further the double interest of putting us in touch with a distant civilization, and bringing home to us poetic forms far down the scale of literary evolution."

Like the Anglo-Saxon epic "Beowulf" the Kalevala is not the work of one poet but is the accumulation of the songs sung by many generations of early Finnish minstrels. On Feb 28 1835 Dr. Llias Lonrot dedicated his collection of Finnish lore the Kalevala The epic gets its name from the rivalry between Kalevala, the Land of Heroes, and the distant Pohjola, gloomy region of the north. The three heroes, Vainmoinem, Ilmarinen and Lemminkainen make expeditions from Kalevala to Pohjola. Round these three heroes the main action revolves. But there are digressions and counter adventures by minor heroes as in all early epics.

Nor does the tale confine itself to the mighty deeds of heroes. There are many touches of household life, graphic descriptions of everyday life. Says the daughter to her father, the Lord of Pohjola, when he bids her see why the dogs are barking at the gate:

"I have not the time, my father,
I must clean the largest cowshed,
Tend our herd of many cattle,
Grind the corn between the millstones
Through the sieve must sniff the floor,
And the grinder is but feeble."

The rhythm of the Kalevala is of the simplest. The jingle "Diddlediddle, Diddlediddle," indicates it. This rhythm was adopted by Longfellow in his Indian epic, Hiawatha.

In observance of the 80th anniversary of Lonrot's Kalevala the Finnish people of the city on Sunday observed Kalevala Day. We are glad to note that they are not going to allow their great epic to be forgotten and that, in sympathy with the spirit of the poem, a local branch of the Knights and Ladies of Kalevala has been formed.

THE TOWN MANAGER.

The town of Norwood has hired the town manager for which it advertised. Out of some 400 applicants the selectmen have chosen a civil engineer of a New Jersey city, a man of practical experience. The experiment, the first of the kind in Massachusetts, will be watched with interest.

It is likely that the experiment will prove successful, at least during the short time that the novelty of the idea draws upon it the searchlight of public interest. The idea undoubtedly has much to commend it. We are inclined to the belief, however, that the success of those cities and towns which have adopted the manager system of government has not been due so much to the manager as to the civic consciousness aroused in the inhabitants which demanded an efficient government and would probably have secured it under any reasonable form of government. The form of the city or town government is not nearly so important as the spirit which actuates the people and the officials. The people in a city or town usually get as good a government as their intelligence and civic spirit deserve, no better and no worse.

When the city of Galveston was all but conquered by its great disaster it arose and instituted the commission form of government. The commission form of government worked in Galveston; in other cities it has not always proved a panacea for governmental ailments. In Galveston it was the spirit of a courageous, determined people who were imbued with the idea that Galveston must have good government.

A similar spirit although not from so harsh a stimulus, apparently has actuated Norwood. A similar spirit in the city of Quincy could bring similar results without changing the charter. The best form of charter in the world won't of itself give good government, nor can the worst form prevent it if the people ar determined

INCONSISTENT WITH WAR.

A dispatch from Berlin by way of London on January 7th, said:

"The German army authorities have issued a general order prohibiting in future troops in the field from fraternizing with forces of the enemy, as they did at several points in the western theatre of the war at Christmas.

"To such an extent was this fraternizing carried out that at one place, where the Germans and British played football Christmas day, they agreed to suspend hostilities for two days more."

Joseph Lee of Boston, president of the Playground and Recreation association of America regards playground movement as a most powerful ally of the peace movement in providing a substitute for war. Nearly one hundred cities in the United States now maintain throughout the year community recreation centers. Men who play together in their leisure hours are reported to work together in much greater harmony.

Financial Review

The financial markets of this country are still controlled by war news,—the strain of the desperate European conflict being daily more and more manifest. Now that spring is at hand, fresh military activities must be expected; the period of deadlock is obviously drawing to a close, and preparations strenuously pushed all winter by both sides are hastening a much greater and more acute crisis. Hence action more decisive than hitherto experienced cannot be far distant. The intense financial strain abroad was very sharply reflected in the recent collapse of exchange, from which there has been only a partial recovery. In this country the serious derangement of our foreign trade resulting from the war has produced a big excess of exports which, though flattering at first sight, is adding to the general complications.

Our export trade, though satisfactory in volume, has been seriously deranged; and the heavy shrinkages have only been compensated for by shipments of foodstuffs and war materials. The demand for the latter is liable to sudden fluctuations. Should the Dardanelles be opened allowing the free exportation of Russian grain, that must inevitably have an important effect upon our own exports of wheat; and when peace begins to dawn we may expect a drop in the orders for the munitions of war which have hitherto usefully filled the gap in foreign orders.

Our total exports within the past seven months, have been $1,334,000,000 or $187,000,000 less than the same time last year. Imports were $930,600,000, or $137,000,000 less than a year ago. Here is a loss in exports and imports combined of $324,000,000 in the short space om seven months. As a result of these fluctuations the excess of exports for the seven months was only $403,900,000 compared with $454,000,000 last year and $430,000,000 the year before. The fact that the excess of exports has dwindled $50,000,000 in the last seven months is somewhat of a surprise.

The business situation at home is not satisfactory. Only in the agricultural districts is there any normal activity and genuine hopefulness. In other parts of the country there is a sane determination to make the best of things and keep cool under irritating conditions. But war has so disturbed credit and trade as to impair confidence, and no real improvement in the latter respect can be expected until the prospects for peace improve. An early termination of the war would undoubtedly be a powerful stimulus for business recovery in the United States. At present business is being conducted on restricted lines. Clearing house returns show diminished activity in all parts of the country, unless it be in the Middle Northwest.

The money market is easy and loanable funds are plentiful to good borrowers. The investment demand for securities, however, is spasmodic, and there is a disposition to await further developments in foreign financing. Preparations are being made for the flotation of big war issues on the other side, and this unavoidably exercises a depressing effect upon the entire market. March dividend disbursements are estimated at $116,000,000, a decrease of $10,000,000 compared with last year. Not a few of our best stocks are selling below intrinsic values at the moment, but the conditions are against any permanent advance for the time being. The immediate outlook is for an irregular market and the upward movement will undoubtedly depend upon the continuance of favorable conditions.—HENRY CLEWS, Banker.

AUTO SHOW IS REAL SUCCESS

Draws to Close After Three Big Days

The third annual Wollaston Automobile Show, held in the Wollaston Centre Garage, was brought to a close Saturday evening after a successful three days run, during which time thousands inspected the various styles of cars on display.

Manager Winsloe characterized the show as the most successful yet held and declared that a larger number of buyers and prospective buyers were in evidence than at either of the two previous shows.

At the exercises of the evening Manager Winsloe made a brief speech of welcome. A number of councilmen and other city officials were in attendance Saturday evening.

Mayor Chester I. Campbell had a good word to say for the show and the enterprise of Manager Winsloe and said that although he did not always agree with him in politics, when it came to automobiles it was a different matter.

Councillor Guy A. Ham spoke of the aspects of annexation of Quincy with Boston and Congressman Peter Tague spoke of the great possibilities in the commercial development of Quincy's waterfront.

William J. McDevitt and the Sullivan sisters contributed tuneful harmony during the evening and a feature of the program was the singing of parodies of popular songs.

Among these were "It's a short way up to Wollaston" to the tune of "Tipperary." "The Chesterfield kid" to the tune of "This is the life," "Oh, you Jeffrey" to the tune of "On Wisconsin." "Oh Jeffrey! Oh Jeffrey" to the tune of "Maryland! My Maryland!" and "Oh, You Chesterfield," to the tune of "Oh, you beautiful doll."

Many favorable comments were made on the effectiveness of the decorations and Manager Winsloe was complimented for running a show that was up to date in every particular.

Advisory Committee—F. W. Kingman, Walpole, Chairman; John F. Merrill, Quincy, Evan F. Richardson, Millis, Everett H. Bowker, Brookline, C. G. Littlefield, Norwood, J. M. Parker, Franklin, Ernest H. Gilbert, Stoughton, Secretary.

In addition to the above named officers there are 28 directors, one from each town and city in the County.

The active work of the management of the Bureau is in the hands of the advisory committee. This committee appoints the county agent and other employees, and directs their work in the field. The agent is an agricultural expert of good scientific training and a sufficient amount of farm experience secured by actually managing a farm to enable him to advise farmers on matters pertaining to their business. In many places the agent co-operates with the schools in directing the work of home and school gardens and of boys' and girls' agricultural clubs. The importance of the schools in Farm Bureau work was recognized in placing a superintendent of schools on the advisory committee.

The work of the Farm Bureau involves the expending of considerable sums of money and a careful study of the needs of the County, the best means of meeting those needs and well thought out execution of the plans when once decided upon.

Most of the initiative must come from the people themselves. The whole success aside from trained agents, depends on local interest.

Farm Bureaus are not opposed to commercial organizations or so called "middle men." They are organized to do for a group of farmers what a single farmer individually can not accomplish. The work of an agent employed by a Farm Bureau should make business for legitimate concerns dealing in agricultural commodities and products rather than to injure such business.

The agent's work is broader than the productive side of farming.

He should stimulate interest in and assist in organizing co-operative societies for the purchase of fertilizers, feeds, lime, etc., and for the sale of farm products. He should keep farmers informed as to prevailing prices of the above commodities and others, the state of the markets so far as the information is available, and other matters pertaining to farm business.

The county agent should arrange a large number of demonstration plots on farms or demonstration tests in dairies, poultry, plants, orchards etc. The whole neighborhood could then see the good or bad results of these methods. He should help to arrange extension schools, lecture courses, farmers institutes and other meetings.

It is impossible to enumerate all the line of work which may fall to a county agent to do. When he cannot furnish the information himself he should apply to the State agencies such as the Agricultural College, State Board of Agriculture, Highway Commission, Commission on Public Health, Free Public Library commission, Federation of Churches, Mass. Civic League, State Forester etc., or to the several bureaus of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture at Washington.

The Farm Bureau and the county agent thus become a clearing house or rural chamber of commerce through which the business of a County may be transacted. It is a "Better Farming, Better Business, Better Living" proposition.

The Farm Bureau work is supported from the County treasury, from the Federal Government and from private subscription. Any one may become a member by paying an annual fee of one dollar.

This movement is worthy of financial assistance and all are invited to join. Every one interested in a county agricultural school should help the Farm Bureau as each supplements the other. If the school is established it will succeed to the work of the Farm Bureau. Bristol county has an agricultural school doing the work of a Farm Bureau. Now is the time for Norfolk county to take hold of this enterprise in earnest.

A DOCTOR, thoroughly tired out by driving all day in an automobile with ordinary hard upholstery and the usual spring suspension, threw himself down on a couch at the home of a friend for a brief rest.

Chesterfield Six $1650
Light Four $1450
Six-48 $2100

The friend, who drove quite as much as the doctor but never felt the slightest physical fatigue, said, "I believe what you need is a car that is properly upholstered and has proper spring suspension. In my Jeffery the seat cushions support the small of the back and carry the weight of the body. That takes the weight off the spine, and the cantilever springs absorb all the road shocks." This happened months ago. The physician is now driving a Jeffery and enjoying total freedom from fatigue.

Women who find it tiresome to ride in the average car and men whose work keeps them in an automobile any considerable part of the day are invited to examine the Jeffery for comfort. Try particularly the double coil springs that make the seats equally comfortable for small or for heavy people.

Among Our Churches

ATLANTIC M. E.

Rev. E. C. Pollard at the Sunday morning service took as the subject of his sermon "Christian's Reward." The text was Hebrews 6—10. He said in part

"The bible holds out a reward t the Christian soldier. In tempera warfare the teacher, the lawyer, th doctor, the mechanic, the farmer ar all compensated. They are held t their various vocations because of th law of compensation. So the Christia is held in the path of duty through th same law.

"If there were no hope of heaven no knowledge of sin forgiven, no as surance of divine help, no goodnes of heart in his service the ranks o Christians would be depleted. I was this law which held the churc together during the Dark Ages. Tha is what cements it today.

"His promises are his debts, ou promises are our debts. We ma promise beyond our ability to pay Not so with God. He has promise pardon through faith, sanctificatio through consecration. If man com plies with conditions his salvation i secured. God is compelled to fu fill his promises if man fulfills th conditions. God is not forgetful o our work. He keeps an account fo us all. One more day's work fo Jesus here is echoed in heaven."

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

At the beginning of his mornin sermon Mr. Willmott repudiated th phraseology in which the invitatio to Sunday, the evangelist, was couche by one of the Boston delegation, sta ing that it was not representation o the spirit of those who sent the com mission.

"Come unto Me" was the tex chosen. The chapter which precede it indicated a turning point in Christ' history. John the Baptist in priso oppressed by doubt sends two of hi disciples to Jesus to obtain assurance from him, the bulk of the Jewish re ligious sects were cold and indif ferent, showing no enthusiasm o passion. They did not take their re ligion seriously. The Pharisees i particular were not in earnest wit God. This being the case Jesu turned to the common people.

At the present day history repeat itself. There is too much caste i religion. There is a class whic thinks of itself as having certai traditions which it must live up t forgetful that the supremest dignit is the pleasure and duty of servic a dignity not holding itself aloof bu bending to help those less favore Paganism exists veneered with the language of Christianity.

Christ saw some men to whom re ligion was a burden, some who had bad consciences, others that had no religion at all. To them he spoke the parables of the lost coin, the strayed sheep and the prodigal son which re veal the love of the Father which transcends all bounds towards the lost of the children of men. To those that had the haunting memory of an ungodly past and to all who felt a divine discontent with present at tainment, he gave the earnest invita tion, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Similar conditions prevail at the present day. Men are still sin-op pressed but, thank God, the gracious invitation is still open.

The executive committee of the C. E. met Sunday afternoon. Plans were made for the coming month and new members were assigned to com mittees.

Following this meeting was the de votional meeting for the whole society. The program was most interesting. The five members of the prayer meet ing committee were the leaders. Miss Williamina Laing read the scripture which was found in I Cor. 14:1-12,26. Then followed a short prayer service under the leadership of Miss Ida Thomas. Mr. Malcolm McKenzie spoke upon the topic "What Will Im prove our Prayer Meetings?" The young men present took part first, and then the young women. A cordial welcome is always given to visitors t these C. E. meetings.

Unity Circle of King's Daughters will meet at 7.30 P. M. Tuesday. Pas nagessit and Wampatuck Camp fire irls will give ceremonial services.

FIRST PARISH

The observance of Lent is based on wo fundamental ideas: self-control nd consecration—both wholesome, oth practical and both vital to the elfare of mankind. One is physical s its scope, the other spiritual, but oth are closely related to the moral evelopment of society.

The physical side of Lent as a per od of fasting has its historic roots in emote antiquity. All races seem to ave observed such a custom during he transition period between winter's old, when the body needs heartier ood and the warmer weather when ealth requires the curbing of the ppetite. But every race has felt he need of a religious sanction for he observance in order to strengthen he will. The general idea retains s full value today, whether one re ognizes any particular ecclesiastical uthority in the matter or not. It ould be better for each one of us ndividually and all of us together, if very one of us would "keep Lent" t least in the sense of exercising a oral self control over his appetite uring this transition period.

But the really important feature of ent is its spiritual significance. The reatest need of the world today is eligion. When we seen the intelli ent and so-called Christian nations f the earth rushing into war upon he eastern continent and social revo ution on the western, we are apt to eel that God has forgotten the world. he fact is rather that the world is orgetting God. And not because it s more wicked than in the past; but ecause it is becoming too much ab orbed in the superficial things of life o give any thought to the deeper and ore fundamental things.

Our generation is becoming Godless, ot because we are so bad, but be ause we are so busy. We need omething to stimulate the spiritual ide of life, so that its growth will ot be entirely crowded out by the aterial.

Into this great need the Lenten eriod with its beautiful and noble ymbolism enters with wonderful ower of helpfulness. In nothing oes the procession of the Christian ear bring greater help to human earts than this period when the houghts of all Christendom are di ected to the deeply human temptations of Jesus in the wilderness, the mystery of his passion and death, and the culminating hope of humanity in the climax of the Easter time.

Mr. Hudson, in conclusion, again urged upon his people their own large share of moral responsibility and the great importance of earnest consecration in upholding the great vital principles of our Christian faith.

PARK AND DOWNS.

Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. William B. Ayers preached an eloquent sermon from text Matt. 28 "For lo, I am with you always, even unto the end." The minister spoke of the personality of Christ as being the force and influence back of the teachings and philosophy of the Gospel.

He said that the world had already been saturated with creeds and philosophy. Men knew what was right as they do today but they did not have the power to do the right. Men required the strongest kind of motive to compel them to do their duty. Duty is a hard cold austere taskkmaster. It has not the power to enforce itself. Neither has principle.

Men forget or set aside their principles when their interests demand it. There must be a motive stronger than self interest. Faith never was enforced until it joined itself to love. Love is the strong primitive instinct of man——— The most powerful passion of our being, Jesus made that the force of his Gospel. He stood in the center of it. What he required of us was for "his sake." It is foolish to try to live a religious life unless you are doing so for Christ's sake. Otherwise you will fail. It is the only sufficient motive for service for the ingratitude of people makes it seem not worth serving for the peoples sake. To avoid discouragement and despair what you do for character must be for Christ's sake.

During the course of his evening lecture the pastor took occasion to say that the lack of the genuine spirit of co-operation between Protestant churches was to be deplored. He said that the relations sustained between the Catholic church and the Protestant church was a great deal more cordial and fair than that which existed between many Protestant churches, often members of the same denomination.

He referred to the scramble which is made for new members, the methods of competition and rivalry employed: ministers having no respect for natural parish boundaries but rushing into the fields of their neighbors and trying to entise attendants and strangers away from churches of the same denomination into their own

While this rivalry and lack of co-operation exists outward shows of fellowship and claims of the Christian spirit are mere sarcasms.

Several musical selections were beautifully rendered by the Norwoll club Quartette. Also a trombone solo by Mr. C. A. Richardson accompanied by Miss Emily Bjorkman which was most pleasing.

Mens Forum: Friday 6.45. Supper and lecture with Stereopticon—Miss Keliher: Soloist.

Wednesday 2.30 Woman's Guild—Mr. Kavanaugh will speak on: "The Child in the city."

Thursday 7.30 prayer service. A these meetings the instructive and helpful talk by the pastor gives in spiration and courage.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, spoke on "When Is a Man a Fool?"

A man is a fool, he pointed out when he leaves the great issues o life to chance or luck, when he thinks he will reach heaven by living a good life alone, not giving any thought to the matter of eternal life in not making any provision for the future. We see this in the financia affairs of life and in the spiritua affairs of the soul. A man is a foo when he continues in sin because he thinks no one knows it. Be sure your sin will find you out.

A man is a fool when he thinks that in order to have a good time he must go into sin and sinful indulgence. A man is a fool when he tries to see how near to the edge of a precipice he can walk. Some men are tempted of the devil, and other men tempt Providence. A man is a fool when he refuses to believe beyond what he can see, also when he sets up his own wisdom against the Bible. A man is a fool when he throws away his manhood and selfrespect and respect o others for the passing pleasures o appetite and lust, when he goes on stubbornly in spite of the fact that he knows he is wrong. Men do this sometimes through pride and unwillingness to confess. A man is a foo when he listens too much to what other people say.

Are you and I fools? Are you an I fools in Gods sight? If so let u turn to Him with all our hearts and seek that wisdom, which he alone can give and which shall make us useful and prosperous.

The Sunday school session followed the morning service.

The Junior Endeavor meeting at 3.30 was led by Jeanette Bailey Subject: "Stories of Christ's Sabbaths." Luke 6:5-10.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 6.00 was in charge of the prayer meeting committee, subject "What will improve our prayer meetings?" There was a union service at 7.00 Rev Isaiah W. Sneath Ph. D. pastor of the Wollaston Congregational church, was the speaker.

The choir rendered selections morning and evening.

Tuesday evening, at 7.45 a Cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of William Arthur, 137 Hollis avenue.

Wednesday afternoon at 3.00, the regular monthly meeting of the Social and Benevolent Society will be held in the Chapel. Members urged to be present. New members solicited.

Wednesday evening, at 6.30 a hot roast beef supper will be served in the chapel. Tickets 25 cents. An entertainment will follow. Tickets for the supper should be secured at once as number of tickets is limited.

BUTTERFLIES ON FROCKS.

Combined In Many Designs For Ornamenting Spring Gowns.

SPRING LINGERIE DRESS.

The butterfly motif is used effectively in the decoration of many of the models shown for spring and summer. The pretty frock of white cotton voile here illustrated is embellished with a hand embroidered design in butterflies and scrolls. The skirt has the smart yoke shirred in this case. There is a high frilled collar, with a velvet band to secure it to the neck. The girdle is of black velvet ribbon.

MILITARY HATS.

Everybody Is Wearing Them and Looking Pert and Pretty.

Would you be in fashion? Then adopt a hat which in shape at least resembles one worn by some person in military service in the armies of Europe.

It need not be a general officer. It is the private or the marine who gets the head covering which is jauntiest. These hats must be of the sort which best become a feminine face not too old for small hats, which are only convincing when partly posed a trifle toward one ear.

Among the new millinery there is not a model exactly like Tommy Atkins', but there is a tiny affair which covers no more of the hair than does his of scarlet cloth. Like the majority of the military hats not designed for service at the front, this one is of black velvet. A broad sided rever brim lies so flatly against the crown that its presence would be overlooked but for an edging of narrow silver ribbon. Tiny tassels in silver or gold are new among military trimmings, but they are not a surprise, for they accord perfectly with the tinsel braids and cordings.

Homemade Icebox.

Few people know that a very good icebox for summer use can be made by placing a small box inside a larger one and filling the space between with sawdust. Set on blocks, bore a hole in bottom of both. If kept tightly closed twenty pounds of ice will keep in this box three or four days.

Air and Exercise.

Air is absolutely essential to the well being of every child. The mother should make it a part of her regular duties to see that her child has at least two hours' outdoor exercise every day. If school is over at 3 the child can come in at 5 to prepare his or her lessons for the following day.

THE ART OF SHOPPING

There is more in shopping than entering a department and buying certain articles. There is an art of successfully carrying out this necessary and delightful business that can easily be learned.

The shopper should remember that time is money and that salespeople are like herself, human, and equally deserving of courtesy and consideration.

There are one or two "Do's" that every shopper should lay to heart:

Do remember to have clearly in mind what it is that you require. Bring patterns if matching is to be done.

Do not forget that the saleswoman has to attend to many customers and cannot give an undue share of her time to any one. So do not indulge in long and unnecessary conversation.

Do remember that standing behind a counter all day is fatiguing and make allowances for human nature.

For the Children

Winter brings no more glorious sport than that of skating. With the crisp, frosty air exciting one to effort, a good pair of skates and hard, smooth ice the sport is exhilarating in the highest degree. Most boys and girls will experience a thrill of delight when they view the picture of the young woman on skates. It will remind them of many joyous hours spent in this favorite pastime. In health promoting qualities no exercise excels skating. The ease with which one glides over the ice at great speed is the great charm, and by no other method of locomotion can the human being cover so great a distance without the aid of machinery. But in skating there are a few things to remember. Do not skate until in profuse perspiration and then sit down to cool off. That procedure is almost sure to result in a serious cold. When overheated move slowly about until the body is in a normal state of temperature. Of course it is unnecessary to remind young folks that thin ice and air holes must be avoided.

Who Am I?

This game is always a favorite, and, while not new, it may be made to seem so by choosing new characters each time of playing.

The hostess prepares in advance as many slips of paper as there are guests expected, writing upon each the name of some well known character in fiction or history on in contemporary life. Upon the arrival of her friends as she greets them she pins one of the bits of paper on the back of each. The wearers do not see them or know what characters they are supposed to represent, but are expected to guess it from the remarks of the rest, who are careful not to tell the name. For instance, the "Queen of Hearts" may be complimented upon her domestic talents and her delicious pastry and be asked whether her dishonest servant had reformed or been dismissed.

"Little Red Riding Hood" may be condoled with on the death of her grandmother and warned of the danger of making chance acquaintances on the road.

"Henry VIII." might be rallied on his fondess for the ladies and questioned about divorces; "Goliath" advised to "take a man of his size," and not bully a little fellow, and "Columbus" might be asked about his voyages and discoveries.

Beheadings.

The beheaded letters spell the name of an animal.

1. Behead in this place or state and get an adverb meaning sooner than.
2. Behead to unfold and get an article used in writing.
3. Behead to invade in a hostile manner and get to help.
4. Behead a place for sitting and get something we must do to live.
5. Behead to flush with success and get coming after time appointed.

Answer—Horse, 1, here-ere; 2, open-pen; 3, raid-aid; 4, seat-eat; 5, elate-late.

China's National Tree.

The national tree of China is the tung tree, and it is valuable for both its wood and its oil. Its branches are wide spreading, and its bark is smooth and green. Its fruit, which looks not unlike a shellbark hickory nut, is as large as a small orange. In the center of each of these nuts are three triangular seeds, and valuable oil for polishing woodwork and leather is extracted from them. The refuse is used as a fertilizer. The wood of the tree itself is made into fine boxes and musical instruments.

The Seven Dolls.

Seven dollies went to school
On a lawn beach, nice and cool;
Seven dresses, fresh and clean,
Seven heads of golden sheen.

"We must be polite," said they,
"Never cry, always obey;
Sit up straight, as we are told,
While our little books we hold."

Mistress Betty, kind and grave,
Made the little dolls behave;
Taught them how to read and write,
And never with each other fight.

From her seat upon the grass
She taught each chubby little lass
How to keep her dress so neat
And her face so clean and sweet.

Also how to lead a life
Free from discord and all strife
And to others ever do
As you wish they'd do to you.

Seven dollies grew up well,
Each one learned to read and spell,
Wise and cultured now are they,
And kind and gentle in their play.

HOME WEDDING IN WOLLASTON

Young Couple United at Home of Bride's Sister

A pretty home wedding took place Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles M. Cole of 231 North Central avenue when Miss Myrtle Martin Dimmock, daughter of Mrs. James R. Cook of Beverly farms, became the bride of Harold Tillinghast Barber of Arcadia, R. I.

The ceremony was performed at three o'clock and was witnessed only by relatives and a few intimate friends. Rev. Archibald Kimball, pastor of the Church of the Epiphany Dorchester, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Charles M. Cole and the impressive double ring service was used.

The house decorations were made beautiful with colorings in the flowers of white and pink and apple blossoms against a profuse background of potted plants and green palms. The bridal couple stood beneath an arch from which was suspended a bell, filled with confetti. When the happy couple turned to receive their friends the ribbons attached to the bell were pulled and the contents of the bell completely showered the bride and groom.

Miss Grace Thompson of Jamaica Plain, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march from Lohengrin. The bride was tastefully attired in an exquisite gown of white messaline and chiffon, with trimmings of duchess lace. Her long veil was caught up with orange blossoms, in a wreath effect, and her shower bouquet was bride's roses. Her traveling dress is gray broadcloth with hat to match.

The maid of honor, Miss Reta Fogg of Berlin, N. H., was in white chiffon, over pink satin, and carried pink carnations. Miss Doris Lewis and Miss Barbara Cole of Wollaston were flower girls. They were dressed in airy white muslin with lace trimmings. Both little girls were very much at home in their charming office and carried pink and white sweet peas.

Clifford Barber of Arcadia, R. I., cousin of the groom, acted as best man. A reception followed after the ceremony, after which the wedding supper was served. There were about 75 present, the guests coming from Arcadia and Providence, R. I., Peterboro and Berlin, N. H., Falmouth, Beverly Farms, Dorchester, Braintree and Wollaston.

At six o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Barber departed on an extended wedding trip to New York. They will be at home to their friends at Arcadia, R. I., after April 15.

The grooms gift to his bride was a handsome piano and he gave stick pin to the best man, pendant to the maid of honor and gold pins to the flower girls. Mr. and Mrs. Barber were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

HEART OF HANK GOWDY WAS BESET BY MANY

Fame has its drawbacks, as Hank Gowdy discovered as soon as the Braves were well along on their way to victory in the world's series. After the Boston club had won its third straight game from the Athletics one of the newspaper men in the Hub printed the story that a young woman had promised to marry Hank if his club won the world's championship.

"Gowdy asked me to deny this as strongly as possible," declares Stallings. "'Why, it got me in bad,' Hank complained to me after the third game. 'Every young woman I know expects me to marry her now if we win.'

"'That's the reason for you taking it easy,' I told him."

league of New York towers head and shoulders above all others. In nearly every game he shone to a great extent.

Although Hobey played at rover, there is very little question that he could hold down and shine at any other position on the team. Another season and Baker should be the greatest hockey player ever developed in the United States.

BASEBALL CHATTER.

Baseball fans in Salt Lake City are so eager for a team that they raised a $12,500 subscription to help secure an option on the new club.

Fielder Jones says eighteen men are sufficient for a pennant winner in the big leagues. Jones probably never expects to have a pennant winner.

Christy Mathewson says that the team and not the individual draws the crowd. Wonder if that is what Christy said the last time he hit Manager McGraw for a raise?

Chief Bender, former Athletic hero, predicts that Wyckoff will be one of the best pitchers of the country within the next two years. "All he lacks is control, and that will come to him," says the Indian.

If Walter Johnson lost fifteen pounds in the three weeks he toted that $6,000 advance money of the Federals, now that he has turned it back is it not likely that he will report to Griffith in the spring a mere shadow of his former self?

Q. H. S. TEAM IN SCHOOLBOY MEET

Local Relay Team Fi ishes in Last Place

J. Dana Hutchinson of Milton Academy was the star of the annual schoolboy meet under B. A. A. auspices Saturday. Not only did he confirm the predictions that he would win his mile, but in fulfilling them, he clipped 2 2-5s off the mile record of 4m 37 4-5s in 1910, made by Franz R. Marceau, then at Quincy High. Hutchinson had the honor of making the only new record of the meet.

Hutchinson ran a heady race for most of the mile. He opened up a large lead once he was beyond the half-mile mark. He still had a wonderful finish sprint reserved which won him the record.

Jack E. C. Clark of the Providence "Tech" school was second, and Samuel B. Levine of Lawrence High was third.

Marceau's record stood the onslaughts of perfectly conditioned athletes for three and a half years.

Quincy High's team finished in last place in its crack at the two lap relay. Weymouth Stoneham high was first, Weymouth second and Wakefield third. On the local team was Crosby, Joe Barber, Rob Ravis and R. Sears. The race was the slowest of the group, Stoneham's time being 2m 15 3-5s.

SPORTING COMMENT

The Harvard wrestlers beat the Clapp Memorial team Saturday night, by four bouts to two. Hall of Harvard, in his bout with F. Zeole of Clapp, in the 145-pound class, pulled a tendon.

The Corinthian Yacht club has challenged the Boston Yacht club for the Quincy cup. The challenges will be limited to four clubs as they are eligible only five of the sonder fleet, Amic Cima, Ellen, Mingo and Sprig. The Ellen is sure to be the defender.

Link Elcock is expected to join the Newburg, N. Y. team again this season. Last year he was captain. He may be chosen manager to succeed Marshall who recently died.

"Wes" Ganzel finished last season with the Poughkeepsie, N. Y., base ball team and has contracts with them for another season.

AMERICAN LEGION FORMED

Expected to Have 300,000 Recruits For an Army Reserve

New York, March 1.—Formal announcement was made here of the formation of an organization of first reserves to be known as the American Legion, to be composed of former army, navy and militiamen, the purpose of which will be better to insure the nation's preparedness in case of war.

Captain Johnson, aide-de-camp to Major General Wood, commanding the department of the east, made the announcement on behalf of a group of army and navy men who in an unofficial capacity are acting with civilians in promoting the movement.

The organization has the enthusiastic support of former President Roosevelt, who says that he and his four sons will become members of the legion and in the event of war he will ask permission of congress to raise a division of cavalry.

Johnson said it is planned to establish within a short time a first reserve of between 250,000 and 300,000 former army and navy and militia men for instant call in case of emergency.

CELEBRATION PETERS OUT

Buffalo Gets Badly Twisted Over Admirals Dewey and Dewa

Buffalo, March 1.—The civic celebration in honor of Admiral George Dewey here was a fizzle. The flags on all city buildings were fluttering, Main street was gay with colors, and a big committee of leading citizens was at the railroad station to greet the hero of Manila bay.

In his stead came Admiral Baron Shegato Dewa, counsellor to the mikado and Japanese envoy to the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The error was due to a telegram from New York. General Green of this city made the arrangements to have Dewa come here. He sent a message to the local committee, but they interpreted it to mean Dewey. Hence the error.

EX-DEPUTY MARSHAL IS SENT TO PRISON

Cameron Must Serve at Least Three Years For Bigamy

Salem, Mass., March 1.—Donald Cameron, formerly a deputy United States marshal in Boston, was sentenced in the superior criminal court here to serve not less than three and not more than four years in the state prison for bigamy.

Cameron pleaded guilty to marrying Malvina Baudray of Lawrence, on July 14 last, at Providence, while he had a wife and ten children in Boston.

The Baudray girl was the leading witness in a white slave case against a man named Richards in the federal court. Cameron, while a federal officer, was connected with the trial and became acquainted with her.

Cameron was convicted some time ago for non-support of his first wife and family and was sentenced to the house of correction for one year.

SHIP BILL UP AGAIN

Effort to Be Made to Pass It at Closing Session of Congress

Washington, March 1.—The renewed fight for the ship purchase bill will accupy the attention of the house today. It is planned to rush the conference agreement through within a few hours and send it to the senate tonight.

There it probably will be held back until appropriation conference reports are all disposed of. If this is done, the last stand of the ship purchase champions probably cannot be made until late Wednesday night or toward the end of the session Thursday morning.

That both houses will be in all-night session Wednesday is practically certain. Congress expires at noon Thursday.

GOING BEFORE FRENCH COURT

Validity of Dacia's Transfer of Registry to Be Tested

SEIZED WITH COTTON CARGO

Former German Ship Bought by American Taken by French Cruiser to Brest—Started For Germany Despite Warning From Great Britain That She Would Be Held Up

Washington, March 1.—The steamship Dacia, which was transferred from German to American registry, has been seized in the English channel by a French cruiser, and is under arrest in the harbor at Brest.

The announcement that she had been taken to Brest was made by the French department of marine, and confined itself to that one statement, not even the name of the cruiser which took her being made public.

That the Dacia would be seized by the allies was known and the seizure caused no surprise when it was learned in Washington. The warning that the Dacia would not be permitted to steam to Rotterdam with her cargo of 11,000 bales of cotton, to be transhipped to Bremen, came from Great Britain, but it was generally understood that the Dacia would be stopped by a French war vessel and taken before a French prize court.

In the past Great Britain has recognized the right of neutrals in certain circumstances to buy ships from belligerents during a war, but France has clung to the position that all such sales during the war are invalid and that the registry of a vessel of a belligerent cannot be changed to that of a neutral country.

Had Great Britain seized the vessel she would have been under the difficulty of having her own prize court decisions quoted against her. France is therefore in a better position to push the attack on the validity of the transfer of the Dacia from the German to the American flag after the war began.

The Dacia was bought from the Hamburg-American line by E. N. Brietung, who is said to have furnished proof that the transfer was made in good faith and that her German owners had retained no interest in her; that there had been no agreement for her re-transfer at the end of the war, and that they had no share in the profit which might result from her operation.

When British opposition arose to her to go to Bremen, the Dacia was ordered to land her cargo at the neutral port of Rotterdam. The British also stated that while they were willing the cargo should be delivered, the vessel must be considered contraband.

The cargo of cotton which the Dacia carries is insured by the federal war risk insurance bureau. It is believed the French government will reimburse the owners of the cargo.

Breitung paid $165,000 for the Dacia. He is said to have received practically this amount for the transportation of the cotton she carried aboard. If the French government reimburses the owners of the cotton there will be no loss on any side, except the loss of the cotton to the German consignees. The value of the Dacia's cargo is said to be $800,000.

No protest from this government is likely until after the French prize court has passed on the status of the Dacia. On the French decision hangs important American interests.

If the legality of the transfer of the Dacia from German to American registry is sustained in the French prize court it will open the way for the purchase of other vessels now under the flag of the belligerent countries.

VERDICT IS CHEERED

Jury Finds Miss Davies Killed Massey In Self Defense

Toronto, March 1.—Carrie Davies, the young English domestic charged with the murder of C. A. Massey, by shooting him on the steps of his home, was found not guilty by a jury.

Her defense was that Massey had made improper advances to her, that she was afraid of him and that she shot him because she feared he was about to renew his advances and there was no one in the house to protect her.

When the jury returned its verdict the spectators cheered. The courtroom was immediately cleared. During the excitement Miss Davies fainted.

QUINCY BOYS IN LOWELL MEET

B. A. A. athletes landed eight N. E. A. A. A. titles at the indoor championships at Lowell Saturday evening. Joseph "Fay" Phelan, formerly of the Filene club and now of the Irish American A. A., Fred Kingsbury of the B. A. A. and Ralph Prout of the Irish American, all Quincy boys competed.

Phelan got third place in the senior 300 yard run. Fred Burns won the event in 40 seconds.

Phelan finished first in the junior 300 yard run. There were four starters. Phelan went to the front and set the pace from the start. He was hard pressed by Joe Hurley of the B. A. A. for two laps and he then made his own pace running and won over Hurley by five yards. The time was 39 4-5 seconds.

The senior mile had but three starters, H. F. Mahoney and Fred Kingsbury of the B. A. A. and J. H. Harrigan of the I. A. A. A. It was a slow race, Mahoney winning as he pleased in five minutes, with Harrigan second and Kingsbury third.

Phelan and Prout won their heats in the trials of the junior 40-yard dash. Phelan got third in the final. The time of A. B. Kelly of Holy Cross the winner, was five seconds.

Allied Fleets Making Progress In the Dardanelles

GREAT FORTS ARE SILENCED

Troops Land From Auxiliary Vessels to Protect Former Turkish Strongholds Over Which British and French Flags Are Now Flying—Walls of Turks' Strongest Fortifications Yet to Be Encountered—Germans Reported to Be Steadily Falling Back In Northern Poland—Reorganized Belgian Army Giving Good Account of Itself

London, March 1.—Continuously battering their way through the Dardanelles, the great British and French fleet made further advance on the water route to Constantinople, and is now more than one-third way through the narrow strait that joins the Mediterranean with the Sea of Marmora.

According to latest dispatches coming by way of Athens, the fleet, with the superdreadnought Queen Elizabeth at its head, has reached the lighthouse at Fort Kilid Bahr, which is about twenty miles up the strait from the Ægean entrance. At this point, which is known as "the Narrows," the strait is about one mile wide.

"The Narrows" are guarded at their western end by two strong forts, Kilid Bahr on the European side and Shanik on the Asiatic shore. It is probable that by this time the great guns of the fleet are pouring tons of metal against these defenses, and news of their reduction is expected to reach London at any hour.

Every fort on the European side up to the entrance to "the Narrows" has been silenced by the warships. A powder magazine in one of them was blown up and many of the Turkish garrison killed.

Troops Are Landed

The landing of troops from the axiliary vessels in the trail of the fleet continues at the four fourts captured at the mouth of the Dardanelles. No more Turks are left in this region, and the British and French flags are floating over the ruins of the ramparts which up to last week had marked the extreme western point of Ottoman power in Europe.

The Turkish forces, together with many of the civilian inhabitants on both European and Asiatic sides of the waterway, are fleeing, panic stricken, mostly toward the east. It is estimated that at the present time there are 50,000 Turks on the European side and 15,000 on the Asiatic.

After passing "the Narrows," the allied fleet will have its hardest work. For nearly five miles, on both sides of the strait, are bristling walls of the Turks' strongest forts.

Long Considered Impregnable

This section of the Dardanelles has been considered by all military Europe for fifty years as utterly impregnable, but it remains to be seen whether these defenses, even though recently reinforced with big Krupp guns sent from Germany, will be able to resist the awful weight of metal hurled from the 15-inch guns of the Queen Elizabeth and the 14-inch and 12-inch batteries of others among the twenty attacking battleships.

As the fleet forges forward it is attended by a big flotilla of mine sweeping vessels, which ahe picking up hundreds of these floating terrors. They will attend the warships throughout the passage of the Dardanelles, and will be kept especially busy as the Sea of Marmora is neared, for, after the great mass of heavy forts is passed, the protection of Constantinople is largely dependent upon mines. Scattered shore batteries, mostly made up of guns of obsolete type, are not expected to delay the sweep of the fleet a single hour.

Polish Town Wiped Out

There is no longer any doubt of the turn of the tide in northern Poland, where, although vigorous fighting is still going on, the Germans are steadily falling back to the west along a 130-mile line from the fortress of Grodno on the north to the town of Przasnysz on the south.

After having been driven out of Przasnysz, which is fifty-three miles north of Warsaw, the Germans made a desperate attempt to recapture it Saturday, starting an engagement which lasted throughout Sunday until Sunday evening, when, after heavy losses, many of the Germans surrendered and the town remained in the possession of the Russians.

The fighting about this important strategic point has been so intense during the past few days that the town is reported to be virtually wiped out, only a few straggling civilians being found among the ruins.

Further to the north, in the vicinity of Grodno, the Petrograd official report shows a great battle to be in progress, which has gradually spread to the westward, far beyond the fortified line. This shows that the Germans are being forced back across the East Prussian border once more.

Belgians Making Good

The Belgian army, reorganized and re-equipped, has again been taking part in the fight for the recovery of its country and, according to the French report, has advanced across the Yser and taken a farm from the Germans, while the artillery has demolished two German works.

Otherwise the battles in the west are still confined to the Champagne and the Vosges, where both sides claim to have been successful.

PREMIER ASQUITH.

Declares Britain Will Continue War Even If All Others Quit.

All doubts as to Great Britain's sincerity in prosecuting the war were dispelled when Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons that the country will continue to fight even in the event of the withdrawal of France and Russia, which, he added, is believed most improbable. The statement was made in reply to a question regarding a newspaper interview with Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in which he expressed the sentiments supported by the premier. Mr. Asquith pointed out that Mr. Churchill had said with especial emphasis that he could not conceive of the withdrawal of France and Russia. "but," he added, "I am in complete agreement with him. I see no reason to differ from the views he has expressed"

WITHOUT A PRECEDENT

How Washington Views Blockade to Be Announced by Britain

Inasmuch as the United States government has not be advised of the reported notification to neutrals of Great Britain's intention to hold up all shipping to and from Germany and Austria, Washington officials are unable to express any opinion upon this latest development.

From the brief press report of Great Britain's plan, it is thought in official quarters that a blockade of an unprecedented character is in prospect, likely to involve many complicated questions of law. It is pointed out that no question has been the subject of more controversy in international law than that of blockade, and officials say that until the text of England's declaration is received and carefully examined, it will not be possible to discuss its scope or say whether the United States will recognize it as binding on its vessels.

The proposed declaration by the allies created widespread interest among diplomats at Washington as well as officials. Some of the foreign envoys from neutral countries are interested particularly in the intimation that England does not intend to maintain a blockade of the German coast, but will hold herself at liberty to stop all shipping, no matter where encountered on the high seas, if bound to or from Germany.

IF GERMANY SHOULD WIN

Lloyd-George Thinks America Would Be Dragged Into War

The British chancellor of the exchequer, David Lloyd-George, made a pointed reference to the United States in a speech at Bangor, Wales.

"If Germany is triumphant over this country," he said, "she would be practically dictator of the world. And where," he asked, "could we then look to a chivalrous country to protect us—to America?

"If countries like France and Russia, with huge armies, and we, with the most powerful navy in the world, could not face this terrible machine, how could America step in? It would be more than America could do to defend her interests in her own continent. America is more unready than we were."

STEGLER TELLS MORE SECRETS

Knows Very Much of the German System of Espionage

WATCH IS KEPT ON VESSELS

Declares Boy-Ed Wanted Him to Obtain Information Around New York Piers—Likely to Throw Himself Upon Mercy of Court When His Case Comes to Trial

New York, March 1.—Richard P. Stegler, self-styled German spy, now in the Tombs accused of obtaining a passport by fraud, said that Captain Boy-Ed, naval attache of the German government in Washington, offered him employment as a spy in New York city, his special duty being to obtain information around the piers in New York harbor.

Stegler also gave to his counsel the name of a prominent German living in this city who, he said, was helping him to get a fraudulent passport when the desired document was obtained through the assistance of Richard Madden, also a prisoner, accused of selling his birth certificate to Stegler.

Stegler, it was said, has scarcely begun to reveal what he knows of the German system of espionage, although he has already made statements so startling that the state department at Washington is deep in investigation.

At a conference with his counsel, Charles H. Griffiths, the prisoner gave the name of the German who was helping him. Griffiths will give the name to the federal authorities. They will investigate, and, it is said, in the event that they find he has committed any crime Stegler's alleged aid will be arrested.

Stegler gave to his counsel in detail a conversation which he said he had with Captain Boy-Ed, during which he said he would not go to England as a spy.

The prisoner then told how British and other vessels are watched and said that there existed here a secret service similar to that which Germany formerly maintained in European countries with which she is now at war.

"All statements made by Stegler will be made under oath in any proceeding which this government may decide to institute as a result of his confessions," Griffiths said. "If any criminal proceedings are started against any of the persons whom Stegler implicates he desires to become a witness for the government."

The lawyer added that he would go before Clarence S. Houghton, United States commissioner, and ask that Stegler's bail be reduced. "Mrs. Stegler has friends in Atlanta, her native city, who are able to furnish reasonable bail," he said.

The district attorney's office is said to be agreeable to a reduction in the bail and it is probable that the amount will be reduced from $15,000 to $5000 or $3000.

It is understood that Stegler probably will plead guilty at his trial and throw himself upon the mercy of the court, contending he thought he had done no wrong in view of the fact that he did not use the fraudulent passport.

HINTS AT BLACKMAIL

Statement Regarding Stegler Case Is Issued by von Bernstorff

A statement issued by the German embassy at Washington, in the name of Ambassador von Bernstorff, announced that the main facts in the Stegler case had been communicated to the state department. It added: "The whole matter looks very much like an attempt of blackmail, which failed."

The ambassador, who is in New York, telegraphed instructions for the issuance of the statement. The communication to the state department was mailed and officials of the state department have not yet seeen it.

QUARRYMEN TO QUIT

Absence of Working Agreement Affects Five Thousand Men

Barre, Vt., March 1.—Five thousand granite cutters and other employes of quarry firms in this city and its vicinity are expected to suspend work today on account of the failure of the unions and manufacturers to agree on a new schedule of wages. Meanwhile, conferences with a view to arranging a schedule will continue. The old wage agreement expired yesterday.

Union leaders say the expected suspension of work cannot be regarded as a strike or lockout, as it is simply made necessary by the absence of a working agreement.

Gloucester Fleet's Death Toll

Gloucester, Mass., March 1.—The Gloucester fishing fleet lost twenty-eight lives and eight schooners last year. The property loss for the past year is estimated at $75,000.

FILING OF BECKER BRIEF

Contentions and Allegations Fill Document of 750 Pages

New York, March 1.—Arguments to be presented to the court of appeals in the effort to obtain a third trial for Charles Becker, convicted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, were made public in a brief filed with the district attorney by Becker's counsel. Copies of the brief were sent to the clerk of the court of appeals at Albany at the same time.

Becker's lawyers base their brief for a third trial chiefly on the following contentions and allegations:

That Becker's guilt was not established beyond a reasonable doubt.

That his conviction "was brought about by newspaper clamor, the zeal of the prosecutor and natural desire of the actual murderers for self-protection."

That the testimony of Jack Rose, one of the chief witnesses for the state, "reeks with duplicity and falsity." Testimony of several other witnesses also is assailed.

The brief is the longest ever submitted in a criminal case in New York county. It contains 750 printed pages. It will come formally before the court on March 24.

RELATIONS ARE CORDIAL

Japan Sees No Reason For Clash With United States

Tokio, March 1.—Premier Okuma said that Japan had no intention, in presenting its demands to the Chinese government, of trespassing upon the rights of China or interfering with the open-door policy. The desire of Japan, he said, was that China should attain the real dignity of independence, and not fall the prey of any nation.

"Efforts recently have been made to invent some plausible reason for a disruption of the relations between Japan and America," the premier continued. "These attempts having failed, the mischief-makers now look to China as a field in which the two powers may be made to clash. I see no reason for such a conflict."

Okuma's remarks were made to Professor Mathews and Professor Gulick as they were taking leave of the premier. They sailed for San Francisco, having completed their mission to Japan under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

MONEY WASTED IN NAVY DEPARTMENT

Meyer Favors Inquiry Into Our Preparedness For War

Washington, March 1.—George von L. Meyer, ex-secretary of the navy, writing to Congressman Gardner, declares the president shows great "lack of foresight" in opposing inquiry into preparedness for war.

He points out that the Panama canal would be the great prize in the event of hostilities, and that, moreover, the Monroe doctrine is no stronger than the American fleet. He also indicts the huge waste of money in the navy department.

"For fifteen years," he writes, "congress has appropriated more than $1,500,000,000 for the United States navy, which is much more than that of any other country during the same period, with the exception of Great Britain.

"The amount was sufficient, if wisely expended, to have furnished us with a navy second only to that of England. As a matter of fact, we shall this year fall to the fourth position as to naval power."

SURPRISES ARE EXPECTED

Hint That Persons "Higher Up" Are Implicated In Swindle

Boston, March 1.—District Attorney Pelletier's displeasure over the revelations in the muddled affairs of the Collateral Loan company is likely to lead to surprises when the Suffolk grand jury takes up the case.

There was a veiled hint in the county prosecutor's statement that some persons "higher up" are apt to be involved in addition to Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cole, who disappeared following their alleged confession to the directors of the company that they stole $22,000 over a period of five years.

CUTTERS OUT IN BARRE, VERMONT

The 4000 or 5000 granite cutters at Barre, Vt., are idle today owing to a failure of the manufacturers and cutters to agree on a new bill of prices. The old agreement expired this morning, and for several weeks the two associations have been trying to reach another agreement for the next five years. The main difference at the present time is the length of time the agreement shall run. Today the fate will be settled by a secret ballot.

Since 1910, when an agreement was reached after a three months' lockout the cutters have been receiving a fraction above 40 cents an hour. An offer of 42 cents from March 1 to May 15, 1915, and 45 cents from May 15 to March 1, 1916, and 50 cents from that date to March 1, 1920, has been made by the employers. The proposed bill also provides that dust removers be intsalled before Nov 1; that 44 hours instead of 45 shall constitute a working week after March 1, 1916, with six legal holidays excluded.

The progress in Barre, Vt. will be watched with interest by Quincy granite manufacturers whose existing agreement with the cutters union expires March 1, 1916. Uuder the terms this agreement either party dissatisfied with the present agreement or who desire any changes must give notice of the same Dec. 1, of the present year.

The national soccer committee has decided against the Fore Rivers or the Fore Rivers on the protest of New Bedford and a possible clash is in sight. They have ordered the game replayed on March 14. Manager Moran reached Quincy from New York with this information Sunday evening. He states the New Bedford protest on some referee's ruling were sustained.

Manager Moran states, however that his club will refuse to play New Bedford until he has conferred with the State association, arguing that the protest was not tested on its merits There are many local and Boston soccer men who agree with Moran's views and some fear a clash between the controlling body here and the supreme council in New York.

AUTO GOES OVER AN EMBANKMENT

But Donovan is Riding Again Today

William Donovan, the local real estate man, who has recently joined the ranks of the autoists had his first exciting experience Saturday afternoon when his machine skidded on the Furnace Brook parkway, near Dayton street and slid over a slight embankment. One of the headlights was slightly damaged and a fender was bent. Mr. Donovan was accompanied by C. P. Gould. Mr. Donovan not a wit dismayed by his experience, is operating again this afternoon.

A. L. BAKER DIES.

Abner Lincoln Baker, a well known Wollaston real estate dealer and for three years tax collector of the city, died at his home, 17 Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, Sunday of heart trouble. Mr. Baker had been suffering from heart affliction for some time although he has been able to be about up to within a few days.

He was born in Wiscasset, Me., June 22, 1843, where he received his early education coming to Quincy in 1871. On his first coming to this city he entered the employ of D. Howard Bills who at that time conducted a grocery store near the Quincy Point bridge. The following year he bought the business from Mr. Bills which he conducted until 1875 when he sold out to the late Charles Hall. Mr. Baker then went to Roxbury where he resided until 1884 when he again returned to Quincy, becoming a resident of Wollaston, where he has since resided. On his return to Quincy he purchased the grocery of Gardner & Lane at Wollaston which he conduced for three years, when he disposed of the business and entered the real estate business, in which he has since been active.

When Russell A. Sears became mayor in 1898, he selected Mr. Baker as his collector of taxes. The following year he was deposed from office by Mayor Keith, but when Mayor Hall became mayor in 1900 Mr. Baker was again appointed to office and served during the years 1900 and 1901. Since that time he has devoted himself exclusively to the real estate business. Although his name has been mentioned several times in connection with office of tax collector since 1901 but he did not receive the appointment.

Mr. Baker took an active interest in yachting and was a member of the Wollaston yacht club, serving at one time as its commodore. He married Miss Abbie McIntosh of Roxbury Jan. 1, 1871 who with two sons survive him. One of his sons, Claire L. Baker, is a mining engineer, now located at El Paso, Tex. The latter was in Mexco at the time of the recent trouble and was one of those who left the country on the advice of President Wilson. He returned to Quincy, remaining a short time and then going to Texas. The other son is Lowell M. Baker who resides in Wollaston.

EDWARD TWITCHELL.

Edward Twitchell, a long time resident of Wollaston, died at his home on Highland avenue Sunday in his 80th year. In his younger days Mr. Twitchell was employed as a bookkeeper but he has not been engaged in business for a number of years. He was a man of quiet disposition and preferred his own home when business hours were over. He was a deep reader however and was particularly well informed on current events. His death was due to

MRS. ELIZABETH E. POPE.

Mrs. Elizabeth E., widow of John Pope, and a long resident of Quincy, died Sunday at the home for aged people on Buckley street, where she has made her home for several years. Mrs. Pope who was in her 80th year resided for many years on Elm street with her brother Asa A. Pope, a well known veteran fireman and Grand Army veteran. Her death was due largely to infirmities of advancing age.

The central station auto chemical was called on a still alarm at 10.30 this morning for a lively grass fire near the Adams farm. The firemen were able to get the fire out before it reached the pine groves.

"Theologies are many, religion is one. Religion is the natural and simple trust of the soul in a power of good over it and its right relation to it. The spirit of worship is permanent, the forms and symbols through which it expresses itself are transient. Forms change theologies are outgrown, not because God changes or religion changes, but because man grows and develops, leaving behind him childish thoughts, outgrowing the ignorance and superstitions of earlier ages."

At the special lenten service in the evening a good congregation listened to a sermon on "Honorable Defeats" by the Rev. Abbott Peterson of Brookline. The soloist was Dr. George F E. George Lawley, the Veteran boat builder of Neponset, died Saturday at his home in South Boston after a short illness. His first shipyards were at South and East Boston and Scituate. Among the big yachts built by his firm were the Alcaea, the Ingomar and the cup boat Jubilee, the schooners Latona and Endymion and the steam yachts Alcedo, Aquilo, Currier, Inca, Varuna and Valda. They also did much work for the United States Government, among them being the torpedo boats Blakely and Delong. OFFICER WAS NOT PATROLLING BEAT

Mayor Campbell Starts Out to Learn Reason Why

LISTENS TO EXPLANATIONS

Some citizen telephoned Mayor Campbell this morning that one of the day officers, who was supposed to be on his beat at 9 o'clock was loafing away his time in a drug store in city square.

Without stopping to put on his coat, his honor started for the drug store in question. Before he could reach the store, however, the officer appeared walking toward City hall, evidently intending to take a street car for his beat. Nothing daunted, the mayor hastened across the street and stopped him. In response to his inquiry as to why he was not on duty the officer said that he had some cases in court which had been the cause of his delay. Nothing more was said, but it is evident that the mayor intends to keep in close touch with the time officers report for duty.

FR. DERMODY PASSES AWAY

Fr. Joseph J. Dermody, pastor of St. Colman's church at Brockton, who went south a few weeks ago because of ill health, died at Baltimore, Md., Monday.

He was pastor of St. Anne's parish at Neponset for many years and was appointed to new St. Colman's parish in 1910. Since then he has succeeded in erecting a new church and parish house.

Father Dermody was beloved by the people of all creeds in that city. He was also loved and respected in Quincy by a large number who enjoyed his friendship. He was one of a family of six children. His brother, James M. Dermody was killed in the Spanish war. His body will be brought to Brockton for burial.

BUSY DAY FOR FIRE FIGHTERS

Monday was a busy day for the fire department for during the day the apparatus was called out several times on still alarms. These were for grass fires near the Adams farm, grass fires on Third Hill, Wollaston, grass and brush fires in the woods near the stone crusher off Centre street and in the rear of the Kincaide block, in what is known as Edwards meadows. The Atlantic apparatus was also called out twice on still alarms for slight fires

This morning the central station apparatus was again called to extinguish a grass fire in the meadows back of the Kincaide block

RED MEN PLAN B. B. SEASON

Most of Veterans Will Be In Line-Up

At a special meeting of the Red Men Athletic Association arrangements were made for the coming base ball season.

The Red Men will be remembered as the winners of the amatuer championship of Quincy, having taken the title away from the Orient A. A. and successfully defending it during the entire season.

The Red Men expect to have as good a team on the field as in previous years. Last year the record was 17 won and 4 lost. Victories were over such teams as the Orient A. A. ,Weymouth A. C., Everett Athletics, Braintree White Sox, and Div. 22 A. O. H. of West Quincy.

Moorhouse, who was on the receiving end of the battery, will again be seen scooping the low ones and smothering the wild ones.

"Hen" Johnson and "Lucky" Kenn in all probability will be seen burning them across again this year.

MacIntyre, better known as "Mac" who has been covering the initial corner so well during the past few years, is the only man who is not sure of joining the team this year.

Kemp and Johnson will take care of second and short as in previous years.

Markham, better known as "Jug", wo ih sbeyond all question the best infielder in Quincy today, will probably cover third. "Jug" is truly a remarkable fielder covering either to right or left with ease and is a sure line thrower to first.

The outfield, as in previous years, will be taken care of by "Bob" Sommers, "Red" Veal and Russ Kenn and Spargo.

MARRIED 47 YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Phillips, celebrated their 47th marriage anniversary Sunday at their home on Union street by a family party which took the form of a reunion of their children and grandchildren. Mr. Phillips, is well known in Grand Army circles, being a Past Commander of Paul Revere Post. In his younger days he followed the occupation of a submarine diver.

MIDNIGHT FIRE.

A roof fire was discovered at midnight at the home of Edward Koldstedt on Holmes street, Norfolk Downs, by a nearby resident. He phoned Central station and Chief Billings and the auto chemical responded. There was but little damage. The fire was extinguished by a stream from the chemical on the chief's car.

ASK $6,000 LESS THAN BUDGET OF LAST YEAR

Mayor Forwards Annual Estimate of Expenses to City Council

There was disappointment on the part of some of the spectators at the meeting of the city council Monday evening when President Whiton did not read in detail the budget forwarded to the council by the Mayor. However had it been read it is doubtful if many would have understood the full purport of it. For this reason the Ledger publishes the budget of estimates as forwarded by the mayor, and with it the figures of the amounts appropriated last year. In the figures of the appropriations of 1914, the amounts appropriated in the supplementary budgets are included.

It will be noticed that the grand total for current expenses in 1914 was $589,411.14 and that the grand total for 1915 as forwarded by the mayor totalled $583,007. In other words the amount asked for this year for current expenses is $6,404.14 less. However it is more than probable that before the tax rate is announced this year the mayor will forward a supplementary budget which will bring the amount of this year above that of a year ago.

In the tax collectors department the amount is considerably less this year, due largely to the elimination of the salary of $1,500 paid the tax collector by the consolidation of the office with that of the city treasurer. The amount this year is $2,171 less.

In the assessors department the amount this year is $244 less, the main cut being in the "other expenses account" which last year was known as "miscellaneous" In the city clerk's department the amount is increased $756, of which amount $200 is for increase in salary of the City Clerk.

The commissioner's budget this year shows an increase of $1,300. This increase is made up wholly of $1,000 for one clerk, who is supposed to be the purchasing agent, and the $300 is for the expenses of that clerk. There is no ordinance establishing the office of purchasing agent and for that reason he had to be taken care of as a clerk in the commissioners department.

The increase noted in the police budget is due to the addition of three permanent men to the department and to the amount of $2,000 which the mayor put in for equipment of police signal wires.

The amount for the fire department however shows a cut of over $13,000 from last year and is accomplished by cutting out of this year's estimate $9,970 for hydrants and $4,000 for tractor for the steamer.

The "Other expense" account of the building inspector is cut $300 this year.

The Board of Health budget shows a decrease of $6,400 which is due to reductions in amounts for contagious diseases. The amount for ashes, garbage, scavenger work and brooks shows a slight increase.

In the School committee expenses the greatest increase is shown for the total is $17,760 and in this account it is noticed that the mayor has cut off the sum of $2,400 asked for by the school department for added equipment.

In the unclassified there are some slight changes in the amounts for charities and for highway expenses. The latter account has been cut $1,000 in street sprinkling and the item of $4,000 for removal of snow has been cut out this year.

There are some new items added this year which include $1,000 for July 4th celebration, $300 for the Board of Survey and $250 for the Planning Board.

In the fixed charges it will be noticed that there are some natural

PEACE AND EFFICIENCY.

One of the principal contentions of people who believe in European militarism, is that continued peace lands to softness and effeminacy. This is a materialistic age, it is argued, and in our hustle for moneymaking, power to endure suffering and danger are lost.

Yet little Belgium has had peace for practically a century. During that time it had grown rich and powerful industrially. Several generations had lived and died, without the sufferings of war. Yet nowhere in history is there a story of greater heroism than that of the Belgium people since last August. Similarly the other nations of Europe have been at peace for many years, apparently without leterioration of courage.

Ordinary daily life is full of struggle. Sickness, death, pain, loneliness, the support of a family under hard industrial conditions, these are conditions producing resolution and courage. Here is one consolation of the tragic losses of the war, that it shows that the human race despite growing prosperity, has not lost its physical fiber.

ROAD MIRRORS.

The idea of having road mirrors situated at dangerous corners sounds good. In England they are not rare, and it is claimed that they have greatly minimized accidents at bad corners, Bombay, India, however leads the world in this new device, having an enormous mirror, five by ten feet. The only difficulty it would seem, is the one of the sun's making a blinding flash if the mirror faced it. Perhaps there is a canopy over it, but this might obstruct the view. Our reports from abroad do not mention this obvious drawback.

RELIGION NEEDED.

Billy Sunday better spend a few weeks in Aitkin, Mina. The Pathfinder tells us the following about that place:

"A colored girl brought suit against the officers of a Sunday school at Aitkin, Minn., alleging that by being forced to sit apart from white members of the school she had been discriminated against. The district court has just ruled that colored persons have no civil rights in the matter of their treatment in Sunday schools for the reason that churches and religious societies are not specifically included in the so-called civil rights act."

WE DO IT OFTEN.

How would you like to be able to make out a check for forty-nine odd million dollars? It has been done and is the largest check on record. Khun, Loeb & Co., of New York drew last week in favor of the Penn R. R. to pay the amount subscribed in a recent sale of 4 1-2 per cent Penn. bonds.

The Germans have called forth a lot of adverse criticism because of their remarks about their own greatness. Well, the Topeka Capital has a pertinent remark about this subject, which is worth considering:

"The worst thing about the Germans is the way they bluster about their superiority to other people, not realizing that as a matter of fact we consider ourselves the particular salt of the earth."

Grand opera will probably fight shy of Chicago for some time to come. The Chicago grand opera company, after an unsuccessful season has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, giving liabilities of $264,000 and assets of $61,500.

increases. In the Water department the increase in round figures is $3,000 due to water debt falling due and repairs and a slight increase in clerical services although the items in the estimate for interest show a decrease.

In the sewer department the amount is something over $1,000 less which is for interest falling due.

The city treasurer's budget shows an increase of a little less than $7,000 due to the city debt falling due. It will also be noticed that the interest falling due this year is about $2,000 less than last year.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

Howard Thayer, a conductor of the Bay State St. Ry., who was struck and knocked down by the auto of F. Meirs at Barry's corner Sunday afternoon and received slight injuries to his leg, will not be able to report for work for several days. He is under the care of Dr. Whitehouse.

Mr. Thayer walked around the rear of a Quincy bound car on his way to a signal box and the machine ran into him. Thayer received first aid treatment and finished the run to City Square where he was relieved from duty.

PRESENTS TICKETS TO SHOW.

The members of the city council were presented with complimentary season tickets to the automobile show, which opens in Mechanics building, Boston, Saturday, by Mayor Campbell, the manager of the show. It is probable that Quincy will be well represented at the show during the week.

Woman's World

Mrs. Blatch Thinks Women Are Born Diplomats.

MRS. HARRIOT STANTON BLATCH.

Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch made a ringing speech at Cooper Union, in New York, when 5,000 women met to protest against war. Her words were rewarded again and again with applause, but these brought forth tumult: "Men don't go into powder magazines carrying lighted matches, because they know the nature of powder. But they don't know human nature.

"All the diplomatic posts of the world should be filled with women because they are natural diplomats. The reason for their diplomacy is that they know human nature and, knowing it, have the grace and patience to handle it. Men are blind on the human nature side. When they attempt to handle questions involving men they handle them as they would cattle—by force or terror. With women they have a softer hand, though that is under protest. It is a concession to what men have long tolerated, though with a poor grace, woman's 'touchiness.'

"Women provide the curves of human nature, men the angles, and it is a curious comment that the curves understand the angles, but to the angles the curves remain to the last a mystery. Men have a glimmering sense of this extra knowledge of women, but not one of them has been clever enough or gallant enough to give it its right name. They have talked of women's intuition, their strange, half childlike, half animal scent of the true character, but not once have they applied the term that fits that rare and needful character. The word is 'penetration.'

"A man and woman stand beside the stream of human nature. Man sees the bright surface of it. He notes the swiftness or slowness of its current. A woman sees the mud and the pebbles at the bottom."

What Are Good Manners?

Many definitions have been given from time to time, but one of the best is the sort of manners which are guided by kindness and consideration for others. If you keep this in mind you need not be afraid of criticism. If you let your actions be guided by motives of kindness, if you consider others before yourself, you are bound to do the right thing—which is the kind thing—at the right time.

Of course there are various forms in social usage which can only be acquired by association with refined persons, but if this is denied one the seeker after good manners cannot go very far astray if he or she remembers to let kindness and consideration rule.

In these days when the average person is "out for himself," when selfishness is the predominant note of social and business intercourse, the man or woman who thinks of others and acts according to their wishes will soon be marked for a kindliness of manner which cannot be equaled by those who have been called to higher places in life.

Take Care of Shoes.

The care of the shoes is an absolute necessity with the new fashion of short dresses. The laced shoe has come in again for both morning and afternoon wear, though the type varies.

For morning the vamp has a finish of dull tan or black leather, with a light fawn or tan top. For afternoon the vamp is of patent leather and the top is of paler shade, is trimmed with a bit of the patent leather and is altogether a more decorative type of boot.

Cleaning Marble.

Marble is cleaned as follows: Pound together two ounces of washing soda, an ounce of powdered pumice stone and an ounce of whiting. Sift them through muslin. Make these ingredients into a cream with sufficient boiling water. Apply thickly with a brush, allow to dry, then wash off with hot water, dry and rub up with a soft cloth. All porcelain yellowed with iron sediment may be cleaned with muriatic acid.

Using Stale Bread.

Brown in oven every scrap of stale bread that is left, but don't scorch. Roll while hot and crisp, and sift. Use the fine crumbs for croquettes, etc.; the coarser for puddings, etc. Keep dry in glass jars or tin cans.

TOY WATCH CITY.

A model of the whole city of Waltham, 18 feet by 12 feet, will be shipped this noon to California to be placed in the Waltham exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The model is a remarkable one, and represents an enormous amount of work although it was actually prepared during the past six weeks.

A plot of the city, three by two miles square, is represented by the model, on a scale of 50 feet to the inch. Every public building and church, business blocks and houses streets and alleyways, are shown in miniature, like a birdseye view from an aeroplane. There are 5300 houses shown.—Belmont Courier.

CHURCH AND CHOIR

WOLLASTON M. E.

Rev. George M. Bailey of the Wollaston Methodist church preached on Sunday morning on the theme, "Little Sir Galahad as a Temple of God, or The Religious Philosophy of a Child." The sermon was based on the book "Little Sir Galahad" and especially the sentiment expressed by one of the characters in the book, namely, "I guess God is all right when he gets around to you."

The thought of the theme was inspired by the fact that a chapter of the Order of the Knights of King Arthur has just been organized in the church. The ideal of this order is Knightly Christian manhood. Nothing is to be allowed to pass the lips of a knight which will in any way mar the beauty of this temple. The idea of the temple among primitive people was a place cut off or set aside for a holy purpose not as the word has come to mean now a structure built up with more or less ornamentation. When Paul tells us that we are the temple of the living God he uses the term in its fundamental meaning implying that we are set apart for a special purpose which is one of high and lofty ideals.

"The Little Sir Galahad" is a splendid book for every boy and girl to read and the older people will have tears in their eyes before it is finished The story is that of the life of a little cripple boy who allowed God to work. His will in him and through him. We all may be Galahads or Knights of the Grail but in order to be so we must give ourselves wholly into His hands to do with us as He will. Only the pure could find or touch the holy Grail in the olden time so also only the pure can do God's will today. May our prayer be that God will lead us all into the knightly way and that God may be able to get around to someone else through us.

The Ladies' Aid of the Wollaston Methodist church held their regular monthly meeting in the church parlor on Monday afternoon. It was voted to have a social on the afternoon of April 5 at which time the dime cards are to be brought in. This is to take the place of the St. Patrick's social which would have conflicted with the meeting of the Men's club. The ladies also voted to form themselves into an auxiliary to the Knights of King Arthur.

A postal card shower is to be sent to Miss Annie Crothers on Saturday of this week. Miss Crothers is a patient in the Deaconess Hospital, Brookline.

Go-to-Church-Band pins were awarded to the following people at the end of the preaching service, Sunday morning at the Wollaston Methodist church: Mrs. Samuel N. Belcher. Mr. Samuel N. Belcher, Miss Bertha Goodwin, Mrs. Higgins, Mr. Arthur R. Poquett, Mrs. Arthur R. Poquett, Conrad Keyes, Warren Cottrell, Mrs. Fred W. Morgan, Mrs. Morgan senior, Miss Hellena Euerle, Miss Florence Palmer, Mrs. Keith, Mr. George Crothers, Mr. Fred W. Sutermeister, Miss Marguerite L. Holbrook, Miss Hilda Bailey, Mr. Raymond C. AT THE THEATRE

Kincaide's Theatre was filled at both performances Monday, to see the conclusion of "The Million Dollar Mystery" and Miss Bessie McDonald, of Norfolk Downs, who appeared with three others in Scotch, Irish and sailor costumes. Thursday evening Miss McDonald was presented with several bouquets of pink and white pinks, and a bunch of white roses.

The act in which she appeared deserves special commendation, dances by Miss McDonald and her partners showing that she travels with good actors. The name of the act was the "Four Frasers."

The lucky winner of the conclusion of the story of "The Million Dollar Mystery" is Ida Damon, who comes "from Missouri," but she certainly took the prize as her picture was shown as part of the reel. Every "mystery" is explained, some of our guesses were right and some wrong

We are forced to say "The Countess" and Brain and their future is not as bright as Florence's and "Jim's."

A four reel picture is also on the bill and it centers on English royalty and our own Western life. "The Idler" is its title.

"Geo. Murphy," a jolly "made up" coon, kept the audience continually laughing with his puns and humorous songs.

The Pathe News gave some interesting scenes of the Panama Exposition and a few war pictures.

At the whist party last week in Poland hall Norfolk Downs the winners were John Suiten, Gus Kendell, Mr. Gates, Mr. Munn and Mr. McAllister. The ladies were Mr. Lizzie Furnald, Mrs. Thomson, Mrs. John Hildebrand, Mrs. Sarah Williams and Mrs. McLeod Another party is to be held March 10

BOYS CLUB GIVE CONCERT

A fine entertainment was given in the Atlantic M. E. church on Monday evening. The affair was in charge of the Boys' class and the proceeds were for the roofing fund.

An orchestra composed of Misses Gladys Pollard, Carrie Huchinson, Pauletta Kristoffersin, Ethel Huchinson and Ned Simpson and Mrs. Bertha Carter Flinn opened the program with L'Argo by Handel, and D'Varck by Chester Joseph Wood, a favorite of Atlantic audiences, read several numbers including, "Changing Color," "A Greater," "Discourse on Apples," and "Stairs."

The orchestra then played, "The Song Without Words," after which Mrs. Bertha Carter Flinn sang "At Dawning" and "You and I."

Rev. George H. Parkinson gave a short talk on his experience as a minister in the west. He took as his subject, "The Preacher on the Plains." He related many strange and wonderful adventures which he experienced while in the west.

Mr. Parkinson is pastor of the Methodist church in Newton, and the orchestra was from his church.

After the conclusion of that part of the program, the audience went down stairs where ice cream and candy were served. The orchestra furnished more music.

Fore River Officials Hold Bowling Match

Two teams, composed of officials of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, one captained by President Joseph W. Powell and the other by Manager H. Gerrish Smith, held a special bowling match at the Coliseum alleys on Monday evening which was one of the hardest fought contests rolled at the alleys this season. The team of Manager Smith won by a substantial margin, 1126 to 1069.

Brown was high man with a single of 96 and a total of 245. His big string was the result of a strike on a spare which netted him 36 pins.. Sedgwick's single of 89 was brought about by an 18 spare. He got 87 in his third with an 11 spare. Smith's best string, 86, was boosted by a 16 spare and Warriner's high single was 84 reached with the aid of a 16 spare.

President Powell had the poorest kind of luck in his first, closing with 46. He got a 12 spare in the second string and a figure of 78 and he equalled it in the last. His total, 202, was low and when joshed about it said he hadn't warmed up to the occasion.

Referees, some of them registered and others professionals, watched the foul line and during the entire match they were not obliged to order the pins reset because a bowler went over the line. More than a score of clerks at the office of the company were present to see the contest.

S. T. MacQuarrie, clerk of the corporation, was late in arriving and did not join the throng.

Luncheon was served during the evening by A. J. Thompson and there were plenty of cigars to help the bowlers pass the interval between their appearances. Another match is being arranged.

Kelly made 114 once and Herb Smith 111. The winners have arranged to roll W. Currier and J. Dunn next Monday evening. The strings:

SPRIG MAY BE LOCAL CHAMPION

The Corinthian Yacht club has challenged the Boston Yacht club for the Quincy cup and the annual series, the best known in Eastern yachting circles, seem practically assured.

The Quincy Yacht club may be represented by Charles Francis Adams Sprig and it is possible that the cup may be brought back here. The Boston Yacht club, holder of the cup, will in all probability be represented by the Ellen of C. P. Curtis, Jr., which won the trophy.

Herbert Sears is preparing his Mingo which flies the flag of the Eastern Yacht club, for the series. The Manchester club will be represented by Guy Lowell's Cima and the Corinthian by Mrs. Guy Lowell's Amic.

The Corinthian challenge is the first received but no delay in filing challengers by the other clubs is anticipated.

HEARING ON SEA WALL PETITION

It was nearly 4 o'clock Monday afternoon before the committee on metropolitan affairs of the legislature reached the bill calling for an appropriation of $10,000 to build a sea wall along the water front of Houghs Neck. The hearing was advertised for 10.30 in the morning and a number of citizens were present at that hour.

Mayor Campbell, after waiting all day, had gone when the bill was reached but the city was represented by City Solicitor Pinkham, City Engineer Sargent, Senator Langelier, Representative Sandberg and Dock Commissioner Crane. These all spoke in favor of the bill and there was no opposition. The members of the committee asked a number of questions. It is believed by the Quincy men present that a good case was made out.

The proposed wall is to be built along the shore front of Houghs Neck which is now being continually washed away by the tides.

YE OLDEN DAYS

How many can remember the beginning of the Public Library in Quincy? A few of us met somewhere about half a century ago, around at the different houses and discussed the establishment of a public library. Among our number was Mr. Greenough who lived on the place now owned by Harry L. Rice on Adams street, I think Mr. Greenough built the house. He was chief spokesman of the movement, as he was one of the trustees of the Boston Public Library and knew all about the "Modus Operandi."

Others of our number were the late James Edwards, Edwin W. Marsh Cotton Center Johnson and others, whose names I fail to remember and none of whom are living so far as I know.

After the movement was well organized, a library was established in what was known and what was left of the old Orthodox church, opposite the bakery on Hancock street. When Mr. Crane furnished the funds for a new library, now known as the Thomas Crane Public Library the books were moved there.

I suppose there must be a few living who remember old Doctor Woodward, who bought all that tract of land known as the Greenleaf estate, on which Daniel Greenleaf a bachelor lived and before him the Quincys; a large territory extending in the northerly direction to Black's creek and also to the estate of John Quincy Adams, on Merrymount.

I went to him about 50 years ago with the intention of purchasing house and land bordering said Adams estate and the extreme northerly end of Greenleaf street but his reply was "I wouldn't sell that house and land for its weight in gold. That is the watch dog to keep John Quincy Adams from gaining an entrance to Greenleaf street from his estate." I endeavored" he said "to have him unite with me to lay out and build that road, and he refused to give a cent towards it, hence he will never gain an entrance anywhere on that side of his estate as long as I live nor after my decease." Hence he was obliged to go out near the Mt. Wollaston cemetery, a round-about way to reach his father's (Hon. C. F. Adams) residence.

"Paddy Hollow" was a prominent location in early days, located in the region of Kincaide's furniture store, near the town brook as it passed across Hancock street. Panton's Tannery was located there and nearly opposite in still earlier days was Frank William's tannery and further up the street near the junction of School was his currying shop and Clift Rodger's. Near the corner of Franklin and School streets in early days was the Tiger engine house, and when the Tiger and Niagara engine companies met and tried to overflow the others tub in pumping into it there were exciting times not only for the boys but the men.

On the Tiger engine house was a painting of a fire scene and the sculptored head of a tiger, artisticly fashsioned, by old master Seaver, who taught in the old stone school house in South Quincy the sign was held in great reverence by the boys of that period.

The old fellow was rather severe in his discipline when he got mad. You could see him pass down the aisle with a switch in his hand gritting his teeth. You didn't know whether he was coming for you, until he reached the victim and laid the switch on the yelling fellow's back. for whispering or something of the sort. That was the method then of school discipline. Some times he would send a boy up into the Common to cut a bunch of switches. An up-to-date boy would, with his knife cut an almost invisible gash in the stick so to the teacher's dismay they were not as effective as he desired; but quite to the satisfaction of the boy whipped.

In years after retirement when master Seaver had arrived to about 80 years of age he called at my office in Boston and we had a very pleasant talk. He said when he first came to Quincy at about 22 years of age, he was about the only teacher in the main portion of the town. It was the habit of ex-President John Adams to invite the teacher to his home to dine with the family. He said on the first visit, there were present Judge Cranch, who married Mrs. Adams' sister, Mrs. Adams and President Adams. Master Seaver was invited to carve the turkey. Well, it was something he never did in his life and it was a pretty embarrassing position to put a young fellow just out of his teens, but said he "I pitched in, with the perspiration covering my face. Not knowing where the joints were, I cut away, hither and thither and with a trembling hand made a gash here and a cut there. Where there was not a joint, I made one and ever after he studied the arts of the Epicurean and not like the western Congressman in President Jackson's time, who as an invited guest attended one of his state dinners, and being helped to soup, liked it so well he was helped to another plate. Then came on the turkey and there I sat," said he, "chock full of soup and couldn't touch a mite of the blamed turkey like a blamed fool."

When Young Master Seaver finished the dinner, President Adams invited him into his library and as was his custom gave the teacher an opportunity to select a book to take home to read and return the following week. He asked the President what book he had better take and was advised to take Shakespeare which he did. At the end of the week, he returned it and the President asked him what he thought of Hamlet's soliloquy? Seaver scratched his head a little hesitated awhile and said "I read the book through but I don't recall it." "Well said the President, "What did you think of Portia's plea in the trial scene of the Merchant of Venice?" Seaver passed his hands through his hair again, "I declare," said he "I don't seem to recall that." "Well said the President, "You had better take the book home and read it" which I did and you may rest assured I read it, thoroughly that time it was a great lesson to me ever after when I read a book, I read it understandingly and thoroughly.

WEST QUINCY SEEKING BANK

A petition is being signed in West Quincy to be presented to the Bank Commissioner relative to the establishment of a co-operative bank in West Quincy. The movement has met with the approval of the people especially the younger class and the Italian residents. The movement was suggested several years ago but failed to receive the proper encouragement and was dropped for the time. At the last meeting of the Ward Four Improvement society the matter was again discussed and the result was the circulation of the petition. The matter will again be taken up at the next meeting of the Improvement society.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE
The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company. All Foreign Rights Reserved.

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Jameson, a newspaper man. Enraged at the determined effort which Elaine and Craig Kennedy are making to put an end to his crimes, the Clutching Hand, as this strange criminal is known, resorts to all sorts of the most diabolical schemes to put them out of the way. Each chapter of the story tells of a new plot against their lives and of the way the great detective uses all his skill to save this pretty girl and himself from death.

TENTH EPISODE

THE LIFE CURRENT.

Assignments were being given out on the Star one afternoon, and I was standing talking with several other reporters, in the busy hum of typewriters and clicking telegraphs.

"What do you think of that?" asked one of the fellows. "You're something of a scientific detective, aren't you?"

Without laying claim to such a distinction, I took the paper and read:

THE POISONED KISS AGAIN.

Three More New York Women Report Being Kissed by Mysterious Stranger—Later Fell Into Deep Unconsciousness—What Is It?

I had scarcely finished when one of the copy boys, dashing past me, called out: "You're wanted on the wire, Mr. Jameson."

I hurried over to the telephone and answered.

A musical voice responded to my hurried hello, and I hastened to adopt my most polite tone.

"Is this Mr. Jameson?" asked the voice.

"Yes," I replied, not recognizing it.

"Well, Mr. Jameson, I've heard of you on the Star, and I've just had a very strange experience. I've had the poisoned kiss."

The woman did not pause to catch my exclamation of astonishment, but went on: "It was like this. A man ran up to me on the street and kissed me—and—I don't know how it was—but I became unconscious—and I didn't come to for an hour—in a hospital—fortunately. I don't know what would have happened if it hadn't been that someone came to my assistance and the man fled. I thought the Star would be interested."

"We are," I hastened to reply. "Will you give me your name?"

"Why, I am Mrs. Florence Leigh of No. 20 Prospect avenue," returned the voice.

"Say," I exclaimed hurrying over to the editor's desk, "here's another woman on the wire who says she has received the poisoned kiss."

"Suppose you take that assignment," the editor answered, sensing a possible story.

I took it with alacrity, figuring out the quickest way by elevated and surface to reach the address.

I must say that I could scarcely criticize the poisoned kisser's taste, for the woman who opened the door certainly was extraordinarily attractive.

"And you really were—put out by a kiss?" I queried, as she led me into a neat sitting room.

"Absolutely—as much as if it had been by one of these poisoned needles you read about," she replied confidently, hastening on to describe the affair volubly.

It was beyond me.

"May I use your telephone?" I asked.

"Surely," she answered.

I called the laboratory. "Is that you, Craig?" I inquired.

"Yes, Walter," he answered, recognizing my voice.

"Say, Craig," I asked breathlessly, "what sort of kiss would suffocate a person?"

My only answer was an uproarious laugh from him at the idea.

"I know," I persisted, "but I've got the assignment from the Star—and I'm out here interviewing a woman about it. It's all right to laugh—but here I am. I've found a case—names, dates and places. I wish you'd explain the thing, then."

"Oh, all right, Walter," he replied indulgently. "I'll meet you as soon as I can and help you out."

We waited patiently.

The bell rang and the woman hastened to the door, admitting Kennedy.

"Hello, Walter," he greeted.

"This is certainly a most remarkable case, Craig," I said, introducing him, and telling briefly what I had learned.

"And you actually mean to say that a kiss had the effect—"

Just then the telephone interrupted.

"Yes," she reasserted quickly. "Excuse me a second."

She answered the call. "Oh—why—yes, he's here. Do you want to speak to him? Mr. Jameson, it's the Star."

"Confound it!" I exclaimed, "isn't that like the old man—dragging me off this story before it's half finished in order to get another. I'll have to go. I'll get this story from you, Craig."

* * * * * * *

The day before, in the suburban house, the Clutching Hand had been talking to two of his emissaries, an attractive young woman and a man.

They were Flirty Florrie and Dan the Dude.

"Now, I want you to get Kennedy," he said. "The way to do it is to separate Kennedy and Elaine—see?"

"All right, Chief, we'll do it," they replied.

Clutching Hand had scarcely left when Flirty Florrie began by getting published in the papers the story which I had seen.

The next day she called me up from the suburban house. Having got me to promise to see her, she had scarcely turned from the telephone when Dan the Dude walked in from the next room.

"He's coming," she said.

Dan was carrying a huge stag head with a beautifully branched pair of antlers. Under his arm was a coil of wire which he had connected to the inside of the head.

"Fine!" he exclaimed. Then, pointing to the head, he added, "It's all ready. See how I fixed it? That ought to please the Chief.

Dan moved quickly to the mantel and mounted a stepladder there by which he had taken down the head, and started to replace the head above the mantel.

He hooked the head on a nail.

"There," he said, unscrewing one of the beautiful brown glass eyes of the stag.

Back of it could be seen a camera shutter.

"One of those new quick shutter cameras," he explained.

Then he ran a couple of wires along the molding around the room and into a closet, where he made the connection with a sort of switchboard on which a button was marked, "SHUTTER" and the switch, "WIND FILM."

"Now, Flirty," he said, coming out of the closet and pulling up the shade which let a flood of sunlight into the room, "you see, I want you to stand here—then, do your little trick."

Just then the bell rang.

"That must be Jameson," she cried. "Now—get to your corner."

With a last look Dan went into the closet and shut the door.

Perhaps half an hour later Clutching Hand himself called me up on the telephone. It was he—not the Star—as I learned only too late.

* * * * * * * *

I had scarcely got out of the house, as Craig told me afterwards, when Flirty Florrie told all over again the embroidered tale that had caught my ear.

Kennedy said nothing, but listened intently, perhaps betraying in his face the skepticism he felt.

"You see," she said, still voluble and eager to convince him, "I was only walking on the street. Here—let me show you. It was just like this."

She took his arm and, before he knew, it, led him to the spot on the floor near the window which Dan had indicated. Meanwhile Dan was listening attentively in his closet.

"Now—stand there. You are just as I was—only I didn't expect anything."

She was pantomiming some one approaching stealthily, while Kennedy watched her with interest, tinged with doubt. Behind Craig in his closet, Dan was reaching for the switchboard button.

"You see," she said advancing quickly and acting her words, "he placed his hands on my shoulders—so—then threw his arms about my neck—so!"

She said no more, but imprinted a deep, passionate kiss on Kennedy's mouth, clinging closely to him. Before Kennedy could draw away, Dan in the closet, had pressed the button and the switch several times in rapid succession.

"Th—that's very realistic," gasped Craig, a good deal taken aback by the sudden osculatory assault.

He frowned.

"I—I'll look into the case," he said, backing away. "There—there may be some scientific explanation—but—er"—

He was plainly embarrassed and hastened to make his adieux.

* * * * * * * *

How little impression the thing made on Kennedy can be easily seen from the fact that on the way downtown that afternoon he stopped at Martin's, on Fifth avenue, and bought a ring—a very handsome solitaire, the finest Martin had in the shop.

It must have been about the time that he decided to stop at Martin's that the Dodge butler, Jennings, admitted a young lady who presented a card on which was engraved the name

Miss Florence Leigh,
20 Prospect Avenue.

As he handed Elaine the card, she looked up from the book she was reading and took it.

"All right, show her in, Jennings. I'll see her."

Elaine moved into the drawing room, Jennings springing forward to part the portieres for her and passing through the room quickly where Flirty Florrie sat waiting. Flirty Florrie rose and stood gazing at Elaine, apparently very much embarrassed, even after Jennings had gone.

"It is embarrassing," she said finally, "but, Miss Dodge, I have come to you to beg for my love."

Elaine looked at her nonplused.

"Yes," she continued, "you do not know it, but Craig Kennedy is infatuated with you." She paused again, then added, "But he is engaged to me."

Elaine stared at the woman. She was dazed. She could not believe it.

"There is the ring," Flirty Florrie added, indicating a very impressive paste diamond.

Quickly she reached into her bag and drew out two photographs, without a word, handing them to Elaine.

"There's the proof," Florrie said simply, choking a sob.

Elaine looked with a start. Sure enough, there was the neat living room in the house on Prospect avenue. In one picture Florrie had her arms over Kennedy's shoulders. In the other, apparently, they were passionately kissing.

Elaine slowly laid the photographs on the table.

"Please—please, Miss Dodge—give me back my lost love. You are rich and beautiful—I am poor. I have only my good looks. But—I—I love him—and he—loves me—and has promised to marry me."

Florrie had broken down completely and was weeping softly into a lace handkerchief.

She moved toward the door. Elaine followed her.

"Jennings—please see the lady to the door."

Back in the drawing-room, Elaine seized the photographs and hurried into the library where she could be alone.

Just then she heard the bell and Kennedy's voice in the hall.

"How are you this afternoon," Kennedy greeted Elaine gayly.

Elaine had been too overcome by what had just happened to throw it off so easily, and received him with studied coolness.

Still, Craig, manlike, did not notice it at once. In fact, he was too busy gazing about to see that neither Jennings, Marie nor the duenna Aunt Josephine were visible. They were not and he quickly took the ring from his pocket. Without waiting, he showed it to Elaine.

Elaine very coolly admired the ring, as Craig might have eyed a specimen on a microscope slide. Still, he did not notice.

He took the ring, about to put it on her finger. Elaine drew away. Concealment was not in her frank nature.

She picked up the two photographs.

"What have you to say about those?" she asked cuttingly.

Kennedy, quite surprised, took them and looked at them. Then he let them fall carelessly on the table and dropped into a chair, his head back in a burst of laughter.

"Why—that was what they put over on Walter," he said. "He called me up early this afternoon—told me he had discovered one of these poisoned kiss cases you have read about in the papers. Think of it—all that to pull a concealed camera! Such an elaborate business—just to get me where they could fake this thing. I suppose they've put someone up to saying she's engaged?"

Elaine was not so lightly affected. "But," she said severely, repressing her emotion, "I don't understand, Mr. Kennedy, how scientific inquiry into 'the poisoned kiss' could necessitate this sort of thing."

She pointed at the photographs accusingly.

"But," he began, trying to explain. "No buts," she interrupted.

"Then you believe that I—"

"How can you, as a scientist, ask me to doubt the camera?" she insinuated, very coldly turning away.

Kennedy rapidly began to see that it was far more serious than he had at first thought.

"Very well," he said with a touch of impatience, "if my word is not to be taken—I—I'll—"

He had seized his hat and stick.

Elaine did not deign to answer.

Then, without a word, he stalked out of the door.

* * * * * * *

Kennedy was moping in the laboratory the next day when I came in.

"Say, Craig," I began, trying to overcome his fit of blues.

Kennedy, filled with his own thoughts, paid no attention to me. Then he jumped up.

"By George—I will," he muttered.

I poked my head out of the door in time to see him grab up his hat and coat and dash from the room, putting his coat on as he went.

"He's a nut today," I exclaimed to myself.

Though I did not know yet of the quarrel, Kennedy had really struggled with himself until he was willing to put his pride in his pocket and had made up his mind to call on Elaine again.

As he entered he saw that it was really of no use, for only Aunt Josephine was in the library.

"Oh, Mr. Kennedy," she said innocently enough, "I'm so sorry she isn't here. There's been something troubling her, and she won't tell me what it is. But she's gone to call on a young woman, a Florence Leigh, I think."

"Florence Leigh!" exclaimed Craig with a start and a frown. "Let me use your telephone."

I had turned my attention in the laboratory to a story I was writing, when I heard the telephone ring. It was Craig. Without a word of apology for his rudeness, which I knew had been purely absent-minded, I heard him say: "Walter, meet me in half an hour outside that Florence Leigh's house."

* * * * * * *

Half an hour later I was waiting near the house in the suburbs to which I had been directed by the strange telephone call the day before. I noticed that it was apparently deserted. The blinds were closed and a "To Let" sign was on the side of the house.

"Hello, Walter," cried Craig at last, bustling along.

He led the way around the side of the house to a window, and, with a powerful grasp, wrenched open the closed shutters. He had just smashed the window when a policeman appeared.

"Hey, you fellows—what are you doing there?" he shouted.

Craig paused a second, then pulled his card from his pocket.

"Just the man I want," he parried, much to the policeman's surprise. "There's something crooked going on here. Follow us in."

We climbed into the window. There was the same living room we had seen the day before. But it was now bare and deserted.

"Come on," cried Kennedy, beckoning us on.

Quickly he rushed through the house. There was not a thing in it to change the deserted appearance of the first floor. At last it occurred to Craig to grope his way down cellar. There was nothing there.

Kennedy had been carefully going over the place, and was at the other side of the cellar from ourselves when I saw him stop and gaze at the floor.

"Hide," he whispered suddenly to us.

We waited a moment. Nothing happened. Had he been seeing things or hearing things, I wondered?

From our hidden vantage we could now see a square piece in the floor, perhaps five feet in diameter, slowly open up as though on a pivot.

The weird and sinister figure of a man appeared. Over his head he wore a peculiar helmet with hideous glass pieces over the eyes and tubes that connected with a tank which he carried buckled to his back.

Quickly he closed down the cover of the tube, but not before a vile effluvium seemed to escape, and penetrate even to us in our hiding places. As he moved forward, Kennedy gave a flying leap at him, and we followed with a regular football interference.

It was the work of only a moment for us to subdue and hold him, while Craig ripped off the helmet.

It was Dan the Dude.

PLAN TWO LAUNCHINGS

Preparations are being made to launch two more submarine boats at the Fore River Shipyard. Construction is complete and although it is quite unlikely, there still remains the possibility that both may be launched on the same day.

The boats are duplicates of the L-1 and L-2 recently sent down the ways at the shipyard, provision for which were made by the appropriations for naval increase in 1912.

Sponsors and dates have not been determined, but if the custom of choosing the former is followed, the fair christener will be the wife of the future commander of the vessels.

NORTH WEYMOUTH

Mrs. Martha Edes who has many friends in the village, is at the Homeopathic hospital in Boston.

There has been some conjecture as to the outcome of the license question in Weymouth this year, much convassing having been done in favor of license. It is pleasing to note that the no's were 1110 and yes 787, a majority of 159 in favor of no-license.

Robert, the infant son of Mr. and A. J. Smith, is quite ill.

Herman Collyer, has severed his connection with J. W. Bartlett & Co., to take charge of his recently acquired business at Thomas's Corner. Leon Johnston will fill the vacancy.

Miss Dorothy Clark is the proud owner of a handsome upright piano.

Mr. and Mrs. McAllister of North street have been entertaining Miss Marie Westland of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. John Wolfe entertained the K. C. B. C. ladies at her home on Birchbrow avenue Friday evening.

Friends of Miss Irene Hackett of Lovell street are hoping for her speedy recovery from an illness which necessitated special treatment at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where she went on Saturday.

Miss Margaret Looney entertained several girl friends Saturday at her parlors in Central square. Refreshments and games made the time pass all too quickly Miss Jessie Beachey, presented Miss Looney with a mammoth bouquet of carnations and fern.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Abbott of 508 Broad street was the scene of a jolly party Saturday, in honor of Mrs. Abbott's birthday. There were twenty guests present from Quincy, Wollaston and the Weymouths, who left many appropriate gifts. A number of vocal selections were rendered by William Fay of Quincy and there was also instrumental music. The central decoration of the dining table was an elaborate birthday cake, made by a fourteen year old miss, Eusie Clarke of Lovells corner.

Members of the newly organized Combination One company held their first annual supper in the Athens street engine house Friday evening with every member present. It was a turkey supper prepared by F. H. Miller, chairman assisted by W. W. Cushing, R. P. Hesse, Harry Knight, Edward Stone, John Carter. At the close of the repast, a musical program was given by Bert Maxim piano and C. H. Brown, violin, Harry Knight sang several solos and gave an exhibition of buck and wing dancing. District Chief P. W. Wolfe was presented with a chief's hat by the company.

The regular monthly meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery association was held Monday afternoon at the club house on Goffe street. There was a good attendance of members. Routine business only was transacted.

MAKE LIFE MASKS FOR PULMOTORS

Life masks for pulmotors that will fit the faces of babies and children are being manufactured as a result of Dr. Hardwick's introduction of that apparatus in resuscitation of new born babes.

Dr. Hardwick's application of the pulmotor revived the child for the time being but it finally succumbed to natural causes. The child was born to Mrs. Thomas DiTullio of 79 Union street and at its birth gave very little promise of living. The pulse showed only about seven beats a minute and it was supposed there was no life. A stethoscope revealed a spark and it was found by blowing in the nose of the child that the heart increased to 30 beats.

It was then that Dr. Hardwick thought of the pulmotor and it was applied. Patrolmen Phillips and Milford who lost no time in getting to the scene with the apparatus both demonstrated such skill in adjusting it that there was no need of the customary medical assistance.

Within 15 minutes of their arrival the child was as natural as any healthy boy. The pulmotor was taken off and suddenly the child stopped breathing. The apparatus was then again applied until the child cried and life as far as could be ascertained was assured.

The little child however passed away at midnight, three days later, from natural causes, but still having demonstrated to the satisfaction of many of the medical fraternity that a pulmotor was a valuable adjunct in resuscitation.

CEDARCREST FIRE LOSS IS $5000

The large house on the Wainwright estate at East Braintree, recently occupied by the Cedarcrest Outing club, was not entirely destroyed by the fire which broke out in the upper part of the structure Monday afternoon, The damage is thought to be $5000.

The fire, probably started from an overheated chimney, and had communicated to all parts of the second story before a passerby on the street 1200 feet distant, saw the smoke curling out of an open window. He ran to the place and found Thomas Finnegan of Dorchester, at work in the kitchen, unaware of the condition "Got a fire here," the passerby asked Finnigan? "Yup" came back the answer, "I have a dandy in the grate." A tongue of flame darted through an open door to supplement the statement and both ran outside.

One phoned for the fire department and the other removed what furniture he could. Persons attracted by the smoke assisted.

The roads leading to the house were soft and it was with great difficulty that the apparatus was able to lay hose to the burning building. All the apparatus was mired and autos which brought men in response to a general alarm sunk to the hubs.

The men were constantly in danger from falling slate and one hoseman was seen to fall when the roof timbers collapsed. Dr. W. K. Blanchard who was present ran inside the building to render assistance but the man had fallen but a short distance and was not injured. Ladderman George Sampson was cut on the hand by flying glass.

The property was recently sold by George E. Fogg to F. L. Roberts, a Boston commission merchant. A few days ago Thomas Sullivan of Dorchester took possession of it and was preparing to open a club there.

The house was erected about 25 years ago. Two years ago it was bought and converted into an automobile inn by the Cedarcrest Outing club A year ago last November the place was raided by the Braintree and Quincy police. It was opened up afterward as the Riverbank Tennis club and this place was raided last fall by police from Braintree, Weymouth and Holbrook.

KIDNAPPED CHILDREN OF DIVORCED WIFE

Mrs. Young, Once of This City, Learns Man Is Captured

Meredith, N. H., March 3—After a trilling chase that took him to Massachusetts, through Vermont, into several Quebec towns, in Canada and back again to a country town in Vermont, Inspector Peter Callahan arrived in Meredith, N. H., today with Robert T. Young of Fitchburg, Mass., charged with kidnapping his two little daughters, Theresa, six years, and Dorothy, five years, who, until a few weeks ago were residents of Quincy.

Young who is a civil engineer and has worked in Fitchburg and Quincy and in different New Hampshire towns, is in jail, unable to raise bail.

Young's wife, who was a Miss Emma Norris of Farnham, Que., has lived here. She is now working as a nurse in a Boston hospital. She recently divorced her husband and was given the custody of the two children.

She found a home for the children with a Mrs. Jordan at Meredith and a week ago, it is alleged, Young went there from Fitchburg where he has been employed and driving from Nashua, met the children on their way from school. They, it is said, refused to accompany him but on the offer of candy finally did so. He took them to Nashua, from there to Boston and then through Vermont state to Quebec. Learning the police were on his track he returned to Vermont and was captured after a batte at Newport. Mrs. Young was notified.

When Inspector Callahan investigated the condition of the children he found both poorly clothed and suffering from hunger and exposure. An examination of Young revealed that he had spent all in the course of his flight and that the children faced starvation if he failed to secure employment..

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY GOOD

So Writes Brother-In-Law of Louis Werne W. Quincy Barber

ACCOUNTS EXAGGERATED

Louis Werne proprietor of a barber shop at Brewers corner, West Quincy, wrote to his brother-in-law in Hanover, Germany, several weeks ago. In the letter he asked his brother-in-law, who is Fritz Wittwer of Hanover, to give him the plain truth in regards to the conditions in Germany at the present time.

He received a reply a few days ago and Mr. Wittwer in the letter emphatically denied the statement now current in America that conditions were bad there

He wrote: "Why they haven't got all the available men called out at present. Even the "1915" reserves who will become of age by July "1915" have not been mustered at present.

"Conditions in this country, at least in Hanover are normal. There is very little excitement excepting that created by the newspapers. During the first few months of the war things were a little different but have quieted since.

"Food is plentiful and at the same prices as before with the exception of rice and clothing is a little higher but not as high as was at first expected.

"All the reserves although they have been notified have not been called to the front as yet and it may be months before we well be called."

Mr. Wernehas served in the German army as required by law but is now a United States citizen. He has at present three brothers in Germany only one of whom has been called to the front.

HART—McCULLOCK.

Charles Hart Married Malden Girl Last Evening.

Charles Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hart of 94 Butler road and the youngest school janitor in Quincy, and Miss Jennie T. McCullock of Malden were married on Tuesday evening at that place.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Bethany Congregational church and was witnessed by the immediate families of the contracting parties and a few intimate friends.

Miss Ruth McCullock, a sister of the bride was bride's maid, and Willard Crocker, captain of the basket ball team of Quincy High school of this year, was the best man. The bride was given away by her father, Samuel G. McCullock.

The wedding reception and supper followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hart are now on their honeymoon and on their return will make their home at 81 Glendale road, Quincy.

Mr. Hart is one of the most popular young men of the city, being a general favorite at Quincy High school where he has been assistant janitor for several years. He has recently been appointed janitor pro tem of the Wollaston grammar school and it is probable that he will be given a permanent appointment to that building. His bride is well known in Quincy although her home is in Malden.

SOUTH BRAINTREE FIRE.

The South Braintree fire department was summoned to the valley between that town and Holbrook early this morning to quench a woods fire, started by sparks from a dwelling house.

The house was occupied by Mrs. Smith and family and was entirely destroyed. The loss is thought to be about $2,000.

The call was received at 6.30 by Chief Tenney. He marshalled his woods fire-fighters and made a quick response. No intimation of the fact that the house was burning was given when he received the call.

SUIT OVER $75 GOWN

Mrs. Barber Claims Defendant Ruined It

The regular attendants at the district court listened with rapt attention this morning of the trial of civil case in which the value of a creation of purple and lace figured. The case was that of Mrs. Cora W. Barber of Wollaston against F. P. Massey and was to recover the price of a gown which the plaintiff valued at $75, which she claimed had been ruined by the defendant. City Solicitor Pinkham appeared for the plaintiff and Atty. Mooers for the defendant.

Mrs. Barber exhibited the gown in question. It was a crepe de chine of a purple shade for which she testified she paid $2.50 a yard and $20 for making. The first time she wore it she got three spots upon it about the size of a ten cent piece. The spots were caused by orange frappe. She tried to take out the spots with French chalk but was unable to and then gave the gown to the defendant to cleanse. When returned the three spots were still there and a number of other spots so that she claimed that the gown was now absolutely ruined. She was questioned at length about the cost of the gown by counsel for the defendant as well as to the amount of goods required to make the said gown. It took more goods than was apparent, according to the plaintiff, as it was cut on the bias. The dressmaker who made the gown testified that the lace with which it was trimmed was worth $4 a yard. Mrs. Barber denied using wood alcohol on the goods to clean it.

The defendant when he took the witness stand was questioned at length as to the value of the goods. He said that the goods was called crepe de chene but that it really was nothing more than cotton mercerized which was worth in England about 37 cents a yard. He said that he was unable to remove the three black spots as wood alcohol had been used. The other spots on the gown he denied all knowledge of. The gown could be dyed for $2 and be as good as new, he declared.

The court will make his finding later.

CHORAL SOCIETY GIVE RARE MUSICAL TREAT

Present "Stabat Mater" and "Gallia" At Quincy Music Hall

The Quincy Choral society scored a signal success at its ninth concert, held in Quincy Music hall, Tuesday evening, when "Gallia" and "Stabat Mater" were produced.

Not only was Gounod's shorter composition excellently rendered but the longer oratorio of Rossini was faithfully produced with all its contrasts and shading of tone in a manner which proved eminently satisfying.

The chorus work was especially praiseworthy and the effects in the crescendo portions, augmented by soloists and orchestra, were truly inspiring. It is to be regretted that the orchestra lacked sufficient power to balance the magnificent strength of the voices.

The soloists were individually and collectively in excellent part, showing to advantage not only in single voice but also in the chorus and semi chorus portions.

Throughout the program soloists, chorus and orchestra alike showed sympathy with and adaptability to guidance of the director. Conductor George S. Dunham deserves credit for the standard of excellence to which he has brought the choral work of the society.

The society was assisted by Mrs. Lida Shaw Littlefield, soprano; Mrs. Harriet S. Hemenway, contralto, Arthur Hackett, tener; Willard Flint, basso; Miss Florence G. Olney, accompanist; the chorus and the Philharmonic orchestra, of Brockton.

A large audience of music lovers filled the hall and showed by their applause that the efforts were appreciated. While all numbers received extended plaudits, the last part of "Gallia" was the only encore given.

The program opened with "Nabucodonosor" by Verdi, an overture of accelerated movement and performed with strict attention to tempo by the orchestra.

In "Gallia" all the majestic tones of the piece, as well as the softening effects, were brought out and in the inspiring climax, the balance between the chorus and the soloist, Mrs. Littlefield, was wonderfully preserved. Especially pleasing were the contra effects between singer and chorus.

Mr. Flint perhaps appeared at his best in the bass solo "Why do the nations" from Messiah. The martial strains of this selection and its rhythmic swing were well suited to his voice.

One of the sweetest bits of the entire program was from Tschaikowsky "Andante Cantabile," played by the string instruments of the orchestra. The alluring strains and the wild elusive melody brought forth rounds of applause.

The chief interest of the evening was of course aroused when the "Stabat Mater" was reached. The introduction called forth the quartet of Mrs. Littlefield, Mrs. Hemenway, Messrs. Hackett and Flint and the chorus all lending themselves to the spirit of the music.

In part two the air was carried by the tenor and the rich, full tones of Mr. Hackett were all that were needed to make this fully acceptable. A duet of soprano and contralto formed part three. The voices of the two were especially pleasing together.

The bass carried the air in part four and part five was a recitative between bass and chorus, without accompaniment. The latter was most effective and formed a true basis for judging the excellence of the choral work.

The quartet sang part six with fine technique, all of the parts coming in for praise. In part seven the audience had an opportunity to appreciate Mrs. Hemenway, who sang the number in thorough sympathy with the words of the composer. Mrs. Hemenway has a rich contralto voice, full of color.

Part eight sung by the quartet, without accompaniment preceded the final number in which the air was sung by Mrs. Littlefield. In this the soloist had the chance for her best work and she made the most of it.

The ororio ended in a splendid volume of sound with all the parts in perfect harmony and the audience applauded again and again.

The ushers were:

☞Something new and novel calls for attention which probably accounts for the interest being taken in the charity ball and bridge party to be given Thursday night at the Women's clubhouse for the benefit of the Quincy Associated Charities. Whether it's the refreshments of cold water, or the red apples to be given as prizes, or the music of the victrola that is the attraction it is hard to say, but every one seems to be going to see for themselves.

THE FIRST GAME.

On Monday, the first day of March, the baseball season opened in Quincy. Of course, there may have been a few "scrub" games before that for you can't keep the American boy from baseball as soon as the frost begins to get out of the ground. There may have been a few games between scrub teams, as we remarked before, but so far as the records show, the honor of engaging in the first battle belongs to the Common Stars and the Copeland Stars who enjoyed national game at Lincoln Park Monday afternoon. The players were boys, candidates for the Willard Grammar school team, but that doesn't prevent from opening the season. Baseball is not the national game for nothing. It is not confined to the Cobbs, the Lavoies, Wagners, Speakers, Matthewsons and the other big fellows. It is just as much the national game down in the corner lot when "the gang" have assembled after school.

LIFE SAVERS.

It is a most romantic life followed by those heroes, the life saving crew along the Atlantic. The romantic side appeals to us mostly perhaps and we think little of the loneliness and hardships arising from cold rain snow, etc., of these silent heroes who for eight hours every night of the year patrol one of the most dangerous coasts in the world.

And in the forty-four years of the service not one of the two thousand men thus employed has failed to meet the man at the next station to exchange brass checks and bring these checks back to his own life station as evidence that they have patroled the beat. It is a marvelous record.

All this wonderful service from a little dark red hut on Lovell's Island built by the Massachusetts Humane society to succor stranded mariners on the Cape Cod coast.

CUTTING OFF RELIEF.

According to despatches from the Hague the German government has refused to grant any more safe conducts to Belgian relief ships to touch at English ports for coal on the homeward voyage. Further reports indicate that a permit for the return voyage to this country will be given only to vessels which take the course north to the Shetland Islands. It is to be hoped that the German government if it has come to any such decision will reconsider it. The practical difficulties thus placed in the way of American relief to Belgium would be considerable: according to some persons on the ground and therefore in a position to know, insurmountable. Henry Van Dyke, the American minister to the Netherlands, says, "God pity Belgium if the decision stands."

WHISKEY AND DEAD MEN.

One of the greatest difficulties confronting Temperance orators who would interest and impress their audiences is the fact that in all probability those audiences have heard the same facts, figures and conclusions many times before. It is only rarely that a speaker has really something different to say.

In a recent decision of the Mississippi supreme court upon a liquor case the court in its decision made the following striking comment:

"Wiskey is a good thing in its place There is nothing like it for preserving a man when he is dead. If you want to keep a dead man put him in whiskey; if you want to kill a live man, put whiskey in him."

A MUTUAL ADVANTAGE.

A more sympathetic understanding of one another by the people of the United States and Japan is to be desired. One of the most promising steps in this direction which has come within our notice for some time is the selection by Harvard College of a Japanese professor. Prof. Unokichi Hattori of the University of Tokio has been elected professor of Japanese literature and life. The increased knowledge of the Mikado's country and its customs which will come to those students with whom the professor comes in contact will be hardly greater than the insight into America as it really is which the professor will gain.

SAYS BOWLES IS PREJUDICED

George Babbit Says Rear Admiral is Pro-German

The recently published interview with Rears Admiral Bowles, former president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, in which he is reported to have prophesied the final victory of the Germans has aroused much interest.

Commenting upon it George Babbit in the Herald says:

"In considering the rather disquieting prognostications of retired Rear Admiral Bowles respecting the outcome of the European war, it would, perhaps, be well to bear in mind the fact that this prophet has close family connections in Germany. He has a sister residing in Berlin who married a prominent German, and it was while visiting there that the admiral appear to have gained his impressions of the progress and prospects of the mighty conflict.. While it may be said that the admiral's training and experience have qualified him to speak with something more than ordinary authority on the subject, it may also be fairly assumed that his personal relations and associations may have influenced his judgment more or less. Many others who have visited Berlin under like circumstances during the past six months have been similarly impressed by the optimistic military spirit displayed in officialdom there. It is a viewpoint that is apt to be rather more dazzling than real or substantial. Admiral Bowl's prophecy that the Germans are going to win has all the carmarks of a German boast consciously or unconsciously imbibed and translated.

UNABLE TO COME.

Senator Doyle, chairman of the legislative committee on cities, telephoned city hall this morning that it would be impossible for the committee to give a hearing on its city charter bills in Quincy. Senator Doyle said that there were several cities where the committee would liked to have held sessions, among which was Quincy, but that the rules committee had eliminated them. He said however that the committee would have another hearing at the state house Thursday at 10.30. This message was in response to the order passed by the city council Monday night requesting the committee to hold a hearing in Quincy.

QUINCY IS REPRESENTED.

LEDGER'S WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

Although Demand For Eggs Has Increased Prices Are the Same

NO CHANGE IN MEAT PRICE

There is little or no change in the prices of meats, etc. this week from the prevailing prices of a week ago. Eggs and fish, although more in demand, owing to the Lenten season, remain at about the same prices. Eggs can be bought all the way from 23 cents to 40 cents, the latter being known as strictly fresh Quincy eggs. of course the 23 cent and 29 cent eggs are not Quincy laid eggs but are what are known as Western eggs. They are all right however, although most of the lower priced eggs are used by housewives for cooking purposes only Some of the best cooks however demand the best eggs that can be had, no matter what the price.

As for fish there are the usual lines, cod, haddock, halibut, oysters, etc. Cod is selling for 8 cents and steak cod at 18 cents a pound. Halibut sells for from 20 to 25 cents, oysters at 40 cents and scallops at 60 cents. Haddock sells for 10 cents and mackerel at from 10 to 15 cents, according to the size. Clams shucked are selling for 35 cents a quart although if bought in the shell they are much cheaper and, so far as that goes, much better.

Meats remain the same as a week ago. Rump steak is selling at 35 cents, sirloin at from 22 to 25 cents, and top of the round at 28 cents. There are a few cuts of the top of the round which well formed people will tell you are the best flavored meats to be had. As there are only a few slices of this kind, it stands to reason that the only sure way to secure these cuts is to order ahead and have the market man save them for you.

Good roasts can be had from 18 cents up. That is rib roasting pieces from 14 to 18 cents, face or back of the rump, 22 cents pork to roast from 12 1-2 to 14 cents, and pork chops at 16 cents. Smoked and corned shoulders are selling this week from 11 1-2 to 12 1-2 cents.

Butter sells at from 33 to 35 cents for tub butter, while print butter sells for a little more. If one buys by the five pound box, however, quite a saving can be made.

Flour and sugar remain the same and that's the best that can be said for them.

It is a sure wager that if wheat remains at its present high figure and continues to rise in price there must be a corresponding rise in the price of bread. This has caused scientists to suggest that the ordinary household will find it advantageous to eat more potatoes and less bread. The Ledger has taken occasion in previous articles to call attention to potatoes as a diet and it is interesting to note that experiments have demonstrated the fact that with potatoes at 60 cents a bushel, ten cents worth, or ten pounds, will give the consumer a little more actual nourishment than two one pound loaves of bread at five cents a loaf. The protein and fat are present in appreciably larger amounts in the bread, but the potatoes furnish more carbohydrates and more heat units.

Potatoes are easy to cook and when prepared in different ways can be made to lend variety to the winter diet, when green vegetables are hard to obtain.

The increased cost of living throughout the world has emphasized the fact that flour made of other substances than wheat, or of those substances mixed with wheat, might provide people with healthful food quite as nutritious as the pure wheat flour, and at the same time cheaper.

Experiments made by the bureau of chemistry have shown that bread has been baked with from 25 to 50 per cent potato-meal and the remaining percentage wheat, but the most satisfactory loaves are those made with the minimum percentage allowed in Austria Although it has rather coarse texture and dark appearance it possesses a distinctive and agreeable flavor. It also retains moisture for a much longer period than ordinary wheat flour.

Although there is a law which makes it difficult for manufacturers to make a mixed flour satisfactorily the bureau of chemistry is still continuing its experiments. As the law now is the restrictions that surround the manufacture of mixed flour are so many that there is but very little manufactured at the present time.

The weekly market review will not be given next Wednesday but instead will be printed on Friday March 12, and thereafter it will be a regular Friday feature.

The extra opera talk to be given Saturday by Havrah Hubbard under the auspices of the Wollaston Woman's club is to be an evening affair in Wollaston School hall with Parsifal as the subject. Holding it in the evening makes it possible for men to enjoy it as well as many busy women who could not give up the afternoon to it. Mrs. Charles R. Safford has the arrangements in charge.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

At Tuesday's meeting of the Quincy Women's Club members are to have the pleasure of having the club's first president for the entertainer of the afternoon Mrs. E. C. Bumpus, who will speak on "Noted Women of Noted Eras." Mrs. Bumpus has been giving art conferences this season most successfully in New York and vicinity having a large patronage. She has a fine collection of pictures in illustration of her subject which adds to the interest.

The meeting will also be the annual for the semi-annual election of officers the following names being presented:

President—Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham.

1st Vice—Mrs. George L. Badger, Mrs. W. Ward Whitcher.

2d Vice—Mrs. William E. Alden, Mrs. N. S. Hunting.

Clerk—Mrs. William F. Cummings, Mrs. Arthur S. Townsend.

Cor. Sec.—Mrs. Ernest L. Collins, Mrs. L. C. Hewson.

Treasurer—Mrs. E L. Mitchell, Jr., Miss Eliza Sheahan.

Auditor—Mrs. Thomas Fenno, Mrs. J. W. Sanborn.

The polls will be open at two o'clock so that members may deposit their ballots before the entertainment of the afternoon.

The work of the school nurse demonstrates every day the need of her services and the wisdom of the club in giving so generously of their money to establish a nurse in the public schools of the city, illustrating again that "it is better to give than to receive." Instead of presenting themselves with a gift to mark their tenth anniversary the club with its customary generosity and wish to benefit others looked about and thought the matter over and decided a school nurse was almost a necessity. No member worked harder in raising the fund, which was a free will offering from present and past members, than the treasurer of the club, Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham, who gave generously of her time in organizing and directing the collection of the money, which was no easy task.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB.

A large number of members and friends filled the Park and Downs church Tuesday afternoon for the 29th regular meeting of the Wollaston Woman's club. Mrs. Ropes, the president, called special attention to gentlemen's night March 19 in Wollaston school hall, when Mayor and Mrs. Campbell would be the guests of honor. It is hoped all who can, will be there with a guest to hear Albert L. Squier, who will give a stereopticon lecture on "In the High Places of South America."

Mrs. Trumper gave an interesting report of the Federation meeting held last week in Somerville. In response to an appeal from Mrs. Royal Whiton, the club voted a sum of money to be given to the Hospital Relief work in Northern France.

Mrs. Albee in behalf of the Home Economics Committee extended an invitation to members and friends to attend a meeting in the Methodist vestry March 29 at 2.30 P. M., when Mrs. Miller of the Filene Co., would give a talk on "Economical Buying of Cloths."

Mrs. Charles R. Safford called attention to the last opera talk by Mr. Hubbard assisted by Mr. Baxter, in Wollaston school hall on the evening of March 6 at 8 o'clock, subject "Parsifal," tickets to be obtained from Mrs. Safford.

The nominating committee consisting of five members were appointed, Mrs. Ama K. Lee, chairman; Mrs. Charles S. Adams, Mrs. Charles Campbell and Mrs. Arthur MacKeown.

Announcement was made of four conferences to be held by the Quincy and Wollaston clubs under the auspices of the Associated Charities and the philanthropic committees of the clubs, the first on March 15 to be held in Wollaston.

The program for the afternoon was in the hands of Miss Florence G. Olney, chairman of the music committee who presented the Woman's Club Chorus in their second annual musicale. The program was an excellent one all numbers being delightfully rendered. Soloists and chorus alike were in excellent voice. The cantata "The Watersprites Revenge" by Karel Bendel tested the ability of the chorus as well as the soloists, Mrs. W. H. Spooner and Mrs. H. D. Smith, who sang with a great deal of ability and feeling. The club surely should be proud of its talent and great praise is due Miss Olney for her untiring efforts.

The chorus was assisted by Walter E. Loud violinist, who played several solos in his usual skilful manner with sympathetic touch and technique in an interpretation that gave much pleasure to his listeners and called out appreciative encores.

Mrs. H. J. Follett was in good voice in the solos in the "Dance Song" of the chorus.

STATE FEDERATION.

There was a large and representative gathering of club women in Somerville Friday for the midwinter meeting of the State Federation. The Quincy clubs were represented by delegates as well as several club members.

The morning was given over to business as was also the early afternoon and the session closed with two addresses, Mr. Charles Stelzle speaking on "Elements of Social Unrest" and Dr. Stanton Coit on "Economic Environment as a Factor in Race Development."

Both speakers received close attention. Mr. Stelzle said in part:

"Religion today is vitally concerned with the fundamental questions of social righteousness, industrial equity, political and commercial honesty and honor and economic justice. Great movements, essentially religious, for the establishment of these ends are sweeping over the land. But the church, as an ecclesiastical body, is out of touch with these movements. She speaks timidly upon such matters, if at all," said Bishop Williams of Detroit, in a recent magazine article. "The great movements of reform and reconstruction are seeking a home and centre about which they may organize and unify themselves. And there is none other like the church, if the church will only take them. This much is certain; if that reconciliation is to be affected the church cannot make religion, cannot shrink it into the old, convenient and conventional type, cannot crowd it back again into the old doctrinal and ecclesiastical forms. Religion made the church in the first place and it must remake it today—remake it into the natural and hospitable home of all that is best and highest in our modern life and world."

In 1800 seven persons out of every hundred in the United States were members of the Protestant church; in 1850 fifteen out of every hundred; in 1870 seventeen out of every hundred; in 1880 twenty out of every hundred; in 1890 twenty-two out of every hundred; in 1900 twenty-four out of every hundred; and in 1910 there were also twenty-four out of every hundred. From 1900 to 1910 the population of the United States increased 21 per cent; during the same period the Protestant Church membership also increased 21 per cent. It is quite apparent, therefore, that for ten years the church has remained practically stationary. The church is undoubtedly losing its grip in many of the larger cities of this country.

The need today is for emphasis upon the social message of the gospel. We must be true to the old, but we must accept the new. The social gospel is not the namby-pamby thing that some men make it out to be. It means blood and sweat; it means sacrifice and suffering. We have been emphasizing the importance of individual salvation; it is time that we talked more about social salvation. Someone should start a crusade with the slogan—"He that saveth his life shall lose it." Somebody said to Wilberforce one day—"How is it about your soul?" and the great man replied, "I've been so busy trying to help these poor slaves that I forgot I had a soul."

This must be the spirit not only of the individual in the church, but the church itself. The church is simply a means to an end and not an end in itself. We must talk less about building up the church and more about building up the people. When the church is ready to sacrifice itself then it will make good with the people.

Dr. Coit said the tendency of the various schools of social thinkers to magnify one factor in evolution at the expense of others is to be deplored. For instance, the Eugenists are prone to run up heredity and discount education; but to do so is as foolish as it would be to argue that in economy of life the stomach is more important than food, or food than the stomach. Yet what is the use of having a stomach if there is no food, and what is food except in relation to an organ that can digest it?

Now environment interplays with heredity and is non-existent without it. Our only aim, then, is to detect the exact function it performs. An environment favorable to the type we wish to create must always be one of the factors we secure; or else all our effort and self-sacrifice will be in vain. On the other hand; if we enlist the universe or the side of our ideal, it will carry us to the millenium.

ADAMS CHAPTER D. R.

About twenty-five members and guests attended the meeting Monday of Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution at the home of Mrs. George T. Magee on Hancock street, Mrs. Magee and Mrs. E. Granville Pratt being hostesses for the afternoon.

It was the annual as well as the regular monthly meeting. Interesting reports of the year's work were given by the secretary, treasurer and historian and the biennial election resulted as follows:

Regent—Mrs. N. V. Titus.

Vice Regent—Mrs. C. H. Sprague.

Secretary—Mrs. W. E. Piper.

Treasurer—Mrs. Charles Wilson

Historian—Mrs. E. Granville Pratt.

Council—Mrs. F. Eugene Dyer, Mrs. Frank F. Brewer, Mrs. George T. Magee, Mrs. Susan J. Wilde, Miss Mary L. Hinkley and Miss Harriet B. Pierce.

Mrs. Titus and Mrs. Pratt were elected delegates to the annual convention of the Daughters of the Revolution in Brooklyn, New York in May, with Mrs. Dyer and Mrs. Magee as alternates.

Mrs. William Porter of Randolph who has been the efficient treasurer of the chapter for nearly twenty years resigned the office, her resignation being accepted with regret. A letter of appreciation of her valued services was voted to be sent her. She was unable to be present at the meeting owing to an accident in Boston recently when she and another member of the chapter, Mrs. Henry A. Belcher, were run into by an automobile. Although not seriously hurt both are under the care of a doctor.

Another member Mrs. Sprague who could not be present because far away in California, sent her picture that she might be represented at the meeting. She also sent several post cards of California views which were passed around and the Regent read an interesting letter of her travels.

Rev. A. L. Hudson of the First Parish church was the speaker of the afternoon and told the story of an interesting event which took place in Quincy in December, on the anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent on Dec. 24, 1814. He told of letters received by him from Mr. Ford representing the great Northwest expressing a desire to honor John Quincy Adams for his services 100 years ago in helping bring about this peace which has stood the test of a century Dec. 14, 1914 a wreath came on from the west and with brief exercises was placed on the John Quincy Adams tablet in the First Parish church and later on his tomb where it now is.

The regent spoke briefly of the patriotic work of the S. A. R., S. R., D. A. R. and D. R in preserving old houses, landmarks and relics, also of their present work to get some law to protect our flag Other countries have their flag copyrighted. She urged a federal law to protect flag from wrong use and desecration.

The chapter wishes a new flag pole for the birthplace of President John Adams where it has its headquarters, and ways of raising money to buy the same were discussed. It was thought that a series of silver teas at the Adams birthplace during May might be a pleasing way to raise a part of the amount necessary and it was decided to take the matter up for further discussion at the April meeting which would be held at the old house.

During the social hour the hostesses served tea and home made cake and confections, being assisted by Mrs. William Chapman at the tea urn and Misses Lucile Hannan and Laurice Penniman serving.

KING'S DAUGHTERS.

The March meeting of the King's Daughters was held in Bethany Chapel Tuesday evening with Mrs. V. E. Miller presiding. After the regular business of the meeting, the King's Daughters quartet sang after which the Camp Fire Girls gave a demonstration of their work. Members of the Chickatawbut, Quossett, Passonagessit and Wampatuck Camp Fires and three Guardians participated in a ceremonial which was beautiful and impressive. The girls wore their ceremonial costumes of khaki, made Indian fashion ,and their bead headbands and strings of honor beads. After the meeting light refreshments were served.

Q. W. C. PARLIAMENTARY CLASS.

Mrs. Electa C. Sherman lectured before the parliamentary law class of the Quincy Women's club Monday afternoon. There was a short review of Amendments, primary and secondary, and the fitting of blanks after which Subsidiary motions were taken up in their order briefly as follows: Lay on table; The previous question; Postpone to a certainty; Commit; Amend; Postpone indefinitely.

The study of Parliamentary law is enabling the pupils of Mrs. Sherman to think clearly and speak accurately. To fit words to the thought is intellectual gain. The fifth lecture of the series will be March 15. Mrs. Julius Andrews chairman of the Legislative committee of the State Federation will be a guest of the club at the last lecture March 29 when it is hoped all members will be present.

DISAPPOINTED IN THE WOMEN.

Women voters in Chicago have proved a flat disappointment to many friends of woman's suffrage. They have voted in harmony with reaction. They have defeated a reform mayor of demonstrated worth, who had every right to expect the backing of the women.

His record of having retained Ella Flagg Young as head of the schools should of itself have guaranteed Mayor Harrison the votes of all intelligent women. They have instead repudiated Mrs. Young and the mayor alike.

Chicago women could have overcome the vote of corrupt classes controlled by unscrupulous ward leaders. They had a striking chance to line up sharply with the forces of decency in Democratic primary. They could have shown the whole nation that the best womanhood of America's second city is intelligently arrayed on the side of clean politics.

In this test they failed completely. Their help in defeating Carter H. Harrison was not an astounding thing. It was simply the mediocre, the stale and ordinary thing, which it was fondly hoped the women would rise above. Women are not a purifying element in Chicago politics. They are of the earth—very earthy.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

HOME RULE FOR CITIES

Recess Committee Makes its Report

The report of the recess committee on city charters was the subject Tuesday before the legislative committee on cities. The committee reported four model charters and recommends that every city in the commonwealth be given an opportunity at the next state election to select any of the plans outlined.

No one from Quincy appeared at the hearing for it was not generally known that one was to be held. The city council however at its meeting Monday evening passed an order requesting the legislative committee on cities to give a public hearing in Quincy on the subject.

At the hearing Tuesday Mayor Hamlin of Everett appeared in favor of the recommendations and City Solicitor Vaughn of Worcester was in sympathy with the major part of the report but criticised the methods outlined for taking land for public purposes.

Henry Sterling stated that the work of the committee would result in more "home rule" for cities and should remove a multitude of inconsequential local affairs from the legislature.

The only opposition to the recommendations of the recess committee was voiced by Senator James W. Bean of Cambridge, who said that if this matter is referred to cities there will be a charter fight in every city of the state every year. Some factions will always be trying to agitate some change in the form of city government just to liven up the election and there will be no end of political unrest in city affairs.

THAYER TRUSTEES APPEAL TO COURT

The trustees of Thayer Academy Braintree, have appealed to the superior court of Norfolk county to compel the town of Braintree to return to them the sum of $27,000 paid the town last year as taxes on school property, for many years. They claim that the tax collector forced them to pay under protest and that the town has refused their petition to abate the taxes.

FIRES TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

The alarm from Box 272 at 341 Tuesday afternoon was for a slight fire on the roof of the boat house of William Gavin at the foot of Edison street. It seems that a fire had been built in a small stove in the upper part of the building and that sparks from this set fire to the roof. The loss was confined to a few shingles.

The central station auto chemical was called out on a telephone alarm at 2.20 Tuesday afternoon for a grass fire on Independence avenue near the residence of John Q. A. Field.

Some of the men did not appear for the finals Tuesday night and dummy scores were used. The Cedar Points beat the Stage Points 4 to 0 and the Rocky Points beat the Beach Points 3 to 1.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE
The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company
Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company. All Foreign Rights Reserved.

"What's that thing?" I puffed, as I helped Craig with the headgear.

"An oxygen helmet," he replied. "There must be air down the tube that cannot be breathed."

He went over to the tube. Carefully he opened the top and gazed down, starting back a second later, with his face puckered up at the noxious odor.

"Sewer gas," he ejaculated, as he slammed the cover down. Then he added to the policeman: "Where do you suppose it comes from?"

"Why," replied the officer, "the St. James viaduct—an old sewer—is somewhere about these parts."

Kennedy puckered his face as he gazed at our prisoner. He reached down quickly and lifted something off the man's coat.

"Golden hair," he muttered. "Elaine's!"

A moment later he seized the man and shook him roughly.

"Where is she—tell me?" he demanded.

The man snarled some kind of a reply, refusing to say a word about her.

"Tell me," repeated Kennedy.

"Humph!" snorted the prisoner, more close-mouthed than ever.

Kennedy was furious. As he sent the man reeling away from him he seized the oxygen helmet and began putting it on. There was only one thing to do—to follow the clue of the golden strands of hair.

Down into the pest hole he went, his head protected by the oxygen helmet. As he cautiously took one step after another down a series of iron rungs inside the hole, he found that the water was up to his chest. At the bottom of the perpendicular pit was a narrow, low passageway leading off.

As Craig Kennedy Turns on the Current Elaine's Chest Slowly Begins to Rise and Fall.

It was just about big enough to get through, but he managed to grope along it.

The minutes passed as the policeman and I watched our prisoner in the cellar by the tube. I looked anxiously at my watch.

"Craig!" I shouted at last, unable to control my fears for him.

No answer.

By this time Craig had come to a small, open chamber, into which the viaduct widened. On the wall he found another series of iron rungs, up which he climbed. The gas was terrible.

As he neared the top of the ladder he came to a shelf-like aperture in the sewer chamber, and gazed about. It was horribly dark. He reached out and felt a piece of cloth. Anxiously he pulled on it. Then he reached further into the darkness.

There was Elaine, unconscious, apparently dead.

In desperation Craig carried her down the ladder.

With our prisoner we could only look helplessly around.

"By George, I'm going down after him," I cried in desperation.

"Don't do it," advised the policeman. "You'll never get out."

One whiff of the horrible gas told me that he was right.

"Listen," said the policeman.

There was, indeed, a faint noise from the black depths below us. A rope alongside the rough ladder began to move, as though some one was pulling it taut. He gazed down.

"Craig! Craig!" I called. "Is that you?"

No answer. But the rope still moved. Perhaps the helmet made it impossible for him to hear.

He had struggled back in the swirling current almost exhausted by his helpless burden. Holding Elaine's head above the surface of the water and pulling on the rope to attract my attention, he could neither hear nor shout. He had taken a turn of the rope about Elaine. I tried pulling on it. There was something heavy on the other end, and I kept on pulling.

At last I could make out Kennedy dimly mounting the ladder. The weight was the unconscious body of Elaine which he steadied as he mounted the ladder. I tugged harder and he slowly came up.

Together, at last, the policeman and I reached down and pulled them out.

We placed Elaine on the cellar floor, as comfortably as was possible, and the policeman began his first aid motions for resuscitation.

"No—no!" cried Kennedy. "Not here—take her up where the air is fresher."

With his revolver still drawn to overawe the prisoner, the policeman forced him to aid us in carrying her up the rickety flight of cellar steps. Kennedy followed quickly, unscrewing the oxygen helmet as he went.

In the deserted living room we deposited our senseless burden, while Kennedy, the helmet off now, bent over her.

"Quick—quick!" he cried to the officer. "An ambulance!"

"But the prisoner," the policeman indicated.

"Hurry—hurry; I'll take care of him," urged Craig, seizing the policeman's pistol and thrusting it into his pocket. "Walter, help me."

He was trying the ordinary methods of resuscitation. Meanwhile the officer had hurried out, seeking the nearest telephone, while we worked madly to bring Elaine back.

Again and again Kennedy bent and outstretched her arms, trying to induce respiration again. So busy was I that for the moment I forgot our prisoner.

But Dan had seen his chance. Noiselessly he picked up the old chair in the room and with it raised was approaching Kennedy to knock him out.

Before I knew it myself Kennedy had heard him. With a half instinctive motion he drew the revolver from his pocket and, almost before I could see it, had shot the man. Without a word he returned the gun to his pocket and again bent over Elaine, without so much as a look at the crook, who sank to the floor, dropping the chair from his nerveless hands.

Already the policeman had got an ambulance, which was now tearing along to us.

Frantically, Kennedy was working.

A moment he paused and looked at me—hopeless.

Just then, outside, we could hear the ambulance, and a doctor and two attendants hurried up to the door. Without a word the doctor seemed to appreciate the gravity of the case.

He finished his examination and shook his head.

"There is no hope—no hope," he said slowly.

Kennedy merely stared at him. But the rest of us instinctively removed our hats.

Kennedy gazed at Elaine, overcome. Was this the end?

It was not many minutes later that Kennedy had Elaine in the little sitting room off the laboratory, having taken her there in the ambulance, with the doctor and two attendants.

Elaine's body had been placed on a couch, covered by a blanket, and the shades were drawn. The light fell on her pale face.

There was something incongruous about death and the vast collection of scientific apparatus, a ghastly mocking of humanity. How futile was it all in the presence of the great destroyer!

Aunt Josephine had arrived, stunned, and a moment later Perry Bennett. As I looked at the sorrowful party Aunt Josephine rose slowly from her position on her knees, where she had been weeping silently beside Elaine, and pressed her hands over her eyes, with every indication of faintness.

Before any of us could do anything, she had staggered into the laboratory itself. Bennett and I followed quickly. There I was busy for some time getting restoratives.

Meanwhile Kennedy, beside the couch, with an air of desperate determination, turned away and opened a cabinet. From it he took a large coil and attached it to a storage battery, dragging the peculiar apparatus near Elaine's couch.

To an electric light socket Craig attached wires. The doctor watched him in silent wonder.

"Doctor," he asked slowly as he worked, "do you know of Professor Leduc of the Nantes School of Medicine?"

"Why—yes," answered the doctor, "but what of him?"

"Then you know of his method of electrical resuscitation."

"Yes—but"—he paused, looking apprehensively at Kennedy.

Craig paid no attention to his fears, but, approaching the couch on which Elaine lay, applied the electrodes. "You see," he explained, with forced calmness, "I apply the anode here—the cathode there."

The ambulance surgeon looked on excitedly, as Craig turned on the current, applying it to the back of the neck and to the spine.

For some minutes the machine worked.

Then the young doctor's eyes began to bulge.

"My heavens!" he cried under his breath. "Look!"

Elaine's chest had slowly risen and fallen. Kennedy, his attention riveted on his work, applied himself with redoubled efforts. The young doctor looked on with increased wonder.

"Look! The color in her face! See her lips!" he cried.

At last her eyes slowly fluttered open—then closed.

Would the machine succeed? Or was it just the galvanic effect of the current? The doctor noticed it and placed his ear quickly to her heart. His face was a study in astonishment. The minutes sped fast.

To us outside, who had no idea what was transpiring in the other room, the minutes were leaden-footed. Aunt Josephine, weak but now herself again, was sitting nervously.

Just then the door opened.

I shall never forget the look on the young ambulance surgeon's face as he murmured under his breath, "Come here—the age of miracles is not passed—look!"

Raising his finger to indicate that we were to make no noise, he led us into the other room.

Kennedy was bending over the couch.

Elaine, her eyes open now, was gazing up at him, and a wan smile flitted over her beautiful face.

Kennedy had taken her hand, and as he heard us enter, turned half way to us, while we stared in blank wonder from Elaine to the weird and complicated electrical apparatus.

"It's the life current," he said simply, patting the Leduc apparatus with his other hand.

INTERNATIONAL RULES OF WAR

United States Will Demand That They Be Lived Up To

WASHINGTON MUCH DISTURBED

Nations at War Are Not Keeping Pledges to Neutrals—Hope Expressed That America's Friendly but Firm Protest Will Receive Due Attention From the Belligerents

Washington, March 3.—No nation has the right to change the international rules of war. Conditions of war under which nations shall wage warfare have radically changed, but the rules as laid down and subscribed by all powers still exist and must be lived up to.

Stripped of legal verbiage and diplomatic assurance of good will, this will be the answer of the United States to the latest announcement of Great Britain and France. It is the position of the Wilson administration and will be adhered to at all times.

President Wilson made it plain that he believes the international rules apply to all of the belligerent powers of Europe. All have certain pledged duties to perform so far as this country is concerned. And they will be reminded of these duties in the most friendly, but perfectly firm manner.

The president and his cabinet considered the British note at considerable length. It was stated, however, that up to the present its contents are still subject to doubt as to exactly what is meant by England's "blockade" declaration in which the use of either the word "blockade" or "contraband" is carefully avoided.

This government, it is learned, holds that whether the belligerents in Europe are violating their promises made to each other is of no concern to the United States. But when they violate their promises and agreements with this government the United States will insist that they reconsider and maintain their obligations.

While admitting the seriousness of the situation developed with the institution of Germany's submarine blockade and followed up by the Anglo-French ultimatum, officials remain hopeful that this country's friendly protests will be heard.

It is now considered certain the United States will be asked by the European neutral powers to permit them to join with America in dealing with all of the late developments and that such a united front will receive consideration from all belligerents.

Stoppage of all commerce with Germany, American officials hold, is much more serious than a blockade, since it will prevent shipments to neutral countries when the allies believe the eventual designation of cargoes is Germany. It will work particularly grave injury to America's cotton trade.

WON'T REFUSE INSURANCE

But Rates on Ships and Cargoes Are Raised by War Risk Bureau

No refusal of insurance to American vessels desiring to enter the European war zone is contemplated by the bureau of war risk insurance of the United States treasury department.

When Germany prescribed a certain area about Great Britain and announced that the ships of neutrals within this arbitrary zone might incur danger, the rates of insurance were raised to 6 percent on vessels and 5 percent on cargoes. These are regarded as high, although not prohibitive.

For the present the treasury department will take no further action, believing that American exporters will be slow to assume the risks involved in piercing the war zone and that few if any further applications for insurance will be made.

CARGO REMAINS ON BOARD

French Flag Is Hoisted Over Steamer Dacia at Brest

The French flag was hoisted over the American steamer Dacia at Brest and the chief naval commissioner took possession of the vessel in the name of the French government. The Dacia was towed into the inner port and anchored there.

The cargo, which comprises 11,000 bales of cotton, is still on board, and will remain there until the prize court acts.

The crew will be landed and repatriated in conformity with the rules governing the treatment of crews of captured vessels.

WERE OFF THEIR COURSE

Skippers of Evelyn and Carib Did Not Heed Notices

A statement issued by the German embassy at Washington regarding the loss of the American steamers Evelyn and Carib, recently sunk by mines in the North sea, says:

"The American steamships Evelyn and Carib were lost in the North sea because, in opposition to the advice contained in the notices to mariners, they took their course along the East Friesian islands. According to statements made by the captain of the Evelyn, this course was followed upon advice by a British man-of-war."

SETTLES UP BUSINESS

New York Man Then Takes Life of Woman and Kills Self

New York, March 3.—Charles C. St. Clair, who committed suicide in a Philadelphia hotel, presumably after he had killed his woman companion, settled his business affairs in this city preparatory to fulfilling a promise made to his wife that he would take her to San Francisco to start life anew.

Mrs. St. Clair received a letter from her husband in Philadelphia, it is told of his intention to end his life and that of the woman.

St. Clair, several years ago, was a professional boxer and later owned several lunch rooms.

Fire Caused by Crossed Wires

Lowell, Mass., March 3.—"The fire that gutted the Memorial building was due to crossed wires," declared Officer Flynn of the state police, who was delegated to investigate the cause of the fire that caused a loss of $150,000 and many historic relics and paintings.

No Extra Session of Congress

Washington, March 3.—President Wilson stated definitely that he has abandoned plans for an extra session of the senate immediately after March 4, and has not seriously considered the suggestion of a special session of congress in October.

New Hampshire's Tax Law

Concord, N. H., March 3.—The legislature has the power to impose a tax on the income of intangibles, instead of on the intangibles themselves, according to an opinion submitted by the supreme court.

MUST DETERMINE APPETITE OF PIGS

Judge Avery, who recently heard a suit in which a Ruby Toy spaniel dog figured, may now have to determine whether or not the appetites of pigs suffering some slight defection, should be the same as a normal animal.

The case will come before him as a suit entered by John J. Craig against Mrs. Delia Guthro to recover money he claims due. Mrs. Guthro is to file a cross action claiming the money paid for the pigs should be returned because the pigs are sick.

It is admitted by both that the pigs are sick. Craig claims the illness is temporary and that his pigs are suffering from the same ailment, some form of la grippe.

The sale was made some weeks ago the price being $14. Seven dollars was paid on account and the balance was to be paid when a check was cashed. Mrs. Guthro took the pigs home and they, she claims, refused to eat. She then sought to return the pigs to Craig and recover her money. Craig refused and claimed the balance due.

Craig has retained Philip T. Sullivan and Mrs. Guthro will be represented by John D. Mackay.

The Owattona Social club met Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Celia Connors on Garfield street. The regular sewing circle was held after which the members enjoyed a social hour. Games of all kinds and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Miss Connors and Miss Marion Duffy alternated at the piano. Refreshments were served.

AMAZING BOMB PLOTS EXPOSED

Anarchists Planned General Reign of Terror In New York

SLEUTH GAINS INNER CIRCLE

Becomes Acquainted With Design to Kill Carnegie, the Rockefellers and Other Rich Men, and Loot Banks—Attempt to Blow Up St. Patrick's Cathedral Is Thwarted

New York, March 3.—An attempt to blow up St. Patrick's cathedral with a bomb and the arrest of two men by detectives who had been informed for months of their activities, was followed by an announcement made at police headquarters that the arrests had balked an anarchistic plot to kill Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other wealthy men, with bombs.

Thereafter the anarchists, according to the police, were to inaugurate in New York city a reign of terror comparable only to the days of the French revolution.

It was part of the plot, the police assert, for gangs of men armed with rifles and revolvers to appear simultaneously in various parts of the city to shoot and to pillage; the biggest banks of New York city were to be blown up with bombs, and many wealthy men were to be slain. The wrecking of the cathedral was to be the signal for beginning the elaborate program, the police assert.

The next move, according to the police, was to place bombs in the homes of Andrew Carnegie, the Rockefellers and Cornelius Vanderbilt. So far had the plot towards this end progressed, according to the police, that the manufacture of the bombs had already been started.

With the capitalists named and others disposed of, the anarchists planned, according to the police, to invade the financial district and lay their bombs in the city's biggest banks. Thereafter, the police declare, the general program of looting was to be inaugurated.

For months a central office detective who, according to the police, had worked in the inner circle of the anarchists, kept the detective bureau advised of all the plans and actions of the alleged conspirators. This detective, Frank Baldo, assisted in the manufacture of the bomb with which the attempt was made to blow up the cathedral.

The detective accompanied the bomb-thrower to the edifice, and sat with him while he lighted the bomb and hurled it at the altar.

Immediately the cathedral, in which 800 persons sat at worship, became alive with detectives, whose presence had been unsuspected by the bomb-thrower. Baldo, sitting beside him, placed him under arrest; detectives sitting in the pew behind dashed into the aisle and stamped ot the sputtering fuse. The congregation scarcely realized what had happened when it was all over, and there was no panic.

At police headquarters the alleged bomb-thrower said he was Frank Abarno, a lithographer, 24 years old. Soon after he was taken to headquarters, detectives, acting upon information given them by Baldo, arrested Charles Carbone, 18 years old, and charged him with complicity in the plot and with assisting to make the bomb.

When Abarno entered the cathedral door, his bomb in a package hidden under his coat, and Baldo at his side, he walked onto a stage whose every setting had been placed there by detectives. Two scrub-women on their knees in the vestibule through which he passed were in reality central office detectives. The priest who met them at the door and took them to a seat down near the front of the church and close to the altar was a sergeant of police.

Just behind Abarno there entered the church, quite casually, two more detectives, who followed the pseudo-priest and took seats at his bidding in the pew behind. It was these men who saved the cathedral from damage by beating out the fire on the fuse.

Abarno realized for the first time the identity of his companion a moment after he had lighted the fuse on the bomb which he carried under his coat. Almost before the missile had left his hand, to lie for a moment on the carpet at the foot of the altar, Baldo pinioned Abarno's arms behind him, calmly told him that he was under arrest and started to leave the church. Abarno, amazed, permitted himself to be handcuffed to his captor without resistance and walked meekly down the aisle, detectives leading and following.

Baldo had lived with the alleged anarchists since last December. He had obtained Abarno's complete confidence and had discussed with him and others, the police assert, the details of the wide-spread plot.

From Baldo the police learned that the anarchists' plans were to be developed in separate phases by groups of two and three men working together. Detectives were assigned to watch these groups, and two men from central office were shadowing Carbone wher he was arrested.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

New Hats—Neck—Color Combinations—Death Of The "Slouch"—The New Silhouette.

Hats of silk, satin and panne velvet are very smartly endorsed for the present wear here, and those that have a touch of straw in their make up will be useful for a long time to come. Small turban shapes are rather in the lead, but sailors and a little round crowned Derby shape run them a close second.

Contrasting color notes are the salient feature in most of the new hats, and this is obtained in a great variety of ways. The spotting of the tremendously popular sailor tie, that circles so many of the crowns, ending with the characteristic floating ends that Jackies wear in a breezy fashion which the girls closely follow. Small dahlias of vivid colorings are prime favorites for hat garniture, grapes and diminutive fruits are also popular, and a melange of color is the usual thing, rather than any single tone.

AN ADVANCE MODEL.

An advance model pretty and practical, was a small Tipperary turban, the crown of black satin, the brim of plaided straw in green, and blue mixture. Right at the front standing out above the crown was a disk shape ornament of knife pleated silk and net. Except for the sailor tie this was the sole and sufficient ornament. A Derby of satiny split straw tipped at a rather rakish angle, had no other trimming than a loose strap of its own material and one of the double ended jet pins that are so fashionably perched askew at any desired point on the crowns of the various small shapes which are nearly or quite brimless as well as on wide brimmed sailor types.

COLOR COMBINATIONS.

One notices a tendency to combine putty shades with navy blue, in many of the late dress creations. Often this takes the form of a blue silk or satin blouse, the sleeves and skirt developed in putty color, or the blue will appear in the sleeves and girdle Green is similarly employed for contrast but is not so good with putty as with black. One sees quite a bit of peacock blue as a trimming contrast, and narrow fancy ribbons in this shade with red and other vivid tints in their pattern are used, braid fashion, on hats and waists, with attractive results. Navy blue and very dark purple is a peculiarly French combination and dashes of coral pink bring out the lines in otherwise tame looking white suits and blouses.

6306

THE NEW SILHQUETTE.

Trig and natty is the new fashionable silhouette, with not a trace left of the "slouch" of a year ago. However loose the dress may hang below, it is fitted at the bust, and the figure held erect in true military fashion, with a well-modelled corset having enough bones to secure trim outlines.

There is nothing stiff or awkward in the fashionable poise, quite the contrary and a pretty girl looks her best in the new Spring models.

NET DRESSES.

Net dresses of the old time flounced sort, the edges of the flounce bound with silk or satin or trimmed with bead edgings silk quillings etc. are very much liked and are an excellent investment for the woman who wants to get the utmost wear from her fussy frock. For a mourning dress toilet few selections are as satisfactory. The flounces are rather smartest cut straight and gathered, in overlapping style. The number to a skirt depending on the height and taste of the wearer.

Accordeon pleated dresses of three or more tiers are very good style, the satin bindings of the flounces producing the correct flare.

NECKWEAR.

The girlish set has adopted enthusiastically the frilly type of neck dressing that covers the neck to the chin. The sort of thing familiar in Sarah Bernhardt's pictures and in medieval portraits. This seems a little queer with a tailor-made rig, but one soon gets used to it, and the transparent white frill is a boon to screen signs of wear under the chin, but the style is trying if the neck is short.

The various wide ruches and collars that end just in front of the shoulder line, mounted on black velvet bands, either plain or ornamented are so smart and generally becoming that their popularity is easy to understand, while the fact that the high collared plain net gamp is once more worn by nearly everyone is good news to practical women who like their easy adjustment and becoming freshness.

STATE HOUSE NEWS

The legislature has at last decided to quit playing politics and pass the governor's resolve for the reimbursement of the cattle claims. This decision ought to prove welcome to the farmers.

President Coolidge of the senate is to be commended for his nonpartisanship in this connection, for it was he who succeeded in persuading his colleagues that any further attempt to bait the governor would surely result in calling more clearly to the attention of the people the defects in the Walker resolve,which the legislature rushed through.

The milk producers have long complained that their industry has been steadily declining because out-of-the state milk has not been inspected as carefully as theirs. Therefore observers on the Hill were surprised that the Massachusetts producers should have used their influence to kill the bill providing for the inspection of out of the state milk.

Amid cat-calls and meows, the house voted down the cat-license bill. This is one of the hardy perennials which the legislature never seems able to take seriously.

The announcement of former Lieutenant Governor Barry that he will yield the Democratic gubernatorial nomination to Governor Walsh, simplifies the situation for the Democrats situation for the Democrats.

There is a marked tendency for the Democrats to get together, . State Chairman O'Leary and minority leader McLaughlin are frequent callers at the executive chamber.

Another example is the unanimous report by the Democratic members of the rules committee endorsing the governor for his discharge of E. Gerry Brown as supervisor of loan agencies.

By-the-way, the majority report of that committee ,was rather a vindication for the governor, as the committee refused to order an investigation.

This is the basis of many similar stories which are being circulated. It is obvious that the name of the recipient cannot be made public as that might lead to the execution of his parents.

The Democratic State committee is heavily in debt. Some say that this is a sign that the Democratic fortunes are on the wane. Others that it merely shows that the Democrats have no entangling financial alliances.

OUSTED FROM OFFICE

Newly Formed American League Now In New Quarters

New York, March 3.—Colonel Smith, depot quartermaster at the United States army building in this city, issued a statement through which it became known that the newly inaugurated American Legion had been evicted from quarters obtained in the building.

The legion is a new, unofficial organization whose plans to enlist 250,000 former soldiers, sailors, guardsmen and others as a first national reserve were made public Monday.

"Offices in the building were authorized for the use of the quartermaster through a misunderstanding of the purpose for which intended," reads Smith's statement, which concludes with the declaration that "General Wood directed that the American Legion occupy rooms elsewhere for the present."

On behalf of the legion it was announced that the offices had already been moved, in accordance with the original plan to occupy them only until other quarters could be obtained, before the official request was received.

BOARD OF TRADE HOLDS VERY LENGTHY SESSION

Some Lively Fire-Works Follow Report of Lighting Committee

It was 11.20 before an adjournment was reached at the meeting of the Board of Trade Wednesday evening. A number of complaints were made as to street car service and other matters. The exciting feature of the evening was the speech of Harry G. Clark of Montclair. His talk was of the Billy Sunday style and he took occasion to pay his respects to the electric light company and the gas company, saying that there was "something rotten in the state of Denmark" and throwing cold water on the work of the Lighting committee of the Board of Trade, that Mayor Campbell had been made the goat and that if Mr. LaBrecque tried to make any agreement as to price of gas he would "get his."

Coming as it did shortly after Mr. LaBrecque had made a long report for the gas and lighting committee covering that committee with glory and receiving the plaudits and vote of thanks from the Board for what it had accomplished, the speech was like a bomb shell.

Mr. LaBrecque remained quiet until the speaker had concluded his remarks, when he came back with some hot shots. Mr. Clark wanted to return to the fray and arose to a question of personal privilege to reply, but bang went the president's gavel and the talk was over.

When introduced Mr. Clark said that he represented the Montclair Improvement association and that some months ago his committee had got in touch with other associations to start an agitation for lower gas. "When the bill for 75 cent gas was put in, Senator Langelier asked if we wanted it and we replied "go to it Louie," said speaker. "LaBrecque receives all the credit, when he had nothing to do with it, for the movement started in the improvement associations. Our associations are going on record as not standing by that report. The bill for 75 cent gas had no standing in the legislature. We have now dropped our efforts and we do not have to abide by that committee where the mayor was the goat. If we do not get a reduction we will not ask any self appointed committee to get it for us."

The speaker then paid his respects to the Electric Light Co. "In July 1913 the Gas and Electric Light Commission was petitioned for a reduction in the price of electricity in Quincy by the Board of Trade. Two days later it was found that the petition was illegally drawn and back it came. Then a new petition was drawn and sent to the commission. The commission had a hearing but as Mr. Faxon was in Europe it was thought advisable to postpone the hearing until he returned.

"Then the matter dropped, and as far as the Board of Trade or anyone else is concerned Mr. Faxon is still in Europe. I do not want to say that there is anything crooked, but there is something rotten in Denmark. LaBrecque may close up this matter for the Board of Trade but not for the United Improvement associations. If he tries to make an agreement he will get his. We have got a club behind us and if we do not get a reduction we will tread on the tail of the lighting companies. There is no reason why you can not get anything you want if you only get together. All you have to do is to go after it in earnest. You can talk all you please about making Quincy a busier city but if you do not do something to bring manufactories to Quincy you are useless. The hands of the Board of Trade are tied. Look at the valuable water front you have and not a thing done to develop it. We are all tied down here in Quincy. We ask you to join with us and hold up in this matter. We are going to get a reduction in gas and electricity."

In reply Mr. LaBrecque said: "There is no question but what we got something. I resent the insinuation that it is nothing but hot air and we are going to get a reduction in electricity. I am not looking for personal glory. I resent the idea of having a man who has been a resident of Quincy but a year and a half coming here and telling us what to do. We can not get anything by such circus stunts. His tactics will not give us a reduction in the price of electricity. We have a promise on gas and if we do not get it we will fight. We are going after a reduction in a businesslike way and we will get results."

The Board voted that it would be glad to co-operate with Mr. Clark's committee.

At the opening of the meeting several reports were received from committees which were accepted and placed on file. Mr. LaBrecque then made his report on the session of his committee with President Richards of the gas company. The report embodied the facts stated in the Ledgers report at the time of the conference.

J. Winthrop Pratt arose and remarked: "You are going along same old track. Every member has a lot of talk but gets nowhere. He wanted to move that in the discussion of any questions speakers should be limited to two minutes. President Fegan, however, ruled the motion out of order.

Andrew Milne Jr. asked about the public dock and said that if the mayor and president of the council did not care to take it up the board should.

A. L. Whitman for the banquet committee said it had been a success and everybody had a good time. The committee had gone into the hole for a few dollars, however, because mem-

FIRE DRILL AT LOCAL THEATRE

Chief Billings Times Employees in Test

Chief Faxon Billings of the fire department timed the employees of the Kincaide theatre in a fire drill after the performance Wednesday evening and saw all exits opened and the asbestos curtain dropped within seven seconds. The drill, is considered to have been the fastest ever made to the south of Boston and is believed to be a New England record.

The half dozen ushers and others employed were not aware the drill was to be held to secure the official time. Had they known such was the case it is probable they would have clipped another second from the mark.

The signal for the drill was blown on a whistle by Capt. Wardwell, manager of the theatre. He said he had timed holiday audiences leaving and found that the theatre had been emptied of a capacity house within four minutes at the close of a recent holiday performance.

BETHANY UNION HAS MEETING

Vote to Raise $1000 For Proposed Chapel

The members of the Bethany Women's Union Tuesday voted to divide into 20 companies of ten or more each to be responsible for $50 toward the proposed new chapel for Bethany church. A donation for the Schauuler scholl in Cleveland, Ohio, was also appropriated.

An unique and interesting entertainment was given under the direction of Mrs. Frank Wiggin of Roxbury. The presentation was a typical meeting of the Women's Board of Missions, and those who took part were: Mrs. George L. Badger, chairman: Mrs. J F. Welch, secretary; Mrs. B. F. Willmott, chairman of the candidate committee: Mrs. Frank Prescott, chairman of the editorial committee: Miss Addie Park, chairman of the appropriation committee: Mrs. Miller, a returned missionary: Mrs. W. G. Shaw chairman of the building committee. Music was by the choir of the junior auxiliary.

The luncheon was in charge of Mrs. G. Miller. Cake was served in charge of Mrs. Charles W. Avery and tea by Miss Christine Booth. There was a good attendance.

HUGGER THEORY IS EXPLODED

Prominent Citizen Tells Police He Was "Assailant"

A prominent local builder, whose name has not been given out by the police, called at headquarters Wednesday evening and said he was the man who walked along behind Mrs. A. E. Burrill of 92 Butler road on Tuesday evening.

The man said he was on his way home, the same as Mrs. Burrill, and both were going in the same direction He said he made no suspicious moves which could have alarmed Mrs. Burrill.

Mrs. Burrill reported on Tuesday evening that she had been closely followed by a man and that she ran up the steps of Alleyne terrace to escape him. The police believed that a hugger had renewed activities in that section. The explanation of the business man explodes that theory.

CIRCLE PRESENT "BREEZY POINT"

Large Number Enjoy Star Performance

The vestry of the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church was crowded to capacity Wednesday evening to witness the performance of the comedy "Breezy Point" presented by the "Queen Esther Circle" of the church.

Act one takes place in the sitting room at Aunt Debby's home "Breezy Point" and opens just when four girls are expected from boarding school to spend the summer there as paying guests. Ashrael a workhouse waif who is helping Miss Dexter does not relish the thought of the extra work that the boarders will make and is anything but happy, but announces in a sharp voice that she is "goin' to act cheerful 'cause she said she would." The girls arrive. Bernice Vernon, Laura Leigh, Clarice Fenleigh and Edith Norton, are presented in due form to Aunt Debby and her adopted niece Elinor Pearl who has made her home with Miss Dexter for the eighteen years since she was left a tiny baby on Miss Dexter's doorstep. After Ashrael had "lugged up enough water to drown 'em" and made decided resolutions concerning the French maid brought by Miss Vernon. Mrs. Hardscratch, a neighbor with an eye to business enters and amuses the girls with her quaint sayings.

Act two is a camp in the woods six weeks later where the girls are having a gala time camping out, that is all are having a good time except the French maid who is planning to steal Ashrael's lover and run away. Old Clem a gypsy has told the fortunes of the girls with the exception of Elinor whose fortune she will never tell saying that it is better for her not to know it.

Act three is back again in the sitting room at Aunt Debby's. Aunt Debby is away on some mysterious business and the girls have stayed on helping Elinor in the absence of the cook who has a sick relative. Clarice Fenleigh's and Edith Norton's love affairs are progressing comfortably and every one is helping including the Hardscratch twins who being told to stone raisins, eat them all and afterward decide they "don't like raisins much 'cause the're kind o' sick ish." Aunt Debby's return home was welcomed by all especially Elinor Pearl to whom she unraveled the mystery of her birth.

The part of Aunt Debby Dexter was taken by Miss Nettie Crittendon who interpreted the part of the maiden aunt with rare aptitude. Elinor Pearl was Miss Margaret Blackwell who made an enchanting little niece. Miss Hilda Bailey as Ashrael was certainly the star of the evening, her matter of fact, dry philosophy was well spoken and acted. The parts of Mrs. Hardscratch and her sister Miss Mehitable Doolittle maker of medicines, were both taken by Miss Gertrude Harlow who made just the right distinction between the two sisters. Francina Crothers and Gladys Hirtle were the Hardscratch twins and two saucy little giggling girls they were and kept the audience laughing all the time they were on the stage. The parts of the boarding school girls were taken by Misses Florence Palmer, Blanche Clement, Marjorie Bailey and Beulah Collett and real girls they were without any of the self-conciousness sometimes seen. Fantine, the maid was well interpreted by Miss Bessie Wilbur, and old Clem was forcibly portrayed by Miss Myrtle Starbird.

MAYOR ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF NEW PURCHASING AGENT

C. W. Hill States He Leaves to Accept Another And Better Position

After a few weeks in office Clyffeton W. Hill, who was appointed by Mayor Campbell as purchasing agent has tendered his resignation. The resignation came in a letter to the mayor this morning and was immediately accepted. The correspondence was as follows:

"Hon. Chester I. Campbell,
Mayor of Quincy.

Dear Sir: I hereby tender you my resignation as Purchasing Clerk and charge of Bureau of Employment. This action is caused by my decision to accept a position offered to me previous to my taking up my duties here.

I want to thank you for courtesies extended and would appreciate the acceptance of my resignation to take effect Saturday, March 6th.

Wishing you a most successful year as Mayor, I remain

Very respectfully yours,
(Signed) Clyffeton W. Hill.

Mr. Clyffeton W. Hill,
Atlantic, Mass.

Dear Sir:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your resignation as purchasing clerk and charge of the bureau of employment, and I regret that you feel obliged to tender your resignation at this time. It would not be in the line of progressiveness if I did not accept the same as you request, for it should be the sincere wish of everyone to assist "the other fellow" in bettering his position in life, whether it be socially, financially or purely business, and believing that the change which you have decided to make is one for your better business interests I cannot but accept your resignation and wish you every success.

Believe me to be

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Chester I. Campbell,
Mayor.

The Mayor stated this morning that the matter of a new agent will be delayed as he wishes to consider several applications.

When seen this morning Mr. Hill said that his resignation would take effect Saturday. When asked if his relations with the different departments had been pleasant he replied "I have nothing to say, I am going out of here heart free and with no regrets."

When asked as to what business he was to enter Mr. Hill said the line he was to take up was a pet hobby of his own and that he was not prepared as yet to state just what position he was to take.

Without question the appointment of a purchasing agent has caused more or less friction among the department officials, which has been somewhat augmented by the item in the mayor's estimates that is to take care of his salary. At first it was announced that Mr. Hill was to be a "purchasing agent." Later he was known as a "purchasing clerk" and when the budget came out he was down as a clerk in the commissioners department at a salary of $1,000 with an added $300 for "other expenses."

There was more or less feeling on the part of many of the members of the council that things should be called by their right name and that no official should sail under false colors. If Mr. Hill was to be a purchasing agent then an ordinance establishing such an office should be enacted. There was also some question as to the power of the mayor to establish the office of a purchasing agent without an ordinance. While it was the general belief that the purchase of supplies by one man would result in a large saving for the city the feeling was that it should be done in a proper manner. The general opinion seemed to be that while the Mayor unquestionably had a right to designate one of the city officials as the man who should purchase all supplies for the city he did not have the right to create a new office without an ordinance, and that as clerks at city hall are under the civil service rules, if the agent was to be styled a cdlrrk, the appointment should have been made from the civil service list.

However, now that Mr. Hill has resigned the mayor may recommend to the council the passing of an ordinance to cover the matters to which objection is made.

SHE PICKS UP WRONG VIOLIN

It is not always easy to distinguish between the true and the false as a musician in a Brockton Theatre recently learned to his deep sorrow. But let the Brockton Enterprise tell the story:

"Darkest Russia," a drama of the Nihilists, the offering of the Yale Stock Company at the Hathaway Theatre for the first three days of this week, provided a really tragic incident in its initial performance in this city yesterday afternoon in which Bert Nash, a member of the Hathaway orchestra, lost a favorite violin. In the first act Antoinette Crawford, who plays the role of Ilda in "Darkest Russia," is supposed to play a Polish air on the violin off stage. Miss Crawford is not an accomplished violinist, and Mr. Nash plays the air for her in the wings. At the end of the selection Miss Crawford is dragged on the stage with a violin in her hands and commanded to play "God Save the Czar." After rendering the Polish selection in the wings Mr. Nash laid his violin near the "prop" violin used for the scene on the stage and this Miss Crawford seized for the dramatic scene. She refuses to play the music demanded of her and smashes the violin across her knee, and in the scene Mr. Nash's violin suffered. The mistake was not discovered until too late, though it may be repaired, it is believed. The violin was one made in Italy.

BATEMAN'S LOSS HEAVY

Rice Brothers of Quincy Own Burned Building

The damage to the Rice building on High street, Boston, from the fire which broke out early Wednesday morning and burned a great part of the day, is estimated to have been been close to $300,000. Five alarms brought apparatus enough to the scene practically to blockade the immediate section. Several miles of hose were laid.

The building is owned by Fred and Harry Rice of Adams street, Quincy. The work of the firemen prevented the flames sweeping into the Rice & Hutchins main building which adjoins the structure.

W. R. Bateman of Presidents Hill, a wool dealer, with offices in the destroyed building, was a heavy loser. His entire sample rooms and offices were wiped out and it is impossible to estimate his total loss. This morning he opened new offices on Federal street.

The owners of the building were summoned by phone shortly after the fire was discovered. They left here at three o'clock Wednesday morning for the scene, making the trip in an auto.

WOMAN'S ALLIANCE.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Woman's Alliance of the First Parish church Wednesday in the church parlors. The speaker of the afternoon was William H. Sayward, who gave an interesting talk on the subject of the "Relation of Religion to Practical Life." Not only was there a large attendance of members of the alliance present but several men as well. A social half hour followed at the close of the meeting during which light refreshments were served.

FIRST PARISH CLUB.

The speaker for the March meeting of the First Parish club will be Clarence W. Barron, proprietor of the Boston News Bureau, who has recently returned from Europe and who will give a talk on the conditions in Europe and what will come after the war. Mr. Barron has written a number of magazine articles on the European war and his address should be an unusually interesting one.

WOODROW WILSON.

Two years ago today Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey assumed the duties of president of the United States. Now that the first Democratic president since Cleveland has completed half the term for which he was elected there will be a general summing up of his presidency by friends and foes throughout the country. Newspapers all over the land will comment editorially upon the man in the White House, some eulogizing, some censuring, a few really criticizing in the good, old fashioned sense.

"By their fruits shall ye know them," is eminently true of the acts of presidents. What Woodrow Wilson really has achieved can only be determined by the calm, all seeing eye of history. That he has compelled his party to fulfil its platform is known to all. Whether that platform is wise or not the future alone will reveal. At all events, in enacting the ideals of the party into law much credit should be accorded the president.

Opinions differ as to Woodrow Wilsons foreign and Mexican policies. Again the future can be the only safe judge. His ship purchase bill aroused such opposition that its final defeat appears certain. But, as a rule, whatever the president has sought to accomplish he has accomplished. Whatever else may be said the present incumbent of the White House is president in fact as well as in name.

GOOD ADVICE.

In a Boston theatre program appears the following notice signed by Fire Commissioner John Grady: "Look around NOW and choose the nearest exit to your seat. In case of fire walk (not run) to that exit. Do not try to beat your neighbor to the street."

This is mighty good advice, and if everyone would follow it in every public hall, theatre or church every time there would be eliminated one fearful danger of modern life. If you make it a practice to always look for the nearest exit it will easily become a valuable habit.

WORTH READING.

The big six page special feature edition which comprises the second part of todays edition, making a total of 12 pages, should be carefully read. The edition is designed to aid the "Build Now" movement and we believe that the evidence presented in favor of an energetic promotion of the movement in Quincy is sufficiently strong to convince anyone who will give it a fair reading. Moreover, the special section deserves reading because of the many interesting features which there appear.

There was a French enthusiast who claimed that he could bring the moon down to earth and gently rest it upon the Sahara desert. All this to be done by a huge magnet. He then pointed out that it would be ever so easy to avail ourselves of the immense mineral resources of this satellite.

As the Marblehead Messenger pertinently remarks, however "the mineral, wealth of the moon would be a very poor substitute for the lumar tides of the ocean."

During March, housekeepers at least would appreciate a little oil on the main thoroughfares of the city. Yesterday the dust blew in great, swirling clouds up and down the streets.

The German government has decided to close all Berlin's theatres. And in spite of the horrors of war there are people there who are entering protests against that action.

What a solemn and impressing sensation must have filled the mourners of those martyred French airmen when a fleet of airships hovered slowly over the cemetery where the funeral services were being held.

Good for the parcels post.. Of the 761 dozen eggs sent through it recently the total loss from breakage was only 1.3 per cent.

FEW BUILDINGS IN CITY ARE FIRE TRAPS

Chief Billings Reviews Quincy's Fire Protection

Quincy, in general, is not filled with fire traps said Chief Billings of the fire department when interviewed at fire headquarters but there are a few old buildings which lack the open construction of the modern ones. The best efforts have been exerted in having the occupants cooperate in fire prevention and they have been successful to quite a degree.

The business section, according to the chief, is in some places, a menace, but the constant patrol of the streets by wide awake police and the alert citizens who make a practice of watching for fires when they are out at late hours almost ensures the prompt discovery of fires as soon as they break out.

The fire department is contemplating the value of recommending the installation of dry sprinklers in some blocks in the city which are used for business and dwelling purposes according to Chief Billings and such suggestions can be expected at an early date.

The dry sprinkler, while not new in fire department circles, being in use in all of the larger cities, will be absolutely new to Quincy. It consists of a series of perforated pipes attached to the cellar beams, so arranged that a short piece of hose can be attached to a coupling on the outside of the building.

All large buildings in Boston are now equipped in this fashion. The system is a substitute of the old system which held water at all times, the pipes of which were covered with wax which would melt on account of the extreme heat from a fire. This system, according to Chief Billings, was not a genuine success because warm weather oftentimes melted the wax and the water was released, causing an unnecessary damage.

Quincy has invested $78,047 in equipping a fire department. There are 33 permanent men, distributed through out the various houses of the city and 40 call men are available for duty. Call men who fail to report are now fined $2 instead of 50 cents, the fine having been recently increased and in accepting appointment, subscribe to the regulations of the department. Any man who fails to respond to alarms or summons three consecutive times in the district to which he is assigned or in any part of the city, on general alarms is dismissed unless he can produce an explanation satisfactory to the department.

There are two auto chemicals, a chief's car equipped with chemical tanks and 200 feet of hose, a motorized or tractor engine, three ladder trucks, three combination hose wagons and two ordinary hose wagons.

An agreement is in force whereby aid will be given by surrounding cities and towns in case of a conflagration.

Streets are piped with water mains, with few exceptions, and the mains are from four to 16 inches in size. Hydrants are situated so they are from 300 to 500 feet apart and the pressure throughout the city averages from 80 to 90 pounds.

The department has 14,500 feet of hose, 90 per cent of which is in good condition.

During the year 58,630 feet of hose was laid and there were 3,209 feet of ladders raised. In all there were 4443 gallons of chemicals used.

The department answered 455 calls, 174 on bell alarms, 248 by phone and thirty-three of the alarms were false.

Chief Billings is of the opinion that the city is on the edge of a great building boom and the wonderful development of the past few years is beyond the recollection of its citizens.

SPRING FEVER.

About this time of the year spring fever attacks the unoffending citizen and reduces him to temporary junk.

Spring fever is more terrible than other fevers because it cannot be cured by swallowing a clinical thermometer and running out a few yards of tongue in the presence of a doctor. When a man has spring fever he has to suffer along with the knowledge that nothing is the matter with him and that there isn't sympathy enough in the wide world to spare him one little tear.

Spring fever is so called because it removes the spring from man and leaves him a mass of helpless woe. It begins by attacking the victim's feet. These rapidly increase in weight until they weigh half a ton apiece. It then dissolves the backbone into a thin jelly, removes the muscles from the arms and hangs lead sinkers on the eyelids.

When the fever has completed this job it sits back and watches its victim trying to work with fiendish glee.

The efforts of said victim to do a day's work look like the efforts of a slim young man to throw an elephant over a trolley wire by the tail.

When he begins to work in this condition he has an ache for every bone. A little later he has only one ache, but he has not improved in health. His one ache is merely all of his former aches run together.

We laugh at spring fever because it is only a temporary, though an acute, affliction. We also laugh at certain moist and fervent portions of this and other countries because of the general disposition of the inhabitants to start on yesterday's work tomorrow. But in these climates spring fever if often chronic and the starch in the human system remains permanently melted, causing a pathetic flabbiness of muscle and will. There are in addition many people who are "born tired." With them it is always spring and their desire to work cannot be detected by the most delicate reaction.

The Government is kind to those afflicted folk, giving vast numbers of them life positions in the bureaus at Washington. But this is at best a makeshift, and is besides too hard on the bureaus. Medical science should focus its attention on chronic spring fever and devise some means of relieving its victims and their victims. (George Fitch in Collier's Weekly.)

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

WAS WARNING NOT THREAT

Alva L. Stinson Points Out Distinction

Editor, The Ledger:

With reference to your editorial of last Saturday, headed "An Unfair Threat," you evidently misunderstood my address given before the Atlantic Improvement association upon which you apparently made unfair comment: for in that address I most emphatically and specifically stated that my remarks were not intended as a threat but as a mere warning. This part of my address you sedulously avoided in your quotation, and assumed to put an erroneous construction on the other part. Your editorial, and particularly the headline thereof, would have appeared wholly inconsistent with the spirit of the address had you quoted the matter above referred to.

A threat is largely a matter of intent, and the best possible evidence of my intent in making the remarks, only a portion of which you quoted, and that, the unimportant portion, with reference to the correct interpretation thereof, was my statement prefacing them, that they were intended merely as a warning and not as a threat.

In using the word "threat" seven times as you did in your editorial, in view of these facts, you certainly evidenced a stronger desire to have my address misunderstood, than to treat it and me fairly; but, of course, this was not your intention and I am sure you did not and do not wish to convey to your readers the erroneous impression that I was unfair to our present administration, in which I have the greatest confidence so far as our chief executive is concerned.

To threaten is to terrify by menaces; whereas to warn is merely to give notice of possible danger; hence, I was most careful to qualify my statements in a proper way so as to convey no false impression but it would appear to the casual reader of your editorial that you, on the other hand, were equally diligent to only half quote that portion of my address, which would have convinced any reader, casual or careful, that my state constituted a "Fair Warning rather than "An Unfair Threat."

Independently of my quotation, you must agree with me that to require, a person, or persons, by oral warning to do what he or they in duty should do could not possibly be a threat.

For the present administration to do all that it should do, ought to do and can consistently do for Atlantic, would be doing nothing more or less than its plain and bounden duty to Atlantic.

To state that the administration will be expected to do all that it ought, can and should do for Atlantic, means nothing more or less, in substance, than that it will be expected to do its duty to Atlantic, by her citizens.

To state, in substance, that if it does not do its duty to the citizens of Atlantic, its "Fresco" will be hanging in threads, is neither a threat nor an adverse criticism, either express or implied.

To state that if the administration does not do its duty to Atlantic, the citizens of Atlantic are likely to do theirs, is not "An Unfair Threat" but merely a fair warning, as I particularly stated at the time.

One of the inalienable rights of the citizens of a municipality is to not only warn but criticise their municipal officers. These warnings and criticisms, however, should not always be regarded as evidence that they are well-founded or justly deserved. As a rule, we threaten that which we hate, and warn that which we love. We threaten our enemies that they may fear us, we warn our friends because we love them and desire that they avoid possible danger.

I do not believe that you intended to be unfair to me or to create an erroneous impression in the minds of your readers; but it is quite possible for any of us to be unfair without that intent.

Perhaps I am as largely responsible for the present administration as you are, and I am very sure that I am as heartily in accord with its policies; as great an admirer of the exceptional ability, sterling character and conscientious motives of our chief executive, and feel as confident as you that his administration will be the greatest and most gratifying that Quincy has ever had, and that from every viewpoint of industrial progress it will prove an innovation, in point of executive efficiency in her municipal life and history.

Trusting and believing that this feeble remonstrance and sincere explanation will be accepted by you in the right spirit, and given any "publicity" consideration which it may deserve, I remain,

Respectfully yours,
A. L. STINSON.

THE EXPOSITION.

At last, after five years of preparation, the Panama Pacific Exposition has opened its doors to the world. Your correspondent was one of the 246,000 who marched down Van Ness avenue, bands playing and flags flying, and through the huge green arches opening into exposition grounds on Saturday morning, February 20. All the morning the crowd poured in through the great gate, until all the avenues and courts were black with people, and the vast open space before the grand stand was a sea of faces,—acres of faces,—all turned towards the speaker's stand.

The program went through without a hitch under the blue California sky. Only once was there a slight interruption. Just as one of the officials rose to make his speech, a black and squally little cloud obscured the sun and sent a sharp flurry of rain across the grounds. Instantly the sea of attentive faces became a sea of bobbing umbrellas, from under which rose a babel of laughter and exclamations, completely drowning out the speaker's voice. He stopped, hesitated, dismay upon his countenance. How could he make his speech, his splendid speech, which he had spent so many hours preparing, to all those black, inhuman umbrellas? Only a moment, then he rose courageously to the emergency, faced the moving picture man, his only remaining auditor, and finished his address. In five minutes the rain was over and forgotten; but alas, so was the speech.

And then President Wilson, in far off Washington, pressed a button, and instantly, here on the Pacific coast, three thousand miles away, the doors of the great exhibit palaces flew open, the fountains threw up feathery masses of spray, flags streamed to the wind, and bands played, while the President of the Board of Directors declared the exposition officially open; and while the crowds scattered, Lincoln Beachey circled the tower of jewels in his aeroplane, turning somersaults in the air.

The Directors of the Exposition have done their work well. The huge exhibit palaces are complete, and the grounds and roadways are ready. The wonderful and intricate lighting system is in working order and giving marvelous displays every evening. As much cannot be said for the exhibits. Many, of course, are ready, and there is much to see; no visitor need lack for profitable and delightful ways of spending many days. But some of the most important foreign exhibits are still on the high seas in the Christmas ship, Jason, and the foreign pavilions are at present exhibiting little but scaffoldings. For the foreign exhibitors there can be no criticism;—they have done wonderfully well under extreme difficulties, and in a few weeks they will be ready. But it is not so easy to understand why some of the American exhibitors are so far behind. Still, a great many are ready, and all are working day and night. By the time the big crowds from the east begin to pour in, the vacant spaces will be filled, and there will be no need of apologies or explanation.

And meanwhile, in addition to all the exhibits which are ready, there are the wonderfully beautiful buildings, themselves the greatest exhibit of all, the gardens, the fountains, the rich and varied sculpture, and the many concerts and special events.

SENDS BOY TO SHIRLEY

Court Finds Dole Guilty of Larceny

George Dole, alias Day, who was arrested by Inspector Goodhue for breaking and entering three houses at Wollaston was given a hearing this morning before Judge Avery. Although but one complaint was brought against him at the time of his arrest this morning he faced three charges.

They were breaking and entering and larceny from the houses of Russell T. Anthony on Elm avenue and the home of Charles J. Brooks at 77 Hancock street and for breaking and entering the house of John Whitehead on Kemper street. Dole pleaded guilty to all three complaints. In court this morning he emphatically insisted that his name was Day and his mother stated the same thing until the police brought forward testimony to show that his name was Dole. Then the boy admitted that Dole was his correct name. The court sentenced him to the Industrial school for boys at Shirley.

This probably solves the mystery that has been worrying the gas company who have reported that during the past few months coin meters have been opened and robbed of upwards of $40. A duplicate gas meter key was found among the possessions of Dole.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

The reference department which is a recent addition to the completeness of the library, has developed greatly during the past year. Every afternoon from 1.30 to 6 o'clock an attendant may be found at the reference desk in the reading room and this young woman is now able to give all the time necessary to answer any questions. If it is impossible to find an answer through the material in this library, the attendant will, if possible, secure the information from the Boston Public Library or some other source.

The library is fortunate in possessing a good and up-to-date reference collection and additions are continually being made. Not only has the library a goodly number of American works but many English publications such as the "Statesman's Year Book, "Who's Who." The library also has two of the best French works which are, Larousse's Grand Universal Dictionnaire and Vapereau's Dictionnaire des Contemporains.

A few of the reference books, such as the Automobile blue book and Scientific American, are kept on an inside shelf and may be had upon request at the desk.

ALLIANCE MEETING.

The regular meeting of the Quincy Branch Alliance was held in the Ladies' Parlor of the First Parish church Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. After the business meeting the president, Mrs. Thomas Fenno introduced the speaker. William Sayward of Boston, who spoke most forcibly on "Practical Religion." The hostesses of the afternoon were Miss Lucy Spear and Miss Mary Holden.

DUNCAN WRITES BARRE CUTTERS

Tries to Smooth Trouble With Manufacturers

The trouble with the granite cutters at Barre, Vt., is still on, although the indications are that the matter will be straightened out in a few days. The trouble in Barre, has been on the accepting the proposition made to the cutters union by the manufacturers. This proposition was to pay 42 cents an hour until May 1, 1915, 40 cents an hour from that date to March 1, 1916 and thereafter 50 cents an hour. This of course is for an 8 hour day or a 44 hour week. Some of the disgruntled men in Barre wanted a ballot taken on the question of accepting the proposition but as there was no hall large enough to accommodate them all the trouble has arisen.

In order to straighten out matters if possible Secretary of the National Association, Treasurer James Duncan whose office is in Quincy, has written the Barre union advising that the proposition of the manufacturers be accepted. He has also advised them that if a ballot is taken it must be a secret ballot. The proposition of the manufacturers is understood to include the cutters at Montpelier, Barre, Morrisville and Williamstown.

An attempt to take a ballot was made a few days ago at which time a certain element mobbed the tellers and grabbed the ballot boxes and smashed them. The element that is now making the disturbance in Barre is said to be in the minority and at the office of Secretary Duncan this noon it was said the trouble would probably be straightened out in Barre in a few days.

The prizes at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club Wednesday night were captured by Amos L. Litchfield and John W. Walsh. A clam chowder was served after the tournament.

RUMOR OF LEPROSY IN CITY

There was a wild rumor about city square this morning that a young woman on Whitwell street had been discovered to be afflicted with leprosy. According to the rumor the young woman in question fell on the sidewalk a few nights ago. A man who was passing at the time ran to her assistance and helped her to her feet. He then took from his pocket a handkerchief with which he bound up the wound which she had received. The story goes on to say that the handkerchief was infected and that the Chinese laundry where it had been laundered had been closed by the Board of Health.

Investigation this noon brings out the fact that the Board of Health has received no reports of such a case and a visit to the laundry in question found to be open for business as usual. Dr. Harold Diehl of the Board says that no local physician has reported symptoms of leprosy in any patient.

LAUNDRIES TO CLOSE SUNDAYS

Acting Chief McKay has issued instructions to the police to enforce the Sunday law and prevent the delivery of laundry on that day.

The orders will particularly affect Chinese laundries who have always made a habit of opening on Sunday morning to accommodate patrons. They will probably have the most far reaching effect of any order issued in years in Quincy.

The instructions are the result of a written complaint made to Mayor Campbell by a local laundryman, who protested against a continuance of the practice. Mayor Campbell referred the matter to Chief McKay. Because a violation existed Chief. McKay felt the necessity of issuing the instructions.

Several Chinese in the city were interviewed today. All smiled in high glee, satisfied that they now had an excuse to observe Sunday as a holiday the entire day. In the past the custom of accommodating belated customers has prevented their leaving for the meetings in Boston which they regularly attend.

The citizens of the city, it is believed will not take kindly to the new regulation, and more than one protest has been voiced against it from men prominent in the public life.

ELLEN C. CAVANAUGH.

Ellen C. Cavanaugh, a member of the graduating class of the Quincy grammar school, died at the home of her father, John Cavanaugh, 37 Old Colony street, on Wednesday, in her 14th year. Her death was due to heart trouble, following a severe attack of diphtheria.

Miss Cavanaugh contracted diphtheria more than a week ago. She made a fine response to treatment but suffered a relapse last Friday. She died Wednesday morning and was buried a few hours later in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The young girl was well known in the Atlantic section. Her mother Mrs. Catherine Cavanaugh died suddenly three years ago. She is survived by her father, one sister, Mary, and one brother, Charles. The deceased was a niece of Cornelius M. Duggan.

RESERVES DECISION.

A hearing was held before Associate Justice Pratt at the district court this morning on the case of Abe George who was arrested last Friday on a complaint charging him with hitting Poulos Kalil over the head with a riveting hammer. After the hearing the evidence the court continued the case until Friday morning for finding.

Mr. Parson called to see Mr. Fahey's domestic relations system in effect. Under this system wives granted separate maintenance by the court call Wednesday evening to receive the money paid the office by their husbands.

QUINCY BOARD OF TRADE

bers had not bought tickets.

A letter was read from Supt. Conway of the street railway stating that on account of the financial situation and the fact that there were two grade crossings, it was not practicable to build a track from East Milton to connect with the Elevated at Adams street.

Peter T. Fallon talked at length on railroads in general and of the great need of this link being built, and said that it should be taken up with the Public Service commission. However the report was accepted and laid on the table.

The Board voted to endorse the legislative bill relative to milk and baby hygiene. Mr. Pratt opposed as no one knew what they were voting for. "The Board of Trade is not qualified to vote on such matters. That is the trouble, we dabble in things we know nothing about. Let the state Board of Health handle it. .That's what it is paid for."

The directors reported that the vacancy in the board of directors had been filled by appointing Eugene R. Atwood.

Mr. Chapman was then introduced and spoke at length on his anti-friction ball bearing device. He wanted to form a stock company in Quincy. If $15,000 of stock was suscribed here the company would suscribe $15,000. It had the sole right for making the bearings for pullies and shafting in the United States. Stock which usually sold for $10 he proposed to sell for $5 a share. The bearings would pay a profit of 150 per cent and a good dividend was assured.

After some more discussion on the ball bearing device that matter was referred to the committee on new industries.

On request of F. F. Crane, as to how many favored a public dock about everybody stood up, and on his request for how many favored the city appropriating $100,000 a number stood up. It was then voted that the water front committee be empowered to arrange for a public dock meeting at which none should speak except those in favor of the dock.

By a rising vote of 16 in favor and 5 against the meeting night of the Board was changed to the second Thursday in each month. The matter of securing larger quarters was referred to the directors.

The street railway committee was instructed to take up several matters with the street railway. These included a car to Neponset via of Norfolk Downs at 10.30 P. M. Fifteen minutes time between Quincy and Neponset via Hancock street beginning April 1 and to bring to the Public Service commission the matter of the company extending its tracks from East Milton to Adams street.

The transportation committee was also instructed to see if a train could not be had for Quincy Adams on Saturdays leaving Boston about 1.15 or 1.20.

ADDRESS BEFORE FOWLER CHAPTER

Dr. Ward of Boston University gave an interesting address before the members and friends of the Fowler Chapter of the Methodist Brotherhood of the Hall place M. E. church Wednesday night.

Dr. Ward spoke on "The Church and Its Relation to the Community." He would not judge the efficiency of the church by the number of persons before him nor by those who attend Sunday services, but would measure it by the work it is doing in the community. Nor should its measure of helpfulness be confined within the community; perchance there is not much poverty nor sickness within the community limits, then it is the business of the Church to reach beyond and help the County and the State.

The church is not merely a place where "the Gospel can be preached and the Sacraments administered" nor merely a place for the young people to receive religious instruction, nor a place where a select few can go and enjoy religion. It is all these and more and should be the place where people are taught how to make their lives the most useful.

He spoke of the need of the church holding the young people and of the need of proper recreation for them and advocated the proper supervision of the playgrounds of a community. At the close of the address the regular meeting of the Brotherhood was held.

After the entertainment, refreshments of ices and cakes were served. Dancing followed until midnight. There were about three hundred people present.

The Monroes held their lead in the Wollaston Tennis club matches at the Coliseum alley Wednesday evening but the Hoxies crept closer, one pin separating the teams. The Hoxies jump came with four points and the Monroe's loss of three out of four points. The pinfall was rather light but the matches were interesting.

WATCHMAN IS HELD

Result of Fatal Shooting of Young Theological Student

Rochester, N. H., March 4.—Adelbert Wright, night watchman at the Cocheco mills, was arraigned on a charge of manslaughter, in the shooting of Walter Marison, whom he said he caught attempting to rob the office of the mills.

At the request of counsel the case was continued until next Saturday. Wright was committed to jail meantime.

Marison was 23 years of age and was a theological student. Friends expressed the opinion that his mind might have been affected by overstudy. According to the police he was in need of money with which to continue his theological studies, and was familiar with the factory office, having formerly been employed there.

Wood's Denial Concerning American Legion Propaganda

Washington, March 4.—Major General Wood, in a telegram to Secretary Garrison, characterized as untrue statements that propaganda had been issued from his departmental headquarters for the organization of an American Legion of Reservists.

Wood's telegram as prompted by protests from Bishop Greer and other members of the American League to Limit Armament. He characterized their statements as "audacious."

"I called Bishop Greer up," said Wood's message, "and asked him his authority, and he replied the press only. I informed him that his statement that the propaganda had been issued from these headquarters was untrue and demanded that he correct it, and he promised to do so. A more audacious misstatement, made without inquiries or investigation, has seldom come to my attention, and I have so informed the bishop."

Mayor of Boston Draws Bread Law For Legislature to Consider

Boston, March 4.—Mayor Curley presented to the legislature his bill for the enacting of health laws that would act against the manufacture of bread containing plaster of paris and certain other materials.

This bill is the result of a report by Drs. Jordan and Harrington of the Boston board of health that a baking concern, whose product is sold in Boston stores, has been in the custom of using plaster of paris and ammonium chloride in the manufacture of bread.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 4.—Notices that operations have been suspended indefinitely were posted at all the Delaware and Hudson collieries in this section. About 12,000 men and boys will be thrown out of work.

The suspension, officials said, was due to the small demand for coal and to the large quantity in storage.

TWO INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

Prisoners In Bomb Case Face Severe Sentence

ONE "RED" WAS SUSPICIOUS

Had an Idea That Man They Knew as Baldo Was a Detective—Wide Publicity Given the Case Likely to Make Further Arrests by Police Extremely Difficult

New York, March 4.—The grand jury found indictments against Frank Arbano and Charles Carbone, the anarchists accused of having plotted to explode two dynamite bombs in St. Patrick's cathedral while several hundred worshippers were at mass.

The indictments charge the two men with having placed a bomb in a public place in violation of the penal law. Arbano and Carbone were arraigned and held in $25,000 bail each for pleading Friday. The maximum penalty for the crime charged is twenty-five years in prison.

Emilio Pulignano, the young detective, who, under the name of Frank Baldo, was taken into the confidence of the anarchists, was the principal witness summoned to appear before the grand jury. The connecting links in his story were fully supplied by other detectives and the two bombs.

It was not until Arbano and Carbone were brought before the line-up at police headquarters that they were certain that the man they had known as Baldo was a detective. Carbone was heard to say:

"I warned you to be careful, and now you see what the truth was."

The police are trying to find a textbook on bomb-making which has disappeared from Carbone's home. Pulignano at one time had the book in his possession, and he sent it to police headquarters, where copies of it were made.

Carbone insisted that the book be returned, however, so the detective was compelled to secure the original copy. Carbone refused to tell the police what had become of the book.

The story of how Puglinano lived for four months with the two men now under arrest, gradually winning their confidence by posing as a "red" of the deepest dye, even carrying his plan so far that he brought one of the infernal machines to the cathedral and was himself placed under arrest with his companions, reads like an Old King Brady detective yarn.

The police are reticent concerning prospects of there being any more arrests. It is not thought probable, however, as the wide publicity given the case would warn off any of their sympathizers.

Anarchist leaders hooted the arrests of Arbano and Carbone. Emma Goldman, the noted leader, and Dr. Ben Reitman, publisher of "Mother Earth," an anarchist publication, said they believed the case was a police "frame-up" to get the department "in good" with the public.

While the police are of the opinion they have the plot well broken up, they are taking no chances. Guards were placed about the homes of Rockefeller, Carnegie and the Vanderbilts. Pulignano, too, is to be guarded carefully when he goes on the street.

TO PROBE HALL PARDON

Massachusetts Solons Overwhelmingly In Favor of Plan

Boston, March 4.—An investigation of the pardon of John A. Hall, the ex-treasurer of the Southbridge Savings bank, who looted the treasury of that institution of about $300,000 and who was pardoned by Governor Walsh and the executive council last year, was ordered by the house of representatives.

By an overwhelming majority of 156 to 63 the house directed that a committee of its own members, consisting of three Republicans and three Democrats, probe into the Hall and such other pardons as they may deem fit.

"FROM HERE TO HELL"

Captain of White Star Liner Promises to Fly the British Flag

New York, March 4.—"I'll fly the British flag from here to hell, and I'll not take the flag down for any German submarine on the seas," declared Captain Ransom of the White Star liner Baltic, just before his ship sailed for Liverpool.

While Ransom was thus declaring himself, stevedores were loading forty armored automobiles into the hold of the Baltic consigned to the British army.

HELD IN $10,000 EACH

Cole and Wife Arraigned on Charge of Stealing $20,736

Boston, March 4.—Mrs. Lorranna T. Cole, former clerk at the Collateral Loan company, and her husband, George W. Cole, who were arrested in Providence after a wide search by the police, were arraigned in court on a charge of stealing $20,736.32 from the loan company.

Both pleaded not guilty and each was held in $10,000 bonds for a hearing Monday.

It is said that during a conference with police officials the Coles told all they knew about thefts from the loan company. It is understood that if they should be indicted by the grand jury a sensation may result when the case reaches the superior court. It is believed a "man higher up" may be arrested.

It is said that Mrs. Cole was merely the tool of another.

ANGLE TRIAL IS BEGUN

Accused Woman Takes Part In Selection of the Jurors

Bridgeport, Conn., March 4.—Mrs. Helen M. Angle, the wealthy divorcee of Stamford, appeared in superior court here and her trial on the charge of manslaughter was begun before Judge Williams.

Mrs. Angle is charged with responsibility for the death of Waldo R. Ballou, a close friend and a wealthy manufacturer of Stamford, who was found dead in front of the Rippowam apartment building.

It was in this building that Mrs. Angle had apartments and, following the coroner's inquest and the investigation of the police, evidence believed to connect her with the tragedy was adduced.

Little difficulty was experienced in selecting a jury, the prisoner herself taking an active part in the examination of talesmen.

STUDENTS PROTEST IN MASS MEETING

Utah University Ousts Non-Mormons of High Standing

Salt Lake City, March 4.—Dismissal of four professors of the University of Utah and the demotion of the head of the English department without reasons having been made public, resulted in a mass meeting of students and the adoption of resolutions disapproving the action of President Kingsbury and petitioning the regents to make public the reasons for the action.

Professor Marshall, head of the English department for more than twenty years, was notified that he would be removed as head of the department but would be retained as an instructor if he so desired. O. J. P. Widsoe, a professor in the Latter Day Saints high school at Salt Lake City and a bishop of the Mormon church, will be appointed to succeed Marshall.

It was also announced that four others would be dropped from the faculty at the end of the year. All five of the men are non-Mormons.

BOOM IN JITNEY SERVICE

Has Taken Strong Hold In Eastern Kansas and Eastern Missouri

Kansas City, March 4.—The "jitney" boom in Kansas City has spread out all over eastern Missouri and eastern Kansas. Scarcely a town within a radius of 100 miles of Kansas City has not a jitney service, but the big boom has been in interurban services, between towns which have no direct railroad connection.

In several cases, these rural "jitney" services link three or four towns, making from one to three round trips a day on regular schedule. Mostly, however, the present services connect only two towns.

House Passes Bill Forbidding Supplying Them With Coal

A resolution drafted by the department of justice for the state department was passed in the house, designed to prevent vessels from leaving American ports with coal and supplies for belligerent warships at sea.

The resolution would authorize the president to direct customs collectors to withhold clearance from any vessel of American registry or license which he has reason to believe has any intention to carry such supplies.

SPORTING COMMENT

MERRYMOUNT DRESSING ROOM.

Quincy's board of Park Commissioners in the annual budget request $2,500 for the department. Some of the money may be expended in erecting a suitable dressing building at Merrymount Park to be used as a dressing room, the need of which has been felt for years.

Many persons interested in athletics have either communicated with the Park Commissioners—George E. Pfaffmann, chairman, Ira M. Whittemore and John L. Hamilton, or aired their views through the press on the need of such a structure.

It is the general belief that the board is partial to such a proposal because all, when business permits it, attend local games and contests and know the actual conditions.

Merrymount Park is annually the mecca of thousands of fans and hundreds of athletes. The attractions have been base ball and football, and since the oval was completed and the running track made one of the best in New England, several meets have been held.

Preparations for these events have been made with considerable embarrassment not only to the participants but also to spectators. The only refuge offered for dressing purposes is the natural grove of trees between the upper base ball field and the oval. It is to relieve this situation and make preparation an agreeable instead of a repulsive necessity that the request for a dressing room has been made to the commissioners, and it is also on that account that the petitioners are optimistic over the outcome.

BASE BALL AT HIGH SCHOOL.

The base ball team which will play this season in the South Shore Interscholastic league with Weymouth, Milton, Rockland and Brockton High schools may not come up to expectations. This possibility arises because some of the most promising candidates are down in their studies.

Several weeks remain for the boys to attain their percentages and they are said to be making an earnest effort to get back in grace, but they may not prove equal to the occasion.

Inability of the boys to return to the game would be disappointing to the student body which has already shown unusual interest in the league. Few, at this time, realize how seriously the team would be affected by such a condition, since the faculty has not made public the names. The fact remains however that the absence of any of the veterans on this account would make a gap in the organization which would be difficult to fill.

HIGH SCHOOL RUNNERS.

Inexperience and too short preparation, explains why the relay team of Quincy High school lost at the Interscholastics. The team was beaten from the crack of the gun. One man drew the pole and was left on his mark. Another cut down the lead of other runners but didn't know how to sprint by. Another would have taken the lead if he hadn't stumbled, due entirely to his not being on intimate terms with spikes. Lack of knowledge of cutting corners was also a factor. Lack of coaching and training should not play any further part in running at the school. The student body has dozens of good boys that can be developed. Many started in grammar school but lost interest when they realized no system existed at the upper school. Let's buckle down and face the proposition squarely. Give us the equal of Marceau, Miller, Courlie, Gram, and other intercollegiate stars who started their career there and became record holders and breakers.

John J. O'Brien has been elected coach of Salem High school base ball team. Richard Murphy, past year's football end, will captain the 1915 eleven.

Hannes Kolehmainen, Ted Meredith and Joseph Loomis will not take part in the A. A. U. championships in New York.

Melrose High took the championship of the Interscholastic hockey league.

The batting candidates of Medford High are working out indoors.

Bill Sweeney, former second baseman of the Boston Nationals has signed with the local Americans. If he can show his old time form he may bat himself into a regular berth.

Robert Layfield, quarterback on the Johns Hopkins eleven, who was injured in a game with Lehigh University on Oct. 31, died a victim of football.

John E. P. Morgan, regular pain on the Harvard hockey team, has been elected captain.

Thomas J. Campbell, Harvard '12, will coach the Bowdoin football team. He assisted Haughton last fall and was in charge of the backfield.

Conduct in sport will have a strong bearing on the future awarding of letters at Milton High. Letters will not be given players suspended from a game for any good reason until a final decision is given by a board of governors, including Coach Nash, Carl Hall and Headmaster Curtis.

ROLLOFFS AT WARDWELLS

Johnny Brown took the rolloffs at the Wardwell alleys Wednesday night, leading the many bowlers who passed the triple mark with a total of 353, six less than the rolloff alley record of Harry Swett. C. Carlson was second with 317 and P. Gulman third with 314. J. Dunn followed with 307. Timothy Donovan was given the cigars for a single of 117. Dobos got the booby with 250.

NEW SHIRT IRONER PROVING MOST SATISFACTORY.

It is a positive fact that the new shirt ironer which we recently installed does preserve the design and fabric of shirts, says Adv. Manager Charles E. Decker of the Old Colony Laundry Co. The ironer does not rub, therefore cannot wear out its victim. It just decends on the object, as you would slowly place the palm of your hand on a table. The iron is large enough to cover the entire shirt front, with a special arrangement around which the neck band is adjusted,—is filled with steam and therefore cannot burn the shirt. Down comes Mr. Giant Iron, and with one great pressure of a few moments the shirt is ready to be folded and sent home. It's great—and real particular men would be delighted to see the operation. It is a real revelation in the laundry art, says Mr. Decker.

AMERICANS IN TURKEY.

More than 200 people located in more then twenty stations and twice as many outstations represent the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions in Turkey and the Balkan states at present. With fighting going on in practically all directions around them it is reassuring to know that the mission schools are proceeding as usual, with full attendance; the mission property is respected; and in most cases the missionaries are being treated with consideration. Some supplies consigned to mission stations, notably medicines have been requisitioned but friendliness to Americans has seemed to be the rule.

Trebizond, on the shore of the Black Sea, reports that it was expedient to fly the U. S. flag over all the buildings for a few days. Quiet soon followed, however, and business proceeded as usual. Erzroom, forty miles from the Russian frontier, and Van in Eastern Turkey, have been nearest actual battle grounds. In Erzroom the boys' school and the girls' school, large, well built houses —have been thrown open for the use of the wounded brought in from the country round. Dr. Case of Erzroom is being aided by Dr. Clark of Sivas, who left his hospital in charge of his native assistant and came to assist in the operating and in the difficult treatments necessary in taking care of men suffering from wounds and exposure in the intense cold of that mountainous region. Miss Mary L. Graffam, one of the Sivas missionaries also went to help at Erzroom, leaving her school of 700 girls in charge of the assistant teachers. Dr. Ussher, of Van, has also been very busy with hospital work.

The Russian, French and English consuls had left Van by mid-November but all through December Treasurer W. W. Peet, of the Board's headquarters in Constantinople, was able to communicate with Van as well as with other stations and on Jan. 13 the State Department in Washington forwarded to the Board's office in Boston a cable message dated December 26 reporting "all American and Canadian missionaries in Van and Erzroom safe and well."

Within a week the officials of the Board, in Boston have received letters from more than two-thirds of its stations in Turkey. Some of them have been more than a month on their way, some even longer; some are written in German, some in French, although the ban on the use of English has now been removed and correspondence will doubtless from now on be easier.

Dr. Barnum of Brousa, not far from the Sea of Marmora, writes reassuringly of the safety, health and comfort of the Americans in that city of 75,000 people and says there is little to remind one that the land is not in its normal condition of peace. At Adana, south of the Taurus mountains, Dr. W. N. Chambers reports that Americans are favored. The new building of the Girls' Seminary is unusually full and the hospital is doing all it has room and money for.

The International College at Smyrna is going on as usual, though with fewer students than a year ago. President MacLachlan finds the government and military officials all friendly to the schools.

In Marsovan, near the Black Sea, the French have been obliged to close their schools and leave the city, but President George E. White, of Anatolia College, finds that the Ottoman officials deal with American interests in a friendly manner. Harpoot, Marash, Diarbekir and Mardin in Central and Eastern Turkey all report quiet conditions, gratitude on the part of the people for help rendered and splendid chances for Christian work. Many of the letters speak of the distress among the poor and of inability to give relief for lack of the usual supplies, etc.

Cities in which are Turkish barracks or which are on the route of the troops report little enthusiasm on the part of the soldiers and frequent desertions. From the Oorfa barracks 300 Arabs deserted in a body in one night; of 11000 soldiers started from Diarbekir to Erzroom only 4000 reached that place—the others having deserted on the way. The old "Camel Corps," the Hamidieh, which was called to the colors again and sent to the front has apparently dissolved. Nearly every company has returned to its village saying it's no use to stand against Russian artillery. The war does not seem likely to spread to the interior districts and all signs point to the fact that the American missionaries are trusted and their teachings welcomed as never before.

FASHION FOR STRIPES.

Fabrics of This Kind Popular For the Season's Frocks.

STRIPED SILK GOWN.

A handsome afternoon frock of blue and white striped pussy willow taffeta is illustrated here.

The bodice, cut on the bias and folded into pnits, extends into a pointed hip yoke, held in at the waist line by a cording of the material. Suspenders of the taffeta are developed into a gathered, flaring collar with tabs over the shoulders. A tucked and frilled guimpe of cream daphne silk is worn. The short skirt, straight in front, flares in the back, the bottom being corded to insure firmness.

SHABBY WASTEBASKETS.

Fancy Covers Make Them Look Prettier Than Ever.

When the old wicker wastebasket has become shabby it can be easily renewed by incasing in a tight covering of colored silk and then adding a second and top covering of crocheted lace. The square, octagonal or paneled wastebasket can be readily fitted up with crochet lace.

Crochet panels of lace the width and length of each side of the basket. First baste each separate panel thus crocheted to the basket through the wicker, and then proceed to whip the panels together with white thread and an ordinary sewing needle.

Bind the top and bottom of the basket with ribbon to match the first layer of material used upon the basket and place bow at the side. The color used in making the basket should, of course, match the color scheme of the boudoir or bedroom for which the basket is intended.

RIBBONS FOR TRIMMINGS.

Placed on Millinery and Gowns Are Popular Decorations.

Ribbons will have large use for millinery decoration and for girdles on dresses, says the Dry Goods Economist. Narrow grosgrains will prevail for the former and wide, plain ribbons for the latter purpose. Striped and check effects will be dominant in the fancy novelties.

Vellings worn in loose, draped fashion will be in great vogue. Bordered ones will be popular. Hand run designs, velvet spots and fillet meshes will be features.

Millinery features are ultra small sailor, poke, toque and tricorn shapes, lisere straw in combination with other braids; small, flat, floral trimmings; narrow grosgrain and georgette satin ribbons, fancy button and straw novelties and compact feather effects.

Spring Cleaning Hint.

To clean ecru or cream curtains without washing tack a sheet to the floor, stretch curtain on this and cover with coarse salt and cornmeal. Rub briskly with a whisk broom fifteen minutes and you will have clean curtains and color as bright as new.

BEAUTY SNAPSHOTS.

It is claimed that tea boiled with water and strained is a mild astringent lotion for lessening hair falling.

A cold shower bath every morning will do much toward hardening the skin to winds.

An excellent practice to insure bright eyes and a clear skin is to take the juice of a lemon in a glass of water, with a dash of salt added. This acts directly on the liver, which has more to do with good looks than many imagine.

Pale, sparse eyebrows and lashes make a face expressionless. They can be coaxed into a better growth by rubbing the eyebrows nightly with vaseline.

If your hands perspire too freely, add a few drops of tincture of myrrh to the water in which you rinse them after washing. Then dry thoroughly and dust with boracic acid or oatmeal.

LAST MEETING OF SERIES IS HELD

The last of the series of Evangelical meetings that have been held this week at the Universalist church closed with the meeting of Wednesday evening. The speakers were Rev. Merrill C. Ward, pastor of the church and Rev. Charles Conklin. The meeting was well attended as have been all of the meetings this week and considerable enthusiasm has been aroused.

TO GIVE HEARING.

It is understood that the legislative committee on railroads will give a hearing March 10 on the petition of the associations at Wollaston and Norfolk Downs for a subway beneath the railroad tracks at these stations.

MAY ISSUE $1000 POLICIES.

On March second Governor Walsh signed a bill permitting the savings insurance banks in Massachusetts to issue life insurance policies for one thousand dollars.

These banks have hitherto been limited by law to policies not exceeding $500. As there are four banks engaged in the life insurance business the largest amount of insurance which any individual could secure has been $2000, or $500, in each bank. Now, this amount has been doubled, and a total insurance of $4000, may be applied for by any resident of Massachusetts.

A one thousand dollar policy is a popular form of insurance, and it is possible now for a person to take out this amount of insurance by making a single application to any one of the savings insurance banks. This is a distinct advantage saving time and trouble for the applicant, and lessening the amount of work at the banks.

The four banks with insurance departments are Whitman Savings Bank Whitman: People's Savings Bank, Brockton; Berkshire County Savings Bank, Pittsfield; City Savings Bank of Pittsfield and these banks are issuing various forms of life insurance, such as straight life, twenty payment life and twenty year endowment policies.

Olympic "46"---$1375

Four Cylinders

Both Models Center Control. Left Drive. Both Fully Equipped

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars— you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

Into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size—built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, stream-line body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 331/3 to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous. It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season, it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep—no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

BUILD NOW MOVEMENT

SPECIAL EDITION

QUINCY CITIZENS IN FAVOR OF BUILD NOW MOVEMENT

Point Out That Proposition is Good Business

The citizens of Quincy appear to be unanimously in favor of the "Build Now" movement which is advocated in the big special edition of the Ledger today and which is designed to aid the unemployed and the employer. A number of representative citizens were seen by Ledger reporters and went on record in favor of the movement. These men pointed out that it was a common sense, businesslike move, that labor and capital were available at reasonable rates and that it was good business policy to take advantage of the situation. A number of the views follow:

MAYOR CHESTER I CAMPBELL.

"Build Now" and keep eternally at it should be the motto of every business man in Quincy. Don't let this "Build Now" movement which is being stimulated by The Ledger become a temporary affair for we have plenty of room to grow and Now is the Time to start to build up our beautiful city. The Ledger deserves great praise for their effort to arouse the citizens to "Build Now." At this time when the country seems to be depressed in certain lines of business the man who contemplates building a new home or a new factory and has the money to do it with can save money if he "Builds Now." Incidentally he will be contributing towards the welfare and happiness of some of our citizens who are not so well off in this world's goods.

Quincy needs to be aroused and The Ledger is going after the "Build Now" plan, with the proper spirit. Our banks are loaded down with money that is out of a job. Some of this money would be building now in interest if we could stimulate our citizens to "Build Now."

The hot summer months are not far away and thousands of persons who are housed in hot, congested sections of Boston paying enormous rents could be induced to come to Quincy to live where there is plenty of green grass, cool ocean breezes, bathing and a chance to commune with nature if this story was brought home to them in a forceful manner. We should "Build Now" plans to bring these persons to Quincy. We should not sit down and wait for them to accidently discover the natural advantages of living in this city.

It would be a big publicity campaign after these prospects. Every man in Boston who has a family is one of our prospects. We can show him the correct way to live.

A campaign of this sort could be conducted with very little expense and every citizen in Quincy could do his share. We have thousands who go to business in Boston every day. Every one of these men and women should appoint themselves as a committee of one to induce some friend or business acquaintance to come here to live.

We might set apart a "Visiting Day" and every person who could afford it could keep open house and entertain Boston friends. They could be taken about the city and shown the natural advantages and the first class transportation system could be explained along with the fact that our schools and other municipal institutions are up to a very high standard. I feel pretty sure that this would be the means of a sudden influx of new families that would be most desirable citizens.

It would be a big publicity campaign for the City of Quincy. It would be an endless chain and we would be bound to profit by it. It would start a might "Build Now" movement that would bring revenue to every merchant in the city.

The Ledger has got the seed planted and the plant is sprouting and it is up to the hustling Board of Trade and real estate men to get together and map out a campaign. Action is what we need. We will never get results unless something is started. We have hundreds of acres of de-

BUY NOW

If you ever patronized a bakery, and if you didn't, now is certainly the time. Why? Because you can get more value for your money than you ever got before. Some people believe (and it may be you Madam) that on account of the flour agitation, that now is the time to buy flour and bake your own bread. Now don't you think that is absurd? It might be well to bake your bread when flour is cheap, even then it's a question. Come Now Madam.

WALL PAPER MEASUREMENTS

You can easily ascertain how many rolls of wall paper may be required for a room or for your whole house by saving the following for reference:

Paper 18 inches wide which is the width most commonly used, contains eight lineal yards to the roll.

Paper 30 inches wide, which is the widest made except upon special orders, contains five lineal yards to the roll.

In rooms of ordinary height paper 18 inches wide will usually cut three trips to the roll, or six to the double-roll.

In the same rooms paper 30 inches wide will cut not more than two strips to the roll and four to the double-roll

An exception to the above is in cases where no matching is necessary, when an extra strip of the 18-inch may frequently be obtained from a roll, providing the room is not more than seven feet high from top to baseboard to ceiling, or to bottom of border if a border is used.

Measured around the room, skipping doors and windows; divide the distance by the width of the paper you intend to use to get the number of full strips you require; then add one full strip for each door and window, which will usually allow sufficient length for the space above and below the windows and above the doors. Having ascertained the number of strips required, compute the number of rolls required from the figures given above.

It is always well to order an extra double-roll for each room, as in most stores it will be taken back if not needed. Having it on hand if needed may save much delay and expense in the hanging.

BRIEFS

The annual ball of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows will be held next week Thursday at Music hall.

The many friends of James H. Lalley who fractured his leg some weeks ago will be pleased to learn that he is doing well and expects to be able to return home at an early date.

Edward Richardson, a well known veteran Grand Army man, still remains seriously ill at his home. He is in almost a helpless condition and is obliged to have a nurse with him at all times.

The committee on finance of the city council will meet Thursday and Friday evening and probably several evenings next week in order that they may report the budget at the next meeting of the council, March 15.

The state examiner of parties receiving state and military aid, completed his examination Tuesday. These examinations are held every two years. It is expected that the city may take steps at an early date to examine persons receiving soldiers relief.

Work on the new Masonic Temple at Wollaston is going on apace. There was a little hold up in the construction of the building early in the year but inspection by a state expert found nothing wrong and things are going along smoothly now.

The time for filing applications for permits to transport liquor and for license to collect junk expires first Monday in April, and the next meeting of the council will probably see the usual large number of these applications filed.

BUILDING NOT BY ANY MEANS INACTIVE IN QUINCY EVEN TODAY

Every Ward In City Shows More or Less Activity

One only need spend a few hours in making a trip about the city to be convinced that the citizens of Quincy believe in the now popular phase "Build Now". In every part of the city one will find scenes of activity. Not only are there many private residences now in the process of construction but one will also find that there are a number of what might be called public buildings.

See a real estate man and it is nine chances to one that he will at first answer, "Nothing doing. Business quiet." Pin him right down to hard facts and he will admit that business, while seemingly a little quiet is really active at the present time and has been for a year past, especially in regard to new buildings.

While there are still some houses bearing the "To Let" sign, it is a fact that where two months ago there were many vacant houses, they are scarce today, that is desirable tenements.

It will be surprising doubtless to many to learn that during the year 1914 the inspector of buildings issued 835 building permits of all kinds involving an expenditure of $1,417,443. Of the total, $954,590 was for dwellings and cottages.

Every ward in the city is showing activity along the building line, particularly in the Wollaston Park, Norfolk Downs and Atlantic districts. The slacking off of work at the Fore River last year made realty business a little quiet for a time but of late business here has taken an upward start and today workmen are flocking back to Quincy and are seeking homes in this city.

The churches have been particularly active, last year and at present, no less than five churches are now building additions. The new churches include the Catholic church at Quincy Point about ready for consecration, and a new church at Bethel beach, which was dedicated early in the summer season.

Among the churches that have built or are now building additions are the Wollaston Congregational, parish house; Wollaston Unitarian, parish house; St. Chrysostoms, parish house; Swedish Lutheran, Sunday school room; Finnish Congregational, addition to main church building.

Among the business blocks erected or now being erected might be mentioned the business block of Henry L. Kincaide, on Hancock street and the new block on the Packard estate on Hancock street being erected by J. Silverman.

In the Quincy Point section are three large storehouses on the property of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, while in the Wollaston district are the granolithic units of the Pneumatic Scale Co. near the Norfolk Downs depot. The paint manufactory building of the Thatcher-Means Co. is also near the Norfolk Downs depot, while along the boulevard at Atlantic is the manufacturing building of the McLarren Rubber Co.

Another new building is the four room addition to the Houghs Neck school and in course of erection on Beale street, near the corner of Hancock street, is the new Masonic Temple, being built by Wollaston Masonic lodge.

If one will but visit the office of the inspector of buildings at City Hall and glance over the books showing the number of building permits issued

THE BUILD NOW MOVEMENT

What is the Build Now movement?

It is a movement inspired by dictates of humanity and common sense.

It is a movement designed not only to help those who are suffering from the unusual conditions of an extraordinary era but also to take advantage of those unusual conditions.

Humanity demands that we do something for those who, in great number through no fault of their own, are suffering from the curse which the Great War has brought. We can give them money, and in some cases should. We should see that they are housed and fed. But that is charity and most of these men and women who are out of work do not want charity, they want work. The free city employment office is doing much to bring the man and the job together, but, unfortunately, there are not enough jobs to go round. The Build Now movement is designed to provide more jobs.

And in no sense will the jobs thus provided be charity. The benefits to the unemployed will be little greater than the benefits to the employer. The employer will be able to pick from an ample market at reasonable terms. He can be fairly sure of an absence of labor troubles. Strikes are very unlikely when the ranks of the employees can be so easily filled.

In the early months of the war money was "tight" but today this is not so. There is an abundance of capital available on reasonable terms to the man who can give fair security. The local banks will aid local builders.

Most building materials can be secured for reasonable prices. The mild weather which has been with us during the past few weeks, with the exception of a few cold snaps, is favorable to excavation. The owners of the new block of stores being erected on the Packard estate might have waited until more peaceful times before erecting their building. They are to be commended for not doing so.

There is every indication that it is not only human but sound business policy to Build Now.

PLANNING WITH WISDOM

Our Western cities differ so greatly in their street plans from the Eastern ones that a Westerner can get confused in an Eastern city if he walks only "two blocks." In the West everyone knows which direction is east or north, etc., and they give their directions by so many blocks south, so many west, etc., whereas here we should have to say so many "looks" perhaps or so many feet.

A great many Western cities, however make a great mistake in laying out their etties with parallel streets according to a modern writer. The ideal system worked out by the best city planners is one resembling a spider's web. This is all very well for the middle west where the ground is even, but in the east it would be practically impossible with our hills, valleys, rivers, etc.

It seems a pity that in founding a town our forefathers didn't think of posterity and leave us some decently wide streets. This is a lament often heard, but are we profiting by their mistakes and making streets wide enough and straight enough for our children's children?

In Europe it is easy to trace the origin of the narrow streets in Mediaeval cities. For protection they had to build a wall round the town and as this was expensive and hard work, they crowded their dwellings into the smallest area possible. But we have no such excuse to hand down in history if we leave narrow, crooked streets to our future generations.

As important, if not more important, is the housing problem. It is deplorable that America, a comparatively new nation, has housing conditions just as bad as Europe. America in her cities has spacious one family residences and crowded tenement districts. In Europe the large many family house is the prevailing type. It must be said however, that in our newer cities the type of houses being erected is more and more the two or three family house.

Although Quincy has not the problems of the housing of hundreds in crowded tenement districts yet it is interesting to note that in Berlin an investigation was made of her housing conditions, and it was found that one eighteenth of her population were "one-room" dwellers and that they suffered nearly one-half the total number of deaths.

Quincy is undoubtedly growing in population, and as she grows she must consider her future housing problems. It would be well for her to take the advice Rome has offered the world. When the capital moved from Turin to Rome the natural consequence was that crowds poured into the new capital and the city administration took matters into their hands and superintended all constructions.

Washington, D. C., has a similar problem after the Civil War. Slaves, deserting their plantations came to Washington, built shacks and shanties, regardless of health or sanitation. Congress, after the small pox epidemic of 1872, awoke to the need and started an investigation which resulted in a corporation forming, which built two-flat sanitary houses.

Pollock and Morgan in their book on "Modern Cities" have the following suggestions to make:—

"Comparatively few municipalities have done constructive work in solving the housing problem. Most of them have established a building code and stopped there. Considerable discussion has arisen —concerning the type of house best suited for the homes of working people of moderate means. Three distinct types are advocated. First the detached cottage with lawn and garden." The article then says that those who advocate this claim better light and air, those opposed claim the working-man is too tired to work about the place, and there the yard would become a rubbish hole.

"Second, the two-story block house. —A house of this kind is much warmer, and more easily cared for than the detached house,— those who object to it say that it is entirely lacking from the aesthetic point of view. It is probable that, all things considered, this type offers more comfort for the amount the workman pays in rent than the ordinary flat or detached house."

"The third type (the apartment houses) with respect to sanitation is equal if not superior to the others. They have everything that could be desired in the way of light and ventilation."

So, if we are to BUILD NOW, let us stop to think, and build wisely with an eye to Quincy's future.

sirable vacant land to "Build Now" upon. The Ledger should have the cooperation of every citizen in the city.

I am genuinely enthusiastic over The Ledger's "Build Now" plan. Any movement that aims to improve our city and add to the happiness and prosperity of our citizens has my approval and my cooperation. Mere words will not help. We must get out and hustle for the prospective home seeker who will require new homes which means more work for our people and increased revenue to our merchants.

EDWARD J. FEGAN.

Edward J. Fegan, president of the Quincy Board of Trade says:

"The public-spirited people of Quincy need only to have pointed out to them the opportunity of doing public service in order for them to respond generously and nobly, and certainly there is no better opportunity of doing the greatest civic good than in co-operating in the laudable and praiseworthy campaign of "Build Now."

"At no time in the current year will the countless wage earners of our city need remunerative employment more than now, after a winter which has been signalized by unprecedented curtailment of business and industry and consequent lack of work and unemployment.

"Here, then, is an occasion for the more fortunate, who have been blessed with more than their fellowmen, rendering a splendid account of their stewardship by utilizing that wealth in promoting and developing building operations in our city, which while they enhance the value of their own properties, will beautify our municipality and promote the welfare, the happiness and the prosperity of the working people in our community by affording them employment.

"Again, at no period of the year will prospective investors have a larger supply of efficient workers or a more ready and economical market for supplies. The men with services to sell and the dealers with materials to dispose of are impelled by the same desire, to turn them into ready cash even at a slight discount. So that even from a mere mercenary standpoint the time is most advantageous for activity in the building line.

"And when I speak of building, I by no means limit it to house building. This "Build Now" campaign means just as certainly building new roads rebuilding existing streets, building new schoolhouses, building our boulevard, building new docks, building quarry railroads, building new factories, and building up and enlarging present industries.

"Therefore, let all Quincy-loving people interest themselves and do what they can to advance it. While they are building let them not fail to o their share in building up the Board of Trade, which is unselfishly doing all it can all the time to build up Quincy. Build Now!

JOHN O'HARA.

I would like to endorse your movement of the "Build Now" proposition.

There are many good men who desire work and need it and this movement will give them the opportunity.

I think a great many people have no idea of the distress for lack of employment which exists at the present time and has continued for many weeks during the past winter.

The cry and claim of good business activity is not warranted by the facts and any proposed plan that will relieve the enforced idleness will be a blessing.

If you are contemplating building or making any improvements in the name of humanity start right now!

Materials can be bought lower, the dealers claim, and the weather is unusually favorable for this time of year. The banks have money if you need to borrow. Don't delay. Start now.

WILLIAM A. BRADFORD.

Of late there has been a great deal of agitation and comment in the papers in regard to the "Build Now" movement. While I feel this is a highly commendable movement, and one in which I personally should want to co-operate with and work for, yet I feel some of the statements which have appeared in the papers are misleading especially in my line of work.

There recently appeared in one of the prominent Boston papers of the morning issue an article by a Mr. Saxe calling the attention of the people to the fact that they could save from 10 per cent to 15 per cent on plumbing. A careful perusal of that article would show that any saving that was to be made must come through the contractor, not through the jobber or material man, as one might be led to believe. However, without dashing cold water on any worthy project, I want to go on record as saying that at this time plumbing material is no cheaper than it was a year ago, or some time previous to that date, nor is there any likelihood of its being cheaper.

The present metal market is very firm and, as metal enters into the production of practically everything we use, namely lead, zinc, copper, iron, etc., the tendency would be toward an advance in manufactured material rather than a reduction. Conditions on the other side of the water have created a great demand for metals and at this time zinc, one of the constituent parts of every manufactured piece of brass, has reached a stage where it is higher than at any time in its history. In consequence of this, brass pipe has advanced, brass fittings have advanced, galvanized iron sheets (which are coated with molten zinc) as well as galvanized iron pipe have advanced sharply. Within the last week the iron market has begun to show a little more activity and wrought iron pipe has advanced. But the only thing I can cite which has shown any reduction at all is the bath tub and on this article there has been a reduction of practically one dollar which now enables a person to get a guaranteed tub for practically the same price as a non-guaranteed or competition tub. It should be borne in mind that this reduction was not made owing to any change in the metal market but solely to try and eradicate the non-guaranteed tub from the market.

Our line of business has kept abreast of the times in the way of advancement and it is now possible to obtain the white crockery tanks which everyone so much admires, for practically the same price as the better grade of lined wooden tanks. I might go on indefinitely and enumerate a great number of things which have changed, but I know your space is limited. To my mind the opportunity of which people should avail themselves at this time is the fact that men, who are ordinarily busy, now have more personal time to devote to the detail of their work, and that they may secure the services of better mechanics at this time when there is a surplus of men idle than they would at a busy time when all building operations are active and contractors are working under high pressure with a deficit of good mechanics.

I can only add in closing that, if anyone is working under the delusion that manufacturers in this line of business are handing out their material or merchandise at greatly reduced prices they should become better acquainted with the facts that they may not be led into a misunderstanding of the present business condition. At this period of the year business is no different, in my estimation, than it has been every year in this locality at this time and it is barely possible that people might be able to secure a sharper competitive price than they would later in the season. However, they should weigh carefully the question of cheaper or inferior goods and poor workmanship to offset the variance in figures which is brought about by sharp competitive bidding.

FRED L. ZOLLER.

The Ledger Man interviewed Mr Fred L. Zoller of the Granite Shoe Store and some facts in regard to the shoe industry were shown. The consensus of opinion is that shoes will never be lower and if you contemplate buying footwear you are perfectly safe in buying now.

A fact that is not generally known is hat 75 per cent of all the upper leather used here is imported from Europe and the war has done much to cut off this supply and the high price of leather is warranted to a great extent by the scarcity of material.

Professor Fisher of Yale University made the statement a few days ago that leather prices will continue to rise for fifteen years or more. Mr. Zoller, who has been in the shoe business for over thirty years, in the wholesale end, on the road, and for the past fifteen years in the retail business in Quincy, says that prices are higher today than at any time for thirty years and are going higher.

Every order placed today is placed at an advance in price so manufacturers to maintain quality must charge an advance.

This does not apply so much to factories making shoes for "sales" and alleged "sample shoe stores" as these manufacturers carry all their real leather in the office safe.

Fabric tops will be the vogue this spring and this will relieve the upper leather famine some, but however largely fabrics are used they will only help a little. Coltskin and patent colt come from Russia and this supply has been almost wholly cut off; patent kid and vici will be used as a substitute, but even kidskins

SOME INTERESTING FIGURES

Prof. M. Z. Guyer of the University of Wisconsin, in an address on eugenics and the relation of state to defectives, made these statements:

Twenty-five per cent of the victims of white slavery are feebleminded.

Forty to sixty per cent. of women in immoral lives are feebleminded.

Thirty-three to sixty per cent of delinquent girls under detention are feebleminded.

Twenty-five per cent. of inmates of penal institutions are feebleminded

Forty-three per cent. of the insane are of foreign birth.

More immigrants arrived at New York in 1912 than the birth rate of the entire state of New York.

Sixteen per cent. of the inmates of penal and charitable institutions of Wisconsin are feebleminded.

The number of inmates of hospitals for the insane in the United States exceeds the number of students in all colleges and universities.

The number of inmates of asylums for the insane of this country exceeds the number of officers and enlisted men in the army, navy and militia.

He said the various methods of correction that had been suggested included permanent segregation, more rigid laws of marriage, sterilization, permanent custody and education.

IRISH STRONG IN QUINCY IN 1875

Old Erin well represented in Quincy according to the 1875 census given in Pattee's history. Out of 2377 souls more than half, 1390, claimed Ireland as their birthplace. Canada had 427 representatives. England had 185 and Scotland 143. Germany was rather weak, only 19 males and 14 females being from the kaiser's domain.

It is expected that the mayor will hear from the civil service examinations of the policemen who are seeking promotion in a few days. When these are received the promotion to the office of lieutenant and sergeant will be made. There is considerable speculation as to who will get the plums.

is before the House of Public Opinion. The question is shall we remain idle or shall we go to work.

Are you ready for the question.

MR. FOOLISH:—I believe, Mr. Chairman that we should not go to work yet. We do not know the future. We don't know who will win in the great war. The Germans may take the United States. Politics is unsettled and money is tight. Mr. Chairman I hope my opinion will prevail.

MR. UNDECIDED:—Mr. Chairman I move the Resolution be laid on the table seconded by Mr. EVERYTHING and NOBODY—Motion lost.

MR. ACTIVE INTELLIGENCE:—Mr. Chairman with due respect for the opinions of the previous speakers which no doubt are sincere from their points of view, yet I can not remain silent when I know that their opinions do not stand the test of reason. I am sorry that time and space do not permit me to go into this question to the extent I wish to. So I have to confine myself to very few remarks.

FEAR is the grestest enemy of mankind. The greatest hindrance in the way of human progress. It is the most contagious disease known Its germ is the most deadly and the most difficult to subdue. In the degree we are afflicted in that degree we are miserable. I have been unable to reason out a single thing for which it is good. It can be cured to a great degree by the intelligent application of the mind. The FEAR of not succeeding has eliminated the chance of many. We need courage to do something the other fellow doesn't dare to do. We need imagination to see things that are not before our eyes and we need faith in the future. If we do something while others are idle we will certainly be ahead of the game. For these and many other reasons Mr. Chairman I believe we ought to work and BUILD—BUY and SELL the necessities of life. I move Mr. Chairman that the resolution be now put. Motion carried. ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED NOT SMALL IN QUINCY

Many Skilled Workers, Both Men and Women, Out of Work

That there is a large army of unemployed in Quincy at the present time is evident by the unusual number of men seen daily about the streets and by the many applications received by employers of labor from men seeking work of any kind that will enable them to earn a few dollars. Work the past winter has been unusually quiet in the granite industry which has resulted in throwing a large number of granite cutters out of employment. These men are not idle today from choice for they will gladly take anything in the line of employment.

Of course there is always a certain class of unemployed men but usually this class is not what might be called skilled labor. Today however there are many skilled workers who are out of employment, and who are willing to take work of any kind to tide them over until their particular line of business revives. At the office of the overseer of the poor at city hall it is said that the applications for temporary aid during the past winter has been unusually large. Of course where possible the poor department has endeavored to obtain employment for many of the applicants for aid, and since the official employment bureau was established a large number were furnished with an opportunity to work.

As is well known the city some weeks ago established what is known as an employment bureau at city hall, which is in charge of Clyffeton W. Hill. Mr. Hill has established an office in room 11 in the basement and here any day one may find both men and women registering their names for work.

Some of these of course have registered for a particular line of work, such as carpenters, machinists, painters, plumbers, etc. By far the larger part of those registered however are asking for labor of any kind and at the present time he has the names of nearly two hundred who desire work of some kind. In the cases of some men skilled in a particular line he has been able to find positions for them, but until it becomes well instilled into the minds of those contemplating work of various kinds that this is the opportune time to begin their projects there is bound to be a large number out of work.

Many of those registered are men who in good times command good wages but who from enforced idleness during the past few months are now reduced to such circumstances that they are willing to take any kind of work at a much lower rate of compensation than usual.

One man who had quite an extensive repairing job to be done said that he was surprised to find how much lower he could get the work done than he had anticipated. "Why," said this man: "the price which was named for the work was fully thirty per cent less than what I could ordinarily get the work done for in good times, and I am glad that I had it done now."

This job was one where carpenters were required and the result was that a number of men were given several weeks employment.

A visit through the granite section finds many of the sheds practically idle while the streets are filled with men who will gladly take any kind of work offered, even to doing work with a pick and shovel which is the hardest kind of work. Is this therefore not an incentive to "Build Now."

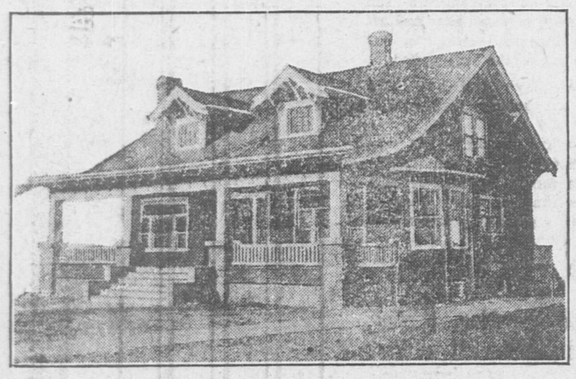
COMBINATION VIEW OF LIVING ROOM AND DINING ROOM EXTENSION

Design 1071, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.



PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

INTERIOR VIEW—LIVING AND DINING ROOM.

This house is artistic both as to the exterior and interior. Dark brown siding with white trim and the main roof sweeping over the front piazza give a very graceful effect. The living room and dining room are finished in dark oak, with beamed ceiling. Ionic columns extending to the ceiling give a classic and substantial effect to the division between the living and dining room. Both rooms are well provided with windows, those of the entrance being leaded. Size, 40 feet wide by 32 feet deep. First story 9 feet in the clear, second story 8 feet, basement 7 feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $4,000.

Upon receipt of $1 the publisher of this paper will furnish a copy of Saxton's book of plans, "American Dwellings." It contains 310 designs costing from $1,000 to $6,600; also a book of interiors, $1 per copy.

Sole leather has jumped in price to almost double the price of ten years ago. Altogether you are perfectly safe in buying all the shoes you need now, as the chances are they will never be as low in price again. The Granite Shoe Store offers some good shoes at special prices in another column; these prices are made to reduce stock to make room for new goods and they are real bargains.

WM. H. TEASDALE.

William H. Teasdale, president of the Hancock Realty Co. of West Quincy says:

"West Quincy has many advantages to further the "Build Now" movement Among those I might mention are good train service, with 18 trains between Quincy and Boston, and exceptional land for building in a most desirable location which can be purchased for 5 cents a foot. Five minutes walk from the station, the Metropolitan Park Reservation with its beautiful walks to the Blue Hills. If one desires to "Build Now," which I strongly advise, buildings can be built at a saving of at least ten percent. I therefore say with all seriousness "Build Now."

JOSEPH L. WHITON.

Joseph L. Whiton, president of the city council, who assumed the office of mayor on the death of Mayor Miller late last year says:

"It would seem that at this particular time the "Build Now" campaign could be embraced with good results. The new Fire Hazard rules particularly on garages, will probably soon be enforced, and with so many unemployed about us that this is the opportune time for those automobile owners who will be obliged to make changes to conform to the new rules to do so now, or at least as soon as the cold weather will permit."

R. A. GROSSMAN.

"Build Now" and make money, for never again in 1915 will building supplies be any cheaper than they are at the present time, says L. Grossman & Sons the progressive building supply dealers of South Quincy. We have just received several carloads of Knickerbocker Cement, Roofing Papers, Shingles, Metal laths, corrugated iron roofing, nails and metal ceilings at such unheard of low prices that we are desirous of giving our customers the benefit of them provided they "Build Now," said Reuben A. Grossman of the firm.

Our store house on Federal avenue contains a larger stock than any similar establishment in Norfolk County. Our stock is as complete as can be had, and contains everything needed for the building of a house store, garage, bungalow or building of any description. Our products are of the best and fully guaranteed, and if not as represented we will gladly refund the purchase price.

We always carry in stock a full supply of the above mentioned articles including one of the finest lines of Builders hardware to be seen south of Boston. Our prices are as low as anything can be bought in the city of Boston.

"Build Now" and you will be able to put from 5 to 12 per cent into your pocket. Is this not worth considering? The one who builds now is performing a double good, one in saving himself a substantial sum the other in helping the unemployed. Consult with the building expert of L. Grossman & Sons who will tell you something of advantage.

HENRY L. KINCAIDE.

The "Build Now" slogan has the right sort of a ring. Labor will never cost less. Building materials will be no cheaper and land in Quincy available for building purposes will steadily increase in value. No investment that can be made is safer and surer than real estate, developed on sound lines.

Quincy is suffering today for workingmens homes—plain, neat, simple three to five room homes that will rent from $12 to $15 per month. Hundreds of such houses can be built and will rent before completion. The greatest drawback our shipbuilding plant has to contend with today is to find popular, priced homes for its workingmen and their families. To the investor or investors [illegible] will take hold of this proposition on a large scale a wonderful opportunity for making money exists, and arrangements might be made to have rents secured by the local plant.

Acres and acres of available and suitable land for such development exist in ideal locations, that can be secured at a few cents per foot. For the small investor who has a thousand dollars earning four per cent, or $40 per year, a splendid opportunity exists right here in Quincy to build now and make the $40 income increase three fold.

Quincy needs modern brick apartment houses, such as have been erected in Boston and greater Boston within the past few years. Kitchenette apartments, steam heated, are growing more in demand by the family in moderate circumstances.

Land is available at low prices for this development. It costs no more to build here than in Boston and with cheaper land to build upon the investor can see a larger return.

Quincy is an ideal place to live in What suburb can offer such a variety of sites, for homes—Wollaston, Atlantic, Squantum and Norfolk Downs in close proximity to the boulevard with sea bathing and boating. Third Hill and Presidents Hill with the ocean view on one side and the marvellous haze of the Blue Hills on the other. Quincy Centre, South and West Quincy and Point districts, together with Houghs Neck offer a variety of surroundings to suit people of all tastes and ideals, with good air, plenty of sunshine, and a location handy to Boston. Quincy is an ideal suburb, scarcely appreciated at its full value by so many who reside here today. Quincy has a great future, the investor who has foresight to appreciate this future will "Build Now."

ALVAH A. STINSON.

It is inconceivable that persons intending to build at all should need to be urged to "Build Now," except upon the unspeculative theory, that some men are prone to delay the undertaking of any constructive plan, which necessitates the permanent investment of capital whenever the pie-faced, purple-robed pusillanimous pur-blind, punk princes and bum lords of the royal families of Europe start on a predatory expedition or Shutzenfest debauch, by reason of an over dose of the ambrusial nectar of their ancestral histories.

Such persons are composite-fool and coward, mostly coward! It is such, who regard heat lightning as the wrath of God, and draw their savings deposits to pay their back sew rent. The fear of the coward is the cause of his poverty. The courage of the wise man who "Builds Now" has genius in it. Every industrial and economic condition fairly screams to the builder to "Build Now."

THOMAS SWITHIN.

"Build Now" is the only answer to be given to Quincy and out of town people who are besieging the city for tenements and stores, and the small house is needed and would be the means of further increasing population.

People in the city are running from real estate office to real estate office looking for tenements at moderate rent and the demand is greater than the supply. Residents of adjoining towns and cities seem to make up a greater part of the applicants. Houses can be built cheaper today that at any time within the last year and what building there is, is in Ward one and two, they apparently having the preference.

Out of town banks are calling for Quincy loans and the city stands well with all of the banks of southeastern Massachusetts.

There are not enough stores to meet the constant calls and 20 new ones in City Square could be rented within a day to persons whose names are on the waiting lists of owners and real estate men. I believe that the demand for vacant land is simply a forerunner of bigger building operations. I intend to lend what encouragement I can to "Build Now."

J. HARVEY FIELD.

I don't think any place around here is the equal of Quincy. I have so much faith in the "Build Now" idea that I am now considering, for the very near future, the erection of several houses that will in some way answer the many calls heard from present and prospective residents of the city.

In going about I see a steady and wonderful development in property. A fair assessment and a fair tax rate will be a sure encouragement for active operations. Land prices are reasonable and there is good accommodation everywhere, except in South and West Quincy and this in a way has somewhat hampered the growth of that section.

Our streets in a greater part of the city are in good condition. It is possible to build a little cheaper now than later. I believe Quincy houses have been built too costly.

Reasonable tenements at Quincy Point are a necessity. They will accommodate the many people employed at the Fore River that are obliged to live out of town because housing is not available.

Quincy can be made a wonderful city. I don't favor the erection of four apartment houses, but believe that the proper kind of building should comence now. "Build Now" should be the watchword from now on.

HENRY F. MOSSES.

There is no time like the present for doing those things which should be done. This maxim is especially true at this time for those wishing a home of their own. For some time past the increasing cost of building has been most discouraging to the home builder. Under existing conditions, however, with the price of lumber lower than for some years, an easy money market and plenty of unemployed skilled labor, a material saving can be effected.

The City of Quincy with its sea shore and country combined furnishes one of the most beautiful localities for an all year round residence where home sites can be secured at reasonable cost with steadily increasing values.

There is every season to believe that the present advantageous conditions will create a big boom in building this spring.

JOSEPH A. SEDGWICK.

Why build now? Because the labor required for building is in need of employment and on account of the present inactivity wages are more reasonable than they have been for years also because building materials can be obtained without delay and at low prices.

Why build in Quincy? Because it is the ideal location for the home of a man of moderate income on account of its accessibility to Boston. Quincy is primarily a city of homes as is continually evidenced by the large increasing number of dwelling houses built each year by people who are recognizing the natural advantages of Quincy as a place of residence. What place has any better environment or more wholesome surroundings than this city of ours. All advantages, such as churches, schools, clubs, stores etc., are found here.

To the man who would build a home now, and has a small amount saved towards such an undertaking the co-operative banks stand ready to lend assistance and will advance monty to build with. Over 1,000 heads of families in Quincy are paying for their homes by the co-operative bank method of monthly payments. The number of applications to the co-operative banks for assistance in building homes is continually increasing and it has reached such a condition that the banks are compelled to refuse many deserving applications on account of insufficient funds to fill the demands.

If the people of Quincy want to assist the "Build Now" idea they cannot do it in any better way than to become depositors in the co-operative banks of the city, which banks loan to people who are wanting to build and establish homes in our city.

Every month the co-operative bank is helping some person to buy his home or is making it possible for the renter to become an owner on the payment of about the same amount monthly as he was paying for rent. Every depositer in a co-operative bank becomes a shareholder. There are no preferred shares, all share alike in the profits. The rate of dividend of the Quincy banks have averaged not less than 5 1-2 per cent. for several years.

Help the "Build Now" movement by placing your monthly savings in a co-operative bank where your money is safe and draws a good rate of interest and at the same time provides funds which can be loaned to Quincy home builders.

CHESTER E. TENNEY.

When interviewed by The Ledger Chester E. Tenney manager of the Quincy Lumber Co., expressed his confidence that the "Build Now" movement had already reached Quincy. He stated that there has been much building in the last few years and today the demand is as great as ever. "The city isn't going, or standing still, it's coming," he declared.

"The natural upward trend in the price of lumber, due to scarcity of standing timber and increased cost of manufacturing, has been temporarily arrested by general business conditions. In my opinion you are seeing the last of the present level of prices. England is buying spruce in tremendous quantities and with a normal amount of building in this country prices are bound to advance.

Quincy has had a gradual but consistent growth during the last few years and from our observations there is to be considerable building this year. If anyone contemplates building at all in the next few years he would in my opinion be able to secure more for his money right now than he would six months hence.

W. G. SHAW.

The "Build Now" proposition is one that must be faced squarely because the conditions demand that something of this nature go into effect immediately. The matter is a serious one if we are to consider the needs of a growing city.

Daily, young married couples from Quincy and surrounding cities and towns come here in search of houses, or tenements which can be secured at moderate rent. Several have become discouraged after a fruitless search and the consequence is we have not only lost new residents but business suffers.

Excessive valuations will retard builders from starting operations they may have had in mind and mechanics and journeymen will naturally take it into account before commencing the construction of the frame building he is to call "home." However, there never was a more auspicious time to build and rent than now. The demand has never been so great for all kinds of property.

PLANTING TREES FOR SHADE

By J. W. GRIFFIN.

In selecting a list of trees to plant for shade on your lawn or along the avenue, make a note of the character of the soil and plant accordingly.

If you are contemplating a home in the lowlands, where it is damp and where fogs hang on the better part of the morning, "cut it out," sell out, get out, do anything to get out, and go up higher if possible.

Leave the swampy lands to the fogs and mosquitoes and the fevers.

Make a note of the trees that grow on the hillsides and those that grow on the hilltops. Pick out those that hold their foliage longest, also those whose foliage is healthiest and most dense.

Some advocate spring and some fall planting of fruit and forest trees. I have it that the following gives good results:

Where the trees to be set out are larger than two or three-year-old trees, I dig a hole four feet wide each way and two feet deep some time during the late fall or early winter.

The top soil is thrown on one side, the subsoil on the other.

The combined actions of the rain, freezing and thawing, produce a good effect on the soil thrown out, and upon the sides of the hole.

The trees to be set out are procured during the fall and are heeled in a protected place and are ready at any time they are wanted. A few days of sunshine and windy weather in early spring, put the mounds of earth, beside the holes, in fine shape to put in around the trees.

The trees may be set out two or three weeks before the surrounding soil will do to cultivate.

First, strawy manure is tramped six inches deep in the bottom of the holes, then about six inches of the top soil is thrown in, leaving a little mound in the center of the hole upon which the center or taproot should rest.

The finer, or side roots, are spread out around the little mound, more of the top soil is thrown in and packed tightly around the roots, filling up all air spaces and holding them in proper place.

Next, some rotten straw, not manure, is thrown in, then the rest of the soil is tramped well around the trees. I do not use any manure next to the roots of trees. The manure is scattered around the trees, the rain takes the fertility down to the roots and the solid matter, while rotting, serves as a mulch.

The above method, if closely followed, will take a tree through the first summer, which is the most critical part of the life of a tree.

Get them started right. The way is easy. A bad start causes much trouble and delay.

SOME FLOWER NOTES

The azaleas bloom late in winter.

In the south plant sweet peas and trim roses.

Make out your lists for seeds and plants early.

Plants that are not growing need no fertilizers.

Take no chances in fighting insects; fight to exterminate.

Do not shower plants on cloudy days and keep out of the sun when wet.

A Fine Lot of White Spruce.

PLANT EVERGREENS EARLY

The best time to plant evergreens is early in the spring just when the new season's growth is starting. It is a mistake to plant too early; but if the planting is delayed until June, the trees are not apt to do well unless frequently watered and mulched during the summer months.

Some planting is done in August, but we do not believe an inexperienced person can make his trees grow when planted so late.

Nurseries frequently put out their evergreens in July and August but more from necessity than choice, because they are too busy during the spring months to do required work.

When evergreens are planted late they should be thoroughly watered and a dust mulch maintained around the roots until winter sets in.

It is difficult to tell by the looks of the trees whether they survive during the late summer months or not, as very often they retain their verdure some time after they are dead.

In the spring, however, trees that die turn brown within two or three weeks. The better time to plant evergreens, is, in our opinion, in the spring; and we see no reason why fall planting should be resorted to unless through necessity.

QUINCY CITIZENS

By S. W. Pratt.

"Your "Build Now" proposition is a good one as the slogan is a perfect fit for Quincy with its many opportunities for live ones. There are plenty of reasons to Build Now, none against.

"Materials are cheaper than for two years as evidenced by all the large New England builders. Quincy banker, Trustees and individuals have money for good mortgages and will meet you more than half way on a mutal benefit business proposition. Labor is seeking employment which gives an opportunity of choice.

"Rents are high and a few hundred more houses and business blocks could earn a good income.

"The ever increasing stringency of our building laws, is adding untold and needless cost to every structure. Your only escape from its tolls is to build now. Boston and 32 affiliated unions of carpenters has notified the builders of Quincy of a new wage scale of 61 cents per hour except Saturday which is $1.22 cents per hour. Will Quincy unions slumber? Will they? But building is only one of the links of a chain of opportunities for improvement so let everyone, merchants, tradesmen, investors clubs and societies of all Kinds including churches, each forget their "Build Now" link which shall make 1915 the year of greatest expansion which Quincy has ever had."

HERBERT T. WHITMAN.

"There is no question but what the movement to "Build Now" is being generally taken hold of in Quincy. I do not doubt what there has been more building, in Quincy especially in Wollaston Park district and I do not doubt but what the records of the Inspector of buildings will show this to be a fact. Personally I have sold more land in the last thirty days than for several years. Much of this property is to build upon immediately, both for business purposes and for residences. There is no better time to build than at the present. There is plenty of available land in Wollaston for building purposes that can be purchased for a fair figure and it is a fact, which I personally demonstrated within a few days, that people want work, and that they are willing to take contracts for at least thirty per cent less than usual. In the matter of material, that is also cheaper than it has been and if one can pay cash for material a large saving can be made. Yes, I believe that not only is this the accepted time to build but I believe that people are realizing this and taking advantage of the cheapness of labor and material."

JOHN F. MERRILL.

The "Build Now" movement is certainly one to be urged and encouraged and as one who has been interested in real estate development for some years I can say that in my opinion there was never a time when men with money to invest in building, can proceed with better prospects of realizing on their activities than at present.

"Without any question, whether the war in Europe continues or is ended (unless the improbable happens, and this country becomes involved) we are near a very substantial increase in business and buildings are to be needed for business purposes and for houses so I would say most emphatically, "Build Now" when materials are lower and labor needs employment.

BUILDING NOT INACTIVE

during the past few years he will find that the growth has been steady. The office of the inspector of buildings was established in 1907. During that year 387 permits were issued, involving expenditures totaling $514,597.48. It will be interesting for comparison's sake to take the number of permits issued by this office during the years it has been in existence, with the amount represented by the permits issued. For this reason the following table is given:

Year	No Permits	Estimated Cost
1907	387	$514,597.48
1908	499	713,365.00
1909	614	954,142.00
1910	721	996,129.50
1911	690	1,261,543.00
1912	670	1,272,306.00
1913	685	1,158,022.15
1914	835	1,417,443.00

If we should analyze the 1914 permits we find that of the total 300 were for dwellings and cottages; 98 auto houses; 24 mercantile; 8 manufacturing; 6 stables; 153 alterations; 42 removals and 176 miscellaneous.

Going still further and consulting the table of aggregates made up each year by the assessors we find that the number of dwelling houses in Quincy in 1913 was 7,397 and that in 1914 the total number was 7,563, a gain of 166 during the year 1914. This is far from being a bad showing when the general cry of tightness of the money market and dull business is concerned.

That Quincy is rapidly growing in spite of what some say is an excessive valuation and high tax rate is best shown by the table giving the total valuation of the city every year since the citizens shook off the town form of government and adopted the city form. This table also shows the increase in valuation each year and while it of course does not show what part of the valuation is real and what part personal estate, it can be safely said that there has been no great increase in personal estate.

Therefore taking all in all there can be no question but what the "Build Now" movement is on in Quincy, and knowing ones predict that while building may have been active last year that the coming year will surpass it by many thousands of dollars. It is of course a little early as yet to start in active building but as soon as spring weather comes there is no question but what things will be booming. Labor was never so plentiful as at present, and men are found that are willing to contribute their labor for a reasonable compensation. Then again material has not been as cheap for many years as it is at the present time and while raw material, so to speak, can be bought for considerable less than before the European war began, it is a fact that if one has the cold cash to plank down that raw material may be bought for almost fifty per cent less than a year ago.

Now is the accepted time therefore and you citizens who have had it in mind to build yourself a home or a business block do not delay but strike while the iron is hot. Several large blocks are contemplated for the near future, among which, might be mentioned is the large block of twenty stores that is to be built adjoining the Wollaston depot, and although ground has not as yet been broken two-thirds of the stores have already been engaged.

That building is especially active in Wollaston, is borne out by the recent changes in real estate. There have been a number of changes in the ownership of property all over the section and some changes in large tracts of land. For instance the site which was selected some months ago by the Sachem club upon which to build its proposed clubhouse has changed hands and in the very near future it is announced that Miss McQuade will erect a large and modern apartment house. This will contain a number of apartments with all modern improvements. The building will be of brick and will be a sightly structure.

In addition to this a large tract of land near the corner of Hancock and Beale streets, adjoining the site occupied by the new Masonic Temple now building has passed into other hands and it is announced that work will be commenced at an early date in the erection of a large block of stores on the site, the size of the block is 60 by 1000 feet.

Another new building to be erected in this section is the remodelling of the large stable near the residence of Dr. Zwicker on Freeman street. This property has been acquired by Lora C. Merrill, who last year was Quincys building inspector. Mr. Merrill is to entirely remodel the stable and convert it into a modern dwelling.

PLEDGE STONES FOR CHAPEL

Granite Men Endorse A. B. Hultman's Idea

Plans for the proposed chapel for Mt. Wollaston cemetery are rapidly maturing and granite men in all parts of the city have promised to give one or more stones so that the building of a suitable place to hold funeral services will be possible.

The chapel was proposed by Arthur B. Hultman, shortly after he became a member of the Board of Managers of Public Burial places. He has lost no time in seeking the cooperation of the granite and business men of the city and has met with a good response from many quarters.

Albert H. Wright, designer of several schools of the city, has offered to prepare plans and specifications and expects to have them complete within a few days. Mr. Wright's plan will probably call for a chapel large enough to accommodate 75 or 100 people, the entire building to be of stone. The building will be of Gothic architecture with a pitch roof and will probably be located in the area outside the entrance gates, on the left hand side. The building will have an organ, choir, a minister's room and a separate room for mourners. It is likely that it will also have a receiving vault.

The proposition of Mr. Hultman has met with hearty commendation from people living in Quincy since it has been an accepted belief for years that a structure of this nature should be erected.

A few of the comments contained in letters from men of the city follow:

Walter Deacon & Co.—"The writer feels very proud to see a citizen like yourself advocating a chapel in our cemetery. I have known for a great many years that a chapel in our cemetery was an absolute necessity, but being in the granite business we could not even make a suggestion as someone undoubtedly would be unkind enough to criticise our recommendations. You can rest assured, Mr. Hultman that your project will meet with the approval of every granite man in Quincy. Even if you do not get a response from every dealer, we hope it will not interfere with your carrying out your plans."

Cole & Cole—"We are heartily in favor of a chapel in Mt. Wollaston cemetery and are willing to help as much as possible.. You may count on us to furnish at least one stone."

F. Barnicoat & Son—"I am willing to contribute a stone or two for the chapel you refer to for Mt. Wollaston cemetery. The number of stones will depend on how expensive they will be, as some stones may not cost over $5 while others would cost $50 or over. This of course would depend on the design. It is doubtful if there is sufficient time to complete such a chapel by Memorial day. It would cost a good deal of money to build a good one, appropriate for the Mt. Wollaston cemetery, outside of the stone required. I would advise that the building be large enough to meet the requirements for many years to come, even though it took over a year or more to raise sufficient money to complete the work."

Henry J. Rendle—"In reply to yours of Feb. 8, will say that Rendle and Sundberg retired from the granite business three years ago last October. I am an employee now but am willing to contribute a little time at cutting if it will be of help to you. I think the idea is all right, but it is pretty hard to carry out ideas in Quincy."

Common Quarrying Co., Oscar E. Djerf, manager—"We beg to state we would be pleased to furnish you a few loads of stone for the purpose desired if we have anything you think would be satisfactory."

Richard and Benjamin Bishop—"In regard to the erection of a chapel in the Mt. Wollaston cemetery will say we think it is a good thing and that we will be pleased to help you in the matter as per your request."

ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED

There is plenty of work in sight, a little later on, but that will not relieve the present pressing situation. What is needed is immediate work and one who undertakes improvements or new work at the present time will find plenty of men, and good workmen at that who will jump at the opportunity of obtaining work of any kind.

Much of the present idleness is of course due to the war in Europe, which has worked injury in many ways to people of this country. It has caused some commodities, especially flour, to go to an almost prohibitive price, and is naturally the result of inactivity along many lines.

The banks have plenty of money to loan to those who desire to "Build Now."

OLDEST ENGLISH HOUSE IN U. S.

Dwelling in Virginia Was Erected in 1640

Very few houses built now will be standing centuries hence, as does our oldest English house described in the Marblehead Messenger as follows:

"Data duly recorded in the records of Princess Anne County, Virginia show that the main portion of an old house was erected in 1640 by Adam Thoroughgood. Adam did such a "thorough good" job that not a brick has been loosened by the elements in that stout old wall since it was built 273 years ago. It is without doubt the oldest house of English construction in America. The builder came to America in the year 1626 nineteen years after Jamestown was founded. He was an influential man, both in England and in America and was granted large tracts of land on the southern shore of Chesapeake Bay, and this old house is on a portion of the original grant from the English king. Loopholes in the end walls and dormer windows in the roof enabled the occupants to observe the approach of individuals with hostile intent, and the thick walls afforded protection from attacks."

THE RAILWAY LABORATORY.

Its Purpose Is To Promote Safety And Efficiency.

An interesting but inconspicuous adjunct of some railroads today is the railroad laboratory. Generally tucked away amid grimy shop buildings without any external evidence of its character or purpose, the railroad laboratory nevertheless performs a most useful function, ever growing more important as the railroad practices economy and at the same time seeks to give safe and proper service.

While not all railroads have as yet adopted the practice of maintaining their own laboratories, the New Haven for some years has possessed such an institution, completely equipped for making both chemical and physical tests and manned by a staff of expert chemists and physicists, graduates of the leading technical schools of the country. This laboratory is located near its shops at New Haven.

An idea of the scope of the New Haven's laboratory may be gained from the fact that the milk and ice cream served in the dining cars are tested here, as well as the steel from which axles, wheels and cars are made, the air brake hose so vital to safety, the coal consumed in the locomotives, and the creosoted ties under the rails, to mention only a few of the things tested.

About 10,000 tests were made in a year of this laboratory's operations. They ran all the way from pencils to locomotive piston rods, from milk to paint.. Being both a physical and a chemical laboratory, an iron bar can be tested in it for its tensile power and drinking water for its impurities. The safety principle may be involved in both.

Many millions of dollars' worth of supplies are bought in a year by a railroad like the New Haven. Not only is it of the highest importance from the viewpoint of safety that many of these materials should be up to the standard dictated by safety, but it is also essential, particularly in these hard times, that the railroad should be sure that it is getting the most value for its money. The work of the railroad laboratory covers therefore an ever widening field.

The value and usefulness of the New Havens laboratory is shown in no better way from the standpoint of public interest than in the tests made of the drinking water served on the trains. Much of this water comes from cities along the line whose sources of supply are under rigid municipal supervision, but at many points on the system drinking water has to be obtained from the company's own wells. Samples of the water from each well secured by chemists sent out by the laboratory are subjected to a complete chemical and bacteriological examination in order to make sure that the water from these places is suitable and safe for drinking purposes. The same is true of all water used by employees of the company in shops and other places not supplied by city water. Similar analyses are made of the ice bought under contract for the coolers.

Nor does the laboratory's interest in the drinking water question end here. Not long ago the chemists of the laboratory made an investigation to determine whether or not the method of cleaning the water containers insured them against contamination. At the end of a day's run these containers are taken out of the cars and placed over a jet of live steam until the whole interior is heated to a temperature of about 230 degrees. The investigation showed that this not only thoroughly cleansed the containers without allowing the hands to come in contact with them, but that it was also calculated to kill all harmful bacteria.

Another useful purpose to which this laboratory has been put has been the testing of the air in the cars and the working of the ventilators adopted by the road. These tests were conducted on certain trains by physicists attached to the laboratory. Thermometers were placed through a car and the temperature taken every five minutes to get an average. The number of cubic feet of air admitted and exhausted by the ventilators was taken by a recording device and the number of times a car was filled and emptied of fresh air in an hour thus determined. Samples of the air in the cars were taken at frequent intervals and analyzed for carbon dioxide. These tests covered a whole year and showed that the ventilators in use completely fulfilled their purpose.

Naturally the great bulk of the work of a laboratory such as the New Haven road maintains comes in examining the materials which enter into the structure of the railroad and its rolling stock and equipments of all kinds. This field of investigation covers many parts of the country where material is being turned out, the laboratory acting as the headquarters for the field forces.

Stationed permanently at such points as Boston, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are field inspectors, who are constantly making tests of such materials as they are turned out in the mills and seeing whether or not they conform to the specifications drawn up by the Engineer of Tests.

For example, take the axles for steel cars. The company having the order to fabricate the cars may have Pittsburgh mill. A copy of the axle ordered the axles for them made in a order is sent to the laboratory, which in turn forwards it to the company's inspector in the Pittsburgh district. It is then his duty to see that the axles are of proper quality.

As the axles leave the great steam hammers in their rough state specimens of the steel are taken out by the inspector by means of a hollow drill and these are tested by him right at the mill. These specimens must represent every batch of steel from which any of the axles are being made. If they meet the required tests the axles are then stamped with the inspector's private mark. All steel, lumber, glass lighting fixtures, heating apparatus, seats, plush, asbestos board and other parts which go to make up the car in its finished state are inspected in this manner by the field inspectors.

ILLUMINATION FOR THE HOME.

Why is the use of glasses so frequent at the present time, as compared with only a few years ago? Perhaps the chief cause is the ignorant or careless adjustment of the light to the reading or working position. This is particularly true in the large modern office, where the chief thought in the arrangement of the desks for clerks and stenographers is economy in floor space. Proper illumination of this work is of secondary importance. Not every desk can be placed by a window, and usually windows will be found only on one side of a room, or at the end, so that ample provision has to be made for artificial lighting.

Strong and even illumination is necessary. Desk lamps should be thoroughly screened so that they cannot shine into anybody's eyes. They should be so placed that there is no shadow of the hand or pen on the paper when writing. A frosted globe gives a softer light than the ordinary unfrosted globe, and a 16 candle-power lamp usually gives sufficient illumination for the ordinary desk work. Too strong a light is just as trying to the eyes as too weak an illumination. A north light is the best, being soft and steady.

All desks near windows should be so placed that the light comes from the left side. The old rule given for reading and writing, that the light should come obliquely over the left shoulder, well illustrates ordinary requirements. In the modern home the incandescent electric lamps hold first place as an illuminant. They should always, however, be furnished with ground bulbs, or, better, so shaded as greatly to reduce their otherwise very high intrinsic brilliancy.

Where the mantle gas burners are used they should always be shaded, both to reduce the brilliancy and to modify the hue of the light, unless some of the recent mantles, giving an amber tone to the light, are available.

TEMPERATE BARKEEPER.

A man who has been all his life in the liquor business, a wholesale whiskey dealer, was talking of the drinking habit the other day.

"I never take a drink myself," he said.

"Why?"

"I've tried both ends of the game—I've sold the stuff and I've drunk more than my share of it. I thought I was having a great time and that I had to drink because all my friends did. I just got tired of it and quit. And I've quit for good. I can't express it other than to say, after trying both ends of the game, there is more real enjoyment in life on the sober end. I've tried both and I wouldn't go back."

"But you still sell liquor—you are the means of others drinking."

"Sure—why not? I don't care if others drink. Selling whiskey is my business. If others are fool enough not to find out which end of the drinking game is the better one—why shouldn't I sell them the liquor."—Kansas City Times.

HIS GUIDE.

If I were obliged to follow implicity the leadership of only one living man, I should not hesitate to enroll as a member of Dr. Eliot's company. For forty years I have seen, heard and read the man, and although many times I more than doubted—in fact, sometimes rebelled, nevertheless five or ten years afterward I wondered how I chanced to be so stupid. At this particular time when we are turned this way and that by wars and rumors of wars—and especially by the rumors—his interpretation seems to me satisfactory. His stand for the freedom of the individual, which England so thoroughly recognizes, versus autocratic control, must appeal to every American in the United States, whether a native born or a naturalized citizen.—Milford Gazette.

WHY COMMENCE A SAVINGS ACCOUNT IN THE QUINCY CO-OPERATIVE BANK.

BECAUSE it pays a higher rate of interest than Savings Banks or any other kind of banking institution of equal safety.

BECAUSE it is absolutely safe. Loans are only made on first mortgages on real estate located in the city or adjoining communities.

BECAUSE all loans are passed on, first by a security committee and second by the entire board of directors. The title to all property is approved by the bank's attorney.

BECAUSE no person can secure big loans or monopolize the funds of the bank. The largest amount that can be loaned to one person is $5000.

BECAUSE it leads to the regular practice of saving. Shares are $1. per month and a person can save from $1. to $25. every month according to one's ability.

BECAUSE when you take shares you become a member of the bank, a stockholder. The business is managed by men of integrity. The treasurer is under ample bonds.

BECAUSE if you want to borrow for a short time the bank will loan to you on your shares without getting some person to go your security.

BECAUSE you can withdraw at anytime if you find you cannot continue your savings and the interest you will receive will still be more than that given by the average bank.

BECAUSE the state bank examiner examines the accounts of the bank annually insuring correctness and safety

BECAUSE the bank is growing and has been in successful existence for 25 years and has helped scores to build and establish homes.

BECAUSE shares can be purchased at any time. New series commence in May and November. The fifty-second series is now on sale.

BECAUSE the Quincy Co-operative Bank now has assets of nearly a million dollars and upwards of 2000 monthly depositors, and has averaged dividends of not less than 5—1-2 per cent per annum.

BATH ROOM HINTS.

A Suggestion For Preserving Nickel Plated Work In Bath and Toilet Rooms.

"I am frequently asked," says William A. Bradford of the well known plumbing firm, "what will preserve nickeling on the fittings and trimmings in bath rooms. Very few people realize what brings about the condition that causes the nickel to tarnish, and without going into detail greatly I offer a brief explanation.

"More care should be taken of the nickel plated surfaces in the summer than in the winter for the reason that the moisture and dampness in the atmosphere condenses on the cool surfaces of the pipes and faucets. This is particularly noticeable on the cold water pipes. The air carries with it a certain amount of re-action in the way of an acid and this causes the pipe to oxidize and gradually turn black. Of course the solution of this is to keep the valves and faucets tight so that the temperature of the pipes will become as near the temperature of the air in the room as possible and thereby stop the sweating and condensation which forms on the outer surfaces of the pipes. As an offset to this, the pipe may be wiped clean and dry and then re-wiped with a soft cloth which has previously been wet with a very little kerosene oil. In wiping over the surface a thin film of kerosene will remain on the surface of the pipes which prevents the action of the acid heretofore mentioned.

"Around and about the pipes in connection with the closets the verdigris(or blue green corrision) forms very rapidly. This is almost unpreventable owing to the nature of the contents of the closet bowl. If the liquid matter thrown off from the human body is allowed to lay in the bowl, a slight vapor arises and deposits itself on and about the metal work and very rapidly works into the bright surface of the metal forming a green oxidation which in time becomes objectionable. Carelessness in the use of the closet bowl brings about the same condition. Of course the only remedy for this is to use more care in keeping the pipes clean.

"The best remedy we have ever found for this class of work is to thoroughly wash the pipes with some good soap, such as Ivory soap or a soap of that nature, then thoroughly dry them with a soft cloth. Do not misconstrue my meaning in this, that it is necessary to go into the room and have a scouring bee, for such is not my intention. Frequent application of this remedy is all that is required and under ordinary conditions the pipes can be kept bright by frequently wiping the moisture and spots from them.

"In conclusion, avoid using scouring soaps, or soaps containing grit, for cleaning the bright surfaces, as they are exceedingly injurious. Those of your readers who desire to carry on the business of photography or developing in the bath room should do so with caution as the fumes from the chemicals also act injuriously on the polished surfaces of the metal work, as well as discoloring the enameled surfaces of the fixtures.

MOVIES STAGED HERE.

Houghs Neck House Has Honor of Being Filmed.

Quincy has reached its pinnacle of fame in the moving picture world and for the first time since the "movies" have been perfected a real live production has been made in the city.

The films were staged under the direction of "Jack" Caddigan, a summer resident of Post Island and one of the best known composers and directors of minstrel shows in Greater Boston.

The setting was the house of J. Braman, 100 Sea street, Houghs Neck near the fire house and the scenes are illustrative of the songs of the composer.

Mr. Caddigan wrote the scenario and staged the performance himself. He also played the principal part and supporting wewre regular performers who have appeared in high class Boston theatres.

Mr. Caddigan blossomed into local fame when he coached the Quincy Point minstrel show, some years ago, the success of which still lives in the memory of hundreds of people. At that time he was assisted by "Sunny Jim" Brennan, who has been associated with him in writing scores at various times since then.

During the detention of Harry Thaw at Montpelier, Vt., Mr. Caddigan sent him the first professional copies of his "Dreams of Mother" and Thaw, an accomplished musician, became infatuated with its melody and continually played it in leisure hours. Mr. Caddigan's best success was the sensation of last season, "100 Years from now." Others that he has written are "The Rose of the Mountain Trail," "The Poor Little Rich Girl," "Mandy and I," "Thanks for the Lobster," "Down on the Lakes of Manitoba."

CHURCHES ADOPT PEACE PLATFORM

The motives which underlie the present armed conflict in Europe are deep-rooted and complex. Among hem are irrational and deplorable race and group hatreds, a mistaken sense of what constitutes national honor and safety, revengeful memories, personal ambitions and private greed, and a dangerous militarism which seeks justification and glory in war. All of these imply a wide departure from the spirit of Christ and his appeal to reason and right.

War, on the contrary, appeals to material forces. It determines no question of right or wrong; and deliberate preparation for it cannot promote a spirit of peace but rather stimulated continued suggestions of violence.

It appears to us clear that the nations now at war are fighting mainly for commercial supremacy and for the control of the trade routes of the world. If this be the case, conflict cannot be prevented until trade routes, cables, etc., are neutralized under the joint protection of all nations, and until their mutual relations are so regulated as to secure equal protection for their foreign trade.

Such regulation, we believe, can only be secured and made permanent (1) by accepting the plain teaching of Jesus Christ as to the brotherhood of man, and (2) by providing means which will enable nations to secure peacefully, through a mutual tribunal, such results as are reasonable and right. Hence we regard with favor the development of the Hague plan by adding an adequate representative tribunal and police force, and would urge that Christian Churches give a large place in their teaching, worship and work to the promotion of peace founded upon principles of reason, justice, sympathy and good-will.

We desire heartily to express our approval of the President's declared policy of neutrality and restriction in naval construction at the present time. To increase the army or navy under existing conditions, would seem unnecessary as defense, unwise as expense, well calculated to provoke suspicions and increased armaments abroad; while it would be of no service at home except to encourage militarism and enrich such private corporations as manufacture munitions of war.

We agree with the position taken by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America "disapproving of loans by American capitalists for belligerent purposes," and we further disapprove of the sale to belligerents of all munitions of war.

The present world-wide war makes it evident that the forces of peace, working apart, have been unable to preserve peace. It would seem equally clear, that continuing to work separately, they will be as ineffective in restoring peace or in removing the evils that led to war.

We urge, therefore, as the need of this world crisis, co-operation and concentration—co-operation to secure some common platform, which will express fairly the judgment of this nation—and concentration upon some one program of action, which will make impressive this common platform. This nation, through its churches, peace societies, trade unions organizations of capital, women's clubs, young people's societies, and all other peace forces, should unite through representative committees, and great public meetings to proclaim with one voice its condemnation of war and its desire for peace.

We commend as a Platform for Consideration

1. The appeal of nations must be to justice, based on reason and right, and not to force.

2. Progress, religious, ethical and industrial, has made mankind one family and nations members of the common household. War is therefore mutual waste and destruction.

3. All nations, and not merely two or three; the people, and not alone a few diplomats, should decide for or against war and the conditions of peace.

4. In international matters nations should act in groups, under a representative form of government, which should include a legislature, judiciary and an executive.

5. The executive should be an international police, made up of quotes from the nations, forming a force by land and sea strong enough to preserve order, prevent war and protect life and trade.

6. A patriotism that is consistent with the love and service of mankind should be honored and taught in Church, State and School.

7. As every added day of war involves incalculable economic waste and ever increasing suffering and sorrow, and as a crushing defeat will promote arrogance and cupidity on the one side and revengeful and bitter memories on the other, thereby augmenting in both the militaristic spirit with all its evils, an early peace should be sought and urged by neutral nations, and especially by the United States.

BIG UNION CONCERT.

Raise $52 for Aid of War Sufferers.

There was a large attendance Thursday evening at the union concert given by the Swedish Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches of the city at the Swedish Congregational church. The program included selections by the union chorus, a duet by Mrs. A. G. Sporrong and Mrs. J. A. Sutherland, selections by a male quartette from the Swedish Methodist church and by a ladies sextette from the same church, and a grand chorus of forty voices under the direction of Rev. A. G. Sporrong.

Rev. A. E. Hillman gave a short history of some of the great sacred hymns. The program of the evening was under the direction of Rev. Paul Hallin.

No entrance fee was charged but the offering of $52 was for the war sufferers and will be sent to the Christian Herald.

PANAMA EXPOSITION

Miss Wilson Writes of Week of Dedications

This is the period of dedications at the Exposition in San Francisco. Wednesday was Japanese day, yesterday Canada and Ohio had their turn Feb. 26 the Philippines, Norway and Illinois, and next week come seventeen or eighteen more. It is hardly practicable to keep up with everything that goes on, interesting as all the events are.

The Japanese dedication was particularly noteworthy, as they made it a really brilliant affair. California has not always been polite to the Japanese or particularly considerate of their feelings. So when it was a question of Japanese participation in the Exposition, those in charge held their breaths. Would the Japanese take this opportunity to retaliate? They did—by heaping coals of fire upon the heads of the Californians. The Japanese have co-operated magnificently; their exhibits are among the finest at the Exposition, and with characteristic Japanese efficiency they had them ready on time:—and those of us who have come early are grateful.

Concerning these exhibits, I hope to find space to say more later. The dedication ceremonies were as generously conceived and as efficiently carried out as their exhibits. They decorated the entire grounds with flags and lanterns. The exercises themselves were held in the huge festival hall, and there were many and very fine addresses by distinguished men. It was interesting to hear the Californians and the Japanese exchanging such warm praises and harmoniously dividing up the Pacific Ocean between them.

After the formal dedication, there was a procession to the athletic field, where ingenious daylight fireworks were set off. Bombs exploded high overhead, bursting into aerial fountains of colored smoke and releasing the most fantastic balloon figures;—horses and elephants, birds and men, and flags and parasols—which floated gently to the ground and became the prizes of estatic childern. There was also a Japanese fencing match, a sort of free fight with bamboo sticks between two groups of quaintly clothed and masked Japanese; very exciting only unfortunately it was impossible for the mere American, ignorant of the rules of the game, to discover which side won.

Then in conclusion, suspended between two high poles, the Japanese and American flags were unrolled, side by side, and we all stood while the national anthems of the two countries were played, and "hurrahs" and "banzais" mingled. Japan has really treated us better than we have perhaps deserved; it should surely help to clear away any misunderstanding between the two countries.

But for me today was especially interesting, for today was the dedication of the Philippine building, and the ceremonies brought back all the old associations of the five years which I spent in the Islands. Of course I went, full of sentimental reminiscences, looking for familiar faces and sights. Among the small group sent to represent the Islands there were hardly any whom I knew, but there was much else that was familiar. The dark, alert faces, the eager chatter in Spanish and unintelligible Tagalog, the pretty, native girls, shivering in their too-thin native costume, and the famous Constabulary band, playing splendidly as of yore, while the crowd gathered.

While a greater part of the fifty or more present preferred dancing to bridge, there were several tables who enjoyed a few rubbers of bridge. The evening was one of pleasure to all.

FAVOR MILL TAX BILL

Ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone, Secretary Hall of the Board of Trade, and City Solicitor Pinkham attended the hearing before the legislative committee on Education at the state house Thursday and registered in favor of the bill known as the mill tax bill.

This bill is one that if enacted will aid in the support of the schools of Quincy. It provides that the state shall add to the state tax 1-2 mill per $1000, said amount to be divided among the cities and towns of the commonwealth to help out the support of the schools.

The idea is that the cities and towns like Quincy will benefit by the bill while rich towns with a small tax rate will not benefit to such an extent. The apportionment of the mill tax, as its called, will be according to the number of school days during a year. It is also provided that no city which pays less that $4 of its tax for the support of schools shall benefit. In other words while a rich town like Brookline with a small tax rate and a comparatively small numbers of days school attendance than Quincy would not be benefited much, a city like Quincy with a large school population, a longer school attendance and a high tax rate would be benefitted.

It was understood that the opposition to the bill would be heard today.

FINDS GEORGE NOT GUILTY

Judge Pratt gave his finding this morning in the case of Abe George charged with assault with a dangerous weapon on Polus Kalil. It was alleged at the hearing last Friday that George had struck Kalil over the head with a riveting hammer and Kalil appeared in court with his head bound up.

It came out at the hearing however, that Kalil was the aggressor and that George had simply defended himself. It was brought out that George was on a platform forty feet above the ground and that Kalil grabbed him by the leg and attempted to pull him off. George had a chisel in his hand at the time and to release the hold Kalil had on his leg struck at the latter's hand. The chisel reached Kalil's head, however.

This morning Judge Pratt found George not guilty and ordered his discharge.

EAGER FOR WORK.

It is easy for persons who seek to evade their responsibilities to assume that a large proportion of those who are out of work are in that unfortunate position chiefly through their own failings. This is not true as anyone who has looked into the question knows full well. Force of unusual circumstances have separated good men and women from positions which they were filling honestly and efficiently. Most of these persons are eager for work.

A striking illustration of the true situation comes from Brockton. In that city the public property committee announced that work would be given to 75 men at $2.50 a day excavating for the new East side school When the doors opened 300 eager men were on hand.

If the city of Quincy should similar announcement we wonder how many would respond. And by the way, if the city has work of this nature to do now would be an excellent time to do it. Quincy should not forget that there are war sufferers at home as well as in Belgium and Poland.

SMUGGLING FOR CHARITY.

Smugglers are seldom entitled to much sympathy. A case rather different from the ordinary run, however, was brought to a culmination by the imposing of a fine of $2000 on Samuel Saleevy at San Francisco yesterday. Saleevy was arrested on Jan. 15, at San Francisco on a charge of smuggling diamonds valued at $25,000 into the United States from Mexico.

These jewels were said to be the property of the wife of a general in Carranza's army, who had committed them to the care of Saleevy, so that he could sell them in this country and raise funds for the maintenance of an orphanage in Mexico, where 200 children whose fathers had been killed in the war were starving. Saleevy paid the fine. It is to be hoped that this punishment will be considered sufficient and that the diamonds will be returned to him.

THE 63rd CONGRESS.

Congress has adjourned. The country needed the rest no less than the legislators and it is a cause for jubilation that indications now are that there will not be another session at least until fall. In length. Of service the session has been a notable one and the 63rd Congress has other claims to distinction. Whether or not we chance to agree with the Democratic platform of 191 we must all admit that the congress which has just brought its labors to a close has been faithful to its enactment of the platform promises.

INVENTOR OF MONEY ORDER.

M. F. Berry, general manager of the American Express Co., who died yesterday in New York, should not be permitted to slip from memory without a word. Thirty-five years ago he invented the money order and traveler's check, at first used by the express companies and later adopted by the United States government. The money order and traveler's check has proved a convenient medium of exchange in modern business life and the originator deserves a word of tribute.

SERVES THEM RIGHT.

When will young people learn not to have "mock wedding ceremonies?" Two young people in New York entertained at church festival in this way, and now find they are legally married. Aside from the legal standpoint it seems a sthough there could be found a better form of entertainment than the mimicing of such a solemn institution.

"People like to see their bread rise—but not in price."—Pathfinder.

Yes, we, the inhabitants of homes in and around Boston, like bread that rises too, but not in the use of plaster of Paris, and other adulterants.

VOTE TO AFFILIATE.

The Quincy Catholic club, at its meeting, Thursday evening, voted to affiliate with the Catholic Federation of Societies and Parishes. A social hour and whist party followed the meeting. The winners were Mrs. William A. Carey, Mrs. Ellen Hughes and Mrs. Catherine Sullivan.

News of Interest to Granite Manufacturers and Workers

The condition of business activity in this city has become more favorable as each week passes. There are at the present time very few cutters who are idle. Manufacturers and their agents are busy closing up prospects which have developed during the winter. The outlook now points to a busy spring season to make up for a dull winter.

Shipping has increased by leaps and bounds and teams are now held several hours at the Quincy Adams Crane which clearly demonstrates the immediate need of better facilities at this place. At West Quincy an unusually large amount of shipping for this time of year is being done. South Quincy manufacturers send their shipments to West Quincy to be loaded on the cars as they will be started in quicker time to their destination and the teamster can do more hauling in a day.

NO CHANGE IN BARRE.

There is no change in the situation in Barre, Vt., in regard to the trouble among the granite men, and probably will not be until the cutters ballot on the acceptance of the proposition made by the manufacturers. The cutters have been advised by the executive board in Quincy to accept the proposition, and it is expected that a ballot on the question will be held in a few days. The offer of the manufacturers as noted was 42 cents to May 1, 45 cents to March 1, 1916 and 50 cents thereafter. It is understood that the manufacturers in granite centres adjoining Barre are ready to sign but the cutters can not do so until the trouble in Barre is settled.

BUSINESS RUSHING.

Business is rushing at the plant of the Old Colony Broken Stone & Concrete Co. at Vernon street in South Quincy. Eugene R. Atwood reports that he expects the largest output in the history of the firm. All last summer two 10 ton auto trucks were kept busy supplying crushed stone to the city of Quincy and neighboring towns. The plant has a spur track which connects with the railroad and a large amount of crushed rock is shipped in this manner.

This firm also operates the Tide Water Broken Stone Co. at Houghs Neck.

It is hoped that the legislature will act favorably on the bill of Mayor Campbell to appropriate $10,000.00 for the erection of a sea wall at Houghs Neck. Beside being a much-needed improvement the work furnished the men by the contract will be welcomed. Incidentally Quincy granite will undoubtedly be used in the erection of the wall.

WESTERLY STOCK COMING.

Several carloads of Westerly granite have arrived in the city during the past two weeks. Since the snow and frost have left the ground the quarries are opening up and shipments are being started in good season. Charles Barnicoat of the Crumb Quarry states the quarry was never in better condition and stock of any size is now available.

Plans for the Soldiers' Memorial to be erected at Milton are nearly completed. Many Quincy Granite manufacturers are going to bid on the work The plans are being made by Sculptor Dallin. The memorial will probably be erected before Memorial Day.

Golbranson & Co., have entered into the Lincoln Polishing Company.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Much interest is being shown in the pool tournament among the senior members those entered having some exciting matches. The contest for the Hobbs' Trophy for bowling has commenced and already some good strings have been rolled.

The Junior first and second basketball teams will line up against two teams from East Weymouth on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. One of these teams met with defeat at the hands of our boys last week but they are going to try to win this time which should result in two good games four our younger fellows.

A big attraction is scheduled for Saturday morning at nine o'clock when the ten boys who attended the Pawtucket conference last month will give their reports of the happenings there. This should draw a large number of the boys of Quincy as much of what will be said will affect the whole number of boys in Quincy.

Many people are looking for a sure cure for the blues. It can be found in the curtain raiser to the three act comedy "A Family Affair" when Erastus Osgood will appear as Dr. Jack in "Old Cronies" in Music hall the evening of April 7th.

The long looked forward to talk of J. L. Hamilton's on the "Panama Canal" will be given this evening for the juniors and members of the Bible classes. Seven-thirty is the time set and as the talk will be illustrated by pictures it is sure to be interesting to all he boys who attend.

The theatre meeting held last Sunday afternoon in Kincaide's Theatre was well attended and the talk given by Mr. Gray was much enjoyed by all who listened. This Sunday as last the Wollaston Band will play from three to three-thirty after which Austin T. Kempton of Cambridge will give a Dramatic talk entitled "Lost and Found." This is sure to prove of interest to a lot of men as it will show plainly the two parts of the question at the same time.

Cunningham Gym will be visited by our Senior first and second teams tomorrow evening when they line up against the first and second teams here. This is the first of two games which are scheduled and each side will be sure to be out for first blood. The second game will be played on our floor the following Saturday evening.

Makaria fives will play the U. S. S. Brooklyn and the High school Independents on our floor tomorrow evening. This will give the public a chance to see two fast games and also to see what the High school boys can do.

FIRST MONTH AS OVERSEER

Miss Huston Gives Her Impressions

A Ledger reporter asked Miss Huston, the overseer of the poor, what her impression was of the work, after being in office one month. Miss Huston is quite frank to admit that she has learned that to be a successful overseer one must have a knowledge of human nature quite different from that of a casual observer. The problems presented each day to the overseer of the poor are almost always different from the day before.

"The charitable associations and women's clubs have been a help and are very willing to aid whenever they can. The overseer of the poor needs the co-operation of every woman in Quincy. So many people do not know how to manage their financial affairs economically, that it would be an excellent plan to have somebody teach the mothers the value of living. We have classes for the study of all kinds of problems, and why would it not be wise to have classes in household management, how to live smply, economically and healthfully? The school nurse is an advancement of our city, and fills a much needed want in our schools, and it would be a great help if we had a municipal housekeeper."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Editor. The Ledger:

The removal by death of a man of the type of John F. Ketterer, late of Germantown. Quincy, deserves more than passing notice. His life was a struggle to break down the barriers which ever beset a young lad foreign to our ways, manners and language. Hence his successful career furnishes an object-lesson which it were well to regard and notice.

Mr. Ketterer was born in Frieburg Baden, Germany, in December, 1852, of a good family, of ordinary circumstances. He left school at an early age and arrived in this country in 1869, being then seventeen years old.

Entirely ignorant of our language and without friends, he struck out manfully to win, with nothing but a sound body, a keen mind, good morals and a laudable ambition. How well he succeeded all who knew him know. He met with many discouragements which a less determined man would have succumbed to, but he conquered all of them.

At the age of 37 years he married the good lady who is now his widow and it may well be said that he dated his real success from that time. His marriage was a happy one. Mrs. Ketterer he thought, and properly too, the salt of the earth. He felt that no better wife and mother existed to all of which those who know her will subscribe.

Mr. Ketterer leaves many sincere friends, who mourn his loss, and who will not soon forget the genial, kind hearted, generous spirit who did so much to spread cheer and good fellowship around himself and others in the atmosphere of his own home.

FIREMEN ARE KEPT ON JUMP

The fire department was kept on the jump Thursday by grass fires, apparatus at nearly all of the fire stations being called out sometime during the day by still alarms. In addition to the bell alarms in the morning of which note was made in Thursday's Ledger, there was a bell alarm from Box 613 at 3.08 in the afternoon. This was for a grass fire on Vane street, Norfolk Downs No damage was done.

At 12.30 the Quincy Point combination responded for a grass fire on Germain avenue.

At 1.15 the Atlantic auto combination responded for a grass fire on Newbury avenue, which burnt over quite a territory.

At 3.07 the Atlantic auto was called by a telephone alarm for the grass fire on Vane street but before they got there the bell alarm sounded from Box 613.

At 3.25 the West Quincy company responded on a still alarm for a grass fire off Common street.

At 4.55 the Wollaston apparatus responded for a lively grass fire on the corner of Newport and North Central avenues.

It will be seen by the above that Houghs Neck was the only piece that was not called out on still or bell alarms.

QUINCY OBJECTS TO PERCENTAGE

Mayor Campbell, City Solicitor Pinkham and City Engineer Sargent represented Quincy at the hearing before the legislative committee on roads and bridges at the state house Thursday at the hearing on the bills providing for a new bridge between Quincy and Neponset to take the place of the present structure.

The county of Norfolk was represented by Chairman John F. Merrill of the County Commissioners. The street railway was represented and Milton and some of the towns along the south shore were also represented as was Neponset. There are two bills under consideration at the present time which are similar to each other. They provide for a structure to cost $350,000. Quincy's objection to the bills was the apportionment provided in the bill for paying for them. The bill provides that the City of Boston shall pay 40 per cent., Quincy 15 per cent., Norfolk County 15 per cent., Plymouth county 5 per cent., the street railway 15 per cent. and the Commonwealth 10 per cent.

What the City of Quincy desires is that the bridge shall be built by the Metropolitan Park Commission and that a greater part of the expense shall be borne by the cities and towns in the metropolitan district in a similar manner as the Wellington bridge was paid for.

Quincy argues that the bridge will be largely used by persons outside the limits of the City of Quincy. For instance especially in the summer seasons thousands of automobiles from all over the Metropolitan district going to and from the South Shore, and in addition, that the bridge will be used largely by residents of cities and towns south of Quincy, especially from Plymouth county which under the apportionment provided in the bill pays but 5 per cent. In reality the bridge would be used much more by the residents of Plymouth county than by those of Norfolk County.

This is the only objection which Quincy has to the bill as it is realized that the present bridge is an antiquated affair, out of repair and to a certain extent dangerous, having been more or less weakened by fires that have burnt the lower part of the bridge.

When the ceremonies began, I was delighted to see that the President of the Philippine Board, whose duty it was to preside, was that very lovable scholar and gentleman and veteran fighter for freedom, D. Leon Ma Guerrero. His opening address was necessarily in Spanish, and had to be interpreted, but his singularly sweet and friendly smile needed no translation to be understood. He made a very earnest appeal for a better understanding of his race which he spoke of as "the Benjamin among the nations," and as "the symbol of a new civilization in the Orient." He called attention to the progress made in the last decade. "I have faith in my people," he said, "because they have the spirit of ambition." He protested earnestly against any attempt to make Anglo-Saxons of them, which would be inhuman, for their national spirit was strong. The Filipinos, he said, feel stirring within them a while world of initiative, only waiting until the shadows of uncertainty, social and political which now surround them, shall disappear, and they hope and believe that the Americans will give them complete political emancipation. It was so clear that the inspiration lying back of all the hard work which the Filipinos had put into the preparation of their exhibit,—and, like that of the Japanese, it is an exceptionally rich and interesting collection, ready and in place,—has been the hope that they might prove to the sceptical American, their skill, their industry, their intelligence; that they may thus win their independence by deserving it. The speech of Manuel Quezon, Philippine Commissioner to Congress, which, in his absence, was read by his Filipino secretary in clear and faultless English—this speech, too breathed the same spirit; wholly friendly, courteous, grateful for all benefits received, but steadily, persistently desirous of independence.

After the exercises were over, the doors of the building were opened, and everybody crowded in to admire the extraordinary exhibits all in spick and span order, and to partake of Filipino hospitality and listen to the concert in the patio by the Constabulary band. It is a remarkable organization the joint product of two despised and "inferior" races; for the leader, Captain Loving, whose musical genius has found its field in the development of the very high musical abilities of the Filipinos, is an American negro; it is the Filipino and the Negro whose ability has made the Constabulary band world famous.

I do not know what the others were thinking as they listened, but for me the walls of the court yard disappeared, and I saw again the wide spaces of the Luneta, the picturesque walled city, the tropical sun descending, red and hot, into the China sea, and all Manila out to enjoy the evening breeze and Captain Loving's music.

Hanson's single was the result of a couple of strikes and a number of pretty spares. His total was 338.

TWO NEW MODELS FOR 1915

48-Six---$1650
Six Cylinders

Olympic "46"---$1375
Four Cylinders

Both Models Center Control. Left Drive. Both Fully Equipped

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars— you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

Into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size—built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, streamline body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 33⅓ to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous. It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season, it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep— no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

SPRING TAILLEUR.

Black and White Is a Combination Which Finds Much Favor.

A NATTY CREATION.

Black and white continually aspires for favor in the feminine sartorial world. The gown here pictured is one of the season's nattiest offerings. The skirt is not strikingly flaring. The cutaway fronts of the coat, the belt and the pockets, arranged in a slanting fashion, are all good style features. The little Tam straw hat is trimmed only with a gay, red coq feather. Buttoned boots are worn with this girlish costume.

NEW SHIRT WAIST.

It Buttons Right Up Under the Chin. Sleeves Are Long.

The new shirt waist has no longer a decollete. It buttons up right under the chin in a high stock collar. The sleeve is set in either raglan or in a rather large armhole, and if it is a blouse model the sleeve attaches to the lining and not to the little bolero-like outside blouse.

Georgette crapes, linens, voiles and embroidered batiste all make the most delightful waists. Little vests of plaited lingerie, organdie or net are often set in the front. Odd china buttons give a new touch to the more tailored types and Slavic embroideries a bit of color to the light white and sand colored voiles and linens.

Sleeves are long and in the shirt waists lightly gathered into a tight cuff. In the blouse models some of the imported styles show ruffled sleeves, some with a series of small puffs, others with a high puff at the shoulders, with a transparent loose sleeve that gathers into the wrist underneath.

Tailored morning skirts are of linen, crash and ratine, a corduroy stripe on a net ground. They are about three yards around the hem and cut two or three gored circular. Their style comes in this flare and in the smart way they are belted in at the waist.

Boautiful Tea Tray.

A beautiful tea tray can be made at home by getting from a picture shop the foundation for a glass bottomed tray. Ask him to give you a plain wooden frame with glass and back. The molding should be deep enough to form a good rim on the tray. You can set in this gay little bits of cross stitch embroidery yourself and cover the back of the frame with felt. Put in four little rubber headed tacks for feet, attach brass handles and you have a lovely gift.

AMUSEMENTS

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Common Clay" now in the eighth week of its run at the Castle Square theatre, is like a ball of snow, which, as it rolls down hill, aggrandizes and gathers impetus. Since the play was produced the first week in January and word was passed about that an extraordinary novelty was to be seen at the Castle Square, the attendance grew daily to such proportions that hundreds of people were turned away. Even the coming of the Lenten season has made no appreciation difference in the size of the audiences. Mary Young, as Ellen Neal, John Craig as Judge Pilson, and William P. Carleton as Hugh Fullerton continue to do their share to make the performance a success. A souvenir of the 100th performance will be given every patron on next Monday evening.

WILBUR THEATRE.

More than 105,000 people from Boston and surrounding cities have already seen "A Pair of Sixes," during its ten weeks' stay at the Wilbur, and the demand for seats seems to be increasing all the time. Every man, woman and child who sees this wonderfully amusing farce seems to send others to see it, for "A Pair of Sixes" is one of those rare successes that one can feel perfectly safe in recommending to one's friends and feel sure that it will give better satisfaction than any stage offering in years.

Probably thirty or forty shows have come and gone in Boston since "A Pair of Sixes" opened at the Wilbur in December. Most of them have been forgotten, but this joyous farce continues to attract huge and happy audiences at each performance. There is a reason for the success of a "Pair of Sixes." It is not only the funniest farce ever put on a stage but it is clean, wholesome, novel and entertaining. It keeps the audience delighted and laughing from the moment the curtain rises until the last line has been spoken. Its story is crisp and unique, and the situations are surprising at every turn. And the way in which it is acted by the company of comedy stars is a rare treat.

B. F. KIETH'S.

The great American Tenor from Century Opera house, Orville Harrold, will head the bill at B. F. Keith's theatre the week of March 8th surrounded by a great bill of headline attractions, including Walter C. Kelly and Bessie Wynn. Mr. Harrold is famous as the man who made "I'm Falling In Love With Someone" the big song hit of Naughty Marietta, when he starred with Trentini in this operetta. He will offer an excellent program of popular numbers. Walter C. Kelly, the Virginia Judge, comes from a long run at the New York Winter Garden; and Bessie Wynn, the lady dainty of vaudeville, has a series of new and catchy songs, with some beautiful gowns. Babby Matthews, Al Shayne and their big company of pretty girls will present "Dreamland," an imaginative comedy in three scenes, laid respectively in Chinatown, Egypt, and the Bowery. A company of beautiful girls and dancers assist Matthews and Shayne, who are two of the funniest comedians in vaudeville. Evelyn Nesbitt, assisted by Jack Clifford, will be the headliner at B. F. Keith's theatre the week of March 8. Seats may be obtained one week in advance. Miss Nesbitt will appear in a series of modern society dances.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

"The Lilac Domino," which charmed all New York for five solid months, and which is now playing to immense crowds nightly at the Majestic theatre, Boston, promises to be one of the brilliant society events of the theatrical season, as the demand for boxes and reservations for theatre-parties exceeds that of any other attraction in months. The production is one of the most complete and elaborate ever attempted of any light opera. Moreover, it is produced on a scale of grand opera magnificence, with at least six noted grand opera singers in the leading roles. The offering is made by the Andreas Dippel Opera Company, an organization formed for the purpose of advancing and elevating the standards of light opera in America, and producing new and standard operas on a scale commensurate with that of the Opera Comique in Paris. In pursuance of this laudable ambition the company, many of them directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, have secured the services of one of the strongest casts every heard in light opera. One of the most remarkable attributes of "The Lilac Domino" is its power to charm and please any kind of an audience, and every person in the audience. Not only people of education and musical culture, but those whose knowledge of music is most elementary and enchanted with the charming melodic beauty of the score and lyrics, which have plenty of swing and go, and an American audience appreciates

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

The enthusiastic reception accorded "The Third Party," at the Plymouth theatre, Boston, gives every evidence that this delightfully refreshing and screamingly funny farce is destined to repeat its great New York and Chicago successes. The piece is one that offers a whirlwind of complexities and an amazing bundle of absurdities. It is solely built for laughing purposes and strikes its mark with a terrific bang. It is one continuous roar of laughter from beginning to end. The play is presented with the original cast headed by Taylor Holmes and Walter Jones, two well known farceurs, whose clever work in other successes is familiar to New England playgoers. The story concerns a Mr. Cazzaza, who is chaperon at the Royal Restaurant, London. Hilary Chester, a man about town, takes his place when Mr. Pottinger, an M. P., comes there with a pretty dancer. When Mrs. Pottinger unexpectedly turns up Chester is introduced as Cazzaza and the dancer as Mrs. Cazzaza. Whereupon Mrs. P. invites them to their country home and there so much fun takes place that it is impossible to tell everything. Chester meets his fiancee and is unable to explain his position while the dancer faces her fiance and is likewise nonplussed. In the course of events that arise from the aforesaid situation the auditor is treated to many amusing complications. "The Third Party" is possessed of enough laughs to chase away all forms of gloom.

TREMONT TEMPLE.

So great has been the interest in the motion pictures of the war in Europe exhibited at Tremont Temple by the Boston Evening Record as an amplification of its news service that the pictures will be continued all through this week. On Monday of this week two full reels just received by the Record from Germany were added to the fire reels already shown.

Besides scenes of actual battle, to take some of which the camera man cranked his machine actually between two opposing forces at close range and while the action was hottest, there are wonderful pictures of burning villages, falling buildings and bridges, siege guns and field artillery in violent action, cavalry charges of the most thrilling character and intimate portraits of the Kaiser, the Sultan of Turkey and other notables in the great struggle.

MODERN THEATRE.

Betty Nansen, the world-famed Danish tragedienne brought to this country by William Fox, the well known film manufacturer and president of the Fox Film Corporation, will make her first appearance on the screen on Monday at the exclusive Modern Theatre, Boston, in a wonderful photo-adaptation of Jose Echegaray's "The Celebrated Scandal." Miss Nansen's role in the production gives full scope to her powers of emotional expression. The production is replete with tense and exciting situations and shows the prolific manner in which every detail is carried out. Miss Nansen was for years the star of the Royal Theatre in Copenhagen. She has been decorated by kings and emperors. She was the friend and inspiration of Henrik Ibsen and the creator of his hectic heroines. Miss Nansen will appear at the Modern for the entire week. The remainder of the programme will include another instalment of "The Master Key" the latest Pathe weekly and several comic and dramatic photo-plays. There is a continuous policy at this theatre.

FIREMEN BUSY.

The fire department put in a busy morning today answering still alarms and up to 2 o'clock the apparatus had been called out four times. The first call was at 10 o'clock when the Wollaston apparatus went out on a still alarm for a grass fire on Third hill. At 10.45 the central station auto went out for a grass and woods fire near Patch's ice houses off Penn street. At 10.45 the West Quincy apparatus went out for a woods fire off Buckley street and at 12.15 the Atlantic auto went out on a still alarm for a grass fire on Rawson road.

PREPARE FOR OBSERVANCE.

Irish American Society to Celebrate Robert Emmet's Anniversary.

The Quincy branch of the Irish American society has completed its part of the arrangements for the observance of the 137th anniversary of Robert Emmet, to take place under the auspices of the association in Hibernian hall, Dudley street, Boston on Sunday evening.

The singing of the evening will be by the German choral society and one of the principle speakers will be the secretary of the German Alliance, Robert Sterm. A musical program of national Irish airs will also be given.

The object of injecting these features into the program, according to the members, is to give the German people of the United States the opportunity of presenting their story of the war.

Many Quincy people are planning to attend the affair, and among the local persons on the committee of arrangements are President Michael T. Griffin, of the local club, vice president John Dougherty, Joseph Shea and Cornelius Horgan.

HEARS THROUGH HIS SKIN

Deaf Mute Proves to Be an Exceptionally Clever Chauffeur

Cincinnati, March 5.—Horace Williamson, state examiner of chauffeurs, granting a license to George Thole, a deaf and dumb auto driver, declared:

"I consider Thole one of the best chauffeurs in Cincinnati, because of the marvellous quality of his skin that enables him to detect sounds that a regular ear will miss.

"I had him run on street car tracks and, more quickly than my ears could hear, Thole's sensitive physical organism detected the approach of a car from behind.

"We tried him on a car with an engine that missed once in a while, and he knew there was trouble every time. He knows the difference between a vibration from an auto horn and that of a street car."

TWO CARS ROLL DOWN EMBARKMENT

Six Persons Badly Injured When Vermont Train Is Derailed

Cambridge, Vt., March 5.—An entire train running over the Central Vermont railroad was derailed one mile east of Cambridge and the smoking and baggage cars rolled down a thirty-foot embankment, seriously injuring six passengers and giving many more a bad shaking up.

The train was rounding a curve when the engine bumped along the ties. The tender and following two cars lurched over the side, tearing away from the remainder of the train, which remained on top of the embankment.

The cause of the accident has not yet been determined.

HIT BY PROHIBITION

Officials of Closed Bank Largely Identified With Brewing Business

Pittsburg, March 5.—The German National bank of Pittsburg failed to open its doors for business and a notice on the door said it had been closed by order of the comptroller of the currency.

Officers and directors of the German National are identified with the Pittsburg Brewing company, whose securities recently have suffered heavily because, it was said, of the enactment of prohibition laws in West Virginia and the extension of local option in eastern Ohio.

CUPID CONQUERS CLUB CLOSING ITS CAREER

Gay Young Bachelors to Marry and Disband

"The best-laid scheme o'mice an' men, Gang aft a'gley."
"To a Mouse"—Robert Burns

When the Manet Social club started on its career, a career which has proved eminently successful, it was composed of a congenial group of gay young bachelors. Oh, girls were all right in their way, of course, but married life hardly appealed to the members. Many well known young men were initiated into the club as time sped by all bachelors.

One young gentleman was not invited, a master Cupid who, resenting the slight proceeded to give some demonstrations of his power. Councilman Frank Ferguson was one of those who received one of Mr. C's darts. Others to fall were Murray Kerr, Russell Gomez, Fred Hayden, Peter Buzzi, Joseph Driscoll, Bert Smith and Frank V. Doran.

It will not be long it is said before these young men will appear before the altar.

Result— disbanding of the Manet club at an early date.

The club has been running smoothly for the last 10 years and was in A1 condition when Matt Fay started singing the popular song "I love the Ladies" and it looks as if the boys really do.

The club will give a farewell banquet at the Westminster Rose Garden the first of next month.

MEN'S FORUM HOLDS MEETING

The Men's Forum of the Park and Downs church held its monthly meeting and supper in the vestry, Friday evening.

The speaker was Manager Burns of the Cunard line who gave an interesting account, illustrated by stereopticon, of the mammoth floating palaces in the employ of his company.

Comparisons were made between the present ships and those first put in operation by the company. Then the time consumed was 14 days and eight hours, while now it has been reduced to four days, ten hours and 41 minutes.

The luxurious apartment of the Lusitania and sister ships were shown as well as the safety devices in force. Pleasure was added through the enlightening comments of the speaker.

Songs of Scotland and Ireland were sung by Miss Kelliher. Among them were "Come back to Erin" and "Annie Laurie" while the audience joined in singing America at the conclusion of the lecture.

At the business meeting it was voted to hold a ladies night at the next meeting. Alonzo V. Bissett was appointed to head a committee of men who will have in charge the preparation and serving of the supper

Discussion ensued over the details concerning the mock trial to be held by the forum in May which will solve "The Mystery of Edwin Drood."

CORKING BOUTS AT BOXING TOURNEY

Tony Vatlin of Brighton Favorite In Long And Strong List

McGUINNESS LOSES

The amateur boxing tourney held in Hibernian hall riday evening under the auspices of the Quincy A. A. was the best ever held here since that organization affiliated with the N. E. A. A. U., three years ago. It was nearly midnight when the final bout finished an evening of stellar performers.

The feature of the evening was the bout between Leo Downey of Roxbury and John McGuinness of Lynn, which went an extra round because the judges could not agree on a winner. Downey was given the decision by referee Jack Norton when they again disagreed. McGuinness had been picked to win the class.

Downey then came to the ring and faced Campbell but the efforts of his previous fight reacted and although he had the best end of the argument he left the ring when he found himself weakening. Downey's position was well realized by the fans and he was applauded. It was said that both would appear in a special within a few weeks, the prize to be the gold watches given first and second place men.

Tony Vatlin of Brighton was the favorite of the evening. Three men lasted but one round with the young man and he finally put it across on Driscoll.

Frank McGrath and Eddie Walsh, officials of the N. E. association, kept things humming and made it possible to run the card off without any delays The summaries:

THREE MORE GRASS FIRES

The fire department was called out Friday afternoon several times on still alarms for grass fires as follows:

At 3 o'clock the Wollaston apparatus went to Holbrook road to extinguish a grass fire.

At 3.40 the Wollaston apparatus went to Norfolk street for a lively grass fire. As the Wollaston apparatus was short of men the central station auto also responded to help out.

At 4.50 the Atlantic auto responded for the second time during the day for a grass fire on Rawson road.

At 7.45 the central station apparatus responded to a still alarm for a fire in the cellar of a house at 48 Revere road, which has been recently purchased by a Mr. Taylor. The furnace in the house is set on a wooden foundation and this foundation took fire. It was extinguished with but little loss.

RECOVERS VERDICT AGAINST RAMSDELL

Laura Ryder has recovered a verdict of $2,031 against Henry E. Ramsdell, administrator of the estate of the late Eliab Ramsdell of Quincy. Mrs. Ryder alleged she rendered services for the intestate as housekeeper and that he owed her $1,589.80 for same and interest from Sept. 23, 1912.

REMOVE SIGNS

The "Keep to the right" signs that have been placed in prominent places in city square are not up today. Commissioner Brown found that they were not heavy enough and that they were too easily blown over by high winds. The commissioner said this morning that the signs were not to be discontinued but would be replaced later by more substantial signs.

FINDS BEAUTIFUL PEARL IN OYSTER

At Any Rate It Looks Like Genuine Stone To Young Man

EXPERTS TESTING "GEM"

Experts are today making an examination of a pearl found in an oyster by Bert Gillis of Bennington street and the young man is quietly but anxiously awaiting their decision. The find was made during an oyster dinner on Washington's Birthday at his home.

Young Bert was the centre of the happy family group when his teeth suddenly scraped a hard substance. "Confound those stones," he said, "this is the sixth time today I tried to bite through them."

"Hold on there," said his father, John Gillis, the well known bicycle dealer, "that might be a pearl." It might at that," said Bert and removing the substance found what appeared to be a magnificent pearl.

The value of the object has not yet been determined, but if genuine should be worth many dollars.

HENRY M. FAXON BUYS OLD HERSEY PROPERTY

Understood He Will Build Business Block Next Kincaide Theatre

Henry M. Faxon is the new owner of the old Hersey property at 1533 and 1535 Hancock street which has been held in trust for the heirs of James Edwards for some years. The transfer of the property took place this week through the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co., trustee under the will.

The property is perhaps the most desirable building undeveloped site in the city today. Mr. Faxon has been for some time the owner of the property beside the Kincaide theatre and the new addition gives him control of the long stretch between the theatre and the Music hall block.

The plot of land contains 11394 square feet and is assessed for $6200. The house is assessed for $2800. Mr. Saywood of the trustees when questioned about the transfer this morning said he was not in a position to give any information on the subject but it is understood that an up-to-date business block will be erected there this spring.

The sale became known when the tenants in the houses received notices to vacate wthout delay.

IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

At the regular monthly meeting of the Atlantic Improvement Association held in the Standish club rooms Friday evening a large number were present and the following resolution was adopted.

"It was the sense of this meeting that we oppose any separate improvement association for Ward 6 but would favor some form of federation of improvement associations which would give a central committee in Ward 6."

A letter was read from Rev. T. W. Davison, in opposition to forming an association of all of Ward 6 as it would interfere with the efficiency and work of each local organization. He favored a combination, meeting every three months, of all the Associations.

A motion was carried regarding a special night for the various committees of the Association to meet for the transaction of business. It was unanimously voted that the Friday after the regular meeting night should be set aside for this purpose.

ENDS HIS SERVICE.

Clyfeton W. Hill who resigned his position as purchasing clerk two days ago severed his connection with the position at the close of business hours this noon. Mr. Hill said that he was leaving city hall with the best of feeling. He had nothing to say as to his future position.

SUNDAY EVENING SERVICE.

"The Average Man" will be the subject of Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott at the pleasant Sunday evening service. In the morning the pastor will speak on, "Sharing the World's Redemption."

OLNEY TO BE SPEAKER.

The Atlantic Men's club will have Congressman Richard Olney 2nd at its regular monthly meeting and dinner in Memorial Congregational church Wednesday evening.

Mr. Olney is to talk on "How the European War Affects the Wool Trade." He is also to bring as a guest of the club a man who has recently visited the firing line in France who will tell some of his thrilling experiences.

SICKENING.

Some weeks ago employees of the city of Boston sent a delegation to Mayor Curley asking for a small increase in pay. The mayor replied that their courage was good to presume to tender such a request when men as good as they and quite competent to fill their places were walking the streets, hungry. The delegation retired in some disorder.

Doubtless Barre, Vt., would like to have Mayor Curley for a few minutes so that he might deliver a similar speech to the striking cutters. It is understood that the English speaking cutters are desirous of accepting the offer of the manufacturers but that the foreign or I. W. W. element are insistent on better terms, among other things a seven hour day. This is sickening, this demand for so short a day when so many men would be glad to work twice as long for half the pay.

SHOULD BE AN EXCEPTION.

The army cots and blankets of the Massachusetts division of the National Guard might be put to a worse use than in the various temporary lodging houses for the unemployed of Boston as desired by Mayor Curley. Unfortunately, it appears that it is forbidden to use the militia equipment except for militia purposes. His excellency the governor gave the representative of the mayor that answer when he made the request for 400 army cots and blankets. Doubtless the law is a good one under ordinary circumstances but the circumstances are not usual and it would seem as if provision should be made for an exception in such an emergency.

MAJOR GENERAL GOETHALS.

Throughout all the country, outside perhaps of a few disgruntled army officers and politicians, there will probably be no one who will not rejoice in the signal but richly deserved honor which has been conferred upon Col Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal. He was promoted to the rank of major general. In December 1909 Goethals was made a colonel in the engineer corps. The chief of the corps holds the rank of brigadier general. The promotion jumps entirely over this grade. With his new office Major General Goethals was given the thanks of Congress for his great work

OPTIMISTIC.

Champ Clark is optimistic. At the close of the 63rd Congress he is reported to have said:

"The signs of the times indicate that business, large and small, is recovering from the condition into which the trans-atlantic war hurled us. To a careful reader of the newspapers the prospects appear to be that by the Fourth of July every man and woman in America who desires work at a living wage will find employment.

Although Congress has adjourned we are glad to note that President Wilson and his cabinet will remain in Washington to attend to the questions arising from the international situation. The task is one which needs all the ability and statesmanship which the president and his advisers can call to their aid.

It is hoped that Secretary Bromley of the Y. M. C. A. may not feel it his duty to leave his work here for other fields. His service has been noteworthy and Quincy would regret to see him go.

The concert given by the Swedish churches of the city resulted in the raising of a tidy sum for the war sufferers in Europe. It is to be hoped that other churches will give heed to this most pressing need.

The letters of the organization were formed in the grand march which was headed by Mrs. Edith Crocker, worthy matron, and Elihu Spear, worthy patron. Dancing followed music being furnished by Reeds banjo orchestra.

The committee in charge of the affair was Miss Annie Rose, Mrs. Henry Furnald, Miss Margaret Milne, Miss Mildred Crowley, Miss Bessie Laing, Miss Florence Hart, Mrs. Charles Gilliatt, Miss Cora Barnicoat, George Dexheimer, Thomas Cassey, Mrs. James MacDonald.

PIE SOCIAL HERE.

Rebekah Lodge Tests It at Meeting.

The Pie Socials have been introduced to Quincy.

This long established New England game, always a stranger to our historic city, was given a vigorous test by the members of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge in I. O. O. F. hall Thursday evening.

The pies went to Miss Edna Burke, Mrs. Harry Tirrell, Mrs. Sadie M. Wood, Miss L. Hodge, Mrs. Mary L. Jones and others.

They were chosen because they had a flag in their possession when the music stopped, after a three minute march More than a score participated in the festivities.

The social followed the regular meeting at which one application was received.

MARTINSON—JENSEN.

Alex John Martinson, a mariner in the service of Uncle Sam, and assigned to service aboard the revenue cutter Gresham, came to Quincy Thursday and claimed Judith P. Jensen, an 18 year old girl, of 51 Arthur street as his bride.

The ceremony was performed by Emery L. Crane, city clerk and was witnessed by several of the young women clerks of the building.

The groom filed his intention Thursday morning and Judge Avery set aside the five day law so he could return immediately to his ship. At the end of his enlistment he will join his bride and they will make their home here.

NOT GUILTY.

Judge Finds That Bowers Did Not Take Goods.

Adam H. Bowers of Holbrook was arraigned in court Friday for the larceny of household goods from John Gilford of Quincy to the value of $200.

The testimony in the case was to the effect that last November Mrs. Gilford was committed to an asylum and shortly after the plaintiff John Gilford was sent to jail on a complaint for drunkenness. When he was released from jail and returned to his home he found his household effects gone, and he charged Adam H. Bowers with being the one who took the goods. After hearing the evidence in the case the court found Bowers not guilty.

DISCUSS NEED OF WAITING ROOM

At a meeting of the new planning board representatives of the street railway were present as well as members of the special committee of the city council. The matter of the waiting room was discussed in an informal manner. It was admitted by all that the need was imperative. No action, however, was taken at the meeting. The board also discussed in an informal manner the proposed new bridge over the Neponset river between Quincy and Neponset and voted to endorse the plan to have the bridge built by the Metropolitan Park Commissioners.

URGE QUINCY BAY FOR NEW DOCK

That Quincy bay is the most desirable and has the best facilities for the new dock which the Directors of the Port of Boston are to build, was one of the arguments made Friday at the hearing before the joint legislative committee on Metropolitan Affairs at the state house. The hearing was on the recommendation of Gov. Walsh that the Port Directors be allowed to construct the dock out of its appropriation of $9,000,000. The argument in favor of Quincy bay was made by Edward Griffin and John J. Kelley, who also argued for a dock of the roller type.

Sponsor Has Not Been Chosen For L-3

48-Six---$1650
Six Cylinders

Olympic "46"---$1375
Four Cylinders

Both Models Center Control. Left Drive. Both Fully Equipped

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars— you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

Into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size—built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, streamline body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 33⅓ to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous . It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season, it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep—no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

CHURCH CONCERT IS BIG SUCCESS

A delightful concert was given by the choir of the First United Presbyterian church in John Ericson hall Friday evening, and was largely attended by the many friends of the choir. John McLennon was chairman of the evening and the first on the program was a number of instrumental selections rendered by a trio from the Fore River band, consisting of Messrs Nicholson, Nelson and Richard son, which were greatly enjoyed.

Selections were also given by the Clan quartette composed of Messrs. W. A. McGhee, Sinclair, Hughes, Haggie and H. Patterson.

Vocal selections were also rendered by Mr. Hayden and Mr. Patterson.

A sketch was given by 6 girls of the choir "The Love of a Bonnet," which was very amusing and well acted.

Mrs. Clipper,	Jeannie Russell
Kitty Clipper	Sadie McDonald
Katy Doolan	Marion Russell
Mrs. Hopkins	Ena MacDonald
Mrs. Fastone	Eliza McDonald
Dora Fastone	Bertha McLeod

The program ended by the choir singing "Tipperary," Miss Jeannie Russell singing the solo. Miss MacKellar, organist, was the accompanist of the evening. After the entertainment candy and ice cream were for sale, and games were enjoyed.

NONE WERE DISAPPOINTED

Forty Prizes Awarded to As Many Bridge Players

Forty prizes were given to 40 players at the auction bridge party at the home of Mrs. J. K. Barber, Elm avenue, Wollaston, on Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of Abigail Phillips Quincy chapter, D. A. R. The entire house was decorated with American flags.

The prizes were "heaped" on the dining room table, in fancy wrappers, and the winners, starting with the high scorer, made their choice.

Refreshments were frappe and fancy cakes. Assisting Mrs. Barber were Mrs. George Healey and Mrs. William M. Chase.

MISS CARRIE NEWCOMB

The body of Miss Carrie Newcomb of Dorchester, who formerly lived at Quincy Point, was brought home Friday for burial in the family lot in the Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The deceased was the daughter of the late Everett Newcomb and made her home with her father at East Howard and Winter streets. Their home was wiped out by fire in 1887, together with many other buildings on that corner.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

The continued case of Mills Baker breaking and entering and larceny at South Weymouth was heard. The court found probable cause to believe him guilty and held him in $500 for the grand jury.

FRIENDS TENDER SURPRISE PARTY

A pretty surprise party was tendered Patrick Azzatso in Franklin hall Friday night, about 150 attending, including friends from Braintree, Weymouth, Milton and Roxbury. James Fontona in behalf of the company presented Mr. Azzatso with a signet ring it being the first anniversary of his marriage to Miss Annie Fontona

The entertainment consisted of solos by John Turner and William Collins of Braintree, James Bison and Miss Helen Walsh; violin selections by Rocco De Penno who had to respond to numerous encores and Mr and Mrs. Joseph Balluchi gave a dancing exhibition which was greeted with much favor. The hit of the evening came when little 10 year old Angelina Fontona gave a dancing exhibition.

Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed until midnight with Charles Nagle as pianist. The committee in charge was James Fontana, Josephine Fontana, Helen Walsh, Annie Azzatso, and John Bryan.

SERVICES FOR MRS. GAHAN.

The funeral of Mrs. Dora Gahan, who died suddenly on Thursday, was held this morning from her home at 47 Chestnut street with a good attendance of relatives and friends.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. John's church by Fr. Walter A. Quinlan. The musical portion of the mass was by the regular choir under the direction of John Mahan, organist.

Mrs. Gahan was in her 70th year when she passed away. She is survived by one daughter, Miss Annie M. Gahan, two sons, Patrick Gahan of Quincy and John Gahan of Ireland, and eleven grand children. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

There were many floral remembrances and in the collection was a standing wreath from the employes at the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co., at Wollaston.

Quality-Compare Prices

The Goodrich Tire, like the trained athlete is all brawn and muscle—no fat

THE old Olympic Game promoters were great for what we call "form."

Symmetry, proportion, soundness and proper balance out-bid bulging muscles for favor—yes, and out-won, too, just as they will today.

Mere bulk never was synonymous with endurance—and the truth of this statement drives home with a bang, when you apply it to tires.

IF thick, heavy tires were the last word in tire construction, we could wipe out of existence a Goodrich Research and Test Department employing seventy people. We would take off the road a battalion of ten automobiles, that run twenty-four hours a day and every day in the year, grinding tires of all makes to pieces, just for the sake of information to us and eventual economy to the user of Goodrich Tires.

There is where we learn to cut out of a tire the material which gets the user nothing.

Of course, when we stripped tire price lists of their padding—fictitious values—we expected rivals to say we had stripped our tires.

IT was their only "come-back." They had to say that, in stripping down prices to the point where they were fair to dealer and consumer and left no room for injurious price-cutting tactics, we had stripped our tires of some quality, too.

THE Goodrich Tire, like the trained athlete, is all brawn and muscle—no fat. It represents an achievement—the ability to cut out the extra costs of manufacture, the extra costs of labor, of extra, needless material, and to give you the best, long-mileage, high-standard tire in the world.

There are padded tires as well as padded price lists.

Don't pay for padding.

Now don't forget this—we are talking in the main about Goodrich Safety Tread Tires, for they represent ninety per cent of our factory output for resale.

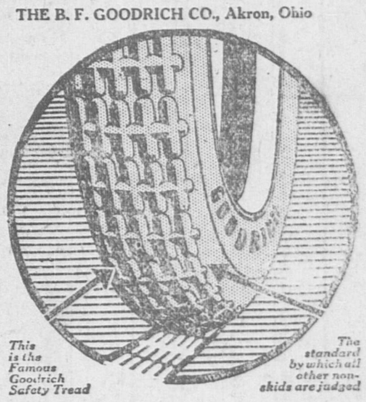
Furthermore, while we have put the padded prices on smooth tread tires on the run, the evil of padded prices on non-skid tires still is in evidence, as shown in table below:

THE B. F. GOODRICH CO., Akron, Ohio

Note the following table of comparative prices on non-skid tires. Columns headed "A," "B," "C" and "D" represent four highly-advertised tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES "A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30x3	$ 9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30x3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23 80	31.15	33.55
36x4½	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.



This is the Famous Goodrich Safety Tread

The standard by which all other non-skids are judged

THE RESOLUTION BUILD NOW and BUY NOW

is before the House of Public Opinion. The question is shall we remain idle or shall we go to work.

Are you ready for the question.

MR. FOOLISH:—I believe Mr. Chairman that we should not go to work yet. We do not know the future. We don't know who will win in the great war. The Germans may take the United States, Politics is unsettled and money is tight. Mr. Chairman I hope my opinion will prevail.

MR. UNDECIDED:—Mr. Chairman I move the Resolution be laid on the table seconded by Mr. EVERYTHING and NOBODY—Motion lost.

MR. ACTIVE INTELLIGENCE:—Mr. Chairman with due respect for the opinions of the previous speakers which no doubt are sincere from their points of view, yet I can not remain silent when I know that their opinions do not stand the test of reason. I am sorry that time and space do not permit me to go into this question to the extent I wish to. So I have to confine myself to very few remarks.

FEAR is the greatest enemy of mankind. The greatest hindrance in the way of human progress. It is the most contagious disease known its germ is the most deadly and the most difficult to subdue. In the degree we are afflicted in that degree we are miserable. I have been unable to reason out a single thing for which it is good. It can be cured to a great degree by the intelligent application of the mind. The FEAR of not succeeding has eliminated the chance of many. We need courage to do something the other fellow doesn't dare to do. We need imagination to see things that are not before our eyes and we need faith in the future. If we do something while others are idle we will certainly be ahead of the game. For these and many other reasons Mr. Chairman I believe we ought to work and BUILD—BUY and SELL the necessities of life. I move Mr. Chairman that the resolution be now put. Motion carried. There will be no session of the city council Monday evening, and the chances are that many of the members of the council may be found at the auto show. The annual concert and ball of Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F. will be held at Music hall next Thursday evening, and promises to be a pleasing social event.

BARRE CUTTERS VOTING TODAY

The granite cutters of Barre, Vt., are voting today on the proposition of accepting the offer of the granite manufacturers association. Acting under the direction of the executive board in Quincy the ballot being taken is a secret one. The ballot box is located in the corridor of city hall, and the box is amply protected by county authorities. Since the disturbance last Monday when 500 Italians raided the polling place and bore the ballot box away. 175 citizens have been deputized by Sheriff Frank H. Tracey, who has supplemented the county deputies and local policemen in forming a guard at city hall while the voting is in progress

It is generally contended that most of the English speaking members of the union are satisfied with the offer of the manufacturers and that the opposition comes from what is known as the I. W. W. or foreign element. This faction has held daily meetings to reaffirm their claim for an open for a seven hour day.

"LOST AND FOUND" AT BIG MEN'S MEETING

Rev. A. T. Kempton Gives One of His Famous Drama Sermons

"Things seen are mightier than things heard." Such is the quotation which heads the leaflet describing the character of the drama sermons of Rev. Austen T. Kempton of Cambridge, one of which the latter delivered at the big men's meeting held in Kincaide Theatre Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The truth of this quotation was well exemplified by the unusual address to which the large audience listened. It was more compelling, more impressive, than most sermons, and, if the truth must be told, more interesting.

The meeting was the second in the series being given by the Y. M. C. A. every Sunday afternoon. Doubtless the large number attending was due partly to the prominence of the actor-preacher, whose unusual method of preaching at his own church, the Broadway Baptist church of Somerville, since he inaugurated the drama sermon a year or more ago, has brought him often before readers of the Boston papers.

Mr. Kempton some time ago felt that the congregations at his church were not so large as they should be. He felt that his sermons were not sufficiently interesting and inspiring. Therefore he devised a new form of preaching the drama sermon. Instead of speaking he acted The congregation saw as well as heard. He himself took all of the parts in little original dramas and in the course of the various dialogues he brought out the truths which other ministers seek to bring out in the more conventional manner.

The meeting Sunday afternoon opened with a concert by the Wollaston Cadet Band, which played from three to half past three. Then there was congregation singing, led by Secretary Bromley. Charles H. Everett rendered several solos which were much enjoyed. After a brief talk by Mr. Bromley, in which he extended an invitation to the men of the city to attend the future meetings, the curtain was lifted, and the drama-sermon, entitled "Lost and Found" was presented.

The stage was divided into two parts. On one side was a street scene before a grocery store and a saloon, with a large packing case in the foreground. On the other side was a comfortable study, with chairs and electric lamp. In the center was a church steeple with a white cross formed by unlighted frosted electric light bulbs.

The stage was darkened and from the alley way to the side of the store comes Mr. Kempton, with hat pulled low over his head and coat turned up to indicate that the night is cold. Leaning against the packing case, which we learn was his bed the night before, he talks to himself, telling of how he became a tramp. He stole from his father, a country minister, and ran away. Since then he has repented but three letters sent home asking forgiveness and money have brought no response.

There enters a little dog, an imaginary one of course, whining with the cold. The tramp calls to the suffering animal and induces it to crawl into the box. Two little children, a boy and a girl, come in sight. In the imaginary conversation which ensues we learn that they have been driven from home, supperless, by a drunken father and mother. To them too the tramp affords shelter. They cry for food and the man starts for the free lunch counter in the saloon but is stopped by the singing in the church of "Where is my wandering boy tonight?" He determines not to enter the saloon and when the people come out of the church he asks and secures a few coins from them, then sends the children to buy food. The singing in the distance was by Mr. Everett.

The minister comes out. The tramp, John Harding is his name, discovers that it is his father. He hurries away, unrecognized. The minister goes home, and the scene shifts to the study, where Mr. Kempton becomes the minister. The latter tries to settle down in comfort but cannot do so, thinking as he is of his lost boy. He goes out to walk

BARRE STRIKE COMES TO END

Cutters Vote to Accept Offer of Manufacturers

By a decisive vote of 621 in favor and 32 against, the granite cutters of Barre, Vt., voted Saturday to accept the proposals offered by the Granite Manufacturers Association, which virtualy brings to an end the controversy that has kept upwards of 5000 cutters out of work since the first of March.

Dissenting members of the union, said to be of the I. W. W. element, which prevented a ballot being taken last Monday, gathered about city square but did not make any threatening movement. In anticipation of possible trouble, the city authorities had a large force of special deputy sheriffs on hand to preserve order and the ballot box, which was placed in the corridor of city hall, was carefully guarded. Last Monday when an effort was made to take a ballot this element mobbed the tellers and carried off the ballot box and destroyed it. These men desired an open vote and were declaring for a 7 hour day.

The proposition which the cutters have accepted provides for 42 cents an hour until May 1, 1915, 45 cents an hour from May 1, to March 1, 1916 and thereafter 50 cents an hour.

The outcome in Barre has been watched with interest in Quincy not only by granite cutters but by members of the manufacturers association as well. The present agreement in Quincy expires on March 1, 1916, and notices of any changes in the present agreement must be given by December 1 of the present year. That the Quincy cutters will ask for an agreement similar to that in Barre, which will be 50 cents an hour after March 1, 1916, is a foregone conclusion.

Under the agreement in Quincy today, however, there can be no suspension of work, lockout or strike, pending a settlement of the differences, which assures a peaceful settlement in Quincy.

Dr. Reynolds states that he has attended seven sets of twins since February 1st and that all are well at the present time.

ARREST 37 MEN IN TWO GAMING RAIDS

Officers Surround Pool Rooms And Prevent All Escape

Carl Lehto, 410 Water street, and Victor Ruuska, 34 Copeland street, proprietors of the pool rooms raided Saturday evening, pleaded guilty to keeping gaming nuisances before Judge Avery this morning.

There were 35 other defendants, who were charged with being present. Some of these pleaded not guilty.

Two private investigators who gathered evidence identified men they said were playing while they were on the premises. Eight officers participated in the raid.

Judge Avery ruled early in the hearing that men had a right to frequent a public pool room and were not guilty of an offense unless they participated or had knowledge gambling was underway.

Testimony of the defendants was taken in some cases through Rev. Mr Stenman, pastor of the Finnish Congregational church, who acted as interpreter.

The case was resumed this afternoon after the usual noon recess.

The names of the men arrested were given as follows:

Edward Johnson, John Hill, John Holmes, Henry Hokkanen, True Yaskela, Stehan Wirtanen, William Wester, John Littenen, Adam Tenhunen, John H. Runnalls, Oscar Ahole, Aldrisk Junkkuie, Otto Ingenen, Emil Onstum, Thomas Haverly, John Hokkanen, Philip Landukolm, John Lehto, Victor Kalio John Koski, Charles Tanni, John Erikson, Matti Dilila, Pete Lehanenen, Hjalma Mali, Thomas Maki, Victor Maki, Oscar Nyholm, William Nunni, Matti Natori, Axel Peterson, Alex Retti, Victor Ruuska, Emil Riska, Atti Rinni. They were all arraigned in court this morning for being present where gaming implements were found.

The raid, although the biggest of its kind ever made in the city, was not accompanied by the sensational features one would expect.

Inspector Goodhue and his men took possession of the Lehto premises and Acting Chief McKay was immediately driven to the Ruuska pool room.

The two score men in both places were taken by surprise and the entrance of the officers was followed by a deep silence. Suddenly the noise of a pool pill, dropped to the floor, was heard and the men who were standing with cues in their hands were ordered to remain where they were. The names were then taken and six juveniles, discovered in both places, were sent to their homes and will appear as witnesses.

But two were caught with pills in their pockets. Other pills were found on the floor and one man was sitting on another pill.

Four trips were required to bring the arrested men, patrolman and the paraphenalia back to headquarters and it was nearly midnight when all were booked.

Ruuska and Lehto were taken on a charge of keeping a gaming nuisance and the others were charged with being present where gaming implements were found.

The bail commissioners—William Marden, James McDonald and Frank Tirrell had a busy time recognizing the sureties furnished by friends of the men. The two principles were among the last to obtain bail. Theirs was set at $200 while the others had to furnish $25 cash surety.

There were 23 admitted to bail Saturday night and ten more on Sunday. Previous to the arrival of the friends of the men, the detention room was filled to overflowing, five and six being put in some cells.

There have been many complaints against certain pool rooms of the city it being claimed that gambling in these places is a common and every

A VICIOUS PRACTICE.

An interesting and important decision has been handed down by Judge Wait in the superior court Andrew L. Pollock of Arlington had petitioned the court asking that his divorced wife be compelled to convey to him certain property in that town, alleging that the estate was bought with his money and that he allowed title to be taken in the name of his wife.

The judge said the couple not only intended the house for their joint use at the time title was taken in the wife's name, but Pollock wished to prevent the property being taken to meet his obligations in business and this influenced him in having title taken in her name.

The judge says the intent to place the property beyond the reach of his creditors precludes a decree in his favor. He says one can hardly ask to be released from the consequences of being held to have done in earnest what he wished to have done only in appearance.

In the list of contemptible, vicious business practices, too often dubbed "sharp" rather than "crooked" as it really is, the practice of thus evading creditors takes high rank. It is a source of joy to see the court call so decided a halt and, we may hope that Mr. Pollock's loss will be heavy.

A MANLY COURSE.

The passing of the 63rd Congress brings to mind a word which should be said. Champ Clark is not a great statesman, in our opinion. Had he been chosen presidential nominee at the Democratic convention in 1912 we believe it would have been a calamity. As all the world knows he was the choice of the majority of the delegates and it was only the influence of William Jennings Bryan which turned the tide and put Woodrow Wilson in the White House.

Clark, naturally, cannot have the friendliest of feelings for the present Secretary of State. In the opening days of the present administration it looked as if this enmity would prove a dangerous rock for the ship which Wilson sought to steer. For a time Clark sulked, and who can blame him? What man who had the nomination for the presidency, perhaps even the great office itself, within his grasp could smile sweetly at the man who had robbed him of it and at the man who had won the prize? Since then his course has been more manly. He has attended to his important duties as speaker of the house and has worked heart and soul for the success of the party. Whether or not we like the man and his ways we must admire his attitude the last two years.

A GOOD ROAD.

The town of Athol during the past two years has showed an extraordinary growth,, according to the Christian Science Monitor, which identified the date when that growth began with the date of the completion of an up to date two mile highway through the heart of the town.

Regarding this road the Monitor says: "The two-mile road with the building of which Athol's recent era of development seemed to start, is a model specimen of fine macadamized roadway, extending from Miller's river, just below the thickly populated portion of the town, up through the business section to Athol Highlands and on to the agricultural fairgrounds near Lake Ellis. Through the business portion it is constructed of paving brick and the steeper part of the way to the highlands with paving granite. The cost of the road was about $30,000 per mile.

It would be an interesting and instructive pastime if citizens of this city would ponder over the possible streets in Quincy which could be responsible for such a development. Maybe some person can think of one. We can't.

At the big men's [illegible] the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at the Kincaide theatre, Sunday both the audience and Rev. Mr. Kempton were greatly disturbed by a number of thoughtless individuals who left the theatre at intervals during the drama-sermon. Persons who are given the privilege of attending such an inspiring and enjoyable meeting should at least respond with courteous attention. If they were unable to sit through Mr. Kempton's half hour drama they should have left the theatre before it commenced.

Financial Review

The drift of affairs this week has been more encouraging. Congress adjourned, much to the relief of business men with large responsibilities and the war, while lacking in decisive events, promises to be of shorter duration than sometimes feared.

Home business conditions are certainly becoming more satisfactory. There is no doubt that domestic trade conditions are generally sound. The volume of business, it is true, is moderate. This is partially due to lack of confidence and universal conservatism. The number of unemployed is large; railroad earnings and bank clearings confirm trade inactivity, and the spirit of economy has almost everywhere supplanted the spirit of extravagance. Without the war we should have probably had to face some reaction, and the wonder is that depression has not been worse.

Throughout our agricultural regions, there is little cause for complaint; the situation in the grain districts being generally satisfactory owing to the large foreign demand and good prices for all food products. The cotton belt is an exception, inasmuch as it feels the reduction of foreign demand as well as the lower prices which growers are forced to accept. What the next season will bring to the South is an interesting problem since it is certain that less cotton will be grown and more grain. Canada too, is making strenuous efforts to increase her wheat crop; so that the next harvest will plainly reflect war influences. Europe will be oblige to grow less on her farms during the coming season, and it will remain for other portions of the world, especially North America, to make good the deficiencies.

There is a better feeling and some lessening of depression in the cotton and woolen industries, which for months have been much embarrassed by dull business and serious uncertainties in the cotton and wool markets arising from the war. The distributing branches of trade are generally in sound condition, and though the volume of business continues below normal, jobbers are usually carrying small supplies and their credit position is sound. With the advent of spring some improvement is inevitable. Constructive work will begin and transportation will resume seasonal activity.

Our foreign trade is still much deranged, and imports show a persistent decline which will temporarily impair the national revenue from customs and may necessitate some new Government financing later on. Exports are well maintained in spite of restrictive conditions and the latest returns show a continued liberal excess of exports.

So far as the war is concerned, it looks as if its very severity would hasten the end. Public opinion has been considerably stirred by the embargo activities of the belligerents but the worst effects of these movements have already been felt, and there is no reason for Americans to take other than calm and hopeful views of the outcome. Peace cannot be expected immediately since the better prospects of success to the Allies will only strengthen their determination to carry the struggle to an end which they deem satisfactory. The strain of the war upon the belligerents has thus far been less severe than might be expected. Great Britain is showing extraordinary financial strength having so far met expenses with little difficulty, and also afforded important financial aid to Russia, Belgium and other belligerents. France is meeting the war successfully, being a country of exceptional financial strength.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

ditor, the Ledger;

Will you kindly allow me enough pace in your valuable paper to correct a wrong impression created by my having been misquoted, through error.

I did not throw cold water on the ommittee from the Board of Trade. did however strenuously object to he "I did it" attitude of Mr. LaBrecque, the facts being; the committees from several improvement associations of Quincy have been working on a proposition to obtain a reduction in the cost of gas and electricity for two months or more, they aving made many trips out in the oldest nights keeping the work oing. Having completed the organation, we do not relish having a man ke Mr. LaBrecque who having toasd his shins by the fire all winter id not made one move to help the ause along and who was at the meetig with Mr. Richards at the request f Senator Langelier only out of courtesy to the Board of Trade, standing p and saying he got this, or that in ifteen minutes.

My statement that the mayor was he goat meant simply this:—The may or was there in good faith doing all e could to help us along, also at the equest of Senator Langelier and it s he, and the senator who deserve ny credit to be given, and it was my nterpretation of Mr. LaBrecque's reort that it gave Mr. LaBrecque all he credit for what was done and noth ng to the mayor and senator Langeier, who deserve any and all credit to e handed out.

That there is something rotten in enmark was occasioned by the way nd manner in which the Board of rade handled the petition to the Gas nd Electric Commission in 1913, alowing it to be smothered so efficiatly and completely that less than 0 per cent of the members of the oard of Trade ever knew there was uch a petition and not three memers present at the meeting this week, ven to the presiding officer was aare of such a petition and that same etition would even now be buried om sight had it not been for the efforts of a few citizens who have not ved in Quincy more than one, two r three years. This alone speaks for self.

I did not say, "Mr. LaBrecque would et his." What I did say was If Mr. aBrecque undertook to make any setlement or agreement with the Electric Light Co. not satisfactory to the mprovement Associations, we would ot stand by him and instead he would et a fight and be whipped soundly. is for wanting the co-operation of he Board of Trade. We certainly do ant their assistance or we would ot have taken the trouble to go there o ask help and co-operation, but we o not intend to allow thechairman of he committee, who by youth, lack of xperience, and knowledge of the subect in hand does not fit him sufficiently to dominate the committee, ut we do want his co-operation.

Hoping you will give this as much ublicity as you did your original article, well knowing the absolute fairess of your paper and that you wish o publish only the facts, I wish to hank you in advance for this courtesy. I am,

Very respectfully yours,
Harry G. Clarke.

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars— you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

Into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size—built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, streamline body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 33⅓ to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous . It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season, it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep—no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

HOW TO FORM A COMPANY

Authoritative Article On Military Organization For Boys

The general desire on the part of the youths of the city to organize into boy scout companies, junior cadets, and other forms of semi-military combinations was brought to the attention of the Ledger

With that in mind Capt. Thomas Richard Callahan of Co. B., of the St. Mary's Cardinal Cadets of Cambridge was requested to pen his views on formation of a company. The Cardinal Cadets, it will be remembered, appeared here in 1913 and 1914 in the parade formed as part of the Fourth of July celebration. The brigade made a strong impression on the citizens on each occasion, not only because of its fine equipment and ability to maneuver but also because of the cardinal red uniforms worn by the boys. The article by Captain Callahan should be of unusual interest to the boys of Quincy who have been talking companies. The article follows:

The most important asset to the welfare of any body whether military or civic is "Discipline." Without this most important quality an organization is like a house without a foundation. It may have financial strength and a large membership, just as a house may be constructed of the best bricks, mortar and other building materials obtainable but without discipline will stagger and fall.

In all military organizations there must be a recognized head. This man, as we call him is known in military circles as the colonel. He has full power over the entire battalion and appoints the first group of officers. In the case of a new military organization these officers are captains. The higher ranks or titles are awarded to the captains proving themselves most efficient at the first prize drill of the organization.

The promotions or appointments are made in the following manner: the captain of the company who is awarded first prize is promoted to the rank of major. In event of the membership being large enough to permit the formation of two battalions he is senior major. The captain of the company which is awarded the second prize becomes junior major. These promotions might vary in other military organizations but this is the story of the system in the organization of which I am a member.

The question of officers and discipline disposed of we now turn our attention to the formation of the company. The company is composed of 40 men, three are commissioned officers, five are non commissioned officers, and the remaining 32 are privates, in two ranks of sixteen. These two ranks constitute four squads, each squad consisting of eight men, four men in the front rank and four men in the rear. The fourth man from the right in the front rank of a squad is called a corporal..

The duties of the commissioned officers are as follows: The captain is held responsible for the appearance and conduct of the entire company. It is no small task to be held responsible for the conduct, appearance and military efficiency of 37 boys, and when a captain is marching at the head of his company, although his face may be wreathed in smiles, he is constantly worried lest the judges or commanding officer find some great error in the execution of one of the military maneuvers.

The first lieutenant, is the captain's "right hand man." He is in command in the absence of the captain and is generally regarded as the next candidate for the captaincy of that particular company.

The second lieutenant is in command of the 2nd platoon when in platoon formation.

The first sergeant is a very valuable asset to any company. He is constantly on the jump, taking the attendance, or caring for the equipment.

The second sergeant and the third sergeant serve as right and left guides when the company is in company front formation.

The author will now attempt to explain some of the military terms used in his story. "Men,"—Regardless of how young a boy may be, the moment he dons a uniform and shoulders a gun, he is considered a man in military circles. "Private"—A cadet in the ranks is known as a private. "Company Front"— When the company is marching in ranks of 16, a front and rear rank, then it is said to be in "Company Front." "Squads"—When a company is divided into four squads, each division consisting of eight men then it is said to be in Squads."

Among Our Churches

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

"Sharing the Wolrd's Redemption." was the topic of Mr. Willmott's morning sermon which was appropriate to the celebration of the Lord's Supper which followed.

The emblems of which the church partakes speak of love which strengthens all endeavor. It is not enough to feel ecstatic, we must share in God's work to spread redeeming grace.

In thinking of the church we should think broadly as of a universal church made up out of every race and group of believers the world over, the tabernacle of the living God on earth.

Paul suffered social ostracism, persecution, the loss of all material good and encountered all kinds of perils for the church because he conceived it as the body of Christ. The love of the Eternal to the world was expressed by giving his Son to be a willing sacrifice. "It is finished" was not a dispairing but a triumphant cry. His church should also express its love by sacrifice.

Redemption though supernatural is not out of touch with human analogies but has its type in nature all around us. All progress is redemption and brought about by the sacrifice of the few for the many.

Man first sought his own pleasure, then learned to sacrifice pleasure for the good of the clan and finally the clan to the state. Men have gone down to death that we might enjoy freedom of conscience.

If to have a worthy society good men must suffer, so a heavenly man must suffer to raise us spiritually and unless we have the passion to serve we are none of his. We should be ready to subordinate ourselves to Christ and his church to fill up that which was lacking of his salvation for the church which is his body on earth.

Eighty-four per cent of all the members were present at the C. E. meeting. Miss Grace Fisher was leader and the topic was "How to Make the World Happier." It being consecration meeting the roll was called. The Cecilian quartet sang "Come to Our Hearts."

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

The morning service at the Wollaston Congregational church was as usual largely attended, and Dr. Sneath preached on "The Value of the Lord's Supper Today", taking his text from I Cor. 11:26. He first spoke of the simplicity of the communion service which in no way detracts from its great value, and does not make it a service of minor consequence. The service is of infinite value to the individual and several special points of value were brought out.

It is a service of remembrance. The question has been raised as to whether the custom was a command from our Savior, or only a request, or possibly neither and intended only for his immediate disciples. In any case it is a most appropriate simple service by which we proclaim to the world the fact that in the death of Christ centers our redemption from sin. It is very significant how many customs that were used in connection with the early Christian church have passed away. This feature of the Lord's Supper remains, and is considered a permanent institution. It is a service of spiritual fellowship with Christ and with one another. We gather here to get new inspiration and new strength to live in Christ.

It is a testimony to Christ, bringing us into a richer and purer spiritual life, a most important service, one that should command your most thoughtful attention and participation. Henry the Fifth went apart to a quiet place to pray and upon inquiry as to the reason said that he would rather meet his Lord than merely hear him talked about.

We were impressed with the feeling that it is a wonderful privilege to be allowed to proclaim in this way our love and loyalty to Christ.

At the communion service following three members united with the church, Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn E. Tilden, and Mrs. Frank A. Berry.

On Monday evening the Cabinet meeting of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor union will be held in this church, and supper will be served to delegates from all churches in the union.

On Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock will be held under the auspices of the Ladies' Benevolent Society a most interesting talk by Rev. John J. Walker, treasurer of the Mass. Home Missionary society. Topic, "Nooks and Corners of Massachusetts."

On Thursday evening at 7.45 regular mid-week service, Topic "Helping Others."

PARK AND DOWNS.

The morning was devoted to communion service with infant baptism. In the evening, the pastor, Rev. Wm. B. Ayers, continued his theme on "Great Religious Lesson from the War," it being the second on Ireland.

The speaker reviewed the condition of modern Ireland and compared Irish and English characteristics. From the 800 years of strife between the two races of people the speaker drew a valuable lesson. He said that there are other evils in the world as terrible in their consequences as war. More people have been wounded and crushed this day by harsh words by ridicule and witticism and by selfish cruel thoughtless conduct than on the blood soaked fields of Europe.

As long as races differ in character so that their temperaments clash and jar and conflict there will be warfare. As long as one race or nation tries to impose its qualities upon another there will be rebellion. We can not have peace by sullenly submitting to the most powerful. The only solution is a common standard of conduct not identified with any nation and not the imposition of any conqueror. The world needs gentleness of manners. It needs considerate sympathy

Jesus is the only perfect gentleman who, separate from all nations and arms, has power to enforce His personality. His gospel furnishes the only code upon which the types and races of men would be willing to agree.

Then followed a strong plea for the individual to accept this same standard for his own daily life.

The choir gave very pleasing selections, also vocal solos by Mrs. Hazard and Miss Daisy Brown, and trombone solo by C. A. Richardson, accompanied by Miss Emily Bjorkman.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN

At the morning service the musical portion of the service was rendered by the Girls Choir. The pastor read a helpful poem entitled "Day by Day" by Dinah Maria Craik and preached upon "Daily Helps for Daily Living," mentioning patience, a definite purpose, work, ideals, faith as helps in making daily life divine.

At noon the minister's preparatory class considered the fundamentals of spiritual christianity.

At the Y. P. R. U. Miss Horst had charge of the meeting and Mrs. Samuel J. Ripley was the soloist.

At the special Lenten service in the evening Rev. Lyman Vincent Rutledge of Cambridge was the visiting preacher and Leslie E. Woodworth, tenor of Boston the soloist. These special services for the deepening of the moral and religious life are attracting many not connected with the church.

The regular monthly meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club will be held Tuesday evening, in the church vestry. Dinner at 6.30. The speaker will be Frank Pope of Leominster. Subject: "Some of the tragic and humorous phases of Life." This will probably be the last time that the club meets in the vestry, as the new parish home is nearing completion.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Alliance will be held Wednesday, at 2.30 o'clock in the vestry of the Methodist church. The program will be in charge of Mrs. eGo. W. Bennett of South Weymouth, assisted by Mrs. Albert B. Briggs, Mrs. Charles Estes, Mrs. Sylvester Brown and the minister. Tea will be served.

The Young People's Religious Union will hold a social party in Alpha hall, Friday evening.

The entertainment committee of the church will hold a social party in Brasee hall Saturday evening.

The general pulpit exchange between the members of the Quincy Minister's association takes place Sunday morning, March 14. Rev. Merrill C. Ward pastor of the First Universalist church, and Rev. Carl G. Horst will exchange pulpits.

Rev. Frank A. Powell, the new minister of All Souls church in Braintree, will be the preacher at the Lenten service Sunday evening.

The annual collection for the work of the American Unitarian association will be taken Sunday.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

At the morning service Rev. Joseph Walther preached on the subject "Manna and Christ." Text Exodus 6-4.

Among other things the pastor said that the miracle of the manna was one of the most wonderful in the old testament, not only because it is a miracle, but because it is a type of Christ. This is proven by reading the 6th chapter of John.

Manna was a free gift from God. John 6-31. "He gave them bread from heaven to eat." So Christ, Read John 3:16.

God sent the manna when the children of Israel were in need. So he sent Christ to all the world to save them and he is with us yet. Today Christ must be appropriated or trodden under foot.

The manna could not be gathered except by stopping and the Israelites had to bend down in order to gather it. This is not without significance. The heart of man is filled with pride and must be humbled before he is ready to cry "God be merciful to me, a sinner."

Manna continued until Canaan was reached. So Jesus said, "I am with you unto the end."

At the evening service the pastor preached on "Not Ashamed of the Gospel."

Tuesday evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of William Arthur, 137 Hollis avenue.

Wednesday beginning at 10.00 A. M., an all day meeting will be held in the chapel, to pack a barrel for the Mather School, Beaufort S. C. Clothing and shoes of all kinds and sizes solicited, should be sent early.

Thursday afternoon at 4.00 the pastor's class in the Fundamental Principles of the Christian Faith, will meet in the chapel. Boys and girls from eleven years upwards are urged to be present. Parents are asked to co-operate.

Thursday evening, at 7.45 a public meeting of the Nearer and Farther Lights society, will be held in connection with the regular meeting for Praise, Prayer and Testimony in the chapel. Miss May Huston will speak on "Immigration" as she sees it. Mite boxes should be brought to this meeting.

HALL PLACE M. E.

Rev. P. S. Neldon of the Hall Place M. E. church preached on the text "Is it I?" at the morning service. This is the first in a series of sermons based on events in our Lord's life during the last week before His crucifixion.

The pastor pictured the disciples gathered around the table at that last supper with their Lord and Master as the Christ tells them that one of them will betray Him and vividly portrays the dismay of the disciples as they begin to question "Is it I?"

"We of this community who are gathered within these four walls this morning have been permitted to feast at the table of Jesus Christ. That table that He has for you and I are some of the privileges which are being meted out to people of Christian lands today. He has permitted us to enjoy the blessings of this Christian age we are living in and that is one of the things we are partaking of from this table of Christ. Then there are the special blessings that come from the hand of God, inumerable, uncountable as we are seated about the table of Christ and when the word sounds out that someone about that table is going to betray the Master, do we ever stop to ask, "am I one of those that are going to betray the Master?"

Jesus Christ when He was talking was talking about the things of the future, about the things that were to come to pass near at hand but as He spoke He spoke about the man who was right there in the midst that would betray Him because Jesus knew what was in that man's heart.

As Christ looks down upon this world He knows what is in your heart. As He looks down this morning, does He see in that heart of yours, this heart of mine, things that mean that we are going to betray Him this coming week?

Do you know that we are inclined to look at Judas Iscariot as the darkest of beings, inclined to think of him; Oh how could a man that had been permitted to know of His blessings ever be so heartless as to betray the Christ and yet how much better are we than Judas.

This thought brings us to the question "Is it I."

These men began searching their hearts, their lives and their motives and their intentions. They began searching out themselves to see if there were those things about them that were going to betray the best friend, they ever had. They didn't stop to think about the one that was sitting next to them but they began to think about themselves and then to ask Jesus the question "Is it I?"

The subject of the evening service was "The Betrayal."

J. M. Francis led the Epworth League Devotional service at 6 P. M. on "The promise of sonship."

Next Sunday Rev. Dillon Bronson will hold a business session at 10 A. M. and will preach at 10.30. He will also administer the rite of infant baptism and observe Holy Communion.

FIRST PARISH.

"Of what use is a Church'" was the subject of Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson's sermon Sunday morning. As preliminary to this question he considered first the source of authority in our churches.

He said that there are two sharply contrasted theories in existence among our Christian churches. According to one theory all authority is vested in the mechanism of the church itself. It is a storage battery of Divine Power and its chosen officials are authorized to speak with absolute authority and the assurance of divine sanction. Authority comes from above. The duty of the people is to obey.

According to the other theory authority comes from the people themselves. The church acquires its power from the religious co-operation loyalty, faith and consecration of its members. A congregation of worshippers comes together seeking after God, with a common faith in the teachings of Jesus Christ. By their combined religious activities they constitute a church. This church may unite with other similar churches to form a larger organization; but the final source of authority is in the individual church and its own members.

The first of these theories reached its definite form in church of Rome under Constantine the Great who organized christianity as a bulwark to his imperial throne. And that form, with various modifications since the Protestant Reformation, has persisted in different denominations down to the present day, though with a growing tendency to the assertion of at least partial authority on the part of the people.

The second theory came into being in the Independent Congregations organized in England something over 300 years ago . spreading thence to Holland, and coming into full expression in New England Congregationalism.

Both of these forms have been useful in the development of humanity since each has been vitalized by faith consecration, loyalty, self sacrifice and character in the lives of its true devotees. But the first has had the advantage in point of centralized authority; the second in its appeal to the spirit of individual liberty. In other words the first has been monarchical in its tendencies, the second democratic.

It has naturally followed that the congregational form has tendered toward liberalism in thought, the individual being less hampered by ecclesiastical authority. It was natural if not inevitable, a century ago, when the controversy became acute among the congregational churches of New England over the tenets of Calvinism, that the original Pilgrim and Puritan churches in Plymouth, Barnstable, Scituate, Hingham, Quincy, Dorchester, Boston, Watertown, Salem etc-all joined in the "Unitarian" side the controversy and are now affiliated with the American Unitarian Association. It is equally natural, and to be expected that those churches which have nominally retained the Calvinistic or Trinitarian creed have become more and more liberal in their interpretation of that creed until the lines of division between the two branches of New England congregationalism have become less and less distinct and are likely to disappeal altogether before the close of the present century.

All this has tendered to emancipate the individual from ecclesiastical domination and for a time it has decreased the authority of the church. The same process has been going on in our form of civil government, so that today it is democracy that is on trial, both in the church and in the nation. Are the people sufficiently loyal to their professed ideals of civil and religious liberty to make those ideals vital and commanding. This is the challenge which comes today to the people of all those churches whose authority rests upon the co-operation the faith, the loyalty, the devotion, and the consecration of independent lives. The great need and the great use of these churches today is to arouse them selves to the fact that, under God, the preservation of our present form of civilization rests upon their earnest loyalty to the noble ideals for which these churches stand. This is the responsibility with which we stand face to face. If we fail to meet it we are inviting chaos and after that a new despotism or the old despotism renewed.

RIMBACH BROUGHT BACK TO THE HUB

Missing Cashier Is Caught at Nashua With a Woman

Boston, March 8.—After having been missing for more than five months, Charles M. Rimbach, former manager of the Crawford House, was arrested at Nashua, N. H., together with Mrs. Estelle Coogan, who was at one time employed at the hotel as a stenographer. They were brought back to Boston on indictment warrants charging them with statutory offenses.

Rimbach disappeared Oct. 3, 1914, leaving his wife and family. The day before this he announced he was going with the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company to Baltimore, and placed the hotel management in the hands of Frank A. Wheeler, giving him power of attorney.

Three weeks later a meeting of the creditors of the Crawford House was called to discuss the financial tangle alleged to have been brought about by Rimbach's absence. Joseph A. Gahm was later appointed receiver.

HUBBARD GIVES LAST OF SERIES

Opera Talk on "Parsifal" is Much Enjoyed

The last of the series of opera talks held by the Wollaston Woman's club was given by Havrah W. L. Hubbard of the Boston Opera House on Saturday evening when "Parsifal" was the opera presented.

The affair was held under the direction of the program committee of which Mrs. Charles R. Safford is chairman and the speaker was gracefully introduced by Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes, president of the club.

Mr. Hubbard prefaced his exposition of the opera with a description of the canditions prevailing in Germany when Wagner produced this work and a resume of the present day status of opera in this country.

Henry W. Savage was given the credit of having done more to bring grand opera to the American public then any other man. "Not until we have opera for opera's sake," said Mr. Hubbard, "will it be a success."

"Parsifal" was described as the most impressive of spectacles, with one exception, the Passion Play. Owing to the strong opposition Wagner met with at Munich the opera was brought out at Bayreuth.

The theatre at this place, dearly loved by Wagnerians, was described and an interesting account given of settings surrounding the production of this opera which brought with it the atmosphere in which the operas were produced in this stage of true art.

Mr. Hubbard described "Parsifal" as one of the poorer of Wagner's works in which the revealment of monastic asceticism was of the very worst and in which he had lost all of the fine philosophy of his other works.

"There is no other," said the speaker "in which he does not teach the great belief that mans redemption comes through the redeeming love of woman." There are also weaknesses in the musical structure of the opera.

In the description of the opera proper all the wonderful scenic effects were clearly pictured and the dramatic properties of the lines accurately delineated. Mr. Hubbard was accompanied on the piano by Floyd Baxter who added much to the evenings enjoyment through his interpretation of the music of this great composer.

The opera, woven around the story of the grail and the order of knighthood formed through it, was an interesting one and lost none of its attractiveness in the telling.

A large audience filled the hall and loud applause at Mr. Hubbards conclusion testified to the pleasure with which the evening had been spent.

STEAL CANOE FROM YARD

J. C. Hersome, 292 Beale street, reported to the police Sunday that his 17 foot canoe, "Viola" had been stolen from his yard.

The canoe was painted red, and was partially sandpapered. The name was in gold letters on both sides and a gold strip, 1-1-2 inches deep run around the top.

The canoe was probably stolen while Mr. and Mrs. Hersome were visiting Saturday evening. The Metropolitan Park and Boston police have been notified.

The Germans still believe the Olympics will be held at Berlin in 1916

John E. Arnold has set a new three string club record at the Cochato club using Boston pins. His new mark is 368.

Harvard has a good soccer outlook and next fall may play the Fore Rivers at Quincy Point.

The B. A. A. has picked March 22 for the New England amateur boxing championships. The following will be the classes.

Bantams, pounds and under	108
Featherweight, pounds and under	115
Special weight, pounds and under	125
Light weight pounds and under	135
Welterweight pounds and under	145
Middleweight pounds and under	158
Light heavyweight pounds and under	175
Heavyweight, (over) pounds and under	175

Hanson's single of 161, rolled at Wardwells in the Elks league matches Thursday evening, is the biggest made since "Jacka" Joyce rolled his city single record of 165. Hanson's score demonstrated what is possible when advantage is taken of the drops. Both big strings are the property of the Elks league. To rob them of that glory means more than wonderful rolling.

Capt. Maloneys team has a chance to take first place in the Elks league. This week they roll the Hanson five and their competitors in the final will be the Hildebrand submarine crew. With a tough break for the Larkins, always a possibility, would create as much havoc as an earthquake.

Poehler heads the Suburban league with an average of 111 and the City league with a mark of 108.

Mark Gill of Atlantic with an average of 100 tops the Colubus league bowlers of Boston.

The MacGregors have increased their lead in the Scottish clans league by four points. The standing of the first three teams:

MacGregor	70	14	29,986
McPhail	66	18	29,853
Ramsay	65	19	29,228

EXPECT TO HAVE FAST B. B. TEAM

The Makarias expect to have a fast base ball team this season. Many promising players have signified their intention of trying out for the team. At the next business meeting a manager will be selected and plans made for the coming season.

Many of the former stars of that team of a few years ago are in the city and there is some talk of opening the season between the past and present players of that aggregation. The new team, if the game is arranged will have to hustle for Fred Smith Walter Troupe, James Michael, Stanley Bates, Edward Jenkins, Mathew Nichol, George McKenzie, Russell Bates, Theodore Penley, Russell Tupper, G. H. Eggleton, Rupert Ganzel, can all take their positions.

The old stars will miss the services of their coach, Charles Ganzel, the former Boston National star, who has passed away since their team took the city championship.

The only old player not available is Dr. Harold Curtis, known throughout the city as "Honey" Curtis, who is at present in Alexandria, Egypt, where he is conducting a dental parlor with Dr. Alexander Bonney.

CUT DOWN GIANT ELM

Big Tree Falls After Life of 161 Years

The fine elm tree in the yard of Edward D. Barrett on Elm street, known throughout the Bigelow street district as the monarch of the giants, was cut down Saturday afternoon after four days preparation for the event.

The tree when examined proved to be 161 years old, a careful count of the rings in the stump being made by Roland Estey, the youngest tree surgeon of the city, who was in charge of the gang of men who did the work. The removal was brought about because the elm beetle had made its home in the tree and was causing considerable damage. Since the beetle attacked its limbs weighing 100 pounds or more have fallen.

The final smashes which caused the fall of the monarch were put in about three o'clock and the tree toppled over in the presence of nearly 50 men, women and children of the neighborhood who had watched the surgeons trim the upper branches off. This was necessary so the upper part would not crush the nearby houses.

It is thought the tree will produce from 12 to 15 cords of wood. It will be split into big pieces for open fire places.

LIFE LONG FRIEND.

Rev. Daniel Monroe Wilson, who officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Mary F. Spear was a life long friend of Mrs. Spear, and was deeply affected by her death. During their younger days Rev. Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Spear were residents of what was then known as Washington Village, South Boston, and were school mates. The friendship formed then has always been continued. During the services he spoke of those early days and was visibly affected, and several times being on the verge of breaking down.

Of Mrs. Spears classmates at that time there are but four now living and two of these, besides Rev. Mr. Wilson, were at the services. There was a wealth of beautiful flowers which almost hid the casket from view. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. Mrs. Spear is survived by a husband, a son and daughter, Horace E. Spear and Miss Lottie B. Spear.

GOLD WATCH FOR MILTON CHIEF

Maurice Pierce, of the police department of Milton is rounding out 25 years of service as the superintendent and the 21 patrolmen of the department have presented him with a handsome gold watch in honor of the event.

The presentation was made by patrolmen Fallon, Higgins and Hagen, on behalf of the men, and was a fine tribute as well as a real surprise.

Chief Pierce is probably one of the best known police chiefs in Massachusetts. He has the reputation of filling the duties of his office without fear or favor. He is a keen prosecutor of violators of the auto laws and it is seldom that he does not accompany a patrolman to the Quincy district court and conduct the case for the town. His department is an efficient one and a great part of its success it is aknowledged has been the support given the officers by Supt. Pierce.

CANDIDATES FOR MILTON OFFICES

Eight well known men in Milton are candidates for three places on the Board of selectmen. Maurice A. Duffy, the oldest selectman on the present board, and George R. Eaton were renominated. The town election will be on March 13.

James S. Russell, chairman of the warrant committee was also renominated defeating Jacob Turner, chairman of the board. The latter will not run on nomination papers.

All other defeated candidates are running on nomination papers. They are Joseph L. Shea, George L. Anhony, James F. Mitchell, Edward E. Ford and William A. Will.

Only one platform is presented and that is Mr. Shea's. He favors a complete motorization of the fire department and it is thought that he has struck a popular desire in the town.

Other contests include those for auditor and School Committee. J. Herbert Raymond and Ernest P. Libby are the caucus nominees for auditor and Fred N. Krim and Charles F. Williams are contesting on nomination papers. For School Committee, Frank E. Orcutt and Frank P. Fanning are the caucus nominees, and running against them are Stephen C. Mitchell and Frank L. Richards.

PRAISE FROM A LEADER.

Boston Post Comments At Length on Ledger's Big Edition.

In Friday's issue the Boston Post under a two column head commented upon, and in part reproduced, the Ledger's big 12 page "Build Now" edition issued Thursday. The editorial of that edition entitled "Build Now" was reprinted in full.

The Post early in January went into the "Build Now" movement with its usual energy and thoroughness. It opened a daily department, engaged a "Build Now" editor, and did a great deal to boost the movement in Greater Boston.

The Post article reads in part as follows:

The Quincy Daily Ledger is the first paper in the country so far as the Post "Build Now" investigator has been able to learn, to take up the campaign which the Post initiated in January in this energetic and novel fashion, and the "Build Now" campaign of the Quincy Daily Ledger certainly demonstrated beyond a doubt that business, big and little, and labor, employed and unemployed, approves of the "Build Now" plan of stimulating business as a sound and economic method of effectually remedying the unprecedented unemployment conditions that prevailed during the past winter.

The Post investigator received an inkling of what "Build Now" has done for the unemployed of Quincy a few days ago when speaking with the foreman of a Dorchester builder who, because of the Post campaign found that he could save 15 per cent on each house built and accordingly started to build six two-family houses

The foreman was standing by one of the cellars that was being dug and he pointed to two teams loaded with Quincy granite.

"A few weeks ago, those Quincy men were working only a few days a week," said he "and now because of this job and several others right about this part of the city, they have been working every day but Sunday."

WOLLASTON GLEE CLUB.

The Wollaston Glee club offers special attractions for the Spring concert Monday evening March 29th in the school hall, Beale street. The club always presents a most attractive program of Men's choruses to its patrons in itself a concert of great merit, it, however has made a practice of giving its friends more than they expect by adding to its own numbers selections by the best talent available.

This season is high water mark in the musical work of the organization and in the assisting soloists also. Mme. Cara Sapin, contralto of the Boston Opera company delighted a large audience at the first concert in January. For the Spring concert the soloist is to be Mme. Evelyn Scotney, prima donna of the Boston Opera Company, and the most popular soprano on the American concert platform today. Mme. Scotney is to sing n Aria and two groups of songs. Music lovers and students are planning to attend this concert, the musical event of the year in Quincy.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS?

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Quincy Citizen Gives a Valuable Hint.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is where danger often lies. You should realize that these troubles often lead to dropsy or Bright's disease. An effective remedy for weak or diseased kidneys is Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the experience of a resident of Quincy who has tested Doan's.

C. P. Russell, 37 Washington street, Quincy, says: "My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly. I also suffered from pains in my back. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and the first box relieved me. I intend to continue taking this medicine."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Russell had. Foster-Milburn Co. Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

FANS ARE AGAIN FASHIONABLE

Admirable Are the New Feather Models Adorned With Fluffy Tinted Butterfly Decorations. Ostrich, Peacock, Eagle and Even Turkey Plumage Used.

AFTER holding a comparatively unimportant place in the affections of the smart woman the fan, with all its exquisite daintiness and coquetry, has been returned to favor. Not only are fans in vogue, but they are rapidly becoming more popular, and manufacturers are hastening to supply what they believe to be a real—if long delayed—want. Certainly the fan is a charming feature of a lady's toilet, and many a bashful or awkward debutante has found it her salvation.

The fans which have been put upon the market are admirably designed and completely in accord with the smart costumes of the season. One of the most admirable of the new fans is the Mme. Butterfly model, a wonderful affair of white sticks and fluffy feathers. The butterfly motif is applied to the fan in colored feathers. When not in use it may be suspended by a ribbon. The feather fan is seen in many forms and appears to be the style leader. However, any one fortunate enough to possess a real lace fan need not fear to flourish it, not matter what the period to which it belongs.

Chiffon fans, plain and variously decorated, are also to be had. The plain green chiffon fan is affected by women who like extreme style novelties. The soft chiffon is affixed sometimes to sticks of gray green mother-of-pearl, which are exquisitely carved.

Feather fans in which peacock, turkey and even eagle's feathers feature are triumphs of art. However, there is nothing prettier than the ostrich fans. These are presented in imposing size in black, gray and white. For the debutante the white fan is, of course, the only thing permissible. One of the latest models is carried by the model pictured here. The dance frock which she wears is of pussy willow taffeta, with gathered tunic draped in uneven length over a very short foundation skirt. The right side of the surplice bodice is of silk, the left side being of crystal embroidered silk net with an inset vest of white tulle. A soft girdle of pussy willow taffeta drapes the hips. A narrow banding of silver embroidery finishes the sleeves and tunic.

CHOOSING CLOTHES.

Important Thing Is to Consider Question of Color.

Every woman longs to look her best But the matter is not quite so simple as it sounds. A few hints on the subject will be useful to those who are very often a little at sea in the matter.

Perhaps the most important thing to consider is the question of color.

Remember, if you are a brunette, that it is not necessary for you to shun blue and keep to red. You can, if not sallow, wear most shades of light blue, only they must be the right tones.

Don't wear black, mauve or some greens if the hair is black and the complexion swarthy. Prefer yellow, scarlet and pink.

If the eyes are blue, the hair dark brown and the complexion inclined to be muddy, avoid all delicate shades of lavender, pink and blue.

In choosing a hat consider not only the complexion, but also the shape of the head and the contour of the face. Pay the greatest attention to the hat. If it is right much else will be forgiven or pass unnoticed.

Wall Marks From Pictures.

If a small brass headed tack is driven into each lower portion of the picture frames it prevents the marks on the walls that are so troublesome, as the pictures are held from the wall a fraction of an inch, thus allowing the air to circulate behind them.

Good Form

Novel Evening Party.

A family of fun loving girls recently gave an amusing entertainment. It was called a nose and goggle party. Each guest wore a false nose and goggles. The noses were purchased or made of heavy cardboard covered with chamois and were not removed until after refreshments were served.

As the guests arrived each was given a card perforated with ribbon run through in order to wear the card around the neck so that every one could see it.

The cards had on one side a number by which each guest was known, on the other side a list of figures—1, 2, 3, etc. (as many figures as there were guests)—with a space opposite each figure for a name.

In the course of the evening each person guessed who the others were. Of course, with intimate friends the familiar voices revealed the personality. In many cases if the voice was disguised this was not easily done, and much amusement and many absurd guesses were made.

As each guess was made the name was placed opposite the number on the card of the guesser corresponding to the number of the person whom he or she was trying to identify. For instance, if some one thought he knew No. 4 he turned his card and wrote the name opposite No. 4, etc. It was voted by all who were present as a most original and amusing way of spending an evening.

Take Off Your Hats, Ladies.

While in these days an audience of women knows hats should be removed when they are likely to obstruct the view of those sitting in the rear, occasionally there is some one who either forgets or is regardless of the rights of others. Then it becomes the unpleasant duty of ushers, perhaps solicited to act as such only for the occasion, to notify the women who have forgotten. Often—too often, indeed—the request is met with an air of haughty disdain and a distinct refusal.

Always in these cases the ugly note should be avoided, and the saner, pleasanter method of the request in a conciliatory tone will be the more likely to receive prompt and polite response. Sometimes a woman of tact, sitting behind an offender, may accomplish the end by saying in a soft voice and with great courtesy, "Madam, I am so sorry to inconvenience you, but I cannot see the stage and am going to ask you as a great kindness to remove your hat."

Of course, any one can call an attendant and turn the unpleasant job over to him. But this is not always practicable. There may be crowded seats, where it is difficult for him to make his way to the offender's side, and a commotion results.

If the wearer of the hat is a woman of good manners and breeding, but has simply forgotten, she will make an excellent reputation for graciousness by instantly removing the hat, turning slightly and saying, "I am so sorry I have inconvenienced you and hope you will pardon me."

Making Guest Comfortable.

The welfare of the country house guests should always be carefully considered. Their quarters should not only be attractive, but as comfortable as possible.

Much has been said on comforts and conveniences, such as a plentiful supply of clothes hangers and slipper trees in an empty closet, a well appointed sewing basket, an equally well equipped writing desk or table, a stock of various kinds of pins and hatpins and other useful toilet accessories for the guest room. But one thing you must remember which, just at this season, is most important and too often overlooked—a generous supply of water in the rooms where the guest must use an old fashioned washstand.

So many country homes, even quite pretentious homes at that, have still but the one bathroom and no running water in the bedrooms. Is there anything more discouraging after a long trip than to be ushered into such a room if the "skimpy" size of bowl and pitcher warns you not to be extravagant in your ablutions? There is really no excuse, for one of the large tin "fillers," such as chambermaids carry, costs but little, and, painted white or any desired color, is in nowise detrimental to the appearance of a room.

Street Car Manners.

If you are a street car rider don't delude yourself into thinking you ride in a taxicab or your own limousine or brougham. There is nothing to be ashamed of in riding in a street car. The majority of civilized mankind do it when they have the fare. But there is a little code of street car manners that every street car rider should heed. To begin with, act as if you were in a street car. Wear clothes suitable to the car. Remember that the small fare you pay entitles you only to your own place. A baby with sticky fingers or a laborer with muddy feet may sit next to you. Such a condition may, of course, be distasteful to you, but it is quite legitimate. You can ask the baby's mother to keep the baby's fingers from your coat, and you can pull your skirts away from the laborer's boots. But you cannot ask either the laborer or the baby to get out of the car.

WOMEN ARE HONEST.

Merchant Uses Dime as Bait in Test of Honesty.

How many people would return a dime that was given to them at a store in excess of their rightful change?

A merchant here interested in human honesty in small matters has just carried out a test, which shows these results: That two-thirds of the persons who notice the extra dime pocket it and walk away; that between the men and the women a little over 30 per cent. of the former are honest, while the women are divided evenly, half and half, and that 32 per cent. of the persons who get small change at a counter do not bother to count it.

This Ellicotville merchant struck upon the dime as the coin which when added to a cutomer's change would excite the least suspicion, and at the same time be of enough value to test unconsciously his or her honesty. So 25 of these silver pieces were given to the clerk to give to the first 25 customers getting back change.

The first person to buy, a woman, gave a bill of large denomination. In the considerable change she received was the extra dime. She took her bundle in one hand and stuffing the change into her pocketbook with the other hurriedly left the store.

A man came next, who laid down a half dollar for a 10-cent cigar. Five dimes were his change. He counted them surely enough, but seeing the clerk engaged in other work, walked away without further words.

These two customers had been watched by the merchant himself, who was not visible. Neither of the next two customers were careful enough to examine the change, and they went away without knowing they were honestly dishonest.

The fifth, however, a woman, counted her change as carefully as though she were often cheated, and perceiving the unexpected dime made her exit quickly. It was only the sixth person, this time a woman, who counted the change and returned it.

Of the 25 customers tested only five others besides this woman went back to the clerk to tell him he had made a mistake. Of this total of six, four were men. Opposed to the six were 11 customers who knowingly walked off with the extra dimes, nine of them men and two of them women. One started to return his coin, but with a second thought arranged things with his conscience and walked off without telling.

The character of the eight customers who hustled away without glancing at their change interested the invisible merchant. Three were young men who wished to make an impression of carelessness with money. Four were business men who were honestly in a hurry. The eighth, a woman was evidently a thoughtless and careless one.

The merchant was personally acquainted with each of his customers. All had reputations for integrity and honesty. He is convinced that had the amount been larger none would have failed to return it.

Another example of petty dishonesty in another part of the store was being observed at the same time. A woman about to buy candy saw that the clerk's attention was elsewhere. From an open pile of candy she put several pieces into a bag already weighed out from it. When her turn came to buy she was careful to select her extra filled bag, for which she paid 10 cents —New York Sun.

MRS. JOHN P. BIGELOW.

All that was mortal of Sarah Gill Osborn Bigelow, wife of John P. Bigelow, was laid to rest Thursday in the family lot in Mount Wollaston cemetery. The casket was covered with floral offerings from many friends.

Hers was just an every day life nearly sixty years being passed in the home on Franklin street, South Quincy. As a school girl she was fond of out door life and roamed the broad fields of the two farms surrounding the President Adams houses and Harvey Fields. She was an ardent lover of flowers, sunshine and God's fresh air.

In 1867 she married John P. Bigelow, a schoolmate, the union being blessed with nine children, a large family as in old fashioned times. Divine Providence called home Louise, Homer, and the Baby but through her life her intense faith looked forward to meeting them again in that "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," just across the River of Space.

Nothing in this life equals a mother's love and in the passing out of this mother there remains a memory of a sweet Christian spirit to comfort her husband, two daughters, Grace and Bessie and four sons, John, Martin, Loring and Jabez, also many friends and neighbors.

The Daily Ledger is newsy every day. Are you a regular reader?

HALL TOO SMALL FOR BIG PARTY

The souvenirs were awarded to Miss Sadie Mattenson, Miss Emma Gustafson and Miss Lillian Wallin, Edmund J. Paradise, Harold Hanson, and Axel Boijeson.

Dancing was enjoyed until midnight music being furnished by Miss Dagma Nelson, Charles Bastin and John Matson.

The committee was Axel Glandt, A. Weedman, August Johnson, Charles Johnson, Carl Johnson, Swan Cedarstrom, Andrew Hager, Mrs. Hilda Cedarstrom, Mrs. Oscar Jacobson.

POLICE RAID EIGHT HOTELS

Three deputy sheriffs and a squad of 25 picked officers from Brockton and other South Shore towns, raided eight hotels at Nantasket Saturday evening. The warrants were issued by Judge Kelley. The proprietors will be summoned to court to answer charges of violation of the liquor laws.

All are holders of what is called "summer licenses" and the police allege they continued doing business after the date on their permit.

The raids are thought to have been instigated by the shooting of Chief of Police James of the Hingham police several weeks ago. Three Italians held in connection with the shooting are said to have purchased liquor at Nantasket previous to that affray.

The raids were made by Deputy Sheriffs John T. Condon of Rockland, Charles L. Spring of Hingham and George L. Hersey of Whitman. The police were from Rockland, Hingham, Plymouth, Hanover Abington and Brockton.

Preparations for the event were made in secret and the Hull police in whose territory the place are situated and the officers of the Metropolitan Park police in that territory knew nothing of the affair until it was over.

The raids had somewhat of a dramatic setting since a number of places visited were within actual sight of the Hull police station at Green Hill.

The places raided and their proprietors were: Smith tavern, George Smith; Kensmore house, Robert Peterson; Randolph house, Robert Kelly; Gun Rock house, Carl Clare; Cleveland house, John Sweeney Oakland house, M. Burns, and the Holland Wine Co.

Eugene Vannalli formerly of the Red Men Athletic club of South Quincy, but who is now living in Barre, is spending a few days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vannalli on Liberty street.

day occurrence. Several women have entered complaints that their husbands when receiving their weekly salary would stop at pool rooms on their way home they would indulge in the game with the result that they would often lose their entire weeks salary. The police have been watching several places for some days.

When told of the raid the mayor seemed very much pleased and said that the raids were not on account of any complaint of his but that the credit was due entirely to the police.

"All credit for the successful raid of the gambling place on Saturday night was due to Capt. McKay and Inspector Goodhue," he said. "The entire plans and execution of the same were in their hands.

"It is just one of those cases, that proves that we have the ability to handle big problems in our police department. Every detail of the minutest character was carried out, and the results show for themselves."

the streets hoping he may find the boy and comes to the box.

He encounters the tramp and finds that it is his boy. A touching scene follows, in which the father tells his son how he answered the letters and that they must have been lost in transit. He says that hoping to find the boy he gave up his country church and took the small church in the city. All is forgiven and father and son kneel before the cross, which is suddenly illumined. Singing is heard in the distance.

Following the drama Mr. Kempton spoke briefly, urging the value of the Christian life. In response to his request several stood up indicating that they had determined to lead better lives.

FINES TOTAL $450 IN CASES OF GAMESTERS

Judge Avery Finds 16 Guilty and Discharges 21

Fines aggregating $450 were imposed in the District Court Monday by Judge Avery on those arrested when two pool rooms were raided at Brewers corner Saturday night.

Carl Lehto and Victor Ruuska were fined $50 each on charges of keeping a gaming nuisance and 14 others were fined $25 each for playing "41" for money. The others, 21 in number, were discharged in keeping with the ruling of Judge Avery early in the trial that men not identified as participants could not be held.

Lehto and Ruuska pleaded guilty when arraigned. The convictions of the others followed their identification by two private investigators who worked in conjunction with the police in securing the evidence.

The licenses issued to both principles has been revoked. Ruuska within half an hour after the finding made application for another license at City Hall. If the usual custom follows he will not be granted one..

The greater part of the morning was spent in the taking of government testimony and in the identification of the participants. When the session was resumed in the afternoon several retracted pleas of not guilty and admitted the "con."

J. Koski, Aldreick Jauukkuri and Carl Lehto paid their fines. Ruuska secured a continuance until next Monday so he could raise enough money to pay his fine. The others were placed on probation until Jan. 26, 1916, during which time they will be required to pay the entire amount.

Those fined $25 and placed on probation are J. Ericson, William Webster John Liitonen, H. Hakkanen, Emil Koska, John Lehto, John Hill, Strohn Wirtenen, Otto Ingenen, Emil Onstrom, Thomas Makki and Victor Kallio.

The investigators had no difficulty in identifying the men they saw gambling during their visits to the pool rooms but Judge Avery found it somewhat difficult in associating names with the defendants. Clerk of the Court Lawrence Lyons who arraigned the men also had more or less difficulty in pronouncing the names as did James MacDonald assistant who took the desk in the afternoon and several times they were forced to appeal to Rev. Mr. Stenman of the Finnish Congregational church to call the names of the defendants properly.

A half dozen women attended the session and all seemed particularly pleased with the result of the case. Their joy was hardly equal to that of several young American born boys who had been scooped in the police net when the premises were raided and who were among those discharged.

Rep. Edward J. Sandberg called at the court house, during the trial Monday morning and said the foreign population in that district especially the women were glad the police had secured evidence strong enough to warrant a raid.

The alarm from Box 113 at 11.20 Monday night was for a fire in the garage of Edmund Folsom situated in the rear of his store on Sea street near the road leading to Post Island. The fire was discovered by a crew of a street car on the way to Quincy While one of the crew ran to the box and sounded the alarm the other ran to the store and aroused the family. The fire was confined to the garage. The loss on the garage is estimated at $50 and the damage to the auto delivery wagon is estimated at $100.

The family were asleep when the fire broke out and the first information they had was when awakened by the street car crew. After arousing the family and sounding the alarm the car crew fought the flames with buckets until the department arrived.

APPROVE TIRE REDUCTIONS.

The following editorial from Motor Age in its Feb. 11 issue is of interest to every user of automobile tires, in that it indicates how popular has been the reception of the Goodrich stand on tire prices. Dealers all over the country report a tremendous increase in the tire business wherever the leading manufacturers have lowered their prices to conform to the Goodrich standard. Orders have been pouring in constantly and in such volume that the men are working night and day.

In their editorial Motor Age says: "The tire situation is clarifying itself and in the process tire lists quite generally are touching new low levels, Since the Goodrich company announced its new list and the abolishment of percentage discounts in favor of established list prices to the users and net prices to the dealer, half a dozen other makers have revised lists and in practically every case the new figures are lower than the old ones.

"The B. F. Goodrich company by virture of its long establishment, tremendous experience and wonderful equipment is in a position to meet this greatly increased demand with no difficulty. Its officials considered this standardization of tire prices for a long time before they made the announcement which has startled the entire automobile world, and they are positive that the move is the only logical advancement in this industry Their huge volume of business admitting of a small selling profit for tires has enabled them to set this standard of prices which represents the rock bottom, or, as they call it, the gold standard in tire prices for the country.

ELDRIDGE BACK FROM ENGLAND

Found Country In War Time Not Wholly Pleasant

Seth Eldridge of 456 Quincy avenue has returned from an adventurous trip to England. Mr. Eldridge landed in Liverpool on Christmas eve, passed through London the following noon, and arrived in Portsmouth at nightfall intending to cross the channel to the Isle of Wight.

Owing to the unrest caused by the Zeppelin raids, however, ferry service had ceased at sunset. Consequently the young artist was forced to remain in a chilly hostelry over night and to rub elbows with the British troops and their reveling camp followers.

Eldridge found his first hospitality when he arrived the next morning at the country house of his cousin. Here he was entertained royally for three weeks after which he returned to London and remained with his uncle, who is president of the American society of London. Convinced of the futility of further execution of his plans owing to the unrest in England Mr. Eldridge returned to Liverpool and sailed for America on the Bohemian.

MAYOR REVOKES LICENSE OF AUDITORIUM THEATRE

Action Follows Sagging of Balcony During Performance Monday Night

Mayor Campbell today revoked the license issued to Hiram A. Appleton for the Auditorium theatre and in addition to this he issued an order prohibiting all persons from entering the building until such time as it shall have been made safe.

The order of the mayor followed the settling of the balcony during the performance Monday night. The theatre was packed with people Monday night, when suddenly there was a crackling sound and the balcony was felt to settle. The moving picture operator kept his head however and although his apparatus settled out of true, he kept his pictures in motion until the building had been cleared.

This morning the attention of the mayor was called to the situation by Chief Billings and his honor revoked the license. Then in company with Chief Billings and a son of Inspector of Buildings Thomas, who is acting building inspector, he visited the theatre and made a personal examination of the building. This examination convinced him that it was far from being safe and he then stated that he should issue an order prohibiting its further use.

After his inspection during which he found that the piers in the basement beneath the supports of the balcony were not fully completed, that the floor timbers were rotted, that the floor was cracked and that the sides of the building were beginning to bulge out, he said that he could not understand how the use of the building had been allowed as long as it had.

The building is an old one having originally been occupied by the then Orthodox church. When Bethany church was built the society gave it up and for a time it was turned into an armory. Later the main floor was used as a skating rink and still later as a public hall under the name of Hancock hall. The basement at one time was also used as a shoe shop. When the public hall was given up it was remodelled into a moving picture theatre and recently quite a sum has been expended in remodelling it.

The building is so old that it is doubtful if it can be made safe for occupancy without the outlay of considerable money. After his inspection and before he left the building the mayor complimented the moving machine operator for sticking to his post when the floor settled and thus doubtless preventing a panic.

Many in the balcony became panic stricken when the support gave way and they rushed to the exits which were opened throughout the entire house by the employees in 22 seconds.

One woman in the audience told her husband on her return home that a cry of "fire" was raised by someone rushing to the exits. Miss Margaret Ferguson, 18 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ferguson, Phipps street was overcome by the excitement and was revived in the store of Mrs. Mary O'Brien, opposite the theatre.

As the doors in the front of the house swung open a crowd who were waiting to gain admittance surged forward and clashed for an instant with the excited audience rushing out. Both crowds deadlocked but when those on the outside realized conditions they fell back and made way for those inside to reach the street.

ARREST BRAINTREE MAN WANTED FOR MURDER

Boston Police Capture Joseph Conti in That City

Joseph Conti, 19, a Braintree shoe worker, who escaped from South Norwalk, Conn., after being implicated in a shooting which caused the death of his brother-in-law, Dr. Vincenzo Del Piano on Jan. 7, was arrested in Boston Monday evening as a fugitive from justice.

Conti was taken by Inspector Rooney and McCauley of Boston police headquarters and patrolman Crawford of the Hanover street section.

Conti waived his rights and was held without bail. State officer Verrelli and Sergt. Letherman of the South Norwalk police, who with patrolman John Shay of Braintree learned Conti was in Boston but were unable to locate him, will take him back for trial.

Conti has been indicted on a charge of murder. He claims the shooting was done in self defense. He says he will not fight extradition proceedings.

Conti came north directly after the shooting. He was seen in Quincy but before he could be placed under arrest he disappeared. A few days later patrolman Shay furnished the Boston police information on which they have since worked.

CONFERENCE ON NEPONSET BRIDGE

A conference was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock of the parties interested in the proposed new bridge over the Neponset river at Neponset, to see if some agreement can not be reached as to the apportionment of the cost of the new bridge. The city will be represented at the conference by the mayor, city solicitor Pinkham and City nEgineer Sargent. John F. Merrill, chairman of the county commissioners, will also be present.

Miss Margaret Griffin and Miss Francis Frobuck entertained a group of prominent musicians at the home of the former on Mount Pleasant Sunday evening. E. deGorgorza sang "O Sole Mio" and the Miserere and W. Hamel responded with "Je t' adore."

MAYOR HAS GUEST.

L. G. Gerry, clerk of the town of Sanford, Me., accompanied Mayor Campbell from Boston to Quincy this morning and accompanied him during his investigation of the Auditorium theatre.

Mr. Gerry who had never been here before saw very little of the city during the short stay with Mayor Campbell

FIRE ON ROOF OF OF POLICE STATION

As Mayor Campbell this morning stood on the steps of the Auditorium theatre, one of the oldest buildings in the city, and said he believed it to be unsafe for public use a fire broke out on the roof of the police station, another of the old buildings of the city.

The fire was discovered by Charles Millett who was passing and he informed Sergt. Bishop who called the Central station fire apparatus. Chief Billings saw the apparatus dash by the Walsh corner as he stood beside Mayor Campbell and immediately went to the scene of the fire.

When he arrived a chemical stream was being trained on the roof from a 30 foot ladder and other firemen were using hand chemicals under the roof. The fire probably caught from an overheated chimney and caused a damage of about $10.

AN EFFICIENT COMMISSION.

One of the excuses offered by uncharitably inclined persons who seek to avoid the obligation to give to this or that cause is that the funds are being handled by a lot of inefficient, inexperienced officials and that much of the money contributed will never reach its destination but will be wasted in the unwinding of red tape. Sometimes this has been more or less true. It does not appear to be true in the case of the Commission for Relief in Belgium. No complaint that the work of the commission was inefficient has fallen under our notice. To the contrary, the vast quantities of food and clothing and the large amount of money contributed have all been handled with expedition and intelligence. It is a gigantic task, this feeding of more than six million people.

Linden W. Bates, the vice-chairman, recently delivered an address before the Colony club, New York, in which he outlined the work of the commission. He said in part:

"The Commission is one hundred and eleven days old. It began with no organization whatever. It became responsible for feeding six and a half millions of people. Six and a half millions are the numbers of the contending armies—the perfection of whose commissaries is the studied preparation of thirty years. Their supply was at hand, the nearest of ours a thousand leagues across the ocean; they had their towers and treasuries of gold, we were moneyless, foodless, shipless—beggars in all lands and seas. To secure but ten ounces of food a head—less than one-fourth of the ration actually consumed in New York City—a 6,000 ton ship loaded with foodstuffs must be dispatched every forty eight hours.

"The Commission has its armies without arms, bearing life, not death; an army of givers in America, in Canada, in Argentina, New Zealand, Australia, India, Burmah—all round the earth—an army gathering and bearing tribute to those encompassed by water and by fire. In the United States its organization reaches the smallest hamlets.

"In Belgium our last army takes charge—volunteer distributors, many many thousands captained by young Americans. Most are young college men—the Rhodes Scholarship group furnishing several. The food is issued twice daily under a carefully adjusted system of distribution. The five million people in Belgium who still can buy supplies pay the cost-price for what they get. This money returns to the Commission and is re-invested. The number of those who can pay is diminishing daily. There are now 1,500,000 absolutely destitute, who receive food at breadlines. The men, women and children who at this very moment are standing one behind the other, waiting for the supper-dole would make a line 600 miles long. Every day, as the number who can pay diminishes, the bread line lengthens. Within a few months the line will be 2,500 miles long—which would reach from New York to Salt Lake City.

A POOR EXCUSE.

Many persons who have been urged to give in aid of the war sufferers in Europe have given as the reason for refusal that there are plenty of cases of need right here at home. So there are and they should be attended to. Do all the persons who refuse, or neglect, which is the same thing, to aid the Belgians and the other peoples who have suffered so acutely from the ravages of war, do their part toward helping the destitute at home? The chances are that they do not. Experience has shown that money given in aid of foreign missionary work or in aid of such work as the Belgian Relief Committee is doing rarely affects the sum total of charity at home. Many of the churches and other institutions which are leaders in the foreign fields are also leaders in the work at home.

Theodore's abdication as president of Haiti will help provide places for Mr. Bryan's "deserving democrats". A United States commission will be sent to straighten the country's finances.

ATTACKS HIGH TAX RATE

A vigorous protest against the high tax rate and the increasing cost of town management was made by Charles Francis Adams, 2nd, of Washington, one of the largest taxpayers in the town, at the Lincoln Town meeting Monday. Mr. Adams proposed the hiring of an expert accountant to investigate the town affairs and go over the town books for the past five years, which was passed.

He complained about the appropriation for the transportation of school children, which calls for $2600. He urged that it be abolished and the children be required to walk to school, as their forefathers did.

SUBWAY PETITIONERS HEARING.

A hearing is to be held before the Public Service Commission at 1 Beacon street Wednesday morning at 10.30 on the matter of the petitions of the residents of Norfolk Downs and Wollaston for a subway beneath the railroad tracks at these stations. As the tracks are now located it is pointed out that they are a source of danger to people passing from one side to the other. What the petitioners desire is a subway similar to that at the Atlantic station with a fence between the tracks so that people can not cross.

JOHN J. McDEVITT, MILLIONAIRE FOR A DAY, TO COME HERE

Writes Mayor He Will Seek Bride in Historic Quincy

John Jay McDevitt, the millionaire of a day, is coming to Quincy to look over the marriageable ladies of the town and possibly pick one for a wife. He has written to Mayor Chester I. Campbell stating that on Wednesday he will come to Quincy to look over the fair ones. Incidentally he wants to look over things historic and visit the Dorothy Q House in search of an inspiration.

McDevitt in his letter states that it is quite a tribute to Quincy tha Mayor Campbell should be selected to manage the biggest automobile show in the world. He states that he had read much of Mr. Campbell before coming to Boston.

Here is McDevitt's letter to his honor:

Boston, Mass., March 7, 1915
McDevitt Bridal Suite
Hotel Lenox.

To the Honorable Chester I. Campbell
Mayor of Quincy;
Honored Sir:

I have decided to take a jaunt along the section that leads to the birth place of all the Adamses that I can recall as having amounted to anything worth while in history and also the home of the one woman that I remembered best from my scant knowledge of things historic Dorothy Q. This lady as far as I recall married a gentleman by the name of John Hancock who will always be remembered for his excellent penmanship and his indifference as to where he made his home.

I have heard more about you Mr. Mayor than you might think as we of the coal fields do a little reading and as a pastime keep our eye on the events of the east. Hence, I knew of you long before I ever heard of you as mayor of historic Quincy. I am forced to respect you for the very fact that the people of Boston had to go to your little city and select you as the head of what I consider the biggest exhibit of its kind in our country and I assure you I wish you all the good luck.

I was informed that you had an eye for the artistic and knew beauty at sight, particularly when it pertains to the fair sex. Therefore, my good man I will proceed to your town and have you extend to me the right of way to look your marriageable fair ones over and who knows but what my hunt for a bride might cease at your very door. I am not disappointed in my search yet, but I will confess that the Boston girls have not proven satisfactory to me. I am not unkind enough to say that they are not a superior class. Only the type I have in my mind do not come my way.

Now then Mr. Mayor, if you will assist me along my pursuit along this line, I will be extremely thankful and should McDevitt at some future date become a figure in history, your little town will partake of the glory that will be mine.

I am a very busy man at present as my mail is unusually large all applicants for my hand. But as I have stated above, I am still free and untied, so me for Quincy, and if all goes well, I will be thankful for you and yours,

Yours respectfully,
JOHN JAY McDEVITT,
One-Day Millionaire

P. S. I would be pleased to make a trip to your city, Wednesday of this week.

Mayor Campbell immediately upon receipt of the above letter wrote to McDevitt that he would be pleased to greet him in his official capacity Wednesday morning.

WHY EDITORS ARE SKEPTICS

One of the greatest trials of the newspaper profession is that it members are compelled to see more of the shame of the world than in any other profession. Through every newspaper office, day after day, all the wickedness of the world, church bickerings, and all the mistakes that want to be corrected, all the dull speakers that want to be thought eloquent, all the meanness that wants to get its wares noticed gratis in the editorial columns in order to save the tax of advertising columns; all the cracked brain philosophers whose stories are as long as their finger nails in mourning because bereft of all soap; all the bores who come to stay a few minutes but stay hours. Through all the editorial and reportorial rooms all the follies and shame of the world are seen day by day and the temptation is to believe neither God, nor man, nor woman. It is no surprise to tell me that in this profession there are so many skeptical men. I only wonder that journalists believe anything.—(Talmage.)

LUMBER FOR JAPANESE.

The prospects of selling lumber to the Japanese are discussed in a report entitled "American Lumber for the Japanese," recently issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The report was prepared by Commercial Agent Franklin H. Smith, who is making an investigation of the lumber markets in the Far East and Australasia. The trade with Japan at present amounts to an exchange of American softwoods, chiefly Douglass fir, for Japanese hardwoods, principally oak. Copies of the report can be purchased for five cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington. It is designated "Special Agents Series No 94."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

THE CUT-OUT NUISANCE.

Editor, the Ledger:—

There is an excellent law providing that automobiles shall have an effective muffler to deaden the noise of the exhaust, which, if unmuffled, makes a racket intolerable to civilized ears—like an endless volley of pistol shots.

But unfortunately, this well-meant law has a big loop-hole in it, permitting makers and owners to use, at their discretion, a "muffler cut-out," so-called, which puts the muffler out of use for the time being, and turns the machine into a noise-maker.

The original idea of the cut-out was that it would increase the power of the engine, but repeated tests have shown that, with a proper muffler, this supposed gain is infinitesimal and of no practical account.

As a matter of fact any one can see that the cut-out is used largely by a certain class of drivers who wish to make a show of themselves, and gratify a childish and barbaric fondness for mere noise. The same sort of people would delight in a full orchestra of Indian tom-tom drums!

Two or three Sundays ago I was walking along Washington street, down at the Point. Among many other cars that were moving along sensibly and quietly there came along one that was going very fast and very noisily. The driver was a harum-scarum young chap, with his cap on hind side afore, which pretty trick is known to add several miles to the speed.

His car had a particularly loud and offensive cut-out, which he used continuously block after block, as long as he was in sight, with no possible purpose except to make a conspicuous nuisance of himself.

A week or so later I met the same sort of fellow on the level part of Newport Avenue, working his cut-out to the limit, and at the same time blowing continuously a whistle which vied easily with those on the near-by railroad. He was a howling success in the wholesale nuisance business, and was doubtless on the keen lookout for more and worse noise-makers.

One day I saw a car going through the Square with a young lady at the wheel, evidently learning to drive. There was a young fellow sitting very close to her, and giving assiduous instructions. The ground was level, and there was no call for the cut-out, but one or the other of them—perhaps both—had a foot on the pedal all the time. Perhaps they were oblivious of the racket they were making, but the young lady was certainly getting a very wrong impression of the proper use of the cut-out!

Now all sensible people take pride in having their cars run quietly rather than noisily, and manufacturers take infinite pains to make their cars noiseless in operation. Why, then, should a few persons of barbaric tastes be allowed to afflict the community with crude and unnecessary noises? One of our very largest manufacturers puts no cut-outs on his cars, and those cars are especially known as excellent hill-climbers.

We know that the remedy is in the hands of the police, and they can stop the nuisance if they choose. A sharp warning, and then a few arrests and fines would settle the business for good and all in Quincy. The auto fraternity are quick to hear that kind of news.

Warning signs are all right as far as they go, but they need backing up with something more persuasive. Speaking of signs, there was a funny one last year on the island just over Presidents Bridge as you go towards Wollaston. It warned drivers not to use the cut-out on the hill, (Newport Avenue being the only hill in sight), but it stood at the top of the hill facing the bridge, so that the driver could not read it until he had got by it. People going the other way were sternly warned not to use the cut-out going down hill!

But why guard this hill or that hill or any other hill against the nuisance, when the whole city needs protection? In the town of Reading (and probably in other towns) they have large, substantial, permanent signs at the town limits and in other conspicuous places, reading "The Use of the Muffler Cut-out is Prohibited in Reading." That covers the ground, whether hill, valley or level, and is what we want in Quincy, as thus:—

The Use of The MUFFLER CUT-OUT IS PROHIBITED
In The City of Quincy.

I noticed last year when an officer was stationed at the foot of Rice's hill on Adams Street to spot the cut-out fiends, many of the offenders would wait until they got so far up the hill that the officer could not see their numbers, and then let their cut-out loose, not for any good purpose, but merely to "give the laugh to the cop."

If the officer would take his stand half way up the hill he would catch them coming and going.

I dislike to go into the "slogan" business, but I am moved to offer just this one: "Cut Out the Cut-out."

GERMAN SCHOOLS AND THOSE OF U. S.

Speaker at Wollaston Meeting Points Advantages of Each

PICTURES PRESENTED

The presentation of pictures to the Wollaston school by the three most recently graduated classes marked the monthly meeting of the Wollaston Parent-Teachers' association,, Monday evening.

Speeches of presentation were made by Maynard Hatch, class of 1912. Theodore Higgins, class of 1913, and William Walter, class of 1914. The pictures were accepted in the name of the school by Principal David H. Goodspeed of the art committee.

All three pictures are in the series "Evolution of the Book" and with the three previously placed in the assembly hall make the set complete. The outlay for the set represents a sum well over $200.

Other donations bring the value of art treasures in the schoo! to $750. Other offers have been made and one individual has offered a life size statue of Abraham Lincoln valued at $100 for the assembly hall if someone else presents a companion statue of Geo Washington.

For the playground committee Mr. Goodspeed reported that apparatus valued at $300 was in place on the playground and that the plans were being made to have it supervised as last year. Several recommendations for new apparatus were made.

The speaker of the evening was Headmaster Arthur Lee, of the Malden High school who spoke on "The German elementary and secondary schools" Mr. Lee has been an exchange teacher in Prussia and presented an interesting comparison of German and American methods.

He characterized the German school buildings as of heavy construction in which the heating lighting and ventilation were abominable. In a city of a quarter million, stoves are used and the desks are long unadjustable wooden benches.

The secondary system is entirely different from the gymnasium, which compares with our high school, the child enters the gymnasium at 9 years of age for nine years of schooling at from $30 to $50 a year.

The teaching body is the best equipped in the whole world and a long preliminary training is required.

Thirty years is the average age for appointment the teacher has a splendid social standing; his salary is good and a liberal pension is awarded him.

The pupils make a good impression. They are clean, neat and orderly. "Courtesy" seems to be a watchword never forgotten.. They have no attachment to their school and no sense of loyalty after they leave it

Discipline is easily maintained,, for to be thrown out of the gymnasium means the cessation of all progress and the curtailment of certain governmental, appointments and privileges that the graduates enjoys.. This system sometimes results in the suicides of those who fail to pass.

Books are sparingly used for the German teacher wants to be the fountain head of knowledge for his pupils. Germans are not as wasteful of time as the American teacher and do not attempt to drag a recitation out of the pupil who has not prepared his lesson. Them said Mr. Lee, lie in the magnifi-

"The advantages of the German system of training of its teachers, uniformity of salary which leads to few [illegible] the teaching force, a standard curriculum and a liberal and [illegible] pension system.

"Its disadvantages lie in the fact that the German school is not democratic, its system of privilege is abominable, and while they get excellent mental and physical training there is no socializing influence.

The German schools train a body of followers. They are taught to do as they are told when told. Thats what the German needs It is not expected the boy and girl in the common school will rise above his station.

They are trained in habits while the judgment forming side is not given attention it deserves Germans are thorough Americans are resourceful"

LEADERSHIP WILL COME TO AMERICA

Rev. C. E. Campbell Tells Some of Results of Great War

C. E. CABINET MEETING

The monthly cabinet meeting Monday night of the Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union in the Wollaston Congregational church was easily the best of the year. Not only best as to attendance but a fine spirit of consecration and enthusiasm pervaded the entire meeting.

The society of the Congregational church served a well-appointed supper, after which the presiding officer of the union Wendall Clark, called the meeting to order. The roll call revealed the fact that this was the best attended meeting of the year—almost every single church of the union was there with a full representation. After transacting the routine business of the society, the speaker of the evening, Rev. Clarence E. Campbell of the First Presbyterian church was introduced to the union and was warmly received as this was Mr. Campbell's first appearance as a speaker outside his own pulpit since he came to Quincy two weeks ago.

He spoke along the lines of leadership for the future. "Heretofore this world has looked to Europe for its leaders in all the interests of life—science, art and religion," he said. 'The Great War will so devastate Europe that for years to come all her energies will be used to rehabilitate her own material fortunes and the world's leadership must come to America and present generation of Endeavorers will be confronted with great responsibility of leadership. Will we ever be equipped to meet the emergency which is sure to come?

"European civilizations built upon a material basis of life are crumbling into dust. The 'terrible' Turk, is today hastening out of Europe forever. And the crescent which has so long surmounted the dome of that wonderful Christian Cathedral, the Masque of Saint Sophia, will very soon give way to the cross; and the Muezzin's call will give way to chimes proclaiming "The Church's one foundation is Jesus Christ, the Lord." New kingdoms are to be established, a new mankind is to be born—a redeemed humanity.

Instead of kingdoms of power and greed, we are to create the Brotherhood of man in the Fatherhood of God. Oh, it is no little task; the coming generation of men and women are by necessity called upon to face. And for the big new task we must have a big new leadership. A leadership that has no time to build great fortunes of wealth—it is too busy building civilizations and carving out dynasties—moulding the life of the future according to the pattern on the Mount. It is your awful privilege to have a part in creating a reddened humanity which shall build new heavens and new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness."

Short addresses were then made by all the other ministers present and the delegates went away with intentions of renewed loyalty and effort.

SMITH BROTHERS LOSE TO CARMEN

The Smith brothers team of bowlers lost to the Carmen in a special at the Coliseum alleys Monday evening. Herb Smith and DeNeil tied at 319 for best total. Herb had a single of 118, one less than his brother Harley The match was hotly contested and witnessed by an enthusiastic gallery of fans. The Carmen opened up a lead in the first single which they increased until they led by 56 pins in the final. Another match will be rolled.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Little Ways of Promoting Efficiency Service In the Kitchen.

Fasten a piece of tape or string to the end of your scrubbing brush so that when finished with it can be hung up and allowed to drain instead of the water soaking into the back and loosening the bristles and making them soft.

To take proper care of sponges wash them in warm water in which a small quantity of tartaric acid has been dissolved. This will keep them soft and in good color. Be careful not to use too much tartaric acid or it will spoil the sponge.

To economize on eggs in which croquettes are dipped add water to the beaten white or beaten whole egg. The proportion is a tablespoonful for the white and twice as much for the whole egg.

To keep nickel ornaments on stoves bright use ammonia and whiting. Mix together in a bottle and apply with a cloth. A very little gives a fine luster. Another method is to dip a cloth in kerosene, then in whiting and rub vigorously on the nickel. Dry and polish with a woolen cloth.

To remove ink stains from cloth or any absorbent substance dissolve four ounces of citric acid in two quarts of water that has been previously boiled and cooled. Then add six to eight ounces of a strong solution of borax.

THE ODOR OF COOKING.

It Should Be Carefully Banished From the House or Apartment.

Cooking in the small apartment is apt to be attended by various odors, which, however savory to a before dinner hunger, are not as pleasant afterward. Everybody knows the distressing smell which greets the nostrils when one steps into an entrance hall not sufficiently aired and eloquent of the culinary department in the basement just below. No odor of cooking should greet the fastidious guest in a private home, or even in an apartment which claims to be of the exclusive class.

A simple and agreeable deodorizer may be made of a handful of cloves, allowed to scorch with bits of orange peel upon a tin plate in the oven. This mixture imparts a fragrance not unlike that of carnations, and scattered about the rooms it will completely destroy the odor of cooking vegetables or roasting meats.

In rooms where much smoking is done the windows should be kept open an inch at the top, as the cigar and cigarette smoke is drawn toward such an opening and will pass out instead of lingering in hangings and draperies. Always air a room heavy with tobacco smoke from both the top and bottom of the windows, and if possible keep in such a room a few growing plants, which seem to absorb and destroy the odor without any harm to themselves.

Patching Stockings.

Darning stockings often becomes a problem when holes are large, and especially when one's eyesight has to be regarded. Better patch them. Here is an easy way to do it.

Place over the darning egg a piece of a discarded stocking, hold firm with your left hand; now slip the torn stocking over this, let the weave of the stocking run in same direction as the part you hold over the wooden egg, cut the raw edges from the hole and sew to the covered egg.

Use silk, as this does not cut the weave.

Now remove, turn and trim away the patch all but one-half to one inch.

Slip over the darning egg again and sew the edges firmly to the stocking.

A little pressing will finish this otherwise tedious job. This patch will not hurt a tender foot and if well matched in color will not be noticed.

Decorated Wash Sets.

A suggestion for a prospective bride who is looking for additions to her dower chest is a set of Turkish wash cloths, with monogram or initials worked in French knots or cross stitch across one corner.

French knots in color are peculiarly suited to Turkish toweling, because when the initials are worked in they look as though they were woven in the towel.

Wash cloths are much decorated this year. They come in two colors, either with a striped border or with a groundwork of a pale color under the white loops. These cost 10 and 12 cents apiece only, but when embroidered in color to match they are worth much more.

Clothespin Apron.

A clothespin apron is a great convenience. It is made of strong chintz and cut double and almost circular in shape except for a small dip at the top. In one of the pieces two backward turning slashes are cut and bound with braid.

The pieces are then placed together, wrong side touching, and the edges (except the dip) bound with braid. The apron is then put on a narrow band and is fastened with a button and a buttonhole at the side.

COOKERY NOTES.

When serving chocolate and cocoa try floating a very fresh marshmallow on each cup. It is an excellent substitute for whipped cream.

Chicken and celery in equal parts minced very fine and mixed with mayonnaise make as excellent sandwiches as the mixture does a salad.

BLOUSES FOR THE SPRING SEASON

White Ones In a Wide Variety of Styles Featured For Wear. They Are Really an Almost Necessary Adjunct to the Modish Modern Suit.

WHITE blouses are to be very popular for spring. mercerized batiste, organdies, embroidered voiles and swisses with sheer novelty materials will make up the great majority of white fabrics used for this purpose. These stuffs may be used for blouses designed for dressy and semiformal wear, waists of pique, lawn and percale being more appropriate for ordinary occasions.

White organdie waists, as well as those printed with small designs, so it is anticipated, will be popular with a certain set. Crepe de chine in the new shades of sand and putty is expected to have a great vogue in the spring.

As to the cut of the waist, the yoke style seems to be favored by designers, but the new yoke effect is one that requires the hand of a master to make it a genuine success. Collars are to be close fitting in the back. Many of them have turned over flaps and button in the front. The fit of these collars must be irreproachable. Long sleeves, rather close fitting in style, are to be seen. There is a slighter fullness than we have been having in the arm size, where the sleeve is to be set in. Crocheted white buttons decorate the sleeves; also they appear to fasten the blouses, which are more often closed with hooks and eyes or snap fasteners.

The sand and putty colored waists are especially useful for travelers. As thousands will doubtless visit the Panama-Pacific exposition this year, their popularity seems assured.

It must be mentioned that the ultra smart blouses are of extreme simplicity, the touch of chic being there, however, together with that fit which only a high priced modiste can achieve.

CHIC LACE BLOUSE.

Lace and net waists are liked for formal wear. They are both dressy and convenient. A blouse of that type is illustrated here. It is of cream shadow lace, figured in flower design. The inset vest is of forest green broadcloth or silk, which material also forms the pointed collar and cuffs. The turned over tabs of the collar are faced with white satin. The guimpe is of cream val lace, with trimming of tiny pearl buttons, the fastening being effected by concealed snap fasteners.

THE GIRL'S SANCTUM.

The New Cretonnes Great Aids In Freshening and Beautifying It.

If it is possible in any way every girl should have a special sanctum to do with as she will. If it must be bedroom and den combined it must be especially neat, because in most cases girl visitors are ushered right in and expect to see an attractive, cozy room.

A little cretonne will do wonders toward making the barest of rooms homelike. This should be plain if the walls are figured or figured if the walls are striped or merely bordered with flowers.

The latest fancy is to decorate the bureau china to correspond with the embroidery pattern of the cover. The girl with a taste for china painting can decorate her own boxes, trays and brush backs piece by piece, and if she cares to do so can use the same design for the cups and saucers and teapot on her tea table, copying the designs in colors on her tablecloth, doilies and whatever covers she needs on her various tables.

She might even add a pillow cushion or two to her window seat. To correspond she could use a design similar to the wall paper or drapery.

Embroidered Luncheon Sets.

Grass linen luncheon sets, which are nice to use with any of the tea sets now in vogue, are found in some of the shops. A set consists of one centerpiece, a dozen twelve inch doilies and an equal number of six inch doilies embroidered in cherry or dragon design in plain white, or in blue and white embroidery.

FIRST PARISH VOTES TO SEEK REMOVAL OF CAR TRACKS

To Confer With Planning Board About Temple Street Line

A movement to have the street car tracks on Temple street removed, and the appointing of a committee of the parish to confer with the Planning Board and street railway in relation to the movement was one of the important actions taken at the annual meeting of the First church parish Monday evening.

Other important matters acted upon were the authorizing of the parish assessors to publish a year book for distribution among the people of the parish containing the annual reports of the allied societies and other church news, and the appointing of a committee to revise the by-laws with a view of eliminating the by-laws established in 1858 hereby it was provided that in order to be a voting member at the parish meeting one must sign the roll book and deposit $1.50.

The reports of the various allied societies were most encouraging showing renewed activity all along the line, and that the church interest is growing rapidly. Most encouraging also was the report of the pew committee which in effect was that there were many applications for sittings but a limited supply of desirable seats.

Hon. Russell A. Sears was the moderator and the first business was the reports of the parish committee and treasurer. The report of the parish committee showed that the several endowment funds amounted to $28,432.73 and they recommended an appropriation of $6,500 for the current year.

The report of the treasurer showed the receipts from all sources to have been $7,410 and the expenditures $7,399.26.

George E. Pfaffmann for the trustees reported the income from the Adams fund amounted to $1,000 and that there had been no change in the investment of the fund.

Arthur W. Hall, in charge of the ushers reported that the number of available seats for strangers was very limited. He also spoke of the loyalty of the young men who had officiated as ushers during the past year. They had always been ready and willing when called upon to officiate. These young men were given a vote of thanks.

Miss Packard gave a most interesting report of the work of the Sunday school, which she said was in a flourishing condition. During the past year the school had been graded into six groups, according to ages, and there were eighteen classes and nineteen teachers, and 150 pupils. She outlined in detail the work that had been accomplished by the Sunday school during the past year, the course of study that had been carried through, and of the assistance that had been given the school by the executive committee, Charles H. Johnson, Henry R. Holden and Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis. She also said that there would be an exhibition of the school work later in the season. In closing she spoke of the loyal spirit shown by the teachers and paid a loving tribute to Miss Elizabeth Faxon for her untiring work in the interest of the school.

Mrs. Thomas Fenno, reporting for the Alliance, spoke of what had been accomplished by this society during the past year. Two meetings had been held each month and there had been many interesting addresses. She spoke in detail of the cheerful letter department, the post office mission work, flower committee, etc. Through this society two members were in the lobby of the church every Sunday to welcome strangers. The society was planning a reception to the Sunday school teachers in the near future. During the year six members had been called away, one had resigned and six new members had been admitted making the present membership 83.

Mrs. Ewdard B. Marsh spoke of the work of the Fragment society and of its work in connection with the Associated Charities, its red cross work, and the two large cases of goods that had been sent to the Belgians.

Miss Marie Bass told of the work of the Young Peoples Religious Union and of the renewed interest in the society, and of the course of entertainments which it had held during the winter months.

A report was also submitted on the new society known as the Willing Workers which had recently been organized among the younger boys. This society now had fifteen members and great interest was being shown.

Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann spoke for the music committee and Harry Porter for the pew committee. The latter in his report suggested that owing to the lack of pews it would be well for persons who had two sittings to combine.

Rev. A. L. Hudson spoke of the hospitality that had been shown by all. He also spoke of the building up of the church all along the line. "We must stand for some fundamental idea, and we must represent ideas for the well being of the community," he said. He also spoke of the steady growth of the church during the past year and said that each one must feel it their duty to work. There are many in Quincy who naturally belong to this First Parish and he urged that the parishioners strive to interest these persons in attending church He also spoke of the First Parish club. This club was doing what it had set out to do. He spoke of the Willing Workers, the new boys club, who are to keep the grounds of the church free from sticks rubbish, etc.

He suggested that the parish assessors be instructed to publish a year book giving the reports in full and other church news for distribution among the people of the church and as noted above this was later voted also of the old by-law relative to the payment of $1.50 for voting and this matter was also taken care of later in the evening.

The election of officers was then held with the following result:

Parish Assessors, Henry M. Faxon, James H. Stetson, Frederick H. Smith

Treasurer, Thomas Fenno.

Clerk, J. Brooks Keyes.

Trustees of endowment funds, L. H. H. Johnson, Thomas Fenno, George E. Pfaffmann.

The parish assessors were empowered to appoint all committees.

The sum of $6,580 was then appropriated for current expenses for the coming year. Of this amount $3,000 is to be raised by taxation, $1,382 by income from endowment funds and the balance by pledges and collections.

The salary of the sexton was increased $80 a year.

MEXICO MUST HEED WARNING

Washington May Otherwise Adopt Extreme Measures

NEW NOTE IS SENT CARRANZA

American Government Losing Patience With His Indifference to Objectionable Acts of Obregon—Cruiser Tacoma Ordered to Vera Cruz—Story of Exiled Priests

Washington, March 9.—New and urgent representations, amounting practically to a warning, have been sent by the United States to General Carranza, demanding an improvement of conditions in Mexico City.

Diplomats familiar with the contents of the note which American Consul Silliman has been instructed to present to Carranza interpret it as an entire change of policy on the part of the Washington government toward the Mexican situation.

Word has been received from Mexico City that priests have been persecuted and Catholic institutions plundered.

The communication to Carranza, which was drafted after conferences between President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Counsellor Lansing, was guarded with secrecy, pending some word from Carranza as to his attitude.

It was said by officials that the note contained the strongest representations that ever have been made to Carranza and indicates that the American government is losing patience with his indifference to the objectionable acts of General Obregon at Mexico City.

Those who know the contents of the communication said it was not in the nature of an ultimatum, but pointed out in explicit language that serious consequences might follow if the welfare of foreigners continued to be disregarded.

The cruiser Tacoma has been ordered from Port au Prince, Haiti, to Vera Cruz. Further movements of vessels may be decided upon.

After a conference last night between Secretary Daniels and the president, it was learned on high authority that two or more battleships would be ordered from Guantanamo to Vera Cruz.

In diplomatic quarters there were more manifestations of concern over the Mexican situation than at any time since the American forces were landed at Vera Cruz. The foreign diplomats conferred among themselves and communicated to one another the latest developments.

Just what move is now contemplated is known only to President Wilson and a few of his closest advisers, but it was apparent from the attitude of the officials that it was realized that a new crisis was at hand which might have to be met with strong measures.

The plight of Americans has been of increasing concern. There are more United States citizens in Mexico City than of any other country.

Priests Harshly Treated

New Orleans, March 9.—More than 100 refugees arrived here on the steamship Texas from Vera Cruz. Nearly all were from Mexico City, where they fled.

In the party were six nuns and eight priests. These were met by Rt. Rev. Jose Mora del Rio, archbishop of Mexico, who reached here with a party of churchmen several days ago. All fled without baggage, and say they are thankful they escaped with their lives.

The archbishop gave out this story of the nuns and priests:

"Every priest in Mexico City and surrounding territory has been expelled or put in prison. Not a church or institution remains open, and nearly all have been sacked or desecrated. Our priests have been robbbed and at the point of guns driven from their sanctuaries.

"The soldiers left nothing of value. These sisters and nuns are homeless and made their way to Vera Cruz with the greatest hardships. They feel that they would be sealing the death warrant to those still in Mexico if they went into details of the horrors that our men and women have been subjected to."

Felix Lacunas, reported to be a prominent, once wealthy American, who also arrived on the Texas, says:

"We left Mexico City eight days ago, when the city was in the throes of a veritable reign of terror. Scores of Mexicans of prominence have been put to death in the past few weeks, most of them without trial. Hundreds of others were crowded like rats in the famous Belem prison and the penitentiary.

"Among the prisoners were more than 300 native Catholic priests, who were thrown into jail on the orders of General Obregon and held for $500,000 ransom. Every foreign Catholic priest in the capital has been expelled from the country after the military authorities had confiscated all of the church property found.

Low-Priced Murderer Executed

Rockview, Pa., March 9.—Rocco Tassone died in the electric chair at the penitentiary here in expiation of the murder of an Italian from whom Italians had tried to extort money. Tassone received $25 for the killing.

TWO NEW MODELS FOR 1915

48-Six---$1650
Six Cylinders

Olympic "46"---$1375
Four Cylinders

Both Models Center Control. Left Drive. Both Fully Equipped

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars—you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

Into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size—built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, streamline body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 33⅓ to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous . It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season, it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep—no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

Capt. McKay Tells Patrolman to Enforce Fire Rules

MUST GET PERMIT

Acting Chief McKay instructed the patrolmen at roll call this morning to prevent further violation of the law and city ordinances relative to bon fires. Chief McKay's instructions were that "everybody must have a permit from Chief Billings to set fire to grass rubbish and other things,, or go into court."

The instruction supplemented the reading of a letter from Fire Prevention Commissioner John A. O'Keefe asking for co-operation in lessening the number of out-of-door fires. A similar letter was sent to fire chiefs throughout the state. The letter follows:

Dear Sir:

My attention has been called by the heads of the Fire Departments to the fact that the regulation against out-of-door fires is not being enforced. The result is that there are many calls on the Fire Department involving considerable expense and loss of time and endangering property. Will you kindly see that, in your jurisdiction, the regulations governing out-of-door fires are enforced, even if, in order to do so, it is necessary to bring into court the first person who creates or increases such a fire without a permit of the fire department? I am sending a copy of this communication to the newspapers in order that the widest publicity may be given to the necessity of a strict enforcement of this regulation.

Very truly yours,
JOHN A. O'KEEFE,
Fire Prevention Commissioner, for the Metropolitan District

ROSS AND DELL WIN MATCH

Ross and Dell beat Dunn and Lemieux in a ten string special at the Wardwell alleys Monday evening by 89 pins. Ross averaged 104, two more than Dell. The former copped the high single, 139. Dell followed with 130 and Dunn got 119 and Lemieux 116. Five of Ross's strings were better than 100 which gave him his average. Dell did the same. Lemieux averaged an even 100, seven of his strings hitting that mark. The winners were somewhat behind the first two strings but arrived in the third and stayed. The singles:

Ross	107	104	139	97	118
	106	91	96	99	92	—1049

ASSOCIATES PLAN STAG SUPPER

The Franklin Associates will hold a stag supper in their rooms on Franklin street, Thursday night.

The committee in charge of the affair headed by Russell Farquharson as chairman has been working hard to add another successful party to the long list of entertainments. Assisting Mr. Farquharson are Enos Costa, secretary, Walter Carson, Edward Carson and Andrew Costa.

State House News

State House, March 8---Legislative committee hearings will soon be over, generally speaking, and most of the committee will be able to live up to the rule that they must report on all matters previously referred to them by Wednesday.

Some will have to ask an extension of time on important measures requiring longer consideration. The committee on election laws had closed its hearings and reported on all matters before it. The committee reported adversely on bills to provide for to those who believe the present system in nominating party candidates for lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, state treasurer and state auditor. This was considered one of the most important matters of the year, but at the present time its advocates are discouraged because they have not had the popular support for the change they expected to have.

The committee did not hold any hope to those who believe the present system of arranging the names of candidates on the primary ballots in alphabetical order gives too much of an advantage to those candidates whose surnames begin with A. B. or C. Sen. Hobbs of Worcester, a member of the committee had filed a bill to remedy this. His bill provided that the names of candidates should be printed in alphabetical order on one-half the ballots sent to each voting precinct and in reverse order on the other half. The committee, after considering the matter at length reported adversely.

Committees which have closed hearings on matters referred to them, but which have not yet reported on all, include those on judiciary, counties, labor, public service, public lighting, State House and libraries. The committee on street railways has closed hearings on all matters except the report of the special Western Massachusetts trolley commission. Practically all of the other committees have but several matters each to hold hearings on although the committee on railroads will be busy for some time yet with legislation providing for the reorganization of the Boston & Maine railroads.

A group of veteran legislators, whose long experience has skilled them in the art of plumbing legislative sentiment were chatting informally in the house lobby the other day and tried to agree upon the "big" measures on which the legislature was likely to take a "thumb's down" stand. They finally were able to agree on several, which are given below without guarantee as to the judgment of the legislators in question except to say that it is ordinarily sound:

The initiative and referendum.

To allow cities and towns to deal in ice, fuel and other accessories of life.

Reorganizations of the state boards of charity and agriculture.

Repeal of the "bar and bottle" bill.

To have the vote on license taken at the state election in cities and towns.

Anti-vaccination bill.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE
The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company. All Foreign Rights Reserved.

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Jameson, a newspaper man. Enraged at the determined effort which Elaine and Craig Kennedy are making to put an end to his crimes, the Clutching Hand, as this strange criminal is known, resorts to all sorts of the most diabolical schemes to put them out of the way. Each chapter of the story tells of a new plot against their lives and of the way the great detective uses all his skill to save this pretty girl and himself from death.

ELEVENTH EPISODE

THE HOUR OF THREE.

With the ominous forefinger of his Clutching Hand extended, the Master Criminal emphasized his instructions to his minions.

"Perry Bennett, her lawyer, is in favor again with Elaine Dodge," he was saying. "She and Kennedy are on the outs even yet. But they may become reconciled. Then she'll have that fellow on our trail again. Before that happens we must 'get' her—see?"

It was in the latest headquarters to which Craig had chased the criminal, in one of the toughest parts of New York's great river front section.

"Now," went on the Clutching Hand, "I want you, Slim, to follow them. See what they do—where they go. It's her birthday. Something's bound to occur that will give you a lead. All you've got to do is to use your head. Get me?"

* * * * * * *

It was, as Clutching Hand had said, Elaine's birthday. She had received many callers and congratulations, innumerable costly and beautiful tokens of remembrance from her countless friends and admirers. In the conservatory of the Dodge house Elaine, Aunt Josephine and Susie Martin were sitting discussing not only the happy occasion, but more, the many strange events of the past few weeks.

"Well, said a familiar voice behind them, "what would a certain blonde young lady accept as a birthday present from her family lawyer?"

All three turned in surprise.

"Oh, Mr. Bennett," cried Elaine. "How you startled us!"

Elaine hesitated. She was thinking not so much of his words as of Kennedy. To them all, however, it seemed that she was unable to make up her mind what, in the wealth of her luxury, what she would like.

Susie Martin had been wondering whether, now that Bennett was here, she was not de trop, as she looked, at her wrist watch mechanically. As she did so, an idea occurred to her.

"Why not one of these?" she cried impulsively, indicating the watch. "Father has some beauties at the shop."

"Oh, good," exclaimed Elaine, "how sweet!"

"Then let's all go to the shop," said Bennett. "Miss Martin will personally conduct the tour, and we shall have our pick of the finest stock."

It was too gay a party to notice a sinister figure following them in a cab.

Chatting with animation, the three moved over to the watch counter, while the crook, with a determination not to risk missing anything, entered the shop door, too.

"Mr. Thomas," asked Susie as her father's clerk bowed to them, "please show Miss Dodge the wrist watches father was telling about."

Unobserved, the crook walked over near enough to hear what was going on.

At last, with much banter and yet care, Elaine selected one that was indeed a beauty and was about to snap it on her dainty wrist when the clerk interrupted.

"I beg your pardon," he suggested, "but I'd advise you to leave it to be regulated, if you please."

Reluctantly Elaine handed it over to the clerk.

A moment later they went out and entered the car again.

As they did so, Slim, who had been looking over various things in the next case as if undecided, came up to the watch counter.

"I'm making a present," he remarked confidentally to the clerk. "How about those bracelet watches?"

The clerk pulled out some of the cheaper ones.

"No," he said thoughtfully, pointing out a tray in the showcase, "something like those."

He ended by picking out one identically like that which Elaine had selected, and started to pay for it.

"Better have it regulated," repeated the clerk.

"No," he objected hastily, shaking his head and paying the money quickly. "It's a present—and I want it tonight."

He took the watch and left the store hurriedly.

In the laboratory, Kennedy was working over an oblong oak box, perhaps eighteen inches in length and half as high. In the box I could see, besides other apparatus, two good sized spools of fine wire.

"What's all that?" I asked inquisitively.

"Another of the new instruments that scientific detectives use," he responded, scarcely looking up, "a little magnetic wizard, the telegraphone."

"Which is?" I prompted.

"Something we detectives might use to take down and 'can' telephone conversations and other such conversations. When it is attached properly to a telephone, it records everything that is said over the wire. The record is not made mechanically on a cylinder, but electro-magnetically on this wire."

Craig continued to tinker tantalizingly with the machine which had been invented by a Dane, Valdemar Poulsen.

He had scarcely finished testing the telegraphone when the laboratory door opened and a clean-cut young man entered.

Kennedy, I knew, had found that the routine work of the Clutching Hand case was beyond his limited time and had retained this young man, Raymond Chase, to attend to that.

Just now what worried Craig was the situation with Elaine, and I fancied that he had given Chase some commission in connection with that.

"I've got it, Mr. Kennedy," greeted Chase with quiet modesty.

"Good," responded Craig heartily. "I knew you would."

"Got what?" I asked a moment later.

Kennedy nodded for Chase to answer.

"I've located the new residence of Flirty Florrie," he replied.

I saw what Kennedy was after at once. Flirty Florrie and Dan the Dude had caused the quarrel between himself and Elaine. Dan the Dude was dead. But Flirty Florrie might be forced to explain it.

"That's fine," he added, exultingly. "Now I'll clear that thing up."

He took a hasty step to the telephone, put his hand on the receiver and was about to take it off the hook. Then he paused, and I saw his face working.

Finally his pride, for Kennedy's was a highly sensitive nature, got the better of him.

"No," he said, half to himself, "not—yet."

* * * * * * *

Elaine had returned home.

Alone, her thoughts naturally went back to what had happened recently to interrupt a friendship which had been the sweetest in her life.

"There must be some mistake," she murmured pensively to herself, thinking of the photograph Flirty had given her. "Oh, why did I send him away? Why didn't I believe him?"

Mechanically, she put out her hand to the telephone.

She was about to take off the receiver, when something seemed to stay her hand. She wanted him to come to her.

* * * * * * *

Craig's eye fell on the telegraphone, and an idea seemed to occur to him.

"Walter, you and Chase bring that thing along," he said a moment later.

At last we came to the apartment house at which Chase had located the woman.

"Now, Chase," he directed, "you needn't go in with us. Walter and I can manage this now. But don't get out of touch with me. I shall need you any moment—certainly, tomorrow."

Kennedy slipped on a badge inscribed: "Telephone inspector."

"Walter," he smiled, "you're elected my helper."

We entered the apartment house hall and found a negro boy in charge of the switchboard.

"You look over the switchboard, Kelly," he winked at me, "while I test out the connections back here. There must be something wrong with the wires or there wouldn't be so many complaints."

He had gone back to the switchboard while the negro, still unsuspicious, watched without understanding what it was all about.

"I don't know," Craig muttered finally for the benefit of the boy, "but I think I'll have to leave that tester, after all. Say, if I put it here, you'll have to be careful not to let anyone meddle with it. If you do, there'll be the deuce to pay. See?"

Kennedy had already started to fasten the telegraphone to the wires he had selected from the tangle.

At last he finished and stood up.

"Don't disturb it and don't let anyone else touch it," he ordered. "Better not tell anyone—that's the best way. I'll be back for it tomorrow, probably."

"Yas, sah," nodded the boy, with a bow, as he went out.

* * * * * * *

Back in the new hang-out, the Clutching Hand was laying down the law to his lieutenants and heelers when Slim at last entered.

"Huh!" growled the master criminal, conveying the fact that he was considerably relieved to see him at last. "Where have you been? I've been off on a little job myself, and got back."

Slim apologized profusely.

"Yes, sir," he replied hastily, "well, I went over to the Dodge house, and I saw them finally. I followed them into a jewelry shop. That lawyer bought a wrist watch. So I bought one just like it. I thought perhaps we could—"

"Give it to me," growled Clutching Hand, seizing it the moment Slim displayed it. "And don't butt in—see?"

From the capacious desk the master criminal pulled a set of small drills, vises, and other jeweler's tools and placed them on the table.

"All right," he relented. "Now, do you see what I have just thought of—no? This is just the chance. Look at me."

Carefully he plied his hands to the job, regardless of time.

"There," he exclaimed at last, holding the watch where they could all see it. "See!"

He pulled out the stem to set the hands and slowly twisted it between his thumb and finger. He turned the hands until they were almost at the point of three o'clock.

Then he held the watch out where all could see.

As the minute hand touched three, from the back of the case, as if from the chasing itself, a little needle, perhaps a quarter of an inch, jumped out. It seemed to come from what looked like merely a small insect in the decoration.

"You see what will happen at the hour of three?" he asked.

No one said a word, as he held up a vial which he had drawn from his pocket. On it they could read the label, "Ricinus."

"One of the most powerful poisons in the world," he exclaimed. "Enough to kill a regiment!"

They fairly gasped and looked at it with horror, exchanging glances.

Opening the vial carefully, he dipped in a thin piece of glass and placed a tiny drop in a receptacle back of the needle and on the needle itself.

"I've set my invention to go off at three o'clock," he concluded. "Tomorrow forenoon, it will have to be delivered early—and I don't believe we shall be troubled any longer by Miss Elaine Dodge," he added, venomously.

Calmly he wrapped up the apparently innocent engine of destruction and handed it to Slim.

"See that she gets it in time," he said merely.

"I will, sir," answered Slim, taking it gingerly.

* * * * * * *

Flirty Florrie had returned that afternoon, late, from some expedition on which she had been sent.

Rankling in her heart yet was the death of her lover, Dan the Dude.

Thus, when she arrived home, she went to the telephone to report and called a number, 4494 Greenwich.

"Hello, chief," she repeated. "This is Flirty. Have you done anything yet in the little matter we talked about?"

"Say—be careful of names—over the wire," came a growl.

"You know—what I mean."

"Yes. The trick will be pulled off at three o'clock."

"Good!" she exclaimed. "Good-by and thank you."

With his well-known caution Clutching Hand did not even betray names over the telephone if he could help it.

Flirty hung up the receiver with satisfaction. The manes of the departed Dan might soon rest in peace!

* * * * * * *

The next day, early in the forenoon, a young man with a small package carefully done up came to the Dodge house.

"From Martin's, the jeweler's, for Miss Dodge," he said to Jennings at the door.

Elaine and Aunt Josephine were sitting in the library when Jennings announced him.

"Oh, it's my watch," cried Elaine. "Show him in."

Elaine put the watch on her wrist and admired it.

"Is it all right?" asked Slim.

"Yes, yes," answered Elaine. "You may go."

* * * * * * *

Early the same morning Kennedy went around again to the apartment house and, cautious not to be seen by Flirty, recovered the telegraphone Together we carried it to the laboratory.

There he set up a little instrument that looked like a wedge sitting up on end, in the face of which was a dial. Through it he began to run the wire from the spools, and, taking an earpiece, put another on my head over my ears.

He turned a switch and we listened eagerly.

First came several calls from people with bills, and she put them off most adroitly.

Then we heard a call that caused Kennedy to look at me quickly, stop the machine and start at that point over again.

"That's what I wanted," he said, as we listened in:

"Give me 4494 Greenwich."

"Hallo."

"Hello, chief. This is Flirty. Have you done anything yet in the little matter we talked about?"

"Say—be careful of names—over the wire."

"You know—what I mean."

"Yes, the trick will be pulled off at three o'clock."

"Good! Good-by, and thank you!"

"Good-by."

Craig paused and considered a minute, then moved to the telephone.

"There's only one thing to do, and that's to follow out my original scheme," he said energetically. "Information, please."

"Where is Greenwich 4494?" he asked a moment later.

The minutes passed. "Thank you, sir," he cried, writing down on a pad an address on the West side, near the river front. Then turning to me, he exclaimed, "Walter, we've got him at last!"

Craig rose and put on his hat and coat thrusting a pair of opera glasses into his pocket, in case we should want to observe the place at a distance. I followed him excitedly. The trail was hot.

* * * * * * *

Kennedy and I came at last to the place on the West side, where the crooked streets curved off.

Instead of keeping on until he came to the place we sought, he turned off and quickly slipped behind the shelter of a fence. There was a broken board in the fence and he bent down, gazing through with the opera glasses.

Across the lot was the new hang-out, a somewhat dilapidated, old-fashioned brick house of several generations back. Through the glass we could see an evil-countenanced crook slinking along. He mounted the steps and rang the bell, turning as he waited.

From a small aperture in the doorway looked out another face, equally evil. Under cover, the crook made the sign of the Clutching Hand twice and was admitted.

"That's the place, all right," whispered Kennedy with satisfaction. He hurried to a telephone booth, where he called several numbers. Then we returned to the laboratory.

From the table he picked up a small coil over which I had seen him working and attached it to the bell and some batteries. He replaced it on the table, while I watched curiously.

"A selenium cell," he explained. "Only when light falls on it does it become a good conductor of electricity. Then the bell will ring."

Just before making the connection he placed his hat over the cell. Then he lifted the hat. The light fell on it and the bell rang. He replaced the hat and the bell stopped.

Just then there came a knock at the door. I opened it.

SUDDENLY RESIGNS

Speculation as to Cause of Action of Framingham Town Treasurer

Framingham, Mass., March 9.—Unable to obtain a new bond from the Massachusetts Bonding company, Town Treasurer Thomas Haynes has sent in his resignation to the town of Framingham.

His resignation was sudden, but, in spite of this, Chairman Rice of the board of selectmen said he was informed by Town Auditor Lord that Haynes' accounts are in order.

The reason for the refusal of the Massachusetts Bonding company to renew Haynes', bond is unknown to Rice. He says people of the town may have theories, but he has not been officially informed of the reason for the bonding company's action.

Notwithstanding these statements the selectmen raised the bond of the town treasurer from $25,000 to $75,000 and voted to employ a certified public accountant.

The townspeople are still wondering as to the whereabouts of Haynes and are speculating on the cause of his resignation, which the selectmen laid on the table.

THAW JURY COMPLETE

Counsel Will Claim He Was Sane When He Fled From Matteawan

New York, March 9.—In the same room where he had twice faced a jury for the killing of Stanford White, Harry K. Thaw went on trial for conspiring to escape from the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan. With him as co-defendants were five men whom the state charges with having been parties to the alleged conspiracy. The entire day was required to complete the jury.

Thaw's attorneys plainly intimated that, with the permission of the court, they would offer evidence designed to prove that their client was sane when he escaped from the asylum. Such being the case, they said in examining talesmen, the defendant was being illegally detained at the time of his flight.

YOUNG ANARCHISTS PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Held In $25,000 Bail In the Cathedral Bomb Case

New York, March 9.—Frank Abarno, the young anarchist arrested in St. Patrick's cathedral after detectives had stamped out the fuse of a lighted bomb which imperilled the lives of 800 worshipers, pleaded not guilty to the charge of attempting to explode the bomb, a felony upon conviction of which he could be sent to prison for twenty-five years.

Carmine Carbone, the 18-year-old boy arrested as the maker of the missile, entered a similar plea. Both were held in $25,000 bail for trial.

The court proceedings were brief and the merits of the case were not brought up, nor was the charge, made by the prisoners, that the police had instigated the plot to wreck the cathedral.

ELECTIONS IN MAINE

Three Republican and Two Democratic Mayors Are Chosen

Portland, Me., March 9.—Elections were held in five Maine cities. Frank Robinson, Democrat, was chosen mayor of Bangor. The city council remains Republican.

For the first time in five years Republicans won control in Augusta, electing Blaine S. Viles as mayor.

There were no contests in the other three cities. In Belfast the Republicans elected Charles R. Coombs mayor. Mayor Nickerson, Republican, was re-elected in Brewer. In Biddeford, Mayor Smith, Democrat, was re-elected for a third term.

THE LATEST IN SHOES

Footgear Made of Cotton Turned Out by an Atlanta Factory

Atlanta, March 9.—Shoes made almost entirely of cotton are the latest product of an Atlanta shoe factory. The only thing about the shoes that is not cotton is the heel, which is made of rubber, and a thin leather welt to which the cotton belting sole is attached.

The newest thing about the shoe is the cotton belting sole. On records which have been kept of this material it is declared that it will last as a shoe sole longer than leather. The rest of the shoe is made of gray cloth.

Two-Cent Rate Law Annulled

Washington, March 9.—Declaring that freight and other railroad earnings need not be considered in determining whether a reduced passenger fare is confiscatory, the supreme court refused to enforce West Virginia's 2-cent passenger fare law against the Norfolk and Western railway.

HELP NEW ENGLAND

Industrial New England embraces a section of this country dotted thickly with populous and prosperous cities and towns which could not last long without their industries. Residential centres we have in abundance and rich old towns that reflect the initiative of older days, but most of our communities are built up around some large and thriving industry. It is not so very far back to the time when New England was a virgin forest. Then came the pioneers who saw the possibilities of our rivers, our resources, our geographical position. Mills and factories grew up along the rivers of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and so on, and around the mills and factories grew great cities. New England of today owes its existence to its manufactures. Without them this section would speedily lose its prominence and prestige, and would lag behind while less favored sections of the country would prosper and develop. Without markets, our New England mills and factories cannot exist. For years our manufacturers have supplied the world with the products of their great mills and the initiative and efficiency of New England have carried the fame of American enterprise into the commercial ports of all the world. For the present a terrible war has disorganized trade and commerce, and our industries are confronted with grave uncertainty. There is no danger of a permanent injury or a diminution of our industrial preeminence, but for the moment all of our New England enterprises need encouragement. This encouragement is in the hands of our New England people to give if, with loyalty and an intelligent outlook on the future, they give practical aid to industrial New England by showing a preference for New England products. Every article purchased of New England manufacture brings profit to the merchant, to the manufacturer, to New England and to the purchaser, for the interests of New England and its people are closely intertwined. Help New England and you'll help yourself.

PLENTY OF WHEAT

The department of agriculture assures the country that there is no danger of a food shortage here in America, notwithstanding the large exports which are being sent to European countries. There is an abundance of wheat, says that authority, and a million bushels may be shipped daily without exhausting the supply before the new crop is available. Why, then, should the price flour be raised? There is but one answer, and that is speculation, business selfishness, that stands to make money whenever a corner in breadstuffs is a possibility. The price of wheat and flour has been advanced by artificial means. This hits people of small means where the blow is severest, on the means of supplying their families with daily bread. It has been suggested that cornmeal be substituted for wheat flour, it being cheaper, healthier and the supply practically inexhaustible. This might be done if there should arise a famine in the land, but no such contingency is probable. If the price of wheat and flour continues to rise, an embargo should be placed upon the export of our staple cereal. The depression in the labor market, supplemented by advances in the price of food is putting a hardship upon the American people to bear.

CHARGE COMMITTEE HAS "DOUBLE-CROSSED" THEM

Appoint New Committee to Look After Street

There was a lively tilt between members of the Squantum Improvement association at its regular meeting Tuesday night in Richards Memorial hall when the question of the condition of Dorchester street and Bellevue road and their acceptance by the City of Quincy came up for discussion. There was some talk that a committee appointed to look after the Dorchester street proposition had "double-crossed" the association and had worked the acceptance of Bellevue road. This inference was indignantly denied by members of the committee.

The matters resulted in the Dorchester street committee being discharged and a new committee being appointed. This new committee consists of James H. Sumner chairman Joseph Allen and James H. Hagan. They will work to have immediate improvement made of the condition of Dorchester street.

President John R. Nelson presided and Secretary James H. Foster and Treasurer Charles Bostwick made their regular reports.

CONFERENCE ON APPORTIONMENT

A conference was held Tuesday afternoon in Boston between the parties interested in the proposed new bridge over the Neponset river between Quincy and Neponset. The object of the conference was to see if the parties could not come to some agreement as to how the cost should be apportioned. Aside from City Solicitor Pinkham and City Enginer Sargent Chairman Merrill of the County Commissioners and Senator Langelier and Representative Sandberg and Ericson were at the conference. It is understood that the parties at interest reached an agreement, as to the apportionment, but just what this was is not to be made public until the bill is reported. It was given out that the legislative committee would give another hearing after which it would probably report a new bill in which the cost would be apportioned as agreed upon.

WILD RIDES TO LEAD TO ARRESTS

The "high jinks" of some West Quincy boys have been brought to the attention of the police and arrests may be made any day.

The "jinks" consist mainly of turning loose the empty flat tracks freight cars left on the Granite branch railroad runaways.

Several cars the past few months have been found hundreds of feet away from the spot where they were left and investigations revealed that the boys were releasing the brakes, using a bar to start the car, and then swinging aboard the runaway for a wild ride. On one occasion a car came to a stop only after it collided with another.

The cars are left on the tracks for the accommodation of quarry owners and are used when needed.

WAITING ROOM IN CITY SQUARE

Planning Board Considers Matter at Meeting

A meeting of the new Planning Board was held at City Hall Tuesday evening at which time there was a general and informal discussion of the question of a waiting room in city square and other matters for the general welfare of the city. No definite action was taken.

While the Planning Board has not disclosed its plans it is reported that what is being considered is the erection of a street railway terminal station in city square, near where the fountain is now located. This would have suitable waiting rooms on the street floor and the sanitary rooms under ground. If the plan can be carried out it will solve a long perplexing question.

AUTO SHOW IS VERY POPULAR

Quincy Well Represented at Exhibition

Quincy was well represented Tuesday night at the Automobile show, and in the thousands that thronged the exhibition hall one was constantly meeting some resident of Quincy. Without question it is the greatest auto show ever held in this state. Some idea of the magnitude of the show can be had when it is said that there are 132 different exhibits and that the automobiles shown represent in value over $2,000,000. That it is an expensive affair to run will also be recognized when it is known that the expenses for the week total over $75,000. The whole affair is under the direct management of Mayor Campbell, who has a large corps of aids, assisting him, many of whom are residents of this city.

Many handsome and expensive cars are shown while there is of course a large number of he less expensive cars. A car which was always surrounded by a crowd was the Packard armored car. One hears much since the present war has been on in Europe about the armored automobiles which have done great execution and many have doubtless wondered just what they look like. Those that visit the automobile show therefore have their desire in this respect gratified. This car is located on the platform in the main hall is painted in the war color adopted by the United states for its battleships and from the steel turret there protrudes a rapid fire gun. It is certainly realistic.

There are some Quincy men among the exhibitors, and among those were noticed C. P. Gould of Adams street who is showing his portable garage and Frank W. Nightingale who is showing his portable garage and Frank W. Nightingale who is showing his patent rowlock for boats.

It is impossible of course to go into detail about the show for it must be seen to be appreciated. Today is society day at the show. Thursday Mayor's day and Friday, Governor's day. Thursday evening the members of the city council and city officials will visit the show in a body to pay their respects to Mayor Campbell.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS MEET

A largely attended meeting of the Adams Parents-Teachers association was held Tuesday evening at school hall. The speaker of the evening was John Hebbard of the state board of parole who gave an intersting talk on the institutions of the state, illustrated with stereopticon views. Especial inerest was taken in the views shown of the state prison at Charlestown. The theme of Mr. Hebbard's talk was the necessity of giving people in the state institutions such training as shall fit them to be useful citizens when they are discharged.

During the evening there were several musical selections by a women's quartette composed of Misses Sabean, Williams, Laing and Parker, under the direction of Mrs. Emma S. Moore.

There was a short business session at which Councilman Robert B. Craig reported that there was an order before the city council calling for the acceptance of Madison street and a part of Bradford street, these two streets being those that lead to the school building.

It was also announced that there would be a concert in April by the Wollaston Glee club, the proceeds of which were to be used in decoration of the Adams school building.

At the close of the evening's program light refreshments were served.

POPE DENOUNCES MOCK MODESTY

Speaker At Wollaston Club Talks on Variety of Topics

FORMER STATE AUDITOR

A pleasant evening was spent at the monthly meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club Tuesday evening, when Frank Pope of Leominster, formerly state auditor and for many years a member of the state legislature, spoke on "Some of the Tragic and Humorous Phases of Life."

The subject gave the speaker much latitude, of which he took advantage letting no opportunity pass for bringing home a joke or pleasantry. Many bits of verse coupled with genuine horse sense proved most enjoyable and the speaker was applauded again and again.

A nominating committee, consisting of William M. Burrell, Alfred H. Richards and Axel G. Nelson was appointed and an invitation received from the Men's Assembly of the Wollaston Baptist church to attend a meeting on March 17 when Lieutenant Governor Grafton D. Cushing will speak.

Rev. Carl G. Horst read portions of a letter he had received from his niece in Germany that morning. The letter was written February 14 and told of the conditions prevalent. It concluded "Why does America maintain her neutrality so little? Why does she deliver arms to our enemies? We will never grow tired of war, although we desire peace. We only want peace after a glorious victory over all our enemies. Hail Germany!"

In addition to the philosophical side of his address Mr. Pope had much to say concerning the care of the feeble minded whose ranks he stated were increasing in this state at the rate of 500 a year.

"The feeble minded are constantly bringing more feeble minded into being, who in turn became state charges. We will never recover until these are properly segregated. Ten million dollars ought to be appropriated at once for this purpose."

"During the last fifty years one defective couple and its numerous progeny have cost the state half a million dollars, in pauper and criminal expense." The speaker mentioned the communicable disease so prevalent among the feeble minded.

"The fundamental trouble," he said, "is too much mock modesty. That modesty is expensive. We have been negligent, indifferent and ignorant of conditions and tonight we are reaping the undesirable harvest."

In conclusion Mr. Pope spoke in favor of abolishing the tarriff and left this question with his audience. "If we can go into South America or Russia and compete successfully with Germany, France and England, why can we not do it in Boston, New York and Wollaston?"

DECLARE TRACKS ARE DANGEROUS TO LIFE

Hear Petitioners For Fences and Subways at Ward 5 and 6 Stations

F. S. Hobbs, superintendent of the New Haven railroad, at the hearing before the Public Service Commission at the state house today on the petition of the Wollaston Park and Norfolk Downs improvement associations for the erection of fences and the construction of subways at the Ward five and six stations said he did not believe in building bridges and subways for school children. He said a Safety First meeting should be held in Wollaston and that he would be glad to preside. He also said work on a four track system through Quincy would probably be started within two years.

The hearing was attended by about 50 residents of Wollaston and Norfolk Downs and in addition to the petitioners there was a large delegation from Norfolk Downs association to oppose the building of any permanent structure at this time which would hinder the erection of an overhead traffic bridge when the four tracks were completed.

Joseph K. Barber, chairman of the committee for the petitioners, spoke of the number boarding trains there and placed the figures from 2000 to 3000 daily. He said a dangerous condition existed and that as a matter of public safety something should be done.

A. L. Barbour, superintendent of schools, pointed out that children continually crossed the tracks, especially at Norfolk Downs. He said that 90 odd crossed the tracks at that station four times a day, often when the traffic was the heaviest, instead of going a quarter of mile away to the nearest bridge. He characterized the situation as probably the most dangerous in Quincy. At Wollaston he said the condition could be improved more easily.

Senator Langelier said conditions at both places were serious and that while agitation had resulted in the closing of the Wollaston crossing some time ago there was a great protest made at the inconvenience it caused and it was reopened. He objected to any permanent work which would forestall the proposed traffic bridge connecting Billings road and Broadway. He also spoke of the dangers of the present system of operation at Norfolk Downs where inbound passengers got off on the station side and crossed the tracks and then had to wait and recross again. He advocated putting a policeman at the crossing to warn children until some other means of protection were taken.

William M. Chase, president of the Wollaston Park Improvement association and a well known railroad man, spoke of the rapid increase in population and of the grade crossing agitation, stating as his belief that it would be ten years before crossings in Quincy would be eliminated.

Upon questions by the commissioners City Solicitor Pinkham stated that the final decree on the grade crossing question had been entered and it simply awaited final action by the railroad to put the project through.

Harry A. Stevens of Wollaston told how the sound of approaching trains was cut off by the narrow bridge at Wollaston. He believed a method of warning should be instituted and some means other than the present crossing provided.

Dr. E. D. Whitehouse believed a fence or subway at Wollaston should be constructed. He said a dog had been recently killed there which was worth more than the fence would cost

Councilman Fred J. Kessler of Montclair also spoke, as did J. A. L. Ross of Norfolk Downs, the latter stating that within two years his mother had been killed at the crossing and at least 40 per cent of the people that crossed used it as a public thoroughfare.

Edward E. Palmer appeared for the Norfolk Downs residents and presented a petition of 250 names against a subway or other costly improvement that would hinder a final construction of an overhead traffic bridge at Norfolk Downs.

E. C. Clark of Norfolk Downs spoke of the danger of express trains passing local trains making stops at Norfolk Downs and cited instances which occur at 7.48 A. M. and 6.59 P. M.

Attorney Woodward for the New Haven railroad answered the criticism of the methods of operation by saying that the passengers objections hindered the company in carrying out regulations of safety. He also said the elimination of grade crossings in Quincy was one of the first things the New Haven intended to do and that owing to the heavy service in that vicinity four tracks were needed. At Wollaston station there was not sufficient distance he said between the tracks to erect a fence.

Several questions were answered and the hearing adjourned. Early, a vote was taken to get the opinion of the need of immediate action and about half favored it. The Norfolk Downs contingent did not vote because as a body it is undecided on a subway.

ENTITLED TO HER CHILDREN.

The Commission for Relief in Belgium has received hundreds of letters from persons who desire to adopt orphan children of Belgium. The Commission has decided, wisely we think, not to favor the adoption of the destitute little ones. Dr. Percy H. Williams of Columbia University, who has just returned from the province of Liege, where he spent two months distributing food among 900,000 people for the Commission, says:

"There are practically no Belgian orphans in the United States at present, and, as a matter of fact, it is impossible to tell just what Belgian child is, or is not, an orphan. In addition to this, the policy of the Belgian government is to se cure the return to their own country at some time of all of its homeless children now in France, England and Holland."

It must be the fervent hope of all fair minded persons throughout the world that little Belgium will not cease to be a nation when the Great War is over. Her courage in her hour of trial has entitled her to something better than extinction. She is entitled to her children and we should save them for her.

CLOTHES NOT NEEDED.

Shipments of clothing donated during the last few months have been so large and generous that an adequate supply for months to come has accumulated, according to a cable dispatch received from the London office of The Commission for Relief in Belgium. Space in the vessels of the Commission is needed for the transportation of food, and accordingly the Commission is appealing to all committees and individuals to focus their efforts upon supplying food, of which there is still a serious shortage.

The best thing to give is money which can then be expended by the commission to greater advantage than by individuals who can not have the same intimate knowledge of the most pressing needs.

THE ACME OF DEVOTION.

During the progress of the human race and language a variety of phrases have been used by faithful friends or ardent swains to indicate the measure of their devotion. "I'd go through fire and water for you" has an impressive sound and in the Napoleonic era it might have passed. "I'd go through what Sherman said war is for you" might be fairly convincing. But the acme of devotion has been found. What greater devotion could be breathed than by the man who said, "For you I'd leave a baseball game in the ninth inning with the score a tie?"

WISELY DECLINES.

President Wilson has declined "for the present" the invitation extended him to visit the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He acted wisely. There are plenty of important foreign complications which need the master hand constantly upon them and we should be rather nervous if he dropped the cares of state for a time and left the government in the hands of more or less skilled subordinates.

Mayor Haines of Medford, whose sensational "breaks" with the board of aldermen and other officials have brought him so much notoriety, is a beautiful example of what a mayor ought not to be. As a press agent or a vaudeville artist he could make a respectable living but as the chief executive of a city he appears to be lamentably weak.

In connection with his note to the Carranza party in Mexico President Wilson is reported to have stated that the United States did not affect ultimate but presented views and acted accordingly. A nice distinction It would be interesting to get Gen Huerta's opinion on the matter.

Well it was some satisfaction to know that Congress really could adjourn. We feared it was a lost art.

Mr. Taft advises us all to stand by the President and the Flag. Right. This is no time to show partizanship.

The difference between the dardanelles and the price of wheat is daily becoming more strained.

LABOR TROUBLES IN PORTO RICO

"Bert" Coffin Writes of Conditions There

The Ledger has received an interesting account of present condition in Porto Rico, just now being tormented with strikes, from Albert G. Coffin, formerly of this city but now in the government service in Porto Rico. His letter follows:

While the people of the United States have been busy lately trying to figure out whether business conditions are going to be better or worse the people of Porto Rico have had not only this to contend with but also serious labor trouble.

The laborers who have been harvesting the sugar cane struck generally throughout the island for more pay. At first it did not seem to amount to much but as time went on and no agreement was reached between the employers and the employees, a feeling of general unrest took place. The first serious trouble came several weeks ago when about 35 houses in one of the suburbs of San Juan was burned. The origin of this fire was incendiary.

Conditions continued about the same when a meeting was held in the eastern end of the island and immediately afterwards there was trouble in Vicques. At this meeting there were some very inciting speeches. A crowd of several hundred strikers gathered together with the intent to take possession of the police station. A riot then occurred and as a result of it two policemen were left in the street for dead, although it was found later that they were only seriously wounded, and several of the strikers were killed and a number more wounded. It took quite a few additional police to finally restore quiet then and then only after about a week.

This trouble was followed by an incendiary fire at Naugabo, which is also in the eastern part of the island which practically wiped out the entire town, destroying over 250 buildings most of which were houses. After this, fires occurred nearly every day in different towns burning from one to six houses. Finally two men have been caught and arrested in the act of setting fires.

Hundreds of acres of cane field have been burned in various parts of the island. However the laborers are beginning to realize that by committing crime their cause is being injured rather than helped so that now things are pretty quiet as a whole. One reason why such conditions have existed, I think, is due to the fact that the Porto Ricans as a race are very excitable and when excited are not able to control themselves.

Last week the governor issued a proclamation to the effect that the commission of crime in connection with the labor trouble must stop and that all persons found guilty of committing crime would be punished very severely, but they could hold meetings and would not be interfered with as long as they were orderly. He also ordered the police to patrol all districts where trouble was likely to arise. The police here are organized on a semi-military basis so that now many of them are acting really as soldiers rather than as ordinary police. This proclamation did a great deal to quiet things down.

A great number of the sugar centrals have been forced to suspend operations on account of the trouble. Some of them have reached agreements with the strikers and they have gone back to work. Undoubtedly the rest of the differences will be settled before a great while.

HOLD UP IN BRAINTREE

Thugs Assault and Rob Brockton Man

A. B. Atwood, a collector for the Union Tea Co., of Brockton, was held up, beaten and robbed on Pond street Braintree, at 8.30 Tuesday evening.

The holdup occurred near the old brook on the road to Randolph where Atwood alighted from his wagon to adjust the harness of his horse. Two men jumped toward him from the side of the road. One was short and the other tall

The tall man, the younger of the two, asked for a quarter and Atwood asked "Why should I give you a quarter." The words were no sooner said than the short man struck him over the head, inflicting a deep cut. Atwood has but one arm and as he turned to ward off another blow the other man struck him on the stub of his arm, and knocked him to the street.

The men then went through Atwoods pockets and relieved him of money amounting to between $75 and $100. Both then disappeared.

Atwood drove to South Braintree where he notified the police and then went to physician's office where his wound was dressed. Patrolman John Shay of that town, accompanied by Chief of Police Hunt went to the scene of the holdup but found nothing that would aid in identifying the thugs.

Atwood says the shorter man was thick set and had a scraggy beard and appeared to be about 30 years of age. He said the tall man was cleaner cut and was about 25 years of age.

The police spent a great part of the night in searching and they were assisted by the police of Randolph. A description was phoned to Brockton.

REASON FOR DEFEAT.

Mrs. Antoinette Funk, who was one of the four women who conducted the successful lobby in the Illinois legislature for woman suffrage, gives an interesting explanation of the defeat of Mayor Harrison of Chicago. According to the Chicago dispatches Mr. Harrison's opponent received nearly two-thirds of the women's votes. Mrs. Funk traces Mayor Harrison's defeat directly to his action several years ago in holding up the pay of the Chicago school teachers. In a statement issued from the headquarters of the Congressional Committee of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, she says:

"In spite of the fact that immediately suffrage was adopted by Illinois Mr. Harrison espoused it, and since then has conducted the schools of Chicago along advanced lines, and as stood by the women in the Ella Flagg Young controversies, the women have seized their first opportunity to register their judgment on his past injustice to the sex by defeating him and nominating a man on the Democratic ticket with no political record to rise up and haunt him."

HOLD BUSINESS MEETING.

Swedish Congregational Church Votes to Have Conference.

A business meeting of the Swedish Congregational parish was held Tuesday evening at which time it was voted to hold a "missionsmote" or conference, at the church the first Monday in May. The matter of providing a new organ for the church was also taken up and plans were outlined to accomplish this end. A committee was appointed, consisting of Rev. Mr. Sporrong, the pastor, John Anderson and Eric Carlson, to have charge of the project and they will report at the next business meeting of the church.

Miss Catherine Hussey of the Parkway and Miss Annie White of Copeland street are making plans to attend the Pan-American Exposition. They intend to start as soon as school closes in June. Miss Hussey is a teacher in a Boston public school and Miss White is a teacher in the Willard school of this city.

PAY TRIBUTE TO THOS. L. PRATT

Plumbers Union No. 12, of Boston paid an unusual tribute to Thomas L. Pratt of Atlantic, who died Sunday when they stopped work at noon Tuesday in order to attend the funeral services. Action to this effect was taken Monday night at the meeting of the union when it was voted that every one of the 600 members employed in Boston and vicinity should stop work at noon Tuesday and meet at the South Station and go to Atlantic to attend the funeral of Mr. Pratt. The committee in charge of the arrangements include Terrance Heagney, John Hall, James Flood, John Cahill, Daniel Murphy, Fred Marshall, David Gardner, Michael Harrington and Thomas Garvin.

The death of Mr. Pratt came as a surprise to the union as it was not generally known that he was ill. He was one of the oldest members of the Plumbers Union and had served the organization in every office during the past fifteen years. He was one of the best known labor leaders in the country and although never elected to an office in the international organization he was often a delegate to its conventions. He has been a member of local 12 for more than 35 years. He leaves a widow and six daughters.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from his late home on Billings street and aside from being attended by the members of the Plumber's union there were many friends and neighbors at the services. The services were conducted by Rev. Thomas W. Davison of the Atlantic Memorial church and the burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes.

SETTLES CLAIMS.

The Metropolitan Park Commission has settled the claims of the owners of the property taken at Atlantic where the new bridge is to be built to connect the Boston and Wollaston Beach boulevards. The first taking was made several months ago. The land extends from the boulevard to Neponset river and is 100 feet deep.

Editor, The Ledger:

What Local Clubs are Doing

News of Women's Clubs is a feature of the Daily Ledger every Wednesday. Secretaries of organizations should send notices of club activities, to reach the Club Editor not later than Tuesday night to insure insertion the next day.

A CLUBWOMAN'S CREED.

Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in order, in deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away pretence and meet each other face to face—without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; make us grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.

Grant we may realize it is the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common woman's heart of us all, and, O Lord God, let us not forget to be kind.

ELLA E. LANE BOWLES,
Pres. Chicago Press League.

QUINCY WOMAN'S CLUB.

That members of the Quincy Women's Club appreciate their voting privilege was demonstrated at the annual meeting of the club Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse. There was no contest on for any of the offices but the attendance was large, some coming to cast their ballot who could not remain for all the meeting. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, president was in the chair and following the reports of the clerk and treasurer an interesting report was given by Mrs. Edward S. Tenney, corresponding secretary of the first month's work of the School Nurse as follows: 468 children examined for various causes; 72 referred to school physician; 112 home visits made; two children obtained surgical treatment and glasses obtained for one child who otherwise could not have had them. Feb. 13 two children were escorted to the Eye and Ear Infirmary; Feb. 20 four children, and one child escorted to hospital for surgical treatment by Mr. Townsend. Feb. 27 two children were escorted to the Eye and Ear Infirmary. Marion Jackson, School Nurse.

This work was established by the club as a gift commemorating its tenth anniversary, the club paying the expenses of the nurse for a year after which it is hoped the city will continue the Nurse, in the schools permanently. The first month's report was most gratifying to those contributing to the work and was received with applause.

The president made several announcements of meetings of Federation committees and clubs. Also of an all day sewing bee to be held Thursday at the clubhouse to sew for the hospitals in Northern France. The meeting to begin at ten and members to stay all day to take a basket lunch.

Mrs. Tenney spoke of the poem written and read by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney at the club's tenth anniversary and published in the Ledger. She said many wished a copy of the poem and it would be printed in a small leaflet if club members so desired, and those present were asked to hand in on a slip of paper the number of copies they would want at five cents each.

Mrs. E. B. Marsh announced an anti-suffrage meeting at 3 o'clock Tuesday, March 16, with Mrs. Wilson Tisdale at the Miller Stile Inn.

The club has several penants of the Quincy Women's Club left over from the "Trip Around the World" entertainment which the committee would like to sell for 25 cents each.

Mrs. Blanchard announced an art exhibition at the Boston Art club open to club members and for which there were tickets, also that her committee was arranging for an Indian exhibit at the clubhouse in April.

Mrs. J. R. Mellen for the Education committee which desires to raise more money for the expenses of the School Nurse, announced a lecture on Tuesday evening, April 13 in Coddington School hall by Miss Edith Randall who would speak on "Belgium before the War," illustrated by stereopticon. Mrs. Frank J. Moore had arranged a musical program by a ladies quartet. Plans are underway for the annual May festival for the children and an attractive program secured.

Mrs. W. W. Whitcher announced several hearings at the State House relating to pure milk and urged attendance of club women. She also spoke of the meeting March 15 of the parliamentary law class, and of the last meeting of the class on March 29 which would meet at 2.15 for an hour's drill after which there will be violin solos by Mrs. Blanchard and a talk by Mrs. Andrews, who will tell of some of the bills at the State House.

Mrs. Wilson Marsh for the Philanthropy committee said $12 had been received from the sale of clubhouse postals which paid the expenses of the little Italian art student. Her committee had contributed $40 to the Associated Charities and $65 had been raised from a recent entertainment. Mrs. Marsh also told of work in preparing Adams Academy for the use of the Young Women's club.

Mrs. Hunting for the Visiting Nurse committee gave Miss McEwan's report for February as follows: Number of visits made 402; for Metropolitan Insurance Co., 119; fees $61, carfares $10.95; patients 78: free patients 35; paying patients; Metropolitan patients 19; doctors calling 21; first calls in obstetrics 5; districts visited Quincy, South and West Quincy, Quincy Point, Houghs Neck, Wollaston and Norfolk Downs. Old linen was donated by Mrs. W. E. Alden and Mrs. Z. S. Arnold.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, a delegate to the State Federation meeting in Somerville gave an interesting report of the day's sessions.

Announcement was made that the yearly club dues for membership were now due and should be paid to the treasurer, Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham. Those paying by mail are requested to enclose addressed stamped envelope for return of receipt.

The result of the ballot was announced as follows:

President—Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham.

1st Vice—Mrs. George L. Badger.

2d Vice—Mrs. N. S. Hunting.

Clerk—Mrs. William F. Cummings

Cor. Secretary—Mrs. Ernest L. Collins.

Treasurer—Mrs. Edward L. Mitchell Jr.

Auditor—Mrs. Thomas Fenno.

The afternoon's entertainment included music and an art lecture by Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus, the club's first president, and it might well be called a home afternoon as Mrs. F. Clifford Bates the soloist was also a club member.

Mrs. Bates sang a group of three songs accompanied at the piano by Mrs. George Drew, the selections each receiving encores.

Mrs. Bumpus took for her subject "Noted Women of Noted Eras," represented in the most celebrated paintings. She gave a brief history of each beginning with Saphho the greatest writer of love poems and the inventor of the lyre. She was a woman who had a great influence on the times in which she lived. In the group upon which Mrs. Bumpus spoke were Sappho, Aspasia, Judith, the Virgin Mary, and the Empress Theodora illustrated by copies of paintings in the Naples Museum; British Museum London; Vatican, Rome: Uffizi gallery, Florence; Academy of Venice and the Brera, Milan.

Mrs. Bumpus believed that woman's influence was great, not only many centuries ago but even at the present time. She made her women very real and interesting and her manner of illustrating her talk was novel and pleasing. Instead of lantern slides, envelopes were distributed containing copies of each subject to be discussed, which added materially to the enjoyment of the speaker's word pictures.

Mrs. Bumpus' pleasing personality, thorough familarity with her subject and good delivery made the lecture most enjoyable and at the close the encore was loud and prolonged. Many wished the lecture could have gone on longer it was so interesting.

PUBLIC HOUSEKEEPING.

A city is in many respects a great business corporation but in other respects it is enlarged housekeeping. If American cities have failed in the first, partly because officeholders have carried with them the predatory instinct learned in competitive business, and cannot help "working a good thing" when they have an opportunity, may we not say that city housekeeping has failed partly because women, the traditional housekeepers, have not been consulted as to its multiform activities? The men of the city have been carelessly indifferent to much of its civic housekeeping as they have always been indifferent to the details of the household. They have totally disregarded a candidate's capacity to keep the streets clean, preferring to consider him in relation to the national tariff or to the necessity for increasing the national navy, in a pure spirit of reversion to the traditional type of government, which has to do only with enemies and outsiders.

It is difficult to see what military prowess has to do with multiform duties which, in a modern city, include the care of parks and libraries, superintendence of markets, sewers and bridges, the inspection of provisions and boilers, and the proper disposal of garbage. It has nothing to do with the building department, which the city maintains that it may see to it that the basements are dry, that the bedrooms are large enough to afford the required cubic feet of air that the plumbing is sanitary, that the gas pipes do not leak, that the tenement house court is large enough to afford light and ventilation, that the stairways are fireproof. The ability to carry arms has nothing to do with the health department maintained by the city, which provides that children are vaccinated, that contagious diseases are isolated and placarded, that the spread of tuberculosis is curbed, that the water is free from typhoid infection. Certainly the military conception of society is remote from the functions of the school boards, whose concern it is that children are educated, that they are supplied with kindergartens, and are given a decent place in which to play. The very multifariousness and complexity of a city government demand the help of minds accustomed to detail and variety of work to a sense of obligation for the health and welfare of young children, and to a responsibility for the cleanliness and comfort of other people.

Because all these things have traditionally been in the hands of women, if they take no part in them now they are not only missing the education which the natural participation in civic life would bring to them, but they are losing what they have always had. From the beginning of tribal life, they have been held responsible for the health of the community, a function which is now represented by the health department. From the days of the cave dwellers so far as the home was clean and wholesome, it was due to their efforts, which are now represented by the Bureau of Tenement House Inspection. From the period of the primitive village, the only public sweeping which was performed was what they undertook in their dooryards, that which is now represented by the Bureau of Street Cleaning. Most of the departments in a modern city can be traced to woman's traditional activity; but, in spite of this, so soon as these old affairs were turned over to the city they slipped from woman's hands, apparently because they then became matters for collective action and implied the use of the franchise—because the franchise had in the first instance been given to the man who could fight, because in the beginning he alone could vote who could carry a weapon, it was considered an improper thing for a woman to possess it.

Is it quite public spirited for woman to say, "We will take care of these affairs so long as they stay in our own houses, but if they go outside and concern so many people that they cannot be carried on without the mechanism of the vote, we will drop them; it is true that these activities which women have always had are not at present being carried on very well by the men in most of the great American cities, but, because we do not consider it 'lady-like' to vote, we will let them alone?"—Jane Addams.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB.

The last of a series of opera talks by Havrah Hubbard was given in Wollaston School hall Saturday evening, the hall being filled with a very appreciative audience.

The next regular club meeting will be on Tuesday March 16 in the Park and Downs church when Arthur Kachel will read "The Music Master" Mr. Kachel is a reader of marked ability and it would be hard to find a more pleasing subject than, "The Music Master."

Gentlemens night of the club will be observed March 19 in Wollaston School hall when Mayor and Mrs. Campbell will be the guests of honor, and receive with the officers of the club. Albert Leonard Squier will give a stereopticon lecture on, "In the High Places of South America." Mr. Squier is so well known to the public through his association with the Boston Chamber of Commerce that little introduction is needed. A very interesting and instructive evening is anticipated.

D. A. R. OF WOLLASTON

Mrs. George T. Taylor entertained the Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter D. A. R. at her home on Beach street Monday afternoon.

Daughters of the American Revolution all over the country are requested to observe March 18 as "Silver Shower day" when contributions are asked from each member, the proceeds to be used to reduce the debt on Memorial Continental hall in Washington D. C. A collection was taken at Monday's meeting, also a sum of money was voted from the treasury for this purpose.

Mrs. Antoinette S. Paige read the paper of the afternoon entitled, "The Sabbath in Puritan New England," the text being, "The Saving Grace of Humor."

Puritan men and women as well as the children were held to strict observance of "ye Lord's day." A sea captain who kissed his wife on his own door steps one Sunday when he returned from a three years' trip was fined and punished. The old custom of lining the hymns sometimes resulted in a curious combination, as for instance, "Oh take this pil, Oh take this pil, Oh take this pilgrim home."

The paper was replete with like anecdotes and a comprehensive description was given of the customs and dress of Puritan folk who listened to sermons three hours long seated in cold churches.

Miss Dorothy Taylor and Miss Avis Tobey rendered several piano selections and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter Miss Dorothy Taylor and Miss Avis Tobey.

CLUB WOMEN AND PEACE.

The women of the General Federation of Women's Clubs are doing their full share of relief work in connection with the suffering incident to the deplorable European War. They are knitting socks and mufflers, collecting money and sending supplies. They are doing these things because they belong to the Mother Sex that suffers when any of the children of earth are oppressed or in pain. And because they belong to the Mother Sex they are not stopping with these efforts at allaying present agony. For nearly three years the General Federation has had a Committee on Peace as part of its Educational Department, and this committee has put forth unremitting efforts to enlist women in a careful study of the conditions and expense necessitated by war, of international relations, and all kindred topics. It is enevitable that the present war should focus attention on this subject in all its phases, and so we find clubs all over the country placing special emphasis on Peace, on ways and means of preserving for all time to come friendly relations with other nations, and how to induce the rest of mankind to join in an alliance that shall do away forever with the possibility of another international slaughter.

Clubs desiring suggestions for study should apply to the chairman of the Peace Committee, Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, 1101 West Adams street, Los Angeles, Cal., who has prepared a valuable syllabus on the subject, and for additional data to the World's Peace Foundation, No. 40, Mount Vernon street, Boston, Mass.

In this connection it is announced that one of the principal addresses to be given at the council meeting of the General Federation to be held in Portland, Oregon, next June 1, 2, and 3, will be delivered by Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, on Women and the Peace Movement. The subject Children and Peace will also be considered, and valuable suggestions will be brought forward as to the best ways of beginning the education of future citizens along this line.

BOY MAY LOSE SIGHT

Edward Flaherty, 14years, of Barry street, was accidently shot in the eye by a bullet from an air rifle while playing on Reardon street Tuesday afternoon and surgeons at the Eye and Ear Infirmary are working hard to save the sight.

The shooting occurred while Flaherty and several other boys were in the field in the rear of the residence of Dr. J. T. Reynolds. The boy was carried to the physician's home and the latter sent him to the Quincy City Hospital in the police ambulance. The boy was later removed to the Boston infirmary.

The police made an investigation of the affair and found the air rifle was in the hands of a chum and that the affair was an accident.

A large party assembled in Protection hall Tuesday afternoon and enjoyed two hours of whist with Mrs. Sarah C. Williams as hostess. The honors were awarded Miss M. Lizzie Furnald Mrs. Annie T. Thompson, Mrs. E. Newcomb, Mrs. J. Moffie and Mrs. Annie I. Smith and the consolation to Mrs. E. E. Field.

CLUTCHING HAND IN REAL LIFE

The gnarled and knotted "Clutching Hand" which furnishes the basis of the plot in the Exploits of Elaine now appearing in story form in the Daily Ledger and running double film at the Kincaide theatre, has made an actual appearance in the real life of a young woman clerk of City Hall and although every effort has been made to find its owner the search to date has been unavailing.

Th hand, with a note of warning clutched between its finger tips stole its way through a rift in the portieres of the girl's home Tuesday evening. The note fluttered to the floor and the instant spent in examining it gave the owner opportunity to flee from the premises.

A startled cry when the warning was read brought the parents to the assistance of the girl. They found her shivering with fear and standing in a dazed condition. At her feet lay the crumpled note.

Private investigators have been assigned to the case and although they have exhausted their resources have not as yet uncovered any evidence that will point to the perpetrator of the joke.

REDMEN ROLL.

Two teams of Redmen rolled at Wardwells Monday evening and the Williams five beat the boys captained by Burgers by a big score. The latter were not in the race at all, although Taylor made a single of 112, 13 less than Egans best mark of the evening.

"Father got along without one."

If you had to give up all the things that Father got along without, you would be lighting your house with a kerosene lamp, writing your letters long-hand, sending your youngest son down the street on an errand, and probably otherwise conducting your business the way people conducted business fifty years ago.

But since then, most of our progressive merchants have sold their horses and their old Studebaker Delivery Wagons and bought the new Studebaker Delivery Car.

Studebaker has been selling this car for some five years, and it has helped to make some fifty thousand people in the United States richer, and their customers happier and better satisfied. The merchant who sticks too persistently to the traditions of the past very quickly loses his grip on the present.

Of course, the man who wants to stick to his horse and wagon will always have company. The old rag man still uses a horse; and the man that sharpens your scissors uses a "pushmobile."

Your successful competitors, however, are buying motor driven delivery service. It is quicker, cleaner, safer, prompter and better in every way than horse driven service, and your customers are beginning to demand the best.

Hadn't you better ask us to send you the Delivery Car Book—at once?

SPORTING COMMENT

The champs have entered the second week of their training at Macon, Ga. Stallings has five outfielders which he will carry through the season, Connolly and Cather taking care of left, the latter playing when a South paw pitcher is in the square. Magee will cover the centre garden. Herb Moran and Gilbert will centre behind first sack. The whole five are a nifty lot and are hitting like blue devils at present.

Weather has somewhat interfered with the practice of the Red Sox at Hot Springs, Ark., and Manager Carrigan is careful about putting his men into play. Heinie Wagner has discovered, so he says, that beer caused his arm trouble and his love of the game, though he is a Dutchman is greater than his love of the beverage and he has sworn allegiance to the T. A. cause.

The state basket ball championship is up in the air and the winner of the Fall River, Tech and Boston college High game should be hailed as the champ team. Wellesley was eliminated by Rogers High of Newport and by the Fall River team, to the satisfaction of the Quincy fans. It was probably a case of sour grapes but it is good to find a team a little better than a school champion quintette. Wellesley claimed everything in sight and made a bum proposition to Boston College High for a "serious." Now they can't.

Jack Johnson and Jess Willard will fight at Havana on April 3 for the world's heavyweight title.

The Waseca club members entertained their friends at their rooms on Washington street Monday evening with a card of bouts and a program of song. Local boys did the performing.

Eddie Mullen is due for a lacing, so the boys say. Mullen in real life is Eddie Sammon and a match is being arranged so Gus Lenny can teach him a few steps. Someone is going to pay the fiddler. Will it be Gus who is in the roped arena for the 11th year or the younger athlete from the big city.

Malden Highs base ball committee is conferring with the field directors and hope to receive permission to play in the only enclosed ground in that place. Coach Ralph Good has his boys practicing.

Freddie Burns has quit the track. He handed Manager George Brown of the B. A. A. his spiked shoes Monday. Burns made marks in the century and triple century runs and as first man on the relay team had but few equals.

Allen Connor will run in the St. Alphonsus cross country on the 27th. Connor is a likely man. Added strength which will come with mature years should bring him into the record class.

John Dinnegan, Harry Askew and Michael Coyle rolled their first strings this season at the Wardwell alleys Monday Jack Keniley and Jack Starr fought it out on another alley.

LECTURES.

Several well known people are to lecture this month at the Quincy Mansion school, the lectures and dates being: March 10, Madame E. Guerin on "Marie Antoinette;" March 15, Rev. William H. van Allen, "Browning and Sunshine;" March 16, Rev. John Sanborn, "The American Indian;" March 18, Warren Richards, "An Evening of Fun."

The lectures will be at quarter of eight in Livermore hall and Mrs. H. M. Willard, principal of the school extends a cordial invitation to friends of the school to attend.

Simon Little of Franklin street is convalescent at his home after an operation he underwent in a Boston Hospital last week.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE
The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company
Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company All Foreign Rights Reserved

"Hello, Chase," greeted Kennedy. "Well, I've found the new headquarters all right—over on the West side."

Kennedy picked up the selenium cell and a long coil of fine wire, which he placed in a bag. Then he took another bag already packed, and, shifting them between us, we hurried downtown.

Near the vacant lot, back of the new headquarters, was an old broken-down house. Through the rear of it we entered.

I started back in astonishment as we entered and found eight or ten policemen already there. Kennedy had ordered them to be ready for a raid, and they had dropped in one at a time without attracting attention.

"Well, men," he greeted them, "I see you found the place all right. Now, in a little while Jameson will return with two wires. Attach them to the bell which I will leave here. When it rings, raid he house. Jameson will lead you to it. Come, Walter," he added, picking up the bags.

* * * * * * * *

Ten minutes later, outside the new headquarters, a crouched-up figure, carrying a small package, his face hidden under his soft hat and upturned collar, could have been seen slinking along until he came to the steps.

He went up and peered through the aperture of the doorway. Then he rang the bell. Twice he raised his hand and clenched it in the now familiar clutch.

A crook inside saw it through the aperture and opened the door. The figure entered and almost before the door was shut tied the masking handkerchief over his face, which hid his identity from even the most trusted lieutenants. The crook bowed to the chief, who, with a growl as though of recognition, moved down the hall.

As he came to the room from which Slim had been sent on his mission, the same group was seated in the thick tobacco smoke.

"You fellows clear out," he growled. "I want to be alone."

"The old man is peeved," muttered one, outside, as they left.

The weird figure gazed about the room to be sure that he was alone.

* * * * * * *

When Craig and I left the police he had given me most minute instructions which I was now following out to the letter.

"I want you to hide there," he said, indicating a barrel back of the house next to the hangout. "When you see a wire come down from the headquarters, take it and carry it across the lot to the old house. Attach it to the bell; then wait. When it rings, raid the Clutching Hand joint."

I waited what seemed to be an interminable time back of the barrel. Finally, however, I saw a coil of fine wire drop rapidly to the ground from a window somewhere above. I made a dash for it, as though I were trying to rush the trenches, seized my prize and, without looking back to see where it came from, beat a hasty retreat.

Around the lot I skirted, until at last I reached the place where the police were waiting. Quickly we fastened the wire to the bell.

We waited.

Not a sound from the bell.

* * * * * * * *

Up in the room in the joint the hunched-up figure stood by the table. He had taken his hat off and placed it carefully on the table and was now waiting.

Suddenly a noise at the door startled him. He listened. Then he backed away from the door and drew a revolver.

As the door slowly opened there entered another figure, hat over his eyes, collar up, a handkerchief over his face, the exact counterpart of the first.

For a moment each glared at the other.

"Hands up!" shouted the first figure, hoarsely, moving the gun and closing the door with his foot.

The newcomer slowly raised his crooked hand over his head, as the blue steel revolver gaped menacingly.

With a quick movement of the other hand the first sinister figure removed the handkerchief from his face and straightened up.

It was Kennedy!

"Come over to the center of the room," ordered Kennedy.

Clutching Hand obeyed, eyeing his captor closely.

"Now lay your weapons on the table."

He tossed down a revolver.

The two still faced each other.

"Take off that handkerchief!"

It was a tense moment. Slowly Clutching Hand started to obey. Then he stopped. Kennedy was just about to thunder, "Go on," when the criminal calmly remarked, "You've got ME all right, Kennedy, but in twenty minutes Elaine Dodge will be dead!"

He said it with a nonchalance that might have deceived anyone less astute than Kennedy. Suddenly there flashed over Craig the words: "THE TRICK WILL BE PULLED OFF AT THREE O'CLOCK!"

There was no fake about that. Kennedy frowned menacingly. If he killed Clutching Hand, Elaine would die. If he fought he must either kill or be killed. If he handed Clutching Hand over Elaine was lost. He looked at his watch. It was twenty-five minutes of three.

"What do you mean—tell me?" demanded Kennedy with forced calm.

"Yesterday Mr. Bennett bought a wrist watch for Elaine," the Clutching Hand said quietly. "They left it to be regulated. One of my men bought one just like it. Mine was delivered to her today."

"A likely story!" doubted Kennedy.

For answer the Clutching Hand merely pointed to the telephone.

Kennedy reached for it.

"One thing," interrupted the Clutching Hand. "You are a man of honor."

"Yes—yes. Go on."

"If I tell you what to do, you must promise to give me a fighting chance."

"Yes, yes."

"Call up Aunt Josephine, then. Do just as I say."

Covering Clutching Hand, Kennedy called a number. "This is Mr. Kennedy, Mrs. Dodge. Did Elaine receive a present of a wrist watch from Mr. Bennett?"

"Yes," she replied, "for her birthday. It came this forenoon."

Kennedy hung up the receiver and faced the Clutching Hand, puzzled as the latter said: "Call up Martin, the jeweler."

Again Kennedy obeyed.

"Has the watch purchased for Miss Elaine Dodge been delivered?" he asked the clerk.

"No," came back the reply, "the watch Mr. Bennett bought is still here being regulated."

Kennedy hung up the receiver. He was stunned.

"The watch will cause her death at three o'clock," said the Clutching Hand. "Swear to leave here without discovering my identity and I will tell you how. You can save her! In that watch," he hissed, "I have set a poisoned needle in a spring that will be released and will plunge it into her arm at exactly three o'clock. On the needle is ricinus!"

Craig advanced, furious. As he did so Clutching Hand pointed calmly to the clock. It was twenty minutes of three!

With a mental struggle Kennedy controlled his loathing of the creature before him.

"All right—but you'll hear from me—sooner than you suspect," he shouted, starting for the door.

Then he came back and lifted his hat, hiding as much as possible the selenium cell, letting the light fall on it.

"Only Elaine's life has saved you."

With a last threat he dashed out. He hailed a cab, returning from some steamship wharves not far away.

"Quick!" he ordered, giving the Dodge address on Fifth avenue.

Minute after minute the police and I waited. Was anything wrong? Where was Craig?

Just then a tremor grew into a tinkle, then came the strong burr of the bell. Kennedy needed us.

With a shout of encouragement to the men I dashed out and over to the old house.

Meanwhile Clutching Hand himself had approached the table to recover his weapon and had noticed the queer little selenium cell.

"The deuce!" he cried. "He's planned to get me anyhow!"

Clutching Hand rushed to the door—then stopped short. Outside he could hear the police and myself.

Clutching Hand slammed shut his door and pulled down over it a heavy wooden bar.

At the desk he paused and took out a piece of cardboard. Then, with a heavy black-marking pencil, he calmly printed on it, while we battered at the barricaded door, a few short feet away.

He laid the sign on the desk, then on another piece of cardboard, drew crudely a hand with the index finger pointing. This he placed on a chair, indicating the desk.

Just as the swaying and bulging door gave way, Clutching Hand gave the desk a pull. It opened up—his getaway.

He closed it with a sardonic smile in our direction, just as the door crashed in.

We looked about. There was not a soul in the room, nothing but the selenium cell, the chairs, the desk.

"Look!" I cried, catching sight of the index finger, and going over to the desk.

We rolled back the top. There on the flat top was a sign:

Dear Blockheads:

Kennedy and I couldn't wait.

Then came that mysterious sign of the Clutching Hand.

We hunted over the rooms, but could find nothing that showed a clue. Where was Clutching Hand? Where was Kennedy?

In the next house Clutching Hand had literally come out of an upright piano into the room corresponding to that he had left. Hastily he threw off his handkerchief, slouch hat, old coat and trousers. A neat striped pair of trousers replaced the old, frayed and baggy pair. A new shirt, then a sporty vest and a frock coat followed.

As he put the finishing touches on he looked for all the world like a be-whiskered foreigner.

At the door of the new headquarters, a few seconds later, I stood with the police.

"Not a sign of him anywhere," growled one of the officers.

* * * * * * * *

Elaine was sitting in the library reading when Aunt Josephine turned to her.

"What time is it, dear?" she asked.

Elaine glanced at her pretty new trinket.

"Nearly three, Auntie—just a couple of minutes," she said.

Just then there came the sound of feet running madly down the hallway. They jumped up, startled.

Kennedy, his coat flying and hat jammed over his eyes, had almost bowled over poor Jennings in his mad race down the hall.

"Well," demanded Elaine haughtily, "what's—"

Before she knew what was going on Craig hurried up to her and literally ripped the watch off her wrist, breaking the beautiful bracelet.

He held it up, gingerly. Elaine was speechless. Was this Kennedy? Was he possessed by such an inordinate jealousy of Bennett?

As he held the watch up, the second hand ticked around and the minute hand passed the meridian of the hour.

A viciously sharp needle gleamed out—then sprang back into the filigree work again.

"Well," she gasped again, "what's the meaning of this?"

Craig gazed at Elaine in silence.

Should he defend his rudeness, if she did not understand? She stamped her foot, and repeated the question a third time.

"What do you mean, sir, by such conduct?"

Slowly he bowed.

"I just don't like the kind of birthday presents you receive," he said, turning on his heel. "Good afternoon!"

SOPHS CAPTURE CHAMPIONSHIP

The nucleus of a champion team in future years was victorious at the Quincy High school Tuesday afternoon when the Sophomores defeated the Seniors, 14—6. Last year the Juniors won the championship, this year a younger class won the cup thus proving that the teams are developing faster every year.

Fouls won the game for the Sophomores by the skillful work of "Percy" Jenkins who caged 8 on free tries. Jenkins also played a sensational game, getting two pretty shots from the centre of the floor. "Midget" LeCain shot a clean basket while blocked in under the basket. Atkins played a fine defensive game holding Smith, the high scorer of the Seniors, without a basket.

Referee French called repeated fouls on the Seniors for holding, blocking, unnecessary roughness and talking back to the referee. Umpire Mansur was also forced to call several fouls. Although the Seniors got as many baskets as the Sophomores they ought to have gotten many more, as easy shots were missed repeatedly. The Seniors lacked team work and certain members tried to star. Larkin, Merrill and Reardon played hard for the Seniors, Larkin shooting a clean basket from a third the length of the floor.

Tomorrow afternoon the facutly play the Freshmen.

NEW JACKSON MODEL No. "44" HAS ARRIVED

JACKSON MODEL "44."
PRICE $1250.00

Full Stream line body, 115 in. wheel base, long stroke motor, electric lighted and started, one man top

TWO NEW MODELS FOR 1915

48-Six---$1650
Six Cylinders

Olympic "46"---$1375
Four Cylinders

Both Models Center Control. Left Drive. Both Fully Equipped

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars— you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

Into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size —built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, streamline body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 33⅓ to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous . It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season. it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep—no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

TO PROSECUTE AUTO VIOLATERS

The first arrests in connection with the improper use of number plates on autos in Quincy is expected today. The complainant in the case is the Massachusetts Highway Commission, the agents of which have been on the lookout for violators in Quincy the past week.

The commission alleges that one auto owner has taken advantage of the similarity of the number plates of 1913 and 1915 and after knocking off the year numerals on the former has substituted the plate for this year.

The man will be charged with three counts, operating without a license, violation of registration law and false registration.

Violations of this kind, it is said have become frequent throughout the state and would lead to serious embarrassment for owners in case the substitute number was secured after an accident and presented in court as evidence against an innocent party.

AUDITORIUM OWNERS HERE.

The owners of the Auditorium theatre building, closed by Mayor Campbell Tuesday after he investigated it, are here today to make an examination of the premises. They were not able to say whether they would remodel the house so that it will again be opened for theatrical purposes.

HOWARD COMPLAINS.

Caleb Howard the I. W. .W. members of the Massachusetts committee for the promotion of work says the idle are made to suffer and that the conditions under which homeless men were lodged at night by the city of Boston in Blossom street and at the North Ferry were entirely brutal. The statement followed an investigation of these places by him.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCES IN EUROPEAN WAR ZONE

Congressman Richard Olney, 2nd, is Also Speaker

Walter Austin of Dedham and the story of his experiences last fall in England, France and Germany, and an inside story of how the war has affected the wool trade told by Congressman Richard Olney, 2nd, of the 14th district, made the Wednesday evening meeting of the Men's Club of the Atlantic Memorial church an interesting one.

Mr. Austin said that he had been courteously received in Berlin but that two American women had adopted a "Safety First" attitude and had small U. S. flags pasted all over them. He said rooms on the lower floor of lodging houses in England were at a premium, the fear of a Zeppelin raid causing Englishmen to live closer to the ground than heretofore.

The men sat down to dinner at 6.45 P. M., every seat being taken.

The menu consisted of escalloped oysters, mashed potatoes, ham, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

After the dinner Congressman Richard Olney 2nd, addressed the club on "The Difficulty in Getting Wool with the European War."

He said that in the United States flocks of sheep have become so depleted that we do not raise nearly enough raw material to meet the demand. We raise 150,000,000 pounds and have to import 150,000,000 more.

In the U. S. there are 50 million sheep today where some years ago there were 75 million. This depletion of sheep has come about naturally; as land has become too valuable for sheep. Hogs, fruits and other produce are more profitable. Sheep also pull the grass root out of the ground and finally destroy it.

Australia is the great sheep raising country. The Australian wool is also the finest fibre. He explained that there were 614 million sheep in the world, and that they grew 3 billion pounds of wool a year. He then passed out samples of wool from Tibet showing the white and grays. Among his samples were some from China.

Wool is quoted at 79 cents today, while in the days the Wilson bill was in full force it was only 49 cents We have trouble today in getting wool on account of the embargoes. In the Australian market recently the German offer was turned down so German can get no wool, while we are shipping millions of yards of cloth to England, France and Russia. It has always been customary for a dead soldier to be buried in his uniform, but the Germans and Austrians are stripping clothes from the dead men and wearing them.

Montana has some large flocks of of sheep, while in Massachusetts the largest flock is not over one hundred and those can only be found in the Berkshires.

Russia is also a great sheep raising country. If the Dardanelles are opened as it looks now as if they will be Russia will flood the markets of U. S. and England.

But for the best woolen cloth we must look to Belgium, France, England and Germany, especially for fine woolen cloths. The German mills make an excellent quality of woolen cloth.

This country has tried to copy Germany, but has not succeeded.

The speaker showed how the angora goat was helping out the woolen trade, especially where goats could live on almost nothing and that for clearing land one goat in worth six men.

He said the sheep were decreasing while the goats were increasing and often we think we are enjoying lamb on the table when it is goat, and the time may come when the abandoned farm will be used for sheep and angora goats.

Mr. Olney introduced to Harry Read president of the club his friend, Walter Austin of Dedham who told of experiences last fall in England, France and Germany. He said in London the thing that impressed him was that all lamps were painted black on top so that the air machines could not see them. That it was hard to get anything but attic rooms in hotels on account of the fear from bombs from air machines.

He stated that when he went to Berlin with his pass-port and other credentials he found the German officers polite and courteous—and that he only saw two American women in Berlin, and that they had U. S. flags pasted all over them, when they were not needed as you could tell an Amer-

GRAND HIGH PRIEST AT ST. STEPHENS

Chapter Honored By Visit For First Time Since Year 1868

PLEASING ENTERTAINMENT

St. Stephen's Royal Arch chapter received an informal visit at its regular convocation Wednesday evening from Grand High Priest Eugene A. Horton who was accompanied by Most Excellent George Thatcher, as grand marshal. There was a large attendance of companions at the convocation showing that interest in capitular Masonry in Quincy is increasing. It was the first visit of the Grand High Priest to St. Stephen's chapter since 1868 and in his remarks later in the evening he took occasion to mention this fact. He recalled some of the companions of that period whom he now missed and congratulated St. Stephen's Chapter on its growth and the excellence of its work.

Although not on an official visitation the Grand High Priest was received with all the honors due his rank, being escorted to the lodge room by a committee of past high priests; John O. Hall, John H. Whitehead, Arthur W. Stetson, William W. Parry, Walter E. Piper and Lawrence D. Duncan and was received and welcomed to St. Stephen's chapter by High Priest Arthur F. Raymond.

The chapter met at 5 o'clock at which time the past masters degree was exemplified. Supper was served at 7 o'clock and the convocation again convened at 7.45 at which time the grand officers were received and witnessed an exemplification of the most excellent degree. The grand officers were presented with bouquets. After the convocation there was a pleasing entertainment by the Schubert quartette, including both vocal and instrumental music.

WAX MELTED, FLOOR FLOODED

Accumulated heat on the third floor of the office of the Electric Boat Co., at the Fore River shipyard melted the wax coverings on the automatic sprinkler Wednesday afternoon and hundreds of gallons of water was released before the supply was cut off.

The water pooled on the top floor and found its way down to the second. After submerging that floor it went through and flooded the lower floors. Whether real damage has been done has not yet been determined.

A corps of employees immediately took charge of the building to put it back in proper condition.

THROWN FROM HIS BYCYCLE

Man at City Hospital Suffers Several Injuries

Vinvencio Itocco, an Italian, of 143 Sumner street, is at the City hospital suffering from various contusions about the head and bruises of the body as a result of being thrown from his bicycle Wednesday afternoon

Itocco was riding his bicycle toward Quincy Point. Coming in the opposite direction was an automobile driven by Frank C. Vincent of 44 Granite street, Roslindale. In passing the automobile Itocco evidently became confused for he ran his machine against the curbing and was thrown violently to the concrete sidewalk, striking on his head.

Mr. Vincent stopped his automobile and took the injured man to the City Hospital where he was attended by Dr. Burke, who found one wound on the scalp six inches long and two smaller wounds as well as bruises about the right shoulder and leg.

No blame is attached to the automobile driver. The bicycle was badly smashed.

MOVEMENT IS TOWARD CITY

Towns Becoming Depopulated Says Speaker

The meeting of the Ladies Benevolent society of the Wollaston Congregational church Wednesday afternoon in the vestry of the church was attended by upwards of fifty of the members. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Helen Dickenson after which the members listened to a most entertaining talk by Rev. John Walker, treasurer of the Home Missionary association of Massachusetts, on "Nooks and Corners of Massachusetts."

In the course of his talk the speaker spoke of the foreign population which had settled in Massachusetts and how some of the towns were becoming depopulated. In this connection he mentioned a town whose population had dwindled from 1500 to 150 to 200. This showed that people were moving toward the cities.

DEGREE TEAM IS FORMED

The Sons of St. George initiated one candidate at their regular business meeting held in Clan McGregor hall, Wednesday evening.

For a number of years he was employed as chief engineer of the "Starling," the steamer used by the Fore River Corporation as convoy during the builders' trials of vessels built at the works, but of late years has been employed as an inspector for a well known liability insurance company, which duty has taken him away from home most of his time. He is affiliated with the Masonic fraternity, including the Chapter, Commandery and Shrine. He is also a member of the Granite City club. He served several years as a member of the city council, representing Ward Two.

ASSERTS GEN. CARRANZA IS BANDIT CHIEFTIAN

Speaker at Meeting of Braintree Club Outlines Conditions in Mexico

The March meeting of the All Souls Men's club of Braintree was held in the parish hall Wednesday evening and was observed as Ladies' night. the attendance of the members and their fair guests making a grand total of about 300 people.

The tables with their decorations of carnations, jonquils and tulips were most attractive and were still further adorned by the presence of the women in their beautiful gowns. Supper was served promptly at 6.30 o'clock and consisted of the club's famous menu of hot roast beef, mashed potato with brown gravy, green peas, cabbage salad, olives, coffee, rolls, ice cream and cake. The thanks of the members were tendered by president Rhoades to Herman Waldecker for his generous donation of a bunch of violets to every woman, to Shelley A. Neal for the water from the Chickatawbut spring and to James H. Stedman for the delicious potatoes from his own farm down in Maine.

The speaker of the evening was George H. Nobbs of Braintree. Mr. Nobbs has spent several years in Mexico and gave a highly entertaining talk on his personal experiences in that country. Beginning with a brief history of Mexico from early times until the present Mr. Nobbs gave an interesting series of word pictures descriptive of Mexican life and customs and his recital included many little known facts not found in papers or magazines.

He characterized General Carranza as a bandit chieftain and said that a population of sixteen million peace loving people is at present terrorized by a hundred thousand of such bandits and freebooters. He told of the marvellous wealth and natural resources of the country and how the common people look to the United States as a hope of rescue from such tyranny.

Mr Nobbs gave a vivid description of the comparatively peaceful years of the republic under the iron hand of President Diaz and contrasted it with the present reign of terror there The whole talk was forceful and witty and was first-hand information from a man who is reported to know. Mr. Nobbs was accorded long and loud applause by his auditors.

President Rhoades then introduced the new minister of All Souls' church, Rev. Frank A. Powell, who congratulated the members of the club on their splendid organization and stated that one of the strongest inducements for his acceptance of this pastorate was the fact that All Souls' church boasted such a fine men's club, one of the best to be found anywhere.

WITHHOLD JUDGMENT.

There is no denying that the sinking of the American ship "William P. Frye" off the coast of South America by the German curiser "Prince Eitel Friederich" is a grave matter. We must all hope that fuller details will bring to light extenuating circumstances, although it is difficult at this time to see how there could possibly be any

Under the usual practice of international law as followed in previous cases, a battleship can sink a neutral vessel only when she carries a contraband and would in any case be certain of condemnation by a prize court.

The cargo being carried according to the information now at hand was grain. Grain is not absolute contraband but conditional contraband. It it not contraband unless clearly destined to a belligerent government.

The question of whether the ship had contraband aboard ordinarily would be a subject for litigation between the owners of ship and cargo and the German Government, diplomatic action being entered upon only in the event there is a denial of justice .

With the officers and the warship under the jurisdiction of the United States however, libel proceedings could be instituted by the Frye's owners. The declaration of London and international law precedents state that if more than one-half of the cargo of a neutral vessel is contraband of war, she may be sunk, but only if convoying her to port would involve great dangers to the belligerent vessel itself.

Until Germany states its side of the case and until we learn to what extent, if any, the generally accepted doctrines of international law have been violated we should all suspend judgement. A false and hasty step now might plunge this country into war.

COST OF WAR.

Of course in totalling up the cost of the Great War now cursing the world the actual financial cost is not the most important item. It may have, however, more influence in finally concluding the conflict than some of the humanitarian reasons. It is no secret that the real cause for the ending of the Russo-Japanese war was the fact that Russia was on the verge of bankruptcy. The total cost of the combatants of the Russian-Japanese war is estimated at something under three billion dollars. The total cost of the combatants of the Great War, which according to Kitchener will not begin until spring, so far totals something round ten billion dollars.

In this connection Edward E. Pratt, chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce, has prepared some interesting figures.

OTHER WARS.

	Total Cost
Crimean War	$1,699,600,000
U. S. Civil War	5,000,000,000
Franco-Prussian	2,534,400,000
Russian-Japanese	2,675,000,000
First Balkan	940,000,000
Second Balkan	450,000,000

GREAT WAR.

	War Debt
Great Britain	$1,560,000,000
France	1,815,000,000
Germany	2,600,000,000

Austria-Hungary	1,815,000,000
Russia	2,600,000,000
Servia	130,000,000

Grand total: Debt, $10,650,000,000 cost each day, $50,000,000; per capita debt, $28.

The committee on constitutional amendments reported adversely to the legislature on the bills providing for the initiative and referendum. Perhaps this was a courageous thing to do or perhaps the committees realized that the people are not so ardent as they were for the so-called "popular reforms" which have not always proved to be reforms at all.

A retiring room in City square is badly needed. It is to be hoped that the conferences held by the new Planning Board recently will result in the construction of this needed improvement.

Caranza, it is said, resents the tone of the American note remonstrating over conditions in Mexico. The general should frame a diplomatic reply or we fear he will interfere with the policy of "Watchful Waiting."

SANDERS ARE TO LEAVE QUINCY

Associates in Wollaston M. E. Church Give Farewell Reception

LIVED HERE 24 YEARS

A royal farewell reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sanders, Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church. After a residence of 24 years in Wollaston Mr. and Mrs. Sanders have taken a farm in Bridgewater where they will be joined by their son Eugene.

The affair Wednesday evening came on the meeting night of the Methodist club and the varied program consisted of a reception to the departing couple the meeting of the Men's club and additional entertainment by the women of the church.

In the receiving line were Rev. and Mrs. George M. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sanders and Miss Aurelia M. Merrill one of the oldest members of the church.

A speech of appreciation of the faithful church work of the couple was made by Rev. Mr. Bailey. Besides serving as trustee, steward, class leader and in other offices Mr. Sanders was superintendent of the Sunday school for 17 years.

Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick also voiced the appreciation of the society and tendered Mrs. Sanders a beautiful piece of jewelry, as a token of esteem. Besides holding other offices Mrs. Sanders had been president of the Ladies' Aid Society for 15 years. "That's honor enough for anybody," said Mrs. Sedgwick.

A. N. Murray then took the stage and proceeded to "wind up" the Methodist club. Willard E. Keyes read a humorously touching letter from Mr. Sanders in which he resigned as sporting editor of the Wollaston Herald.

After a wealth of discussion W. E. Robinson was declared the man to fit this office. The resigning editor was presented with "Sporting Life" and other similar publications by George Taylor. An original humorous song was sung by Frank Dunham entitled "Sanders, our best sporting man."

On behalf of the members of the church J. A. Sedgwick presented Mr. Sanders with a silver mounted cane and the program closed with a speech of acceptance by Mr. Sanders.

A piano duet by Mrs. F. G. Bennett and Mrs. Orville Estes was enjoyed. Refreshments were served, the pourers being Mrs. F. A. Sutermeister and Mrs. C. M. Given. The following composed the refreshment committee, Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick, Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. T. N. Lane and Mrs. Eric H. Ewertz.

THIRTEEN YEAR OLD CHILD HOME AFTER TWO NIGHTS OUTDOORS

Mary McKiel, Fearing a Whipping, Slept on Piazza Steps

Charles H. Johnson, who made an investigation as to why 13 year old Mabel McKiel left her home in Wollaston Monday and slept out of doors for two nights without covering of any description other than the clothes she wore, said this morning that he was satisfied no outsiders were concerned.

The girl was found wandering in City square about five o'clock Wednesday evening by patrolman Murray one of the police officers given her description by Mr. Johnson after the girl's absence had been reported by the teachers at the Wollaston school where she is a pupil.

When taken she said she had eaten nothing but an orange from the time she left home. Her feet were somewhat swollen from the cold and today both hands are in a pitiable condition as a result of exposure.

Mabel told the police she stayed away from home because she feared she would be whipped. In telling of her experiences she said that it was about 4.30 when she ran out of the door of her home at 1 North Central avenue and went to the house of a girl chum where she remained until 9.30. Then she said she became afraid and after wandering about the streets sat down on the steps of a piazza of a house on Grand View avenue. Here she spent the night, sleeping and sitting on the cold hard boards. Tuesday she said she walked all round the city and again slept on another piazza that night. All this time she was without food, excepting the orange she had with her when she left home.

The parents of the girl, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McNiel did not notify the police of her disappearance but the school authorities notified Truant Officer Johnson. He furnished the police with so accurate a description that Patrolman Murray remembered she had been in City Square early in the day. On her return he asked her name and sent her to police headquarters with Special Officer Taylor.

There she repeated her story of hunger and she was taken to a nearby boarding house and served with a bountiful supper. She was in somewhat better spirits when taken home.

The parents, on her arrival, did not scold her, but remarked it was a fine time for her to be getting home from school. The father denies ever striking her except with his bare hand.

Officer Johnson will act as a temporary guardian of the child and said this morning that if she has been abused, it must stop, or steps will be taken to punish others.

BOYS MAKING GOOD FURNITURE

Furnish Four Large Tables For Houghs Neck School

Some idea of what is being accomplished by the boys of the Quincy Day Industrial school at the old Adams school building may be had when it is said that the school has just delivered to the Atherton Hough school four large quartered oak tables. These tables are of first quality and shows what good work is being accomplished at this institution.

It is not generally known perhaps that the school is in the field to manufacture anything in the line of school furnishings and is ready to submit bids for this work. The age of the boys at the school range from 14 to 16 years.

In addition to the four tables mentioned above there is now in the process of manufacture at the school three teacher's desks with double racks of drawers, an umbrella stand and a filing cabinet for the Atherton Hough school as well as a filing cabinet for the office of the superintendent of schools.

The school has recently completed a large order for the new Adams school at South Quincy. This order included a portable blackboard, a large oak table, two ten foot cutting tables of ash with pine tops, eight sewing tables of ash with pine tops, and a folding ironing board.

TOTAL BONDS ARE $1100

John Joyce, aged 17 years, who gives his home as 167 West 9th street South Boston, who was arrested Wednesday by Inspector Goodhue charged with being one of the boys who have been breaking and entering houses at Quincy was arraigned in court this morning on three complaints.

The first complaint charged him with breaking and entering the house of John H. Whitehead of 30 Kemper street. To this complaint he pleaded guilty and was held in $500 for the grand jury. The other two complaints charged him with breaking and entering the house of Russell T. Anthony of Beach street and the house of Chief Faxon Billings on Dysart street. He pleaded guilty on both of these charges but waived examination in the lower court and was held in $300 on each complaint for the grand jury, a total bond of $1,100.

Joyce was walking along Hancock street with Inspector Goodhue when he pointed to the house of Thomas Swithin and said "I got in there too." He said he was stopped and questioned by street railway men who saw him coming from the house but that they let him go after he told them he was looking for a number. Investigation showed that small articles had been taken at the Swithin home.

ASSOCIATION HAS REGULAR MEETING

There was a lively tilt between members of the Squantum Improvement association at its regular meeting Tuesday night in Richards Memorial hall when the question of the condition of Dorchester street and Bellevue road and their acceptance by the City of Quincy came up for discussion. There was some talk that a committee appointed to look after the Dorchester street proposition had "double-crossed" the association and had worked the acceptance of Bellevue road. This inference was indignantly denied by members of the committee.

The matters resulted in the Dorchester street committee being discharged and a new committee being appointed. This new committee consists of James H. Sumner chairman Joseph Allen and James H. Hagan. They will work to have immediate improvement made of the condition of Dorchester street.

President John R. Nelson presided and Secretary James H. Foster and Treasurer Charles Bostwick made their regular reports.

The committee on schools reported progress in their effort to secure the payment of noon fares of school children to and from Squantum and the school in Atlantic. Their report was accepted.

The whist committee reported that $3.75 was made at the last whist party given by the association. The committee was continued in power and was authorized to arrange parties when considered for the best interests of the association.

It was voted that Councilman Nelson work with city officials to see if the Causeway and East Squantum street cannot be put in better condition. The winter tides and rains have washed gullies in the two roads which should be filled in to put the streets in fair condition.

Chairman William Whitley made the report for the Dorchester street committee. He said that photographs showing the wretched condition of the street had been taken but that an effort to have them published in the papers had been unsuccessful. The condition of the street had been called to the attention of Mayor Campbell and other city officials. An order for the acceptance of Dorchester street had been put before the City Council by Councilman Nelson, he said.

Local orators then opened up on the committee bringing out the fact that a petition for the acceptance of Bellevue road had been circulated and an order for the acceptance of this street had been introduced in the city council. This was looked upon as an attempt to sidetrack the Dorchester street acceptance plan.

Joseph Allen said that he had been to see Boston city officials to see if the street should not be put in repair by that city but had been told emphatically that the street did not belong to the city of Boston and that not one dollar would be spent on its being put in repair. Boston officials, he said, reported that $1,000 a year was paid to the City of Quincy in taxes for the property at Moon Island and at Squantum head and that it was up to the City of Quincy to keep an open street to this property in repair.

James H. Sumner spoke of the fire hazard caused by the present condition of the street. He said that if a piece of fire apparatus attempted to go over this street it would most likely land upside down in Dorchester Bay. He declared the street impassable for fire apparatus and this meant that a good part of Squantum was greatly endangered by this additional fire hazard.

Messrs. Allen and Sumner reported that they had talked with Mayor Campbell and Corporation Counsel Pinkham about the street and that the mayor had expressed a willingness to do all he could toward getting the street accepted. It was stated that as the street was a travelled thoroughfare before the street act of 1901 was passed that it could be accepted by the city without the abutters paying their share of the cost.

The committee in charge is Bernard Griffin, chairman, Thomas Connors, Dennis Ford, Daniel Leary, Arthur Murphy and Edward Finn.

BOY SCOUTS SCORE SUCCESS

The Grand Camp Fire held by the Atlantic Boy Scouts Tuesday night scored a big success in the attempt of the boys to entertain by Scout Craft.

The vestry of the Memorial Congregational church was filled long before eight o'clock and all standing room available was used. The stage setting represented a wood scene which the boys had planned and decorated with a camp fire in the center and a tent in the back ground.

Corporals Stephen S. Wasell and Fred Manning of the 10th Band of Fort Warren played the "Remembrance of Switzerland," and "River Shannon" on their cornets accompanied by Miss Isabel Tabner.

Scoutmaster Brown of Wollaston then presented the Atlantic boys with the badge of the Tenderfoot degree of the Boy Scouts.

There was a tableau of the Statue of Liberty by Miss Regina LaTour and Scouts Horace Young and Edwin Heap. During the tableau Miss Lora Churchill sang "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean."

The second tableau was the scene of a camp fire by the Atlantic Scouts. Alphonzo Larsen acted on guard, and Robert McBurnie read a story from the Scout book.

Scouts Sheldon Heap and Roland Newcomb then gave a demonstration of wireless telegraphy.

The Wollaston Boy Scouts gave a demonstration of their work of bandaging and first aid. They also sang several scout songs closing with "The Star Spangled Banner," after which Taps was sounded by Corporal Wasell of Fort Warren.

Mrs. Ella Hayden, president of the Woman's Relief Corps and 10 members will attend the meeting of the Norfolk County association of the W. R. C. at St. Mark's Episcopal church on March 17.

The attendance of the members of the city council and department officials is made at the suggestion of President Whiton of the city council in order that they may show his honor that they appreciate his thoughtfulness in extending to them the courtesies of the show.

The members of the city council and department officials will meet at the main entrance to the Mechanics building on Huntington avenue at 7.30 and will probably be received by his honor in his private office near the main entrance.

As Thursday is also mayor's day a large number of the chief executives of Massachusetts cities are expected to attend.

Charming Spring Chapeau For the Coy and Dainty Maid

BLACK STRAW HAT.

THE shop windows are blossoming with pretty spring hats in all sorts of fanciful shapes and with all kinds of trimmings. The hat shown in this illustration is of black straw piped with white satin and with a white satin underbrim. The trimmings are of pink and white flowers. The chic band under the chin is of purple velvet ribbon entwined with pink and white flowers.

CLEANING THE HOUSE.

If the zinc lining of a refrigerator looks shabby it can be enameled and made to look like new.

Dipping keys in oil will keep locks in order.

Dry buckwheat flour, rubbed on thoroughly several times, will remove grease from carpet.

A little pulverized chalk moistened with ammonia and applied with a brush will remove the marks caused by the dripping of the faucet on a marble washstand. You might keep an old toothbrush especially for the purpose.

Drop a little washing soda in the water with which windows are to be cleaned.

Dampen a carpet, a small portion at a time, with a cloth wrung out in strongly salted water; then rub dry with a clean duster. This will revive the color wonderfully.

To clean lamp glasses hold them over a pot of boiling water until well steamed; then polish with a dry duster. It is less trouble than washing and the glasses rarely break.

The varnished paper on walls should be cleaned with a flannel dipped in weak tea and polished with a dry cloth.

JAPANESE PORCELAINS.

Attractive New Sets Suitable For the Tea Table.

Attractive tea sets, doilies, tea caddies, etc., add greatly to the enjoyment of afternoon tea. An exceedingly effective tea set is of gilt edged white Japanese porcelain, hand painted in a delightful landscape border design. The set consists of teapot, sugar bowl, cream pitcher and six cups and saucers. Coffee sets decorated in red and green and with a hand painted gold lattice are quite popular.

A more expensive set is of Kutani, an old Japanese porcelain. This set also has a handsome border, with figured design in red and gold coloring and enough green-black and pink to make the design exceedingly pretty. It consists of a sugar bowl, cream pitcher and six cups and saucers.

For Utility Cushions.

As the spring sewing progresses the housewife is careful to lay aside large remnants of wash fabrics which are not worth saving for other purposes to serve as summer covers for her sofa pillows. Ginghams especially are suitable for this purpose, as they wash well—a necessary quality for porch cushions. The deft sewer cuts appliqué designs from smaller scraps and applies them in various patterns on her plain linen covers. She can simulate cretonnes by cutting out flowers or model funny Dutch figures and other quaint designs from tiny scraps laid down in mosaic fashion inside a pencil outline taken off with tissue paper transfer.

CARE OF FERNS.

Handsome Plants Are of Great Value as Decorations.

Ferns as they come from the florists prepared for indoor culture should be placed in a strong light, though they grow well without sunlight. They should be watered sparingly, but should be kept moist at all times.

Improper watering, especially keeping the plant soaked or permitting it to get dry, is the foundation of most fern difficulties. It is especially difficult not to overwater when the fern is in a jardiniere, where drainage is necessarily poor. In spring and summer it will require three times the water necessary in fall and winter.

It is well occasionally to put ferns in the bathtub and give them a bath with weak soapsuds made from a good grade of soap. The soap must be thoroughly rinsed off immediately. Great care must be exercised not to injure the fronds, as they are very tender.

Mealy bug is one of the worst enemies in house culture. This is a white woolly insect that works close to the bottom of the fronds. If found the plant should be examined every day and all insects removed by a splint or toothpick. If the pest is very bad cut off all the top of the fern within an inch of the ground and treat thoroughly each day till all insects are exterminated, when a new top can be grown.

Red spider is a minute sucking insect that thrives in a dry atmosphere. It can be kept in check by spraying the top with clear water. In living rooms this is frequently impracticable. The next best thing is repeated baths. The aphis, or green fly, is also eradicated by washing.

Ferns should be fed once in two to four weeks in the place of ordinary watering with dilute nitrate of soda (a heaping teaspoonful to a quart of water), ammonia water (a teaspoonful of ammonia to a quart) or manure leachings. Prepared plant food or a little sprinkling of ground bone and wood ashes also gives satisfaction.

Folding Table Pads.

An asbestos table pad is almost a necessity, and now that they are so conveniently made to fit tables of every size and to fold into a compact space when they are not in use they are more than ever desirable. They can be made to order at very reasonable prices, and they are sold ready made for oval and circular tables. Each separate leaf section costs $1, so the sixty inch pad can be enlarged a dollar's worth at a time as the size of the table is lengthened.

Pretty Slipper Rosettes.

Very pretty slipper rosettes may be made of a pair of cut jet buttons the size of a nickel, surrounded by a ruffle of black velvet ribbon one inch wide. On a slightly worn pair of patent leather shoes they will work wonders. To clean the jet rub it with a cloth wet in equal parts of water and alcohol, and dry with a soft cloth. Polish cut steel by applying powdered pumice stone, slightly moist, with a brush or soft rag.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCE

ican as far as you could see them.

In his ten days visit to Berlin, business seemed just as usual except that there were wounded soldiers around, but there was no advertising for recruits as in London and that Germany felt absolutely sure war would end in their favor, but he said the French and English also were sure.

He said the trouble came to him in Germany when he spoke to English prisoners without permission that the police got furious and he had to go back to Berlin and undergo a questioning as to what he said. He had only said to prisoners "It's a long way to Tipperary" To his surprise the German officer had never heard of that song.

He told of inquiring if any atrocities had been committed in the different towns, but they were all hearsay.

Mr. Austin said that in France and Belgium he went right into war zone and when he stayed at Calais and had a good nights sleep, but in the morning he was informed that a German aviator had dropped cards in the shape of bombs in the town. He ate breakfast accompanied by the Krupp artillery.

At Fume he saw King Albert of Belgium, but his people were not allowed to make any demonstration.

"We complain about high cost here" he remarked but when our auto got out of juice we had to pay $31.00 for ten gallons of gasoline.

At Ypres there was not a whole pane of glass in the town. We went 6 1-2 kilometers beyond the Allies lines and were half a kilometer from Germans. We counted eleven puff balls in the air at one time—it was like a big Fourt of July demonstration.

A French cavalry man came out to us and he had no time for politeness. He told us it was no place for a party of hair-brained tourists, and although he seemed cross we did not blame him

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

The Library has recently acquired two new hard pine display cases of a most convenient kind. The shelves decline at an angle so that the reader may stand erect and easily find his desired subject.

At the top of each of these cases is a bulletin board and the books are arranged with reference to the different subject headings which are placed here. In this way people may see at a glance the new and most interesting or attractive nonfiction which heretofore, for lack of space, had to be crowded in a confusion of titles which could not easily be read.

As these cases are made of the same kind of wood as the rest of the furniture of the Library they greatly enhance the beauty of the room and are a start towards a much needed open shelf book room.

The fiction case has been moved to a prominent place in front of the long art and newspaper case, and an attempt is made to keep three shelves always full of good fiction.

Gas Co. Boys Say Lonesome 5 Not In Same Class

Sporting Editor, The Ledger:—

We would like to use a little of your valuable space in answer to an item in one of the Quincy papers pertaining to a bowling match between the P O. clerks and the Office Employees of the Gas Co.

In regard to the statement that some of the P. O. boys held back in courtesy to our Blonde Twirler, we wish to say that the Lonesome Five have evidently been holding back for four years, as our team has taken four points twice, three points twice, and tied the aforesaid Lonesome Five twice.

Now if this does not exemplify a dyed-in-the-wool, instigated beating, why we can do no more. In fact we believe that the P. O. clerks should start with the minors, before jumping into fast company and we most decidedly refuse to listen to their childish claims, and we also refuse to be a party in establishing for them an unearned reputation.

Possibly at some remote period when we are assured that they have improved and when we are at leisure we may fill in an off evening by using them for practice..

MAYOR LEADS THREE BANDS

"Society Night" at Auto Show Glorious Success

Wednesday nights attendance at the Boston Automobile Show was a record breaker for Mechanics building. Over 50,000 auto-fans were in attendance and "Society Night" passed into history as the most successful in this, the greatest automobile exhibition ever staged in the world. Leaders in society in Eastern Massachusetts turned out in large numbers, and the hall, elaborately decorated, coupled with the handsome gowns of the ladies made a handsome picture.

Quincy has a personal interest in the marvelous success of the affair, and this city's live wire mayor, Hon. Chester I. Campbell, was on the job during the entire day and evening. The mayor is an expert in handling large affairs but last evening's demonstration of his ability along this line was an eye-opener to his closest associates.

As a sample of the versatility of Mr. Campbell, during the evening he led the three different orchestras which are located in the building. At each appearance he was noisily greeted by the spectators all of whom, apparently, were intimately acquainted with this city's chief executive. The mayor performed his duties faultlessly, and at the conclusion of each number he was compelled repeatedly to bow his acknowledgements.

Tonight will also assume a certain local aspect as President Joseph L. Whiton will head the local delegation made up of the members of the city council and the department heads. Practically every member of the city government will be in the party, and as the guests of the mayor, are assured of a royal welcome at the building.

IS STRUCK BY FALLING TIMBER

A piece of falling timber struck Harry Morgan, 511 Washington street on the back while he was working on U. S. submarines at the Fore River shipyard Wednesday afternoon and severly bruised him.

He was treated at the Red Cross Hospital at the shipyard and was then removed to the Quincy City Hospital for additional treatment. He will probably be discharged within a few days.

William Allen of Elm place returned to work Wednesday after a weeks illness.

ELUSIVE SEA ROVER IN PORT

Prinz Eitel Friedrich Arrives at Newport News

SCARRED BY LONG SERVICE

Reported to Have Been Chased to Three-Mile Limit by British Cruisers—Ship William P. Frye of Bath Was Sunk by German After Captain and Crew Were Taken Off Despite Protests of Skipper—Washington Considers the Case

Newport News, Va., March 11.—Officers of the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, which put in here, confirmed reports that the American sailing ship William P. Frye, owned by Harold M. Sewell of Bath, Me., was among the craft sunk by the cruiser.

It was said to have been sunk in the south Atlantic Jan. 27, because alleged to be carrying contraband. Captain Kiehne, his wife and crew of twenty-five were saved. The Frye sailed from Seattle for Queenstown, Nov. 2, with a full cargo of wheat.

Collector of the Port Hamilton reported fully to Washington on the case.

A queer thing is that the British steamer Daleham, with Captain Taggert, bound for Newport News for horses, also came into Hampton Roads. Taggert said he was a prisoner on the Prinz Eitel Friedrich five months ago after having been captured off the Chilean coast.

The Prinz Eitel Friedrich, another of the elusive German sea rovers, which have been destroying commerce of the allies on the seven seas, slipped into port, presumably eluding the British and French cruisers along the coast, in need of repairs, coal and provisions for her crew, and with 326 prisoners taken from prizes.

All her officers preserved the strictest silence, and her captain at once dispatched a message, telling of his arrival and the condition of his ship, to the German embassy at Washington.

No sooner had the Prinz Eitel Friedrich anchored than the United States coast guard ship Onondaga went alongside to take up her watch to preserve neutrality of the United States until officials at Washington decide what shall be done with the Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

Scarred by the red rust and salt of her months at sea, the German auxiliary was painted white on one side and black on the other. It was reported in marine circles that the Prinz Eitel Friedrich had been chased to the three-mile limit by a British cruiser, but, as the German captain had sealed the lips of his officers, it was not confirmed.

With this German cruiser definitely located in an American port, there remains at large on the high seas outside of German waters only three ships of war flying the imperial flag. These are the Kronprinz Wilhelm, an auxiliary cruiser, last reported off the coast of Brazil; the protected cruiser Dresden, last reported after the battle off the Falkland islands, in Chilean waters, and the cruiser Karlsruhe, last reported as operating in the West Indies. One report said the Karlsruhe had been successful in reaching home waters.

The Prinz Eitel Friedrich started on her career as a warship from Tsingtau. One of her exploits was the sinking of the British steamer Charcas off Chile early in December. The records do not show when she entered the south Atlantic.

PROTESTS UNHEEDED

Captain of the Frye Tells of the Sinking of His Ship

Captain Kiehne, master of the four-masted ship William P. Frye, made the following statement:

"Despite my protestations that I was the American master of an American ship, the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich sank the William P. Frye on the morning of Jan. 28, blowing a gaping hole through her vitals with a charge of dynamite.

"I was almost becalmed when the German ship appeared about 2 o'clock in the afternoon of Jan. 27. My ship was barely moving and I paid no attention to the first order from the Dutchman to lay to. However, she bore down on me and I brought my craft to a standstill.

"After learning that I carried a cargo of wheat, the German captain told me that it was contraband and he intended to destroy it. I protested, but no attention was paid to my statements.

"A German officer and a squad of men were sent aboard the ship and I and my crew were set to work throwing grain overboard. The German sighted another vessel, also becalmed, and made for her. He returned about 10 o'clock at night, having sent the other ship to the bottom, as I afterward ascertained.

"Evidently the grain was not being thrown overboard fast enough to suit the German skipper, for he sent half a hundred of his men aboard soon afterward and the work went on for hours without interruption. However, it was slow at best and I was informed next morning that my ship would be sent to the bottom, which was done.

"As soon as I was informed that my ship was to be sent to the bottom, I, my wife and two boys and the crew made for the German cruiser in our boats. We were taken on board and shown every courtesy throughout the remainder of the voyage.

"For two weeks before making this port the German ship molested no ships of any kind and always avoided them, not wishing to give the English cruisers any wind of her intention.

"Last night while leaving the Capes the wireless apparatus on board the German ship informed us that there were four English warships in our immediate vicinity, two of which seemed very close. However, we eluded them and made this port in safety."

Captain Kiehne when asked about other matters, said the Prinz Eitel Friedrich sent three ships to the bottom on the kaiser's birthday, the day on which the American ship was overhauled. He did not remember their names.

TO MAKE INQUIRY AT ONCE

Washington Profoundly Stirred by the Sinking of the Frye

Arrival of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich at Newport News, with the announcement that she had sent to the bottom one vessel which was American-owned and flew the flag of the United States, profoundly stirred official Washington.

In the absence of a detailed story of the sinking of the Frye judgment was withheld, but there was no attempt to deny the seriousness of the incident, and it was conceded that it bore the appearance of an unfriendly act upon the part of a German ship of war, which must result in diplomatic negotiations with the German government.

The Frye's manifest showed her bound for Queenstown "for orders." Washington officials explained that this declaration in the manifest was not unusual and added that circumstances so far pointed to the fact that the Frye, as a vessel of a neutral nation engaged in a legitimate voyage, was not subject to seizure or destruction.

The state and treasury departments will make every effort to get to the bottom of the case at once. The master, officers and crew of the Frey will appear in Norfolk before Collector of Customs Hamilton, and will be questioned at length about the circumstances of the ship's departure from Seattle last November, and of her capture and destruction.

Facts gathered from these sources will be forwarded to Wahsington and, if necessary, the state department will conduct an inquiry of its own and will not undertake negotiations with Germany until its case is clear.

Just what demands might be made upon Germany if the blowing up of the Frye were considered an unfriendly act, were not disclosed. It was understood, however, that the United States probably would seek the usual honorable amends under international law as well as reparation for the owners.

New York, March 11.—Under a long-term lease with a purchase option, Clarence H. Mackay has come into possession of Gardiner's island, consisting of 3000 acres, off the easterly end of Long Island, which he will use as a shooting preserve.

It is figured today that the island is worth $3,000,000.

SPORTING COMMENT

The rumor that the "Feds" are seriously considering putting a semi-pro team in Quincy was confirmed at a meeting of promoters held at Rockland this week to consider the advisability of including Weymouth, Rockland, Braintree and Quincy in a five team league. Several advances have been made to Michael Shea, manager of the Old Colony league grounds, but no agreement has been signed..

Quincy is on the edge, apparently, of a base ball revival. Already the Fore Rivers, Makarias, Redmen have announced their intention of reorganizing. With a "Fed" team added there will be a happy quartette ready for the support of the fans.

The real reason Manager Stallings is so eager to get an early start is to develop the "inside stuff." The miracle manager has a faculty of springing the unexpected which makes organized base ball and the Braves a winner.

And now they accuse Connie Mack's men of signal stealing. It is a penitentiary offense all right because it sometimes convicts a pitcher deserving of better fate.

Carl Mays of the Providence club, is becoming effective and may be placed on the Carrigan staff. Experts look for his underhand ball to develop into a hummer.

If Women Only Knew

What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Quincy Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.
If women only knew the cause—that
Backache pains often come from weak kidneys.
'Twould save much needless woe.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.
Read what a Quincy citizen says:
Mrs. Nellie A. Abbott, 33 Edison Park, Quincy, says: "I heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and finally tried them. I had backache and disordered kidneys. One box of Doan's Kiney Pills fixed me up all right."
Mrs. Abbott is only one of many Quincy people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If you back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy— ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Abbott had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c at all stores. WOULD FIGHT ALIEN INVASION

Villa Wants Mexicans to Settle Their Own Troubles

DENIES "ABSURD ASSERTION"

Says All Mexico is Prepared to Unite and Resist Intervention—Food Situation in Mexico City Still Serious—Some Washington Officials Think Situation Shows Improvement

El Paso, Tex., March 11.—General Villa in a statement received from Torreon declares that in event of intervention of foreign troops to subdue the Carranza forces, he and all other Mexicans would unite against the invaders.

He denied recent interviews in American newspapers, which, he said, had just been called to his attention, in which he was quoted as saying that he would not oppose armed intervention on the part of several powers, "to reduce Carranza to order," provided that he would be made commander of such a move.

"There is nothing more grotesque and absurd than such an assertion," said the message from Villa, "since I, as a true Mexican, always have insisted that all our troubles be settled solely among ourselves.

"Should, unfortunately, some nation invade our territory, I would be ready to fight against it without measuring the danger or the number of the invaders until I would see the entire country in the possession of Mexicans only. All of us would fight united against the common enemy."

As Viewed In Washington

Washington, March 11.—Secretary Bryan announced that the food situation in Mexico City was still very serious and that the forces of General Obregon appeared not to have evacuated this city yet, though this was expected at any moment.

He said that no definite information had reached the state department as to the reply which General Carranza is preparing to the American note demanding an improvement in conditions for foreigners.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, brought to the department a copy of a telegram received from Thomas Hohler, charge d'affaires of the British legation in Mexico City, declaring that the American note, a copy of which had been presented to Obregon simultaneously with its delivery to Carranza, had produced a good effect on the situation.

No more warships were ordered to Mexican waters and none will be sent pending further developments in the situation.

In a general way the situation seemed to some officials to have improved. There was an increasing confidence that Carranza would give the required assurance for the protection of foreigners, and that the United States would not be compelled to take further action.

Dope Fiends Expected to Create Reign of Terror at Chicago

Chicago, March 11.—One more week—and Chicago dope fields will be "on fire" and the city will see a series of "stick-ups," drug store robberies and other worse crimes committed by maddened hop fiends, now cut off from their supply of narcotics through operation of the Harrison law.

Such, in brief, are the predictions of Superintendent Davis of the Cook county hospital and other physicians already dealing with scores of victims of the drug habit. Under Davis charge a score of trembling, pale-faced men and women are under treatment.

TO ANSWER TELEPHONE.

There are many things that should be done at the telephone and many more that might be left undone that few of us stop to consider.

For instance what is the really correct way to call and answer a call?

Central opens the conversation with "Number, please?" and your answer should come quickly; "Main 217, please?"

The "please" takes less than a second and "central" does hear it.

According to business rules in a large city (and they are very good for social usage, too), the person who gets your call does not say "Hello," but repeats his or her own number, "Main 217," simply to show you that you have your number. For instance, in the Western Union offices employes at the telephone do not say "Hello," but respond to a call with "Western Union," and you start directly with your message or conversation. Big department stores use the same system.

If you have called up a store or office, you can then say: "I wish to speak with Mr. Jones," and nine cases out of ten the telephone operator will reply: "Who wishes to speak with him?"

Right there the average woman commits her first offence against telephone etiquette by saying sharply: "Never mind; just tell Mr. Jones some one wants to speak to him."

In nearly every business establishment telephone operators are instructed to secure the name of the party on the wire before making connection with extensions or summoning the party named. This is particularly true in the case of busy men and women who cannot be interrupted by unimportant telephone calls. It is also true in stores, where employes are not permitted to answer a call, save when it comes from an important customer.

And this brings us to the question of telephone consideration. How many girls who "just love to talk over the 'phone" realize how they embarrass young men in stores and offices? Employers do not want their young men clerks to waste time talking social matters over the 'phone, and the right sort of young man wants to attend to his employer's affairs during business hours and use the telephone later on.

Another type of woman who makes telephone trouble in office or store is the fussy wife who is forever calling her husband and telling him the most trivial domestic matters.

Respect business hours. If something really important arises, some question which must be settled, like a sudden summons from town or a request to make up a dinner party that night, conclude your conversation as quickly as possible and do not add to the necessary remarks a long, lingering tale of gossip you have heard during the morning.

In many households, where servants attend the telephone, they are also instructed to inquire the name of the person who makes the call, and to take messages in case the mistress is out or so engaged at home that she cannot come to the telephone. In this case you either leave your number or word that you will call later. Never argue with a servant as to why her mistress cannot respond to the call. It is as underbred as to question the maid's statement that her mistress is out when you are so informed at the door.

When you are connected with the wrong number, do not assume a bored or angry tone. Bear in mind that you have annoyed the party called by mistake, and say "Beg pardon" as if you meant it, not as if you had a grievance against the party who dared to answer through the mistake of another.

Do not deliberately wait until your friend is at dinner and then preface your long-winded chat with the remark: "You'll forgive me for calling you just at dinner time, but I knew you'd be at home then, and I didn't want to waste my call." This hardly consoles her for chilled soup and lukewarm fish and the reproaches of her family when you finally relapse her and she returns to the table.

When men call women, even from their offices, they should remain at their end of the wire until the woman responds. Many men tell the operator to let them know when the lady responds, and the latter is kept waiting while he busy man concludes a letter, or runs into the next office for something. If a man takes time to call a woman during business hours he should at least show her the courtesy of calling her properly and being at the phone when she answers.

Never talk private affairs over a public telephone, unless you are sure the booth is sound-proof. The girl who quarrels with her fiance in the corner drug store, and the wife who berates her husband for not coming home on time to dinner, at the grocery where she trades, belong in the same ill-bred class.

And lastly, do not impose upon your host or hostess, either in private, home or office. Remember that in most cities each call is charged up to the lessee of the telephone. As a guest in the suburbs, do not use calls to town unless you intend to compensate your hostess or at least offer to do so as if you meant it.

Do not use the telephone in a man friend's office because you happen to be in the neighborhood. Far better to pay five cents at the public telephone in the nearest drug store. The man may not resent the five-cent call, but he will resent the fact that you make a convenience of his office and force him to wait politely while you chatter to some friend, when he needs the telephone, for his own business affairs.

ATTENDANTS SAY HE ACTED NORMAL

Testimony of Matteawan Men In Favor of Thaw

New York, March 11.—Muffled in a heavy sweater and suffering from a cold and stiffened neck, Harry Thaw personally directed moves to establish his sanity. The judge refused to allow him to be remanded to Bellevue because of his cold.

Thaw caused his counsel to bring out by Matteawan attendants that he was never violently insane and that he acted normal.

A decisive test upon admitting sanity evidence was deferred. Justice Page is inclined to exclude such evidence, except only as may prove Thaw knew the "nature and quality of his acts in the alleged conspiracy by which he escaped from the asylum for the criminally insane.

Matteawan employes graphically pictured Thaw's flight. Lawyer John Annut, serving a term in Sing Sing for trying to bribe the Matteawan superintendent to release Thaw, was brought from the prison to testify for the prosecution.

TWO NEW MODELS FOR 1915

48-Six---$1650
Six Cylinders

Olympic "46"---$1375
Four Cylinders

Both Models Center Control. Left Drive. Both Fully Equipped

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars— you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size—built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, streamline body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 33⅓ to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous . It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season, it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep—no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

SCISSORS PASTE

PRINCETOWN IN THE SWIM.

Four years ago the faculty of Princeton university announced that no diplomas would be awarded to seniors who were unable to swim six lengths, or 200 yards, in the local swimming pool. There were few who believed that the rule would be enforced, but as the end of the senior year of the class of 1915 is approaching, it is discovered that 25 seniors are liable to disappointment if they do not acquire the art of swimming between now and the month of June. Strange to say some of the prominent athletes are among the number. The Princeton authorities seem bound to show that an order issued by them must be obeyed. The students have had for four years knowledge of the requirement and have no ground for complaint that it is to be enforced. It is not a hardship that the rule imposes, but a good healthy regulation, which other universities would do well to put into their rules for the government of the undergraduate body. Those who scorned the idea of being forced to learn the simple art of swimming, and rested on the belief that it was only a bluff, and would go no farther, must have felt chagrined when the registrar issued notices to the delinquents that they will have to pass the test in order to be graduated. It would be a good thing if the preparatory schools would adopt the rule, and make swimming a requirement of entrance to college life.—Lynn Item.

CIGARETTES AND STUDY.

The address of Principal Jackson of the English High school to his pupils contained much that the boys and girls should carefully consider. The cigarette habit has so firm a hold on the boys that to abolish it seems almost impossible. In 1840 the tippling habit among men was well high universal, but a man who had, by his own confession, been addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors to the extent that he called himself a drunkard, started a total abstinence reform that corrected the evil, and its good effects were felt for at least a generation. Principal Jackson holds that no boy can smoke and be smart in his school. He does not have the keen nature and sharp competition in his business that he would have if he left tobacco alone. "Some fellows," said the teacher, "will brag that they have smoked ever since they were 12 years old, but look at them. Physically and mentally they are not as strong men, and you never hear of them succeeding very far." Had the principal commenced his crusade earlier the effects of his war upon cigarette smoking would be greater. Now that he has commenced in earnest, as we judge from what he told the pupils, he ought to be backed by the parents of the boys. What he said to the lads was for their good, and they ought to appreciate it. His address was not entirely on the persuasive order. There was a penalty hinted at, a penalty that some of the smokers can ill afford to incur. That it will be applied if his words are not heeded admits of no doubt.—Lynn Item.

QUINCY DAY AUTO SHOW

Mayor Campbell Host of Local Delegation

Thursday, in addition to being Mayor's day at the auto show was Quincy day and many officials and citizens of Quincy were numbered among the thousands that thronged the exhibition halls. In the evening especially there was an immense crowd, estimated to have been upwards of fifty thousand.

During the afternoon a number of mayors registered at the show including Keene of Waltham, Haines of Medford, Stacy of Springfied, O'Keefe of Salem, Bartlett of Gloucester Wright of Worcester, Cliff of Somerville, Burbank of Brockton and Gaynor of Providence R. I., and of course Mayor Campbell of Quincy the manager of the show who welcomed the executives and extended the courtesies of the show.

While there were many Quincy people present during the day it was not until evening that the large representation from this city arrived In one party were the members of the city council and city officials and in another party were the young women clerks at city hall. These young women dined at one of the hotels the first part of the evening and then went to the exhibition hall where they were welcomed by the mayor in his office near the main entrance.

An hour or so later the members of the city council and city officials made their appearance and were accorded a most cordial welcome by his honor. In this party were President Whiton, and Councilmen Beema Bolster, Craig, McGrath, Prescott Slade, Griffin, Williams, Yule, Ross Barry, O'Dowd, Smith, Gallagher, McDonald, Richards, Fuller, Kessler and Nelson and Clerk of Council Magee.

Among the city officials in the party were Commissioner Brown, Chief Engineer Faxon Billings, Overseer of the Poor Miss Huston, who however was in the women clerks party, Walter H. Buchanan of the Board of Health, Ira M. Whittemore of the Park Commissioners, Dock and Water Front Commissioner Frank Fenseden Crane, Joseph P Grossman of the Registrars of Voters Walter S. McKenzie of the sewer department. John J. O'Hara and W. W Mitchell of the assessors department and Andrew Stewart of the gypsy moth department and Capt. McKay of the police department.

After greetings had been exchanged Mayor Campbell escorted the party to one of the directors rooms on the upper floor which he placed at their disposal for the evening. There was no attempt at speech making although President Whiton, in behalf of the city council and officials thanked the mayor for the courtesies that he had extended them and also congratulated him on the great success that the show had been.

Mayor Campbell responded briefly thanking the party for their good wishes. He said that he did not propose to make any speech, but he hoped that they would enjoy themselves and see all there was to see

At 9.30 the party again gathered in the mayor's office near the entrance where they again expressed their thanks for the pleasant evening which he had provided them. Some of the party came home by automobiles and others took the train from the Back Bay station to the South Station.

MACKAY IS CHIEF SPEAKER

Discuss Crowded Condition of School at Meeting

A prolonged discussion over the facilities needed to take care of the crowded condition of the Massachusetts Fields school opened the meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association, held Thursday evening.

While there were a large number from Norfolk Downs favoring a new building on Billings road, the majority seemed to believe that present conditions could only be remedied by the construction of a four room addition to the present building.

Evidence was brought forth showing that the majority of the children in the district lived to the east, west and south of the present school and that if the new school was built the district boundary would probably be drawn at Beach street. This would compel some children to walk past the present school to reach the new school on Billings road.

Another suggestion was that with the new building completed it might be used for the higher grades and junior high school while the younger children attended the Massachusetts Fields school.

Reports of the "Brownie ball," recently presented, showed the net proceeds $167.10. This will probably be spent for supervision of the playground this summer. The secretary was instructed to ascertain if the playground was under school or city supervision.

John D. Mackay, chairman of the school committee, spoke on school questions and assured those present that his committee would be fair in helping improve the conditions at the school.

"In 1860" he said "there were but 5 in the High school while the old North end school, corner of Hancock and Squantum street, had 47. Now there are 8,000 in the city and 970 in the High school.

"A good liberal education is the best thing we can give our children to take them, instead of the white man's burden, a burden bearer.

"Nothing is more satisfactory than education and once acquired it remains with us. Whether we are rich or poor, it is a joy.

"Parents should teach the children to read the masterpieces in literature and unconsciously they will come to form ideals of character."

Speaking of patriotism, he said: "Patriotism" is not simply to hold and salute the flag but it is our duty in this day and generation to show ourselves patriotic in speech and action."

ODD FELLOWS GIVE CONCERT AND BALL

Guests From Boston and South Shore Enjoy Big Annual Event

75 COUPLES IN MARCH

Odd Fellowship in all its branches was well represented at the annual concert and ball of Mt. Wollaston lodge No. 80, at Music hall Thursday night, most of the guests coming from Metropolitan Boston, the South Shore and Quincy.

The concert by Poole's orchestra from eight to nine o'clock entertained the guests until the formation of the grand march which set festivities in full swing.

Noble Grand and Mrs. Robert M. Wood headed the 75 couples who participated in the march and there was an outburst of applause as the marchers came down the centre, with a "16 front." The dance program contained the old fashioned as well as the modern dances and there were three quadrilles for the older folks.

The decorations of the hall consisted principally of American flags. A large banner was wreathed on the stage before which were strung Japanese lanterns and underneath them swung the three link emblem of the order with the letters "F. L. T."

THIRTEEN GRASS FIRES KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

Department Also Respond to One House Fire

The firemen were kept busy nearly all day Thursday and in the evening answering still and bell alarms for grass fires. It seems as if there had never been a time with so many grass fires as within the past ten days. Every day the department has been called out many times for this class of fires. Starting in Thursday, Hose 3 and Ladder 3 began the day with a call to Common street for a grass fire. At 8.15 the same companies responded for a grass fire in the Hall cemetery on Crescent street.

At 1.27 an alarm was sounded from Box 725 for a fire in a house on East Howard street. This first as noted in Thursday's Ledger was on the upper floor of the house in a closet. The damage was about $100.

At 3.10 the central station auto extinguished a grass fire in the rear of Barnard's bakery on Hancock street.

At 2.35 a telephone call sent the Wollaston apparatus to a grass fire on Taylor street and while the Wollaston apparatus was there some one rang in an alarm from Box 52 for the same grass fire. This called the auto and steamer from the central station and the auto from the Atlantic station. The extra apparatus was not needed but the extra men brought by the apparatus came in handy.

At 3.40 the central station auto went to Albertina street for another grass fire and at 5.30 the same apparatus went to School street to extinguish a grass fire in the rear of the old Baxter house on School street.

At 5.52 Hose 2 and Ladder 2, went to Beale street for a grass fire.

At 7.03 an alarm was sounded from Box 18 at Houghs Neck for a lively grass fire on Sea street near Palmer street. There were a number of cottages near by and they were in danger of taking fire from sparks.

While the apparatus from the central station was at this fire a telephone call was received at the central station for a lively woods fire on the Danforth Arnold estate near the corner of Arnold and South streets. As there was no apparatus at the central station however a telephone call was sent to the combination at Quincy Point which responded. The firemen at the grass fire on Sea street saw the blaze of the Arnold street fire and as the fire on Sea street was under control the apparatus hurried by a short route to Quincy Point making the run in remarkably short time.

The fire on the Arnold farm spread over a wide territory and gave the firemen a hard time getting it under control. Several chemical streams were laid and the firemen also fought the fire with brooms. Several acres were burned over before the fire was out.

This morning the fires started in again for at 8.55 the central station auto was called to the corner of Greenleaf and Putnam strets for a grass fire.

At 10.50 this morning the Houghs Neck apparatus was called to a cottage of Mrs. Williams at the corner of Centre road and Charles street. A grass fire near the house communicated to some lattice work on the house and but for the prompt assistance of the department the cottage would probably have taken fire.

The alarm from Box 81 at 1.38 this noon was for a brisk grass fire at Squantum near the Burkhardt estate. There is a lot of valuable property near the scene of the fire and fearing that some of the houses would take fire an alarm was sounded to call aid.

REDUCING TAX RATES.

With Selectman Frank P. Bennett, Sr., acting as chief executioner and Clerk B. F. A. Jenkins and William C. Jaquith as his henchmen, there was a wholesale slaughter of appropriations asked for at the opening session of the 100th annual town meeting in Saugus last evening.

Selectman Bennett swayed the big throng of citizens which packed the Town Hall with a plea for the establishment of a policy of self sacrifice and economy to reduce the town's tax rate. His advice was taken on every article discussed, and the swings of his axe were vigorously applauded by the audience, which included many women who occupied seats in the balcony.—Lynn Item.

We are not acquainted, of course, with conditions in the town of Saugus and it may well be that the action of the town meeting referred to in the news item quoted above was wisely taken. There is a chance, however, that the action was not wholly wise. No city enjoys possessing a high tax rate and usually the high rate betokens inefficiency somewhere. But there are things which can happen to a city or town which are worse than a high tax rate.

Parsimony, swinging the axe without intelligence, is not always economy. As Mayor Campbell pointed out in his inaugural address it would not be economy to permit the present streets to go a year without repair. Expenditure of money for permanent improvements or temporary repairs is sometimes a wise expenditure, even though it may lift the tax rate a tride. It is sometimes difficult to induce tax payers to see this. They cry for the low tax rate and dismiss the future from their minds.

Selectman Nourse of Saugus, who was evidently not wholly in accord with Mr. Bennett, according to the account from which the quotation is made remarked pertinently:

"We used kerosene lamps a few years ago, why not give up our electricity and go back to them."

Everybody in Quincy wants a lower tax rate if it can be brought about by an intelligent administration of the city's affairs. But let us try to remember that the lower tax rate is not the only thing to be desired. Efficient administration should bring the reduction together with a city which is a better place in which to live than is Quincy today.

TERMS OF PEACE.

A press despatch by way of London, and therefore to be taken with several good sized grains of salt, says that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg is to make a statement in the Reichstag setting forth the terms on which Germany is willing to make peace. If Germany did state its attitude it would be a step toward ultimate peace. We are inclined to think that at this stage of the game Germany has no idea whatsoever of doing so. When the proper time arrives for a neutral nation to intervene with proposals of peace the proposal might well be made along that line. The combatants might well be asked to state to the impartial friend to both on what terms they would make peace. Of course the warring nations would exaggerate the terms but the mere stating of them would give something upon which to work.

Congressman Richard Olney, 2nd of Dedham is a business man of ability and doubtless will make an efficient representative at Washington. But we do wish that he would not mention his share in bringing the last big gov ernment contract to the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation every time he makes a speech in Quincy. In his address before the Men's club of the Atlantic Memorial church Wednesday evening he repeated the oft told tale.

The boys of the Quincy Day Industrial school in the old Adams school building are to be congratiulated upon the quality of the furniture which they made for the Atherton Hough school at Houghs Neck. The teachers and the city are also to be congratulated for giving such efficient training in a practical and useful trade.

At the meeting of the All Souls Men's club of Braintree Wednesday, the speaker, George H. Nobbs, who had lived in Mexico, stated that in his opinion Gen. Carranza was only a bandit chieftain. Strange how great minds so often agree. We had suspected as much as ourselves.

News of Interest to Granite Manufacturers and Workers

Business has not attained its usual activity as yet but is increasing as each week passes. The work which has been held up all winter is commencing to come in and the yards are putting on an appearance of the usual spring rush. Business this year of course is not expected to be as brisk as in former years owing to the dull winter through which we are passing. Several of the sheds have been making extensive repairs to their machinery and putting their plants in first class running order in preparation for the busy season.

During the past week several truck loads of finished work for the cemetery has left the city. From this time on until the last minute on Memorial day the trucks will be kept busy hauling work to the cemetery. Several fine memorials were noticed on the loads which passed through the square the past week.

DESCRIBES HIS QUARRY.

J. S. Swingle, the Extra Dark Man, has issued the past week a very interesting six page pamphlet describing in full his two quarries and the facilities he has at hand to supply any size of stone wanted by the trade. It contains several interesting cuts of his quarries. Mr. Swingle gives a very graphic story of the durability of Quincy granite comparing them to the Egyptian pyramids which have stood the ravages of time for centuries. Mr. Swingle is a firm believer in the motto "It pays to advertise" and points out the need of the manufacturers to keep their products before the people. The booklet contains testimonials from several well known wholesalers who have received work from "the Extra Dark Man" and have been highly pleased with the same. Mr. Swingle also plans several changes in his quarries one of which is the erection of a new sixty ton derrick to meet the growing requirement of his business.

In one paragraph he states as was noted in the Granite column of the Ledger several weeks ago, that the majority of work now being cut in this city is in small slabs and other small work. There seems to be a tendency to believe that the day of producing large stone in Quincy is past but with its added facilities it is a fact that this quarry is now in a position to furnish larger stone than has ever been quarried before.

ADVENT OF MOTOR TRUCK.

At this time when everybody is interested in the Automobile Show it is appropriate to state the change the motor truck has made in the granite business in this city. In the years before the motor truck when a firm had a memorial to set in a cemetery near Boston a team was hired and started out before sunrise in the morning in order to get to the cemetery and set the monument and return after sunset in the evening.

Today a manufacturer may have three or four memorials to be set in different cemeteries. The load leaves the city about ten in the morning and several setters go with it. The first memorial is unloaded and two men are left there to set it and the truck immediately goes to the next cemetery and does the same. The saving to the manufacturer consists of the difference between the price of three teams at $10.00 each and the price of one truck for one day at the rate of $2.00 per hour. It is plain to see that 1-2 of the cost is saved.

MOTOR AND COMPRESSOR.

Christie and Company is installing a new motor and compressor in its plant on Gass Place. It has erected a new shed in the rear of the present shed in which to place the new motor and compressor. This firm was formerly located at the shed of the Columbian Granite Company but the business increased so that it was necessary for the concern to seek larger quarters. It purchased the plant of John C. Murray on Gass Place and renovated the entire plant. When the new machinery is installed it will be one of the most up-to-date sheds in the city. The company bought power from the Bay View Quarry Company until that firm ceased operations. There are a large number of orders on the books for Spring delivery.

SHIPPING INCREASES.

Shipping at the Quincy Adams depot during the past week has increased a great deal and at the present time teams are standing in line for an hour at a time waiting to get unloaded. The teamsters plan their loads so that they will arrive at the freight yard at about four o'clock so that they can leave their teams standing over night and get there the first thing next morning to have them unloaded. The need of better facilities at this station will be shown more and more each week from now out and it will not be an uncommon sight to see the crane working all day Sunday to keep up with the demand.

At the West Quincy station several carloads of finished work has been sent out during past week and there is considerable finished work waiting to be loaded on the cars.

WHAT WILL BE DEMAND?

The Barre strike has been settled to the satisfaction of both parties and the men have gone back to work again. The question now is what will be the demands of the Quincy cutters when their bill expires. They will have to make their demands known according to the agreement now existing before December 1st. There will be no danger of a strike in this city as the agreement states that if any difference arises it shall be settled by arbitration. It is possible that the men will demand a minimum of 50 cents an hour. This will be an increase of nine and one-half cents per hour over the present bill.

BEAUTIFUL SHAFT.

Workmen are now engaged at the Ballou quarry in finishing what will probably be one of the most attractive shafts ever erected as a memorial. The shaft when set on the massive base will tower 27 feet in the air.

The shaft itself will be 17 feet in height and two feet square, slightly tapering as it nears the top. It will be set out of town.

DARK STOCK PLENTIFUL.

Leading Granite Dealers Say There Is Inexhaustible Supply.

In the granite notes of a recent issue of the Ledger, which conducts a column on news of interest to the industry every Friday, there appeared an interview with a well known granite foreman relative to a decrease in Dark Stock in Quincy. To this granite dealers of the city take exception. In order to present their side of the case the Ledger has secured the opinions of several leading granite men. The opinions follow:

J. S. SWINGLE.

In your weekly news items concerning the granite industry, there have recently appeared one or two items which were decidedly detrimental in their tone and not in conformity with the facts.

One of these items stated in substance that the Dark and Extra Dark stock was nearly exhausted and that it would only be a few years when the granite industry in Quincy would be a dead issue.

Such news as this sent broad cast throughout the country has already done considerable damage to our business, without any question, and it should be your duty to investigate such matters before printing, and not leave questions of such vital importance in the hands of irresponsible parties who are not informed and do not have the interest of Quincy at heart.

When any reports of such nature come to your attention it is easy enough for you to consult competent authorities and know whether your position is based on conditions or only incompetent opinions.

Relative to conditions, you can state with all confidence that Quincy Granite is not a dead issue, and never will be, so long as people are possessed with the desire to perpetuate the memories of those gone before.

Our Quincy hills are filled with marketable granite, and the supply is inexhaustible.

All our operating quarries are running at practically their full capacity and it is absurd and ridiculous for any person to state that we are running out.

To revert to more personal conditions I am at the present time contemplating the erection of another large capacity derrick and other extensive improvements, the better to enable me to serve the trade in Dark and Extra Dark Stock, involving the expenditure of several thousand dollars, and I do not believe this is indicative of death."

JOHN C. BALLOU.

John C. Ballou, operator of the Ballou quarry on the South Common and the owner of 19 acres of land filled with any quantity of stock takes exception to the statement that the supply of dark granite in Quincy is low. On the contrary he said there is an unlimited amount and that it is perhaps inexhaustible as far as his quarry is concerned.

Mr. Ballou said that the demand is normal and that while a little less rough stock is being shipped out of town it is due only to the general business depression.

He said he has a large amount of orders on hand for delivery to the local manufacturers and that there are 30 men at present employed in getting out the stock.

Mr. Ballou is one of the long time quarry owners of the city and has more than three acres of developed quarry land which produces a valuable product. The depth of the quarry varies and is several hundred feet at its lowest point.

Mr. Ballou is contemplating the extension of his quarrying activities and before long will commence the development of the remaining acres in his plot. He has not departed from the custom of manufacturing and conducts a flourishing retail business. Much of the stock manufactured at his yard on Quarry street is from his own quarry.

THOMAS J. DUNPHY

"I believe there is in Quincy today more first class stock of all shades than ever before. We have an abundance of first class material at our Hitchcock Quarry, known as Hitchcock Supreme, that can be delivered in any size at short notice. The trade is evidently awakening to the beauties of this stock and are ordering very liberally, particularly for their large work.

FALCONER & CO.

"A visit to several of the Granite quarries, confirms the general opinion that business is rapidly improving. Most of them report a decided improvement and up to this time the output of the quarries has been nearly double what it was during the same length of time last year.

"We have heard the rumor that Quincy Granite is nearly exhausted, but a visit to the several quarries in this city will convince anyone that there is plenty of Light, Dark and Extra Dark, and that the supply is inexhaustible.

"As to the lasting qualities of our granite, nothing can compare with it, as can be seen by a visit to Bunker Hill Monument, the Boston Custom House or its near neighbor, the State street block.

"For monumental work, where a high polish is desired, no other granite equals it and when letters are cut, the contrast is very noticeable.

"All of our firms are feeling very jubilant at the present time, as the orders are beginning to come in and the money market is loosening up."

C. THEODORE HARDWICK.

C. Theodore Hardwick of C. H. Hardwick & Co., when asked if his supply of dark Quincy granite was running short said "NNo indeed. We have plenty of it and always have had I would be perfectly willing and very glad to take orders for any amount of dark stock. There are some of the little quarries, perhaps, where the supply of dark stock is scarce, but for that matter it always has been scarce with these quarries."

Mr. Hardwick in reply to a question as to his source of supply said "We have about 16 acres of quarry land and of this fully two-thirds is dark stock. Our stock is very dark, entirely free from knots or blemishes,

Thirteen years of constant study of the buyer's needs, thirteen years of continuous development in factory efficiency are expressed in these two Jackson models. We believe they represent the utmost in automobile value. In them is incorporated the maximum of strength, endurance, power and comfort. No other cars can possibly offer you more. They are silent cars— you can hear them running but you have to listen. And you get Jackson quality, Jackson strength, and the wonderful ease of riding that makes the Jackson the first choice of those seeking solid comfort.

The 48-Six a Distinct Triumph

into its manufacture has gone everything that our long experience has taught. We are proud of it. Its long stroke motor, of European design, unites smoothness, silence and extreme flexibility. It will speed up from a walking pace on high gear to 50 miles an hour within a few hundred feet. It is amazingly economical. Cranking, lighting and ignition are by the Delco system.

Note the beautiful stream-line body—not an angle from front to rear. It is big and roomy. Its finish is superb. Its upholstery yields soft, luxurious comfort. No car at any price offers you more.

Like all Jacksons this model has four full-elliptic springs. This again means comfort and tire economy. You rarely see a shock absorber on a Jackson car. Jackson tire economy is proverbial.

Before you buy any "Six" find out all about the Jackson 48-Six. It meets the demand for a "Six" of medium size—built to stand up better than any car we know of. Get our announcement telling all about it, or, better still, let the Jackson dealer show it to you.

The Olympic "Forty-Six" for 1915

is a powerful, sweet-running four, a notable successor to the popular "Olympic Forty." Refined and simplified construction, streamline body, larger motor.

This car can be driven faster over rough roads than any other car of similar size and power. This is due to the four full elliptic springs, which absorb road inequalities and give a new ideal of comfort. Time and time again Jackson owners have demonstrated that Jackson spring suspension has from 33⅓ to 100 per cent more flexibility than other types. Don't be satisfied with reading this statement. Make the Jackson dealer prove the extra comfort to you.

The motor is of the same long stroke type that has made the Jackson famous. It is noticeable for its silence. Larger than the motor of last season, it provides an immense fund of reserve power that makes "No hill too steep—no sand too deep."

A carburetor of improved type in connection with other refinements still further increases the fuel economy of this motor. Fuel is carried in rear tank and fed by vacuum system.

The brief specifications just hint at the remarkable value in this car. Let us send you the catalogue that tells the whole story. Write and we will gladly advise you of the nearest Jackson dealer.

OFFER PRIZES TO SCHOOL CHILDEN

Association Votes Purse For Best Essay on Wollaston's Needs

W. P. I. A. MEETING

Prizes are to be offered school children writing the best essays on civic helpfulness, by the Wollaston Park Improvement association. At its meeting in Progressive hall Thursday evening the Association voted that a purse of ten dollars be divided among the pupils in the high school, grammar and primary grades, writing the best essay on the subject "What Can the School Children Do to Help Improve Wollaston."

Joseph K. Barber, in reporting on the recent hearing before the Public Service Commission for fences or other safety devices, stated that he firmly believed there was room between the tracks at Wollaston for a fence and that a little inconvenience was much better than the present dangerous condition.

In comment on the hearing President Chase said that "Safety First" was a good slogan, but "Precaution" beat it out of sight. He considered the possibility of a traffic bridge at the Norfolk Downs station a distant dream, owing to the immense cost.

The association voted to endorse the movement for a "Paint Up, Clean Up Week" and steps will be taken to foster this project in every way possible throughout the district.

Several present spoke of the immediate need of an addition to the present Massachusetts Fields school. With this in view it was voted to appoint a committee to consult with the Parent-Teachers' association of the school.

A strong campaign for new members is resulting in constant increases and the organization has plans underway for a gala ladies night late in May.

NEW OFFICERS FIRST MEETING

Archon William Canty and the new officers of Granite conclave, I. O. Heptasophs, who were installed two weeks ago, conducted their first meeting in Protection hall Thursday evening. One member was initiated and one application was received.

Postmaster William Murray of Boston was unable to speak before the members, being obliged to cancel his engagement at the last moment. Additional plans were made for the annual ball to be held April 9 in Alpha hall.

VISIT RELIANCE REBEKAH LODGE

District Deputy Grand Master Mrs. Carrie Richardson of Somerville and suite made an official visitation of Reliance Rebekah lodge at Wollaston Thursday evening. There were visitors present from Somerville, Quincy and Boston. A class of five candidates was initiated to membership. The exemplification was well executed and the visitors were highly commended on their work.

WOMAN'S GUILD MEETS.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Woman's Guild of Christ church was held Thursday afternoon. The afternoon was given up to work, the members busying themselves in the making of articles for the bazaar to be held in March 30. Cube later in the season. During the afternoon fruit salad, crackers and tea were served. The Guild also attended the regular Lenten service at which time Rev. William Grainger the rector gave his fourth talk on "The Life of Christ."

TESTIFIES FOR DUAL PURPOSE

Thaw Shoulders All Responsibility For His Escape

WOULD ALSO PROVE SANITY

Men Charged With Conspiracy With Him Referred to as "Employes"—Paid Them $6000 For Services and "Made Present of $1000" to Thompson—Case Goes to Jury Today

New York, March 12.—Harry K. Thaw went upon the witness stand and told the complete story of his escape from the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan.

A dual purpose, his attorneys said, prompted him to do so. Primarily he desired to tell his story in such a manner as to convey to the jury, which is trying him and his co-defendants on an indictment charging conspiracy, an idea that he had recovered his reason. He wished also to take all the blame for the escape.

He testified that the men who, the state alleges, conspired with him, were not actually conspirators, but men whom he had employed to assist him out of the state after he himself had effected his escape.

He said he paid them $6000 for their services and that he gave Roger Thompson, who accompanied him to Canada, "a present of $1000." The witness declared he thought he had a legal right to flee from the hospital, as he believed himself sane, and that had he remained there his reason would ultimately have been dethroned.

Thaw told his story after his attorneys had made vain attempts to get into the record the testimony of half a dozen alienists and more than a score of laymen who, before and since his escape, have had opportunities to observe his actions.

Justice Page, however, refused to admit any more of this testimony than would show that Thaw had sufficient mental capacity to enter into a conspiracy. The law of New York provides that an insane person may commit a crime if he has sufficient mental capacity to know that he is doing a criminal act and has an intention to commit it.

When adjournment was taken with Thaw still on the witness stand under cross examination, he had but four co-defendants instead of five. After the state had closed its case, Michael O'Keefe, upon the motion of counsel, was discharged, as no evidence had been adduced to connect him with the alleged crime.

Thaw testified later, however, that he had five "employes." Special Deputy Attorney General Kennedy, in charge of the prosecution, considered that Thaw had so involved his four remaining co-defendants that he requested the court to cancel their bail bonds and confine them in the Tombs prison until a verdict should be reached.

The court complied with the request. The defense will be completed today and the case should therefore be in the hands of the jury before night.

WHISKY FOR PAUPERS

Iowa Poor Farm Reports Allowing Daily Nips to Avoid a "Strike"

Des Moines, March 12.—Inmates of one county poor farm in Iowa were given a small nip of whisky each morning in 1914 to keep them from "striking," according to a report received by Examiner of County Accounts Wall. His assistants discovered that the county spent $156, or $13 a month for whisky.

Four gallons were purchased monthly; two at $2.50 and two at $4 a gallon. The cheaper liquor was for inmates and the better grade for visitors. Wall refused to divulge the name of the county.

WOMEN SCARES AWAY BURGLARS

Mrs. Wm. Clements Saw Intruder In Her House

Mrs. William Clements, 2 Town Hill street, returned home early enough Thursday evening to prevent the probable burglarizing of her home and to scare away a stranger exploring the rooms with the aid of a flashlight.

Mrs. Clements discovered the intruder when she happened to glance through the window as she stepped to the front door and saw his form disappearing in the shadows.

Thoroughly alarmed, she turned and ran to Brewers corner, a distance of half a mile. She arrived a few minutes after Patrolman Black had departed for West Quincy.

On telling her story several men volunteered to accompany her home. They made an examination of the premises but found nothing missing. There was no indication of how entrance was made.

GETS THREE MONTHS.

The continued case of Joseph L. Whiting, of Bell street Houghs Neck for disturbance on a street car at Quincy was heard this morning. At the conclusion of the hearing the court found him guilty and imposed a sentence of three months in the house of correction. The court made a proposition to Whiting that if he did not desire to appeal that he would continue the case on probation and if there were no mor complaints the case would be dismissed at the expiration of the probation period. This proposition was refused, however, and Whiting took an appeal and furnished bonds in the sum of $300.

NEWS OF INTEREST

and as I have stated we have seemingly an inexhaustable supply."

FRANCIS MORRISON.

Francis Morrison, president of the Granite Manufacturers association, when asked about the supply of dark stock said; "There seems to be plenty of dark stock in Quincy and as a general rule we have no difficulty in getting all we want. There are certain times of the year, especially around Decoration Day time when we can not get it quite as fast sometimes as we desire. This however is not on account of any lack of stock but is largely due to the rush of orders which the Quarry owners have at this busy season of the year. Then there are times in the winter months when the cold weather prevents the quarries from being worked. I should say that there is fully as much medium stock used in monuments as dark stock, and to say that medium stock is only used for bottom bases is folly.

DEATH DUE TO NATURAL CAUSES

Natural causes are said to have caused the death of the baby whose body was found floating on Monatiquot river in Braintree on Tuesday evening. The autopsy performed by Medical Examiner J. C. Fraser of Weymouth is said to have shown that death was not due to drowning as at first supposed, but that the child had breathed very few minutes after birth.

The Braintree police have made an investigation of the affair but have not as yet uncovered any clue which might lead to the persons responsible for the body being thrown in the river.

FOOD PRICES ARE STEADILY DROPPING

Flour, for Example, is Ten Cents Less Than a Week Ago

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

Little drops of water
Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean
And the great big land.

Speaking of drops, it will be good news to the housewife as well as to the home provider that prices of food stuffs are dropping. For instance, flour has taken a tumble since last week and it can now be bought by the bag for $1.15. This is ten cents cheaper than a week ago. Although this little drop in price is appreciated, people will not be satisfied until the price reaches the figure at which it was selling before stories of the war in Europe began to send prices heavenward all along the line.

Flour is not all that has gone down for meats are following suit. For instance instead of paying 45 and 50 cents a pound for a nice slice of juicy steak one can now buy the best cuts for 40 cents, a drop of three cents from a week ago. Pork chops have also dropped to 20 cents a pound, or two cents less than a week ago. In fact all grades of beef are falling today for from three to five cents a pound lower than they were a month ago and there is still room for a further drop.

Of course during Lent there is not such a demand for beef as in other seasons, yet there are still those who enjoy when they sit down to dinner to have a slice of thick tender steak placed before them, and on which of late owing to the prevailing high prices they have been obliged to limit themselves.

Hen food, better known as eggs, remain within reason. Notwithstanding the usual Lenten demand and the hens themselves seem to be doing their part toward keeping the price down. One can buy today eggs anywhere from 24 to 33 cents, although 40 and 45 cents is still being charged for what is known in the markets as strictly fresh laid Quincy eggs.

There are always plenty of people in this world to take advantage of someone else's misfortune to add to their own gains, so that it is not surprising to read in the daily papers that these unscrupulous people are alleged to have taken advantage of the reports of the cheapness of potatoes in Aroostook county, Maine, by trying to corner all the potatoes in the market so as to raise up the price. The Federal grand jury however has taken hold of the report and after an exhaustive investigation it is announced that indictments have been secured against five defendants. The indictments against these five men charge them with conspiring, as members of the Aroostook Potato Shippers association, to restrain trade in potatoes from the Maine county, of which, the indictment says, 22,000,000 were shipped to other parts of the United States in 1914, about 75 per cent. by the defendants and their associates.

Much has been said about the substitution of potato for flour in the making of bread, and the general public will be glad to learn that the Federal authorities are getting after these men who would make themselves rich at the expense of those who can ill afford to contribute. The outcome of these suits will be watched with interest by the general public.

Fresh vegetables are beginning to make their appearance in the markets and one can readily find radishes at 5 cents a bunch, lettuce at 8 cents a head, dandelion greens at 20 cents a pound and beet greens at 10 cents a pound..

Then there are canned fruit and vegetables of all kinds at reasonable prices. Good tomatoes can be bought for nine cents a can upwards, string beans, peas, corn, etc., at the same rate. Fruits are plentiful, Florida oranges, guaranteed to be sweet, are selling at 21 cents a dozen while other varieties are selling at from 35 cents to 40 cents, largely according to size. Grape fruit is plentiful and today can be bought at the rate of 65 cents a dozen.

Some strawberries, Southern raised have made their appearance in the markets but the price is such that strawberries and cream or strawberry shortcake is not called for much on bills of fare.

As for fish, one who visited the markets today found plenty of the finny tribe and at reasonable prices. Scallops continue to be rather high as do also good oysters but no higher than in other years. Cod is cheap and so is halibut, mackerel and haddock. Smelts caught down Nova Scotia way and shipped north frozen, are fairly reasonable but there is not much demand for them. Lobsters are still high and there is but little prospect that they will be any cheaper. The prices however remain about the same now as in the summer although about all the lobsters in the markets today come from Nova Scotia.

Housewives are advised to read the advertisements in todays Ledger for they will find numerous bargains offered in the way of Sunday dinners.

The officers of John Adams Commandery, Knights of Malta, will be publicly installed Tuesday evening at Colonial hall.

JOYCE BROS. & CO. JOYCE BROS. & CO.

JUST Twenty-Six Years Ago —

FOR 26 YEARS our house has been doing business with the people of New England. From the modest beginning in our little 20x60 STORE, our trade has expanded until today we own and operate seven up-to-date, busy retail Clothing Stores in seven of New England's leading cities and the name of JOYCE BROS. & CO. has taken its place among those of the foremost Clothiers of America. It is but natural that we should expect a continuance of this prosperity, but we know that, in reality, we deserve it only to the extent that we have been and are now giving values, qualities, service and accommodation superior to that found in any competitive establishment. Our policy of a "square deal," FULL VALUE FOR EVERY DOLLAR EXPENDED, and satisfaction to our customers, in every detail, is the foundation upon which our business rests.

NEW, STYLISH SPRING APPAREL for Men, Women, Boys and Girls, in great profusion, is now here ready for your inspection, and represents the best efforts of the leading manufacturers of America. STYLE for STYLE, QUALITY for QUALITY, the VALUES FOUND HERE will compare favorably with the lowest prices quoted anywhere, by anybody, for similar merchandise. Back of this is our unqualified guarantee of perfect satisfaction. Our customers know what this stands for and that we are here "all the time" to protect that guarantee.

OUR CHARGE SYSTEM was established for the convenience of the people and is conducted on modern, progressive, 20th century lines that meet the requirements of the man or woman of moderate means. It is not always convenient to pay spot cash, and the average working-man or woman finds it impossible to obtain accommodation in the majority of retail stores. A QUARTER OF A CENTURY of experience has taught us that the people are HONEST and CAN BE TRUSTED, and that an account can usually be more easily paid in partial payments than in a lump sum. Upon this basis is founded our CHARGE ACCOUNT SYSTEM. It enables the great masses of people to have the Clothing they need when they need it, the account to be paid in sums and at intervals most convenient to them, there being no extra charge of any kind for this accommodation. We cordially invite your inspection of our business methods as well as of our merchandise.

SINK HANSON'S GALLANT SHIP

Hildebrand's Submarine Battles to Victory

RESULTS THURSDAY NIGHT.

Dr. Maloney—4. Capt. Larkin—0.
Capt. Hildebrand—4. Capt. Hanson—0.

Capt Hildebrand and his submarine bowlers came to the surface at the Wardwell alleys Thursday evening to take observations and before plunging for another week torpedoed and sunk the enemy's ship in command of Capt. Hanson. No examination of preceded the attack and the entire crew was lost, including a dummy which made the trip from shore to shore since the Elks League started. Chief Gunner John R. S. Ross made the greatest number of hits with a new machine gun his parting salvo being good for 132.

Dr. Maloney's boys tumbled four points out of the five of Captain Larkin but that team still retains its lead. There is a strong possibility if some thing happens, of their being supplanted for the championship, after having held first position for several months despite furious assaults. The closing matches in the schedule will be rolled next Thursday evening.

MADE MANY WARM FRIENDS

Mrs. Sarah J. Clark Prominent in O. E. C.

Although a resident of Quincy but a few years, Mrs. Sarah J. Clark, widow of Wilbur A. Clark, who died Wednesday in her 78th year, left many warm friends in this city who mourn her loss. Mrs. Clark, who was known as "Auntie" among her friends, came to Quincy from South Dacota, where she had resided for 35 years, and who enjoyed the distiction of being the second white woman to reside in that town.

While in Flandreau, Mrs. Clark became affiliated with the Order of Eastern Star, in which she took a deep interest. For four years she was the first worthy matron and for seven years the chaplain of her chapter. She was also grand matron of South Dakota, and most worthy grand chaplain of the GGeneral Grand Chapter of the United States and Canada. She was prominently identified with the Methodist church in her home town and since coming to Quincy has been affiliated with the Wollaston Methodist church.

She came to Quincy six years ago, since which time she has made her home with her sister Mrs. Paul Kribbs Since coming to this city she has been a member of Quincy Chapter Orede of the Eastern Star where she made many fast friends.

CLUB DISBANDS.

The Manet Social club confirmed a report in a previous edition of the Ledger by voting last evening to disband at the end of this month. A club action of the furniture will be held in a few days.

CONTROVERYS IS WAXING WARM

"Undaunted Five" Make Polite But Spirited Retort

The controversy over the relative merits of the bowling terms of the Gas Company and the post office employees is gradually assuming the aspects of a tempest in a tea pot. In the following communication and challenge, mention is made of "Allie," meaning A. J. LaCroix and "Johnny," meaning John Muir. The gauntlet thrown into the ring by the post office boys is stamped:—

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

In last night's edition of your paper we read with amused interest an account of the recent bowling match between the post office and gas company employees, said report emanating from and signed by five distinguished members of the latter team.

As several inaccuracies were contained therein, (unintentional we believe) we desire to submit a fair and impartial view of those games.

To anyone cognizant of the results of the recent games it is manifestly obvious that the post office clerks have demonstrated their superiority more than a few times, to say the least. In saying this we desire in no manner to detract from the ability of Johnny and his team, for when Allie's knee is not balky they can put up a stiff game.

However we feel it is our right to state the facts and as an assurance that we mean to maintain the honors which we have so rightfully won, Capt. Devlin and Bill Joyce can be consulted at any time in the near future, (excepting of course, Sunday nights, when Bill is otherwise engaged.)

The Undaunted Five

QUEEN ESTHER CIRCLE MEETS

Miss Edna and Miss Jessie Burke entertained the Queen Esther Circle of the Hall place M. E. church for the March meeting at their home on Willard street Thursday.

The program for the evening was postponed until the next meeting owing to the pressure of business.

The report of the treasurer showed all bills paid and a good balance in the treasury. A mite box opening was held and the results were very satisfactory. The committee appointed to secure a banner reported its work done and presented the banner. It is made of red felt, cut in the shape of a shield and bears the inscription "West Quincy Q. E. C." in gilt letters.

One new member was added. Already plans are being made toward raising the needed funds for next year's work.

The recent contest between the reds and blues enabled the Circle to more than meet its pledge to Student aid.

At the close of the business session the losing side in the recent contest furnished a supper for the winning side in which they were ably assisted by the hostess, Miss Edna Burke. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

The Queen Esther Circle, though only a recent organization in this church having been organized by Mrs. S. W. Coy last September has done splendid work during this, its first year of work. At Christmas time it packed a box of children's new garments and sent it to the East Boston Medical Mission.

In January the Circle presented an entertainment giving the scope of the work being done by the Woman's Home Missionary society. In February the Circle gave a Valentine party to the Knights of St. Paul in appreciation of the helpful assistance they gave at Christmas.

The Circle pledged fifteen dollars to help a Spanish girl in one of the Mission Schools. All of these bills have been easily and readily met, as well as the incidental expenses of organization and getting started in the work, and now has a snug balance in the treasury.

The Circle now has eighteen members and under the efficient direction and inspiration of Director Mrs. F. W. Fuller and President Mrs. P. S. Neldon are doing good work and manifesting good interest.

FIFTEENTH FIRE.

The central station went out at 2.02 this afternoon for a grass fire on Butler road. This was the fifteenth time the department has been called out since Thursday morning.

AMUSEMENTS

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The 100th performance of "Common Clay," Harvard prize play by Cleves Kinkead was celebrated last night at the Castle Square Theatre and souvenirs were presented to each patron. These were handsome booklets with photographs of the biggest scenes in the play. The enthusiasm of new Englanders over this play does not diminish. The presence of Lent has not effected the size of the audiences. The play bids fair to break all records in the history of John Craigs theatre. "Common Clay" to an extent has been made great by its actors. Miss Mary Young thrills her audiences as she depicts the struggles of Ellen Neal from poverty to renown. John Craig draws with subtle touches the sane, logical jurist with an unguessed past. William Carleton has won many friends with his part which contrasts so sharply the irresponsible college boy and the mature man. Seats are still selling four week in advance and it is probable that Mr. Craig will finish out the season with "Common Clay" and put it on in New York next season.

WILBUR THEATRE.

The problem now being discussed in Boston is how it is possible to crowd as much laughter as is occasioned by "A Pair of Sixes" in the short space of three hours. The average person may go a year without laughing as much or as heartily as he will at a single performance of this sensationally successful farce, which has been attracting all Boston and half of New England to the new and beautiful Wilbur Theatre.

Nothing seems to interfere with the prosperity of "A Pair of Sixes" in Boston. Shows come and shows go at the other theatres, but at the Wilbur this delightful farce continues to please huge and laughing audiences at every performance, although this is the twelfth week of its run.

An editorial in a Boston paper recently referred to the extraordinary success of "A Pair of Sixes," and undertook to explain that in times of stress, when newspapers are filled with stories of horror, and the public is met on every hand with sights and tidings to make one blue and despondent, the people craved for wholesome laughter, and that this play fills the much-needed want.

B. F. KEITHS.

Mrs. Leslie Carter, the Supreme American emotional artiste, and former star of "Du Barry," "The Heart of Maryland," "Adrea" and "Two Women," will be the headline attraction at B. F. Keiths Theatre the week of March 15th. Mrs. Carter will appear in a tabloid version of her most famous sucess, "Zaza" by David Belasco. It was in this great drama that Mrs. Carter became famous, and as adapted for vaudeville by her, "Zaza" has proved one of the greatest offerings of the kind ever staged. Mrs. Carter has surrounded herself with a superb company, including Hamilton Revelle, the distinguished English actor, as "Bernard Dufrene," and William Larenz as "Cascart." Her engagement is positively limited to one week only. Seats will go upon sale at nine o'clock Monday morning, March 8th. Mrs. Carter will be surrounded by a superb show of vaudeville headliners, including Morris Cronin and his troupe of Merry Men in a combination of black art, juggling and comedy boxing; Mr. and Mrs. Jack McGreevey, "The Village Fiddler and the Maid," in a series of lively and quaint comedy episodes. Evelyn Nesbitt will be the headliner the week of March 22.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

"The Third Party," the funniest farce the stage has ever had, with Taylor Holmes and Walter Jones heading a very capable cast, will start the third week of its limited engagement next Monday evening at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, where it has been keeping thousands of the playgoers in a riot of laughter for the past week.

If you have any worries and want diversion and three hours of solid laughter, take yourself to the Plymouth Theatre, where they guarantee that you will have at least a thousand laughs before the final curtain drops. It came here with the endorsement of six months' run in New York and the same length of time in Chicago. The Boston Evening Record said: "It is a cure for the blues, indigestion, politics, the ship bill, neutrality and the high cost of living. It will do more to drive out Old Man Melancholy than a blue bill, an increase in pay or a spring bonnet. It comes closer to rampant joyousness with full steam on and the safety valve tied down than anything this side of the headquarters of the laugh inventors. The man or woman who would not laugh a stitch in the side at "The Third Party" ought to take out permanent quarters in a black hack with the curtains down, and then shoot the horses, push the driver off the seat and swallow a pint of never-wake-up."

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The distinction of scoring the quickest and most substantial hit on record is conceded to the Andreas Dippel Opera Company in "The Lilac Domino," which is now in its third week, and continues to crowd the Majestic Theatre in Boston at every performance with a representative audience, including the leaders in society and music sets from all surrounding towns as well as Boston. The operetta, which no lover of music can afford to miss, contains more catchy and beautiful airs than have ever been presented in one production and twenty wonderful songs carry out the story. "Let the Music Play," "Lilac Domino," "I Call You Back to Me," "What Is Done You Never Can Undo," "Where Love Is Waiting," "Song of the Chimes," and "True Love Will Find a Way" are among the most popular numbers Cleanliness and simplicity have been the watchword of "The Lilac Domino" authors, and not an objectionable line can be found in its three dainty, wholesome acts, nor does this detract from the charm. The romantic story, interspersed with uproariously funny comedy, is one of the most pleasing that the public has been offered in many years, and is a happy combination of pretty faces catchy songs, clever dancing and beautiful scenic effects.

It is an enchanting musical operetta with a score that ripples and sways and floats and swells in a great variety of tempos, but always with melodic charm. Rarely has a light opera been given such handsome settings and excellent cast of singers

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Monday will mark the last week of Miss Ann Murdock in "A Girl of Today" at the Hollis street Theatre. It is to be regretted that Miss Murdock, Charles Frohman's newest star must terminate her engagement in Boston with her business at its height Engagement in a New York Theatre necessitates this action. Miss Murdock has a role in "A Girl of Today" which gives her full scope, and suits her admirably. Miss Murdock is good to look upon, with great eager blue eyes, a slender athletic figure, and on top of a well-poised head are masses of red-gold hair. Her voice is melodious, her diction clear, she is magnetic, very intelligent, and earnest in her work. Miss Murdock wears seven wonderful gowns in the play, some of her own creation. The play is an American comedy in four acts. The types are all native ones and exceedingly well-drawn. The story is very interesting, with the lighter comedy scenes cunningly blended with more dramatic ones. The dialogue is crisp and bright Mr. Frohman has provided a handsome production for the comedy. Boston has approved of Miss Murdock as a star, and also stamped its mark of approval on "A Girl of Today" as a good vehicle to exploit this newest Charles Frohman star.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Not only regular theatre goes, but school teachers and pupils will be interested to learn that the marvelous "Under The Sea" pictures, which have been given pages of publicity by the scientific journals and magazines all over the world, are now being exhibited at the Boston Theatre. Photographing under water and through water has always been considered an impossibility by scientific men as well as by photographers. But, thanks to the recently completed Williamson Submarine tube, the result of thirty years of experiments and labor, the motion picture photographer, sitting at ease in a submorine chamber of steel and glass fathoms under the ocean, turned the crank and photographed many of the wonders and beauties of the deep, never before seen by man. No such panorama of motion pictures was ever flashed on a screen until the Williamson Brothers, with their marvelous submarine inventions descended into the ocean in the travelogue of adventure the audience is taken on a 100 mile trip along the floor of the ocean to old Sam Salvador where Christopher Columbus discovered the Western world and it is easy for the spectators to imagine the Boston Theatre a huge submarine boat and the screen a crystal panel through which can be seen all the wonders and tragedies of the deep. Among the many strange and beautiful pictures are scenes showing native boys diving for coins; coral reefs among which lie sunken wrecks of ships of long ago; a deep sea diver unearthing buried treasures; a battle between two gigantic man-eating sharks and, as a thrilling and absolutely original climax, a fight to a finish between a man and a huge blue shark that is admittedly the most stirring encounter ever projected upon a screen. It is a trip no man ever made before and these pictures are absolutely revolutionary in the moving picture world.

In order to accommodate the thousands who are desirous of seeing these truly remarkable pictures, the management have arranged to exhibit them five times daily at 12 noon, 2.00, 4.30, 7.70 and 9 P. M. with two special performances on Sunday evening at 7 and 8.45.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The three act comedy "A Family Affair" which is to be presented in Music hall, Wednesday evening April 7th, promises to be one of the funniest ever seen in Quincy. Owing to the illness of H. E. Dow, who was to play the part of Dan Gillespie, Thomas McLay has been secured to play that part. Mr. McLay will best be remembered as Billy Jackson in the "Hoodoo."

The Senior basket ball teams will battle with the Cunningham Gym 1st and 2nd teams on Saturday evening, the first game starting at eight o'clock. Both these games should prove interesting as our teams are on edge and out to revenge themselves for the two games which the Cunningham boys took from them last Saturday evening. This being the final game of the season the boys are looking forward to a record crowd to turn out to see them play.

The Juniors will have both their first and second teams in action again on Saturday afternoon when they play their third game with the Mount Pleasant teams from East Weymouth. Each team has one game and as this is the deciding game our boys are looking for a victory.

The speaker to the boys at their meeting Saturday morning at nine o'clock will be County Boys' Work Secretary E. P. Conlon of Hyde Park Mr. Conlon is sure to bring a good talk to the boys as he has had considerable experience with boys. A large crowd should be out to hear him and as the invitation is extended to all the boys in Quincy whether members of the association or not our hall should be packed.

One of the first social clubs among the Juniors to be formed was organized Tuesday afternoon when the Carlisle team came together and selected their officers. It is planned to organize each of the teams into a social club meeting frequently for social times and by this means it is hoped that other things can be started for the boys which will prove of interest.

The theatre meeting for men this week will have as the speaker Fred L. Willis of Worcester. Mr. Willis should have a large number of men of Quincy out to hear him at three thirty as he is sure to have a message of interest. The Wollaston Cadet Band will again play from three to three thirty.

The Bible classes will meet as usual this afternoon and Sunday afternoon. The Sunday afternoon class enjoyed a fine walk last week getting back about six after visiting some places of interest.

The Juniors and Cadets are working hard on the floor these days getting ready for their annual exhibition Both classes are meeting at the same time and under the direction of Physical Director LaRose are learning the different drills.

The Women's auxiliary met this afternoon in the hall having an interesting meeting with Mrs E. S. Tead as the speaker. Reports were given which show a flourishing condition in the different departments in the auxiliary.

The first game of the series of three games between the Y. M C. A. and the Makaria first and second teams will be played March 20th. Both teams are sure of winning and have been practicing hard for the series.

SHE SWALLOWED IT.

The sweet young thing was being shown through the locomotive works. "What is that thing?" she asked, pointing with her dainty parasol.

"That," answered the guide, "is an engine boiler."

She was an up-to-date young lady, and at once became interested. "And why do they boil engines?" she inquired again.

"To make the engine tender," politely replied the resourceful guide.—Pathfinder.

Care of Hairbrush.

Where possible it is very much better to have the hair brushed by a second person, more especially where it is long and heavy. A woman can hardly carry her arm from the scalp to the full length of the hair, and it snarls and tangles until more is pulled out than is right.

There is also a great difference in the sort of brush used. One with bristles that are too stiff will scratch the scalp, often make it very sore and so cause loosening of the hair; one with bristles that are too soft will not be of much use in reaching the skin and stimulating the growth of new hair. A brush that is not perfectly clean will cause dandruff, an oily condition and effectually prevent a healthy growth. So, much attention should be paid to not only the quality, but the cleanliness as well as to the proper setting of the bristles of the brush used daily.

There is a splendid English brush with black bristles that seems to be almost perfect. The effect is to bring about a healthy glow on the scalp, while the hair is left soft and shining after a thorough brushing. Rather high priced, a good brush of this sort will cost over $2, but lasts for years if washed properly, so the cost may be considered worth paying.

The washing of hair brushes is very simple, yet a certain course must be followed: Tepid water with a good soap, the bristles well rubbed with another brush, a comb passed through and through so the bottom of the rows may be touched; two lathers, rinsing in warm water, then in cold, and a rubbing lightly with a towel that does not leave lint. These are simple rules.

The drying should be done by laying the brushes bristles down in a dry, warm place, but not on a radiator or in a hot sun. The heat of either will loosen the bristles. Where very dusty, as after the hair has been filled with dust from a trip or high winds, a teaspoonful of ammonia may be added to the soapy water. This effectually cuts out the greasy dust.

Reason will show that by laying the brushes down on the bristles the water will run out, whereas if placed on the back it will soak into the wood and in time loosen every bristle.

A little sifted cornmeal dusted into brushes and then brushed out often takes away the daily accumulation of dirt where a hairbrush is used constantly, thus saving too many washings. The very particular woman will be utterly confounded to note the appearance of a cloth used to wipe her hairbrush while she is going through her daily application. Where the dirt comes from is a question that can never be answered, but she will be convinced that the most particular care is needed every day if she wishes her hair to be free from dirt and her toilet appointments as fastidiously neat as she thinks they should be.

Bright Eyes.

Keeping the eyes bright is by no means a difficult matter. Every woman knows the value of bright, sparkling eyes as an asset to beauty. First avoid all eye strain. One of the greatest mistakes many women make is that of putting off the wearing of glasses long after they are needed. If you need glasses use them. There is no need to wear them constantly. Keep them for work.

Don't wake in a bright light or sleep facing the window. Have your bedroom window open, but the room dark.

Every morning and night wash out your eyes with a weak solution of boric acid, about one teaspoonful of boric powder mixed in six ounces of hot water and allowed to get cool. Apply this with an eye cup, and after one week's use the benefit will be felt and seen.

Beauty Hints.

Nothing restores a tired body and brain more completely than a refreshing bath and a change into fresh, clean clothing.

Get into the habit of keeping several changes of shoes and change your shoes every night when you come home. It is a great rest to tired feet.

Cold water is a splendid preventive of wrinkles, making the skin firm and smooth. The face should be washed in cold water every morning.

If those who perspire freely would use a little ammonia in the water they bathe in every day it would keep the flesh clean and sweet, doing away with any disagreeable odor.

About Wearing Veils.

A good cream applied to the face, carefully wiped off and followed with a good face powder is better than a veil on very cold days. The veil becomes moist from the breath. This causes the skin to chap and roughen, and it takes several days to get the skin back to a normal condition. Repeated chapping will make the skin coarse and florid.

Massage Cream.

A massage cream may be made as follows: Take three ounces of oil of sweet almonds, an ounce of lanolin, two drams of cucumber juice, two drams of white wax, two drams of spermaceti, thirty drops of tincture of benzoin and ten drops of oil of rose. Combine these and place in a jar for use.

VARIETY IN STYLES.

This Is the Keynote of Fashions For Spring and Summer.

The Russian is a dominant note for spring dress. This note is shown in the Russian blouse that buttons at the side with a high collar and a belted tunic. The skirt will be comfortably full, although cut on straight lines. The cartridge trimming is another feature. This is a row of tubing pleed at the bust line in slanting lines or at the belt line, as it is worn by the soldier.

Many long waisted models in coats have the Russian note, and especially good is this in material of crude colorings with plenty of green and black. The high Russian collar on separate coats and wraps is another feature.

Holland has contributed much to the fashion show. There is a full tunic that has the semblance of bloomers. There is a short velvet jacket. The full skirt has a fitted yoke to which the lower skirt is attached.

The far east has offered many gorgeous materials in silks and satins and crapes. These are to be used for evening wraps and gowns, and the long lines of the Japanese, with wide loose girdles and straight flat panels at the back are not to be ignored. The mandarin coat is again gaining favor, and in its Chinese beauty of color will afford many bright spots on summer evenings in the parade of the styles.

As for periods of history represented by their styles, they are legion. There seems to be a leaning to the time of the Bourbons, after the reign of Napoleon, when the quaint fashions with high waists, flowing skirts and general grace of line and color were the features. But do not think for an instant that this is a set rule. Variety is the word of the coming styles. In it lies the success of women in the great idea of dress.

CONSERVING ENERGY.

Fidgety People Waste Much Useful Nerve Force.

We all know fidgety people who cannot keep still, people of highly nervous temperaments, who must play with something while they talk. Such people possess an irresistible fascination for some folks. There is a woman who takes off her rings and balances them in a most ingenious way upon the tips of her fingers when she becomes particularly engrossed in conversation. To deprive her of her rings might be to take away her conversational ability.

Pencils, paper cutters, eyeglasses, bangles and beads are all among the play things of some people. We cannot picture them as talking without fingering some one of these articles. To see them absolutely quiet and saving their energy would be to see something not at all characteristic of them. Possibly we are entertained by their individuality and expect to see it displayed. It would be as hard for us to imagine a perfectly quiet and dignified person playing with trinkets as to imagine the other ones as sitting still or as being stately in their manner.

Although we are a nervous people, making many quick and unnecessary motions in our day's work and using up such amounts of energy as ought to keep us going much longer than we really go, we are not always a happy looking people. As you glance at the people you pass in the street you will see that the majority wear a constrained, troubled look. A really happy face is a rarity.

Black and White.

In fashions the touch of black is a recognized addition to a color scheme. The same is true of embroidery. Many a centerpiece or scarf that lacks tone may be improved by outlining the color design with black. This is especially recommended on the heavy linen and scrim covers where brilliant hues appear unfinished or need bringing out.

However, black outlining is very effective on the ordinary white linen centerpiece worked in plain white. One of these seen recently had a jewel pattern with conventional scrolls done all in white. The jewels and the scrolls were outlined with a thin black thread. The centerpiece was bordered with heavy white torchon, and the whole was very effective.

Mending Stockings.

Busy mothers, do not take the trouble to darn the big holes in the knees of your youngsters' stockings. Cut off the leg of the stocking below the shoe top, turn it around so the holes come under the knee, sew on the foot again, draw the worn part together with a few stout stitches and, behold, knees good as new. This will repay you for ten minutes' work.

Orange Pudding.

To make orange pudding take a pound of flour, three ounces of sugar and the grated peel of one orange. Mix these dry ingredients, then rub three ounces of butter into the mixture. Dissolve half a small teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a little milk and add it to the mixture; also a well beaten egg and the juice of the orange. Boil one and one-half hours.

NUTRITIOUS DRINK.

Barley water is a safe and cooling drink and is nutritious as well. Put into a pitcher one large tablespoonful of well washed pearl barley, pour over it two quarts of boiling water, cover and let stand until cold. Drain off the liquid, add half a cupful of sugar and a little nutmeg. If liked the juice of a lemon is a pleasant addition.

OUR PARENTS.

When Pa is Sick.

When pa is sick,
He's scared to death,
An' ma an' us
Just holds our breath.

He crawls in bed,
An' puffs an' grunts,
An' does all kinds
Of crazy stunts.

He wants "Doc" Brown,
An' mighty quick;
For when pa's ill,
He's awful sick.

He gasps an' groans,
An' sort o' sighs,
He talks s' queer,
An' rolls his eyes.

Ma jumps an' runs,
An' all of us,
An' all the house,
Is in a fuss.

An' peace an' joy
Is mighty skeerce—
When pa is sick,
It's somethin' fierce.

When Ma is Sick.

When ma is sick,
She pegs away;
She's quiet, though,
Not much t' say.

She goes right on
A-doin' things,
An' sometimes laughs,
Er even sings.

She says she don't Feel extry well,
But then it's just
A kind o' spell;

She'll be all right
Tomorrow, sure.
A good old sleep
Will be the cure.

An' pa, he sniffs,
An' makes no kick,
Fer women-folks
Is always sick.

An' ma, she smiles,
Let's on she's glad—
When ma is sick,
It ain't s' bad.

YACHTSMEN ARE INVITED GUESTS

Interesting Features on Bill at Kincaide Theatre

"Gertie," drawn by Windsor McKay, the celebrated cartoonist, and the "Exploits of Elaine," held the undivided attention of nearly 100 members of the Quincy Yacht club and their friends at the Kincaide theatre Thursday evening where they were the guests of Col. Henry L. Kincaide The house was well filled with an appreciative audience.

Elaine's exploit this week, while somewhat tamer in events leading to the final rescue by Craig Kennedy, the wonder detective, is the occasion for another escape by the Clutching Hand in which the possibilities of shadowgraphy are well illustrated.

Prince Napoleon, the world's smallest comedian, a native of Messina, Italy, 36 inches in height and 33 pounds in weight, heads the vaudeville bill. Before his appearance Prince Napoleon rolled three strings at the Wardwell alleys and managed to get 104 in his final.

Guy Bartlett & Co's novelty act, "The Rarebit Fiend and the Dream," present unusual mechanical effects in which a tremendous figure becomes animated. Moore and Field, featuring, "A Sponge" and "I Didn't Raise my Boy to be a Soldier" were the hit of the evening. Tanean and Claxton open the bill with a singing and dancing act somewhat out of the ordinary.

The bill closes with the performance Saturday evening.

WOODWARD SEMINARY OBSERVES FOUNDERS DAY

Impressive Exercises Mark 124th Anniversary of Donor's Birth

Could the portrait of Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, on the wall back of the platform, have come to life and could have looked down upon the assemblage that had gathered in Woodward hall Friday evening, to do honor to his natal day, the 124th anniversary of his birth at Cambridgeport, his countenance must have assumed a look of gratification, as he saw his desire, as expressed in his will, being fulfilled, for directly in front were gathered the girl students of the school, in all the freshness of their youth.

The back part of the assembly hall was given up to the parents and friends of the school, and their number was only limited by the capacity of the hall.

The program although not a lengthy one was one of exceeding interest. It opened with a processional, during which the students marched in and took the seats arranged for them directly in front of the platform. The first part of the program included music under the direction of John D. Buckingham, the numbers being "My Bonnie Bairnie" an old Hebridean air, Waltz, "Birds of Spring" and "Ave Maria." The closing number was a piano solo, Polonaise E major, by Miss Amy Fallon, '12.

Part two, included a series of pantomime tableaux, of scenes from colonial life. Scene one was "Puritans Going to Church." The story was told by Grace Laing, '18, and as she recited the story, the curtain was pulled back disclosing a group of sturdy Puritans going to church, the men with their guns under their arms escorting the dames. The characters were impersonated by Gertrude Bullock '15, Marion Nicoll '15, Hannah Sandberg '15, Florence Anderson, '16, Beatrice Brown '16, Evelyn Macfarland, '16, Marie Poland, '16, Helen Thompson, '16, Evelyn MacKenzie, '17 Marion Peterson '17, Reba Osgood '18, and Lillian Schenkelberger, '18.

Scene two was The Red Man's Welcome," and was given in two pantomimes. Part one was introduced by Mary MtcKenzie, '18, It showed an Indian camp. At the left was a wigwam with its guard, while at the right were two Puritans approaching with their peace offering of beads. The Indian chieftain in pantomime to the words spoken by Miss MacKenzie, made known his welcome and escorted the Puritans to the wigwam, where seated in a circle the pipe of peace was passed.

Scene three showed the Puritans seated in front of the wigwam, when there entered ten Indian squaws, who executed an Indian peace dance, which ended with the well known Indian war hoop as they danced off the platform.

Those to take part in the first scene were Marguerite Hunter '15, Emma Kelley '15, Marian Hunter '15 Helen Miller '15, Mabel Doring '15, Catherine Griffin '16, Dorothy Sprague '17, and Alice O'Connell '18. In scene two were Gertrude Callahan '15, Julia Coyle '15, Alice McDonald '15, Annie Callahan '16, Beatrice Lamont '17, Edna Milne '17, Marion Blaine '18, Mary Chouinard '18, Alice O'Connell '18, and Helen Swanson 18.

The next tableau represented the courtship of Miles Standish. Pantomime one was "John Aldens Mission" and was introduced by Alice Powers '16. The curtain being pulled aside discloses Governor Miles Standish strutting back and forth, while seated at a table writing is John Alden. In

ORGANIZE JUNIOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

Boys Have Wagon Well Equipped For Fighting Small Fires

PUT OUT 3 FIRES

A dozen Upland road boys have organized a Junior Fire Department and are prepared to protect the thousands of dollars worth of real estate in that section from grass fires started by sparks from passing locomotives Their fine work so far has made it unnecessary to call the Central station on two occasions.

The department maintains two stations, one at the Adams street end of Upland road and the other at the Quincy station end. The former responded to its first call outside its district Friday afternoon and extinguished a fire in the meadow on the Brooks Adams estate.

The fire started from engine sparks, on the Newport avenue corner and burned over a large square. It was travelling rapidly toward the houses on Willow avenue when stopped through the efforts of the boys.

Herbert Shaugnessey has been elected chief and Bert Reid captain. Francis Johnson is the lieutenant.

The idea grew out of the attempts of the women folks in that section to fight a fire which threatened several houses and which was extinguished only after they called the boys of the neighborhood.

Two companies were formed as a result of the call but since then both have been merged into one. The department has a well equipped wagon which carries five fire buckets, a small ladder for fighting tree fires, and 75 feet of garden hose. The boys have secured a reducing hydrant coupling and say that on occasion they will attach their hose and turn on a stream without awaiting the permission of the regular department.

There are ten call men available and all ride bicycles. Attached to the frames of each machine are two brooms. The boys have consistently scouted throughout the neighborhood and all the old brooms have been turned over to them. The scouts answer all bell alarms and in case of grass, woods or brush fire readily lend their assistance.

SERVICES FOR MRS. CLARK.

Members of Quincy chapter, O. E. S., attended the funeral services of Mrs. Sarah J. Clark, a prominent member in the order, which took place in the Greenleaf block Friday afternoon where the deceased made her home with her sister, Mrs. Paul Kribs.

Rev. George M. Bailey of the Wollaston M. E. church officiated at the services. The body was taken to Littleton, N. H., for burial.

IS ON DUTY 16 HOURS

AUTO SHOW TO CLOSE TONIGHT

Biggest and Best In Career of 13 Years

Quincy has scored another victory. The Boston Automobile Show will close this evening, after the largest attendance and the most successful business in its thirteen years. Over 75,000 people were in attendance last evening, and over 5,000 people were held outside the doors, when Mayor Campbell was compelled to order the closing of the doors shortly after eight o'clock.

A number of Quincy people were there and two sales were closed with prominent Quincy citizens. Several city officials were among those present.

It was "Governor's Night" and Governor Walsh, escorted by several members of his staff, visited the show as the personal guests of Manager Campbell, and Quincy's snappy mayor was on the job looking to their comfort The Governor visited every car at the show and was entertained at lunch by Mayor Campbell.

Tonight closes the show. Boston's great show has always been a leader, and this year's is the best ever. A large attendance will be cared for tonight.

Pastor of Hall Place M. E. Church Plans to Return to West

ANNOUNCEMENT SUNDAY

Rev. Percy S. Neldon, pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church is preparing to return to the west where he was connected with religious work previous to his assignment to the Quincy church.

Formal announcement that he has asked the New England Conference to transfer him to the Central Ohio conference will be made at a quarterly meeting to be held at the church Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Neldon came to Quincy a year ago and has done much to upbuild his church. Rev. Dillon Bronson, presiding elder, will attend the conference. He will administer infant baptism and Holy Communion at the regular services.

SIX MORE FIRE ALARMS TODAY

Six times the fire department has been called out this morning by still alarms. The first was at 8.30 when the Quincy Point apparatus responded for a woods fire between South street and Quincy avenue.

At 10.20 the Atlantic auto went out for a grass fire on Vane street.

At 11.42 West Quincy apparatus went out for a fire in the woods between Centre and Granite streets.

At 12 o'clock West Quincy also went out for a grass fire on Common street and again at 1 o'clock for a fire on Buckley street.

At 12.35 the Wollaston apparatus as well as the auto chemical and steamer from the central station responded to a still alarm for a fire on the roof of Brasee's building on Newport avenue. It appears that men were burning some rubbish in the furnace and the sparks alighting on the roof started a fire. The fire station was telephoned and the apparatus responded. Not knowing how serious the fire might be Chief Billings thought it wise also to send the steamer down. The damage will not exceed $25.

WILL ENFORCE LAW ON MAKING FIRES

Firemen Have Been Kept Busy Responding to Alarms For Grass Fires

The past twelve days have certainly been busy ones for the fire department for since the first of March they have responded to 74 calls, an average of over six each day. Friday was perhaps the busiest day the department has had, for from 8 o'clock in the morning until midnight the department was continually on the jump. Friday's Ledger recorded all of the calls up to 3 o'clock. After that there were a number of still alarms and one bell alarm.

At 2.32 combination 2 extinguished a grass fire on Cleverly court and at 3.20 a grass fire on Chubbuck street and at 4.34 a grass fire on Washington street.

At 4.50 the central station auto chemical went to a woods fire on Quincy avenue and ten minutes later to a grass fire on the same street.

At 6 o'clock Hose 3 and Ladder 3, companies extinguished a grass fire on Willard street, near the Metropolitan Parkway.

The most serious fire of the day came at 6.20 when an alarm was sounded from Box 723 for a fire in the house of John McKenzie at 32 Claremont avenue. The fire started in a closet on the upper floor and worked into a sleeping room where a bed took fire and was practically destroyed. The department, however, confined the fire to this one room although it worked upwards through the walls and required some cutting away. It is estimated that the damage will not exceed $200.

In many cases it is known that the grass fires have been set, not with the intention of doing damage of calling ou the fire department but to destroy rubbish and dead grass. Several parties who were warned that it was against the rules of the Fire Hazard Commission said that they did not care if it was that they could continue to build all the fires they desired.

This morning Deputy Murphy of the fire hazard commissioner's office came to Quincy and after consultation with Chief Billings, it was determined to begin at once a strict enforcement of the rule prohibiting the building of bon fires.

It is perhaps not generally understood, but no person is permitted to build a bon fire without permission from the Chief Engineer of the Fire department. The rule provides that no bon fire shall be built within 100 feet of a dwelling house, except upon ploughed land and not within two hundred feet from wood or timber land without a permit from the Chief Engineer. This rule is a general one and includes the city departments as well as private citizens.

Oftentimes the street department men have raked up dead leaves in the streets and then burnt them in the street gutters. This now is prohibited if the place is within 100 feet of a dwelling, or within 200 feet of wood or timber land.

Chief Billings said this morning that he had notified the police department to enforce this rule to the letter and from now on violators will be brought into court. Chief Billings said that this was no idle threat, but that the first party caught building a bon fire would be hailed into court.

REHEARSALS ARE IN PROGRESS

Over at Harvard the Pi Eta boys, with their annual theatricals now only ten days off, are thanking their lucky stars that they were not "born" girls. In fact the last week has served to arouse considerable sympathy among them for unfortunates of the opposite sex, whom convention has ruled shall wear dresses with forty-eleven hooks—all of them in the back. On the other hand their sympathy is more or less impaired, for why, if the girls must have so many hooks on their dresses, should they insist that they be placed in a position where they can neither be seen nor reached?

The club house today offers an amusing spectacle. Winsome chorus "girls" in low-necked dresses lounge in the living room with ugly pipes in their mouths or cigarettes tilted between their rouged lips. Down in the pool room, charming "maidens" stretch their bare arms across the tables or balance their legs on the corners in an endeavor to pull off difficult shots. Kings and princesses in royal attire stalk through the corridors.

This motley group, which constitutes the undergraduate members of the club, is working day and night under the direction of Coach Dave Lord, evolving the latest steps for the musical numbers of "Robin the Robber." The leading part, of Robin, the chief of the robbers, is played by Paul Blackmur, son of Atty. Paul R. Blackmur of this city. He is also the author of the play. John Pfaffmann, another Quincy boy in the cast, appears in the comedy role of Rabbit, the moving-picture man.

NEWSBOYS' MEETING.

The big mass meeting of the Quincy Newsboys will take place at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Wilson hall instead of in the Y. M. C. A. hall which is engaged for other purposes. Among the invited guests are the local publishers, editors and erporters. A. N. LaBercqeu will discuss how the club will make better citizens.

TO ENFORCE THE LAW.

The alarming number of grass fires during the last few days is cause for action. We are glad to note that action will be taken.

The law forbids building a fire within 100 feet of a dwelling house except upon ploughed land, and within 200 feet of wood or timber land except with the permission of the chief of the fire department. The law has been violated numerous times recently. Since the first of the month the fire department has made 74 runs many because of grass fires.

Any such number is beyond all reason and we are glad to note that the fire department and the police department are determined to enforce the law.

Before many citizens can be made to realize that the law means just what it says prosecution will doubtless be necessary. Undoubtedly despite the many warnings which have been given there will doubtless be a number of obstinate persons who will disregard the warning and the law. Such persons cannot rightfully protest if they are brought into court. We are convinced that the authorities are going to enforce the law and thus prevent many fires similar to those in the past twelve days.

A PRAISEWORTHY ACTION.

The action of the boys of the Upland road section in organizing a Junior Fire department is commendable. Boys have doubtless been responsible for several of the grass fires which have been so abundant lately That a dozen or so boys realize the dangers of such thoughtlessness and have organized to do their best to stamp it out is decidedly encouraging It is a practical exemplification of a sincere civic spirit which Quincy so much needs and which at last seems to be slowly developing.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

The lower branch of the state legislature decisively defeated the bill to abolish the death penalty. Although the list of petitioners asking the abolition of the extreme penalty was the longest and most impressive ever presented to the state legislature on that subject it was defeated by the overwhelming vote of 90 to 23.

The pros and cons of capital punishment have been the subject of debate, in school and out, for many years. The advocates of abolition have often been overmuch inclined to emphasize the humanitarian side. Often it seems to us, they have failed to reach the root of the question.

The reason for punishment, whether that punishment be capital or a fine in police court, is primarily for the protection of society. The welfare of the individual offender is of secondary importance. Some offences are so grave that police court fines are not sufficient protection to society The offender must be placed so that he can not injure society. A murderer must not walk at large. Further the punishment must be of sufficient severity to serve as a deterrent to crime.

Is the death penalty the form of punishment which will best protect the community from murder and murderers?

Capital punishment is unquestionably severe and it should serve to warn and restrain other criminally inclined individuals from committing the greatest crime against society. But there is one factor which is usually overlooked: the difficulty of securing the conviction of a person when his punishment will be death.

Capital punishment might serve the purpose of protecting the community if it could be made effective. Experience has proved pretty conclusively that it can not be made effective. In Massachusetts as numerous instances have showed it is nearly impossible to induce a jury of men to send a murderess to the electric chair. Those who studied the circumstances of the Eaton case knew from the beginning that the chance of convicting Mrs. Eaton of first degree murder were exceedingly remote. However strong a chain of circumstantial evidence might be linked by the district attorney there was a very slim chance of finding twelve men who by their voice would bring the extreme penalty upon a woman. It was the same in the Ettor case. Dist. Atty. Attwill never had the slightest chance of sending Ettor. Giovannitti, and Caruso to the electric chair.

So long as the criminal evidence often is, of necessity, in large part circumstantial the death penalty will never be the effective punishment and deterrent to crime which it should be. Sending a defendant to serve a term of life imprisonment gives an opportunity for rectifying the mistake of a jury if new evidence arises. The jury knows this and the jury knows, on the other hand, that with capital punishment a mistake can never be rectified.

MRS. ROCKEFELLER DEAD

Wife of Financier and Capitalist Had Long Been Ill

Tarrytown, N. Y., March 13.—Mrs. Laura C. Rockefeller, wife of John D. Rockefeller, died at the Rockefeller country home at Pocantico Hills, just outside of Tarrytown, where she has been ill of pernicious anaemia for some time.

Neither Mr. Rockefeller nor his son, John D. Jr., was at Pocantico Hills when Mrs. Rockefeller passed away. Both are at Ormonde, Fla.

Mrs. Rockefeller before her marriage was Miss Laura Spellman of Cleveland. She was born in 1839 and was her husband's junior by two months. She and Mr. Rockefeller were married in Cleveland in September, 1864.

They had four children, one son and three daughters. The son is John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The living daughters are Alta, who was married to E. P. Prentice in 1901, and Edith, who was married to H. F. McCormick in 1895.

Mrs. Rockefeller loved a quiet home life, was deeply religious, and was but little known to the outside world. She had no liking for society beyond the little circle in which she lived.

LOCKED UP FOR NIGHT

Jury In Thaw Case Engages In Lengthy Deliberation

New York, March 13.—After having deliberated for more than four hours, the jury in the case of Harry K. Thaw and four co-defendants, on trial charged with conspiracy, had failed late last night to reach a verdict.

In his charge to the jury the presiding justice said the question of Thaw's sanity should enter into the case only insofar as he might be shown to have a mental capacity and the intention to enter into a criminal act.

At 11:20 o'clock the jury was ordered locked up for the night and a recess of court was declared until today.

POTATO MEN ENTER NOT GUILTY PLEA

Alleged Violators of Anti-Trust Act Freed In $1000 Each

Boston, March 13.—In the United States district court pleas of not guilty were entered for Carl C. King, John M. Hovey, Clarence A. Powers, Edward H. Doyle and H. W. Sylvester when arraigned upon an indictment charging conspiracy in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act in relation to potatoes grown in Aroostook county, Me.

It was requested that the defendants be allowed to go on their personal recognizance in $1000 each, to which the court assented.

It is claimed by the government that the business of numerous receivers, shippers and agents was destroyed by the alleged unlawful methods practised by the five men named in the indictment.

THE ANGLE TRIAL

Complaint Is Amended and Prisoner Pleads Not Guilty

Bridgeport, Conn., March 13.—When the trial of Mrs. Helen M. Angle for manslaughter was adjourned for the week the state had nearly completed the presentation of evidence in support of its allegation that Mrs. Angle caused the death of Waldo R. Ballou at Stamford.

The state attorney submitted an amendment to the complaint against Mrs. Angle which he said was designed to make it more complete. Among other things this provided for the insertion of the words "and with certain instruments to the state's attorney unknown."

The amendment was allowed by the court. Mrs. Angle was called to plead to the amended complaint and entered a plea of not guilty.

Held Up For Second Time

Boston, March 13.—Just five weeks after being held up in his market at 109 Blue Hill avenue Peter Harroutin was again held up by three armed men, robbed of $45 by a fourth and locked in the refrigerator. Only after crying out and pounding on the wall was he liberated from his temporary prison.

TO REPEAT "BOOM QUINCY" SCHEME

It requires a man of the calibre of Herman F. McIntire to start something doing and it will not be surprising to learn that although home from the South, where he spent the winter, but a few days he has begun to get down to business.

Mr. McIntire, it will be remembered was one of the instigators of the scheme last September to boom Quincy as a residential city, and previous to Labor day every Boston newspaper as well as the Quincy newspapers contained large advertisements setting forth the advantages of Quincy as a residential section. As a result of the boom thus started many people were induced to come to this city to look us over and Quincy gained a number of new families.

Although the expense of the advertising was upwards of $300 which was contributed by the local real estate and business men, it was figured out that it was money well expended.

Mr. McIntire believes that the advertising should be repeated at least twice a year, in the spring and fall With this in view he has already commenced interviewing the real estate men and merchants and as he has found them very responsive to the scheme the advertising will be run at an early date.

Quality-Compare Prices

The Goodrich Tire, like the trained athlete is all brawn and muscle—no fat

THE old Olympic Game promoters were great for what we call "form."

Symmetry, proportion, soundness and proper balance out-bid bulging muscles for favor—yes, and out-won, too, just as they will today.

Mere bulk never was synonymous with endurance—and the truth of this statement drives home with a bang, when you apply it to tires.

IF thick, heavy tires were the last word in tire construction, we could wipe out of existence a Goodrich Research and Test Department employing seventy people. We would take off the road a battalion of ten automobiles, that run twenty-four hours a day and every day in the year, grinding tires of all makes to pieces, just for the sake of information to us and eventual economy to the user of Goodrich Tires.

There is where we learn to cut out of a tire the material which gets the user nothing.

Of course, when we stripped tire price lists of their padding—fictitious values—we expected rivals to say we had stripped our tires.

IT was their only "come-back." They had to say that, in stripping down prices to the point where they were fair to dealer and consumer and left no room for injurious price-cutting tactics, we had stripped our tires of some quality, too.

THE Goodrich Tire, like the trained athlete, is all brawn and muscle—no fat. It represents an achievement—the ability to cut out the extra costs of manufacture, the extra costs of labor, of extra, needless material, and to give you the best, long-mileage, high-standard tire in the world.

There are padded tires as well as padded price lists.

Don't pay for padding.

Now don't forget this—we are talking in the main about Goodrich Safety Tread Tires, for they represent ninety per cent of our factory output for resale.

Furthermore, while we have put the padded prices on smooth tread tires on the run, the evil of padded prices on non-skid tires still is in evidence, as shown in table below:

Note the following table of comparative prices on non-skid tires. Columns headed "A," "B," "C" and "D" represent four highly-advertised tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES "A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30x3	$ 9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30x3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
36x4½	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.

Dr. Gallagher kindly loaned and operated his lantern so that the illustrated lecture was a great success. Many of the slides showing actual travel of a party along the western coast of Norway to the North cape were quite unusual to an American but very beautiful. Mr. George H. Holbrook and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Arnold of the Penniman School Association had charge of the affair.

SMART COAT.

High Waisted and With a Flaring Skirt Is Girl's Garment.

ATTRACTIVE COAT FOR YOUNG GIRL.

The twelve-year-old girl will find this coat very much to her liking. It is high waisted, with a wide belt of the same material and a covered buckle of blue moire silk. The collar and cuffs are also of moire silk.

White shoes and stockings are worn with this pretty spring creation, which shows also, as does the companion illustration, the liking this season for black and white.

Worn with this coat is a blue silk and straw hat trimmed with cherries.

HOME DECORATION.

Lace Is Important In House Adornment, So 'Tis Said.

Lace assumes more and more an important place in the domain of home furnishings. It is so important that upholsterers have to employ lacemakers and are obliged to make lace purchases on a considerable scale.

Among other things, pianos and windows are draped with lace.

The renaissance combines with lace of quite modern origin. And combining with all and second to none in fashion or effect is the old fashioned crochet. The present taste for crochet denotes a remarkable revival in this kind of thing.

Another revival besides it and making common cause with house and especially drawing room decorations is the equally old fashioned netting. For long years past this species of handwork has been left almost exclusively to fishermen and their industrious wives.

It served for fishing nets, and that was about all. But now it is coming back as fast as it can to the place it occupied, let us say, a hundred years ago, in the repertoire of fancy work for women.

Then was the time when dainty slipper cased feet were put forward and used in the service of the kind of fancy work known as knitting. Now machinery does a great deal of the work which human fingers, aided by the foot, used to do.

But whether wrought by fingers or machinery, it remains a fact that old fashioned netting is a distinct revival and that its presence in drawing rooms throws an air of fashion around them. The effects of embroidery upon it are now more artistic than of yore, nature as well as pictures often serving as models.

Spider Web Embroidery.

The new spider web embroidery is charming. The webs are used for backgrounds of floral designs, bright colored dragon flies and the like and sometimes stand out alone with only the residing spider upon them. The embroidered webs are alarmingly and delightfully natural, being usually of pale gray. They may be made in any color that you prefer, however, and a beautiful effect can be obtained by such a design in different shades of delft blue, the lightest shade being used for the webs. Spider web embroidery is being used upon luncheon sets, bureau sets and occasionally upon sofa pillows.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Boudoir caps have large bows made of wide ribbon.

Organdie will be a great favorite in cotton materials.

Simplicity is the keynote of the new shirt waist styles.

Dainty muslin collars, berthas and ruffles, recalling the mid-Victorian days, are among novel neckwear for spring.

New crocheted scarfs are being done with irregular patterns which suggest the art nouveau designs that come from Vienna.

Points for Mothers

Children's Clubs.

At about the age of nine or ten the rapidly developing social instinct of the child lights on the "club" idea. This is the beginning of secret societies. If taken in hand and properly treated this demand for social life can be made most educative.

Little girls' clubs are so easy to conduct that it must indeed be a hard hearted mother who, having once had the plan suggested to her, could refuse to give one afternoon a week to her young daughter.

The size of the club may vary as found desirable. Five are enough to have a pleasant time together. Twelve are really all one person can handle.

The club must have a name. The children are full of ideas on this subject. Sunshine Band, Happy Hour club, Busy Bees, Flower society and Helping Hands are a few of the names usually suggested. It may or may not be wise to have a president or club dues. Each individual leader will have to decide this for herself. A club badge, even if it be only a bow of the favorite color ribbon, is a source of great pleasure to little ones.

The object of the club will necessarily vary with the tastes of the children and the possibilities of the locality.

Game circles and dancing classes are always pleasant. Glee clubs are, where the leader is a capable musician, the greatest success of all. The concert which the small members give is an event of which the parents never cease to talk.

When Little Folks Are Ill.

A hot fomentation is the very best of all remedies for a really bad "tummy" ache and is so safe that whatever the cause of the upset it can do no harm.

Put the small patient to bed and give a dose of castor oil.

Take two yards of flannel, a large square of oil silk and some wadding.

Cut the flannel in half and tear one of the pieces into two strips, joining up the ends to make a long, wide bandage.

Place a towel across a large basin and put the whole yard of flannel, folded in three, into the towel and pour on boiling water.

Get some one to take one end of the towel, wring as dry as possible, lift out the flannel, hold to the air for a moment to cool down slightly, then slowly drop it on to the little sufferer's abdomen; not too quickly, as it may be too hot to bear; put a layer of cotton wool on top, cover with the oil silk and quickly bandage round and round with the long strip of flannel.

This will probably very quickly relieve the pain. It can remain on till the morning (unless the pain continues, when another one should be applied), but great care must be taken not to let the little one get a chill.

If the pain is not very severe you may apply a hot water bottle.

Toys and the Imagination.

When you have put into a child's hands an extremely elaborate toy it cannot and does not satisfy his imagination. He will play for a whole day with a train made of chairs, because imagination enters the game, the armchair is an engine, the sofa is a sleeping car, another armchair is the baggage car.

If you give him a perfect thing his imagination is not exercised; there is no part for it to take in the game, there is nothing to be done with the mechanical model except to break it open and see how it works. Indeed, more summary methods are sometimes attractive. A little boy of four years old, to whom an elaborate working model of a motor car had been presented, after watching it work for a few minutes, took it up in his hand and hurled it to the ground with a smile of satisfaction. It was the only thing he could think of doing with it.

That is why the hoop or the train of chairs or the rough and grotesque toy train will always give more real pleasure than the most elaborate machinery that can be conceived, that is why the rag doll or the woolly lamb will always lie nearer the heart's affections than the most wonderfully equipped and elaborately clothed French doll.

When a Child Should Walk.

Sometimes young mothers are worried because their babies of a year old or more do not seem inclined to walk. There is really nothing to be worried about.

A child will walk directly its legs are strong enough, and when that time comes, short of tying him up, you won't be able to keep him off his legs if he wants to use them.

No young child should be upon its feet before it shows a decided desire to go upon them. To put it on its legs before this time will not strengthen them at all and may result in deformed legs.

If a child a year old makes no effort to walk it is simply because its legs are not yet fit for walking. Let it alone. Give it plenty of fresh air, plenty of good milk, an egg every day or so, a slightly warm bath once a day, using soap sparingly; plenty of sleep and plenty of opportunity for "kicking exercise" on a rug and it will "find its feet" before long.

pantomime Miles makes known his love for Priscilla and although himself in love with Priscilla for friendship's sake John goes on his mission to plead for Miles.

The second pantomime shows Priscilla at the spinning wheel and while busy with her thoughts," John Alden enters and makes known his misson. Priscilla rises and smiles coyily as the introducer says "Why don't you speak for yourself John." Of course John takes the hint.

Gertrude Bullock '15, impersonated Miles Standish, Marie Poland '16, John Alden, and Lillian Schenkelberger '18, Priscilla.

The wooing of Dorothy Quincy which followed was introduced by Margaret MacLeod '16. The scene showed Dorothy seated sewing in one of the rooms of the Quincy Mansion. She hears footsteps and rises as John Hancock enters. His welcome is a warm one, but while pleading his cause the approach of the red coats is announced. John Hancock quickly escapes as the two red coats enter and are told by Dorothy to search where they will. Of course their search is fruitless and they take their departure. John Hancock enters shortly after and this time Dorothy places her heart and hand in his keeping.

Those in the tableau were Anna Weston '15, Elvira Backman '15, Katherine Horgan '15, Dorothy Hall '17, and Mabel Jacobson '17.

The last tableau on the program was "The Colonial Minuet" introduced by Doris Peterson '18. Those who executed the dance were Anna Dinegan, '15, Doris Frazier '15, Helen Moulton '15, Edith Bixby 16, Isabel Crane 16, Maria Schenkelberger 16, Roxana Schenkelberger '17 and Ruth Whiton '17. This scene was a remarkably pretty one and finely executed.

The last scene, which was however not on the printed program, showed in one group all those that had taken part in the several tableaux.

It is hardly necessary to add that the various numbers were warmly received and that the evenings entertainment was a most delightful one.

SERVICES FOR MRS. EGGLETON

The funeral of Mrs. Maude B. Eggleton, wife of G. Hillman Eggleton was held this afternoon at her home at 70 Chestnut street. Services were conducted by the Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Bethany Congregational church. There were many floral remembrances from relatives and friends. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Mrs. Eggleton was a daughter of Mrs. Isabella and the late William Y. Cameron of Quincy tsreet. She leaves a mother, husband and a sister, Mrs. Thompson B. Crane. Mrs. Eggleton was born in Eureka, California and came to Quincy in her infancy, attended the Adams School, Quincy High School and graduated from Hickox's Shorthand School.

She was married Feb. 2, 1906 to George Hillman Eggleton of Philadelphia. During their married life they had one daughter Esther, who lived but a few days. They recently returned from Seattle, Washington, where Mr. Eggleton looked after interests of the Electric Boat Company. She was a member of the Congregational Church in Seattle, and very active in the work of the societies connected with the church. Mrs. Eggleton had a quiet unassuming manner and a pleasing personality that charmed all who knew and many loved her. She was a devoted wife and daughter, and will be greatly missed by a large circle of relatives and friends.

SCHOOL LEAGUES WILL ORGANIZE

Outlook Bright For Good Base Ball Season

The grammar school pupils have commenced spring practice and before many days the teams will have organized for the season.

The athletic committee, Dr. J. Gardiner Smith, David H. Goodspeed and L. Woods, will meet Tuesday evening to consider the rules and schedule of the coming season. It is probable that there will be no changes in the rules.

The outlook for a banner six weeks is bright and as last year the schools will be divided into two leagues, the winners of each to play a post season series for the city championship.

Considerable interest is being manifested by adults in the formations of the teams, particularly in the Norfolk Downs section where the victorious Massachusetts Fields team comes from That organization gives promise of again going through the year in fine style.

SPECIAL FOLLOWS ROLLOFF.

George White and William Larandeau clashed in a special at the City Square alleys Friday evening which was arranged on the spur of the moment and which returned White a winner over the West Quincy roller. Both had tied with 286 for first place in the regular rolloffs and rolled an extra one which White won 98 to 83. By agreement the winner was given first and second prize. Breen was third with 285 and Melendy fourth with 284. It was the first time this season that four men in competition came within one of each other in fighting for position. There were a score of bowlers who rolled.

AMERICAN FLAG OVER HIS HOME

Fails to Protect McManus From Zapatistas' Bullets

IS KILLED IN MEXICO CITY

Post Commander Promises Punishment and Reparation In Accordance With Demand From Washington—Incident Not Considered Due to Antipathy Toward Foreigners

Washington, March 13.—Encouraging advices telling of the relief of the food famine in Mexico City through the evacuation of the capital by the forces of General Obregon, the Carranza commander, were beclouded by the news that on the entry of the Zapata troops John B. McManus, an American citizen, was shot down in his home, the door of which had been sealed with the coat of arms of the United States, and over which flew the Stars and Stripes.

Instant demand was made by the Brazilian minister, on behalf of the United States government, for the crime. After a conference between President Wilson and his cabinet, Secretary Bryan telegraphed the Brazilian minister approving of the action he had taken and adding a demand for reparation to the family of the victim.

The minister was instructed to insist on the early punishment of the offenders and to impress upon the post commander at Mexico City, General Salazzar, the seriousness with which the American government viewed the occurrence.

The general promised that the demands of the United States would be promptly met.

The killing of McManus at first alarmed the foreigners, but when it became apparent that the attack on McManus was an isolated case and that assurance had been given for the protection of foreigners generally the tension was relieved.

The Brazilian minister reported at length in several dispatches on the murder. The motive for the crime, he explained, was undoubtedly revenge for the killing of two Zapata soldiers by McManus when their forces last left Mexico City.

The minister said that when the Zapatistas withdrew several weeks ago, after the departure of General Gutierrez, some of them attempted to loot the home of McManus. The latter stood on his doorstep and, though it was never definitely established who fired the first shot, when the attackers fled because of the arrival of Carranza forces, two were left behind dead.

Apprehensive of what might be his fate on the return of the Zapata forces, McManus induced the Brazilian minister to seal his door with the coat of arms of the United States and hoisted an American flag over his home.

Apparently, the minister reported, McManus was killed by a simultaneous volley, for the shots were fired from a short distance and his hat was filled with bullet holes. Previously the American had taken precautions to send his wife and family to the home of friends and no one, so far as is known, witnessed the shooting.

The killing of McManus, coming after the serious developments in the situation in Mexico City of the last week, increased apprehension here in official quarters for the safety of foreigners. During Obregon's occupation of the city a Swedish subject and four Spaniards were killed.

Obregon's troops, according to the official dispatches, left in good order and the Brazilian minister remarked that evidently the Carranza commander was impressed by the tone of the American note. In view of this report the American government, it was said, probably would make no representations to the Carranza government. At first it was supposed that the killing of McManus occurred through a lack of protection to foreigners by the departing forces.

The incident was regarded by high officials as an isolated case arising out of personal difficulties between McManus and the Zapatistas and not due to any general antipathy toward foreigners or intended attack on them as a whole.

SOLD "LUCKY STONES"

Fraud In Use of Mails Is Charged Against "Captain" Rand

Boston, March 13.—"Captain" Walter I. Rand, known as the "lucky stone" man, appeared in the United States district court and gave bail in the sum of $2500 to answer to a secret indictment returned against him on the charge of fraudulent use of the mails.

The defendant has an office in this city. It is alleged he has been conducting the alleged illegal business for about sixteen years, and last year his sales of "lucky stones" at $1 each amounted to about $33,000.

In January he sent out more than 100,000 circulars and letters all over the country, setting forth the remarkable results that have accrued from carrying a stone.

Rand, who is more than 60 years old, claims to have discovered the "lucky stones" while on the island of Ceylon, India, in the course of his travels around the world.

HEALTH OFFICIAL REMOVED

Mayor Finds Alarming Conditions In Many Boston Buildings

Boston, March 13.—Mayor Curley raided the North End on a hunt for unsanitary buildings and firetraps and ordered the removal of Dr. King of the health department as a result of his discoveries.

Steel-grated windows and blocked fire exits in a furniture factory, wooden entrances to shut-in tenements, through which escape would be impossible in case of fire, and piles of rubbish on every hand, featured the discoveries.

The mayor was especially indignant over the discovery of a blacksmith shop in the basement of a three-story tenement house.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING.

The third meeting in the series of meetings held by the Y. M. C. at the Kincaide Theatre will take place Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. This is expected to be the largest meeting yet held. There was a much larger attendance last Sunday than there was at the first meeting.

The speaker, Fred L. Willis, has been for a number of years general secretary of the Worcester association. Previous to that he was secretary at Omaha, and for a number of years state secretary of Alabama. He is a forcible speaker and is much in demand for men's meetings. It is hoped therefore there will be a record attendance. He will speak upon "Life vs Living."

Another reason why there ought to be a large attendance at this meeting is due to the fact that Mr. James White who sang a number of times last year, and so acceptably is to render a number of solos.

Although the meeting does not begin until 3.30 the doors will open at 3 o'clock.

JUST Twenty-Six Years Ago —

FOR 26 YEARS our house has been doing business with the people of New England. From the modest beginning in our little 20x60 STORE, our trade has expanded until today we own and operate seven up-to-date, busy retail Clothing Stores in seven of New England's leading cities and the name of JOYCE BROS. & CO. has taken its place among those of the foremost Clothiers of America. It is but natural that we should expect a continuance of this prosperity, but we know that, in reality, we deserve it only to the extent that we have been and are now giving values, qualities, service and accommodation superior to that found in any competitive establishment. Our policy of a "square deal," FULL VALUE FOR EVERY DOLLAR EXPENDED, and satisfaction to our customers, in every detail, is the foundation upon which our business rests.

NEW, STYLISH SPRING APPAREL for Men, Women, Boys and Girls, in great profusion, is now here ready for your inspection, and represents the best efforts of the leading manufacturers of America. STYLE for STYLE, QUALITY for QUALITY, the VALUES FOUND HERE will compare favorably with the lowest prices quoted anywhere, by anybody, for similar merchandise. Back of this is our unqualified guarantee of perfect satisfaction. Our customers know what this stands for and that we are here "all the time" to protect that guarantee.

OUR CHARGE SYSTEM was established for the convenience of the people and is conducted on modern, progressive, 20th century lines that meet the requirements of the man or woman of moderate means. It is not always convenient to pay spot cash, and the average working-man or woman finds it impossible to obtain accommodation in the majority of retail stores. A QUARTER OF A CENTURY of experience has taught us that the people are HONEST and CAN BE TRUSTED, and that an account can usually be more easily paid in partial payments than in a lump sum. Upon this basis is founded our CHARGE ACCOUNT SYSTEM. It enables the great masses of people to have the Clothing they need when they need it, the account to be paid in sums and at intervals most convenient to them, there being no extra charge of any kind for this accommodation. We cordially invite your inspection of our business methods as well as of our merchandise.

PRISONER SAYS HE MURDERED PRIEST

Other Slayings May Be Fastened Upon Men In Jail

Wilmington, Del., March 13.—Bernard Montvid confessed to the murder of Rev. Joseph Zebris, priest of the Lithuanian church at New Britain, Conn., and his housekeeper, on Feb. 8, according to Chief of Police Black and New Britain detectives.

Montvid and Peter Krakas are prisoners here, charged with the murder of a policeman. New Britain detectives believe the prisoners took part in the murder of Druggist Merrill at Brookline, Mass., last December.

Krakas and Montvid were arrested after a sensational pistol battle, in which Francis X. Tierney, a policeman, was killed and three other policemen and two citizens were injured. When an attempt was made to arrest them as suspicious characters, Krakas opened fire on the police. Krakas was captured after being wounded and Montvid was taken into custody with difficulty.

GERMAN CRUISER TO BE INTERNED

Days of Life as Raider Are Drawing to a Close

UNSAFE TO VENTURE TO SEA

Fate Will Be Settled by British Ships Once the Prinz Eitel Friedrich Gets Outside Chesapeake Bay—Germany Considers Sinking of the Frye Unwarranted, Says Berlin Report

Washington, March 13.—Confidential reports to officials here on the condition of the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, in drydock at Newport News, Va., seem to make it certain the German raider will be forced to intern there.

Nobody believes, however, that the decision to intern will be announced speedily. Instead it is surmised that repairs will be made, coal and provisions taken on, and perhaps a start made for the open sea before hope of escape is abandoned.

There is no question that by this time more than one British warship is hurrying to the vicinity of the entrance to Chesapeake bay to make certain that this particular German cruiser will never again be a menace to British or American shipping. The Prinz Eitel Friedrich's days of life as a raider are drawing to a close whether she goes forth to certain death at the hands of the British or whether she decides that discretion is the better part of valor and interns.

The case is regarded as in many respects parallel with that of the German gunboat Geier, which took refuge in Honolulu harbor early in the war and pursued just such a policy of delay as is predicted at Newport News, partly, probably, in the forlorn hope that an escape may finally be effected, and partly, also, it may be, with a view to keeping the enemy on the alert and worried as long as possible.

Assistant Secretary Peters of the treasury department told President Wilson he expected the German commander would not venture to sea again. He said reports from Newport News show the Prinz Eitel Friedrich is in very bad condition and utterly unfit to put to sea.

After his conference with the president, Peters talked over the telephone with Captain Kiehne of the American ship William P. Frye, sunk by the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, and directed him to get sworn statements from as many of the crew of the Frye as possible. The president directed Peters to make a thorough investigation of all the facts in the case.

Captain Kiehne is expected in Washington today, and, upon his arrival, will be interviewed by Peters and Counsellor Lansing of the state department and a sworn statement taken of all the incidents connected with the sinking of the Frye.

Preliminary reports placed in President Wilson's hands covering the sinking of the Frye declare the act entirely without justification. It is already considered certain that the complete report will make the same claim. Until he has the latter in his hands the president will take no action.

WILL MAKE AMENDS

Germany Inclined to Place Blame Upon Commander of Cruiser

The German government regards the sinking of the William P. Frye by the Prinz Eitel Friedrich as entirely unwarrantable, according to dispatches from Berlin.

The news has created the most painful impression in official circles at Berlin. A strong protest is expected from Washington and it will be met in a most conciliatory spirit. Germany will assure the Washington government that Captain Thierichens acted solely upon his own responsibility, the Berlin dispatches assert.

Officials united in ascribing the act to "the unfortunate zeal of an excitable captain."

Berlin was astounded when the report first arrived from America. It was assumed that Thierichens was raiding only enemy merchantmen.

The Berlin press has not yet been permitted to mention the incident. The government is reported to be preparing a statement which will throw responsibility upon the cruiser's captain.

TO ENFORCE NEUTRALITY

Cruiser Brooklyn Patrols Entrance to Boston Harbor

The cruiser Brooklyn left the navy yard at Boston this morning for lower Boston harbor, to enforce the neutrality of that port.

Commandant Rush at the yard received the orders from Washington to assign the Brooklyn to patrol the entrance to the harbor to watch the movements of vessels owned by the warring nations in order to prevent them violating the regulations laid down for such vessels by the navy department.

The Brooklyn is in command of Commander Christy and carried 2000 rounds of five-inch ammunition and 1600 rounds of eight-inch ammunition when she steamed out of the yard.

During the absence of the Brooklyn from the local yard the Salem will act as the receiving ship.

The Service Stores

We have a business creed.

We believe that no store can grow unless it is helping those who trade there. We believe that any store that is bent on just — "getting the money" — regardless of whether the customer gets the value or not, cannot last.

We want to last.

Therefore our goods are those which give permanent satisfaction to our customers. They are the goods of reputation and quality. They are the goods which repay many times any slight additional cost.

BELIEVES ASSAILANTS TO HAVE BEEN TURKS

Condition of Stabbed Woman is Highly Serious

Mrs. Philomena Di Matteo who was stabbed in the back by an unknown masked man just before midnight in the kitchen of her home at 33 Canal street said this morning she believed her assailant and his companion were Turks. She is somewhat unnerved as a result of her experiences and is unable to furnish a clear description of the men.

The wound in the back is considered dangerous by Dr. Sydney C. Hardwick who believes it was made by a very thin, sharp bladed stiletto. The weapon penetrated a distance of six inches, following the muscles of the lower part of the back.

Louis Ross, manager of the Wardwells alleys, son of the wounded woman, was not at home when the stabbing took place. When he returned he found his mother in bed, and the wound bleeding freely. She told him she had gone down stairs for water and had just entered the kitchen when a tall masked man, wearing a derby, grabbed her behind the neck and plunged the knife into her back. She screamed and the assailant and a companion ran out the back door.

Mrs. Di Matteo's screams aroused a boarder and he hurried downstairs to her assistance. The men disappeared in the darkness.

The son on hearing the story ran to City Square and informed patrolman Farrell. Word was sent to police headquarters and the auto patrol and a squad of officers went to the scene but they found no trace of the missing men.

Mrs. Di Matteo was in bed when the police arrived. Her clothing was on the floor, soaked with blood. There was a small slit, barely a quarter of an in wide, where the point of the stiletto went through the cloth.

This morning Mrs. Di Matteo is suffering from a severe shock as well as from the wound.

The motive for the stabbing is wrapped in mystery.

SCARLET FEVER IN WOLLASTON

Several Children Are Under Observation

The children of several families of Wollaston Heights, who have been exposed to the dangers of scarlet fever the past three weeks, are under the observation of physicians.

The precaution has been taken because it was discovered on Saturday that a young girl had passed through a light attack of scarlet fever without detection and that the peeling process had commenced. In the meantime the child had romped and played with children, exposing them to the danger of infection. The situation has been investigated by the Board of Health.

TWENTY FIRES ON SATURDAY

Total From Mar. 1 Through Sunday Was 111

Although it was announced Saturday that the rule prohibiting bon-fire without a permit from the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department would be strictly enforced, Saturday proved to be one of the busiest days the fire department has had since the reign of fire alarms and before the day was out the various pieces of apparatus had been called out twenty times, swelling the total number of calls since the first of March to 94. This number was swelled to 111 by Sunday calls.

A very large part of these alarms, however, have been telephone alarms, and there has been no great destruction of property. During Saturday afternoon the calls for grass fires on Third Hill came thick and fast and no sooner had the apparatus returned from one fire on the hill than it was called out for another. Chief Billings notified Capt. McKay of the police department and a squad of officers was sent down to see if some of the parties who were setting these grass fires could not be caught.

Aside from the bell alarms of the day which were noted in Saturday's Ledger there were still alarms for grass and woods fires on the Eldridge estate off South street, Vane street, West Quincy, in the woods between Quincy and Braintree, at Third Hill on the north common, Quincy Point, and Houghs Neck. In fact every section of the city had one or more fires.

It would not be fair to lay all these grass fires to boys, for while they were doubtless responsible for some of them the great majority were started by householders to burn up rubbish and dead grass about their premises. In Quincy Point especially several of the grass fires were started by women to burn up rubbish and when told that it was against the law and that they must not build any more bon-fires, several responded by saying that they would build all the fires they wanted to. Even a threat of arrest did not seem to scare them.

Sunday proved no exception to the rule for the firemen put in another busy day answering in all seventeen calls making 111 since the first of March.

The Sunday fires with one exception were still alarms and were for grass fires on Adams street, Rogers street, Taylor street, South street, Newbury avenue, Winter street, Neponset bridge, Beale street, in the woods off Intervale street, the granite sheds of John Thompson & Son on Quarry street and the Metropolitan boulevard at Kemper and Fenno streets.

The one bell alarm of the day came at 5.59 Sunday evening from Box 24, located on Hancock street at the head of Granite street. This was for a slight fire on the roof of the house on the Col. A. B. Packard estate. The fire was but a slight on and was quickly extinguished.

On account of the extra work on the horse drawn apparatus the horses were pretty well worn out before the day was over and to relieve them the motor apparatus responded to some of the out of district calls.

CLAN ATTEND FUNERAL.

Services Held For Alexander C. Morris Of Wollaston.

Members of Clan MacKenzie of Dorchester attended the funeral of Alexander C. Morris, a clansmen, and well known baker at Wollaston, which was held from his home at Belmont street Sunday afternoon, and escorted the remains to Cedar Grove cemetery, Boston, where they conducted committal services.

The services at the home were conducted by Rev. Thomas Davison of the Atlantic Memorial church in the presence of many relatives and friends

The deceased has made his home in Wollaston for some years. He was the proprietor of a bakery on Brooks street.

Charles Bartlett of New Jersey made a flying trip to Quincy over Sunday being called here on business. He formerly resided on Edwards street.

Q. H. S. GIRLS HAVE COMPLAINT

Want to Play Basket Ball With Teams From Other Schools

PLAY ONLY CLASS GAMES

Many of the girls of Quincy High school think they ought to be allowed to have a school basket ball team which could play other teams. Leading high schools of this vicinity are represented by girls basket ball teams, the list including Wellesley Oliver Ames, Thayer Academy, Holbrook, Weymouth and many other schools. The local girls play only class games and games with the team that represents the Thalia Club of the school. At these games no admission in charged and the boys are not admitted.

At the Woodward school the condition is the same, class games are the only games that are played. Even games with the high school girls would raise considerable enthusiasm as the girls at Woodward do not have any chance to show school spirit, as the school does not have a chance to compete in any sport, with an outside school.

SUBMARINE L--3 IS LAUNCHED

Latest Addition to U. S. Navy Is Sister to L-1 and L-2

The United State submarine L-3 sister ship of L-1 and L-2 built by the Electric Boat Co. was launched at the Fore River shipyard at 10.30 this morning. The affair was private and there was little ceremony.

The sponsor Mrs. Charlotte Steele Atkins, is the wife of Lew M. Atkins, assistant naval constructor who has recently been detached from the Cramp shipyard and consigned to Quincy.

Mrs. Atkins on her arrival was presented with a handsome bunch of Milady roses and carried them on her arm while she swung the bottle of wine against the bow of the submarine as it slid away from the launching stand.

The fragments of the bottle were enclosed in a teakwood box and presented to the sponsor by S. A. Gardner of the Electric Boat Co. He also presented her with a handsome silver jug, suitably engraved, in honor of the occasion.

The ship is one of the four L boats under construction at the shipyard at a cost of about $534,000. She is about 170 feet long and the engines are designed to make 14 knots on the surface and 11 knots submerged. She will be given her trials as soon as possible and placed in commission in about two months.

INSTALLATION SERVICE.

The installation service of Rev. Frank A. Powell as pastor of All Souls church, Braintree, takes place next Sunday, at 7.30 P. M. Rev. Abraham M. Ribbany of Boston will preach the serman.

POLICE ARREST TEN IN POOL ROOM RAID

Find Two Black Jacks Which Figure In Court Cases

The pool room at 64 Winter street was raided early Sunday morning by Inspector Goodhue and Officer Dhooge and the proprietor Alli Hasson and nine others were arrested. Alli was arrested on two complaints, one charging him with gaming on the Lords day and the second with keeping a gaming nuisance.

The nine other men arrested gave their names as Alli Andea, Joseph Hassan, Nicholas Milana, George Pappas, Alli Mustoff, all of Winter street charged with being present where gaming was going on, Tufa Hassan, Mohamed Howard, Kast Marelis and Joe Alli for gaming on the Lords day. Six of the men are Syrians and the others Greeks. Tufa Hassan was also arraigned for carrying a concealed weapon, to wit a home made black jack.

According to the police the men gaming were playing "Sixty-one."

When they were searched at the police station a black jack was found on the person of Tufa Hassan, and a secand black jack was found on the floor of the station, where it had evidently been dropped by one of the men

Alli Hassan, the proprietor of the place, bought it out from another Syrian some weeks ago. He had made application to the city council to be granted a license for a pool room but it has not been acted upon as yet. When he applied for the license he asked if he might keep open until the license was granted and was told that he would have to see the police. Capt. McKay said in court this morning that the men had not applied to him for permission to keep open.

All of the parties were arraigned in court this morning and all entered a plea of not guilty.

Their cases were disposed of as follows:

Alli Andea, Joseph Hassi, George Pappas for being present were fined $5 each. Nicholas Milana and Alli Mustoff for being present were ddischarged.

Tufa Hassan was fined $50 for carrying a dangerous weapon and $15 for gaming. Mohamed Howard and Joe Alli were fined $15 each for gaming and Kast Morelis arraigned for gaming was discharged.

Alli Hasson, the proprietor, was fined $50 for keeping a gaming house and $25 for gaming making a total of $185. All paid their fines.

LAW ON SALE OF FIREARMS

Probation Officer to Inform Parents and Teachers

Teachers and parents are to be informed of the law regulating the sale of fire arms to children if the plan of Probation Officer Francis J. Fahey materializes. Copies of Chapter 199, section 92 of the acts of 1909 are to be mailed to the former and read to the pupils so they will know its intention. The chapter follows:—

"Whoever sells or furnishes to a minor under the age of 15 years, any firearms, air guns, or other dangerous weapons shall be punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50 for each offense; but instructors and teachers may furnish military weapons to pupils for instruction and drill."

WORK FOR CONVICTS.

There is no need of reminding anyone of the difficulty experienced by men who have served jail or prison terms in getting positions when they are released. The plight of these unfortunate persons has formed the basis of many "human interest" stories. The man released from jail finds that his record stalks behind him like Banqo's ghost whenever he attempts to get honest work and live a straight life. Disheartened, maybe starving, the result is all too often that the unfortunate man drifts back into the easy way, the road of crime, with the probable result a longer term in jail.

Henry Ford, multimillionaire automobile manufacturer, has agreed to give to Cincinnati men who have become law breakers the chance to "come back" by placing them in good paying jobs in his plant at Detroit. His action was taken in response to the plea of a Cincinnati police court judge.

Judge Nippert had been reading Ford's testimony before a congressional committee probing industrial discontent in which he said he would be willing to give jobs to convicts.

Ford sent a representative in Cincinnati who told Judge Nippert that additional jobs would be given to save men from going to the penitentiary or reformatory.

The offer does credit to Mr. Ford's kindness of heart and sense of justice It is not the first time that this bighearted manufacturer has come into public notice by acts inspired by the same commendable qualities.

It is to be hoped, however that it does not put a premium on crime. With the utilization of common sense and discrimination there should be no baneful results, but it is easy to see how an absence of these qualities would work more harm than good. It is not a pleasant thing for the honest and industrious man who may be out of work through no fault of his own to see a man who has been neither honest nor industrious the possessor of a good job. He may continue to be honest but he is likely to become embittered over what appears to him a crying injustice.

There is always a danger in the attitude of well meaning but super-sentimental people toward the criminal. Their kind hearts are likely to lead them as far astray in one way as the over harsh attitude of other people are likely to lead them the other way. Give the discharged prisoner a job, by all means if he deserves it, but give the honest and industrious man a job, too.

LINCOLN BEACHEY.

Lincoln Beachey, undoubtedly the most skillful aviator in the world, has at last paid the penalty of his daring. He was killed Sunday while making an exhibition flight at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. With his death the new science of aviation has lost its most wonderful operator. Although he was in the business to make money and although directly he contributed nothing to the scientific side of the invention yet his dare devil exhibitions were not without some real value. Beachey demanded of his airship more than any other aviator ever demanded. To meet his demands small perfections in the building of aeroplanes were required, so that it cannot be said that he contributed nothing to the science. And yet in a sense Beachey was a menace to a sane and safe development of the art of flying. He could do the impossible but his imitators could not. He created in the public an appetite for sensational flying which would not be satisfied with a mere exhibition of science devoid of thrills. We trust that the public, which really is responsible for Beachey's death, will send no more to the same fate.

Financial Review

The activity in investment circles is satisfactory evidence of financial improvement in undertone. There has been a much larger absorption of securities by American investors than is generally appreciated, proving that the home buying power is still very considerable, notwithstanding business reaction and declining dividends. Of both stocks and bonds there has been good buying, especially of bonds. The supply has come from foreign selling as well as from new local offerings, all of which have been taken with surprising readiness.

The continued excess of exports, which is being accelerated by a heavy decline in imports, is rapidly turning the United States into a creditor nation. The debt which Sir George Paish referred to last autumn has already been paid, and instead Europe is getting more and more into our debt. We are steadily buying less and selling more as a result of the war. Our interest payments, which used to be about $350,000,000 annually, will be reduced by the return of securities. The remittances by aliens to their friends in Europe, which are large in the aggregate, have been cut down materially. American tourists usually spend over $200,000,000 a year in Europe, and this outflow will be stopped this season. Our ocean freight bill, usually about $50,000,000 annually, will be smaller, because we only pay the freight on imports. If these tendencies continue our foreign indebtedness will steadily diminish; as European capital is thus withdrawn from the United States, and will probably not return in haste, because of the high rates it will command there when war ends and reconstruction begins. The war is revolutionizing our financial relations with Europe, and will leave us financially independent in a higher degree than ever before. Our present loans are only war loans but they are of the greatest significance; and ere long American banker and American manufacturer will be doing effective team work together in the world's market. This means also new fields for the American investor, who is becoming weary of the obstructive tactics of home politicians.

The war makes slow and gloomy progress. Before very long Constantinople is expected to fall into the hands of the Allies. This will be one of the most decisive events of the war, and is bound to have important consequences. It will give Russia the much-coveted access all the year into Southern seas, and will promptly relieve the present congestion of wheat and oil supplies in the Black Sea. This means the strengthening of Russia financially; also cheaper wheat the world over. As for the end of the war that does not yet appear to be in sight. A military deadlock exists on the Continent which cannot be broken without terrific loss of life on both sides. It would seem as if nothing short of military, financial and economic exhaustion on one side or the other would really end the war. At the moment these contingencies do not appear to be close at hand, and maybe some months will ensue before they can be actually reached, unless returning reason and outside pressure should bring the struggle to a pause earlier than now seems likely.—Henry Clews, Banker.

Witte was born at Tiflis, son of a director of the department of agriculture in the Caucasus. He was the descendant of a Dutch family that emigrated to Russia.

The count had been minister of communications, minister of finance, minister of state to the emperor and privy councillor.

He was chiefly responsible for the treaty of Portsmouth, which ended the Russo-Japanese war. He formed the first Russian ministry and served as its president and was responsible for the nation's reforms.

Claim Concerning Men Who Killed Priest and Housekeeper

Wilmington, Del., March 15.—Bernard Montvid, gunman, who confessed that his companion, Peter Melba, and two others murdered Rev. Joseph Zebris, Lithuanian priest, and his housekeeper, Iva E. Gilmanitis, declared he first met Melba in Boston.

It is evident that the gunmen spent considerable time in and around Boston during the past few months. It is believed they are connected with the murder of the druggist at Brookline, Mass., last Decembebr.

Attorney General Wolcott, state prosecutor, said he would not present any charges against Montvid. He advised that papers be taken out in Connecticut to secure the removal of the accused to that state for trial on the double murder charge. This will be done at once.

Melba will be indicted for the murder of Policeman Francis X. Tierney here. He will be "railroaded."

FOOD PALACE IS POPULAR

Miss Wilson's Third Letter on Exposition

San Francisco, Cal., March 9, 1915

Nobody has complained about the weather for ten days. For the first week nobody did anything else, but now the weather is glorious and all the spring flowers in the exposition grounds are bursting into bloom. There are yellow daffodils everywhere, and primroses of all colors and the Court of Abundance is simply aglow with pink hyacinths.

Things are in running order and it is becoming evident what people like best. The Canadian building is immensely popular, and rightly so. Running down both sides of the building, which is very large, are magnificent panoramas showing Canadian scenery all, chewing real carrots, which are a lifelike display of stuffed animals, trees and rocks, and blocks of real water, all merging imperceptibly into the painted background. There are also some real beavers, not stuffed at all, chewing eral carrots, which are a constant source of delight.

The panorama, on the other side of the building shows the development along the railroad with busy little trains really running back and forth and loading at miniature grain elevators, and finally arriving at Vancouver harbor, which is of real water, with little steamers really going in and out. There is also a view of a Canadian apple orchard and although the orchard is painted, the bushels and bushels of delicious apples in the foreground are perfectly real and I can't imagine how the management ever succeeds in keeping the real little boys who visit the Exposition out of that apple orchard. You have to go in the forenoon to see this panorama properly, for in the afternoons the building is jammed.

Another popular place is the corner in the Food Palace where you can get a hot buttered scone, right out of the oven for a nickel. All the afternoon a patient and interested crowd stands, watching the deft cook sift the flour and fix the dough, and stretching out eager hands when the great pans come out of the oven, and the two pretty girls butter and pass the hot scones out as fast as they can work.

The Food Palace is a very popular place and full of the most appetizing smells. One of the big flour exhibits has a long row of cooks, one from almost every country in the world—from Russia, India, China, Japan, France, Germany and a comfortable colored mammy from our own southern states. All day they cook delicious dishes, each according to the fashion of his or her own country, and when the food is ready, fresh and hot, they serve out to the crowd a mouthful apiece;—just one delicious, appetizing, tantalizing mouthful, and that is all you get. And then there are ample cups of coffee, and little places where they serve tea, or tamales, or chocolate, or jelly, all very comforting to a tired sightseer.

Outside, the little trains of sightseeing cars, with their miniature puffing engines carrying a sign reading "Ten cents to the Massachusetts building," are always crowded, for it is a long way from the Fillmore street gate to the Massachusetts building, and people would rather ride than walk.

The Australian building has just been opened and yesterday they gave a reception to the members of the press. They have a fine, large building, off at one side, and a fine exhibit; but the finest thing there is the wonderful collection of opals, including the glorious Australian black opals. There are no two alike, and the play of gleaming color from the hundreds of opals on exhibition is fairly dazzling. And when you are tired of being dazzled, you can watch a skilled operator, with his emery wheels and stones, transform the rough stones to perfect gems.

There is so much to see that one wonders whether even the people who stay on the grounds the whole ten months will ever see it all.

HELEN E. WILSON.

CITY COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Several Important Matters to Come Up

Several important matters will come up for consideration at the regular meeting of the city council this evening. The finance committee which has been considering the estimates of the mayor for current expenses of the year will make its report in the form of the annual appropriation order.

It is not expected that the order will be debated at any length at this meeting as the members of the council have not had an opportunity to consider any changes that the committee may have made. The order therefore will probably be given its first reading and go over until the next meeting, at which time there will probably be more or less debate.

Another matter that will come up is a public hearing on the petition of Col. Sweetser of the 6th regiment for approval of the organizing in Quincy of a gun squad. The formation of this company entails in the first instance an appropriation of about $2,000 on the part of the city but the larger part of this amount will be refunded to the city later in the year by the state. After once organized it is said that the annual expense will not exceed $200 a year.

It is also said that in case of any trouble when the police force of the city needs help the mayor has authority to call out the company.

Joseph Connors of Malden street has just returned from a short business trip to Baltimore.

Among Our Churches

CLERGY EXCHANGE PULPITS

Sunday in accordance with a plan established by the Ministers association a year ago there was a general exchange of pulpits among the clergymen of the city. The program of the exchange was carried out as outlined in the Saturday Ledger. It was a [illegible] day and all of the clergymen [illegible] their congregations. The idea of the general exchange is to promote a better feeling of friendship among the clergymen and for the general moral welfare of the city.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

The pulpit was occupied in the morning by Rev. John Whitley of Cambridge who preached from the text, "Men began to call upon the name of the Lord." The topic of the sermon was "Calling upon God the need of our times."

The need was never greater on account of the strenuous life we lead and the gigantic struggle going on across the sea. The church has the message we need.

Calling upon God is an ancient and universal custom, a sacred habit. Every branch of the human family believes in a higher power and worships in its own way.

Our method of worship is determined by our conception of God. What is needed is an intelligent faith which is offered by no other institution save the church.

There are three forms of art: industrial, liberal and the fine arts. A greater art than all these is the worship of Almighty God, the effort of man to fit his life into the purposes of God.

The many-sided service of the sanctuary tends to unite the human with the divine. First by the reading of Scripture which is the medium by which God speaks to the soul of man. Secondly, prayer which appeals to our affectional side and is a great unifier of the life of man with the life of God. Thirdly, the sermon whose mission is to help us through the mind. The emotional part of our nature is touched by the music. By the offering we give is developed the spirit of generosity and altruism and finally the aesthetic nature may be fed by the architectural beauty of the edifice in which we worship.

So calling upon God appeals to the entire nature of man and in His worship man works with the Infinite Father to make the world better.

At the Christian Endeavor meeting Albert L. Hayden, an honorary member and formerly president of the society, acted as leader. The subject was "Tests of My Christianity." Chester B. Sabean, the president, gave a short report of the union cabinet meeting. One of the features of the meeting was the singing of the new Society Song by Miss Florence Sabean Miss Ada Williams, and Sturgis Hunt. Plans are being made to send a large delegation to the Norwood convention to be held April 19.

FIRST PARISH.

Rev. Stephen B. Laing occupied the pulpit at the First church Sunday morning and was greeted by a large congregation. Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, the minister, occupied the pulpit of Rev. Mr. Lang at the Washington street Congregational church.

Rev. Mr. Lang's subject was "The Great Conquest" his text being taken from the twelfth chapter of Romans 21st verse. "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." In the course of his discourse he said: "That which destroys ideals and gives nothing in its place prevents man from spiritual attainment. In the larger sense good is that which opens men's souls to things that are lasting in life. There are many things not practically good. Personal selfishness is dividing Christianity. Child labor, the contest of capital and labor and war are things that are evil.

There are many things that ought to be corrected. Some must be fought out of being, others by placing good in their stead. National life will ever produce national interest and patriotism. Good for those interested but bad for their neighbors. We can not be blind to the prestige of Great Britain or the splendid discipline of Germany. There is good as well as evil in every one of the conflicting nations.

"I can not agree that a general satisfying universal peace could be accomplished by the fear of a great army and navy.

"The church has something to accomplish. Four hundred years ago the Christian church was made something new by those who could no longer live under the conditions at that time. This came as one of the things that the church needed. But we have broken up into fractions. Denominationalism has done some good and some evil things. It has caused people to think for themselves. A closer interest in life and many lay workers in the church. Less churches would make more efficient churches. Today we in Quincy are celebrating the second spirit of fellowship among the ministers of this city. We can not live alone and it is good that we should be interested in one another. It is the fellowship between churches that will bring us closer together. The work we have to do can not be divided. The key of the overcoming of evil with good is in your hands. Not out own theories but our deeds."

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL

Sunday morning the pulpit of the Wollaston Congregational church was occupied by the Rev. T. W. Davison, pastor of the Atlantic Congregational church, was exchanged with the pastor.

Mr. Davison took for his text the tenth verse of the first chapter second Timothy. He began his sermon by asking "What is your life?" In youth we have either vigor, cheer, happiness and great possibilities or a life that is dull, wasted and frivolous.

The value of life is in the human soul itself. Every life has a day of decision and much depends on a decision in the right direction as illustrated in the case of Aaron Burr who questioned his professor regarding religion. The professor made light of the subject which unquestionably was the means of influencing Aaron Burr against a religious life.

What influence shall we bring to bear on young life. To teach hope and the firm resolution to say no to wrong doing and yes to the good and true. A life untainted knows no defeat. Cymes will say, Start life with hope and anticipation but end in disappointments. Optimists will see possibilities and lives that have made their mark.k

Men speak for or against the church criticising its history and bigotry. The church has often been open to criticism, but with all its mistakes, the Church today is working and standing for a clear conception of righteousness through the revelation of Jesus Christ. The church today practices self sacrifice, not for self, but for the good of mankind.

7.45 The Whatsoever Circle, King's Daughters, will meet with Mrs. A. E. Rhodes, 183 Safford street, this evening.

The Y. P. S. C. E. will give a concert the proceeds of which are for the benefit of the parish house, Wednesday evening in the church. The Standish Quartette will entertain.

The next Silver Tea will be at the home of Mrs. T. C. Du Plessis, 43 North Central avenue, Friday afternoon.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

In the general pulpit exchange Sunday morning the Rev. Merrill C. Ward pastor of the Universalist church, most acceptably filled the pulpit and preached a helpful sermon on "Jesus the Exemplar." The Girl's Choir sang two selections.

In the evening at the special lenten service Rev. Frank A. Powell, minister of All Souls' church in Braintree was the visiting preacher and a ladies sextette Mrs. William E. Rowe, Mrs. Kendall, Miss Litchfield, Mrs. Taylor and the Misses Flieger rendered several selections.

The social party in Brasee hall under the auspices of the entertainment committee last Saturday evening was an enjoyable affair.

A whist party for the benefit of the parish house will be held at the home of Mrs. Chandler Smith, 115 Grand View avenue, Tuesday evening, Mar. 16 at 7.30 o'clock.

The Unitarian Sunday school Union of Boston will hold its sixth regular meeting of the thirty-second season in Arlington Street church. Supper at 6. Address on "What shall Unitarian children be taught about Easter?" by Rev. Roger S. Forbes.

The Young People's Religious Union meeting Sunday evening will be held at 6.30 o'clock and will be in charge of Fred Rollins.

The next to the last special lenten service for the deepening of the moral and religious life will be held Sunday, at 7.30 o'clock. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Fred R. Lewis of North Easton.

PARK AND DOWNS.

The pastor, Rev. William B. Ayers, did not expect to occupy the pulpit Sunday morning. Arrangements had been made some months ago for Rev. Dr. Ellinwood of Boston to preach. Owing to the arrangement Mr. Ayers was unable to join in the general exchange of Quincy ministers. Owing to sickness Dr. Ellinwood was called away to Atlantic City, so that the pastor was called upon to occupy the pulpit himself.

The text in the morning was Matt. 18:2 "Except ye become as a little child, ye shall not enter the Kingdom of Heaven." The sermon after defining the Kingdom of Heaven was a plea for open mindedness and teachableness of spirit. In the evening the War Lectures were continued.

On Wednesday the Woman's Guild will meet. It will be a missionary meeting. Miss Evans of the American Board will speak; social hour and refreshments will follow. Meeting will begin at 2.30.

MEN'S MEETING SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Nearly 250 men and a sprinkling of boys attended the meeting in the Kincaide theatre Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. A. F. Bromley, secretary of the association, led in the singing of hymns. There was piano and a trumpet accompaniment and three vocal solos by Joseph White.

Fred L. Willis, secretary of the Worcester Y. M. C. A., was the speaker. His topic was "Life and Living" Mr. Willis, one of the tallest men in the state, towered away above his audience. Although suffering from a severe cold none of those present had difficulty in following his address. His human interest stories aptly illustrated his theme.

Mr. Willis said the three essentials of life were a good physical condition, good mentality and a good spiritual life.

"Life," said Mr. Willis referring to the European War, "is apparently the cheapest thing in the world.

"The late Gov. William E. Russell said there is an everlasting difference between making a life and a living.

"We have never discovered that difference and many think that in making a life we are making a living. Any man who is willing to pay the price is able to make a good living.

"Men with the long face are no longer considered religious. Most of them we now know were only dyspeptic. Good heritage is a great thing and necessary to a good physical condition. Lack of it can be overcome through sun, fresh air, clean living and good food.

"More men go wrong mentally than ever before. Men must pay the price for their mental dissipation as well as for the physical. There is no clear living without clear thinking. Character can be determined through a knowledge of books read.

"It is strange how many men pay so little attention to religion," concluded Mr. Willis in speaking of spiritual life.

"Life means a good body, a good mind and the right relationship to certain things."

CHANGES IN COATS FEW BEFORE SPRING COMES

ADOPTED STYLES WILL BE CARRIED INTO SPRING.

Separate Wraps Will Rely on Fabrics for Differences in Effects—Serges of All Weaves and Finishes in Favor.

The generally adopted lines of narrow shoulder and wide skirt will be carried into spring, and the separate coats will rely on the fabrics for any change in effect. Which material will you have?

There are the new covert cloths that have always stood the tests of time, and return from time to time after a little rest. The suits of this material have been such good friends that the separate coats are to profit from their example. Covert cloths in tan and green will be in vogue.

Serges of all finishes and weaves will be in high favor. Those in dark blue and green and all shades of brown will be in order. They will be matched in the color of braid and wooden buttons and trimmed with these practical materials.

Gabardines will also be in good standing for the new coats. This material is good in color, and has a wearing quality that is a desideratum when topcoats are considered.

Novelty worsteds and woolens in light weights will be made in sports coats and topcoats for the informal hours. The raglan sleeve and high belt line will be in evidence and will be of leather, suede cloth or soft suede.

Checks and broken plaid effects are to be used, and the trimming will be in a color that repeats the shade of one thread in the weave.

GOOD IDEA FOR SELECTING BETWEEN-SEASON COSTUMES.

With Allowance Made for Possibility of Changing Styles, the Main Purpose Must Be to Select Up-to-Date Designs.

As it is always a bit difficult to arrange for between-season frocks and suits, the best plan to follow is to select designs as up-to-date as possible, so that there will be no danger of them going out of style too soon, writes Lillian E. Young in the Washington Star. Then, if there should happen to be fur trimmings, be sure that they are so arranged that they may be removed when spring comes. The shops are showing many modish fur-trimmed garments, which later in the season may graduate from winter service to spring; in fact, many of the very new light-cloth suits show removable fur collars and cuffs of bandings.

The illustrated model is particularly commendable for between-season service, made up in olive green Tipperary cloth with skunk band trimmings.

The coatlike blouse fastens in back. It must be cut in the form of a loose hip-length skirt, slashed to the bust line at either side of the front to form a sort of panel that is pouched over the waist line. The material at the sides is then draped up under the slashes until the lower fur-bound edge is even with the pouching of the panel. This only applies to the front, however, for the fur-bordered edge describes a slanting line toward the back, where the length of the blouse is unbroken. Long sleeves are finished with turn-back cuffs of cream colored grosgrain silk. There is an upstanding military collar of the same.

The skirt is in two parts. The under one consists merely of a gathered portion extending from hip to hip, its length broken by a false yoke seam running several inches below the belt. The back of this underskirt can be of satin or taffeta, for it is completely covered by the tunic. The tunic is full length across the entire back, but from the sides slants upward toward the center. It is slashed through the center and turned back over either hip, with just that turned-back portion bordered with fur at the bottom.

Later on in the season, when the warmer weather makes one tire of fur trimmings, the fur may be removed and an attractive change made by adding sand-colored faille collar and cuffs, which color combines beautifully with the olive green.

USE ALCOHOL ON THE HAIR

Especially If It Is Apt to Get Dusty and Unmanageable Is This Recommended.

If the hair is dusty and unmanageable after a journey of any sort, try using alcohol to make it fluffy. The alcohol will dry in a few moments and the hair will be ready then to arrange. Many women who have taken a railroad journey of several hours' duration to a wedding or dance have found their hair, owing to the heat and dust of the journey, quite heavy and dirty, and have despaired of getting it in shape in time for the festivities. A shampoo takes too long to be indulged in while one is dressing—and sometimes it leaves the hair too fluffy for immediate managing.

To get back to the alcohol treatment. Part the hair and rub a little alcohol on a piece of gauze on the scalp until it is free from dust. Then rub the hair about the brows and ears and the nape of the neck with the alcohol. Of course, it should first have been brushed as free as possible from dust. Then let the hair hang loosely until the alcohol has dried out. The hair will be light and fluffy.

PANTALETS UNDER SKIRT

This striking gown might have stepped from a daguerreotype of the forties, but it will actually be worn at a prelenten dance. The skirt, a quaint shirred and twisted affair of gold-colored taffeta with a tucked ruffle, is lifted to show the pantalets of ruffled tulle. The bodice is exceedingly negligible, a wisp of tulle over the shoulder and short puffed sleeves of taffeta being all there is to it.

Parasol Veil.

A novelty of note is the so-called parasol veil. This is a huge circular veil thrown over the hat so that it falls in equal ripples on all sides. A border of ribbon combined with velvet dots renders this creation a striking one.

Still another idea is featured in a fancy mesh veiling, so that it would appear over the mouth when the veiling is adjusted. This style is strongly suggestive of the old-time vanity veil.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If sweet oil be applied to the skin after a blow or bruise, it will not turn black and blue.

Peroxide and ammonia will bleach superfluous hair, but will not destroy the growth.

Keeping the fingernails well manicured is a sure cure for the habit of biting them.

When baby bumps its head, rub salt butter on the spot. It will stop swelling and keep the place from turning black and blue.

If you are troubled by round shoulders hold up your chin and carry your head high and your shoulders can't bend and curve.

Perspiring hands indicate sluggish circulation and nervousness Fresh air is the best cure. Bathe the palms of the hands with alcohol

ALUMNI HOLD FIRST REUNION

Graduates of Massachusetts Field's School Gather

The first reunion of the newly formed alumni association of the Massachusetts Fields school was held Saturday evening in Wollaston School hall. A fine musical program, interspersed with speeches, was presided over by the president.

The program opened with piano solos by Miss Ernine Baker and Edwin Wallace. A feature which found much favor was a dance by little Miss Doris Baker in sailor costume. Miss Gertrude Brown, accompanied by Mr. Wallace, rendered a pleasing violin selection.

David Goodspeed principal of the school was then asked to say a few words. He commended the members on the formation of such an association, and said that there was much that could be accomplished.

Mr. Wallace rendered a vocal solo, which was followed by another vocal selection, by Frank Dunham.

C. Ralph Taylor a former principal of the school told of his past experiences in the school. He told of his first coming to Quincy and his dealings with the school committee at that time.

He recited some of the interesting breaks made by the children in the school during his stay. One child, after being told he faced the south with the east on his left and the west on his right, was asked what was in back of him, the child tearfully confessed to a patch in the seat of his trousers, which he had hoped to hide.

Mr. Taylor commended Arthur Robinson, president of the association, for his untiring zeal and in closing extende his heartiest wishes for the success of the new organization.

Miss Doris Baker contributed Two recitatons, "The bald head" and "Two louse" which were brimful of fun and called forth much merrment and applause.

Stanley Smith, vice president of the association, spoke briefly in support of the organization, urging the members to talk it up and also help in the cause of the Massachusetts Fields school playground.

A violin solo by Miss Hilber, accompanied by Miss Ernine Baker, completed the program of the evening, the hall was then cleared for dancing and refreshments were served.

In charge was a committee consisting of Arthur Robinson, Muriel Marlack, Stanley Smith and Willard Atkins.

TENT CATERPILLARS.

The ravages of the tent caterpillar have been so destructive to fruit trees throughout Massachusetts for the last two or three years that State Board of Agriculture this year intends to enlist the help of the school children in stamping out this pest. Notices have been sent to the superintendents of all the school districts in the State, announcing that the Board is offering four silver cups, two to be awarded to the public schools of towns or cities of over five thousand inhabitants, and two to the schools of towns under five thousand, whose pupils collect the greatest number of egg masses between March 29 and May 1. The pupils are to report daily to their grade teacher the number of egg masses which they have collected, and the teachers in turn will make reports to the superintendent. The superintendents are to report to the secretary of the State Board of Agriculture not later than May 4, 19115.

At this season of the year the egg masses of this caterpillar are easily detected as there are no leaves on the trees, and they form a small black band around the limb. On cutting these open one will find them filled with thousands of minute eggs. These eggs begin hatching about the time that the leaves open, and the caterpillars then form the unsightly webs which have been such a prominent feature of the landscapes of Massachusetts for the last couple of years. The Board hopes that with the aid of the 575,000 school children of the state most of the eggs can be destroyed before the hatching season begins.

FORE RIVER TEAM WINS

The Fore River soccer team beat New Bedford 1 to 0 at Fall River Saturday afternoon before 3000 fans. The game was in the third round of the American Cup tie competition and by virtue of winning the Quincy eleven is now entered in the semi-final for the American Cup.

The only tally of the afternoon was made after 18 minutes of play when Harrison worked the ball up to the New Bedford goal and scored on a beautifully placed shot.

The last 45 minutes of play saw some of the finest football ever played in this city. There were six special cars from New Bedford to accommodate the admirers of the Whalers. The Fore Rivers played the better defense game throughout. The summary

Y. M. C. A. BEATS MILTON TEAM

Cunningham Gym Beaten By Score of 21-9

In the greatest game of the season the local Association basket-ball teams took revenge upon the Cunningham Gym teams of East Milton on Saturday night. The crowd was the largest of the year over 200 enthusiastic fans crowding the gym gallery and floor. Milton had about one-half of the audience and their "rooting" at times almost stopped the game.

The game was marred by the constant wrangling of the East Milton players against the referee's decisions. Mr. Wilband, who is considered the best man in Boston today, officiated and after the game said "Never again, will I officiate for a game in which Cunningham Gym takes part."

The first half of the 2nd team was all in Quincy's favor, ending 8 to 1. This was in direct contrast to last week's game at Milton when the locals were victorious. In the 2nd half Quincy got busy with the scoring end of the game and ran up 17 points to the visitors 9. The final score being 25 to 10. This makes the 16th victory for Quincy with only two losses.

The 1st team game was a hummer from the start; the Cunningham gym fellows apparently feeling that the rules were thrown out and everything was to go. They were brought up to a sharp turn, however by the fouling of J. Reid. Trask scored the foul making the only point for Quincy in the 1st half. Sy Duggan and Stewart had each scored a goal thus making the score 4 to 1 in the visitors favor. The 2nd half saw, the locals take a brace from the start, Morrison and Trask shooting goals in quick succession; Morrison making his opponent look like a beginner. Cunningham scored 5 points in the last period to Quincy's 20, the game ending 21 to 9.

Are You Speed Mad? Then Take a Trip on an Ice Yacht

ICE yachtsmen have been having their inning. The recent cold weather in the sections where the skeleton craft holds sway has given the devotees of the fascinating winter sport ample opportunity to enjoy their favorite pastime. At Red Bank, N. J., on the Shrewsbury river, many new ice yachts have been tried out, and many space annihilators have been produced. According to one skipper, one of the new ice yachts peeled off a mile easily in thirty-five seconds. Photo shows one of the skeleton yachts making a sharp turn on the Shrewsbury river near Red Bank.

SOME SPICY SPORT CHATS

West Should Be Given Chance at Tennis Championships.

WOULD PRODUCE TALENT.

With Big Match Held In New Section Some Youngster Might Bob Up as a Champion—Ban Johnson's Opinions Now and Those of 1900.

The western idea of nothing to worry about is the transfer of the national tennis championship from Newport, R. I., to New York. Whichever way the cat jumped there was never a chance for its general direction to be westward.

The east has a complete monopoly of the tennis championship industry. The change merely means that the New York element has won from the Boston clique.

What the west wants is a rotation tournament in line with the suggestion of Dwight F. Davis, first one city and then another entertaining the United States title contestants.

The east has far the greater proportion of good tennis players as compared with the west. It also has a number of exclusive clubs equipped for handling the event, something in which the west is deficient. But the Lawn Tennis association has a surplus of $20,000, which could help defray expenses of shifting the tourney annually, as proposed.

If the building up of the game is desired shifting the national championship would certainly do more than keeping it perpetually in one spot however well adapted to holding such an event that spot might be.

"Have the tournament west in 1916," should be the slogan of all members of the national association not hidebound enough to think New York is the center of the solar system.

In the three years of warfare carried on by the American league during its attack on major league domination of this century, 113 hurdlers were recorded.

In the present half century of big leaguers, or near big leaguers, have flopped, during the two seasons of high jumping that have obtained since the Feds broke in. This time, too, the outlaws had two major leagues to draw upon instead of one. Or, about 500 players as against 250 in the old days.

On its face the organized big league baseball world ought to be less affected in playing strength by the Federals than was the case when Ban Johnson's warriors swarmed over the National league fences.

It's queer, too, to listen to Ban Johnson now and then parallel his utterances with some of his sayings of twelve or thirteen years ago. It makes a difference which foot the shoe is on.

During the course of a fanning bee in Davenport recently Dan O'Leary, the Davenport manager, told a story which is worth printing again. It concerns Dominick Mullaney, who recently landed a job as an American league umpire.

When Mullaney was with the Bloomers the Bloomington club did not furnish its players with tickets for the street car line running out to the park in that city. Instead the players were supposed to bring a glove, a baseball cap or some other bit of their paraphernalia so that the conductor could identify them and not charge a fare.

One day Mullaney happened to be without any of his trappings. The conductor became wrathy and threatened to put him off. Mul, however, called and turned the laugh on him with the following remark:

"The next time you want to deadhead your way into the ball park you will have to carry a couple hundred pounds of street car rails so that we will know you are a conductor."

President Gilmore of the Feds tells an interesting story of the efforts made by President Charley Weeghman of the Chifeds a few days ago to sign Prince Herman Schaefer, the former comedian utility man of the Washington Nationals, who recently drew his release from Manager Griffith.

Schaefer called on Weeghman and when asked how much he wanted said:

"A two year contract, calling for $6,000 a season."

"Why, that's a lot of money. You are getting old and going back," Weeghman told the comedian.

"I'll admit that, Charley, but you know I'm awfully funny."

$50,000 In Auto Prizes.

Sanction for a 500 mile automobile race on the Chicago speedway June 19 has been granted by the American Automobile association. The new racing course is being constructed in Maywood, a suburb. Purses exceeding $50,000 will be offered.

Pirates Have Another Babe Adams.

Mark Adams, a pitcher who will get a tryout with the Pirates, is a real kid. Adams will not be twenty years old until Memorial day. If he sticks with the club Charley Adams will have to look out for his nickname of "Babe."

MAISEL'S OPINION OF HIS NEW BOSS.

Fritz Maisel, champion base stealer of the American league, went from Baltimore to New York to see his new manager and the new owners of the Yankees. After a short talk with Captain Huston the little third baseman expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the incoming secretary-treasurer of the club.

"The captain seems to be a mighty fine man," said Maisel, "but," he added, critically, "I'll bet he'd have a lot of trouble in stealing a base."

CAPT. OLSON LOSES HIS SECOND SON

Capt. Neil Olson, a master marine, had started Saturday to join his ship, scheduled to sail on that day, when news came to the death of his six year old son Charles Leonard Olson, at his home on Dysart street and he hastened back. The boy had been sick for some time. The other twin brother died a year ago.

The funeral was Sunday afternoon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Charlotte Dorley of River street has returned from a visit to Concord, New Hampshire, where she was the guest of her brother, Jeremiah Pitts.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Quincy readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. What other remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit?

Richard W. Smith, painter, 14 Blake St., Wollaston, Mass., says: "I suffered from a painful back and kidney trouble for a long time. I was so stiff on damp and rainy mornings that it was some time before I got limbered up enough to dress myself. I had a dull, heavy pain through the small of my back. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up all right. I have used this remedy off and on since whenever I have needed a kidney tonic. Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to put me in good shape. In my present work, painting, I find Doan's Kidney Pills to be just the medicine I need for keeping my kidneys in good working order. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills before and am glad to do so again."

Marshall Trusttum, Remarkable Boy Skater.

HE SHOWS GREAT SPEED.

Lad of Eleven Years Covers Quarter of a Mile In Forty Seconds—News of the Boy Scouts—Other Things of Interest to Boys and Girls.

New York, Boston and other cities that have been fortunate enough to witness Hobey Baker perform in a game of hockey at the various ice skating rinks this season have simply marveled at the wonderful speed displayed by the former Princeton star in executing various plays of that game. But it is doubtful, to say the least, if Baker at his best can equal the mark recently made by Marshall Trusttum in a quarter mile race for youngsters at the St. Nicholas ice skating rink, New York, when this boy accomplished the marvelous feat of covering this distance in forty seconds. Young Trusttum is but eleven years old, and many experts who have seen him in action express nothing but astonishment at the speed of this youth. He is at present a student of a well known New York culture school, and the son of Marshall Trusttum, the noted society horseman, who is very anxious that his brilliant son race any or all the stars of the game. Master Trusttum has been exhibiting his speed on the ice about six years, starting when he was five years old.

Object of Boy Scouting.

Character development, through an attractive yet wholesome program of activities and the required daily good turn by scouts and community service by groups of scouts is the fundamental object of scouting.

Every step in the scouting program is but a means to this end. The variety and interest as well as the practical knowledge insured by the tenderfoot second class and first class tests are, after all, but a means for holding the interest of the boy, pledged to the scout oath and law, under such leadership as will bring about character development. Likewise, the whole scheme of merit badges is primarily for the same purpose. The form of troop organization, the scout master and his assistants, the local council and indeed the national council and all of its officers are also but a means to this end.

This character development manifests itself in health, efficiency, chivalry, loyalty, patriotism and good citizenship.—From Annual Report of the Chief Scout Executive.

Game of Elements.

All seated around the room, one of the company holds in his hand a soft ball, to which should be fastened a string, so that it may be easily drawn back again. Sometimes a ball of worsted is used, with a yard or two left unwound. The holder of the ball then throws it to one person and this to another, naming at the same time one of the elements (fire, air, earth, water), and each player as the ball touches him must before ten is counted mention a quality of that element. Should any one speak when fire is mentioned he is out of the game.

MRS. J. D. ROCKEFELLER

Wife of the Financier, Who Is Dead at Country Home at Pocantico Hills.

BODY PLACED IN TOMB

Services For Mrs. Rockefeller at Pocantico Hills Home

Tarrytown, N. Y., March 15.—Funeral services for Mrs. John D. Rockefeller were held in the Rockefeller home at Pocantico Hills. Only members of the family, close friends and employes on the Rockefeller estate attended. The body was placed in a receiving vault in Sleepy Hollow cemetery here, until it is decided whether the burial shall take place at Pocantico Hills or in the family plot in Cleveland.

John D. Rockefeller held Winthrop Rockefeller, his grandson, on his knee during the services, which were conducted by Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church in New York, which the Rockefellers attended while in that city.

Solemn tones from the great pipe organ in the Rockefeller home, under the hand of the organist from the Fifth Avenue church, opened the services, and favorite hymns of Mrs. Rockefeller were sung by the quartet from the same church.

EVANGELICAL WORK IS APPRECIATED

Sunday's Collections at Philadelphia About $100,000

Philadelphia, March 15.—A motor truck drew up to Billy Sunday's tabernacle last night and three policemen, three armed guards and two assistants piled sacks of coin and bills and checks into it for transportation to the valuts of the Land Title Trust company. Billy Sunday had drawn his pay.

Three times Sunday, while Sunday was preaching, there was that same scene. For Philadelphia had told Sunday what it thought of him and his work. The city had crystallized its opinion in money.

Although the amount of the offering will not be known until the middle of the week, it is estimated that the collection will exceed $100,000.

The fatal fall was attributed to the fact that Beachey entrusted his life for the first time in several years to a monoplane. Beachey was born in San Francisco in 1887.

WOULD KEEP OUT OF MATTEAWAN

Thaw Will Make Determined Fight to That End

LONG LITIGATION IS CERTAIN

Contention That Prisoner Was Returned From New Hampshire Solely For Trial on Conspiracy Charge, of Which He, as Well as Co-Defendants, Is Acquitted

New York, March 15.—Harry K. Thaw, acquitted of conspiracy in escaping from Matteawan, faces a renewal of the determined efforts of New York state to send hm back to the asylum.

Almost endless litigation seems to be in sight as the result of the verdict. The words of acquittal had scarcely died on Foreman Bailey's lips when Deputy Attorney General Cook was on his feet with a motion to have Thaw recommitted to Matteawan.

This was stoutly opposed by John B. Stanchfield, chief of Thaw's counsel, on the ground that the court already had under advisement a motion to return Thaw to New Hampshire, whence he came to answer the conspiracy charge.

This motion was renewed and Supreme Court Justice Page set this afternoon for argument thereon.

In the meantime Thaw occupies his old cell in the Tombs prison, the cell in which he was locked during the months that elapsed from the night he shot and killed Stanford White, nearly nine years ago, till his removal to Matteawan.

Thaw's four aides in in his whirlwind automobile flight through four states from Matteawan to Canada were acquitted by the same verdict which acquitted Thaw and were discharged. Deputy Attorney General Kennedy, while satisfied with the verdict in so far as it related to Thaw, said he had expected a conviction of Thaw's accomplices.

An appeal from Justice Page's decision on the motion to return Thaw to Matteawan was regarded almost as a certainty, regardless of what the decision might be. The case, therefore, seems likely to remain in the courts for months before final decision.

To a warden who brought him a number of congratulatory telegrams Thaw expressed his gratification at the verdict, but was non-committal when it was suggested that he might soon be declared sane and receive his liberty.

"I'm not so sure of the outcome as that," said Thaw, "but I am going to make a fight for it."

The verdict was returned after the jury had been out about nineteen hours.

Thaw's lawyers outlined their position on their motion. They contend the only purpose for which the United States supreme court ordered Thaw returned from New Hampshire was for trial on the conspiracy indictment.

Being acquitted, they contend New York cannot hold him for the purpose of being returned to Matteawan, and, if such an adverse ruling should be made, they declare the United States supreme court will free Thaw on habeas corpus. Papers are already prepared if Page rules Thaw shall not return to New Hampshire.

The state's attorneys admitted that the evident theory of the jury upon which Thaw and his aides were acquitted was that no technical criminal "intent" was proven and that all involved in the escape "honestly misconceived" their legal rights and intended no law violation.

Germany Will Settle For the Sinking of the Frye

TO PAY FOR AMERICAN SHIP

Official Apology to Our overnment and Monetary Reparation to Owners of Vessel After Case Goes to Prize Court—Commander of Cruiser Will Be Made the Scapegoat

Washington, March 15.—Monetary reparation to the owners of the American bark William P. Frye and to the owners of her cargo will be made by Germany, with an official apology from the German government for the affront to this country through her destruction by the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, it is reported here. The sinking of the Frye, it is said, will go before a German prize court, following which reparation will be made.

Commander Thierichsens, it probably will be held, was overzealous in carrying out his orders on leaving Tsingtau to seek and destroy enemy vessels and those caught carrying contraband to the enemy.

Plymouth, Eng., was one of the ports of call mentioned in the Frye's papers, and as Plymouth is a fortified town the Frye might be considered as carrying foodstuffs for the armed forces of England.

Out in mid-Pacific, it probably will be contended, the Prinz Eitel Friedrich was unable to receive any modifications of her orders or further instructions concerning the course she was to pursue.

This government may also demand punitive damages, such as Great Britain was forced to pay in the case of the celebrated Alabama claims. The owners of the Frye may receive compensation not only for the value of the lost vessel, but also compensation for such estimated losses as they sustain through not having the bark to operate.

Captain Kiehne of the Frye gave his version of the affair to Counsellor Lansing of the state department. He made oath his vessel had no contraband aboard at the time it was sunk by the German commerce destroyer. Copies of the ship's papers showing the orders, destination and character of the cargo and other relevant points were brought to Washington.

These papers, however, do not give positive proof concerning to whom the cargo was consigned. This point will have to be established clearly by the state department before its case can be completed, as, unless the consignee was a private person or corporation, the cargo could be considered contraband.

Count von Bernstorff in his discussion of the case justified the action of Thierichens, who, he said, based his opinion of the contraband character of the Frye's cargo upon the declaration of London.

Under the orders of the German government of Aug. 3 the cargo of the Frye would in all probability not be classed as contraband. His government, Bernstorff believed, would adhere to its orders of Aug. 3 and declare the cargo of the Frye noncontraband and pay compensatory damages for the vessel and cargo.

ANARCHY IN MEXICO

Trouble For United States Threatened In Coast Cities

Washington, March 15.—While conditions in Mexico City have improved, the food and water supply being replenished and the capital placed in order once more by the Villa-Zapata convention government, situations fraught with difficulties for the United States have arisen at the port of Progresso, on the Atlantic coast of Mexico, and at Manzanillo, a port on the Pacific side.

The American consul at Manzanillo states that a condition of anarchy prevails there, the Carranza troops in possession being unable to maintain order; that foreigners are apprehensive and the food supply decreasing, while the Villa-Zapata troops are investing the approaches to the town.

Admiral Howard, commanding the Pacific fleet, is understood to be preparing to take foreigners away from Manzanillo if conditions do not improve. Several American ships are in the vicinity.

The two were held in $2500 each for a continued hearing on March 30.

Medical Examiner Swan, who performed an autopsy on the girl's body, found that the girl died from asphyxia brought by an overdose of some drug. He also found that the girl had used drugs before.

THINK BODY THAT OF ALBERT SCOTT

Three Quincy Boys Find Skeleton In East Braintree Woods

SCOTT LEFT HOME NOV. 1

The body of Albert Scott, 49 years of West Roxbury, was found in the Sampson woods, East Braintree, Sunday afternoon, almost reduced to a skeleton. The identification was the climax of an investigation started by Mayor Campbell of this city.

Scott disappeared Nov. 1 leaving a note addressed to his brother-in-law, Herbert Baxter stating he intended to do away with himself. His wife, Elizabeth Scott, has made her home at 183 Winthrop street, Winthrop, since the receipt of the note. On Sunday evening she said she was almost certain the body was that of her husband, whom she believed to have been despondent because of business troubles.

The body was found by three Quincy boys: Thayer Ackerstrom of 158 Granite street, Rayner Bergen of 187 Granite street and Albert W. Porter of 8 High street. They notified David Bowers who lived near by and he called the police.

Inspector Goodhue, in charge of the patrolmen who responded, said the body was on its back in a natural sleeping position. Wood fires had burned spots in the clothing. Nearby there was a bottle which contained rain water according to Medical Examiner Fred E. Jones.

A receipt for stall rent at the Boston Flower Exchange was found on the body. It bore no name but furnished the clue on which Mayor Campbell started his investigation and several hours later he located the wife of the dead man.

The body was removed to the morgue at the Hall undertaking rooms where positive identification of the clothing probably will be made today.

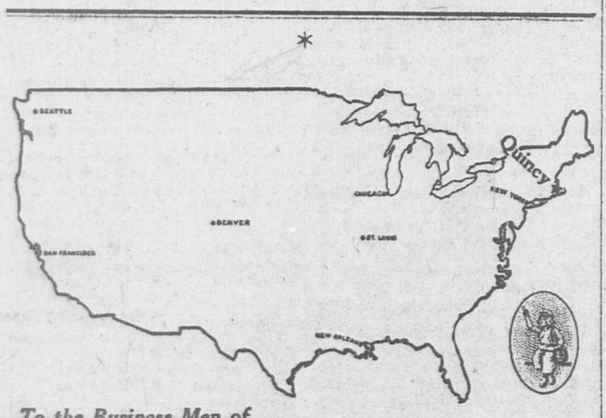
The height of the man tallied with that of Harry Clarke Coe, the missing Standard Oil agent. Communication with Boston police headquarters disposed of that theory because the clothing was entirely different from that worn by Coe on his disappearance.

Relatives of the dead man called at the morgue this morning and their description of the clothing on the body tallied with what was worn.

CHARLES J. BROWN.

The funeral of Charles J. Brown, was held from his home at 11 Grant street this afternoon. Rev. Thomas Davison of the Atlantic Memorial church officiatel. Burial was at Cedar Grove Cemetery, Marshfield.

The deceased was in his 49th year and died at the Brigham hospital, Boston Friday night, a few hours after he became a patient. He recently returned from Panama where he was an engineer. He leaves a widow.



To the Business Men of

QUINCY

When a good salesman goes out after business, he first puts on a clean collar and gets his shoes shined. Then he looks like more business—and he's made a flying start toward getting it.

Likewise, a community can go after more business—and get it. The "clean collar and shiny shoes" of this town are the well-painted stores, the bright, cheery homes, the fresh, clean-looking buildings. The part paint plays in building up local pride cannot be put in figures—but its good effects are recorded on the local merchants' sales sheets. Buy good paint. We recommend and sell and pure linseed oil. We know of nothing else so satisfactory, so lasting and cheap in the long run. We sell all other paint necessaries as well. Get in touch with us today.

MAY RAISE TAX RATE.

Consider $320,000 Appropriation At Town Meeting.

Milton citizens at town meeting Saturday discussed an appropriation of $250,000 for a town hall and $70,000 for a gymnasium and better accommodations for the High school. The opponents said it would raise the tax rate to $20 and drive residents to the Berkshires. A special committee is considering the matter. The fire alarm sounded during a debate on motorization of fire apparatus and took a score of regular and call firemen. Included in the police appropriation is an increase of pay for patrolmen from $1095 to $1200 per year. Joseph Duffy, clerk of the board of selectmen was given an increase and Mr. Babcock also got an increase and $1200 to $1500. He is collector of taxes.

DISTRICT COURT.

Howard F. Burns was fined $3 costs for violation of the rules of the Metropolitan park commission at Milton.

Victor Ruskak who was fined in court last week for violation of the gaming law and his case continued until this morning was defaulted.

FIRE THIS AFTERNOON.

A dwelling house under construction on Bass street, a short distance off Hancock street, took fire at .230 this afternoon. Sparks from a salamander stove probably started teh fire. The damage was slight.

SECRET OF SUCCESS.

Be Efficient and Do Things That Other People Do Not Do.

A man has a weary time awaiting to rise in the world by force of sympathy, by getting somebody else to pull him along. You see such people standing around expecting compassion and a lift from some who have succeeded.

But this is not the way success is attained. That comes by working for it, by being worthy of it, by doing one's best, if it comes at all. The world is full of failures because a man hangs back and depends upon others.

Efficiency is the greatest word in the language. There is no real progress without it. And what does efficiency consist of? Of sobriety, honesty, diligence, patience, happiness, unselfishness, good habits and putting in full time.

Of course a man can get rich by not caring for these. He can gamble, steal, defraud, pad payrolls and expense bills, borrow money and never pay. But such riches don't last. They drop a man pretty hard finally.

The only way is to start out in the world and do one's best without waiting to see what others do. As Steinmetz, the master electrician, said, "To earn $100,000 a year do things other people don't do."—Ohio State Journal.

Volcanoes and Disease.

Many strange and exaggerated accounts have been given of terrible diseases in human beings, lower animals and plants as a result of volcanic activity. In a prize essay by Dr. H. J. Johnston-Lavis it is shown that there is no direct connection with disease but that volcanic outbursts may indirectly cause or increase epidemic disease in several ways. The poisonous fumes may have irritating and depressing effects on the eyes and throat. The disturbance of water courses may bring about the infection of wells and surface supplies with sewage, and interference with ventilation of houses may result from the accumulation of ejected materials. The moral depression from fear, with hunger from the cutting off of food supplies, may have the effect by lessening the resistance of the organization to infection.—Exchange.

Keeping His Secret.

When Lord Wellington was commander of an army in India a certain rich man offered him $500,000 for some secret information on a very important question. Wellington looked thoughtful a few moments, as if he were weighing the temptation. At length he said:

"It appears that you can keep a secret, sir."

"Certainly," said the man, feeling sure that he had gained his point.

"So can I," said Wellington. Good morning, sir." And the man went away with a crestfallen air.

Foresight Defined.

The children had read the word foresight in the reader, and the teacher was endeavoring to make it plain.

"Foresight," she said, "is looking ahead. Now, Freddie, you give me an example of foresight if you can."

"Well, foresight would be not to eat too much breakfast when you knew you were going out into the country to your grandmother's for dinner," explained the boy.—Indianapolis News.

Cheerfulness.

Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness and altogether past calculation its powers of endurance. Efforts to be permanently useful must be uniformly joyous—a spirit of all sunshine—graceful from very gladness—beautiful because bright.—Carlyle.

Hers.

"I suppose that you and your wife are two souls with but a single thought."

"That's about the situation, but about half the time she will not tell me what that thought is."—Philadelphia Record.

SPEAKERS FAVOR HAVING MILITIA COMPANY HERE

Appear At Public Hearing Monday Night In Council Chamber

Prominent men appeared at the hearing in the city council Monday evening and favored the appropriation of money to start a machine gun company in Quincy. There was no opposition. The speakers did not discuss the question at length but each gave what he believed to be pertinent reasons in favor of a company.

Hon. Russell A. Sears, former mayor made a strong plea and said that we are menaced daily by those who have no laws and recognize no authority and it is time for us to unite in the development of patriotism

The other speakers were Col. Warren E. Sweetser and Lieut. George M. Downes of the 6th Inf. M. V. M., Maj. Fred L. Jones of the surgeons staff of the 5th Regt., Lt. Col. Jesse F. Stevens of the inspectors generals department of the M. V. M., President Edward J. Fegan and former President John L. Hamilton of the Board of Trade, C. L. Pratt, superintendent of the Boston Gear works, President Frank Burgess of the Y. M. C. A. and Senator Langelier. Practically everyone in the audience stood when asked if they approved.

Col. Sweetser said the company would be part of the national guard and under the orders of the president, governor and when necessity required of the mayor of the city and of the sheriff of the county. He spoke of the equipment of the company and told of the four machine guns issued.

The city appropriation will eventually be returned. The state allows cities $900 where armories are not maintained. Lockers will be purchased from the balance for the 71 men and will be taken over by the state at the initial cost when an armory is built here. The only expense to the city will be the maintenance of a rifle range and the cost of a telephone. The hall can be rented subject to the approval of the adjutant general.

Col. Sweetser said the mayor can call out the company when fire and police departments prove inadequate. Every city and town in the state of more than 20,000 people except Quincy and many towns has a military company.

In speaking of the benefits of military training Col. Sweetser said no man can belong to such a force without being a better man for it, mentally physically and morally. To be a good citizen you must be a good soldier and vice versa. Employees realize the benefit of such training for it teaches care, discipline and promptness.

"I have found many men in the city enthusiastic over the proposition," he said. "There is considerable patriotism latent here. I have been told there is not, but the records of 1775, 1860 and '98 prove the contrary.

"The United States is one of the greatest countries in the world but in order to maintain our existence we must regard our military forces. We need only recall the experiences of the great countries which fell because they neglected their military forces.

"Any of the three or four great European nations could do all kinds of things to us. A soldier is not made in a day. It is as much a trade as any other. To send untrained men into the field is leading men like sheep to the slaughter. The Civil War was fought by untrained men and you know the results.

"The only question is, will the city be willing to shoulder the expense of having a company here?"

IS BRITISH CURRENCY

A British copper coin, bearing the date 1723, was dug up by workmen excavating for the cellar of a new house on the Elm street side of the Dr. Everett estate on Monday afternoon. The coin is well preserved and was about three feet below the surface.

The coin as found by Murdock Martin, employed by Henry M. Faxon who is developing the Everett property, when he inspected a compact mass on top of a shovelful of earth thrown up. The inscription could be easily read when the damp earth was worked off.

The reverse side of the coin bears the head of presumably the then king of England. Encircling it are the words, "Georgius, Deo Gratias, Rex." On the reverse is the figure of a woman, dressed in flowing garments and reclining against a harp. Above her head is the inscription, "Hibernia."

Mr. Martin has not had the coin examined by a collector. The spot where it was found is made land, having been filled in from time to time. It is thought the filling covered the coin as it lay on the original surface, probably 50 years ago.

ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY

Earl Fratus, 17 years, of Hollis avenue, Atlantic was thrown to the street Monday afternoon when the car of Chief Billings struck the basket on the rear of his motor cycle. The cycle was badly damaged but Fratus escaped serious injury.

Fratus was one of many who followed the fire apparatus to Rawson road and was standing astride of his machine near Hampden circle when Chief Billings and District Chief Stevenson appeared in sight.

Although the latter furiously rang the bell, the children of the neighborhood flocked into the street directly in the path of the auto. Several ran across in front of it and to avoid hitting them Chief Billings applied his brakes and swung to the side.

In doing so he hit the Fratus machine and the front wheels of his car passed over it. Fratus, who was thrown, picked himself up and said he was uninjured. When seen at his house later in the evening he complained of a lame hip.

The fire was in a pile of feathers in the cellar of the house of Thomas Musgrave of the Board of Health. The smoke curled through the house and alarmed the occupants. They summoned the apparatus. There was no property damage.

MEETING IS POSTPONED

COUNCIL SEND $580,000 BUDGET TO SECOND READING AFTER DEBATE

Down Councilman Smith's Amendments and Accept Report of Finance Committee With One Exception

A lively debate on amendments to the annual appropriation order, as reported by the finance committee, proposed by Councilman Smith, furnished the material for a lively debate on the order at Monday night's meeting of the city council. Several councilmen took part in the debate after which the amendments as proposed by Councilman Smith were rejected. An amendment proposed by President Whiton, who called Councilman O'Dowd to the chair, increasing the amount for the July Fourth celebration to $1,000 was accepted.

The budget, which was finally ordered to a second reading, calls for an appropriation of $580,207.00, instead of $583,007.00 as recommended by the mayor.

Another interesting matter was the public hearing on the petition for approval to establish a machine gun squad in Quincy. Col. Sweetser and Lieut. Downes of the 6th regiment, Frank Burgess, ex-Mayor Sears and several others spoke in favor, reciting the benefits that would be derived from the establishment of a militia company in Quincy, whose ideas as expressed met with the approval of a large number of citizens who stood when it was requested that all in favor rise. There was no opposition to the establishment of the company and after the hearing the matter went back to the finance committee. The full account of the hearing will be found elsewhere in today's issue.

The finance committee reported the annual appropriation order. The order as reported showed but few changes from the amounts set forth in the estimates of the mayor. The changes made by the committee were as follows:

In the amounts for the commissioner of public works the item of "$1,000 for clerk" is cut out and the item for "other expenses" is cut from $550 to $450.

The item for "other expenses" of the registrars is cut from $2,000 to $1,900.

The item for "care of city hall-buildings" is cut from $12,000 to $11,000.

The item for "other expenses" of the building inspector is cut from $700 to $559.

The item for "other expenses" of the Board of Health is cut from $1,500 to $1,300.

The item for the Planning Board of $250 is omitted.

The item for "July Fourth celebration" is cut from $1,000 to $600 and the proviso added "one hundred dollars to be expended in each ward for children's entertainment."

This makes the grand total $579,807. instead of $583,007.00, a difference of $3,200.

The cut of $1,000 in the commissioners budget, is the amount that was to be the salary of the purchasing agent, or clerk.

After the report of the committee had been accepted Councilman Smith offered the following amendments:

First by adding the following paragraph:

That neither the amounts nor any portion of amounts herein designated as "other expenses" shall be expended for any purpose similar to that for which an appropriation is herein made."

That the amount of $5,000 for the city hospital be stricken out and the figures $4,000 be substituted.

That the item for the celebration of the Fourth of July be stricken out.

In support of his motion Councilman Smith said that the first amendment aimed at what was considered an abuse. The idea was that the budget contained certain items for pay of clerks and what he desired was that no part of the item "other expenses" should be used to pay clerks for extra work. He had found by consulting the pay roll that clerks had received a regular salary as clerks and that they had received further compensation which had been charged to miscellaneous. If there is to be any salary paid to a clerk it should be charged to clerk and not to miscellaneous as had been done in the past. "I want to call things by their right name," he declared.

As to the city hospital he objected to the increase. He believed that the city was paying for matters that had been charged to it which should not have been.

As to the July 4th celebration to divide a small amount into different wards meant no celebration at all. "If we are to have a celebration in which all were interested that is different. The money should be expended in a lump and not divided."

Councilman Beeman said: "It is impossible for any department to say item by item what "other expenses" are to be used for. I believe that the mayor should be the boss and we should not tie his hands. I believe that he will follow out what he told the committee, that there would be no more of this kind of work this year. The trouble was that it was simply a matter of bookkeeping."

"The sum of $5,000 is small enough for the hospital. As for $600 for July 4th, when used in the centre it was all right. If there is to be money appropriated for a grand celebration that is one thing but if it is to be a small amount I do not see how we can have much of a celebration. The money expended for July 4th is a good thing, for it teaches patriotism and keeps people at home."

Councilman Richards said that as for the first amendment that had been thrashed out in the finance committee and it had been agreed to leave the matter to the mayor. As for the $5,000 for the hospital the extra $1,000 seemed necessary.

Councilman O'Dowd was then called to the chair and President Whiton taking the floor spoke at length on all three amendments. He said.—

"It is hard to explain these other expenses without using a hammer. My experience down stairs was that it is absolutely impossible to specify the amount. Its up to the mayor how the miscellaneous shall be expended. He can spend it where he pleases. If the mayor is obliged to sit in his office with his hands tied he can not get results. I believe that it would be better for the city to give the mayor a lump sum and let him use his judgment. We would get better results. I doubt the legality of the proposed amendment. I do not believe the council can tie the mayor's hands.

"As for the city hospital the institution has grown and grown and the appropriation is the same as it has been for years.

"There may have been some laxity in other years and city may not have got what belonged to it but by the system put into operation this year I believe that the city will get every cent and that it will not pay bills that belong to other places without getting a return from that place. The hospital is doing a great good for all.

THE FLYING BURGLAR.

The most advanced inventions of science are not always unmitigated blessings. The aeroplane is one of science's most wonderful creations and yet we may well question whether it has conferred any real benefit upon the human race.

One of the state's most difficult and most important task is the preservation of order among its inhabitants. Every state has a police force of some sort to protect the law abiding members of the community from those who are not law abiding. Will the aeroplane as it continues to develop reach a point where it will render more difficult the state's protection of its inhabitants. Bearing in mind what the aeroplane is credited with having accomplished in the Great War is it fanciful to conceive of the up-to-date burglar equipped with a powerful aeroplane which will enable him to fly through the night to the second story window of some respectable citizen, whom he may rob, and then before day breaks fly unseen to a point hundreds of miles away? Maybe it is fanciful. Five years ago it would have seemed fanciful to imagine an aeroplane flying over the English channel and hurling bombs upon a great city. And yet we are told that all lights are extinguished in London in the night time of the present era.

LAY THE DUST.

The city government should take steps effectively to lay the dust which has been such a nuisance to everybody the last few days. At least on the main street, where traffic is heavy, the nuisance should be abated. On Monday morning, for example, a person walking on Hancock street was sure to be covered with dust before he took many steps. Stores located close to the street found it next to impossible to keep their goods clean. Along about noon time a watering cart did do a little sprinkling but the effect was not very permanent.

At a time when some enterprising business men are contemplating an advertising campaign to "Boom Quincy" it is unfortunate to permit the streets to get in a condition which is anything but a desirable advertisement. The condition of the streets is one of the first things which a stranger notes when he goes to a city to see whether he wishes to make his home there. It is not feasible perhaps at this moment to begin repairing the streets, whose condition is so deplorable, but at least we should make an attempt to lay the dust.

A RIVAL.

Just what is the place of the motion picture in modern life has long been a bone of contention. Some see no good in the motion picture while others, just as bigoted, see nothing but good in the whirring film. It may be that both are wrong.

It is an illuminating fact, however, that the liquor men of Connecticut are seeking the passage of a law requiring the "movies" to pay the same license fee as saloons. Evidently the saloon keepers consider the motion picture a real rival of their business. We may all hope that it will continue to be a powerful rival.

ONE SMALL ADVANTAGE.

The balance sheet of the Great War is so overwhelming to the advantage of its evil results that it is well now and then to remind ourselves of the small, scattered items on the other side of the sheet. Among the effects of the war which are beneficial to the United States is the fact that since the beginning of the great conflict few of the earnings of workers in this country have gone to other lands. The post-office department reports that since the war began postal banks have been absorbing most of the earnings of aliens that formerly were sent home.

Surely the ministers who occupied pulpits Sunday have the right idea. These men are all working for the kingdom of Christ on earth and they are setting a good example by their practical illustration of the existence among them of Christian fellowship.

A yearly appropriation of $5000 by a city of 35,000 people to an institution which is doing the good work of the Quincy City hospital is little enough. We are glad to see Councilman Smith's motion to reduce the amount to $4000 was defeated by the city council.

DRASTIC ORDER PUT IN EFFECT

Britain Places Strong Commercial Ring Around Germany

WILL STRANGLE HER SHIPPING

Prohibits All Trade to and From Kaiser's Domains—Even Goods Shipped From Neutral Ports to Be Confiscated—Action Will Bring Strong Protest From the United States

London, March 16.—Great Britain has struck her promised blow against Germany. By issuing an order in council she throttled Germany's commerce in a drastic manner unprecedented in international law.

The decree practically declares a blockade of the German North sea coast, without using the precise term. This is contrary to all precedents, which require the presence of blockading warships.

To complete the program of "starving the kaiser" the government laid certain drastic regulations upon neutral commerce. These are designed to prevent Germany from exporting or importing any commodities through Holland or Scandinavian countries on the Baltic sea controlled by the German navy.

The "blockade" order is effective at once. In fact, the government served notice that it had been in effect ever since March 1, when Premier Asquith, in his house of commons speech, gave notice to the world of the allies' intention to put a commercial ring around Germany.

The order contains provisions not only for holding up ships to and from German ports, but for confiscation of goods of German origin or destination which are shipped from neutral ports. Under this decree the civilian population of Germany, as well as the army, will be cut off from any form of overseas traffic so far as it lies within the power of the allies to bring this about.

The government expects strong protests from the United States, Holland and the Scandinavian countries, whose commerce is hit hard by the order in council. The English reply will be that drastic action of an unprecedented sort was made necessary by Germany's alleged violation of all principles of international law in torpedoing unarmed merchantmen. Furthermore, assurance was given that ample protection will be given neutrals in the British prize courts.

The government laid emphasis on the statement by Asquith that, while neutral commerce might suffer, no neutral ships would be endangered nor lives of non-combatants imperilled in carrying out the provisions of the decree.

In this respect, the British action was contrasted with the note of warning from Germany that her submarine warfare might result in the loss of neutral ships and cost the lives of non-combatants.

AS VIEWED IN WASHINGTON

Protest Coming Against Flagrant Violation of Treaty Rights

The United States will make a strong protest against England's latest shipping order, as a flagrant violation of international law and of the rights of neutrals.

Failure specifically to proclaim a blockade, to be maintained by ships of war off Germany's seaports, is declared to make the order in council as issued in London a flagrant violation of the treaty rights of the United States with France and England.

The main protest will be directed against the Anglo-French declaration that the allies will not permit German manufactured goods to be transmitted to this country, either direct from German ports or through Holland or Norway.

A SINGULAR COINCIDENCE

Exposition Band Played Death March as Beachey Was Killed

San Francisco, March 16.—At the exact moment when Lincoln Beachey dropped 3000 feet from the sky to his death while making an exhibition flight before thousands of exposition visitors, the exposition band was playing Siegfried's Death March from Gotterdamerung.

This was recalled by those who witnessed the death of the great aviator, whose end was as dramatic as was his career, during which he performed feats which no other American airman dared attempt.

COE HUNT ABANDONED

Missing Man Is Believed to Be Mentally Afflicted

Boston, March 16.—Search for Henry C. Coe, Jr., the oil salesman strangely missing from his home for the past month and a half, has been practically given up. Dr. Coe of New York, father of the missing man, believes his son is suffering from a mental aberration and that until he recovers his normal mind he will not be found.

Mrs. Coe, wife of the oil salesman, believes that the theory held by her father-in-law is the true solution to the mystery and that her husband will return to her sometime.

SPEAKERS FAVOR

Senator Langelier said Quincy should not continue to be the only city of any size in the commonwealth which did not maintain a company and that one way to get an armory is first to get a company.

Councilman Craig asked how long it would be before the legislature built an armory here and the senator replied that while it was hard to say because everything is now economy the city would undoubtedly be regarded in this respect as it should be when the matter comes up.

John L. Hamilton expressed his approval to the company locating here.

Lieut. George M. Downes of the 6th Regt. M. V. M., detailed to form the Quincy company, said the government had provided equipment costing $12,000 now in possession of the 6th regiment and the state had contributed $2,000.

Frank M. Burgess president of the Y. M. C. A. spoke of the opportunity it furnished for young men who desire to join a military company.

"I wish there was a company to help me out some years ago," said Mr. Burgess, in speaking of a fire which destroyed his plant at Norfolk Downs. "The fire department was inadequate and it cost me thousands of dollars because I did not get the help to which I was entitled."

C. L. Pratt, superintendent of the Boston Gear Works, spoke from the standpoint of the manufacturer. He said his factory employ about 150 men whom he hoped would join the company. He said he spent 14 years of his life with the militia of a neighboring state, eight years as a commissioned officer, and that although a poor man he would not take $2000 for his experience in the service.

He said Rule 8 in his shop was obedience to superior officers and he knew of nothing which would develop character so quickly as military training.

Councilman McDonald asked how men were paid when on a tour of duty and Mr. Pratt said the state paid them and that the law prevented the discharge of men for the performance of military duty.

Lt. Col. Jesse F. Stevens, attached to the staff of the inspector general, said he expected to see Quincy put back on the military map.

Edward J. Fegan, president of the Board of Trade, said Quincy citizens did not lack patriotism and that there were many men present who had served under the flag. The $2000 needed could well be spread over the years of the past when no company was maintained here.

Hon. Russell A. Sears, former mayor of the city, said the great menace of the country is the lack of reverence of its citizens, lack of respect for law and power, and everything that tends toward training in those respects should be encouraged. "There is nothing more potent in bringing out recognition of these things than a military organization," he declared.

"When we are menaced by those who have no laws and recognize no authority it is time for us to unite in the development of a respect for the flag."

Maj. Fred L Jones of the surgeons staff of the 5th Regt. M. V. M. said that properly educated military men are the best forms of life insurance citizens can have. They will know how to fight. Those who are drafted when the time comes will die of disease on the field because they do not know how to fight. Men in military companies are taught everything from fighting to keeping well, particularly sex hygiene which is not taught in the school. "Military men are taught never to make excuses," he remarked. "Our big business industries may have a flareup among the employees at any moment and we may have to send to the little town of Hingham, down the line for the military forces there."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

PEST OF BIRD-DOM

Editor, The Ledger:

No, I do not mean a hawk, for even our most notorious chicken thieves do not do as much harm as the pest that I am to speak of.

I mean nothing more nor less than our common English sparrow. This bird, according to Ned Dearborn of the Biological Survey, feeds upon the seeds of vegetables as well as some weeds as soon as they form, and also nips off tender young vegetables, especially peas and lettuce as they appear above ground. It takes the buds and flowers of many trees and vines, as well as the fruit. It steals a large amount of chicken and pigeon feed, and damages wheat and other grains.

Now these birds which do so much damage destroy the eggs and young of many birds whose food is 100 per cent insects. They also mob our native birds.

Will you allow this? These birds are already next to the robin as the most common bird in the country. If you cannot kill the old birds, at least tear down their nests and prevent them from breeding.

MORE DEDICATIONS.

There is no place in the world where a confirmed globe trotter is more likely to feel perfectly at home than at the exposition. At every turn he is reminded of some country or state that he has visited; while he is admiring the beautiful Italian towers of the exhibition palaces, a group of dark skinned Cubans hurries by, chattering soft Spanish; Japanese girls in embroidered kimonos, and Chinese girls in their modest, blue satin trousers, serve tea in rival tea rooms. Down the avenue of the Nations is architecture from all parts of the world, while in the Avenue of States there is a home and a warm reception for every American.

So it happens that, being an inveterate traveller, I go about filled with reminiscences. Last week the dedication of the Philippine building and the Japanese building brought back memories of five years in the Orient; yesterday afternoon was Oregon's day, where I have just spent three years, and Hawaii's where my steamer stopped for a perfect day when I crossed the Pacific.

The Oregon building is one of the most interesting on the grounds. Practically all the buildings are constructed of staff and plaster, but Oregon has shipped down from her magnificent virgin forests great trunks of Oregon fir, and heavy timbers, and built a modern Parthenon, with noble columns straight from the forest, the bark still on. It is related at the Oregon building that a San Franciscan, admiring the columns very much, but quite unable to believe that they were real trees, innocently asked one of the Oregon guards for the name of the admirable artist who had so realistically nailed the bark on the columns. "Certainly," said the Oregon promptly, "it was God." For a moment the Californian was nonplussed; then he retorted quickly, "Why, I thought God was working for California!"

The Oregonians are particularly proud of their flag pole, also, which was contributed by Astoria, and rises 251 feet in the air in one piece. From a distance, looking toward the Exposition, the three things which stand out most clearly above all the rest are the glittering tower of jewels, the flag on the Oregon flag pole, and the gold dome of our own Massachusetts State House.

FUNDS FOR CHAPEL COME IN DAILY

Plans for the proposed Memorial Chapel at Mt. Wollaston cemetery have been practically completed by A. E. Wright, the architect, who offered to design the building when he learned granite manufacturers of the city were to contribute the stone necessary for its erection.

Assistant Court Officer Arthur B. Hultman, who suggested the chapel, has received considerable support from men of the city and additional pledges of support are received daily. The following comments have been culled from letters received today:

Quincy Avenue Granite Co., William Adrian, proprietor: "We will be very glad to contribute a stone for the proposed chapel."

Smith Granite Co.—"We are heartily in sympathy with your plan to erect a chapel. We wish you success in your undertaking and assure you of our assistance."

J. N. White & Cons—"We will be pleased to help you. We think it would be a grand improvement to the cemetery and a credit to the city.

Henry C. Smalley—"I believe that the contemplated building such as you mention would be a desirable thing for the people who are interested in the Mt. Wollaston cemetery and you may count on us furnishing a stone."

CARE OF ARTICLES OF SILK

Proper Washing Is, of All Things, the First Requisite for Their Preservation.

Most women wear silk hosiery and vests, and they often wonder what they can do to save the wear on these articles.

There are a few thing which can be done, among which is their care.

Everyone knows that perspiration will cause anything to wear out quickly, but these frail silk garments wear out much easier than cotton or woolen cloth. Thus if each one would rinse out stockings and vests as soon as they are removed it would be found that they would wear about three times as long as they do without.

It takes only a few minutes to wash these things through the hands, which avoids the rubbing which they are likely to get if they are washed with the general wash. If they are stretched they can be used again in the morning.

Another thing which is important about these silk vests and stockings, especially if they are white, is the fact that if washed with other clothes they will turn yellow. In some cases people use one teaspoonful of borax in the water, and find that the clothes will remain white.

Of course, when these things are being washed soft warm water and white soap should be used, which is never rubbed on the silk, but make suds and then rub between the hands. It is surprising how few pairs of stockings and undervests are required when they are cared for in this way.

This is also true of white silk gloves or silk shirt waists in white. This is the reason many young women have what is usually termed "a wash out." To housewives it is strange to do washing in this way, but it is necessary to consider expenses. It is a very economical method.

MUCH TRIMMING IS ORDER

Some Kind of Ornament Indispensable With Even the Most Severe Costumes Worn.

Undoubtedly it is to be a year of trimmings; the plainer the costume and cut, the more trimming always has been applied to it. These begin in a small way with braidings, tiny strappings of cloth, and on evening clothes, single rows of other trimming.

These we have already had.

In particular we have had the military braidings, which began in simple frogs across the front of the coats; now these trimmings extend to the skirts, and several of the new tailormades show braidings on the skirts and sleeves as well.

In evening gowns, especially the black ones, trimmings of jet are more and more used, in crossed bands, and in the novel "jet tulle," one of the very newest and most original of trimmings.

It is made by the yard, in almost any width; is as light as the proverbial feather, and presents what is apparently an unbroken sheet of glittering jet to the world of fashion. At the same time it is as soft, supple and easy to drape as chiffon. How it is made is a complete mystery.

One cannot imagine how a hard and glittering substance like jet can possibly have been bewitched into such softness while preserving its brilliant appearance. Be this as it may, there it is, and a more lovely trimming cannot be found.

DAINTY SPRING DRESS

Dress of brown panne velvet with open front tunic. Sash of wide braid. Fur trimming on waist.

Veils That Ripple.

Have you seen the new large square veils that have their corners rounded off so that they can be thrown over the hat and ripple about the shoulders? The edge is overbound with moire ribbon that holds them in these pretty folds.

MAYOR'S DESIRE IS NOT FAVORED

Council Committee Omits Appropriation For Purchasing Agent

MAYOR TO DROP MATTER

The report of the finance committee of the city council, which is printed elsewhere, eliminated the item of $1000 for a clerk in the highway department. There was no discussion upon this point at the city council meeting Monday night and the report was ordered to a second reading with the $1000 still eliminated. This is taken by many as a slap at the mayor's project of a purchasing agent, for which the sum was to be used.

It is the opinion of many of the members of the council that if the office of purchasing agent it should be done by special ordinance and not indirectly.

When asked this morning what course he had in mind in view of this action of the council the mayor said, "If the council do not see fit to appropriate any money for this office I shall do nothing. I still believe however that money can be saved the city. The few weeks in which we had a purchasing clerk demonstrated that fact, for he saved his salary even in that short time.

"I realize that what might be called a first class purchasing agent can not be obtained for a small sum and my idea was to put in an agent with a small salary to try the scheme out, then if it was proved to be a good investment a larger sum could be added for the office another year. We could get a first class man, I believe, for $1,300 or $2,000 and even now that it would pay. The finance committee as I gathered it seemed to think if there was to be a purchasing agent that an ordinance establishing the office should be first created. However, if the council do not think it wise to have such an officer well and good. I only wish I had time to give to the purchase of supplies for the city, for I could readily save the city a good sum."

Although nothing was said at Monday nights meeting in regard to this matter it would not be surprising that if when the order comes up again at the next meeting that an effort was made to put that sum back in the budget. That the order will not pass without considerable more debate is almost certain for it is rumored about city hall, that one of the councilmen is to question every head of department as to how his other expenses are to be expended.

NO PIG SQUEALS IN COURT ROOM

Death of Shoat Stops All Proceedings

There will be no pig squeals to disturb the serenity of the district court for the shoat which was to have been the principle exhibit in a civil suit and which was counted on to furnish the entertainment having died, in consequence of which the case has not been entered.

The parties concerned were Mrs. Delia Gutro of Mill street and John Craig of Washington street. The former purchased two sucklings for $14, paying $7 on account, agreeing to pay the balance when a check was cashed. The shoat in the meantime was stricken with illness and payment was held up. Both parties retained counsel, the former Atty. John D. Mackay and the latter Atty. Philip T. Sullivan.

Craig brought suit to recover the balance and it was to have been entered Saturday. The death of the pig formally closed the proceedings.

Many people of the city were looking forward to the hearing before Judge Avery and the indications were that the case would surpass the famous dog case heard some weeks ago.

The young men of the Finnish Temperance society are making plans for their first grand dancing party to be held Saturday evening, Mar. 27th, in Finnish Temperance hall on Nelson street.

CITY COUNCIL

"As for the amount for July 4th if ever $1,000 was well expended it is here. I had rather do away with the police on July Fourth than not have a celebration. It takes about $2,000 to have a celebration and this year the times are so hard that the amount could not be collected. It is proposed to cut out the parade and most of the sports and to have entertainments for the children and fireworks in the evening. Has not the money been well expended in other years. No fires and not an arrest for drunkenness. People must be entertained. Do not tie the mayor's hands. If we are afraid of him tie him up, but if not give him the full length of the rope. I hope the budget will go through as recommended by the mayor.

Councilman Smith asked if the president could explain how it would tie the mayors' hands.

Councilman Whiton replied: "Take the assessors, for instance. It would be impossible to pay clerks for extra time."

Councilman Fuller said that last year it had cost Atlantic about $1,000 for its celebration and the $600 mentioned will not go far.

Councilman McDonald thought it a good budget. "I do not think it possible to put in the items under "other expenses." If we tie the mayor's hands it will be bad. I oppose the amendment."

Councilman Smith asked how it would tie the mayor's hands to which Councilman McDonald replied "There is no sense in having a censor here to explain. The budget is all right."

Councilman McGrath said: "The mayor promised the committee that there would be no charging salaries to miscellaneous this year in the light of that of that I do not see the necessity of the motion. As for the July 4th amount as expended last year it was useless. In the morning there was a trades parade in which we saw "get your shoes tapped at Jones'" and in another case a hen man from Braintree picked the feathers from hens all through the parade and these feathers were scattered all over the streets and required a week's work by the street department to clean them up. We should begin at the bottom to cultivate patriotism, and that is with the children. The $600 is all we can afford this year."

Councilman Griffin called for a division of the question.

Councilman Smith, "In spite of what the mayor said the same thing as last year is being done. A clerk is receiving a salary as clerk and another amount which is charged to miscellaneous."

He then asked the city auditor if it was not a fact that last week a certain clerk received a sum as clerk and an extra amount charged to something else." The city auditor replied in the affirmative.

Councilman McGrath said: "If this is so we had better stop right here and straighten things out."

The amendment proposed by Councilman Smith was then put to a vote and rejected by a vote of 3 yes and 17 no.

By a rising vote the council rejected the proposition to cut the amount for the hospital from $5,000 to $4,000.

On the amendment relative to July 4th Councilman Whiton moved to amend the amendment by striking out the words "$100 to be expended in each ward for childrens entertainment" also to strike out the figures "600 and substitute the figures "1,000". This was voted on a rising vote of 15 yes and 5 no.

The order was then ordered to a second reading.

OTHER BUSINESS

Communications were received from the mayor appointing Paul M. Lyons a public weigher and F. W. Hollis and John Appleton special constables. Confirmed.

The electric light company was granted a relocation of poles on Chubbuck street and a hearing ordered on a petition for a pole location on Mechanic street.

Petitions were received as follows: For children to appear on the stage at Houghs Neck, which was granted. To extend the sewer on Granite street to executive. To accept part of Butler road as a public street, to old a part of Billings road, to accept Linden street, to accept Watson, to build Arthur street, all of which were referred to the street committee.

Many applications for minor licences were received and referred to the license committee.

Hassan Alli applied for a pool table license but was given leave to withdraw. He was convicted in court yesterday on charges of gaming on the Lord's Day and keeping a gaming nuisance.

The ordinance committee reported the Planning Board ordinance which was passed.

The finance committee reported this order transferring the receipts from sewer house connections to the appropriation for that purpose. Order passed.

The finance committee recommended that the city council call the attention of the mayor to the large amounts that are being expended for the up-keep of the city automobiles.

A large amount of new business was offered as follows:

Amending the Hawkers and Peddlers ordinance by increasing the fee for the license from $2 to $4.

Other new business offered was $1,500 for a granolithic sidewalk on Washington and Hancock streets about the First church; $350 for a granolithic sidewalk on Whitney road; granolithic sidewalk on Walker street; $8000 to rebuild Avon way; $5000 to rebuild Willard street from the parkway to the railroad depot; to accept Lowe street and Glenwood way; $1,500 to rebuild Monroe road; to oil Greenwood avenue all of which were referred to the street committee

On an order offered by Councilman Smith the pool room licenses granted Victor Ruska and Carl Lehto were revoked. These men were convicted in court last week.

An order for lights at Squantum was referred to the executive.

Councilman Smith offered orders granting gasoline permits which were adopted.

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL.

Quincy Will Be Compelled to Provide One.

State House, Boston. March 16. Twenty seven cities and towns in Massachusetts that have neglected to comply with the law requiring all cities and towns of more than 10,000 inhabitants to establish tuberculosis dispensaries will be required to meet the requirements of the statutes before July 1. Quincy is among the cities that have failed to comply with the law and immediate steps will have to be taken in order to avoid prosecution.

Formal notification to this effect in accordance with a recent vote of the public health council is being sent to these cities and towns this week by Dr. Allan J. McLaughlin, commissioner of health.

The letter that is going out this week is the first step in the campaign to be waged by the reorganized health department of Massachusetts against the "great white plague."

The next step, according to reliable information, will be a requirement along somewhat similar lines that such cities as have failed to establish tuberculosis hospitals shall proceed at once to live up to the provisions of the law in this respect. The cities will probably be allowed until September 1 to establish the hospitals as required by the statutes.

Of the 35 cities in Massachusetts, there are 18 that to date have not observed the law with regard to the tuberculosis hospitals, and 17 towns of more than 10,000 inhabitants that may be required to establish such hospitals if ordered to do so by the public health council. The cities are required to establish these hospitals but it is unlikely that more than a few of the towns will be compelled to follow suit.

Failure upon the part of the municipalities affected to meet these new orders of the public health council will meet with prompt action upon the part of the attorney general of Massachusetts.

DISTRICT COURT.

Sam Tarver of Sumner street was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Satisfaction acknowledged and case dismissed on payment of $3 costs.

Peter E. Burns and Howard Johnson of Weymouth were arraigned for taking smelts with a net and were fined $50. each.

The St. Mary's Holy Name society will receive holy communion Sunday at the eight o'clock mass. This will be done in accord with the degree of Pope Benedict to observe Peace Sunday in all Catholic churches on that day.

AT THE THEATRE

One of the most gripping photoplays that has ever appeared in Quincy was shown at the Kincaide Theater Monday. Its name implies its story, "A Fool There Was" and R. Hilliard, the star in the original production, appears in the leading role. The theme is taken from Rudyard Kiplings poem "The Vampire." The acting in this photo is beyond compare. The last scene where the vampire throws roses on the body of the man she has ruined can never be erased from the memory of one who has seen it.

The last two reels of the "Master Key," which has been running serially at the Auditorium Theater, is to be shown at Kincaide's Monday and Tuesday. It is an interesting play which can be followed without seeing previous reels.

Ed. Winchester heads the vaudeville bill this week. He is a clever musician, playing the drum and xylophone, and is also a good monologist. Kelly & Berg, two comedians with their own scenery, made a hit with the packed house, while the Clipper Quartette was well received.

The show will be repeated today and Wednesday.

FINAL GAME ON MAR. 24

The final game between Raymond Josephine and Thomas Rogers for the pool championship will be played Wednesday evening March 24th at 8 o'clock at the Alpha hall rooms. The series was started several weeks ago and each player won three games.

The final game was to have been played then but owing to a death in Josephine's family was postponed. The odds seem to favor Josephine as the game is being played on his home table but the West Quincy lad has been practising and is in the best of form. A large gallery has witnessed every game in the series.

The Coyle quintette took all four points from the Sullivans at Wardwells alleys Monday night and jumped into the lead in the Knights of Columbus league. In doing so they set a new team total record and protected the team single record.

The individual star of the evening was "Bill" Mahan who made a new three string record of 336 and equaled the single record of 130 held by Russell Sullivan. Mahan opened with 118, dropped to 88 in his second and then equalled the record. Peter Sullivan of the Coyles team tripled with a single of 124, 107 and 76, cutting out accounts for his low closing. Thompson his team-mate also tripled. Several others passed the century but did not get 300 in their totals.

CONCERT AT BRAINTREE.

An enjoyable lecture and song recital was given in the Braintree Town hall Sunday evening before a large audience. About a thousand were present. Rev. Hugh F. Blunt, pastor of St. Francis church delivered an interesting address on early Irish music, illustrating his remarks by graphic and witty allusions to the early composers and their works.

Father Blunt also sang some pleasing solos. Other artists were Mrs. Albert Williamson, soloist at St. Peter's church, Dorchester; Miss Amelia Rockett of Boston, violinist and Miss Harriet Joyce of Boston, contralto. Miss Julia Donahue of Boston, pianist pleased all by her fine work as accompanist.

FIVE FIRES IN BRAINTREE

Sunday was a busy day for the firemen of the Braintree department which was called out five different times. About 9.30 o'clock in the forenoon. G. Bagonzi notified fire headquarters that his residence, the large block at the corner of Hall avenue and Washington street, South Braintree, was full of smoke. Chief Tenney and auto combination 1 responded immediately and found a brisk blaze in the studding on the second floor. The funnel from the kitchen range passes through a wall and under a stairway to the chimney and this stove pipe had become red hot, igniting the woodwork. When Chief Tenney arrived a 2x3 joist had been burned through and he said that in another five minutes the fire would have assumed dangerous proportions.

He chopped a hole in the wall higher up and a chemical stream from an extinguisher quickly smothered the flames. The damage will probably be about fifteen or twenty dollars.

This is one of many occasions when the quick response of the apparatus and the intelligent work of the chief prevented serious consequences, this locality in particular being one of the worst fire hazards in town.

Later in the day the department was called out to extinguish grass and brush fires near the Stevens Willis tack factory and near the house of Antoine Johnson in Johnson lane.

An alarm from Box 34 about 3 o'clock the same afternoon was for a grass fire on Prospect street in Precinct two and still later there was an alarm from Box 147 for a brush fire on land off Dewey avenue. None of these damaged any property.

WILL BE REAL BATTLE ROYAL

Makaria and Y. M. C. A. to Contest B. B. Championship

The Makaria basket ball team season comes to a close with a series with the Y. M. C. A. for the championship of the city. There is no other team strong enough to contest its claim.

The team has played 11 games and has won seven, rolling up 384 points against 278 for its opponents. It lost to Somerville Y. M. C. A., Cunningham gym., St. Alphonsus A. A. and the North Easton A. A. All games lost were played away from home.

The first game of the series will be played Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A. and the fans are anticipating one of the spiciest contests ever seen here, since both teams are up to the standard set by former fast teams.

Big Bill Smith, the six footer who plays centre on the Makarias, is a good shot and a fast player. He formerly played with the Dorchester High school team.

Andrews and Kemp, the two crack forwards, have scored the bulk of the points, and the Y. M. C. A. backs will have their work cut out for them in trying to keep them from shooting accurately.

Edward Jenkins and Harry Glover, Makaria's backs, are in fine shape and are patiently awaiting the start of the series. Jenkins is the old Quincy A. A. star and without a doubt the best back in the city today. Glover is in a class by himself when it comes to speed. Small of stature, he has the agility of "Bill" Duggan, who some years ago made everyone sit up and take notice when the St. Mary's team claimed the state championship.

Manager Nicoll is convinced his quintette will romp away with the series but the showing of the Y. M. C. A. indicates that there will be no romping and the winner will earn any title that may go with the victory.

The record of the Makaria team to date is:

PAGE RESERVES THAW DECISION

Prisoner Claims Right to Return to New Hampshire

STATE TAKES CONTRARY VIEW

Would Send Slayer of White Back to Matteawan While He Is Within Jurisdiction, Regardless of How He Happens to Be There—Fight Is Thought to Be Near End

New York, March 16.—After hearing arguments on the motion to return Harry K. Thaw to New Hampshire, from which place he was extradited to New York to be tried on the conspiracy charge on which he was acquitted, Justice Page in the supreme court reserved decision. Thaw was returned to the Tombs.

Thaw's fight for freedom is believed to be nearing the end. Authoritative intimations that the state of New York is willing to decide once and for all through a jury trial whether the slayer of Stanford White is sane are expected to result in an acceptance by Thaw of that plan.

Attorneys for Thaw presented arguments and briefs to sustain their contention that Thaw, having been found not guilty of the charge against him, should be returned to the state from which he was extradited.

Special Deputy Attorney General Kennedy argued for the state that, all things considered, the fact remained that the commitment upon which Thaw was first sent to Matteawan was still valid and that Thaw, being within this jurisdiction, regardless of how he happened to be here, should be returned to the hospital for the insane. He asked further that Thaw be placed in the hospital until some decision was made upon the motion or until Thaw should be released by the process of law.

Deputy Attorney General Cook, who has been assisting in the prosecution, received a letter bearing a Boston postmarkk threatening his life in the event of Thaw failing to gain his freedom. A similar warning was recently received by Kennedy.

FATHER OF HER CHILD

Charge Brought by New Haven Woman Against Virginius Mayo

New Haven, March 16.—Virginius J. Mayo, whose dual life was brought to light through the recent suicide of his stenographer, Lilliam M. Cook of Brooklyn, was made the defendant in a civil suit brought by Miss Susan N. E. Wahlers of this city, who alleges that he is the father of her 2-year-old girl. The action seeks to have him support the child.

Miss Wahlers was formerly employed as a clerk at the radiator company of which Mayo is the head.

Mayo was taken before Justice of the Peace Land and entered a plea of not guilty. The case was continued until Saturday under bonds of $1000 furnished by his attorney.

Little Rock, March 16.—Eleven prisoners held under sentence of death at the state penitentiary will be electrocuted as a result of the failure of the legislature to pass a bill abolishing capital punishment.

Governor Hays had announced he would permit no capital punishment in the state until after the adjournment of the legislature, and that he would commute the sentences of those men condemned to die if the bill abolishing the death penalty passed.

Ross just missed an average of 100 while the West Quincy boy's averages were somewhat less. The score:

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Jameson, a newspaper man. Enraged at the determined effort which Elaine and Craig Kennedy are making to put an end to his crimes, the Clutching Hand, as this strange criminal is known, resorts to all sorts of the most diabolical schemes to put them out of the way. Each chapter of the story tells of a new plot against their lives and of the way the great detective uses all his skill to save this pretty girl and himself from death.

TWELFTH EPISODE

THE BLOOD CRYSTALS.

"On your right is the residence of Miss Elaine Dodge, who is pursuing the famous master criminal known as the Clutching Hand."

The barker had been grandiloquently pointing out the residences of noted New Yorkers as the big sight-seeing car lumbered along through the streets.

No one had paid any attention to the unobtrusive Chinaman who sat inconspicuously in the middle of the car. He was Mr. Wong Long Sin, but no one saw anything particularly mysterious about an Oriental visitor, more or less, viewing New York city.

Wong was of the mandarin type, with long, drooping mustache, well dressed in American clothes, and conforming to the new customs of an Occidentalized China.

Anyone, however, who had been watching Long Sin would have seen that he showed much interest whenever any of the wealthy residents of the city were mentioned. The name of Elaine Dodge seemed particularly to strike him. He listened with subtle interest to what the barker said and looked keenly at the Dodge house.

The sight-seeing car had passed the house, when he rose slowly and motioned that he wanted to be let off. The car stopped, he alighted and slowly rambled away, evidently marveling greatly at the strange customs of these uncouth Westerners.

Elaine was going out when she met Perry Bennett almost on the steps of the house.

"I've brought you the watch," remarked Bennett. "Thought I'd like to give it to you myself."

He displayed the watch which he himself had bought a couple of days before for her birthday. He had called for it himself at the jeweler's, where it had now been regulated.

"Oh, thank you," exclaimed Elaine. "Won't you come in?"

They had scarcely greeted each other when Long Sin strolled along. Neither of them, however, had time to notice the quiet Chinaman who passed the house, looking at Elaine sharply out of the corner of his eye. They entered and Wong disappeared down the street.

"Isn't it a beauty?" cried Elaine, holding it out from her as they entered the library, and examining it with great appreciation. "And, oh, do you know, the strangest thing happened yesterday! Sometimes Mr. Kennedy acts too queerly for anything."

She related how Craig had burst in on her and Aunt Josephine and had almost torn the other watch off her wrist.

"Another watch?" repeated Bennett, amazed. "It must have been a mistake. Kennedy is crazy."

"I don't understand it, myself," murmured Elaine.

* * * * * * *

Long Sin was revolving some dark and devious plan beneath his impassive Oriental countenance. He was no ordinary personage. In fact, he was astute enough to have no record. He left that to his tools.

This remarkable criminal had established himself in a hired apartment down town.

Long Sin, now in rich Oriental costume, was reclining on a divan smoking a strange-looking pipe and playing with two pet white rats. Each white rat had a gold band around his leg, to which was connected a gold chain about a foot in length, and the chains ended in rings which were slipped over Wong's little fingers. Ordinarily he carried the pets up the capacious sleeve of each arm.

A little Chinese girl, also in native costume, entered and bowed deferentially.

"A Miss Mary Carson," she lisped in soft English.

"Let the lady enter," waved Long Sin, with a smile of subtle satisfaction.

The girl bowed again and silently left the room, returning with a handsome, very well-dressed white woman.

It would be difficult to analyze just what the fascination was that Long Sin exercised over Mary Carson. But as the servant left the room, Mary bowed almost as deferentially as the little Chinese girl. Wong merely nodded in reply.

After a moment he slowly rose and took from a drawer a newspaper clipping. Without a word he handed it to Mary. She looked at it with interest, as one woman always does at the picture of another pretty woman. It was a newspaper cut of Elaine, under which was:

"ELAINE DODGE, THE HEIRESS, WHOSE BATTLE WITH THE CLUTCHING HAND IS CREATING WORLD-WIDE INTEREST."

"Now," he began at last, breaking the silence, "I'll show you just what I want you to do."

He went over to the wall and took down a curious long Chinese knife from a scabbard which hung there conspicuously.

"See that?" he added, holding it up.

Before she could say a word he had plunged the knife, apparently, into his own breast.

"Oh!" cried Mary, startled.

She expected to see him fall. But nothing happened. Wong laughed. It was an oriental trick knife, in which the blade telescoped into the handle.

"Look at it," he added, handing it to her.

Long Sin took a bladder of water from a table near by and concealed it under his coat. "Now, you stab me," he directed.

Mary hesitated. But he repeated the command and she plunged the knife gingerly at him. It telescoped. He made her try it over, and she stabbed him more resolutely. The water from the bladder poured out.

"Good!" cried Long Sin, much pleased. "Now," he added, seating himself beside her, "I want you to lure Elaine here."

* * * * * * *

I had been amusing myself by rigging up a contrivance by which I could make it possible to see through, or, rather, over, a door.

Kennedy, who had been busy at the other end of the laboratory, happened to look over in my direction. "What's the big idea, Walter?" he asked.

It was, I admit, a rather cumbersome and clumsy affair.

"Well, you see, Craig," I explained, "you put the top mirror through the transom of a door and—"

Kennedy interrupted with a hearty burst of laughter. "But suppose the door has no transom?" he asked, pointing to his own door.

I scratched my head thoughtfully. I had assumed that the door would have a transom. A moment later Craig went to the cabinet and drew out a tube about as big around as a putty blower and as long.

"Now, here's what I call my detectascope," he remarked. "None of your mirrors for me."

"I know," I said somewhat nettled, "but what can you see through that putty blower? A keyhole is just as good."

Elaine Took Out the Package of Bills.

"Do you realize how little you can really see through a keyhole?" he replied confidently. "Try it over there."

I did, and, to tell the truth, I could see merely a little part of the hall. Then Kennedy inserted the detectascope.

"Look through that," he directed.

I put my eye to the eye piece and gazed through the bulging lens of the other end. I could see almost the whole hall.

* * * * * * *

Elaine was playing with Rusty when Jennings brought in a card on which was engraved the name, "Miss Mary Carson," and underneath in pencil was written "Belgian Relief Committee."

"How interesting," commented Elaine, rising and accompanying Jennings into the drawing room. "I wonder what she wants?"

"Very pleased to greet you, Miss Carson," she greeted her visitor.

"You see, Miss Dodge," began Mary, "We're getting up this movement to help the Belgians and we have splendid backing. Just let me show you some of the names on our committee."

She handed Elaine a list.

"I've just been sent to see if I cannot persuade you to join the committee and attend a meeting at Mrs. Riverton's," she went on.

"Why—er," considered Elaine, thoughtfully, "er—yes. It must be all right with such people in it."

"Can you go down with me now?"

"Just as well as later," agreed Elaine.

They went out together, and as they were leaving the house a man who had been loitering outside looked at Elaine, then fixedly at her companion.

No sooner had they gone than he sped off to a car waiting around the corner. In the dark depths was a sinister figure, the master criminal himself. The watcher had been an emissary of the Clutching Hand.

"Chief," he whispered eagerly, "you know Adventurous Mary? Well, she's got Elaine Dodge in tow!"

"The deuce!" cried Clutching Hand. "Then we must teach Mary Carson, or whoever she is working for, a lesson. No one shall interfere with our affairs. Follow them!"

* * * * * * *

Elaine and Mary had gone downtown, talking animatedly—walking down the avenue toward Mrs. Rivington's apartment.

Meanwhile, Wong Sin, still in his Chinese costume, was explaining to another male servant just what he wished done, pointing out the dagger on the wall and placing the bladder under his jacket. A box of opium was on the table, and he was giving most explicit directions. It was into such a web that Elaine was being unwittingly led by Mary.

Entering the hallway of the apartment, Mary rang the bell.

The servant opened the door and Elaine and Mary entered. He closed the door and almost before they knew it was gone into the back room.

Elaine gazed about it in trepidation. But before she could say anything, Mary, with a great show of surprise, exclaimed. "Why, I must have made a mistake. This isn't Mrs. Rivington's apartment. How stupid of me."

They looked at each other a moment. Then each laughed nervously, as together they started to go out of the door. It was locked!

Quickly they ran to another door. It was locked also.

Just then the Chinaman entered and stood a moment gazing at them. They turned and Elaine recoiled from him. Wong bowed.

"Oh, sir," cried Mary, "we've made a mistake. Can't you tell us how to get out?"

"No speke Englis," he said, gliding out again from the room and closing the door.

Elaine and Mary looked about in despair.

"What shall we do?" asked Elaine.

Mary said nothing, but with a hasty glance discovered on the wall the knife which Wong had already told her about. She took it from its scabbard. As she did so the Chinaman returned with a tray on which were queer drinks and glasses.

At the sight of Mary with the knife he scowled blackly, laid down the tray, and took a few steps in her direction. She brandished the knife threateningly; then, as if her nerve failed her, fainted, letting the knife fall carefully on the floor so that it struck on the handle, and not on the blade.

Wong quickly caught her as she fainted and carrying her out of the room, banged shut the door. Elaine followed in a moment, loyally to protect her supposed friend, but found that the door had a snap lock on the other side.

She looked about wildly, and in a moment Wong reappeared. As he advanced slowly and insinuatingly, she drew back, pleading. But her words fell on seemingly deaf ears.

She had picked up the knife which Mary had dropped, and when at last Wong maneuvered to get her cornered and was about to seize her, she nerved herself up and stabbed at him resolutely.

Wong staggered back—and fell.

As he did so, he pressed the bladder which he had already placed under his coat. A dark red fluid, like blood, oozed out all over him and ran in a pool on the floor.

Elaine, too horror-stricken at what had happened even to scream, dropped the knife and bent over him. He did not move. She rose quickly and ran through the now open door. As she did so, Wong seemed suddenly to come to life. He raised himself and looked after her, then with a subtle smile sank back into his former assumed posture on the floor.

When Elaine reached the other room she found Mary there with the Chinese servant who was giving her a glass of water. At the sight of her, the servant paused, then withdrew into another room farther back. Mary, now apparently recovering from her faintness, smiled wanly at Elaine.

"It's all right," she murmured. "He is a Chinese prince who thought we were callers."

At the reassuring nod of Mary toward the front room, Elaine was overcome.

"I—I killed him!" she managed to gasp.

"What?" cried Mary, starting up and trembling violently. "You killed him—"

"Yes," sobbed Elaine. "He came at me—had the knife—I struck at him.—"

The two girls ran into the other room. There Mary looked at the motionless body on the floor and recoiled, horrified.

Elaine noticed some spots on her hands, and, seeing that they were stained by the blood of Long Sin, wiped the spots off on her handkerchief, dropping it to the floor.

"Ugh!" exclaimed a guttural voice behind them.

It was the servant who had come in.

WOLLASTON M. E.

Rev. Joseph Walther of the Wollaston Baptist church occupied the pulpit of the Wollaston M. E. church on Sunday morning. The theme was "Manna and Christ."

"There are some people who see nothing of Christ in the Old Testament and therefore refuse to read and study it, but there are two passages in the New Testament which should satisfy such critics. The first passage is John 5:39. In this place Christ is speaking to the Jews and he is referring to the Old Testament for the New Testament has not yet been written. "Search the scripture, for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." The second passage is Luke 24:27. The disciples have been down to Jerusalem and had learned of the dreadful tragedy which had occurred and as they returned talking of these events Jesus joins them and "Beginning at Moses and all the prophets he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself."

We want to speak of Jesus not from the New Testament where there is so much light but from the Old Testament where there is so much shadow.

Manna must be gathered by each individual. So no man can believe for another. Christ must be appropriated by each individual for himself.

Manna could be gathered only by stooping. "Lord bend us" was the cry of Evan Roberts in the Welsh revival. The reason there are not more Christians today is that there are so few that will bend. The heart of man is filled with pride and it must be humbled.

Manna was given in the night. So when we were in darkness and impotent, Christ came.

Manna was incomprehensible to the Israelites, so also is Christ. The man who refuses to appropriate Christ because he can not understand him is a bigger fool than the Israelites.

The quartette sang "Hark, hark my Soul" by Shelley and "Trust and Wait" by Green. Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook sang "The Pilgrim" by Adams.

BOYS CLUB MEETS.

A meeting of the Boys club of the Swedish Congregational church was held Monday evening with Rev. and Mrs. Sporrong, at which time the boys were addressed by the three Sunday school superintendents C. Satterlund C. Leander and C. Lindberg. There was also a poem by P. Palmgren, a duet by Mrs. Sporrong and Mrs. J. A. Sutherland, a solo by Mrs. Sutherland and a piano solo by Rev. Mr. Sporrong.

It was also voted to have a debate at the next meeting April 6, which will be held with Enoch Eckstrand of 23 High street. LIVELY BLAZE AT HOUGHS NECK

The alarm from Box 112 at 12.29 this noon was for what gave promise of being a lively blaze in the house of Alfred P. Fuller on Sea street, near the Willows. The fire started under a stairway on the first floor evidently among a lot of rubbish, and from here it worked out among the plaster boards, with which the room is sheathed. At no time however did the fire break through to the outside of the building. The inside was badly scorched and the damage is estimated at $300.

WORD FROM RIVADAVIA

Cards and letters have been received throughout the city from Lieut. D. Cassanova and other officers of the Argentine dreadnought Rivadavia which was built at the Fore River shipyard.

Others have been received from Walter C. Kelly of Arlington, who resigned a responsible position at the shipyard to follow electrical engineering in the South. Both men speak in glowing terms of their fond recollections of Quincy and its people.

The ship was anchored at the mouth of the river, 50 miles below the Buenos Aires Navy Yard on Feb. 6, when the letters were written and mention is made of the preparations for the grand celebration to be held when the ship is warped to its berth.

The trip, according to the letter, was uneventful. Good speed was made in the passage and the engines answered were up to the representations of the company.

Mr. Kelly is the son of John Kelly who covers Boston city hall for the Boston Globe and he is now in business in Buenos Aires.

POLICE OFFICERS MUST KEEP OUT

One of the conspicuous signs displayed at the district court this morning was one placed directly in front of the clerk's desk reading as follows: "No person allowed within the bar but members thereof, except with the express consent of the court."

The purpose of this card is to exclude from the enclosure collectors, Police officers and prominent citizens, who have been in the habit of finding seats inside of the bar, especially when the spectators seats were filled.

Quincy Commandery, Knights Templar, have accepted an invitation from Carl G. Horst to attend a special Easter service at the Wollaston Unitarian church Easter Sunday.

RESPOND TO MANY ALARMS

Monday Another Busy Day For Firemen

Another busy day was put in by the fire department Monday. The first call was a still alarm and came at 11 o'clock when Atlantic went out to a grass fire on Faxon road. The other calls were as follows:

1.15 Quincy Point to a woods fire in Keating's woods.

2.30 Box 54 for a salamander stove fire on Bass street.

2.30 Houghs Neck went out to a grass fire.

2.35 Quincy Point went out to a grass fire on Curtis avenue.

3.45 Atlantic went out to a grass fire on Clive street.

4.55 Box 56 was sounded. No fire. It was at this time that the confusion in the alarms came, and it appeared from investigation that Boxes 37, 56, 32 and 36 had evidently been pulled. The result was that nothing came in straight. Box 36 however was not found open although an alarm had come in from that circuit. It is thought that the pulling of the boxes was the work of boys.

At 5.05 the central went on a still alarm for a fire in the cellar of the house of Thomas Musgrave, but before it arrived an alarm for this fire was sounded from Box 552. There was no damage.

At 6 o'clock Wollaston went out to a grass fire on Third Hill.

At 9 o'clock an alarm was sounded from Box 58. This was for a grass fire on the Milton side of the line.

Y. M. C. A. DIRECTORS ACCEPT RESIGNATION

A. F. Bromley To Sever His Connection With Institution on May 1

The board of directors of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. have accepted the resignation of Secretary A. F. Bromley, the resignation to take effect May 1.

Frank Burgess, president of the Y. M. C. A., pays the following tribute to Mr. Bromley:

"The coming or going of any citizen is a matter of concern to a community for no man liveth to himself. The Directors have accepted Mr. Bromley's resignation, to take effect next month. His going will make a distinct break in many avenues of Christian citizenship in our city, and his high motives, good cheer, kindness, self effacement and ability in divers ways will be long remembered and appreciated by citizens at large as well as by the association. The coming of a man commissioned to serve his fellows in lines of development and safeguarding of young manhood is a conspicuous event and calls for better ideals than those which control most of us. Clergymen and teachers may best apprehend the responsibilities of a Y. M. C. A. leader, and they may also most hopefully discern the possibilities (shall we not say probabilities) of restored and saved lives. Who of us can tabulate the fruits of the spirit? Our best wishes will remain with Mr. Bromley and his esteemed family."

Mr. Bromley, came to Quincy in Sept. 1910 from Ansonia, Conn., where he had been located for three years. Previous to being in Ansonia he was at Northampton for three years. Since coming to Quincy he has taken an active interest in local affairs. He was one of the deacons of Bethany church and within a year has become affiliated with Rural Masonic lodge.

Mr. Bromley's successor has been appointed but the Y. M. C. A. directors are not ready to divulge his name at this time.

The little fellow wandered away while his mother was getting an older sister ready for play. He walked toward Atlantic and was noticed by a woman on Holmes street. She took him into her house and notified the police. Herbert's return, then was only a question of minutes.

"A PLUS B EQUALS X" IS SUBJECT

Rev. Geo. Bailey Speaks at Regular Meeting

The regular meeting of the Parents Teachers' association of Quincy school was held in the assembly hall Tuesday evening.

The meeting was called to order by President W. F. Cummings. After a few introductory remarks Mr. Sampson principal of the school was called upon to report upon the financial result of the last entertainment which was to provide funds for the current expenses of the association. His report proved that the entertainment from a financial standpoint was eminently successful.

Several committees rendered reports and a nominating committee was appointed to report at the next meeting, which is the annual one and which will be held the third Tuesday in May. The committee is Byron C. Day, chairman, Mrs. Lugene J. Hayford and Joseph Uppling.

The speaker for the evening was Rev. George M. Bailey of Wollaston. His subject was:—"A plus b equals X."

He said: "A (the parents) plus b (the teacher) equals x (the unknown quantity that is in the boy, or in other words, his possibilities for the future.) These possibilities are largely influenced by the combined teaching of parents and teachers whose highest aim should be to build individual character in the boys and girls."

Music was furnished by pupils of the Principal C. E. Sampson.

NO OBSERVANCE BY LAND LEAGUE

Quincy branch of the Irish Land League, the only existing branch of the original organization left in the United States, did not celebrate on the eve of St. Patrick's Day. It was the first time in 32 years that there was not some observance of the occasion. The branch has held regular meetings in Cahill's hall on Water street but that building is undergoing repairs and no meeting could be held there.

MAINTAIN FULL STEAM AHEAD

Head of School Board Speaks on Education

The policy of the public schools must be "full steam ahead," according to John D. Mackay, Chairman of the School Committee, who was the speaker at the meeting of the Parents and Teachers' association of the Cranch School Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance.

Before the address there was a business meeting and musical selections were given by pupils from the Adams Evening school. Rev. A. M. Thompson presided and introduced the speaker. A dainty collation was served by the teachers at the close.

After citing some facts and figures to show the magnitude of the work in which the schools of Quincy were engaged and what it cost Mr. Mackay said that the needs were increasing and consequently there was an increase in responsibility. He stated that it would take 16 poll taxes to educate a pupils for one year.

"It will be even harder for the coming generation to get along in the world than it is for us," said the speaker, "and their mental equipment must be better in order that they may hold their own in the battle of life. With a good education one is practically insured against coming to want, and that is more than can be said about the man who owns houses and lands, stocks and bonds; for those things easily leave one, but mental training, once acquired, is a permanent possession. You ought to strive to give your boy and girl the best in education.

"As a matter of patriotic duty, also, the schools must be kept going at the highest degree of efficiency. The pepetuity of the Republic depends largely upon the maintenance of a high degree of popular intelligence, and the same may be said concerning our municipalities. The ignorant man and the demagogue can be controlled only by the educated man. He must hold the balance true. The duty of the taxpayer is to continue to be liberal with the schools so that the citizen of tomorrow may have his due, and enjoy the benefits of decent government."

BERGFORS SEEKS TO BUILD STABLE

The Board of Health gave a hearing Tuesday evening on the petition of Fred E. Bergfors for permission to erect a table for five horses on Weston road. Mr. Bergfors is to conduct an oil business and it is understood that he intends to build three oil tanks on his property. Mr. Bergfors father former asessor Eric G. Bergfors, Temple A. Winsloe and the petitioner appeared in favor. There was considerable opposition to the erection of the stable, the opponents being represented by ex-City Solicitor Paul R. Blackmur. The objection was largely on the line that it would injure property values. After the hearing the Board took the matter under advisement.

CAMPBELL MAY NOT RUN SECOND TIME

Friends Want Him to Run For Governor's Council

The announcement that Councillor Guy Ham would seek the Republican nomination of lieutenant governor has started a discussion as to a successor and many Quincy peopole have mentioned Mayor Chester I. Campbell. Many are firm in their belief that if the active mayor of this city goes after the place the contest is practically settled before the campaign starts.

Quincy occupies a conspicuous part in the second district. The territory covers Wards 20, 21, 23, and 24 of Boston and all of Quincy and runs to the southward, to and including Taunton and to the westward to Franklin. The district includes nearly 100,000 voters and is a hard one in which to campaign, but according to friends of our mayor, this fact will cause his honor no worry.

Mayor Campbell has frequently stated that the duties of the office are very numerous and interfere to a considerable extent with his personal affairs. This has been taken by some people to mean he will not be a candidate for that office again, and at the same time gives some ground to the rumor that his name may be on the ticket as a candidate for the governor's council.

Quincy friends are beginning to rally to his support and feel he will make a fine showing in the cities of the district. They have in mind the brilliant campaign of last fall and are of the opinion a similar campaign will secure him the support of the towns.

All of these things when coupled together indicate to some extent, in the eyes of supporters, that Mayor Campbell can be nominated on the Republican ticket to succeed Councillor Ham.

Mayor Campbell was asked about the situation this morning and said it was altogether too early to consider anything of that nature for next year. "There is a tremendous amount of work to be finished," he said, "and if it is incompleted and the citizens believe it should be finished I would then consider it my duty to give the matter of being a candidate for re-election serious consideration.

An alarm was sounded from Box 48 at 6.47 for a fire in the woods across the line in Milton. The apparatus went as far as the dividing line and finding it out of their territory and that Milton firemen were handling it all right, returned to quarters.

PASS THE APPROPRIATION.

The city council should not hesitate to appropriate the money necessary to start a machine gun squad in Quincy. The amount required is small, the returns likely to accrue to the city are not small. Although conscious that extreme peace advocates are likely to decry our attitude and to assert that maintenance of a company of the national guard here helps along the development of a martial spirit we believe that the coming of such a company would be a good thing for Quincy.

As Col. Sweetzer pointed out at the public hearing Monday night the duration and loss of life in the American Civil War were largely due to the fact that the Northern army consisted of brave but untrained soldiers. While not advocating an elaborate system of war preparation or a huge army we do believe that it is only common sense to train a citizen soldiery for the hour which may come. And this is but one of the advantages. A great benefit to be derived from such a company will be derived by the men who enlist, who should gain greatly in moral as well as physical strength. If the members of the Machine gun squad learn nothing else but the habit of obedience they will have gained a valuable thing.

EXPRESS YOUR OPINION.

Again we wish to remind our readers that our columns are open to honest expressions of opinion. In this column the Ledger seeks to express its attitude toward questions which arise. It does not expect its readers always to agree with that attitude. The Ledger does not want its readers to agree with its interpretation of events unless that agreement follows sincere reflection. A general agreement with the opinions set down in this column probably would mean that the Ledger possessed the stupidest lot of readers of any paper in the country.

We feel confident that the mental calibre of our readers is not of this sort. But we feel that there must be many persons who have opinions upon current events, particularly events in Quincy. Why not give others the benefit of your opinion and your argument? We are glad to print opinions so long as they are sincere, and, as an evidence of sincerity, are signed.

A WISE LAW.

The legislature has enacted a law to eliminate "fool voting" and the inconvenience caused candidates nominated because their names have been written on the primary ballots. Under the new law it will be necessary to have five votes to secure a nomination as ward councilman and 30 votes for councilman-at-large.

The law says that hereafter no person who is a candidate for political office at a primary and whose name is not printed on the ballot shall be deemed to be nominated unless he receives a number of votes equal to or exceeding the number of signatures that would be required by law to place his name on the ballot as a candidate at such primary election.

The law will operate to the satisfaction of the public in this city, it is thought, because it has been the practice in all wards to write in names when there are no candidates nominated for some offices. This was seldom done with the permission of a man and often as a joke. Several people nominated in this way would not be candidates and were obliged to conform to the law relative to withdrawals and meet other inconveniences in order to escape political massacre at city election.

WILL IT STOP WAR?

In the opinion of some, the submarine has relegated the dreadnought to the scrap heap. Will the aeroplane, which has proved so valuable for scouting purposes in the present war, eventually render the battle of navies and armies futile? Such a result does not seem wholly beyond the realm of probability. Perhaps this would be well. Although the apparent insanity of the nations of Europe warring today might naturally leave small ground for hope of intelligence in any one of them yet the time may come when battles in the air having superseded all other forms of combat, the nations may see the futility of war.

WOMEN AND GAMBLING

Efforts to legalize race track gambling have lately been defeated in California, Utah and Colorado. In each case the defeat was attributed to the influence of women voters. So was the abolition years ago of the laws in Wyoming and Idaho which formerly licensed gambling.

Dr. Talcott Williams, of Philadelphia is reported to have declared in a recent address that the women in the enfranchised States vote in favor of gambling, year after year. It would be interesting to know upon what he bases this astonishing charge.

Former Chief Justice Groesbeck of Wyoming was a strong opponent of licensed gambling, and fought it in season and out of season. In a letter to the editor of The Woman's Journal, he says:

"The influence of the women voters has always been on the side of good government, and opposed to gambling and immorality."

This is the general testimony from the enfranchised States. Chief Justice Groesbeck adds:

"Impartial suffrage is firmly fixed in the affections of our people. The Constitutional Convention of 1889, which framed our present organic law, passed the woman suffrage clauses with only one dissenting vote. We have lost nothing, and gained much, by our many years of equal rights. The women electors of Wyoming are as modest, womanly and God-fearing as the women of New England; and we would not discard the 'home element' in our politics if we could."

WAR IS BUSINESS.

The method of fighting in this war has certainly taken all the glitter and glory out of conflicts between nations. The marching soldiers, the flying flags the bands of music, the wild charges, all are things of the past. The soldier of today simply digs a hole in the ground and stays there until the rain of metal makes it too hot for him, when he falls back to another hole. Even the brilliant uniforms are sadly out of place in this sort of warfare. The red trousers of the French, the gay kilties of the Scottish troops and the like are not garments likely to produce any particular effect in the trenches. Instead the articles of apparel particularly desired for wear in the ditches are water proof boots, stout puttees, warm clothing and a hat of the souwester type which will shed the rain and not permit it to run down the back of the wearer. As one writer has said a soldier's life is not much different from that of a man working in a ditch, except that it is worse.—Taunton Herald News.

RENTS.

There is considerable complaint among the occupants of tenements that landlords make no reduction in rents despite the fact that wages have been seriously reduced, a complaint which doubtless, in the main, is entirely true. The question of rents is a very serious problem, with the advantage in argument not wholly on the side of the tenant. A man builds a two-tenement house on an investment of $6,000, including the land. If we take into consideration taxes, interest, depreciation, water rates, repairs and the score of opportunities for outlays that go with letting tenements 10 per cent is not excessive. That means that each tenement should bring in $25 a month. That should be the normal rent. Now if it is contended that when a tenant is cut in his pay rents should be reduced to satisfy the tenant, may it not also be as fairly contended that when the tenant is working full time the rental should be above the normal to satisfy the landlord?. One very serious defect in the housing problem in Waltham is the lack of reasonably priced tenements for working people. We lack fair tenements that can be hired at from $15 to $20 a month, which is as much as the average working man can afford to pay. Our own people have encouraged extravagance in that direction inasmuch as they for appearance sake hire expensive tenements and then are obliged to let rooms to make both ends meet. If times become strenuous and their roomers leave or want long credits they are flat on their backs. That is not the fault of the landlords. What is very much needed is a syndicate to finance the erection of tenement houses adapted to the pocketbooks of the average tenant. It can be done at a fair profit.—Waltham Press-Tribune.

FRIENDS TENDER SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. Margaret M. Bisson Lenson, wife of Chief Yeoman R. H. Lenson of the U. S. S. Birmingham now cruising off the Isle de Cuba, was tendered an aluminum shower by 46 young women of the commercial department of the N. E. T. & T. Co., at her home on Gay street Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenson were quietly married some months ago, when the Birmingham was undergoing repairs at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Mrs. Lenson will leave the employ of the company in April and will make her home either at Newport, R. I., or Norfolk, Va., one of which will be designated the home port of the ship.

Mrs. Lenson's return from Boston was delayed by several young women who took her to dinner. They accepted her invitation to spend an evening in Quincy and when they reached her home it was in the possession of her friends.

The surprise was complete and included in the shower of a quantity of aluminum was a beautiful cut glass vase, filled with five dozen jonquils. Attached to each flower with blue ribbon, the telephone colors, were cards on which were written the names of the guests.

The formalities over, an evening of riotous fun commenced. All kinds of games were played and there was an impromptu musical entertainment, speeches and other pleasantries. Refreshments were served.

The guests were present from all parts of metropolitan Boston, including Cambridge, Malden, Somerville, South and East Boston, Quincy, Back Bay.

The affair was planned and given under the direction of Miss Anna Howard of Orient Heights and Miss Irene Graham of Quincy. Among those present were:

The Misses Mabel Allen, Irene Benson, Ethel Blaine, Marie Bliss, Anna Brundage, Myrtle Brundage, Florence Buckley, Lucy Burke, Margaret Burns May Dunn, Blanche Dempsey, Annie Drinan, Rose Drinan, Anna Fleming, Katherine Foley, Agnes Fyle, Frances Gibbs, Mary Gordon, Irene Graham, Pearl Hammond, Anna Harwood, Grace Haskell, Beatrice Hensy, Grace Hunt, Margaret King, Rose La Terza, Margaret Little, Annette Long, Lillian Long, Louise Long, Mildred Marr, Winnie McHugh, Lillie McIntyre, Louise McLaughlin, Muriel Moore, Marrion North, Frances Pick, Josephine Roach, Margaret Sheehan, Elizabeth Strachan, Ella Strandberg, May Sullivan, Bessie Sutherland, and Mr. and Mrs. Minihan and daughter.

Likewise, a community can go after more business—and get it. The "clean collar and shiny shoes" of this town are the well-painted stores, the bright, cheery homes, the fresh, clean-looking buildings. BIG FORTUNE IN OLD SUIT CASE

Found When Customs Officers Inspect Priest's Baggage

ROBES COVERED WITH GEMS

Rich Prize Probably Lay In Mexico City Cathedral Until It Slipped Through Carranza's Fingers When Clergyman Fled—Believed to Be Relic of Sixteenth Century

New York, March 17.—A king's ransom in jewels, blazoned in the royal eagles of Spain at the time of Charles V., lies under guard at the custom house here, awaiting appraisal.

The gems, set in gold on white and purple robes and mounted on two golden crowns, were brought into New York by a Catholic priest, clad in shabby clothes, who fled from Mexico City a month ago, made his way to Vera Cruz and sailed aboard the steamer Montevideo.

The Montevideo reached New York with this priest and six other fugitive priests who had been banished from Mexico by General Obregon, Carranza's lieutenant at Mexico City.

From the depths of a battered suit case, the gems and robes were tumbled out upon the dock for inspection by the customs authorities. They so dazzled the inspectors that they were hastily put back into the suit case. Under guard they were taken to a safe deposit vault, where they were locked up and special watchmen detailed to guard them. Rough estimates placed their value at from $300,000 to $500,000.

The rich prize, it is said, lay in the cathedral of Mexico City—presumably for centuries—till it slipped through Carranza's fingers in the flight from Mexico of the priest who brought it to America. The name of this priest was temporarily withheld by the customs authorities.

It was learned, independent of the customs officials, however, that the priest said he hastily packed the jewels and robes in his suit case when Obregon called for a church tax of $500,000 and locked up many Catholic priests in Mexico City till the tax should have been raised.

An archbishop's robe of purple is the chief article of value. The robe is of silk and apparently of great antiquity. Wrought in diamonds and emeralds, rubies and pearls on the front of the robe so that it covers the wearer's breast, is the ancient Spanish coat of arms, consisting of double eagles, back to back, wings raised, necks back, beaks open. The entire design is done in gold in which the gems are mounted, and the robe is very heavy.

From the double eagle design, the customs officials believe, there is truth in the story told by the priest that the robes were sent to Mexico in the sixteenth century. It was in that period that Spain was at the height of her power and her ruler, Don Charles I., was known as Charles V. of the Holy Roman Empire.

Next in value to the archbishop's robe are two gold crowns, mounted with diamonds, emeralds and sapphires. Some of these gems, it is said, are as large as hazelnuts. There are spaces left on the tops of these crowns for other jewels, and the uncut gems to fill the vacant spaces dangle, secured by silken cords from the crowns.

Several smaller clerical robes, in purple and white silk, some of them spangled with gems, others plain, complete the lot. What their value is has not been determined. The priest, who carried them from Mexico to New York in his worn suit case, declared them, it is said, at $600,000. Experts in gem values are trying now to appraise them for the customs authorities.

Under the law providing for the admission of antiquities free of duty, it is possible, it was said at the custom house, that the robes and gems would be admitted to this country without charge.

Meantime, the obscure priest who brought the gems and robes into the country, is waiting, without divulging his identity, for the appraisal. The customs authorities would not say who or where he is.

HAROLD B. FAXON.

Services Held at First Church Tuesday Afternoon.

The funeral of Harold B. Faxon, formerly of Quincy, who died at Marlboro Sunday, was held Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 from the First church. The services were of a simple nature and were conducted by Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson, minister of the church. There were many beautiful floral tributes. After the services at the church the body was taken to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where the committal service was said by Rev. Mr. Hudson.

Although he has not lived in Quincy for a number of years Mr. Faxon was well known in this city. He was a son of Dr. W. L. Faxon. In his younger days he was an enthusiastic yachtsman, and for several years was secretary of the Quincy Yacht club. Of late years he has been employed at the factory of Rice & Hutchins at Marlboro. It was while employed there that he caught his hand in part of the machinery receiving a wound that caused his death shortly after.

C. W. Barron Speaker at Meeting of First Parish Club

Members of the First Parish club were treated to an illuminating discussion of the causes of the present European war at the meeting of the club Tuesday night when they were addressed by Clarence W. Barron, publisher of the Boston News Bureau, whose book "The Audacious War" is much read. His subject was "The War and Afterward."

The club met as usual at 6 o'clock for a half hour social session dinner being served at 6.30. There was an unusually large number present and at almost the last minute it was found necessary to prepare another table. In fact the attendance was the largest the club has had this season. Seated at the head table aside from the speaker and Rev. A. L. Hudson, the president of the club, were Clarence Burgin, Charles C. Hearn, Henry M. Faxon, Lt. Huron, U. S. N., Hon. Russell A. Sears, William A. Bradford and John L. Hamilton.

"It is our business to study the war and its useful lessons," said the speaker. "Germany is now at war with seven nations and soon will be at war with ten nations. One of the lessons for us in the United States is first the defence of diplomacy. We should strengthen our diplomatic corps. Out of this war will come a larger citizenship and Christianity in which we must take a part. The map is not to be changed so much for Germany will still remain, but the first terms that will be demanded are that she will have to indemnify Belgium and there is to be an international relationship between nations. When Italy and Roumania join in and push it up to Austria then will be the time which the allies are waiting for and it depends on Germany how long the war will last and the war may end before the snow flies."

These were some of the salient points brought out by Mr. Barron in his most interesting talk. He spoke for over an hour and a half, talking rapidly and in a manner showing that he was thoroughly conversant with his subject.

n opening Mr. Barron said that he was no public speaker but claimed sometimes to be a writer. Especially however, he was a farmer in Cohasset. He said that he had studied this question in connection with business, that he had found the best way to get correct inside information was not to go to those on the inner circle who knew but to "get next to their friends" who had information first hand which was correct. He then told of his trip to Europe, taken on the spur of the moment, to learn inside facts. When he arrived in London he found all of the people he knew in diplomatic service were there, and he soon gathered what he sought. "I found that Italy could not to get as far it had no base. That were difficult to harmonize."

eight nations were all in a mush that

He then spoke briefly of what the different nations wanted and said the climax came with the murder of the Austrian prince by the Servians. "Servia was willing to make any amends and meet all amends but was not permitted for the German speaking people who dominated Austria wanted war."

He then spoke of the South Eastern treaty of peace which was all ready to sign when Austria called it off by notifying all nations in the treaty that it was not satisfactory to her. "Austria knew that Servia would comply with its ultimatum but that was not what she wanted.

"Under the treaty between Russia and Germany, Russia had great difficulty in meeting its exchanges and had notified Germany that at the expiration of that treaty a different one would be asked. Germany, however, said it must remain.

"After the war with Japan, Russia discovered that there was much graft among the officers of the army and navy. Thirty-eight per cent. of them were dismissed and for the past ten years Russia had been developing a military base.

"Germany knew Russia's weakness, She also knew the weakness of France and believed that she would be easy to conquer. It was said last year that Germany could not afford to go to war. Yet she was preparing for war but none knew this but the kaiser. Germany also believed that she knew the weakness of the British Empire. She believed that India was only waiting for a chance to break away from Great Britain. That Australia would grasp the opportunity and that Ireland was ready to break away. Germany, however, judged other nations by herself. Looking at India Germany said "Ha, Ha, India is ready to throw off the English yoke." The United States will take Canada for itself and Australia will be for itself. She thought that Great Britain would decay and fall to pieces but she has found out her mistake. The trouble was that Germany was judging other nations by herself.

"Bismark saw the advantage of having neighbors who were prosperous and that this meant Germany's success. How much different was that idea from that of the present ruler."

Mr. Barron then told how every penny was gathered up by Germany and that everything was stamped "Made in Germany." "It appeared that Germany feared a panic, but the kaiser had no such thought. The kaiser had an idea that his great navy would be ready in two years but he misjudged Great Britain and that is where his diplomacy failed. Germany can not appreciate the conditions of another country. It was Germany who made the terms with Austria. The kaiser blocked every proposal for peace and forced the war.

"In Russia everything was in the control of Germany. The people are now awakened to the fact. The people of these countries have no conception of the commercial and financial status of Europe. This war can not be settled in a day. England can equip the whole world with rifles but lacks the wood for the stock which she must import. Out of this war is coming the unity of nations. The first demand for peace is that Germany must get out of Belgium. What the different nations will get when the war is over is now being discussed.

"If Germany triumphs in this war we must look after our tariff. We can never have peace except as you have peace in Quincy by a police force. Take away the police force and you have no peace. What we need in the United States is a discipline in education. Our people should learn to be self sustaining. It is too late now to build warships. Enough war ships could not be constructed in twenty years.

"The present militarism must be crushed. When Austria is cowed we may expect to see war end at any time. I should not be surprised if it ended before next winter. The United States can not be brought into this war. We have nothing to go to war with. One thing we must have is a little more ginger in Washington. We need a little more red hair there. It is useless to say let the Mexicans settle their own trouble, the United States must settle it as it did in Cuba. We have not entered a protest against the violation of a treaty which we signed.

"The German people do not know anything about what is behind the situation other than the demands of the government. The German takes no interest in his government. He does not know anything about his government. One of the worst things Germany has done is the way she has treated Belgium after professing its great friendship for her."

At the close of the address the speaker was given a rising vote of thanks.

It was voted to appoint a committee to prepare a list of officers to be voted for at the next meeting, at which the speaker will be Senator John W. Weeks.

WILL GIVE PLAY.

The Thalia club will hold a meeting in the High school hall Thursday afternoon, and a play is to be given for the members only, entitled "Every girl."

BASEBALL TEAM BEGINS PRACTICE

High School Schedule Has Sixteen Games Beginning Apr. 19

EIGHT LEAGUE CONTESTS

April 19—Alumni at Quincy.
April 24—Dedham at Quincy.
April 27—Revere at Quincy.
April 30—Cam. Latin at Cambridge.
May 4—Revere at Revere.
May 7—So. Boston at Quincy.
May 11—Hingham at Quincy.
May 14—Brockton at Brockton.
May 19—Weymouth at Quincy.
May 22—Milton at Quincy.
May 26—Weymouth at Weymouth.
May 28—Rockland at Rockland.
June 2—Milton at Milton.
June 4—Wellesley at Wellesley.
June 8—Rockland at Quincy.
June 11—Brockton at Quincy.

Base ball at the Quincy High school will commence this week when the out-fielders will practice either Thursday or Friday. Head-Coach Frank L. Mansur has as hard a job as last year in getting together a well trained team, as some of last year players have graduated and others left school. Earle Bates last years third baseman has gone to Thayer Academy, Peter Creedon has left school as has Henry Dolan the hard hitting fielder, and "Jew" Sawyer the first baseman. By graduation the team has lost "Chet" Steadman, "Jimmie" Jenkins and Martin.

"Dun" Hamlin who turned from catcher to pitcher last year is almost sure to be seen in the box for Quincy this year. "Jimmie" O'Connor threw his arm out last year and he may not be able to pitch much this year, but if he does Quincy is assured of two good pitchers. As probabilities, Anderson and Isaacson may show good form, but they both need more experience.

DeSenso is the leading back-stop candidate. He is small but he knows the game. O'Donnell is a good man, stocky, but inclined to be slow. Hulteen is an unknown quality, as are several other candidates.

For first base "Bunch" Arthur has the call, weak hitting being the only thing that kept him back last year. Jepson, Catler and "Blinker" Desmond are the others out for the position.

Captain Paul Larkin the only real veteran of the squad, will cover short, and he ought to have a good year this year as it is his last for Q. H. S. At third Henry Ford is the most likely man with several other good men against him. In the outfield "Buck" Reardon and "Wet" Browne are the only regulars.

The alumni game promises to be a hot one as such stars as the Bates brothers, the Chapman brothers, "Billy" Manning, Les Andrews, Sammie Prout, Ted Corey and some of the former stars may play.

HUGE BOWLING TOURNEY COMING

Paul Poehler, champion candle pin bowler, "Red" Millar, Cole, Archie Walsh, Mark Gill and other bowlers of Boston and Quincy will probably enter the Atlantic Coast Bowling association tournament in Boston, which starts about May 1.

The tournament, which will be held in Mechanics Building will be the first for bowlers ever held anywhere in New England in a public building and will be the second ever held in the Eastern part of the United States. The only other great bowling tournament ever held in the East was that in Madison Square Garden about nine years ago. At the Garden tournament nothing but Ten Pins were bowled while at Mechanics the entire East will be united for not only Ten Pins but Candle Pins and Duck Pins will also be bowled.

The fact that this tournament will be held in Mechanics Building and that sixteen regulation alleys will be installed for the purpose and removed after two weeks of competition easily demonstrates to the bowling public the magnitude of the proposition which is only possible through the united efforts of the bowlers of the Eastern part of the United States.

Entry blanks can be obtained by addressing the secretary, 94 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

SPORTING COMMENT

Definite arrangements for a local Fed team have not been completed although a league has been proposed which may include Braintree, Quincy, Rockland and several other places. Michael Shea, manager of the Old Colony grounds at South Quincy has listened to several propositions but is noncommittal.

William P. Chase, the new New England champion skater, is a self taught performer on the ice.

It is now up to the Governor of Nevada to sign the new boxing bill legalizing 20 round boxing contests.

Connolly, the Boston national outfielder, continues to swing the bat on the southern trip. He has wrapped out four homers so far.

If Walter Johnson's speed is dazzling at this season of the year as stated in reports, what word will describe it in midseason?

There were 3000 applicants for jobs at the new ball park in Allston. Work has begun and Pres. James Gaffney of the Nationals is superintending the work.

A bit of rough work was introduced by the Cunningham team in its game here Saturday night. The only excuse that can be offered is that there are some boys on the team. All have to pass through the formative stage and surplus energy must be worked off. However rough and tumble work should be confined to a mat and not be introduced on a basket ball court.

Charley Maloney's manager has offered to back him against anyone in the city for a pro pool match. A carrier named McCarthy of the local post office should be informed of the situation. The latter is a stranger but he can probably roll the balls as fast as Maloney. Furthermore, he is about as cool a proposition over a green table as we have seen. His touch is only the result of close acquaintance with the spheres and they were probably ivory at that.

It is nice to get up in the morning and to know the literary debate between the gas company employees and post office boys has been closed. We expected to be deluged with challenges and counter challenges but they seem to have suddenly stopped. One team or the other has quit. The gas company quintette is said to have been disbanded. They all live here, however and let's see both crews row ing down the river again.

The dreadnought inspectors apparently don't know that Louis Ross of the Wardwell alleys has challenged Shannon to a special. Ross holds the city record of 424 and Shannon the City Square alley record of 383. The similarity in titles has caused more than one argument and it ought to be settled.

While we do not want to detract from the sincerity of the open challenge of Ross and Dell, we hear rumors that they have neglected to reply to Herb Smith and Burrill who want to roll them. Without going into the merits of the case we believe something should be done to get both tandems together.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation band will probably be one of the features at the base ball games this summer. The band has made a fine improvement during the past three months and its concert is entertaining.

Pres. Powell of the F. R. S. C. said a few weeks ago he was going to get a bowling team together which would knock spots off some of the local teams. He has been otherwise engaged but we look to see him do it in the near future. He gave the sport a great boost when he attended the shipyard league banquet. The fair open play he mentioned seems to be about 99 per cent of his makeup.

Auto poker will be as popular this summer as last and is the real reason why some young men in the city spend Sunday afternoons in hiking around. Some of the local cars carry pretty stiff hands, and others

The grammar school base ball season will be in full swing within a few weeks. Watch that aggregation from the Massachusetts Fields school hit the high places. Principal Goodspeed of the school probably has the advantage on other principals in the city since he has played some ball in his day. His training system produces the right kind. Thomas B. Pollard of the Washington school, however, stands in first place in soccer.

That there is nothing like sport to hold young men together was evidenced at the meeting of the Newsboys club Sunday afternoon when three new members stated from the floor they joined to play base ball.

Michael Kiley is said to be forming a checker team to play the best New England quartette available. Before doing that we would like to see him meet Napoleon Grignon in a series of five games. The former has always been in shape and the latter has only got back in form recently but is holder of a state title. The city championship has always been in doubt and the situation should be cleared up.

Councilman Harry Slade is perhaps playing the strongest billiards of his lifetime and could probably win any local tournament with ease.

Willie Hoppe, the billiard expert, has made a great record on his New England tour. He has played 10,400 points for an average of 35 1-2 at 18.2 balkline. At Hartford he ran 384.

FORM GERMAN CLUB.

A German club is to be formed at the local High School in the near future, the club's membership is to be limited to 25 pupils. Not a word of English is to be spoken at the meetings even the lectures being given in German. Frederick Rasmussen is to give the first lecture. The club is under the leadership of Miss Zeller, the High school German teacher.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

"You—kill him—with knife?" insinuated the Chinese.

Elaine was dumb. The servant did not wait for an answer, but hastily opened the hall door.

To Elaine it seemed that something must be done quickly. A moment and all the house would be in uproar.

Instead, he placed his finger on his lips. "Quick—no word," he said, leading the way to the hall door, "and—oh, you must not leave that—it will be a clue," he added, picking up the bloody handkerchief and pressing it into Elaine's hand.

They quickly ran out into the hall. "Go—quick!" he urged again, "and hide the handkerchief in the bag. Let no one see it!"

He shut the door. As they hurried away Elaine breathed a sigh of relief.

They had reached the street. Afraid to run, they hurried as fast as they could until they turned the first corner.

They pressed each other's hands and parted.

Meanwhile in the front room Long Sin was on his feet again, brushing himself off and mopping up the blood.

"It worked very well, Sam," he said to the servant.

They were conversing eagerly and laughing and did not hear a noise in the back room.

A sinister figure had made its way by means of a fire escape to a rear window that was not barred, and silently he had stolen in on them.

Elaine, Too Horror-Stricken Even to Scream, Dropped the Knife and Bent Over Him.

They turned at a slight noise and saw him. Genuine fright was now on their faces as they looked at him, open mouthed.

"What's all this?" he growled. "I am known as the Clutching Hand. I allow no interference with my affairs. Tell me what you are doing here with Elaine Dodge."

Their beady almond eyes flashed fear. The Clutching Hand moved menacingly. There was nothing for the astute Wong Long Sin to do but to submit.

With a low bow, Wong spread out his hands in surrender and submission.

"I will tell you, honorable sir," he said at length.

"Go on!" growled the criminal.

Quickly Wong rehearsed what had happened from the moment the idea of blackmail entered his head.

"How about Mary Carson?" asked Clutching Hand. "I saw her here."

Wong gave a glance of almost superstitious dread at the man.

"She will be back—is here now," he added, opening the door at a knock and admitting her.

Adventuress Mary had hurried back to see that all was right. This time Mary was genuinely scared at the forbidding figure of which she had heard.

"It is all right," pacified Wong. "Henceforth we work with the honorable Clutching Hand."

At home at last, Elaine sank down into a deep library chair and stared straight ahead. She saw visions of arrest and trial, of the terrible electric chair with herself in it, bound, and of the giving of the fatal signal for turning on the current.

Were such things as these going to happen to her, without Kennedy's help? Why had they quarreled? She buried her face in her hands and wept.

Then she could stand it no longer. She had not taken off her street clothes. She rose and almost fled from the house.

Kennedy and I were still in the laboratory when a knock sounded at the door. I went to the door and opened it. There stood Elaine Dodge.

It was a complete surprise to Craig.

"What is the matter?" he asked.

She hesitated, then suddenly burst out, "Craig—I—I am—a murderess!"

I had never before seen such a look on Craig's face as suddenly came over it.

Then she poured forth the story substantially as I have set it down, but without the explanation, which at that time was not known to any of us.

"Oh," expostulated Craig, there must be some mistake. It's impossible—impossible."

"No," she asserted. "Look—here's my handkerchief all spotted with blood."

She opened the bag and displayed the blood-spotted handkerchief. He took it and examined it carefully.

"Elaine," he said earnestly, not at all displeased I could see, that something had come up that might blot out the past unfortunate misunderstanding, "there simply must be something wrong here. Leave this handkerchief with me. I'll do my best."

"Thank you," she said simply as she left the laboratory.

Craig went to work abruptly without a word.

On the laboratory table he placed his splendid microscope and several cases of slides, as well as innumerable micro-photographs. He had been working for some time when he looked up.

"It is dog's blood—not human blood," he said simply, "but what's the game back of all this—that's the main question now."

* * * * * * *

It was not much later that Elaine received a second visit from Mary.

"Do you know why the servant allowed us to leave the apartment?" whispered Mary with a glance about fearfully, as if the walls had ears.

"No—why?" inquired Elaine anxiously.

"He's a tong man who has been chosen to do away with the prince. He followed me, and says you have done his work for him. If you will give him ten thousand dollars for expenses he will attend to hiding the body."

Here, at least,was a way out.

"It is the safest way out of the trouble. Yes, I'll do it. I'll stop at the bank now and get the money."

They rose and Mary preceded her, eager to get away from the house. At the door, however, Elaine asked her to wait while she ran back on some pretext.

Our telephone rang in the middle of our conversation on blood crystals, and Kennedy himself answered it.

It was Elaine asking Craig's advice.

"They have offered to hush the thing up for ten thousand dollars," she said in a muffled voice.

She seemed bent on doing it, and no amount of argument from him could stop her. She simply refused to accept the evidence of the blood crystals as better than what her own eyes told her she had seen and done.

"Then wait for half an hour," he answered, without arguing further. "You can do that without exciting suspicion. Then go with her to her hotel and hand her over the money."

"All right—I'll do it," she agreed. "What is the hotel?"

Craig wrote on a slip of paper what she told him—"Room 509, Hotel La Coste."

Hastily he threw on his street coat. "Go into the back room and get me a brace and bit, Walter," he said.

I did so. When I returned I saw that he had placed the detectascope and some stuff in a bag. He shoved in the brace and bit also.

"Come on—hurry!" he urged.

We must have made record time in getting to the La Coste. It was an ornate place, where merely to breathe was expensive. We entered, and by some excuse Kennedy contrived to get past the vigilant bell-hops. We passed the telephone switchboard and entered the elevator, getting off at the fifth floor.

With a hasty glance up and down the corridor, to make sure no one was about, Kennedy came to Room 509, then passed to the next room, 511, opening the door with a skeleton key.

Quickly Craig went to the door which led to the next room. It was, of course, locked also. He listened a moment carefully. Not a sound. Quickly, with an exclamation of satisfaction, he opened that door also and went into 509.

This room was much like that in which we had already been. He opened the hall door.

"Watch here, Walter," he directed. "Let me know at the slightest alarm."

Craig had already taken the brace and bit from the bag and started to bore through the wall in Room 511, selecting a spot behind a picture of a Spanish dancer—a spot directly back of her snapping black eyes. He finished quickly and inserted the detectascope so that the lens fitted as an eye in the picture. The eye-piece was in room 511. Then he started to brush up the pieces of plaster on the floor.

"Craig," I whispered hastily as I heard an elevator door, "someone's coming!"

He hurried to the door and looked. "There they are," he said, as he saw Elaine and Mary rounding the corner of the hall.

Across the hall, although we did not know it at the time, in room 540, already Wong Sin had taken up his station, just to be handy. There he had been with his servant, playing with his two trained white rats.

Wong placed them up his capacious sleeves and carefully opened the door to look out. Unfortunately he was just in time to see the door of 509 open and disclose us.

We hurried into 511 and shut the door.

Kennedy mounted a chair and applied his eye to the detectascope. Just then Mary and Elaine entered the next room, Mary opening the door with a regular key.

"Won't you step in?" she asked.

Elaine did so and Mary hesitated in the hall. Wong Sin had slipped out, on noiseless feet and taken refuge behind some curtains. As he saw her alone, he beckoned to Mary.

"There's a stranger in the next room," he whispered. "I don't like him. Take the money and as quickly as possible get out and go to my apartment."

At the news that there was a suspicious stranger about Mary showed great alarm. Everything was so rapid now that the slightest hesitation meant disaster. Perhaps by quickness even a suspicious stranger could be fooled, she reasoned. At any rate, Wong Sin was resourceful. She had better trust him.

Mary followed Elaine into the room, where she had seated herself already, and locked the door.

"Have you the money there?" she asked.

"Yes," nodded Elaine, taking out the package of bills which she had got from the bank during the half-hour delay.

All this we could see by gazing alternately through the detectascope.

Elaine handed Mary the money. Mary counted it slowly. At last she looked up.

"It's all right," she said. "Now, I'll take this to that tong leader. He's in a room only just across the hall."

She went out.

Mary had just succeeded in getting on the elevator as Kennedy hurried down the hall. The door was closed and the car descended. He rang the push bell furiously, but there was no answer.

He dashed back to the room with us and jerked the telephone receiver.

"Hello—hello—hello!" he called.

There seemed to be no way to get a connection. What was the matter?

He hurried down the hall again.

Down in the hotel lobby, with his follower, the Chinaman paused before the telephone switchboard, where two girls were at work.

"You may go," ordered Wong, and, as his man left, he moved over close to the switchboard.

Just as a call from 509 flashed up, Wong slipped the rings off his little fingers and loosened the white rats on the telephone switchboard itself.

With a shriek the telephone system of the Coste went temporarily out of business.

* * * * * * *

Kennedy had succeeded in finding the alcove of the floor clerk in charge of the fifth floor. There on his desk was an instrument having a stylus on the end of two arms, connected to a system of magnets. It was a telautograph.

Unceremoniously Craig pushed the clerk out of his seat and sat down himself. It was a last chance, now that the telephone was out of commission.

Downstairs in the hotel office, where the excitement had not spread to every one, was the other end of the electric long-distance writer.

It started to write, as Kennedy wrote, upstairs:

"House Detective—quick—hold woman with blue chatelaine bag, getting out of elevator."

The clerks downstairs saw it and shouted above the din of the rat-baiting:

"McCann—McCann!"

The clerk had torn off the message from the telautograph register and handed it to the house man, who pushed his way to the desk.

Quickly the detective called to the bell-hops. Together they hurried after the well-dressed woman who had just swept out of the elevator. Mary had already passed through the excited lobby and out, and was about to cross the street—safe.

McCann and the bell-hops were now in full cry after her. Flight was useless. She took refuge in indignation and threats.

But McCann was obdurate. She passed quickly to tears and pleadings. It had no effect. They insisted on leading her back. The game was up.

"Here," cried Kennedy, "take her up in the elevator. I'll prove the case."

* * * * * * *

"Now—not a word of who she is in the papers, McCann," Kennedy concluded, referring to Elaine. "You know, it wouldn't sound well for the La Coste. As for that woman—well, I've got the money back. You can take her off—make the charge."

As the house man left with Mary I handed Craig his bag. We moved toward the door, and as we stood there a moment with Elaine, he quietly handed over to her the big roll of money.

If he had been less of a scientist, he might have understood the look on her face, but, with a nod to me, he turned and went.

As she looked first at him, then at the paltry ten thousand in her hand, Elaine stamped her little foot in vexation.

"I'm glad I didn't say anything more," she cried. "No—no—he shall beg my pardon first—there!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

QUINCY WILL BUILD TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL

If Action Is Not Taken State Will Prosecute

Mayor Campbell has received a notice from the state, that the City of Quincy has failed to comply with the law which provides that cities and towns of more than 10,000 inhabitants shall establish tuberculosis dispensaries and that it would be required to do so before July 1. Failure to comply with this order means prosecution.

The mayor said that he understood that there was an order before the council calling for an appropriation for a contagious hospital and that previously he had called the attention of the planning board to the matter and that the board was considering it. He further said that he would probably call the attention of the city council to the order.

The matter of a contagious hospital in Quincy is not a new one. It was during the administration of Mayor Stone that the Board of Health took up the matter and went so far as to have plans prepared. These at first did not meet with the approval of the State Board of Health but after making some minor changes they were approved. These plans call for practically two hospitals, although connected. One of these is for contagious diseases and the other for tuberculosis cases.

The contagious part of the hospital provides for practically eight rooms containing twenty-four beds. On one side are four rooms for women and on the other four for men. The rooms or wards are arranged so that on each side are two rooms containing eight beds, one room containing three beds and one room containing one bed.

For the tuberculosis part there are 18 beds for women and 18 for men. These are arranged so that there are two rooms of seven beds each, one room of three beds and one room of one bed on each side.

This size hospital it was figured out would take care of Quincy for many years. The estimated cost to build the hospital was $35,000. At that time the State Board of Health was pressing the city to do something and the matter went to the city council. Owing to the stress of the financial conditions of the city, however nothing was done and it has been held before the committee ever since. When the council of 1914 adjourned this was one of the matters that was referred to the city council of this year, where it is now pending before that committee.

Informally during the first of the present year, the matter of an appropriation for a contagious hospital was considered as one of the matters for which an appropriation must be made this year. Up to the present time however the finance committee has been so busy with the appropriation order and other pressing matters that it has not taken it up, but doubtless will do so at an early date.

While the matter was being agitated two years ago the Board of Health held a public hearing on the matter and there was some opposition expressed at that time. One of the arugments was that there was already a tuberculosis camp at Mt. Pleasant. Since that time however, this hospital has been given up.

Under the existing law the city now has to take care of tuberculosis patients and this entails quite a sum of money as there are patients from this city in most of the tuberculosis camps of the state.

Just how long the state will give the city to comply with the law is not known, although it is stated that if action has not been taken by July 1, that the matter would be given to the attorney general. It is probable however if by that time the city council has passed an appropriation for the hospital nothing more will be heard from it.

FALL RESULTS IN FRACTURED SKULL

James McCann, a caulker at the Fore River shipyard fell from a 20 foot staging Tuesday afternoon and struck on his head. He is now at the Quincy City Hopital, suffering, it is believed, from a fractured skull. He is resting comfortably.

McCann was taken to the Red Cross hospital after his fall. After treatment there he was removed in the police ambulance.

SUMMON BOYS FOR SETTING FIRES

It is understood that the police who have been investigating some of the alse alarms for the past few days have summoned a number of juveniles into court Thursday for setting fires. These boys will probably be arraigned at the juvenile session in the afternoon.

SUNNY SIDE of LIFE

NOT TO BE CAUGHT.

"Will you give me your name, please?" asked the young lady who was making a list of those present..

"Excuse me," said he between blushes, "but I will have to plead that this is not leap year."—Pathfinder.

ONE ON NURSE.

From the bedroom of the twin boys came the mingled sounds of loud weeping and hearty laughter, so father went up to investigate. "What's the matter up here?" he inquired..

The joyous twin indicated his weeping brother. "Nothing," he chuckled, "only nurse has given Alexander two baths and hasn't given me any."—Ladies' Home Journal.

THOUGHTFUL LAD.

John, whose father was a baker, was in the habit of bringing his teacher a fresh pretzel each day.

"I wish you would tell your father not to make them quite so salty," she once said, laughingly.

Thereafter, the shiny, brown delicacy—always minus the salt—was found frequently on her desk. "It is very kind of your father to make one on purpose for me," she told him.

"Oh!" was the startling reply. "He don't make them that way. I lick the salt off!"—Grit.

PITY TO WASTE THEM.

Lady—I didn't know your little boy wore glasses, Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Smith—Well, you see, they belonged to his poor father, and I thought it was a pity to waste 'em.—Pathfinder.

Y. M. C. A. SURE OF VICTORY

A statement was made by a local paper (not the Ledger) where it stated that the Makarias defeated the Quincy Y. M. C. A. team last Saturday night. The teams have not yet met, the first game coming this Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A. has had a most successful season winning 11 games out of the 17 played. The 2nd team won the championship of Eastern Massachusetts for the third successive time by winning 16 out of 18 games. Losing only to Newton and Cunningham gym. The boys are confident of victory.

Trask, the veteran center of the first team, had a good year getting 124 goals from the floor. Bishop, captain and center of the second team, ran him a good race scoring 117 baskets. Chapman who used to play with the Q. A. A. played a remarkable game at back, shooting 21 goals and being scored on but 15 times in 17 games. His friends claim he will be more than a match for either of the Makaria forwards. Rich, Morrison and Jimmy Jenkins will have to play their hardest to score on Glover and "Big Ed." Jenkins, the two clever backs of the Makarias. The season in tabular form:

SEA WALL BILL IS DEFEATED IN HOUSE

Sandberg's Measure Unable to Stand Washburn's Guns

State House, Boston, March 17. Seldom is the defeat of a measure on the floor of the house of representatives so spectacular as that of Representative Sandberg's bill for a state appropriation of $10,000 to build a sea wall at Houghs Neck. Representative Sandberg very ingeniously talked the measure through the House but at the last moment Representative Washburn of Worcester doubted the presence of a quorum and it was found that a quorum was not present. That nullified the previous vote on the matter and then Washburn turned his ever ready stream of caustic eloquence on the proposition and when the smoke had cleared away the sea wall bill was in ruins. The final count against it was 67 to 122.

Representative Sandberg in support of his bill, said that property owners at Houghs Neck were suffering great damage on account of the washing away of that portion of the shore and that a sea wall would protect the property and probably save the whole beach from being swept away. Representative McMorrow of Boston, who was in charge of the committee's adverse report, spoke against the bill but when he was through Sandberg denied that the committee had given the matter a fair hearing and declared that McMorrow was not even present when the bill was considered by the committee on Metropolitan affairs.

"The committee gave me about three minutes on this bill," declared Representative Sandberg, "and those three minutes were at five o'clock in the afternoon."

The chairman of metropolitan affairs, Representative Bothfield of Newton, was in the chair during the progress of the debate and consequently could not argue against the bill.

The house by a rising vote of 17 to 61, substituted the bill and then "Bob" Washburn cleared the decks for action.

"This house has turned down a recommendation of the Metropolitan Park Commission for bulk heads to protect all of the state reservations in order to cut down expenses. Are we to turn around and protect this private property in Quincy? Is this an opportune time with hundreds of needy men and women starving in the streets to vote for a measure of this kind? I trust that the house will have a lucid interval and kill this proposition," he said, after the sergeant at arms had secured a quorum.

The matter went to a roll call and was finally overwhelmingly defeated.

Miss Jessie French Gives St. Patrick's Party

Green was much in evidence at the St. Patrick's party given by Miss Jessie French at her home on Brook street Wednesday evening. Various green ornaments hung about the rooms and strips of green crepe paper were festooned from the chandeliers to the corners of the rooms.

The young people gathered at about eight o'clock and games were enjoyed for a short time, after which boxes containing favors were auctioned off by A. Johnson. They then toasted marshmallows, danced and sang until shortly after eleven o'clock when refreshments consisting of sherbet, cookies, cake and candy were served.

Among those present were the Misses Jean Arthur, Ouida Keay, Pearl Keay, Dora Bean, Phyllis Smith, Martha Burch, Lora Churchill, Isabel Taberner, Ruth Buckley, Helen Burch, Hilda Taberner, Mabel Shoecraft, Pheobe Buckley, Marjorie Young, Mabel Johnson, Collina Brown, Gretchen Young, Hazel Davison, Agnes Kinniburgh, Susie Moffat Alice Waterhouse, Jordine Davison and Jessie French, Mrs. C. There were nearly 100 present, including delegations from Iona lodge of Maplewood, Unity of Boston, United of Cambridge, Golden Star of Lynn, Evening Star of Somerville and Silsby of Brockton.

Heading the list of distinguished visitors was Grand Protector Mrs. Evie L. Hicks of Somerville, and accompanying her was Grand Vice Protector Henry E. Steeve of Somerville, Grand Chaplain Mrs. Agnes E. Fletcher of Quincy, Grand Secretary Samuel Hathaway of Boston, Grand Treasurer Charles Bridge of Dorchester, Grand Guide Manfred Lawler of Maplewood, Grand Sentinel Mrs. Charlotte McHugh of Somerville, Grand Past Protector Mrs. Mabel E. Williams of Saugus. District Deputy Grand Protector Mrs. C. E. Prescott of Somerville was also presefit.

An informal entertainment followed the business meeting under the direction of a committee consisting of Miss M. Lizzie Furnald, Mrs. Nellie M. Cate and Mrs. Rose A. Reid. Games were played and small American flags were distributed as well as shamrock emblems. A collation was served. The program came to a close with the dancing of a Virginia reel by all of those present and the singing of America.

ASHES CATCH FIRE.

The alarm from box 46 at 10.01 this morning was for a slight fire on the outside of the building near the corner of Copeland street and Furnace avenue, occupied by Peter Dolan. It appears that a tin of hot coal ashes was thrown near the building causing it to take fire. The damage was very slight.

Mrs. Charles A. Ross of Independence avenue is confined to her home with a severe cold.

DOES NOT KNOW DATE OF HER BIRTH

Friends Give Mrs. Cluse Birthday Party on St. Patrick's Day

NEVER HAD ONE BEFORE

Mrs. Ellen Cluse, who was born in Ireland 78 years ago and never observed the anniversary of her birth was tendered a party on St. Patricks day by friends at the private hospital of Mrs. Lydia Beaulieu on Buckley street.

Eight old ladies who also live there and whose ages together total 635 years were the special guests of the day. The event was the second they attended this week having joined in a quiet observance of the 75th anniversary of Mrs. Maria Stoddard on Tuesday.

The oldest present was Mrs. Rossanna Drake who is in her 92nd year and the youngest was Mrs. Emma G. Sole who will observe her 62nd anniversary in June. Mrs. Drake contributed to the program by reciting the 23rd psalm.

Mrs. Cluse has been an inmate at the hospital for a year, going there from the Quincy Home where she had lived for 35 years.

City officials five years ago learned she was a soldier's widow and through their efforts she was given the pension she was entitled to.

Mrs. Cluse is the mother of two daughters, one of whom lives in the West. She had been adopted into another family when a baby and didn't know her mother was alive until five years ago. She came here and wanted to take her mother west but Mrs. Cluse preferred to stay in Quincy where she had many friends.

When she lived at the City Home people noticed Mrs. Cluse growing more feeble day by day and inquired her age. The old lady was unable to tell them. They instituted inquiries and found she was born in Ireland 78 years ago but didn't know the month or day and had never celebrated such an occasion.

When this became known Mrs. Beaulieu decided she would have a party and at the suggestion of a maid at the hospital St. Patricks Day was chosen as a tribute to her birthplace. Mrs. Cluse was one of the happiest in the gathering. She fondled the birthday cards sent her and time and again hid her cheeks in the bouquet of roses and sweet peas sent her by the members of the Roly Poly club of City hall girls.

OBSERVE SAINT PATRICK'S DAY

Irish Concert and Ball is Rare Treat

Div. 17, A. O. H., fittingly celebrated St. Patricks day with an Irish concert and entertainment in Polands hall Atlantic, Wednesday evening.

"Glorious St. Patrick," was rendered by the little girls choir, all of whom were dressed in white and wore green sashes. For an encore, they sang "Come back to Erin."

Rev. Fr. John Cuffe, delivered an address On Future Ireland. Solos were rendered by Peter M. Colligan.

Little Margaret Reardon danced a highland fling. Margaret is only nine years old and her dancing proved a feature of the evening.

Edwin Shea, president of Div. 17, told of great work accomplished by his predecessor in office Michael McNally and then presented him with a beautiful morris chair. Mr. McNally although taken greatly by surprise thanked the members of the division and told them that he would still continue to do his best for them.

Edward J. Fegan was then introduced as the principal speaker of the evening he took as his subject, "Ireland, Irishmen, and their affect on the World." Solos were then sung by George Kane, and Miss Catherine Dolan.

Refreshments were then served and dancing was enjoyed until midnight, music being furnished by a Girls Orchestra consisting of Miss Rosalie Du Temple, pianist, Margaret White, violinist, and Florence White, bass violinist.

Edwin Shea was chairman of the committee and was assisted by a score of members.

WOMEN GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

"Our Church Fair" is Title of Drama

There was a large attendance Wednesday evening at the Water Street Presbyterian church at the entertainment given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society. The program for the entertainment included the presentation of the two act drama Our Church Fair."

The characters which were impersonated by the members of the Ladies Aid society were well taken. Special mention should be made of the work of Mrs. Marr who took the part of Mrs. Jackson, the president of the society. This part was cast to Mrs. Ross, a sudden illness however prevented her from being present. Mrs. Marr came to the rescue and although she had but a few days in which to prepare herself for the part she was almost letter perfect and received warm applause.

Others in the cast were Mrs. D. Dawson, as Mrs. Roberts, who wants to be president; Mrs. E. Collins as Mrs. Henry, young, giddy, fond of novels; Mrs. J. M. McKay as Mrs. Brett, on the dinner committee; Mrs. C. Clark as Mrs. Lewis, the ministers wife; Mrs. A. Bishop as Mrs. Lawson plump; Mrs. D. Muckle as Mrs. Brown, anxious to get new church attendants; Mrs. L. Tinney as Mrs. Addison, very inquisitive; Mrs. F. Hayden as Mrs. Ridgley, sensitive; Mrs. A. Scott as Mrs. Otis, on the dinner committee; Mrs. L. Campbell as Mrs. Thompson, decidedly close; and Mrs. A. Mundie as Mrs. Drew, just married.

In addition to the drama there were piano solos by Mrs. Robert Flockhart and vocal solos by Mr. McGee. Home made aprons and candy were on sale

DECLARES PRESENT TAX SYSTEM IS IMMORAL

Lieutenant Governor Cushing Addresses Men's Assembly

Lieutenant Governor Grafton D. Cushing addressed a representative body of Wollaston men, comprising the men's clubs of the community, at a meeting held Wednesday evening in the Wollaston Baptist church under the auspices of the Men's Assembly.

The speaker was late in arriving on account of the celebrations in South Boston but on his appearance was given an enthusiastic reception.. A program of organ music by Mrs. George Drew and the singing of "America" preceded the address.

Mr. Cushing spoke in the interests of a bill to amend the state constitution regarding the present system of taxation in Massachusetts. He referred to the bill in question as the only practicable solution in sight that stood a show of being accepted by the legislature and eventually by the people.

"Last year" said Mr. Cushing, "it swept through both branches of the legislature and was adopted. If it goes through this year it will be submitted to you. If you accept it, it will simply act as a clearing ground to let the legislature get to work.

"A representative commission will be needed to devise some general system of taxation. This will be submitted to the legislature. It will probably be rejected but it will be thoroughly discussed in every city and town and given the most searching scrutiny. Eventually some system will be accepted.

"The bases has got to be the collection of all taxes on intangibles by the state and its later proportionate distribution to the cities and towns, while the local assessors still continue to levy on real estate.

"Today no one thinks of making a declaration if he has any property. He would be assessed for from 33 1-3 to 50 per cent of his income and that amount would be confiscatory.

"We do not collect this and don't expect to collect it. The great mass of intangible personality isn't taxed. On account of the exhorbitant tax people have had to buy non-taxable securities.

"As a result Massachusetts has been flooded with more or less useless investments into which investors have been obliged to put their money when they couldn't avoid making a declaration.

"Last year when Governor Walsh recommended compulsory returns, millions of dollars left the state. They're moving. We are coming to a time that is critical and this is being recognized by the business world.

"We are carrying on an immoral system by not allowing the people to declare their property. It is essential for us to get at the vast amount of intangible personal property.

"The larger body of citizens are perfectly willing to pay a fair tax. This they are absolutely unable to do under the present system."

President Charles W. Bailey of the Men's Assembly was in charge and Mayor Campbell occupied a seat upon the platform. At the supper of the assembly, which preceded the public meeting, Mayor Campbell spoke briefly concerning the work at city hall.

He related several humorous anecdotes in a days work and took occasion to point out the beneficial civic work that men's clubs of the nature of the one he was addressing, could do. Improvement associations, he said, were likely to go off at a tangent.

"We are going, to give you an economical government," he said. "Instead of building new roads we are going to develop what we have. After that is done, if there is any money left, we will start the new road proposition.

"Conditions are poor, except on the 'velvet streets' here in Wollaston. I went over Grand View avenue a few nights ago and it wasn't my fault that I didn't break a spring was one of the 'velvet streets' talked about in the last campaign."

As president of the Congregational club the Mayor thanked the assembly for the invitation extended and said that at an early date his club would reciprocate.

At the supper St. Patrick's day decorations were in evidence. On the tables were Irish and American flags while each diner donned a paper cap with a large shamrock ornament. Green napkins were also provided.

A roast turkey supper, topping off with plum pudding, was served by the young ladies of the church who were also appropriately attired. "Tipperary" and other songs were joined in with great zest.

A. FITCH BROMLEY.

We regret that A. Fitch Bromley, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. has felt impelled to tender his resignation. We have heard no one speak ill of him We have heard many speak in approval of him. The office which he has filled the last four years and a half is an important and difficult one. Mr. Bromley has filled it with distinction and what he has accomplished among the young men of Quincy will not soon be forgotten. Mr. Bromley has not divulged his plans. Whatsoever they may be we are sure we speak for the citizens of Quincy when we tender him the city's best wishes for continued success.

SAFETY FIRST FORSOOTH.

According to the Brockton Enterprises Police Electricina Kenneth S. Wallace of that city was the near victim of a hold up. While driving the police patrol wagon the other afternoon a man jumped into the road, waving a revolver and calling upon Wallace to stop. By way of reply the police electrician pushed his machine into high speed and soon the hold-up man was far behind.

Then Wallace turned and saw that a second man had come from behind the bushes to join the first. Two revolver shots were fired. Whether at him or not, Wallace could not say.

"I didn't stop to make sure on this point," he states.

This was well done. Some might cry of the duty of police officers, even when they chance to be assigned to the electrician's department, but how unkind of them. "Safety First" was Wallace's slogan. Why should he risk his life in an encounter with armed men? Perhaps he had left his revolver in the station to be cleaned.

His duty was clear: to return to the station, report the affair, and watch the police department proceed to hunt for the hold-up men. Of course, it is possible the men might have secured too good a start but what of that? Wallace had to think of himself and then there was the police auto to consider. An affray might result in a bullet hole through that vehicle. Mr. Wallace had an excellent opportunity to put into effect the "Safety First" slogan and he seized his opportunity.

CONQUEST OF THE AIR.

The tragic fate of Lincoln Beachey brings to mind the extraordinary development of man's attempt to conquer the air within the last few years. Baloons there have been, of course, for many years, but even the most up-to-date dirigible has not been much more than a creature of the wind. The airship, man's latest invention to enable him to rival the birds, is not truly termed a flying machine. An aeroplane does not fly. It is dependent upon motion for stability, rapid motion at that.

The aeroplane naturally followed the automobile because the automobile gave to the aeroplane the light but powerful engine which was able to propel the frail framework of wood and wires at such a speed that the laws of gravity were defied. Without speed the aeroplane cannot continue to defy the laws of gravity but must fall, or at best glide, to the ground. Perhaps the next step will be an airship which in its method of locomotion shall more closely resemble the birds. No aeroplane yet devised, even though driven by a Beachey can approach the feeblest and smallest bird in a true claim to actual conquest of the air.

The Allegheny Presbytery of the United Presbyterian church at a meeting in Pittsburg recently adopted a resolution providing that every pastor of that denomination in this country must be paid at least $1,000 a year and be provided with a parsonage. There appears to be a feeling that even clergymen should have a remuneration sufficient to permit them at least a decent living.

FIREMEN FIGHT ROOF BLAZE

The 136th fire alarm, of the month was sounded at 7.44 this morning from Box 38 for a slight fire on the roof of the stone sheds of Long & Saunders, off Penn street, adjoining the railroad tracks. The fire was caused by sparks from a passing locomotive alighting on the roof. The blaze was quickly extinguished and the loss was trifling.

Wednesday afternoon the central station auto went to Whitwell street at 3.15 to extinguish a grass fire near the City Hospital and at 4:05 the chief went to South Walnut street to extinguish a bon-fire.

FRANK SHAY IS VISITOR

Frank Shay, once of Quincy and now of other parts and one of a small million who joined in the back to nature movement, passed through here Tuesday on a business trip and dropped in at city hall.

He was warmly welcomed by friends and an exchange of confidences brought out that the stranger still makes his home in Stoughton.

He has sold the 12 acre farm he cultivated there however and has moved across the street to another plot of land, containing only three quarters of an acre, with a house and barn.

The change was made according to Shay, not because he found the farm a losing proposition but because his son John who has been given charge of the manufacturing at the Philadelphia store of Page and Shaw will be away practically all of the time. "That would leave only Mrs. Shay and the little girl at home," said Mr. Shay, who is a travelling man and away a good deal of the time.

Mr. Shay said desirable farm hands were scarce, that he broke even on cows and made some money in hens. He contributed a few human interest stories in his inimitable way and th hurried along.

VARIED PROGRAM MUCH ENJOYED

The Standish male quartet of Boston repeated its success of a year ago at a concert, held Tuesday evening in the Wollaston Congregational church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society.

Composing the quartet were W. C. Mooney, first tenor; Otto E. Lewis, second tenor; R. L. Van Buskirk, baritone; W. H. Corliss, basso.

In addition to the musical program a number of readings, humorous and otherwise were given by Mr. Van Buskirk which found great favor and were loudly applauded. The fact that Mr. Van Buskirk is a brother of Henry P. Van Buskirk, a prominent member of the church, gave added interest to the performance.

The program opened with the stirring selection "The Bugle Calls Away" by Greeley, followed by a tenor solo "Clang of the Foeman's Steel" by Mr. Corliss.

"De Sandman" by Gibson was rendered by the quartet and Mr. Van Buskirk gave a number of readings, among them Rudyard Kipling's "If."

"Old time songs and Southern Melodies" resulted in twenty minutes of uneful harmony by the quartet, in which banjo interpolations and other features were brought into play. Among the selections were "Southern Medley," "Nellie Grey," "Maggie," "Shine, shine, moon" and "Loves old sweet song."

"A Batch of Smiles" by Mr. Van Buskirk included a number of good stories, concluding with the negro dialect piece "Candle Lightin' time." Mr. Lewis contributed a tenor solo "Tonight." The final number was Buck's "Goodnight" by the quartet.

During the evening candy was sold by the Misses Lucy Waite, Lillian Jones, Pauline Randall, Lucy Falconer, Anna Schroeder and Dorothy Tayor. The following were ushers: Eugene Smith, Alfred Clough and Chas. Johnson.

HALT EPIDEMIC OF HOG CHOLERA

Danger Now Believed to Have Passed

The several cases of hog cholera, discovered here last week, have been under the observation of veterinarians who now feel the danger of an epidemic has passed.

The disease was discovered in several sucklings and resulted in the death of one. A prompt isolation of the infected animals as a preventive measure has been successful.

Dr. Abele who has had the pigs of the city under observation said today it looked as though a spread of the disease has been stopped.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

"OTHER EXPENSES."

Editor of the Ledger:

There are many taxpayers who will agree with Councilman Smith in at least one of his motions at Monday night's meeting of the City Council, that referring to "other expenses," as designated in the annual budget, and reported in the doings of the Council in Tuesday's Ledger.

No clerk or official at City Hall should receive two salaries, or, a regular salary and extras charged as miscellaneous or "other expenses" when they are only comfortably busy and do no over time work. All receive good salaries, as much or more than paid by many business houses. It is true some departments are busier than others, but why not keep all busy by having those who now have time for outside work, do the extra work of other departments without extra compensation?

Or if not feasible why not establish a city hall stenographer for the use of all departments? The work of some departments could also be consolidated.

There is no reason why a clerk should not be busy from eight until five o'clock on the city's business and there are those who are conscientious and always to be found at their desk

What is true of the clerks should apply to heads of departments, they also should be onto their jobs from eight until five o'clock. Their salary is not earned when they sit in a chair and see the clerks do the work, although possibly the clerks are more competent, as their positions are made permanent, not depending on which way the political wind blows.

If the head of a department in a private business spent his time talking with heads of other departments or friends on outside matters, or indulged in auto rides, attended the club or matinee during working hours he would soon lose his position What is true in private business should hold good in city affairs. Those paying taxes have every right to ask for, and receive full service for the work paid for, whether by heads of departments or clerks.

Economy should begin at City Hall and be the watchword of all the councilmen if there is to be any relief for those who foot the bills—the over burdened taxpayers. Councilman Smith is to be commended for his stand.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

That old paintings of the Flemish school can be beautifully reproduced is evidenced by the group now on exhibition in the library art gallery. The original paintings, from which these photographic copies have been made, are in Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle, and are the work of such eminent artists as Van Dyck, Teniers the younger, and Janssens.

Most of the copies from Van Dyck's portraits are of King Charles I, his family and his friends, as may readily be understood, since Van Dyck was the official portrait painter in the court of Charles.

Although the coloring of the originals is lacking, yet the expression, minuteness of detail as to dress and to figure, and the graceful grouping in the reproductions, have been effectively retained. The portrait group of the three eldest children of King Charles I is an exquisite work of art.

Perhaps the detail of each of the many active figures in the "Village Dance" and the "Village Festival;" copies of the paintings by Teniers the younger, is their most striking feature. Yet no less carefully executed are the various picturesque figures in the painting by Janssens called "Charles II at a ball at the Hague." Each photograph is accompanied by a history of the original painting and a description of its original coloring.

MONTHLY ATTENDANCE REPORT

The monthly report of school attendance is given below for February. It will be noted that the average attendance of the present year was 55 greater than for February of last year. This increase however is in part due to the extreme severity of the weather in February of 1914. As a matter of fact there are about 450 more pupils in school at the present time than was the case one year ago.

EVENING SCHOOLS CLOSE.

All the evening trade classes close this week after the most successful season that has yet been held. More trades have been secured, the attendance has been larger and the interest better sustained. It is hoped that next week the work for women may be developed to a greater degree than was the case this year.

SCHOOL NURSE

The report of the school nurse for the first month of work shows a large amount of work attended to. Four hundred sixty-eight children were examined, of which number 72 were referred to the school physician for closer examination. One hundred and twelve visits were made to the homes, for the purpose of interviewing parents, a number of children were accompanied to the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston and several children received surgical treatment.

The committee on Education of the legislature reported favorably yesterday on the half-mill tax Bill for the equalization of school costs. A favorable report from this committee had been expected; the real struggle over the bill will come on its passage.

The St. Francis Choral society, gave its first annual entertainment at the Houghs Neck Lyceum on St. Patrick's night to a capacity house. The program included fancy dancing, vocal and instrumental numbers and two playlets, the latter under the direction of Miss Lucy Noonan was enthusiastically applauded.

The opening was chorus singing by the society with Misses Delina and Florence Theriault, pianists and Miss Blanche Theriault, violinist. They also took part in the concert. There were vocal solos by John Sharkey, Miss Lydia Terry, Miss Marion Sharkey and Miss Lillian Goss. A pleasing feature of the evening was the fancy dancing by Miss Anna May Powers and Miss Veronica Gerrevoir.

One of the two act farces was "When Women Vote," and in the cast were the Misses Bertha A. Farrell, Reita F. Tobin, Marie A. Tobin, Agnes Grundy and Gertrude C. Farrell.

The one act comedy was an appropriate one, "An Irish Invasion," in which Miss Sarah McCabe, playing Celeste, a French maid, made the hit Supporting her were the Misses Gertrude C. Farrell, Bertha A. Farrell, Marie A. Tobin, Reita F. Tobin, Agnes Grundy, Agnes Kiley and Ellen Tighe.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB

The Park and Downs church was filled Tuesday, for the regular meeting of the Wollaston Woman's club. The president Mrs. Ropes made several announcements, among them being the gentlemen's night on Friday evening in the Wollaston School hall, when Albert L. Squier will give a stereopticon lecture on, "In the High Places of South America." It is hoped that all members with their husbands will be present.

The attention of the club was called to the Wagnerian Opera to be given in the Harvard Stadium June 4. The orchestra of the Metropolitan opera House as well as many of the world-famous artists will make the performance one of the notable events of musical circles.

April 15 the club entertains the state conference which is considered quite an honor for so young a club. It will be an all day meeting and box luncheons will be served. One of the morning subjects will be "Women Police Officers." The afternoon subjects have not yet been announced, but it is known they will be along Civic lines.

The club voted to give $125 dollars to a permanent college scholarship for some worthy Wollaston woman This amount to be given yearly, $100 was also voted for the Associated Charities and $100 for the visiting nurse.

It is hoped all who can, will attend the meeting March 29 in the Methodist vestry when Mrs. Miller of the Filene Co, gives a talk on "How to dress Economically." Attend and take your friends.

Mrs. Adams reported $30 realized by the sale of candy at the club dramatics. This committee has not only provided for needy families but has cared for the sick and suffering in the city.

The meeting place of next year was then spoken of and left upon the table as a matter to be decided later. Miss Gertrude Allen of Quincy then sang in a very charming manner three solos, accompanied by Miss Olney.

Mrs. Ropes introduced Arthur Kachel who read "The Music Master." It would be hard to find a more delightful story to read and it would surely be much more difficult to find a reader of greater ability. Mr. Kachel is an artist and needless to say all spent a most enjoyable afternoon.

ASSISTANT ASSESSORS.

Mayor Did Not Appoint Them Today.

Mayor Campbell did not announce the appointment of assistant assessors this morning as expected. The mayor held a conference with the Board of Assessors at which time the field of work of the board was discussed and a number of applications for the appointment of assistant assessors were considered. These applications were taken under advisement and later the appointments will be announced.

While New York city has not had much snow this winter, there have been several days when the hills in Central park were covered with a hard, icy crust that made coasting a delight. You may be assured that the young folks of the great city who live anywhere near that famous playground made the most of the opportunity provided by old King Boreas. Sad to relate, a fatal accident occurred on one of the hills in the park. A little boy in endeavoring to avoid another coaster slid into a tree and was killed. Coasting is not a dangerous sport, but children are often careless at play, and when a hill is long and icy it is not well for very little folks to attempt to coast alone. The accident, of course, was a great shock to the boy's playmates, and perhaps most of them heeded the lesson it taught. The girl in the picture is Miss Betty Pierson, daughter of J. F. Pierson, Jr.

Forfeits.

When the young people are sitting around after the evening dinner here are some things to keep them busy:

Tell the culprit to grasp the right ankle with the right hand while standing on the left foot, bend it until the right knee touches the floor, then slowly rise to a standing position again. Keep the left hand extended, touching nothing. The right foot must not touch the floor nor the ankle be released from the right hand.

Put one hand where the other cannot grasp it. Do this by grasping the right elbow with the left hand.

Place an object on the floor so no one can jump over it. Do this by placing the article in a corner.

Hold the foot in one hand and walk around the room whistling "Yankee Doodle."

Pose as "Liberty Enlightening the World."

Stick a pin in the center of a ball of yarn, allowing it to stand up so that the victim can catch it with his teeth. Black the top of the ball with burnt cork. Play this only on a person who will take the joke without getting angry.

Put "Mary" through the keyhole. Write the name on a bit of paper and poke it through.

The Game of Wink.

The boys of the party are seated in a circle of chairs, of which one chair remains vacant. A girl stands behind each chair, her hands on its back. The girl behind the vacant chair selects a boy and literally "gives him a wink." Thereupon he tries to get from his chair to hers. His partner, however (the girl standing behind his chair), must be quick enough to intercept the wink and place her hands on his shoulders to restrain him. If she is successful the girl behind the empty chair must try again and until she has secured a partner. Then, of course, there is another chair to be filled in the same way.

It is a strict rule that the hands of the girls must remain on the backs of the chairs except when restraining a deserting partner. As all girls do not wink with equal facility or grace and no chance for practice is given, you can count on roars of laughter from this very simple game.

Queer Coal Chambers.

Chambers for the safe storage of coal are dug in the bottom of the Panama canal. The deposits of coal placed there will be secure from enemies, and a further advantage lies in the fact that coal is less liable to deteriorate under water than when exposed to air.

A Tongue Twister.

[This is said to be a certain cure for the hiccups if repeated in one breath.]

When a twister a-twisting, will twist him a twist,
For the twisting of his twist he three times doth untwist,
But if one of the twines of the twist do untwist,
The twine that untwisteth untwisteth the twist.
Untwirling the twine that untwisteth between.
He twirls, with the twister, the two in a twine;
Then twice having twisted the twines of the twine.
He twisteth the twine he had twined in twain.
The twain that, in twining, before in the twine,
As twines were untwisted, he now doth untwine:
'Twixt the twain intertwisting a twine more between,
He, twirling his twister, makes a twist of the twine.

COVER FOR SHIRT WAISTS

Dainty Fabrics Protected by the Use of This Contrivance Quite Simple to Make.

Every woman needs several cases for protecting dainty chiffon blouses or separate lace waists. Where such waists are made of soft and very pliable materials they may be laid away in cases or boxes, but with many fabrics their fresh, uncrumpled look is best preserved by hanging the waist on a wire hanger and protecting it from the dust by a thin slip cover of swiss or lawn. A yard and a half of figured material is enough to make a protector. Fold together, make a slit at the center of the fold about an inch long through which the wire hook may be slipped. Seam up the sides and hem the two ends. Attach ribbons at both ends of the two hems so that the inverted bag can be tied together. Twenty-seven inch material is wide enough to make the slip from. The one pictured was made of dotted swiss.

TO ACQUIRE SHAPELY ANKLES

In These Days of the Short Skirt Its Possession Is Something Greatly to Be Desired.

There used to be a time when our dresses, or at least the dresses of our mothers, reached to the floor, or so nearly so that brush braid or coarse binding on the bottom hem was necessary to preserve the fabric. In those days, if the tiniest bit of a feminine ankle showed above the shoetop it was a cue for a woman to blush.

Praise be, these conditions do not hold today. What with our hobble skirts, slit skirts, tight skirts, short skirts and now short circular skirts, we have become accustomed to displaying our ankles. Woman's right to the possession of ankles has finally been recognized, consequently pretty ankles are greatly to be desired, as they add to one's general appearance —and beauty is indeed a duty.

To improve the shapeliness of ankles, exercise and massage will do wonders. It will be found that most ankles which are unattractive, or not quite so shapely as the possessor might wish, either lack sufficient flesh or else are too fleshy.

If your ankles are a little stout you can reduce them in a month, or two months at the most, by means of a little exercise ten minutes morning and night. Remove the shoes and stockings and cross the knees so that the support is removed from one ankle. Thrust out the foot and move it around from the ankle in a twisting motion, then bend it up and down, making sure that all this is done with the ankle bone. When one foot becomes tired shift position and exercise the other ankle.—C. Eleanor Mather in New York Press.

FASHION'S FANCY FOR SILK

Material Is Employed to a Greater Extent Than It Has Been for Many Seasons.

While one's attention is centered upon cotton, one must not lose sight of silks. They occupy a very prominent place in the wardrobe of the up-to-date woman. All dresses intended for afternoon functions are made of silk. Delicate voiles or ottomans, soft taffetas, silk velvets and wool velour are all used in developing these dressy frocks. Distinctive effects may be obtained by combining these materials with gold-embroidered chiffon, jet, pearls, or adding to them bands of fur, such as skunk, sable, ermine and the popular ape skin.

The evening dresses of this season are not so rich and daring as those of last winter, but in many ways they are more pleasing. The textures are exquisite, reminiscent of the lovely fabrics of the days of the Italian renaissance. There are soft gold and silver brocades, delicate taffetas, thin lace drawn through with metal threads and crystal and jet embroidered chiffons and tulles.

To go back to the less costly materials, such as silk and fine cottons, in which the majority of women are interested in these hard times, a dance frock of bordered organdie, taffeta silk, striped voile or cotton crepe is now considered the correct thing.—Indianapolis News.

Embroidered Pockets.

The little embroidered pockets which have long ribbons attached, so that they can be suspended from the bedpost or fastened to the rod of a brass or iron bed are most convenient. Some of these little pockets are made of covered cardboard, circular in shape. Two covered circles are overhanded half way around with an owl on a branch of a tree embroidered on one side.

NEW YORK STYLE TREND.

Elaborate Creations Side By Side With Simple Models—New Belts And Collars—The Military Poise.

The woman who understands her own requirements has a system of dress "Don'ts" that save her from many a pitfall. Models are so varied that one can select styles that suit any type at a price that matches one's dress allowance, and appear with the smartest of get-ups, built after either simple or frivolous models. Most people include both types in their outfit and wear both successfully, always modifying a style slightly to suit the individual requirements, giving careful attention to the fundamental details, upon which the effect of any costume depends for its success. The way a woman carries herself and wears her dress, is all important, especially this year when the erect military poise is the rule, with the well-dressed crowd.

HAT FASHIONS.

Small hats still hold the lead in popular favor, but these come in so many different models that vary from tiny Torpedo Turbans to quite sizable shapes with high up-standing brims, and sailors of every width, that here again, any woman should be able to match her wants with her expenditures. Fine glazed straws vie with fine Milans, and the odd Barn Yard Straws that need little adornment. Trimmings continue scant and the overloaded styles are notably absent from every smart showing.

Flowers in a melange of colorings are very pretty and youthful in effect, and the ribbon ties continue a favorite device on small turbans, and drooping Maud Muller shapes in Leghorn or straw. On these latter the ends of black velvet, or other ribbons often fall well below the waist line, and they are in the typical flat-crowned wide brimmed styles familiar in old pictures.

A GIRLISH MODEL.

A charmingly young hat seen recently was of the new blue straw as far as the low round crown was concerned, while the brim of transparent blue tulle, was adorned with a flat wreath of conventionalized field flowers, that looked as if they had been pasted on the net. The wired edge was concealed under a straw braid.

Another exceptionally smart model for an older wearer was of enamelled black straw, with a small round crown, no brim to speak of on the right side, and a high up-standing flare at the left, which was bent in an open flute, and trimmed with two blue silk pom-poms.

SILK AND SATIN TRIMMINGS.

There is a decided penchant for made trimmings of silk or satin. Sometimes it's the crown that is satin, the narrow brim and band that is straw, often it is a straw hat with the pleated or shirred banding of the crown of silk or ribbon. Flat military rosettes of pleated silk or ribbon poject out directly in front of many of the small shapes, and feather bands finished with similar ornaments make especially attractive garnitures, especially in the popular sand and lime shades, on black or brown straws.

NEW MILITARY POISE.

Smart accuracy of cut, and all the characteristic details of the various military uniforms are reproduced in latest style suits offered for Spring selection.

Tinsel braids and metal buttons, especially in silver, decorate attractive suits and dresses. Whatever the type of costume, whether loose or close fitting, the figure lines beneath must be carefully moulded by an up-to-date authoritatively shaped corset.

The new Warner rust proof models are just out, and can be seen at any well stocked department. The height above the waist is slightly increased, the skirt remaining trim and close fitting, and the new boning is arranged to hold the figure in the erect fashionable poise, without any sacrifice of the comfort and wear for which these corsets are famous.

SMART TOP COATS.

Smart top coats of covert, corduroy or golfine are worn over plain or fussy frocks with equally good effect. Built on roomy lines so skillfully managed that they rather add to, than detract from the trim lines of the fashionable figure. These come in verdure greens, all the putty and tan shades, as well as in battleship gray, in the corded goods, and in the usual covert colorings. Linings of strongly contrasted black and white blocks or stripes are especially smart in the coverts, while the velvet faced goods is usually lined in self colorings.

THE COPPER SUPPLY.

Copper is an essential in modern warfare, and Germany's supply is a question of considerable importance to both sides. Cut off from importing copper to any extent, Germany must rely upon her own resources. Judged by German claims there are ample for all needs. Dr. Schuster, secretary of the German iron founders' union, declares that by making use of all the bronze ornaments and the copper cupolas of the churches, and collecting all the copper used for other purposes in the last few years, Germany will be able to hold out for 30 years more. He adds, however, that "if necessary, in the conquered parts of Belgium and France we shall seize everything made of copper."

If Germany has enough copper to hold out 30 years, why should this be necessary? Apparently Dr. Schuster has some doubt as to the truth of his own claim. Prof. Ashley of the University of Birmingham, a British authority well informed as to Germany's production, importation and use of copper, tells a different story. According to this authority, Germany is today the second consumer of copper in the world, the United States being the first and England third. In 1912 the German consumption of copper had risen to 230,000 tons of which amount only one-tenth was produced at home. Prof Ashley states that Germany had only 8000 tons on hand in May last, and it is his belief that between that time and the outbreak of the war, Germany used in the industries all she imported.

How much copper can be gathered in by melting monuments, stripping church cupolas and so forth is problematical. It is evident, however, that Germany can get little copper beyond her own production ,except as she gets it from the United States by evading British search on the high seas and its overland transport through neutral countries bordering on Germany or Austria.—Taunton Herald News.

DOUBLY SOLD.

The newly-appointed master at a school had learnt all about "cribbing" and such little dodges as school-boys practise, and had not forgotten them, says London Titbits.

One day, during a lesson in history, he observed one of his pupils take out his watch every minute or two. He grew suspicious, thinking that the pupil was consulting notes on the lesson. Finally he strode slowly between the desks and stopped in front of the boy.

"Let me see your watch," he commanded.

"Yes, sir," was the meek reply.

The master opened the front of the case. He looked somewhat sheepish when he read the single word, "Sold!"

But he was a shrewd man. He was not to be thrown off the scent so easily. He opened the back of the case. Then he was satisfied, for he read, "Sold again!"

State House News

The house committee on ways and means has reported unanimously in favor of a resolve to appropriate $2500 to carry out the governor's recommendation that the people of the state be made acquainted with the benefits of savings bank life insurance.

The committee on social welfare has reported the bill recommended by the pension commission of last year which would place all appointed public employees of city, county and state under a contributory pension system. The present pension laws are very much confused and it is very unlikely that the committee on ways and means will view favorably any increase in the pension laws at the present time.

The Governor has appointed William P. Nickerson of Norwood to the state board of health. Mr. Nickerson is a farmer engaged in the business of producing and selling milk and he also keeps thoroughbred stock on his farm at Norwood. He is steward of Norfolk County Grange, chairman of the board of health of Norwood, a member of the N. E. Holstein Friesian club, a member of the National Grange, Chairman of the Norwood Business Men's association, member of the A. F. & A. M. Mr. Nickerson was appointed, as a representative of the agricultural interests in the commonwealth. The farmers have felt for sometime that the milk industry is at some thing of a disadvantage because of the fact that the inspections are all made by a Board of Health composed entirely of doctors with no one who understands the dairy business from the farmer's point of view. Recognizing this feeling the Governor has appointed an active farmer to the Board.

Mr. Lomasney won a victory in the house by getting that body to reject the bill for redistricting the city of Boston. The matter is now up to the senate and some of the house leaders have been urging the president of the senate to take care of the situation, but Mr. Coolidge refuses to become very much excited about it.

Dr. Charles Fleischer of the Boston Sunday Commons is to be the speaker tomorrow evening at eight o'clock at Cochato hall, Braintree under the auspices of the Braintree Equal Suffrage league. His subject will be "Standing Pat." The league extends an invitation to Quincy men and women to attend the meeting.

JOHNSON FACES THE AGE HOODOO

Champion Must Be Freak to Win at Thirty-seven.

WOULD SET RING RECORD.

Dopester Figures Willard's Chances Excellent and Cites History to Prove It—Sullivan Was Through at Thirty-four and Corbett at Thirty-one.

Should Jack Johnson succeed in defeating Jess Willard at Juarez he will have accomplished a feat that has not been equaled in ring history. The nearest approach to it was when Bob Fitzsimmons, at the age of thirty-five, conquered Jim Corbett at Carson City.

Whatever may be said against Willard, it is a fact that he is the best white heavyweight who has come to the front during the past ten years. Yet a supposedly high living negro, at the age of thirty-seven, is picked to beat him. On the face of it there must be something wrong with such a conclusion.

JESS WILLARD, JOHNSON'S NEXT OPPONENT.

In order to win Johnson must perform what past pugilistic history shows is in the nature of a miracle. With the exception of Fitzsimmons, who was an all round freak, no ring champion since the time of Sullivan has been able to defend his title at the age of thirty-seven, and even Fitzsimmons met defeat at that age. Today there is not a first class man in any division as old as Johnson or even near his age.

There are very few men now before the public who are even thirty years old. None of them is anywhere near his best form. Among the heavyweights Joe Jeannette, at thirty-five, is the oldest. For years Jeannette has been going back. He is no longer a card, and he devotes his attention to fourth raters. He has not stopped a good man for so long that his last decisive victory has been forgotten. Sam McVey, at thirty, is next. McVey is still a formidable fighter, but he reached the height of his career several years ago. The rest of the heavyweight stars are under the thirty-year mark.

The other classes show an even greater scarcity of thirty-year men. Johnny Coulon, at twenty-five, was forced to relinquish the bantam title. Abe Attell, now thirty-one, is out of the ring. He was only twenty-eight when he lost his title, and he had been slipping for several years before that.

Freddie Welsh, the present lightweight champion, is twenty-seven and is about ready to fall, judging by his recent form.

The only prominent welterweight of any age at present is Packey McFarland, who has retired. McFarland is only twenty-seven, but he must have seen the handwriting on the wall or he would not have dropped out.

Only youth is represented in the middleweight division. Frank Klaus, twenty-eight, retired two years ago, and Billy Papke, twenty-nine, has not donned the gloves for an equal length of time. Mike Gibbons is twenty-seven and Jimmy Clabby twenty-five, while Eddie McGoorty is twenty-six.

John L. Sullivan was thirty-four when he succumbed to Father Time, aided by the light taps of Jim Corbett. Sullivan was a physical wreck at that age and would have lost the honors years before he did had he met a first class man.

Corbett's finish came when he was thirty-one. Corbett continued in the ring for some years after he lost the title, but the rest of his pugilistic career was marked by an almost uninterrupted list of defeats.

Bob Fitzsimmons, the most remarkable figure in ring history, came into possession of the title at thirty-five and lost it at thirty-seven. Fitz was the exception that proves the rule in the case.

Fitzsimmons lost to Jim Jeffries, a giant, whose size, youth and strength more than offset the veteran's cunning (ring generalship) and terrific hitting. Size, youth and strength are the qualities upon which Willard will rely to prevent Johnson from surpassing Ruby Robert's wonderful feat.

Jeffries was twenty-nine when age and rapidly accumulating flesh warned him that it was time to retire. Six years later, when he was dragged out of retirement to face Johnson, he was but a pitiful wreck.

$100,000 A DAY CUSTOMS LOSS

Allies' Blockade Is Proving Very Costly to America

STRIKES GERMANY HARD BLOW

Will Lose Approximately $10,000,000 a Month In Exports to This Country—Washington Disappointed at Failure to Afford Relief to Neutrals—Vigorous Protest Is Expected

Washington, March 18.—With Great Britain's order in council cutting off all commercial relations with Germany in force a net loss in customs revenue would result to the United States of approximately $100,000 a day, according to estimates of the government statistical experts, and a loss to Germany of approximately $10,000,000 a month in exports to this country alone, this amount being the average of the seven months ending January this year.

The effect of the German war zone decree and the retaliatory measures of Great Britain and France have already had a marked effect on the import trade of this country, with its accompanying loss in customs revenue.

This latest move of Great Britain is, therefore, causing the treasury department much anxiety, owing to the already large deficit. The customs receipts for the week ending March 13, as compared with the previous week, showed a decrease of $628,957. Imports dropped from $29,393,055 for the week ending March 6 to $22,611,060 for last week.

Imports from Germany for the seven months ending January, 1915, totalled $68,911,060, against $112,745,608, or a loss of $43,835,548. Exports from this country to Germany during the seven months ending with January declined to a very low level, almost a negligible quantity compared with the export trade during normal conditions, dropping from $238,197,121 in the seven months ending January, 1914, to only $23,656,945 in the seven months up to January, 1915, a loss of $214,540,176.

With the publication by the state department of the complete text of correspondence between the United States and the belligerent nations respecting the rights of neutrals interest was renewed in the probable course the American government would pursue in seeking free commercial intercourse with other countries.

This correspondence included the British order in council aimed at the stopping of all commerce by sea to and from Germany, together with the full text of the notes to and from Great Britain and Germany in which the United States sought to bring about an abandonment of submarine warfare and the shipment of conditional contraband to civilians.

The situation resulting from the commercial blockade continues to absorb official attention. The fact that the British order failed to afford American commerce with other neutrals relief from interference is disappointing to officials.

It is generally believed that vigorous protest will be made against the action of the British government. Senator Walsh of Montana, who discussesd the situation with President Wilson, strongly favors such a step. He said that senators generally regretted that congress had not empowered the president to place an embargo on American exports to the belligerents, although he did not believe the president would call an extra session for that purpose.

CARGO WORTH $750,000

French Government Will Pay For Cotton on the Seized Dacia

The French foreign office, it is understood, has decided to buy the cargo of cotton aboard the steamship Dacia, which was seized by a French cruiser and taken into Brest while on a voyage from the United States to Rotterdam.

The cotton is valued at about $750,000, and it has been proposed by the owners of the vessel that the French government purchase the cargo.

The disposition of the ship must be left to a prize court, but the official view is clear. The French law, it is pointed out, does not permit the transfer of a ship belonging to a hostile country to a neutral during war.

The Dacia belonged formerly to the Hamburg-American line, but she changed her registry and became an American ship after the outbreak of hostilities.

DID NOT INJURE BALLOU

Mrs. Angle Denies She Was Responsible For His Death

Bridgeport, Conn., March 18.—Mrs. Helen M. Angle, on trial for manslaughter, concluded her story to the jury of the night of June 23 last.

She is accused of having caused Waldo R. Ballou to pitch to his death downstairs after a visit to her rooms on the third floor of the Rippowam building in Stamford, on that evening.

Her closing statement in reply to a question by her counsel was the emphatic denial of having done any injury to Ballou on the night of his death.

Under the strain of the long and persistent cross-examination Mrs. Angle's strength gave away and during a recess she swooned. She was speedily revived and had apparently regained her self-possession when she returned to the courtroom.

After she left the stand the defense called several other witnesses, including Leonard Blondell, the defendant's father. He was testifying at adjournment that from childhood his daughter had been affected to hysteria by the sight of blood, not so much by the blood itself, he said, as by the agony it suggested.

NEW HAVEN NEEDS MONEY

President Says All Available Assets of Road Are Mortgaged

Boston, March 18.—Statements to the effect that the New Haven road has pledged all its available securities as collateral on which to raise loans, and that in order that the road may prosper and do its full duty by the public it must either issue new preferred stock or a mortgage, was made by President Elliott before the legislative committee on railroads.

Elliott made a final plea for legislation which would validate much of the stock issued and debt incurred by the road, contrary to the laws of this state, as recommended by the public service commisssion.

GAMBLERS FORCED TO GIVE UP MONEY

Admit "Chipping In" to Terre Haute Corruption Fund

Indianapolis, March 18.—A system under which powerful Terre Haute gambling house owners were bled and forced to contribute hundreds of dollars to Chief of Police Nugent, appointed by Mayor Roberts, was alleged in testimony in the government's election corruption trial. Many admitted Terre Haute gamblers testified.

Witnesses swore that Nugent made out a list of saloons and gaming houses, with the amount each place was to contribute, and that several gamblers contributed direct to Eli Redman, now circuit judge.

Philip Burns, who admitted that he ran "a little game of chance," said he gave $50 to the registration fund, $150 for the election fund and gave Redman $200.

OYSTER TRADE SUFFERS

Season Now Drawing to an End Has Been Exceptionally Poor

New Haven, March 18.—The oyster season has been the poorest which the oystermen have known in many years. The volume of oyster trade this winter has rarely reached 60 percent of normal.

Leading Connecticut oyster growers and dealers say the oyster seems to have come to be considered a luxury. The demand for oysters has been affected by general business conditions, by a very poor crop in 1914, by the mild weather during the best oyster months and to no small extent by the disparagement of the oyster by the health authorities.

DENY STEGLER'S STORY

Case of Defendants In Passport Trial Will Go to Jury Today

New York, March 18.—Testimony in the trial of Richard Madden and Gustav Cook, accused of aiding Richard Stegler, German naval reservist, to procure a false American passport, is completed. The case will go to the jury today after the government sums up its case.

Madden and Cook both took the stand in their own defense, and entered general denial to all the material allegations in the government charges, and swore that the testimony given against them by Stegler, as the government's witness, was untrue.

A compromise was effected whereby Pillsbury was made deputy city clerk.

SPORTING COMMENT

Lawrence Beaton's election over "Dun" Hamlin to the captaincy of the High school basket ball team was a surprise to many of the student body. The choice of either would have been no reflection on the electors. The result was a handsome compliment to a boy who let no grass grow under his feet last season. Young in years but courageous to the last word, Beaton is made of the proper stuff to lead a team to victory. His backfield work has been especially brilliant and if next fall's forwards follow the pace he sets we'll hail them now as champions of the South Shore basket ball league.

"Put" Kelley of Neponset has not returned any contracts as yet. He expected to play with Toronto but the war has dimmed the prospects of the team. His brother June Kelley is now a member of the Boston fire department and will probably play but little ball from now out.

Joseph Ford, a representative of a Boston sporting goods house, will probably manage the local Fed team if one is organized. Ford has recently moved back to Quincy after living two years in North Easton and is living on Euclid avenue. No contracts for grounds have yet been signed.

There are rumors current that Webb McDonald of the Quincy A. A. will re-enter the boxing game. Webb boxed successfully for some years as Eddie Regan but retired on his marriage.

There are several boys in Quincy who aspire to ring honors. We heartily recommend that they devote only a part of their time to learning the game and the greater part of it to learning how to earn a living. Only a few make good and get the coin. The highways are filled with ring failures and quite a few are incapable of earning a living.

Two High school students, really necessary to the success of a base ball team, may not be allowed to don a regular uniform. Both are down in their studies. Both could attain the required percentage if they tried, but their efforts so far have not been earnest enough.

E. Rhodes was not satisfied to lead his team in their climb to the championship of the Samoset Club bowling league but he smashed all existing records and helped his team establish a new team total.

Danny Stevens is uncertain as to whether or not he will report with the Lowell N. E. team this spring. Stevens closed the season there, playing the first half with the Fore River team of the Manufacturer's league. He has always been a consistent player and should be heard from.

Patsy Duggan has returned his contract to Haverhill and will report within a month.

Eddie Sammon has expressed a desire to meet Gus Lenny in a finish fight. He says he didn't know such an affair was being discussed until he read it in this column. However, inside dope is to the effect that a bout is contemplated and the backers of Lenny are preparing to issue a challenge. Boys, it is getting warm, open the windows.

Hans Kolehmainen has contracted blood poisoning in the leg and is in danger of losing it. Doctoring a boil between the toes caused the trouble.

James A. Power, the B. A. A. middle-distance man will retire. Power's withdrawal takes a good chap on the cinder path and one who has won not a few championships and records and no end of trophies.

The Boston college high school has cancelled its second game with the Fore River Tech for the basket ball championship of the state. The directors believe cancellation to be the best interests of the school and team. The first game was rough to the extreme, the Tech boys being the aggressors, and the winners of the game.

The rolloffs at the Wardwell alleys Wednesday evening returned the following winners: Bergfors 322, E. Riley 307, T. Murrey 303, J. Dunn 302, S. Gigilo 229. The special for high single went to T. Mooney with 115.

Joseph Scavo, holder of the bottle pin single record of the Wardwell alleys 192, has issued a general challenge for 10 strings at the big ones.

Manager Louis Ross of the Wardwell alleys is arranging a series of tandem matches for the social clubs of the city. A silver cup will be the trophy given the winners. The teams eligible are the Wasecas, Franklins, Quincy dams, Nonpareils, Pastimes. It is probable the tandems will consist of the two high average men of each league as shown by the official figures on their league recently closed.

Taylor has been released from the S. George to the Fore River soccer team. Others may be signed up. The move is to strengthen the Quincy team and bring the National Cup series to Boston.

STORY OF A BAT

Alive After Being Imbedded In Wall Twenty-Three Years

Guelph, Ont., March 18.—While some alterations were being made at St. James' church it became necessary to make a hole in the stone wall of the church, beneath the ground.

When one of the masons was taking out some stones he was surprised to find a live bat imbedded in the wall, which was twenty inches thick. It was covered with limestone and mortar. The wall was built twenty-three years ago.

Three More British Steamers Put Out of Commission

GERMANS SUFFER HEAVY LOSS

Attempt to Regain Lost Ground In Champagne Meets With Repulse by French In Furious Battle—Both Sides Preparing For Great Conflict In West—Isolated Battles Being Fought In Northern Poland—Risky Mission In Dardanelles Causes Damage to British Cruiser

London, March 18.—The British steamer Leeuwarden, bound from London for Harlingen, Holland, was torpedoed by the German submarine U-28 four miles southeast of the Maas (Holland) lightship.

The crew of seventeen men were given five minutes to take to their small boats, which the submarine towed until a pilot steamer was met. The men were then transferred to the pilot boat and landed at Hook of Holland. The Leeuwarden was a cross-channel steamer of 374 tons.

Official announcement was made that the British steamers Atlanta and Fingal were torpedoed. The Atlanta, 519 tons, was torpedoed by a German submarine off Inishturg, on the west coast of Ireland. The crew was landed on inishturg island and the vessel is now in the harbor.

The steamer Fingal, of 1562 gross tons (661 net tons), was torpedoed and sunk off the Northumberland coast. Twenty-one members of her crew were landed at North Shields, but six lives were reported to have been lost.

The survivors of the Fingal declared that the casualties were due to the fact that the vessel went down before the starboard boat could be freed. The Fingal as she sank dragged this boat under, leaving the occupants struggling in the water. The port boat picked up several, but six men lost their lives.

Furious Fighting Won by French

Driving back the Prussian Guards and mowing down sections of the German landsturm with the machine guns, the French won a furious battle on the heights near Perthes in the Champagne district of northern France. No advance was made, it being simply a struggle to maintain positions already captured by the French, but the German losses are reported as enormous.

It was a desperate attempt on the part of the Germans to regain some of the ground that they have lost during the past ten days in Champagne. Reinforcements had been sent into the region north of Perthes in huge numbers, and massed attacks were made on the French position on the heights.

The terrible fire of the French machine guns, or mitrailleuses, on the dense masses of Germans was devastating, and time after time their forces were hurled back, finally leaving the field for good, with dead, dying and wounded at every footstep.

This is one of several recent attempts by the Germans to regain lost ground in France and Belgium.

Preparing For Spring Advance

At present the armies of Belgium, Great Britain and France are fighting for the hills and other points along the long front which will be of the greatest advantage to the army holding them, when the expected spring advance begins.

According to the French communication the Belgians continue to improve their positions in Flanders, and the French to the north of Arras and in Champagne have added eminences to their gains which are of some importance.

The French and German official communications, however, are so contradictory that it is difficult to decide whether any change is being made generally in the dispositions of the two armies.

Big Events Impending

The optimism which pervades the western allies is shared by the Russians. All the Petrograd correspondents of the London papers lead the public to believe that big events are impending. It is apparent that the Russians again, and not the Austrians, are on the move, particularly at Smoinik, on the San river, where it emerges from the Carpathians, while in Bukowina, according to unofficial dispatches from Bucharest, the Austrians have been defeated in a battle which has been raging along the entire front.

In northern Poland isolated actions are being fought, from the Niemen river to Przasnysz, the big battle which was expected having apparently been called off or postponed.

The Russian Caucasian army is working along the coast of the Black sea sea and has taken the Turkish port of Archava and repulsed the attacks of the Turks, who are still operating on the fringe of Russian territory.

British Cruiser Damaged

By publishing a casualty list the British admiralty confirmed the reports from Athens that the cruiser Amethyst made a dash into the Dardanelles and was struck by a number of shells.

It is presumed that Vice Admiral Carden sent the cruiser on this risky mission to unmask any concealed batteries which the Turks might have located along the straits and which the allied fleet had not destroyed when they bombarded the forts.

Naval experts say the bows of the Amethyst could be cushioned so that she would receive no damage from coming into contact with the mines, and in their opinion her success proves that heavily armored ships could at the present time penetrate the straits, as guns which could not sink a light protected cruiser would make little impression on battleships. Her dash is compared to Farragut's forcing of the passage of the Mississippi.

ENGLISH RECRUITS.

There's Not an Unhappy One In the Entire Regiment En Route to Home In Trenches.

English recruits, going to war, are a happy lot. They do not seem to realize the danger ahead of them and the hardships of life in the trenches. The picture shows an automobile loaded with new troops who are off for the front. There is not a sad one in the crowd. All are smiling and waving their hats at the photographer.

DANGER NOT YET OVER

Training Corps Warned That Germany May Invade England

The Marquis of Crewe, lord of the privy seal, addressing a delegation of the British volunteer training corps, which has been raised for home defense, said that while there was a possibility of a hostile landing in England, this was considered more likely some months ago than now.

There was no telling, he added, what form the latest stages of the war might take, or to what devices or straits Germany's desperation might drive her.

Therefore, he said, it would be unwise to dismiss from consideration the possibility that a hostile force might land in no great numbers, but in sufficiently formidable force to make necessary a strong resistance and possibly the invoking of the assistance of the volunteers.

ALLIES GIVE WARNING

Time For Neutrals to Make Known Their Exact Military Position

With the coming of spring and the imminence of great military movements looking to the crushing of the Turko-Teutonic combination, the allies evidently are determined to know exactly where the "neutrals" stand.

The preliminary warning to those nations sitting on the fence is that in the distribution of the spoils after the war those who have not earned anything will not get anything.

Italy will not be permitted to acquire "unredeemed Italy" from Austria. Bulgaria cannot have Macedonia or Thrace, much less Constantinople, Roumania will not be given Transylvania and Greek aspirations may not be fulfilled. In the case of the latter there are extenuating circumstances. Italy as well as Bulgaria has been holding her back.

OFF COAST OF IRELAND

German Submarines' Base of Supplies Located by Danish Mariner

German submarines are now venturing far out on the Atlantic to attack British commerce, according to information received in Boston through Captain Jonsen, commander of the Danish steamer Louisiana, from Copenhagen.

Jonsen, according to the story he told upon the arrival of his vessel, has solved the problem of how the submarine raiders receive their fuel.

The submarines' base of supplies is a floating one, according to Jonsen's story. It is a tank steamer, built to represent a Swedish vessel with the Danish flag painted on her sides.

The Louisiana passed the tanker over 100 miles from the west coast of Ireland, showing that it is the base of supplies for the submarine fleet of Germany, at present right in the path of steamers plying between British ports and America. They are also safely out of the way of the British cruisers that are searching for them.

THAW DIRECTS HIS OWN FIGHT

Thinks He Can Convince Jury That He Is Sane

PLANS ARE ALL MAPPED OUT

Counsel Will Ask For Thirty Days In Which to Prepare For Habeas Corpus Proceedings—Prisoner Himself Will Take Stand and Wife, as Well as Former Jurors, May Testify

New York, March 18.—A delay of at least a month in Harry K. Thaw's habeas corpus hearing to obtain release from the custody of New York state for the murder of Stanford White is anticipated by his lawyers, according to a statement by John B. Stanchfield, chief counsel for Thaw.

"Our plans are complete," said Stanchfield. "We expect to obtain a trial by jury of the habeas corpus motion. That will mean that we will be at liberty to review the entire Thaw case, from the killing of Stanford White to the present day. We expect to be allowed to introduce as many witnesses as we want to prove Thaw is sane.

"Thaw himself will take the stand. It is probable that Evelyn N. Thaw will be called by the state. We shall call as lay witnesses the twelve jurors who last week said unofficially they believed Thaw to be sane. If we win a jury trial, the bars will be let down and we will make the most determined effort yet made to set aside the Dowling commitment of 1908 and set Thaw at liberty."

When the temporary writ is returned before Justice Bijur, Thaw's counsel will ask for thirty days in which to prepare their case.

It was made apparent by Stanchfield that Thaw expects to obtain a jury trial on the question of his sanity and that the hearing would occupy perhaps three weeks. It is probable, according to the plans of Thaw's lawyers, that the famous prisoner's case will never again come before the supreme court of the United States.

He is confident of proving himself sane in the habeas corpus proceedings, and the supplementary writs filed were simply a precautionary measure to prevent Thaw's seizure by the authorities of Matteawan hospital for the criminal insane in the event of failure of the habeas corpus effort.

From his cell in the Tombs, Thaw directed the legal moves to stay out of Matteawan. Thaw's guiding hand in the litigation is admitted by his counsel.

DIES IN HIGH SCHOOL

Principal of Lynn Institution Succumbs to Heart Failure

Lynn, Mass., March 18.—Eugene D. Russell, principal of the Lynn classical high school for the past twenty-four years, died suddenly at the school building.

Russell had just been presiding at Evacuation day exercises when he was stricken with heart failure. The exercises were concluded with the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," in which the principal joined heartily. He then went directly to his office and was overcome.

The schoolmaster was born in Somersworth, N. H., in 1856. He is survived by his wife, three daughters and two sons.

ASSAILANTS ARE SOUGHT BY POLICE

Two Children and Woman Victims of Unusual Crimes

New York, March 18.—A woman and two children were thrown from buildings here and taken to hospitals in a dying condition.

Samuel Liebman dropped 7-year-old Sadie Liebman from the fifth story of an apartment house building. In a few minutes he reappeared at the window and, with a yell, sent 5-year-old Samuel Liebman, Jr., hurling to the asphalt, sixty feet below.

A general alarm was sent out for the father of the children. The mother told the police she had gone to a bakeshop, leaving the children at home. Earlier in the day, she said, she quarrelled with her husband, who had been summoned to the domestic relations court.

Margaret Roselit was hurled from the top of a five-story tenement. Neighbors were awakened by her pleading with her assailant, but went back to sleep, as she cried out only once. When they awoke they found her, unconscious, in the court yard. Her assailant escaped.

SUNNY SIDE of LIFE

A HOPELESS CASE.

There is a colored preacher in Richmond, says Lippincotts whose favorite theme has ever been infant baptism. So frequently were his sermons based upon this theme that his congregation at last could endure them no longer. Accordingly, a deputation appointed by the flock waited upon the minister, and in plain words advised him that, in the event that he could not find something else to say, they would find someone who could. The dusky divine promised to meet their wishes, and on the next Sunday announced as his text, "Adam, where art thou?"

"This text, brethren," declaimed the minister, "can be divided into fo' heads First, every man is somewhar. Secondly, most men are where they ain't got no business to be. Thirdly, you'd better look out or you'll be there yo'se'f. Fo'thly, infant baptism. Now, brethren, I reckon we might as well pass by the first three heads and come immediately to the fo'th—infant baptism."

GOOD REASON.

"So you gave up your job at the depot?"

"Yes, suh. I ai'nt liftin' no mo' suit cases. When dem militant suffragettes is so busy dar ain't no tellin' which ob' 'em is kerryin wardrobe an' which is kerryin dynamite."—Washington Star.

OF SOME USE.

"Ef, eez dey say," observed Br'er Williams," de devil invented de tango dance, sinners should practise it night an' day, kaze it'll be a life-saver ter 'um we'en dey hits de hot pavement down below ter know how ter hop high."—Atlanta Constitution.

CITY HALL NOTES

The city council committee on fire department matters met Wednesday evening and considered the matter of rebuilding the fire alarm system of the city and the purchase of additional motor apparatus.

The special committee of the city council, appointed to investigate the water system, met Wednesday evening in executive session.

With the large number of petitions and orders for street work the Council committee on streets has a lot of work in prospect. It will be impossible under the present financial condition of the city to pass all the petitions and orders and it is going to be quite a problem to determine what to cut out.

Under the rules of the council all petitions for licenses to collect junk and all applications for permits to transport liquor must be filed with the council on or before the first Monday in April The only way they can be received after that time is under suspension of the rules.

Mayor Campbell still continues to have many callers and the greater part of his morning has to be given up to receiving them.

The assessors are getting ready to begin their annual rounds of the city, assessing real and personal estate. With the many inflations of valuations last year the board this year will have something to do to straighten out matters.

Officials at city hall are being touched daily to buy tickets for this or that benefit. If all demands are complied with it will make quite a hole in the pockets of most of the officials. There seems to be a prevailing opinion among some people that city officials must buy tickets to everything that comes along.

The new red and white measles, cards that are being up up by the Board of Health, can not fail to attract attention. Most of the cards used heretofore for diphtheria, scarlet fever, etc. have been red cards and one must get close to them to see what they are.

The Board of Health as in other years will probably conduct a clean up week later in the season, probably about the first of May. This is a grand idea as it gives householders an opportunity to clear their cellars and back yards of the rubbish that has accumulated during the winter months. This is especially so now that the law relative to building bonfires is to be enforced. Heretofore many families were in the habit of burning their rubbish in the back yard but now they are not permitted to do so.

Owing to the large amount of business the inspector of buildings has been obliged to add another unit to the filing cabinet in his office.

Miss Marion Bolster, of the water office at City hall, and private clerk to Mayor Campbell, is confined to her home with a bad cold.

The Board of Health has not yet passed on the application of Frank Bergfors for permission to erect a stable on Weston avenue.

The city treasurer has awarded a temporary loan bond for $175,000 to mature Nov. 24, 1915 to Esterbrook & Co., at 3.10 per cent discount. Other bidders for the bond were Blake Bros. Co., American Trust Co., Commonwealth Trust Co., R. L. Day & Co. Loring, Toman & Tupper, Farmer's Loan and Trust Co., and Curtis & Sanger. Estabrook & Co., were the highest bidders.

It is getting pretty near time for the council to pass the annual street water order. Usually this order calls for the street watering or oiling to go into effect April 20. It is almost too late now however for the order to be passed and signed before that date.

In view of the rapidity in which cities all over the country are motorizing their fire apparatus and doing away with horses, brings to mind that it was not many years ago that ex-councilman Charles E. Cherrington, who was then chairman of the fire committee, introduced an order which provided for motorizing all of the fire apparatus of the city at one stroke. His idea was that it was bound to come. The plan however was considered as slightly visionary by many of the members of the city council at that time, and they turned the proposition down. Recent events however have shown that he was not so far out of the way as he was thought to be.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Div. 10, L. A. A. O. H., will hold its regular meeting in Franklin hall, South Quincy, tonight.

The bicycle club of South Quincy held its regular meeting Wednesday night in Clan MacGregor hall. Announcement was made of a talk of "Political Economy" to be given Wednesday evening.

The Daughters of Viking Circle 933, C. F. of A., are to hold a three days' fair in Electa and Protection halls on April 29, 30 and May 1. Special prizes are to be awarded on Saturday evening.

The St. Mary's C. T. A. and M. R. society is to hold a blue ribbon contest at their Easter Monday dance and a five dollar gold piece is to be awarded to the one who finds the girl with the lucky blue ribbon.

The city council committee on fire department matters are planning to visit some of the fire stations in Boston and north of Boston the first of the week to inspect motor fire apparatus. The committee desire to personally inspect motor apparatus before recommending the order for the purchase of two additional pieces.

Several members of the Sunday school of the First Parish were present Wednesday evening at the supper in the Arlington street church Boston. The address of the evening was by Rev. Roger S. Forhs of the First Parish of Dorchester on "What shall we say to Unitarian children about Easter."

It was announced at city hall this morning that it would be necessary to call a special meeting of the city council before the regular meeting April 5 for the purpose of drawing jurors. It is more than probable that the mayor may include the consideration of the annual appropriation order in the same call.

SEA-GOING SUBMARINE TO BE BUILT IN QUINCY

U. S. Intends "Schley" To Be One of Biggest Afloat

rines have been signed by Secretary Daniels and the Electric Boat Co. Three of them, of the coast and harbor defense type to cost $430,000 will be built on the west coast.

The fourth, to be of the sea-going type, will cost about $1,350,000 and will be built at the Electric Boat Co. works at the Fore River shipyard. The craft will be named the Schley and is designed to be the largest submarine afloat much larger than the submarine M, now under construction in this city.

All details necessary to commence work on the craft will probably be completed within a month. The blocks will then be laid and within three months workmen will be engaged in framing. It is thought that it will take about three years to complete the seagoing submarine will be of a type unknown to any of the navies of the world. On the surface it will have a speed of twenty knots, sufficient to allow it to accompany the battleship fleet across either ocean. This addition to American naval strength will be christened the Schley, after the rear admiral. It will cost $1,350,000, will be completed within twenty-five months and will have 1000 tons displacement.

The three new submarines ordered by the appropriation bill passed at the last congress will not be begun till the designs of an entirely new engine shall have been completed, an engine which, it is calculated, will give the submarines a surface speed of twenty-five knots. They will each be named after a distinguished American naval officer.

ADOPT NEW REGULATIONS

Board of Health Changes Quarantine Rules

The Board of Health has made some important changes in its rules this year from other years. One of these rules relates to the quarantining of houses in which scarlet fever, diphtheria, etc., breaks out. Heretofore the rule has been that when a house is quarantined the whole family has been quarantined. This has often worked a hardship to the wage earner of the family, who has been prevented from following his usual vocation, or else has been obliged to live apart from the family for two or three weeks.

Under the new rule the wage earner, unless he is engaged in handling milk, confectionery or other food products or is employed in the care of children, is to be allowed to continue his or her daily employment, if he remains in strict isolation from the patient.

Absolute quarantine, however, may be declared at any time by the Board of Health if there be communication between the wage earner and the patient and the offence may be punished by fine or imprisonment. Also if any unauthorized person enter a house quarantined that person's house will be strictly quarantined for two weeks.

Heretofore it has been the custom after the removal of a patient from a house to quarantine the house for two weeks. Now, however, the wage earner is to be allowed to continue his work but children are to be kept from school at least one week after such removal.

Announcement is also made that hereafter houses in which measles appears are to be placarded, warning all persons who enter such houses that they do so at their own risk, although communication with such a house is not legally forbidden.

Still another announcement made by the Board of Health is that it is the intention of the Board this year to enforce that section of the sewer ordinance, which provides that all houses abutting the public sewer shall be connected with the same within two years after the construction of such sewer.

LOCKED 5 HOURS IN FREIGHT CAR

Police Rescue William Savage From Very Uncomfortable Jail

HAD BEEN UNLOADING HAY

William Savage was released from a freight car in the Granite street yard after five hours confinement Thursday evening by the police who heard his hammering on the sides of the car.

The police had been sent to the yard to capture a couple of "hobos" who had made themselves obnoxious to the train crew on the "double iron" freight. Acting Sergt. Halloran, who received the complaint from railroad authorities, sent Chauffeur Cahill, Patrolmen Olson and Malone to the yard.

The "double iron" arrived and the patrolmen went after their men. They were not aboard however.

A search of the freight yard followed and while passing one of the closed box cars they heard a rapping. Lifting a staple and opening the door they turned their flashlights inside and found Savage cold and hungry.

Savage had been unloading hay at the yard the past week and had been accidentally locked inside by other workmen at five o'clock. It was nearly ten o'clock when he was released.

ASK FOR BIDS.

Park Commissioners to Start Sub Grade Work.

The Metropolitan Park Commissioners have asked for bids for doing the sub-garde work on hte boulevard from the Quincy Shore Reservation at Wollaston beach to Hancock street. The bids are to be opened at the office of the Metropolitan Park commissioners next Monday Quite a number of contractors have visited Quincy during the past few days looking the route over and getting data upon which to make their bids.

The early opening of bids for this work makes it apparent that the Metropolitan Park Commissioners intend to commence work on the sub-grade work just as soon as the weather permits.

Bids have not been advertised yet for the building of the bridge over Black's creek for which a special appropriation was made by the legislature this year. It is probable, however, that bids for this week will be asked for at a nearly date.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

EXCITEMENT AT AWNING FIRE

There was quite a little excitement opposite the Ledger office Thursday evening when the awning over the Department store annex took fire. When the fire started one of the clerks in the store ran out with a hand chemical. Just at that time Patrolman Duffy came along going toward police headquarters.

Officer Duffy who was a member of the fire department for several years, seized the chemical and standing beneath the burning awning directed a chemical stream onto the fire. Clarence Fitzpatrick, a son of the proprietor of the store, also came out with another hand chemical and started to help extinguish the blaze. In the meantime someone had sounded an alarm from Box 24 which brought the central station apparatus. The alarm sounded at 5.58 and was followed immediately by the recall.

The alarm from Box 58 at 10.40 Thursday night was a false alarm. This box is located on Adams street at the corner of Beale street near the Mil" on line and gave the department from the central and Wollaston stations a long, useless run. When the firemen arrived at the box there were no signs of any fire or anyone about the box. Whoever pulled the box evidently worked the hook because the alarm was not correct until the last round of the box.

A CRYING NEED.

When Lieut. Governor Cushing, addressing a men's club in Wollaston Wednesday night, declared the Massachusetts system of taxation positively immoral he did not exaggerate. Of all the pieces of childish folly, masquerading under the guise of legislation, the present tax laws are in the front rank. The system is costing the state millions of dollars annually and is driving business to other states where more intelligence has been shown in enacting tax legislation. The lieutenant governor well pointed out that Massachusetts could never enjoy the prosperity which it should until the present iniquitous tax system was discarded.

The chief evil of the present system has arisen from the fact that the burden which it imposes upon personal property, the same burden as on real, has led to an almost universal tax dodging among holders of stocks, bonds and other personal property. For this they can hardly be blamed. For example, a citizen of Quincy possesses a share of taxable stock worth $100. He receives a dividend of 6 per cent (and many stocks, of course, pay less.) He must pay to the city on all his property a tax of $24 on a thousand, or 2.4 per cent. of his net yield from this share of stock therefore is 3.6 per cent. less than he could get in the savings bank.

From this state of affairs there are two chief results, both unfortunate. The man who can conceal the fact that he has a share of stock worth $100 is likely to do so, and the city or state gets no return. The man who finds himself unable to conceal the fact is likely to sell out and buy non-taxable stock, a proceeding which has a natural tendency to depress the value of perfectly good stock. Both results are unfortunate and both hurt the state of Massachusetts. They likewise hurt the city of Quincy, which has the misfortune, like most cities, of having a high tax rate. Persons who are unable to dodge their personal property tax or to transfer the property advantageously are likely to establish a legal residence in a small town with a small tax rate.

We believe that there should be a uniform state tax on personal property say a third of one per cent. imposed and collected by the state and then redistributed among the cities and towns of the commonwealth. We believe that with such a system in force there would be few tax dodgers This is not an original idea; there is a similar measure before the legislature now. But it is a common sense idea and nobody has advanced any reason why it should not be enacted into law. We trust that the representatives of this district in senate and house will throw their influence in favor of this sorely needed reform. It would be of more real benefit to city and state than any number of purely local improvements.

DANGER LINE ON PLATFORM

Strip of Paint Warns Passengers at Depot

A two inch danger line has been painted on the cement platform of the Quincy station and is the first of the "Safety First" reminders in the city by the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. Co. The line was painted Thursday and has created considerable curiosity among the hundreds of patrons of the road and passersby.

The line does not follow the line of the platform but the line of the track. The curve at its widest point is about 18 inches. Although no signs indicate its purpose the somewhat vague suggestion is that one might be safer behind than in front of it.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

One of the biggest things that has been offered the men of Quincy in a long time is the class in salesmanship One of the members of the class was so interested that he was very anxious that the matter be again brought to the attention of the men of Quincy. The association wants to extend this invitation to any man in the city to attend the next session of the class to see what he thinks of the work. He is under no obligation whatever to join. The next session will be held on Monday at 7.30 sharp.

The last of the men's meetings in the Kincaide theatre will be held Sunday at 3.30 o'clock. Every seat in the house should be filled to hear Davis Ranney of New oYrk City. For many years Ranney was a crook on the Bowery. Alexander Irvine was able to get hold of him and was the means used to help in the change of his kind of life. Mr. Ranney is termed the Jerry McAuley of today. There will be music by a male quartette.

E. L. Collins, head master of the Quincy High school, will address the Boys' meeting at nine o'clock tomorrow morning.

The work of the bible classes is drawing to a close with only a few weeks remaining before the examinations. The boys are working hard preparing for this and many of them are confident of passing with a high mark. The classes meet twice a week, Friday and Sunday afternoons, and are under the leadership of the Boys' Work Secretary C. H. Humphrey.

A meeting of the Employed Boys' Gym club is scheduled for Sunday afternoon at three when plans will be made for a "Feed" to be had some evening next week. This club is for members of the Employed Boys class and is proving a big success.

The Wollaston Cadet orchestra has been secured as an added attraction for the annual play "A Family Affair" which is to be given in Music hall the evening of April 7th. Tickets are selling rapidly and with William Walker and Erastus Osgood in the comical sketch "Old Cronies" a very enjoyable evening is assured to all who attend.

The annual exhibition of the Junior and Cadet classes will be given the evening of April 23d and the boys are working hard to make this the best yet. L. LaRose has combined the two classes for this exhibition and feels confident that the boys will live up to their reputation as a well ordered crowd of boys.

The Junior first and second team are planning to play two games of basket-ball at the Chapp Memorial Gym in East Weymouth when they will play the Mount Pleasant Junior. The Quincy boys will take the two thirty five car and expect to return home with the scalps of the Weymouth boys.

Basket-ball fans are to have a treat tomorrow evening when the fast Makarie teams will line up against the Y. M. C. A boys in the first games of the series for the championship of the city. The records show the Y. M. C. A. to have the strongest teams but it will be a fight to the finish and it remains to be seen which team will win The games will be called at 7.30 o'clock and with A. Wilband as the referee good clean games are expected.

A team from West Quincy will play the Employed Boys Team Wednesday evening when it is expected the Quincy boys will turn the tables on the West Quincy boys who beat them a short time ago to the tune of 36—32.

The Boys' Cabinet will meet this evening at 7.30 when it is expected matters of interest to all the members of the Boys' Division will be discussed. The formation of some new clubs are ander way and with the coming of warmer weather should do much toward giving the boys a good time.

PRICES OF FISH ARE ADVANCING

Market Editor Notes Increase In Some Kinds of Sea Food

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

It will not be news perhaps, to the general public, to learn that fish is the commodity which is now advancing in price. This is not at all surprising when it is considered that the Lenten season is the time of the year when there is the biggest demand for fish. The advance, however has not been very great as yet and only certain kinds have been affected. The price of halibut remains at 22 cents a pound and flounders at 10 cents a pound. Mackerel can be had from 15 to 35 cents each according to the size. Perch also remains at 15 cents and oysters at 45 cents.

The lines of fish that have advanced include cod which has advanced from 8 to 10 cents a pound and cod steak which has advanced from 15 to 18 cents a pound. Scollops have taken a big jump, the price this week being 60 and 80 cents a quart instead of 50 and 60.

To offset this however one can buy clams at the same price as a week ago and haddock at 10 cents a pound. Lobsters still remain at 38 cents Some of our readers have inquired how it was about sword fish. In reply to this we can only say that this is not the season of the year for sword fish and there is none in the markets. Sword fish can only be had during the months of June, July and August.

There is but little change in meat prices from a week ago. Beef remains the same, but lamb has advanced three and four cents a pound. When asked as to the reason for the advance in lamb the market man replied that it was probably due to the scarcity of lambs, which in the absence of any other excuse will have to pass. By consulting the advertising columns of today's Ledger the reader will find that several of the markets are offering some good bargains for Saturday. This not only applies to meats but to fruit and vegetables.

As the season advances vegetables are becoming more plentiful, although all the vegetables now in the markets, or a great proportion of them are Southern grown. They are good however. In this line one can find greens rhubarb, tomatoes, cucumbers, radishes and lettuce, all of which are relishes that are much enjoyed.

Of course the markets are also full of fruits of all kind, although it makes one feel queer to have a man just returning from the South tell you that grape fruit is rotting on the ground, it is so plentiful, when in local stores one must part with 25 cents for three or four. Also that down South oranges can be bought in any quantities for 50 cents a hundred, and the best at that, while local fruit dealers say you must pay 40 cents a dozen for the best. But of course all can not take advantage of the prices prevailing in the South, and it must be realized that before the Southern fruit reaches the consumer in Quincy, the freight must be paid, the wholesaler in Boston must have his profit and the retailer in Quincy likewise.

Butter has gone down a cent or two a pound this week and eggs remain plentiful and cheap. Cheese of all kinds is cheap, with the exception perhaps of the cheeses of the imported kind. Canned goods are also reasonable. Flour and sugar remain about the same as a week ago although the prospects are that with the English trying to keep food out, Germany and the Germans trying to keep food out of England, a market for wheat must be found in America which naturally means that flour must go lower rather than higher. Of course the opening of the Dardanelles, which seems likely, will lower the price of flour as Russia will be enabled to market some of her huge wheat crop.

News of Interest to Granite Manufacturers and Workers

The weather conditions of the past week have made a decided increase in the amount of business being done in the granite industry in this city. The open weather has brought in many cemetery jobs which must be cut and erected within a very short time. With a little more than two months before Memorial day orders for work to be erected by that date will have to be placed soon. The outlook is bright for a busy April and May although it is not to be expected that there will be as much work done this year as in former years. When other industries are affected by the war it is natural to believe that one of the reasons for the present slack times in the Granite Industry can be attributed to the same cause.

BUSY TRUCKING FIRM.

One of the busiest firms connected with the industry is the trucking firm of NaClerio Bros., who have two large trucks which have been kept busy for the past three weeks hauling finished work to the cemetery and erecting the same. Mr. NaClerio has been in the trucking business in this city for quite a number of years but he has increased his facilities since the advent of the motor trucks. About four years ago he purchased a two ton truck and started in to do the erecting and hauling to the cemeteries. His business expanded and he now has two trucks in operation.

BUSINESS PICKING UP.

The business at the quarries has increased considerably during the past week. At the Hitchcock quarry there has been a continual stream of team loads of stock leaving the yard. The quarry at the present time is operating very nearly to its full capacity. At Swingle's quarry there is the usual spring rush on and some very fine patterns are being quarried here. All of the other quarries are enjoying a fair amount of the business and although they have not reached their regular business as yet they are prepared to have an extra call of rush orders during the next few weeks.

IS OPTIMISTIC.

The yard of Henry D. Murray & Company on Nightingale avenue presents a busy appearance at the present time. Mr. Pearson who has charge of the Quincy yard states that although business at the present time is not as bright and brisk as usual at this time of the year he is optimistic of the future.

SHIPPING INCREASES.

Shipping during the past week although not a great deal larger than the previous week has increased a little. At South Quincy the same conditions prevail as have every year during the rush season. Several teams have brought the loads in to be unloaded early in the afternoon and have had to leave their team standing there until next morning. It is to be hoped that when the grade crossings are abolished apparatus will be installed that will take care of the business at this point in the quickest possible time.

ACTIVE YARD.

The yard of Hughes and Johnson on Granite street is busy at the present time. The polishing mill at the plant is running full blast and the yard shows its usual spring activities. The work turned out by this firm in the past has stood the test of time very well and many memorials in neighboring towns show the good work that this firm turns out.

ANNA LOUISE HORRIGAN.

Anna Louise Horrigan, the two and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Horrigan of 102 Independence avenue died at the Homoeopathic hospital at Brighton where she was a scarlet fever patient. The little girl developed pneumonia which caused her death. Her body was brought to this city today and will be taken to St. Mary's cemetery at Randolph Saturday for burial.

Another Message To the Business Men of Quincy

Business fights shy of dead towns. A sure sign of a dead one is the lack of local pride. People who live in a live, prosperous town show it. Their stores are attractive, their streets clean, their homes are well painted.

Nothing shows a lack of pride, a lack of prosperity, like paint-hungry buildings.

Let's paint up. As the most durable and economical paint, we recommend and pure linseed oil, mixed right on the job, to suit the job. Have your painter tint it any color you wish.

We carry all other paint necessaries also. Consult us on that job of painting you have in mind. Today's the day.

LOOKING INTO CONSUL'S ARREST

Government Investigating Seattle Incident

On receiving a protest from the German embassy, the United States departments of state and justice took prompt action to ascertain the circumstances incident to the service of warrants on the German consul and his assistant at Seattle, Wash.

The German embassy at Washington protested to the state department that Muller, the consul, and Schultz, his assistant, were arrested in violation of a treaty between Germany and the United States.

The consul, in his report to the embassy, which was transmitted to the state department, did not say that an actual search of the consulate was made, but declared that officers "had entered in order to make a search."

The charge on which the consul's arrest was based was that of conspiracy, in that he had been unlawfully trying to gain secrets of the Seattle Constructing and Dry Dock company. It had been said the company was building submarines for Great Britain and sending them to British Columbia in parts.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Goodhue were the guests of Miss Rose Morrissey of Euclid avenue the past week.

Lenten services will be held this evening in St. Mary's church. The services will consist of Rosary Stations of the Cross and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

The grip which has become quite prevalent during the past few weeks has struck city hall and several of the officials and clerks have been attacked.

In view of the many reports in the daily newspapers about the work of the submarines, the submarine tied up to the tender near Sheppard's coal wharf Thursday afternoon and evening attracted considerable attention. It was one of those recently launched at the Fore River yards which had been out on a trial run.

The committee on gas and electric lights of the Board of Trade has been visiting the different cities of the commonwealth inquiring as to the rates for electric lights in those cities and as to service. Last week the committee visited Lynn this afternoon Worcester. When the committee has gathered all the information desired a conference will be held with the Quincy Electric Light Co.

WORLD IN REVIEW

In an opinion handed down Thursday by Judges Putnam, Dodge and Brown of the U. S. District Court the bill brought by the U. S. against the United Shoe Machinery Co. was dismissed.

An appeal to liquor dealers to take measures to combat the growth of the prohibition movement was made in the annual report and resolutions adopted by the New York State Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association at its eighth annual convention in New York

On receiving a protest from the German Embassy, the Departments of State and Justice today took prompt action to ascertain the circumstances incident to the service of warrants on the German consul and his assistant at Seattle, Wash.

A protest was sent by the United States Thursday to Gen. Villa against the collection from Americans or other foreigners of part of a special tax of a million pesos levied at Monterey.

The plan of the Government to mobilize women, to replace the men needed for war service, although only tentatively outlined by the Board of Trade, has created wide discussion in England.

Railroads of this country have been driven "to the last ditch and are no longer able to compete with each other or anybody else," James J. Hill told the railroads committees of the Minnesota House and Senate Thursday at a joint hearing on the bill to increase the railroad passenger rate in this State from two cents a mile to two and one-half cents a mile.

The next important battle on the western front, it is believed, will take place along the River Yser, held on one side by the recently reorganized Belgian army and on the other by the Germans.

OBSERVES 11th ANNIVERSARY

Wollaston lodge 174 of the A. B. S. celebrated its eleventh anniversary Thursday evening, in Odd Fellows hall. A buffet lunch was served and a social hour followed. Members voted it the most enjoyable time the lodge ever held.

LADIES AUXILIARY MEETS

Division 10, L. A., A. O. H. held its regular meeting in Franklin hall, South Quincy, Thursday evening. The committee appointed to cooperate with Division 5, A. O. H., in the annual ball on April 14th, reported and the report was accepted. It was announced that there would be a meeting of the committee next Sunday at 10 A. M. in Franklin hall.

LARKIN SICK.

Sergt. John T. Larkin of the Quincy police was taken to the Quincy Hospital this morning suffering from pneumonia.

MEMORIES OF ERIN.

A rare treat was given to the residents of West Quincy who attended a lecture given in St. Marys hall Wednesday under the auspcies of Div. 4, A. O. H.

The lecture was given by James T. Barrett of Cambridge who recently returned from Ireland after an extended trip in which he took views of Ireland as it is today. Eyes of the older people present were dimmed when scenes familiar to them were flashed on the screen. The speaker was ably assisted by Miss Nonie Reardon and Joseph Morrissette who sang several Irish songs.

The guests of the evening were Father Thomas R. McCoy, Father William J. Duffy of St. Mary's church John J. Donahue, president of Div. 5, Mary Little president of Div. 23 Ladies Auxiliary A. O. H.

The speaker was introduced by Edward Finn president of Div. 4. The ushers were Dennis Ford, Thomas Golden Dennis Denehy and Lawrence Kelley. The committee in charge of the affair was Bernard Griffin, Thomas Connors, Dennis Ford, Daniel Leary, Arthur Murphy and Edward Finn.

APPLICANTS FOR WORK

Since Mr. Hill resigned the position of purchasing clerk and employment agent at city hall, the task of finding employment for people seeking work has been handled by the office of the overseer of the poor. Most of the applications from men that are being received now are for jobs on the street water and sewer departments of the city

At the sewer office it is said there has been more applications this year than ever before The department however can not do much until the city council sees fit to pass an appropriation for sewer construction

The same thing is also true of the water department Many new houses are being erected and people are encouraging others to build now, but they ask what is the use of building if their houses can not be connected with the sewer and they can not get city water?

MRS. LILLIAN D. VOGLER.

Mrs. Lillian Downes Vogler, formerly of Concord, N. H., died at her hme at 65 Botolph street, Atlantic, this morning. The illness from which Mrs. Vogler was suffering became acute last Tuesday.

She was the widow of John Vogler and has lived in Atlantic the past 15 years. She is survived by three daughters, one of whom, Miss Ethel Vogler, is a teacher at the Willard grammar school.

SEEMS REASONABLE.

It would seem as though the Elevated Railway ought to have something to say about the establishment of new subway stations with the heavy expense incurred. It would be nice and handy to have cars and trains pick us up anywhere we wanted to take them, provided they didn't accommodate the other fellow in the same way and so unreasonably prolong the time. We are quite prone to think an accommodation we want is reasonable and proper and that what the other man may desire is of minor importance.—Waltham Press-Tribune.

TWO SMALL FIRES.

The Quincy Point combination went to Patch's coal wharf at 11 o'clock this morning for a fire in some old lumber.

At 11.38 the central station auto went to Goffe street for a fire that had started in some bushes near a stable.

George Tanner who has charge of the Kincaide theatre, fell Thursday and suffered a dislocation of several small bones in his wrist. He is wearing a plaster cast and will be unable to devote himself to his duties for at least three weeks.

SCISSOR PASTE

A TOWN MANAGER.

One-man management of large towns is considered by many as the ideal method for handling public affairs. The town of Norwood has decided to try the experiment, and how it will turn out will interest a great many towns that are governed by selectmen. In Germany town managers are common, and there are men who have made it a profession and, becoming expert in the business, they are in great demand. The idea is that a competent manager of the affairs of a town is as essential to public prosperity as the manager of a corporation. It has never been demonstrated in this country, but the town of Norwood has had the courage to take the initiative, and if the new plan is successful we shall look for a good many imitators. A good deal depends on the authority given to the town manager. He does not make the appropriations, but simply spends the money given him for specific objects as economically as possible. If he cannot have the last word in the disposition of the appropriations he might as well abandon the thought that he is manager He should be absolutely non-partisan, entirely impartial and pay no attention to attempts to put men on to his working force for any other reason than their ability to perform the labor for which they are employed. He should be a man strong enough to keep out of the local politics of his town, leaving that to those who like to enjoy life with as little labor as possible. With no thought of a reelection, but accepting good work as his standard, let him attend strictly to business. It must be clear to those who think about it that the manager of a town's business should not be a citizen of the town he is chosen to manage. If he is, it will not be very long before he has to face trouble. If the manager is fitted for the position and is wisely chosen success awaits him. May such be the experience of Norwood.—Lynn Item.

TIMES OUT OF JOINT.

The late Frank James, former outlaw received more obituary space in the newspapers than is generally accorded judges, congressmen, authors scientists, educators, captains of industry and others of similar small importance in the world. When such a situation exists, things are a little out of joint.—Barre Times.

ATHOL IS DOZING.

Another big man in the public eye "Billy" Sunday, is being exposed by several big newspapers. The dear people will some day learn that it is best to think over the sensationalist.—(Portsmouth Herald.)

Is Sunday his real name, whence did he come? Has he vouchers for and receipts from the many charities he claims to serve? Let us have a distinct statement—an explicit understanding before bringing this sensationalist to Massachusetts.—Athol Chronicle.

BREACH OF NEUTRALITY.

It is reported that President Wilson attended a Washington's Birthday meeting. That is rather surprising in one, who was unable to attend the unveiling of a monument to Gen. Green because he fought against the English in the Revolutionary War and his attendance might be construed as a breach of neutrality.—Waltham Press Tribune.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Editor the Ledger:—

The cost of living is the most vital condition facing people of our state today. It affects every man, woman and child and none can escape its grip. Without doubt or question the greatest cause is the simple law of supply and demand. In the past twenty-five years the movement of the young, strong men has been from the country and the farms to the cities, subtracting from the producing class and adding to the consuming class, so that today sees our farms left for the old men and young boys to cultivate and to provide for the needs of the rapidly growing cities and large towns.

There can be but one result unless something is done to arrest the tide and provide for a better proportion of our population to return to the producing class. The cost of the necessities of life will continue to advance and city living conditions will grow worse instead of better. Every commodity which enters into and is necessary to maintain life to provide homes to live in, clothes to wear, implements to do our work, all in the first instance must be produced from the earth by some one's labor and without a large producing class the world would cease to exist.

Recognizing this importance of the movement the Norfolk County Farm Bureau has been instituted to promote the same. Under the law (Acts of 1914 Chapter 207). The County Commissioners of Norfolk County have appropriated the sum of $1,000 and are authorized still further to contribute any amount equal to other contributions made by Boards of Trade, Civic Societies and citizens of the County I sincerely trust that Quincy may lend a generous aid to this movement.

JOHN F. MERRILL.

CITY HALL NOTES

Mayor Campbell has decided to call a special meeting of the City Council for Monday evening, March 29 to draw jurors. He also stated this morning that he would put in the call an item relative to action on the annual appropriation order. It is possible that some other business may be included in the call when it is issued.

The gas and electric light committee of the Board of Trade is to hold a conference with the mayor next Thursday evening.

Mayor Campbell has received a request from the managers of the San Diego, Cal., exposition, asking him to send a delegate to be present at the Massachusetts Day of the exposition. April 15. He will appoint John C. Manning, a Boston man, who is now in Los Angeles, to represent the city.

Applicants for exemption from taxes under the soldiers' exemption act are being examined by the assessors at city hall today.

The general impression about city hall is that some one was trying "to put one over" on the mayor when they started the story that he would probably not be a candidate for renomination and election.

According to the announcement coming from the July Fourth Celebration association, of which Mayor Campbell is the president, the plan this year cuts out the morning parade, which was a fizzle last year, and also cuts out part of the sports, but does provide for entertainments for the children and a display of fireworks in the evening.

Christopher Foy, an employee of the Board of Health department, had his shoulder wrenched Thursday and is unable to work. Foy was adjusting a horses bridle when the animal tossed his head. The sudden turn twisted Foy and wrenched his shoulder.

The George L. Gill Associates held a well attended whist party in Odd Fellows hall Thursday afternoon. The winners were Mrs. Annie Smith, Mrs. C. L. Bean, Mrs. H. Spear, Mrs. M. A. Jones, Mrs E. S. Wales, Mrs. G. V. White, H. Yeager, Mrs. Adeline Young

SPORTING COMMENT

Hank Gowdy, the duke of Squantum, played with the Yannigans at Macon Thursday and poled out a four run homer to right field which gave his bunch a 5 to 3 win over the regulars. Rudolph bent them over and every one joshed. They showed him up the first time when they crabbed his fly to left. He placed it out of bounds the next time however and showed them up. Young Bill Martin, who broke his leg a week ago, saw the game from the bleachers. His leg is in a plaster cast. Bill James has a strained ankle.

Tris and Olaf were up to their old tricks at Hot Springs Thursday and helped the Red Sox regulars beat the Yannigans 7 to 2. Olaf contributed three of the winner's hits and Speaker made a circus catch. Tutwiler duplicated that performance.

The Boston Elevated will facilitate the handling of base ball crowds with an enclosure with prepayment gates at Fenway park and the storing of cars on Cottage Farm Bridge.

Johnny Evers is the same old Johnny, only with 21 additional pounds. Grantland Rice believes the extra weight equal to two men.

Candidates for the High school base ball team are practising daily. All of them reported in fair condition and few will have to work off any weight, as is generally the case with boys who have not stopped growing.

The Brookline High swimmers beat the All-Stars of the Greater Boston schools at the Boston municipal baths Thursday night by 32 points to 21. Leo Handy the star of the winners did not compete owing to illness. Quincy High school was not represented because it has no swimming team. As far as is known nothing has been ever done to organize one there. Good water men attend the school however and the pool at the Y. M. C. A would be a suitable place to train in if someone would start something.

There will be International league teams in this state this summer according to a decision of its directors

Worcester Academy has returned the trophy to the B. A. A. because Anthony Doyle, their star athlete, was found to be over age. A revision of the figures will give it to Huntington school

The basket ball series for the championship of the city between the Makaria and the Y. M. C. A. will probably be one of the most interesting ever played here Both teams are in the pink of condition and when they take the floor at the Y M. C. A. gym Saturday night they will mean business.

William Gerstel who fractured his wrist while training for the inter city boxing tournament has practically recovered. His wrist however is not as strong as it was but is improving.

John Byron, the local ball player, was one of the dozen who took the examinations for the fire department. It will only be a short time before Chief Faxon Billings will be able to organize a base bal lteam, many of the men of his crew being "there."

WANTED TO WAYLAY BROTHER

Third Young Man Narrowly Escapes Death by Fleeing From Friend Who Planned to Slay In Revenge For Having Lost His Employment In Wire and Nail Factory

West Dennis, Mass., March 19.—Winifred Cahoon, 20 years old, was shot and instantly killed last night by Elliott Wixon, 21 years old, in a swamp on the outskirts of this town, when he refused to obey the demand of Wixon that he join with him in his plan to waylay and kill Wixon's 19-year-old brother, Carlton, on his way home from work.

Frank Chase, 21 years old, who was a member of the party in the swamp and who also refused to aid Wixon in his purpose to kill his brother, escaped from the scene of the murder.

Fleeing in fright through the brush of the swamp, he was chased down the street by Wixon, whose mad purpose ended only when Chase entered his own home and locked the door on Wixon.

The youthful murderer, disappointed in his efforts to force the young men to aid him murder his brother, determined then to waylay his brother as he returned to the town from South Yarmouth, where he was employed in a wire and nail factory.

Sheriff Gage was told of the shooting and located Wixon as he was on his way to meet his brother. He placed him under arrest and later received a confession from him.

The purpose that actuated Wixon to plot the murder of his younger brother is said to have been revenge, as he thought his brother was responsible for his loss of employment in the wire and nail factory.

"Carlton, this may be your birthday, but it is also your last day." This is said to have been the parting remark that Elliot uttered to his brother as he left him at the factory yesterday afternoon, following a brief interview on personal matters.

Wixon confessed that he had murdered Cahoon and that he had intended to kill his brother. He was placed in the Barnstable jail to await trial.

Elliott and Carlton Wixon are orphans and as far as is known here they have no relatives. Since December last Elliott has worked at odd jobs.

BOMB FOR A MAYOR

Outrage Will Be Investigated by Police Who Are Payless

Guttenburg, N. J., March 19.—A bomb was exploded in the rear of the home of Mayor Herrman. The explosion demolished a section of the wall under the mayor's bedroom on the second story. No one was hurt.

Six months ago Herrmann "fired" the Guttenberg police force—all six of them. The police force, which refused to quit when fired but since has been working without pay, as the mayor held up their checks, have taken up the investigation of the bomb outrage. Their probe, they admit, will be rather perfunctory.

SUED FOR HEART BALM

New York, March 19.—A $50,000 suit for breach of promise to marry was filed against James W. Osborne, graft hunter and famous as prosecutor of Roland B. Molineaux.

Osborne, who is 56, married and prominent professionally and socially, declares he never saw the "woman in the case. He denies having written her and declares the whole affair is a plot of political enemies.

The additional floor will be used for private dining rooms for officials and employes of the company. The present dining room is in the basement.

AMUSEMENTS

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Common Clay" began its tenth successful week Monday at the Castle Square Theatre. Next week the piece will break all records for runs in the history of John Craig's playhouse. More than 190,000 people in Boston and from all over the state, have now seen "Common Clay." And they are still coming. It is predicted that the piece will stay 10 weeks more at the Castle Square. Mary Young in the part of Ellen Neal has never had a role more suited to her remarkable talent than the one shop-girl who overcomes the handicap of her environment and wins her way to fame and fortune. John Craig as Judge Filson, has been highly commended for his performance. William P. Carleton, as Hugh Fullerton, does highly creditable work as Ellen Neal's sweetheart.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

One of the biggest attractions of the year at B. F. Keith's Theatre will be the first appearance in Boston vaudeville of Evelyn Nesbitt, the celebrated beauty and model. Miss Nesbitt, who is this season touring in vaudeville, has proved one of the greatest attractions from a box-office point of view that the B. F. Keith Circuit has ever had. In every city played, Miss Nesbitt has established new box-office records, and it is safe to say that seats will be at a premium at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week during Miss Nesbitt's engagement. Miss Nesbitt will be assisted by Jack Clifford, and they will offer a series of modern and society dances of a sensational and novel character. Miss Nesbitt will be but one headliner in a great all-headliner bill, celebrating the 21st Anniversary of the Opening of Boston's Theatre Beautiful on March 26th, 1894. Second only in interest to Miss Nesbitt is George Bickel and Harry Watson, the famous star comedians of the Ziegfield "Follies," with their now famous German band; and George MacFarlane, the baritone and late star of "The Midnight Girl," will make this vaudeville debut in a repertoire of popular songs.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Bernard Shaw's philosophies have rarely had more subtle, more adequate exposition, than that accorded them by Mrs. Patrick Campbell and her London Company, now playing at the Colonial Theatre, Boston.

The story of "Pygmalion" is so well known, it is idle to relate it at length. The story of the master of phonetics, Henry Higgins, who wagers that he will be able to transform the slang-steeped flower girl of London, so that she will, within six months, pass as a Duchess at an Ambassador's garden party, is the meat of the comedy. When the dustman, Alfred Doolittle, declares himself to be one of the undeserving poor and makes bold claim for support because of his undeservingness, Shaw is at his best. He lears out at society behind the shrewd little eyes of the gutter-snipe. When the dustman declares that middle-class morality makes all the unhappiness in the world, it is Shaw having his little fling. When the same character declares that marriage puts hobbles on a man, restricts his finer nature and his—not to put too fine a point upon it—scheme is gotten of the devil and a woman, it is the old familiar peachment of Shaw spoken from a new mouth.

CORT THEATRE.

John Cort, by arrangement with Messrs. Leffler and Bratton, will produce a new three act drama of the present entitled "The Natural Law," at the Cort Theatre, Thursday evening, March 18. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given. Charles Sumner, the author of the play, has taken for his theme a situation from everyday life which involves in particular three people, a woman and two men, thus giving us again the irresistible triangle that is always of interest. There are other characters, of course, in the play, whose being is quite essential of the well-doing of the story. Ruth Stanley is a painter, scarcely out of her teens. At the beginning of the play Ruth is found at her easel, discussing with her girl, Della Forbush, affairs of love. Doctor Ralph Webster, a tried friend of the family, and Ruth are engaged to be married The ceremony has been arranged to take place as soon as Webster returns from a professional visit to the west. During his absence Della has introduced to Ruth a young college athlete and the artist has been painting his portrait. The magnetic charm of youth is in the young man and Ruth naturally loyal, falls under the domination of a feeling that is stronger than herself. A passionate love, one for the other, possesses each, and Webster on his return, is confronted with a problem that taxes to its greatest the predominating willpower of a man of superior worth It is a duel of the natural law of love against the sterner desire of loyalty.

WILBUR THEATRE.

Monday evening, March 22, "A Pair of Sixes," will not only begin the fourth month of its sensational run at the Wilbur Theatre in Boston, but it will also celebrate its 100th performance in the Hub City. On that occasion valuable and beautiful souvenirs will be given away to all who attend, and the advance reservations for that evening already indicate that the supply of seats will not be equal to the demand.

Only once in a while does any theatrical attraction remain in Boston long enough to celebrate its centenial. Nearly fifty shows have come to Boston and gone on their way since "A Pair of Sixes" opened its engagement at the Wilbur last December: but this merry farce still remains the prime favorite, and huge and laughing audiences are still the rule at every performance. As there is a reason for all things, so it is not difficult to explain why "A Pair of Sixes" has proven the biggest success Boston has known in years. For almost three hours it keeps the audience convulsed with clean, hearty and wholesome laughter, and entertained with one of the cleverest stage stories ever devised.

HOLLIS STREET.

Otis Skinner who is generally conceeded to be the foremost American actor is being presented the present season by Charles Frohman in a new play called "The Silent Voice," in which he will open an engagement of two weeks, with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Hollis Street Treatre, Boston, on Monday evening March 22. "The Silent Voice" was written by Jules Eckert Goodman who found the inspiration for his play in a short story by Gouverneur Morris. The play is described as an exceedingly novel one that tells a human story and that is extremely well written and it affords Mr. Skinner, who was last seen in Boston as Hajj, the beggar in "Kismet," a particularly good opportunity to bring out the subtleties of his acting and the artistry for which he is famous. It is the first strictly modern play in which this actor has appeared in a good many years—a fact, which in itself, is novel. Mr. Goodman is said to bring out in the four acts of the play with a great deal of force, that the "blessedness of giving" can make one very happy. In reality, "The Silent Voice" is a story of the regeneration of a man, its hero, who has for certain reasons become greatly embittered with the world and who begins his career of philanthropy with the idea of thwarting the aims of Providence but who soon discovers that he is but an instrument in the hands of the Diety to fulfill his wishes. The tale of this regeneration is vital and it is extremely well told.

BOSTON THEATRE.

It is not often that a motion picture manager is able to show his patrons something never before seen in the other houses; a picture that is totally unlike anything else ever produced in the world. And yet this is what Manager William Wood of the Boston Theatre is doing by exhibiting the first and only motion pictures ever taken under water. These wonderful adventures were photographed in the clear waters of the Bahama Islands by the Williamson Expedition to the West Indies. They were made possible by the recently perfected Williamson Submarine Tube, the life work of Captain Charles Williamson of Norfolk, Va.. From the moment the first picture is flashed upon the screen until the last click of the projecting machine the delighted spectators are offered a photographic treat that is absolutely unparalleled in the history of motion pictures. The audience is taken on a thirty league trip along the bed of the ocean with startling scenes of beauty and thrills at every foot of the journey. The entertainment is really a travelogue of adventures and discoveries at the bottom of the ocean showing the wonders of the deep heretofore unknown to man, including coral grottos, marine gardens, tropical fish and awe-inspiring sharks in battle. All fully described by a competent lecturer at every performance. Too much cannot be said of the educational value of this novel entertainment. To prove that the public will always patronize something really worth while the Manager of the Boston Theatre announces that over 46,000 people witnessed it's presentation the first six days of its engagement, and it has been decided to prolong its stay for an additional week. The performance is continous, starting at 12 noon and running until 11 P. M. daily and from 7.00 to 10.30 P. M. on Sundays.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

"Kitty MacKay," the brilliant comedy of love and laughter from the pen of Catherine Chisholm Cushing, will be presented at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, for a limited engagement, beginning, Monday.

That "Kitty" is a success, no one can gainsay, for it takes a comedy of exceptional merit and interest to amuse the "blase" playgoers of the metropolis for more than a year, which "Kitty" has done.

This merry romance is said to possess a subtle charm and a heart terest that appeals to all. Winsome "Kitty," a Scotch Cinderella, is taken from a life of poverty and illtreatment among the Highlands to fashionable London, where she is quick to learn that " all that glitters is not gold." When poor "Kitty" is denied marriage to the man she loves she carries the audience with her in her sorrow. When she and "Mag" start to re-write the Bible to suit themselves they do it entirely without offence, but in a manner that convulses with laughter all who hear it. "Kitty" is in no sense a Scotch play. It is said it cannot be compared to "Bunty Pulls the Strings." "Kitty" is all Scotch, herself, but around her are ther rivals, the "English," who help furnish the fun.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The seat sale for "The Lilac Domino" at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, indicates that the fourth week of the engagement, which begins next Monday s only the beginning of its immensely popular stay. This production seems to embrace every feature of high-class entertainment, from grand opera music to the catchy variety of lyrical fun and dance. Miss Ethel Pettit gives a most excellent portrayal of the mysterious girl in the lilac domino. She is so very young, and yet acts with such finished art, that it is easy to believe she studied technique from the incomparable tragedienne, Sara Bernhardt, as well as music, during her residence abroad. Wilfrid Douthitt, the English baritone who has the role of Count Andre de St. Armand, who falls in love with the sleeping beauty in the lilac domino, is refreshingly spontaneous in his lovemaking, and the mellow richness of his voice is an ethical joy to the audience. There are fully twenty song hits in the operetta, and a blanket of melody envelops each act. Between the second and third acts there is a musical intermezzo which is not the least important part of the program. It accompanies a display of Kinemacolor moving pictures, depicting a Battle of Flowers and carnival scenes at Nice. These scenes are interjected for the purpose of creating automatically the atmosphere and spirit necessary for the full appreciation of the last act, which is supposed to be a continuation of the pictured carnival.

COLLARS ARE HIGH

Nevertheless the New Models Are Very Comfortable.

CUT QUITE LOW IN THE FRONT

They May Be Finished With a Fancy Band or Built In Some Sheer Fabric Like Lace Net or Chiffon and Then Stiffened With Wire.

The tall collar has come back. In its various forms it is seen on new gowns and in fine neckwear. While high, it is cut on lines that will not inconvenience you or spoil the appearance of your neck, provided, of course, you choose the right kind of collar. The correct collar is only tall across the nape of the neck. Behind the ears, not under them, nor a hair's breadth in front of them, it stops short, and about the throat goes a band which is scarcely more than a finish for the neck of the blouse or frock. The built up portion of the collar must be very ornamental, of white satin, top bordered with an entre deux in black and white or with an edging like that used elsewhere on the costume.

A collar of this kind on the chiffon bodice of a striped silk frock has an entire back of the sheer fabric and only a layer of chiffon to cover the lower half of the throat. It has a tie, of course, but that tie does not add bulk to the throat by forming a bow under the chin. Instead, it floats loosely to the hips and aids in making the face look oval.

Black satin ribbon ties give a false appearance of height to a certain type of collar which is good in either white satin or pique. The foundation, encircling the neck evenly, is divided from the top downward by the black ribbon, which across the back is covered by a wide flap and flares outward. Under the ears it tapers into tabs, which lie flat against the tie. At times the necktie is omitted, and wisely so, too, if the face is a bit too plump.

A collar of stiffened net, whose turnover of net lace joins beneath the chin under a spray of tiniest flowers and then spreads itself into triangular ends, is very distinctive. It looks tall all round, but in reality it is enough depressed in front to be becoming to a full chin.

At last something to suit the thin woman has been designed. Her first choice is the black satin crush stock, upbuilt with white. It surmounts a chemisette, and the two fasten invisibly thereby differing from rival models, closing—or pretending to close—with tiniest buttons.

The striking afternoon gown of black pussy willow taffeta which is illustrated above shows a fetching development of the high collar. The costume is made with a vest and sleeves of black and white striped taffeta. The collar, which is comparatively low in the front, is quite high in the back. Gowns with collars of the material are shown by many leading designers. The wide belt and the flaring lines of the skirt mark its extreme modernness though suggesting styles of long ago.

Sanitary Workbag.

The sanitary workbag, made from guest towels, is the very latest. These little bags are very pretty indeed.

Double the towel so that the ends come together and seam the two sides so as to form the bag. Double, with the right side of the towel in. When the seams at the sides are made the bag is turned with the right side out and the seams in.

Buttonholes or eyelets are made all about the top of the bag, and through these is run a double drawstring ribbon.

IF YOU WOULD LOOK ATTRACTIVE.

Don't wear thin shoes and gossamer stockings in cold weather, or you will have that unbecoming pinched, chilled look.

Don't give up taking exercise even if the weather is bad. A brisk walk on a cold day is a splendid complexion beautifier.

Don't forget to dry your hands thoroughly after washing if you wish to prevent them from getting chapped.

Don't forget to wear a veil if your skin is susceptible to cold winds.

Don't wear heavy headgear, which is very bad for the hair.

Don't let your rooms get hot and stuffy. Always leave the window slightly open at the top.

Don't wear white or very light colors in winter. They are unbecoming as a rule.

THE BED VALANCE.

Convenient Is This In Hiding Stored Bandboxes and Suit Cases.

In a small room the valance affords opportunity to tuck away a suit case or bandbox under the bed, a commendable custom in the interest of neatness. The valance should be of washable material. White dotted swiss or figured madras will be fresh and dainty if an ordinary white spread is used on the bed.

It is something of a problem, before one has learned the trick, to attach the valance to an iron bedpost. If tied to the bed with tapes the valance will be sure to sag after a day or two, and in any case it must be so put on that it may be removed once a month at least for laundering.

The best way is to cut an old sheet exactly the size of the spring and attach the valance to this. Throw the sheet over the spring and attach it with snap button fasteners to four tapes sewed around the four bedposts.

The valance cannot be a continuous ruffle, but must be slit up at the corners of the sheet, the ruffle falling at the sides and foot of the bed. If it is sufficiently full it will hide the legs of the bed, and a snap button fastener will help to hold the edges of the ruffle together.

FRILLS AND FLOUNCES.

Full Skirts Much Beruffled Are Among the Season's Innovations.

Whether we like them or not and whether they suit our style or no, we must prepare to accept frills and flounces, for those who make styles are determined that we must wear them. Some of the ruffled gowns by smart modistes suggest the styles of Empress Eugenie's period. The costume shown here is the type one may expect to see at many a garden party next summer. The gown is of white net, the very full skirt two-thirds covered by frills of net edged with narrow black velvet ribbon. The bodice has a ruffled neckband and short puffed sleeves edged with the velvet ribbon. A lace bolero falls over a wide girdle of black velvet.

WHITE NET GOWN.

When to Buy Shoes.

When buying new boots or shoes always go to the shop in the evening, toward the end of the day the feet swell, so, unless boots are bought at this time, they will not be large enough in fit.

Before wearing patent leather boots or shoes for the first time warm them gently in front of the fire to prevent the leather from cracking. This process need not be repeated if they are in daily wear, but if they are put away for a few weeks or months it should be done again before they are taken back into use.

BLOCKADE OF GERMAN PORTS

Situation Is Being Carefully Studied at Washington

SOME HOPE FOR CONCESSIONS

New Protest Forthcoming Despite Assurance That Neutral Shipping Will Be Interfered With as Little as Possible—Germany Appears Conciliatory, but England Is Not

Washington, March 19.—The United States is gathering material for a new protest against the plan of blockade of Germany as outlined by Great Britain.

Sir Edward Grey's contention in his reply to the American notes on the use of neutral flags on British merchant vessels and the prohibition imposed upon foodstuffs destined for Germany, definitely announced Great Britain's intention to establish a "blockade."

The reply contained no surprises, for, beyond the use of the word "blockade," the assurances that neutral shipping would be interfered with as little as possible and that neither ships nor cargoes would be confiscated London felt should go a long way toward meeting the American objections.

The position taken by the allies that they actualy have established a "long range" blockade of German ports, such action being made necessary by the changed conditions in war methods, has raised a point that President Wilson wants completely cleared before any new action is taken.

The new protest is to be based on the claim that the allies have the right to stop German-owned manufactured cargoes wherever encountered. But the exact nature of this protest and the facts it is to embrace are not yet fully decided upon.

In discussing the situation, high officials of the government declare that while it is fraught with danger they are extremely hopeful concessions will satisfy this government.

In making public the text of all the correspondence with the belligerents to date the state department withheld any comment on future plans, but officials pointed out that while Germany was plainly in a conciliatory mood the allies took the position that they will stand pat in all of their plans to starve out their chief enemy. They make plain that they are standing on the doctrine of "right of might" in every word exchanged with this government.

Germany in her latest note to the United States accepted conditionally practically every suggestion made. England flatly rejected all suggestions that this country should have the right to feed the non-combatants in Germany. It charged flatly that since the war began Germany has violated all rules of international warfare: has been guilty of the most flagrant atrocities in Belgium; has treated British prisoners of war in a barbarous manner; planted floating mines on the high seas; sunk ships carrying passengers and food without legal right; bombarded unfortified British coast towns and in general justified the starvation policy as a proper answer to Germany's announced submarine blockade.

The one significant declaration in all of the correspondence is the statement by France and England that they will confine their operations to the European theatre of war. This is admittedly a concession to the United States, but officials say it does not go far enough.

HELD AS A FIREBUG

Pastor of Polish Baptist Church Denies Charges Against Him

Newark, N. J., March 19.—Rev. Louis R. Patmont, under indictment for arson in this city, was arrested and held in bonds of $1500 for his appearance.

Under the indictment Patmont is charged with having set fire to the Polish Christian Baptist church in this city five years ago, when he was pastor of the church.

Patmont denies his guilt and states that all of his troubles are due to those who are wilfully trying to wrong him.

Boston Has $75,000 Fire

Boston, March 19.—The Hecht building, Dewey square, was damaged to the extent of $75,000 by a fire which started on the third floor, occupied by the Cobb, Hersey company, dealers in groceries and liquors, as a storeroom.

College Bill Killed

Concord, N. H., March 19.—The New Hampshire house killed bills appropriating $249,000 for the state college. It was announced that a new bill would be introduced appropriating $156,000.

PASSPORT MEN CONVICTED

Madden and Cook Are Found Guilty of Aiding Stegler

New York, March 19.—Richard Madden and Gustave Cook were found guilty of conspiracy against the United States in aiding Richard P. Stegler, a German naval reservist, to procure a false American passport.

The jurors deliberated six hours before they reached a verdict. They added to it "a strong recommendation for mercy."

The pair will be sentenced this afternoon, and Stegler, who became the state's witness and testified against the two men, will be called for trial. His counsel announced that Stegler would plead guilty and throw himself upon the mercy of the court.

NEW SNARL ADDED TO THAW CONTEST

Another Plan to Keep Prisoner Out of Matteawan Asylum

New York, March 19.—On the eve of his new habeas corpus hearing Harry K. Thaw's legal complications increased. An appeal, formaly taken from Justice Pagets ruling preventing Thaw from returning to New Hampshire—a distinct, separate proceeding from the habeas corpus suit—added a new snarl.

Thaw's attorneys intimated that if Justice Bijur refuses to permit a test of Thaw's sanity under the habeas corpus writ, that proceeding would be abandoned and a fresh one started in the federal courts to keep Thaw out of Matteawan, while a decision on this appeal from Page's ruling is awaited.

A second writ of habeas corpus, through which counsel for Thaw expect to bring the question of his return to Matteawan before the appellate division of the supreme court, was signed last night by Justice Bijur.

SENTENCES UPHELD

Caminetti and Diggs Must Serve Prison Term as "Slavers"

San Francisco, March 19.—The United States circuit court of appeals confirmed the lower court in sentencing M. I. Diggs to two years in prison and F. D. Caminetti to eighteen months, for having violated the Mann "white slave" act.

This decision means that the two men will have to serve their prison sentence, unless they can carry their cases to the supreme court of the United States.

WERE MARRIED LAST SATURDAY

Secret Well Kept Until Today However

Miss Helen Walsh a prominent resident of the Brewer's Corner section of South Quincy, and Charles F. Sheehan of Weymouth were married Saturday March 13th. The ceremony was performed by Fr. Michael J. Owens at the St. John's Rectory on Gay street.

The news of the marriage came as a distinct surprise to the friends of both the bride and groom, only the immediate families being aware of the plans of the young couple.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Sheehan went to the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Walsh of Kidder street, where an informal reception was held, they then left for their new home in Weymouth.

Miss Walsh was a very prominent and well-known singer having taken many prominent parts in concerts in different parts of Quincy and vicinity.

Mr. Sheehan is a shoe worker by trade and is very well known in Weymouth and Braintree where he has lived the greater part of his life.

HON. CHARLES F. ADAMS DIES IN WASHINGTON

Noted Lawyer and Historian Was Grandson of President

Hon. Charles Francis Adams, a distinguished historian and prominent lawyer member of the noted Adams family of Quincy died at his winter home in Washington, D. C., this morning after a week's illness.

Mr. Adams was the son of Charles Francis Adams, ambassador to the court of St. James during the Civil War, grandson of President John Quincy Adams and great grandson of President John Adams. He was the uncle of Former Mayor Charles Francis Adams, 2nd of this city and Arthur Adams. He leaves two brothers, Henry Adams of Washington and Brooks Adams of Quincy and one sister Mrs. Henry P. Quincy of Dedham.

Hon. Charles Francis Adams was born in Quincy in May, 1835, and lived here until 1893 when he moved to Lincoln.

His home was on Presidents Hill. As a young man he was active in the affairs of the town of Quincy and was especially interested in school affairs, serving for many years as a member of the school board.

He graduated from Harvard college in 1856 and served for many years as an overseer of that institution. Honorary degrees of L. L. D. were conferred on him in 1895 by Harvard in 1907 by Washington and Lee College and in 1909 by Princeton.

He served throughout the Civil War as a colonel in the 1st. Mass. Cavalry and at the close of the war brevetted a brigadier general. During his lifetime he was written among other books "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History," in which special mention is made of Quincy and the early Plymouth County.

He was always, while here, an active member of the First Parish church.

Mr. Adams also gave the city Merrymount Park, one of the largest grants ever given a municipality for park and recreation purposes.

Of late years he has devoted himself extensively to historical research and at his death was president of the Massachusetts Historical society.

He was also a member of the Loyal Legion, an organization composed of commissioned Civil war officers.

Mr. Adams was admitted to the bar in 1858 and became a practicing lawyer that year. In Nov. 8, 1865 he married Mary Ogden.

After the Civil War he became identified with railway interests and was elected president of the Union Pacific Railway in 1884. In 1869 he was appointed a member of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Massachusetts.

His writings included "Chapters on Erie and Other Essays," "Railroads. Their Origins and Problems," "Notes on Railway Accidents," "Massachusetts, Its Historians and History;" "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History," "Life of Charles Francis Adams," biography of Richard Henry Dana, "A College Fetich," "Lee at Appomattox and Other Papers," and Three Phi Beta Kappa addresses.

ADMITS BEING BICYCLE THIEF

Police Clear Up Mystery of Bold Thefts of Wheels Lately

SEVERAL BOYS INVOLVED

Capt. McKay and Inspector Goodhue have succeeded in clearing up the mystery that has surrounded the disappearance of a number of bicycles from Quincy during the past few weeks. Acting on a tip which they had received the two officers visited the Bigelow school at South Boston Friday afternoon where they interviewed a boy named P. Morgan who after some questioning admitted the theft of a number of bicycles in Quincy. Taking them to the cellar of his home the officers found a half a dozen bicycles which he admitted were stolen in Quincy

There were several other boys concerned with the Morgan boy in the thefts The boys had a novel way of changing the bicycles so that they could not be readily recognized This was accomplished by taking the wheels from one bicycle and placing them on another frame so that of the bicycles recovered there was not one in its original shape

"NEVER RAINS BUT IT POURS"

The old adage, "events occur in triplicate" has been revived at the Kincaide theatre where three minor accidents have occurred within the past three days (If there is not such an adage there ought to be.)

On Friday afternoon Capt George Wardwell, manager of the theatre, stepped in an open hole and wrenched his right knee. To save himself from the fall he put his hand on a hot steam pipe and suffered painful but not serious burns.

Several hours before that Patrick Barry, stage manager, was cut on the chin when a knife he was using in cutting away a "thunder" screen slipped and struck him on the chin, inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound.

On Thursday George Tanner slipped and fractured several small bones in the wrist.

All three are broadly smiling and making the best of their little happenings. They are able to devote themselves to their work.

MARTIN GIVEN HUGE SURPRISE

Angus D. Martin. who far two years was chief of Clan MacGregor, O. S. C. was given the surprise of his life Friday evening. at Clan MacGregor hall by the members of the clan. All of the officers were present as well as many of the clansmen.

The surprise came when Chief Robert Cantley, acting as toast master presented Past Chief Martin with a beautiful set of andirons in appreciation of the good work which he had done in building up the membership of the clan.

Past Chief Martin was visibly affected by this token of appreciation and it was some minutes before he was able to respond. Following the presentation there were selections by the clan quartette composed of Clansmen Cantley. McGhee, Sinclair and Hughes. Also selections by Murdock McLeod. Adam McGhee and William Elrick. stories by Alexander Russell and Alfred O. Diack and speeches by Past Chiefs Morrison. Cowe, Clark and Johnston. Provosts orchestra furnished instrumental selections and there were violin solos by Clansmen James MacLeod.

The evening which proved most enjoyable to all closed with the serving of refreshments.

THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLAR FIRE THREATENS BUILDINGS OF SQUARE

Second Big Fire Within Four Weeks Guts Two Stores In Dr. Welch Block

The Dr. Welch block on Hancock street occupied by the Orent-Payson Co., C. F. Pettengill, C. E. Sherman, Brown & Co., and S. G. Emanuel was badly damaged by fire early this morning, the total loss of which to the building and contents will approximate 30,000.

The fire started in the basement of the Orent-Payson Co., store but just what the cause was, is in doubt. According to the police on duty in city square they heard a slight explosion, and a short time afterward discovered the fire.

In the front of the basement of the Orent-Payson store is a shoe department and. ladies goods department, and back of this is a work room and furnace. It was in the work shop near the furnace that the fire evidently started.

It was about 3 o'clock when the fire was discovered by officer Farrell, who sounded an alarm from Box 24 at 3.02 A. M. The fire had evidently been burning some time however for it had a good start so that when the department arrived the whole interior of the store seemed to be a mass of flames which were coming up through the roof.

Realizing the danger and the need of all the men possible Chief Billings immediately ordered a general alarm sounded from the box. This came in at 3.07 and brought every piece of apparatus in the city with the exception of that stationed at Houghs Neck. Mayor Campbell was also notified by telephone and quickly hurried to the scene remaining on the ground until the recall at 5 o'clock, this morning.

The fire evidently started somewhere near the furnace, thence worked into the ladies goods department and then up the open stairway to the main floor. Here it had a clear sweep of the whole store, and it was not many minutes before the flames were coming out through the roof. It also worked through the thin partition into the cellar of the Pettengill store, thence up through the floor. The fire also crept along the room to the top of the Pettengill store so that fire worked at that part of the building at the top and bottom.

It was a fire that in many ways resembled the fire in the Remick Bros. store on Washington's birthday. The smoke from the burning woolens was so thick and black that it was difficult for the firemen to get at the seat of the blaze. Lines of hose were directed through the side walk windows in front of both the Orent-Payson and Pettengill's stores and a hole was chopped through the floor of the Pettengill store an dstreams played into the basement at this point.

While the fire was at its height there was an explosion in the basement of the Orent-Payson floor, which did no damage other than to scatter the flames for a few minutes. Just what caused this explosion is not known, but it is supposed that there may have been a small quantity of gasoline in the workshop, although Chief Billings said that he went through the building a few days before and there was not over a pint of gasoline in a can in the room.

The streams of water thrown into the main store coupled with the smoke did a great amount of damage but just how much is hard to tell. In the jewelry store of C. F. Pettengill, the firemen spread rubber blankets over the show cases and this of course prevented much damage. All of the more valuable jewelry was in the big vault and is safe. The clocks and other goods on the walls are however more or less damaged.

The firemen suffered greatly from smoke, which was thick and black so that it was impossible for them to get into the building for some time. Notwithstanding this however they made a good stop and prevented its spread into the Faxon end of the block.

Smoke piled in through the basement partitions into the Sherman store on one side doing considerable smoke damage, while on the opposite side the smoke went through the Pettengill store into the basement of the store of Brown & Co. and thence into the basement of Emanuel's confectionary store.

Of course more or less damage was done to the stock of all of these places by the smoke, but just what that will be can not be told until the adjusters complete their work.

Emanuel claims that his stock of confectionery has been ruined and that his loss will be $2,000.

The damage of Brown & Co., is trifling but Mr. Pratt, who conducts a printing office in the basement, claims that his stock was damaged to the extent of $300.

The damage in the Pettengill store is estimated at $2,500.

Sherman & Co. estimates their loss at $2,500 which was entirely by smoke.

Mr. Orent of Orent-Payson Co., estimates the loss on the stock at about $15,000.

The loss to the building is probably the largest and this is estimated at from $7,000 to $8,000. This will bring the total loss to nearly $30,000.

Officer Hinchon who was on the desk at the police station sent a detail of officers to the fire in charge of Sergt. Bishop, who guarded the stores and established a fire line.

The water also ran along the basement into the cellars of the stores of the Faxon block. In the basement of the stores of George W. Jones, Dorothy Bentham and Nathan Ames there was more or less water but the damage will not amount to much, except possibly dampness may damage the stock of Nathan Ames, the hardware dealer.

Carpenters were at the building this morning shoring up the floors in the Orent-Payson Co. and C. F. Pettengill stores for the timbers are so badly burned that it is not deemed safe to put any weight on them. The roof timbers of these stores are also badly burned and it will be necessary to put new floor and roofs on both of these stores.

The Orent-Payson Co. has secured a temporary location in the Johnson Bros. block on Maple street and C. F. Pettengill has secured a temporary location in the Kincaide block on Hancock street.

REHEARSE FOR MINSTREL SHOW

The regular rehearsal of the cast for the Ave Maria Minstrel Show to be held in Quincy Music hall was held in Div. 22. Hall Friday evening. Many new and novel features will be introduced and special dancing sketches will feature the show. WILL DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP

The championship of the Elks Bowling league will be decided at the Wardwell alleys Monday night when the teams of Capts. Larkin and Maloney. which are tied for first place. meet in the final match of the season. The members of the Quincy lodge are preparing to raise the roof and the quintette able to keep off the nervous edge will probably win the title.

The directors of the league met Friday night and made a find on the prizes. They voted a silver cup to the winner and individual prizes to the members of the team. The prize for high season average was awarded to "Jacka" Joyce who had 94 and the prize for best total was given to Charles Hanson for his 338.

Dr. J. P. Murphy, who made a single of 135. was given the prize for that division. Joyce. holder of the city single record of 165 and Hanson. who made a single of 161 and finished high total man. according to the league rules, were not eligible to two prizes.

THE FIRE ALARM SYSTEM.

The recent talk of rebuilding or installing a new, up-to-date fire alarm system in the city, causes one to inquire somewhat about the present system, how long it has been installed, etc. From the records obtained at the office of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Co., it has been learned that it was in May 1882 that this company installed, in the then town of Quincy ten pony fire alarm boxes, one tower bell striker and three or four gongs.

In 1884 the same company installed a two-circuit gravity battery outfit and fifteen pony boxes. It was not until 1893 this same company installed the present six-circuit repeater, circuit storage battery, switchboard and eight additional boxes.

The location of the first boxes as given in a Quincy directory published by Green & Prescott in 1882 was as follows:

23 Unitarian church
34 Corner Main and Union streets
35 Corner Elm street and Quincy avenue
37 Corner Franklin and Water sts.
42 Jones' now Brewer's corner.
46 Doble's store, Copeland street
53 Corner Beale and Farrington streets
64 Corner Newbury avenue and Billings street
71 Corner Mill and Washington streets
72 Corner South and Washington streets
73 Corner Winter and Howard sts.

Since that time additional boxes have been added from time to time until at the present time there are 125 boxes located in different parts of the city.

While some years ago, a few boxes, other than those made by the Gamewell Co., were tried they were found not to work well and have been removed from time to time and replaced by the Gamewell boxes.

In all the years the circuit repeater has been in service it has never failed, and it is worthy of note that very seldom has there been any trouble with the fire alarm boxes of this company.

TRUE NEUTRALITY.

It is all very well for American citizens to prate about our government preserving a neutral attitude in the present war except that the American people as a whole are very far from being neutral. The government so far has succeeded in remaining neutral despite the general wave of sentiment in behalf of the allies. Most Americans will insist they are neutral and don't care who wins so long as it is not the Germans.

The more one studies into the question the more one realizes that the underlying causes of the war are not so apparent as at first appeared, that it is not wholly easy to apportion the blame. We have a suspicion that Germany, Austria, England, France and Russia are all more or less to blame, but we should not venture, even if we knew, to give our opinion as to how the blame should be distributed. The only way to preserve a true neutrality in the present case as we understand it is to learn all we can about the causes and progress of the war, discount about 75 per cent of it, and then reserve our decision. No war can be viewed clearly until it has become history.

CLUB PLANS FOR SPRING

Young Women Will Give Play and Dance on May 14

The committee in charge of the annual entertainment and dance of the Young Womens club has voted to postpone the affair to May 14 and has chosen Alpha hall for the occasion.

A play will be given on that evening, entitled, "Engaged by Wednesday" and the cast will include the Misses Lora Churchill, Ruth Dahl, Ruth Farmer, Isabelle Taberner, Hilda Taberner, Lydia Djerf, Blanche Hayden, Hannah Sandberg, Gertrude Bullock, Sadie Berman, Anna Grossman and several others.

The entire program of the evening will be given under the direction of Miss Blanche Hayden, Miss Ruth Farmer and Miss Harriet Waterhouse. Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, dramatic instructor of the club is to coach the play.

The plans for the indoor athletic meet to be held in the High school gymnasium on April 8 have been completed. What promises to be an exceedingly fast and interesting basket ball game will be played between the Atlantic and Wollaston teams and keen rivalry has developed between both sections of the city. The events will be relay races, sack races and three legged races. Exhibition dancing will be given by Miss Eulalie O'Toole and Miss Helena O'Toole. Non members are to be admitted on the payment of a small assessment.

Early indications are that there will be an unusually large attendance at the opening night of the Recreation House in Adams Academy next Wednesday.

CRUSHED BETWEEN FREIGHT CARS

John J. Mulligan, 22 Commercial street, East Braintree, escaped a serious injury Friday afternoon when crushed between freight cars at Cashman Coal Co. siding. He is known to have suffered four fractured ribs and is now at the Quincy City Hospital under observation.

Mulligan was one of the train crew and was coupling cars when crushed. The prompt application of the hand brakes by the crew which witnessed his plight probably prevented serious injury.

Dr. John H. Ash treated him and sent him to the hospital in the police ambulance.

MASS MEETING.

The Quincy Women's Club is to hold a mass meeting in the interests of permanent peace, in the First Parish (Unitarian) church, Sunday afternoon, April 18 at four o'clock.

An address will be delivered by Jay William Hudson Professor of Philosophy in the University of Missouri.

Dr. Hudson has a year's leave of absence from his university duties and is spending the time in touring the country, speaking directly to the people, and dealing with all international questions which have to do with the establishment of permanent World Peace. Dr. Hudson is one of the foremost men of the time in this movement. His lectures in this State are given under the auspices of the Massachusetts Peace Society

When he spoke on the four Sunday afternoons in February in Tremont Temple, Boston, he addressed an audience which packed the house to its utmost capacity. The musical program will be given by the Quincy Choral Society, which insures its being of a very high order. A cordial urgent invitation to attend this meeting, is extended to the public.

HOLD SOCIAL.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Calvary Baptist church held a social gathering at the church on Franklin street Friday evening. The program of the evening included a series of games after which light refreshments were served.

BENJAMIN BIRD.

Benjamin Bird, father of James W. Bird of 222 Arlington street, Wollaston, died at Derry, N. H., Thursday, in his 90th year. Mr. Bird was for many years a resident of Dorchester and for 45 years was janitor of the Mathers school in that district. He was a member of Union lodge of Masons of Uphams corner and Dorchester chapter of Royal Arch Masons.

Albert W. Fay of Wollaston is recovering slowly from his recent illness and each day spends several hours at his farm in Sherburn, in which he is much interested.

Constance Stecher of Botolph street gave a Sunshine party to several girl friends Wednesday evening at her home. Refreshments were served and games played and a most enjoyable time spent.

A mass peace meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Quincy Women's Club April 18 in the First Parish church, with Dr. Jay Hudson of the University of Minnesota as the speaker.

A parents and teachers meeting of St. Chrysostoms Sunday school is to be held Wednesday evening in the parish house. Rev. Carleton P. Mills who was rector of the church for ten years will be the principal speaker. There will be music appropriate to the season and simple refreshments will be served.

Members of the Quincy Women's club may be prepared at next Tuesday afternoons meeting of the club to receive and pay for their copy of the anniversary poem written by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney which has been printed in leaflet form ready for distribution.

The Guild is also working to help various church fairs at distant points.

Some of the old members of the Atlantic Village Improvement Association are expressing indignation at the cutting down of the maple trees on Sagamore street which they planted twenty-five years ago. They feel that at this season it would have been an easy matter to have removed the trees and plant them on the east side of the playground where they are needed. They are asking the question if it is the duty of the tree warden or the present Improvement Association to see to the protection of the trees.

PEACE WILL BE SUBJECT

To Hold Services at Braintree Church

A community service will be held in the First Parish Congregational church, Braintree, Sunday, March 28, 1915, 3 p. m., which will follow the Forum plan. Mme. Rosika Schwimmer of Hungary representing millions of women in Europe, will speak to the people of Braintree on the subject of "Peace."

Mme. Schwimmer is in this country for the first time, and brings with her letters of introduction from some of the most distinguished women in political and social circles of Europe. Charles Zueblin said recently "In my opinion Mme. Schwimmer makes the biggest appeal for peace that is being made."

Rosika Schwimmer, journalist and lecturer, suffragist and labor woman is a well known figure in the feminist movement in Western Europe.

To the women of America also she brings a message. Of the eleven countries represented by Madame Schwimmer four are now at war. More than anyone else she knows what the war is meaning to the women of all stations of life.

Her touch in the eleven countries has been with all classes of society. Some of the most distinguished women in European political and social circles gave letters of introduction to Mme. Schwimmer when they learned that she was coming to America. The wife of the Minister of War of Belgium was among those and the wife of a famous professor in the University of Petrograd and the wife of one of the greatest statesmen in France, and the wife of the Governor of Christiania.

Frau Schwimmer is one of the Secretaries of the International Suffrage Alliance, and one of the most brilliant orators in Europe. She is a passionate pleader for peace. This rarely endowed woman who has both personality and intellect will address a mass meeting on peace in Tremont Temple under the auspices of the Woman's Peace Party on the evening of March twenty-third.

She began life as a journalist in Buda-Pesth, sprang into prominence by making her first public speech all impromptu in defence of the recognition of women by one of the public organizations to which they rightfully belonged, but from the privileges of which the men members were determined to exclude them. From that time, she has been a champion of the women movement in several directions.

In the Labor Movement, she has been prominent by means of her services in helping to organize the women clerks of Buda-Pesth, and the women agricultural laborers of Hungary. This last is one of the largest and most intelligent labor unions in Hungary. One of Mme. Schwimmer's most deeply cherished aims is to bring about equal pay for equal work in her country.

With tremendous dramatic force that characterizes the speaking of this remarkable woman, she drives home to the hearts of her hearers in this land of freedom a new realization of their kinship with the women of the countries at war.

Recognition as a world patriot has been won by Madame Rosika Schwimmer. Devotion to women of all nations has earned such recognition for her, devotion to women in every land, even at this time of sharp national distinctions. Although she is a citizen of Hungary, an English newspaper recently spoke of her as "Our dear enemy Frau Schwimmer."

Mme. Schwimmer is now in America for the first time. Aggressive neutrality brought her here. Representing a million women in Europe, she came to urge President Wilson to throw aside diplomatic conventions and offer mediation to the nations at war.

There will be music under the direction of Dr. W. Porter Pratt as organist, assisted by Mr. Albert L. Hayden, Tenor soloist.

An opportunity will be given the audience at the close of the lecture to ask any question relative to the subject.

TO REPRESENT QUINCY.

Phelan, Kingsbury, Djerf and Prout will represent the Quincy Y. M. C. A. at the annual Y. M. C. A. games at the Boston Y. M. C. A. All the boys are in tip top shape and should come pretty near landing the bacon.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS MEET.

An Anti-Suffrage meeting was held in the rooms of Mrs. Mary Tisdale, at the Miler Stile Inn Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance. Mrs. B. L. Robinson of Cambridge, vice president of the Public Interests league, was the speaker.

Mrs. Robinson stated that the best Anti-suffrage argument was the conditions in Suffrage states, and proceeded to tell something of conditions in Colorado and Nevada. In Nevada one of the first acts of the legislature after women got the vote was to re-enact the loose divorce laws which had made Reno a national scandal. Dean Hart of Denver Cathedral is responsible for the statement that in Denver last year there were 2500 marriages and 1265 divorces! He says also that every thirteenth person in the community suffered arrest there were 17 murders and 75 were killed in the coal strike and no one brought to justice.

In Colorado little girls of ten are allowed to carry on street trades, although such occupations for children are fraught with the gravest dangers Judge Lindsey stated last year that the cases coming before his children's court on sex charges alone has increased 300 per cent in recent years! Now the Colorado legislature has voted to do away with the children's court and have children come before the adults court an amazingly backward step.

In most states a man cannot sell or mortgage his real estate without his wife's consent. In Colorado a man can sell the home over his family's head without his wife's knowledge. "Your husband can sell everything he has while you are here" was said to a Colorado woman visiting in one of the Eastern states. "Maybe you won't have any home when you go back; that has happened to more than one Colorado woman." Taxes are enormous in Colorado and what do the people get in return?

We hear much about the wonderful municipal housekeeping which will follow when women get the vote; but a writer in the Colorado Springs Gazette of Feb. 22, 1914, protesting against an increase in the already very high taxes, says: "We build and repair our own sidewalks; we pay to have our ashes hauled away. The streets, save those on which the cars run, were not watered last summer. If we wish any police protection, we have to hire a night watchman ourselves. Never since we have lived here have we seen a policeman pass the house.

"We have spent most of our lives in a large Eastern city where taxes were high, but where all the above things were provided by the city. Most of us like to get some return for our money." It is from this (suffrage paradise) with bad laws for children bad property laws for women, bad municipal government, enormous taxes, no home-finding societies for children, brutal treatment of children in institutions, an appalling number of divorces, a state government so weak that it has twice broken down completely—it is from this state which Judge Lindsey says has made a science of corrupting its public men—that Massachusetts suffragists hire women to come to tell them that they need the vote in order to catch up with Colorado!

☞The management of the Wollaston Glee club advise their friends to get tickets at once for their spring concert Monday evening, March 29, at Wollaston school hall, Beale street The demand is so great that late comers may be disappointed to find the best seats taken. Aside from this being a Glee club concert is the fact that an opportunity is given to hear America's favorite prima donna, Mme. Evelyn Scotney of the Boston Opera Company. Music students should avail themselves of such an opportunity to study the method and technique of so renowned an artist. All club members have tickets.

Renaissance In Art Predicted After War In Europe Is Over.

ISADORA DUNCAN.

Art of the centuries destroyed by the ravages of war, culture stunned by Martian blows—where will the world of the future turn to seek inspiration and direction in the great arts when Europe's titanic struggle shall have finished?

Isadora Duncan, famous classic dancer, believes a renaissance of art, greater than the awakening after the dark ages, will follow in the path of war, rising phoenix-like from the ashes of the conflict of nations. Only as the present generation may aid in encouraging and showing the way to the next will the men and women of today participate in the revival, Miss Duncan believes. It will be the children of today and the children's children on whom will rest the toil of rebuilding, the joy of recreating. Miss Duncan, striking in unexpected fields, has come forward with an original suggestion, one which she firmly believes will be developed by herself, with the aid of others, into a possibility and eventually into a worldwide movement for peace and the arts.

When the European war broke out, leaving her school of dancing, near Paris, Miss Duncan volunteered as a nurse in French hospitals, having first dispatched to this country under competent chaperonage more than a score of children who were her pupils. A few months ago she followed them to this country.

Just where she will continue her work with these little folk, to whom she is teaching the art of dancing which she discovered, is a matter she has not definitely decided. Their future is somewhat dependent upon the success of Miss Duncan's revolutionary project of colonization, which she believes will be an actuality.

On one of the verdant Greek islands in the Mediterranean Miss Duncan is intent upon establishing her colony. Here she would assemble 1,000 children from England, France, Russia, Germany, Belgium and America. She would be in absolute control, and under her personal direction would be taught the art of expressive dancing, while famous masters would go there to teach other arts.

From such a recruiting station it is the dancer's idea there will be sent forth into the world competent leaders of thought. Should there be discovered from all this colony one or, perhaps, two or three children touched by the magic wand of genius, then, Miss Duncan believes, the venture would have more than justified itself in the opinion of future centuries. Another Michelangelo, another Leonardo da Vinci, another Wagner or Beethoven or, perchance, a Shakespeare or a Goethe may rise from such a community.

Arriving at Afternoon Parties.

A point that should be carefully borne in mind concerning an afternoon or evening reception where music or some such entertainment is provided for guests is that should a number be progressing when a guest arrives he or she should wait for it to be finished before entering the room; otherwise the whole company will be disturbed.

When the hours named are, say, from 3 to 5 many delay arrival until 4, and the greatest crowd will be found between 4 and 5 o'clock. If well acquainted with the hostess or ladies in the receiving line it is just as well to time arrival earlier, so the rooms will not be crowded. If the guests are well known very enjoyable chats can be had with many friends and acquaintances rarely seen.

Where any games are named, cards or anything of that sort, guests should be extremely careful to arrive a little before the hour. Nothing so annoys a hostess as to have her carefully arranged plans go for naught on account of a belated guest. She has probably planned refreshments for a certain hour; also she feels that the punctual guests are uncomfortable, and lastly the well bred person is always punctual, that being the virtue of kings.

Avoid Mannerisms.

The "slinker" slouch, the "pump handle" shake and the excessive use of slang even in smart circles are being frowned upon these days.

Perhaps it is that we have advanced sufficiently in common sense to regard these hardly human social peculiarities as showing nothing more than a lack of good breeding. Whatever the cause, the natural manner is now regarded as the "thing."

Naturalness, after all, has a charm which affectation can never attain. When we meet a person who displays a perfectly natural manner, is charming, vivacious in her own, not any one else's, way, we are so delighted that invariably the possessor of these natural manners is regarded as a woman of peculiar fascination, and yet any one can be natural if one will. There lies the trouble—"if one will." It is most difficult to be oneself—not to imitate others. It is so easy to pick up the forms of speech, the affectations of manner which our associates display, so easy and so dangerous to the cultivation of a natural charm. It is human nature to imitate and to imitate the bad as well as the good. But once good habits of thought are formed the problem solves itself.

Pets In the Drawing Room.

"I used often to have my dogs in the drawing room when guests were expected," said a hostess, who is a dog lover. "I thought them distinctly ornamental lying on the rug before the fire.

"One was a bull, whose face belied his gentle nature. The other was a Pom, who, despite his habit of yapping furiously, would not hurt a fly.

"It did not strike me that strangers might be afraid of my pets. But one day when I went into the drawing room I discovered a nervous caller, positively too frightened to move from the spot whence she had first caught sight of my bull's ugly face. I often had to suppress a smile at the frantic barking of my Pom, but I discovered that to some people it was no joke.

"So I resolved that on at home days and like occasions my pets should be rigidly excluded from the drawing room; also from the front doormat, because a lady told me that once when she found them both 'lying in wait' for her there she took to her heels and ran away."

Correct Way to Introduce.

There is an art in introducing correctly. First of all, an introduction must be made in a clear, understandable voice. It is an insult to your hearers to mumble your words and slur over the names of strangers who are being presented to each other. It is a slight and suggests either an ignorance of the importance of the introduction or a lack of interest in this duty. So above all things, when you mention the names of strangers to each other mention them so that there will be no doubt about these names, about the married or single state and about the relationship which may exist between them and you.

Always present a gentleman to a lady, mentioning the lady's name first unless the man is very elderly or very famous and the lady is a very young girl.

If Asked to a Wedding.

When invited to a church wedding and not to the reception following, it is not necessary to send a present to the bride, but a call is made, motor the bride on her at home day a month or two after the wedding.

While cards announcing the marriage of a couple do not require an answer, carefully courteous persons will call on the parents of the bride a week or so after receiving it.

It is not necessary to send a written reply to a wedding invitation unless the cards include a breakfast or luncheon at the home of the bride or bear the letters R. S. V. P., indicating that an answer would be appreciated.

How much per——DELIVERED Mile?

THAT IS the Tire Question in a Nutshell!

Not—"how much does the Tire Cost"—"how much Rubber is in it"—"how many layers of Cotton fabric"—or "how many different Vulcanizings does it go through."

Because,—Results have shown that some of the Tires which have most Cotton, Rubber, Weight and stiffness, give much less MILEAGE and Resilience than other tires made lighter by more expert workmen, through more direct and precise Methods.

Nor is so-called "Mileage Guarantee" worth considering in purchasing of Tires.

Because—no Tires are actually guaranteed to give definite Mileage, no matter what the surface reading may suggest.

Such "Guarantee" would be impracticable with the best Tire ever made, or that ever will be made.

—This, unless the Tire User could, in turn, guarantee the kind of roads over which he would always drive, the kind of driving his Chauffeur would always do, and the air pressure he would always carry on each Tire.

THE "Mileage Guarantee" is therefore a deceptive Misnomer.

It does not guarantee given Mileage but is only a figure arbitrarily named "as a Basis for Adjustment" on Claims made for defective Workmanship or Materials.

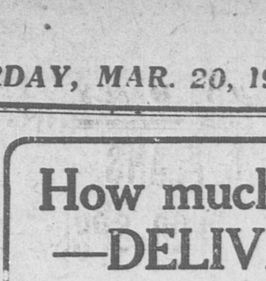
Read any of these "Guarantees" that are printed (or have the verbal ones Believed) and you will see that they don't guarantee anything except that the Maker alone shall decide everything such "Guarantee" is supposed to cover.

The larger the Mileage "Guarantee" the higher the price the Maker must charge, to cover (as with Life Insurance) the increased "risk" of replacing Tires that are reasonably sure to wear out in considerable numbers, before they have given the "Guaranteed" Mileage.

The Careful Driver, over good roads and streets, would thus pay more than the Tire is worth, so that the Reckless Driver, or he who must continually drive over bad roads and streets, might get Mileage he is not entitled to, at the Careful Driver's expense.

THE Goodrich Safety Tread is the fairest-priced Tire, of similar Quality, in the field.—Ten to 30% lower than other Tires that give less Mileage on average performance less effective Traction, with more Vibration, and greater tendency to separate the layers of Fabric and of Tread.

Compare the "Goodrich Safety" Mileage Costs with that of any other Tire in the field, and ACT on what the Comparison shows you.



This is the Famous Goodrich Safety Tread

The standard by which all other non-skids are judged

Note the following table of comparative prices on non-skid tires. Columns headed "A," "B," "C" and "D" represent four highly-advertised tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES "A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30x3	$ 9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30x3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
36x4½	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.

SPORTING COMMENT

Harold Evans, Williams '12, will coach the Roxbury Latin base ball team.

There are 115 amateurs now entered for the amateur championship to be held in Mechanics building Monday night.

Manager Herzog of the Reds will make a radical change in his infield breaking away from the fixed rules of Baseball. He intends to shift each infielder five feet to the right of where he ordinarily stands.

"I am convinced," said Herzog, "that I can make the move It's a nervy risk to take, but the practice to date has make it seem a cinch to me.

"Mollwitz, at first base, will average five feet farther down the path and toward second. Olson will play five feet nearer second base, but correspondingly outward on the grass. I shall step five feet down toward third and Groh, at third, will take a position five feet nearer his station, almost on the dead line with the bag, but deep into the left garden to balance.

"I think the shift will work out perfectly and save a lot of close games this summer."

The Elks' league bowlers will start in a handicap tournament for a silver trophy offered by Captain Wardwell a week from Thursday night. The scratch man will be Jacka Joyce, who finished first with an average of 94. The handicaps will be the difference between his average and that of the other competitors.

Young Swain headed the Junior league in an important bowling department when he closed Friday night with an average of 97 and the league single record tucked under his arm.

Icenhower and Olsen rolled a special at the City Square alleys Friday night for a purse of $25. The former won 953 to 903 Both men are dreadnought inspectors, assigned to the Fore River Shipyard.

J. F. Shannon, holder of the three string alley record of the City Square alleys won the rolloffs on those lanes Friday night. The marks were:

J. F. Shannon	105	118	87	310
F. Erickson	105	77	123	305
Trappe	101	89	106	296

Y. M. C. A. GIVE FINE CONCERT

An audience that made it necessary to make use of extra seats attended the second Membership Entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening. The event was a concert by the Wollaston Cadet Band Orchestra. Many expressions of appreciation were heard of the fine program that was rendered The orchestra was assisted by Miss Ruth Hardy, soloist.

It is difficult to make special comment upon the various numbers owing to the fact that they were all so well rendered. If any special comment were to be made it would doubtless fall to the four numbers from Anthony and Cleopatra. The manner in which this was rendered was a very good illustration of the intelligent conception of the spirit of the composer.

Any account of the concert would be incomplete without mention of the two solo numbers. the serenade for flute and horn and the trombone solo. These numbers gave an excellent opportunity for Messrs Estes and Sprague and Mr. Richardson. Their work was of a high order and was greatly appreciated.

Again Miss Hardy was able to appreciate how well the people of Quincy enjoy her singing. She was obliged to respond with two encores and showed her wisdom by rendering "The Rosary." Surely her voice is peculiarly adapted to this song. It was very much regretted that another engagement precluded her singing other numbers.

Who was the accompanist? This was the question that was upon the lips of a number of people. And it is no wonder; for have you often heard one better? Mrs. Estes is a born accompanist. They are never made. Without her faithful work the concert would not have been the great success it was. This is all that can be said.

HORN HELD IN $10,000

Must Answer to Charge of Illegally Transporting Explosives

Bangor, Me., March 20.—United States Commissioner Reid ordered Werner Horn, the German reservist, held in $10,000 bonds for his appearance in the federal district court of Massachusetts to answer to indictments returned at Boston, charging him wth illegal transportation of dynamite in connection with his attempt to wreck the international bridge at Vanceboro.

W. E. Watz, professor of international law of the University of Maine, who has interested himself in the case of Horn, declared that there is so much law involved that it can be dragged through the courts for years.

He says the chances of Canada's getting him on extradition proceedings are very remote. "There is more law involved in this case than in the Harry Thaw case," said Watz.

MINES OF TURKS SINK WARSHIPS

Two British and One French Lost In Dardanelles

MOST OF ONE CREW DROWN

Bouvet Goes to Bottom Within Three Minutes After Striking Floating Mine—Losses on Irresistible and Ocean Reported Not Heavy—Lost Vessels Were Old, and Two Will Immediately Be Replaced by Dreadnoughts—More Forts Reported Silenced and Town of Dardanelles Set on Fire as Offset to Fleet's Loss

London, March 20.—The British battleships Irresistible and Ocean, and the French battleship Bouvet were blown up by floating mines while engaged with the remainder of the allied fleet in attacking the forts in the narrows of the Dardanelles.

The crews of the two British ships were virtually all saved, having been transferred to other ships under a hot fire, but an internal explosion took place on board the Bouvet after she had fouled the mine and most of her crew was lost. The Bouvet sank within three minutes of the time that she hit the mine.

The waters in which the ships were lost had been swept of mines, but the British admiralty assert that the Turks and the Germans set floating containers of explosives adrift, and these were carried down by the current to the allied ships gathered inside the entrance of the straits.

All the ships sunk were old, the Bouvet having beeen completed nearly twenty years ago, and the Ocean and Irresistible in 1898.

They were very useful, however, for work in which they were engaged in the Dardanelles. The sunken British ships are being replaced by the dreadnoughts Queen and Implacable, vessesls of a similar type. They are said to have started some time ago for near eastern waters in anticipation of just such losses as have occurred.

Other Ships Damaged

Two other ships engaged in the fighting, the British cruiser Inflexible and the French battleship Gaulois, were hit by shells and damaged. The British casualties, according to the British official report, "were not heavy, considering the scale of operations."

The damage done to the Turkish forts by the heavy bombardment has not yet been ascertained. It is stated that the operations are continuing. The forts attacked were those on either side of Kephez bay and on Kephez Point, outside the narrows, and those on Kilid Bahr and Chanak, in the narrows.

The Kephez forts replied strongly when the battleships advanced, firing, up the Dardanelles, and all the ships were hit. It is asserted that these forts finally were silenced and a bombardment of those in the narrows was under way when the three battleships struck the mines.

The blowing up of the ships did not cause a cessation of the fighting, which continued until darkness intervened. It is understood that the engagement has beeen resumed.

British Admiralty's Statement

The admiralty gave out the following statement regarding operations in the Dardanelles:

"Mine sweeping having been in progress during the last ten days inside the straits, a general attack was delivered by the British and French fleets yesterday (Thursday) morning upon the fortresses at the narrows. At 10:45 a. m. the Queeen Elizabeth, Inflexible, Agamemnon and Lord Nelson bombarded forts J, L, T, U and V, while the Triumph and Prince George fired at batteries F, E and H.

"A heavy fire was opened on the ships from howitzers and field guns.

"At 12:22 o'clock the French squadron, consisting of the Suffren, Gaulois, Charlemange and Bouvet advanced up the Dardanelles and engaged the forts at close range. Forts J, U, F and E replied strongly. Their fire was silenced by the ten battleships inside the straits, all of the ships being hit several times during this part of the action.

"By 1:25 p. m. all the forts had ceased firing. The Vengeance, Irresistible, Albion, Swiftsure and Majestic then advanced to relieve the six old battleships inside the straits. As the French squadron, which had engaged the forts in a most brilliant fashion, was passing out, the Bouvet was blown up by a drifting mine. She sank in thirty-six fathoms north of Ernkeui village in less than three minutes.

At 2:36 p. m. the relief battleships renewed the attacks on the forts, which again opened fire. The attack on the forts was maintained while the operations of the mine sweepers continued.

Sinking of British Ships

"At 4:09 p. m. the Irresistible quitted the line, listing heavily, and at 5:50 o'clock sank, having probably struck a drifting mine. At 6:05 o'clock the Ocean, also having struck a mine, sank. Both vessels sank in deep water, practically the whole of their crews having been removed safely under a hot fire.

"The Gaulois was damaged by gunfire. The Inflexible had her forward control position hit by a heavy shell and requires repairs.

"The bombardment of the forts and the mine sweeping operations terminated when darkness fell. The damage to the forts, effected by the prolonged direct fire of the very powerful forces employed, cannot yet be estimated, and a further report will follow. The loss of the ships was caused by mines drifting with the current, which were encountered in areas thought swept clear, and this danger will require special treatment.

"The British personnel casualties were not heavy considering the scale of the operations, but practically the whole crew of the Bouvet were lost with the ship, an internal explosion having apparently supervened on the explosion of the mine.

"The Queen and the Implacable, which have been dispatched from England to replace the ships' casualties in anticipation of this operation, are due to arrive immediately, thus bringing the British fleeet up to its original strength. The operations are continuing with the naval and military forces available on the spot.

"In the 16th instant, Vice Admiral Carden, who had been incapacitated by illness, was succeeded in the chief command by Rear Admiral De Robeck, with the acting rank of vice admiral."

Lost Ships of Old Type

The British battleship Irresistible was commanded by Captain Hawke, and in times of peace had a complement of 780 men. She was the largest of the three allied battleships sunk, being of 15,000 tons displacement, and 430 feet long. Her chief armament consisted of four 12-inch and twelve 6-inch guns. She also carried sixteen 12-pounders, six 3-pounders, two Maxims and four submerged torpedo tubes, and was protected by Krupp armor. Her speed was eighteen knots. She was built in 1898 at a cost of $5,000,000.

The Ocean was commanded by Captain Sadler and had a crew of 750. She was 418 feet long and of 12,950 tons displacement. Her armament was composed of four 12-inch and twelve 6-inch guns, ten 12-pounders, six 3-pounders, two Maxims and four submerged torpedo tubes, and her armor was of Harvey-nickel make. She was of eighteen knots speed and was built in 1898.

The French battleship Bouvet was of 12,000 tons displacement, laid down in 1893, with a complement of 621 men. Her armament consisted of two 12-inch guns, two 10.8-inch, eight 5.5-inch, eight 3.9-inch, ten 3-pounders and ten 1-pounders, besides two torpedo tubes.

KILL RUSSIANS WITH FIRE

Germans Are Said to Have Burned Up Whole Regiments

The Gottenborg correspondent of the Westminster Gazette declares German strategy counted not only on mud and water, but also on fire, to defeat the czar's troops in the Mazurian lakes.

Canal locks were opened to drown many of the Russians. Then German engineers, with a peculiar kind of augur, pierced the tree trunks, soaking the trees in gasoline.

The German artillery, says the correspondent, as soon as the Russians entered the forests, fired the trees and burned up whole regiments.

COMMANDER STILL MUM

Belief, However, That Prinz Eitel Friedrich Will Be Interned

Machinists of her crew are working day and night on the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich at Newport News, Va., but so far Commander Thierichens has made no formal reply to Collector Hamilton's repeated requests for a definite statement as to when he wants to put his ship in condition for sea.

Meanwhile, British cruisers continue to lie off the Virginia capes in wait for the German raider, and the belief grows that the Prinz Eitel eventually will be interned.

No arrangements have yet been made for disposing of the seventy-six undesirable immigrants which the Prinz Eitel took from the sunken French liner Floride.

HELD IN HEAVY BAIL

Four Alleged Hold-Up Men Are Arraigned In Boston Court

Boston, March 20.—After a "third degree" gruelling four alleged gangsters who are charged with several recent robberies were arraigned before Justice Hayden. Each was held for the grand jury—George H. Gatt, 21, in $6500; Frank J. Riley, 22, and Joseph McAuley, 18, in $6000 bonds, and Joseph M. Leahy, 21, in $5000.

After being arraigned on several charges the four were taken to jail. Police officials say more charges will probably be brought by hold-up victims. Jealousy over a girl led to the raid which resulted in the arrests, Leahy "squealing" on his pals.

HOLD SECOND ANNUAL GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT

Mayor and Mrs. Campbell Guests of Wollaston Woman's Club

The second annual gentlemen's night of the Wollaston Woman's club was held Friday evening in the Wollaston school hall when Mayor and Mrs. Chester I. Campbell and Colonel and Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide were special guests of honor.

At a reception which preceded the program of the evening, the following were in line: President Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes and Mr. Ropes; Mayor and Mrs. Campbell; Vice President Mrs. William E. Rowe and Mr. Rowe; Vice President Mrs. Nathan G. Nickerson and Mr. Nickerson.

Potted plants served to make the platform back of the receiving line attractive and music was played by an orchestra consisting of Miss Florence G. Olney, piano; Miss Marion Moorhouse, cello and Roscoe Ricker, violin.

On behalf of the club Mrs. Ropes welcomed the guests and put the evening in charge of Mrs. Charles R. Safford, chairman of the program committee. A selection by the trio opened the program.

The speaker of the evening was Albert Leonard Squier, official photographer of the BBoBston Chamber of Commerce party visiting South America, who gave an interesting stereopticon lecture entitled "In the High Places of South America."

Mr. Squier is an artist as well as an expert photographer and his hand colored views of clear negatives gave added interest and beauty to the evening's entertainment.

In opening the speaker gave glimpses of Panama and the Canal Zone, showing boats similar to the one taken down the west coast of South America by the party. After the sea voyage the voyagers went inland over the mountains to Lapas where among other things views of the Incas ruins were displayed.

Later on, southward bound to Valparaiso, pictures of prehistoric ruins, the oldest in Latin America, were shown. Incidents in the grand reception tendered the delegates were cast on the screen and the beautiful buildings of this southern city were offered.

Groups of exquisitely colored mountain pictures, showing wonderful rocky formations ranging through all the prismal colors from red to violet were of high interest. Mr. Squier showed a lake of borax just waiting for the hand of man to claim. A profusion of nitrate beds was in evidence.

The road lay over the mountains and through a canyon 1500 feet in depth. Pictures of the "Christ of the Andes" were shown. This statue, cast from the canyon of the two countries and placed on the boundary, symbolizes the vow of eternal peace between Argentina and Chile.

The marvels of Buenos Ayres, Montevideo and Rio de Janeiro were shown In the last city the progress of modern street construction and the finest theatre in the world were displayed.

The final pictures showed two exquisite sunset pictures showing the wonderful coloring and cloud formations. of the Southern skies. To Mr. Squier's regret not once through the entire trip did he see an American flag displayed on the Merchant marine.

Theodore Andrews of Euclid avenue has gone to Montreal where he expects to be employed for the next three months.

CHORAL SOCIETY ENTERTAINMENT

Large Audience Applaud Firs Appearance

A large and appreciative audience was present at the first entertainment given by the St. Frances Choral society of Houghs Neck at Lyceum hall on St. Patrick's night for the benefit of St. Frances church.

Two plays were presented. In "When Women Vote" Miss Bertha Farrell as the suffragette received much applause as did also Miss Gertrude Farrell as the old fashioned New England housekeeper, Miss Reita Tobin as Helen, Miss Marie Tobin as Mrs. Delano, Miss Agnes Grundy as Mrs. Brownell were also well received and deserve much credit as they assisted much in the success of the play.

"The Irish Invasion" a one act comedy was also presented by the following: Gertrude C. Farrell, Bertha A. Farrell, Marie Tobin, Reita Tobin, Agnes Grundy, Agnes Kiley, Ellen Tighe, Sara McCabe.

Each part was well taken and the play caused much laughter. As this was the first appearance of all the characters on any stage they deserve extra credit.

Miss Lucy Noonan as dancing directress also gave much time and attention to the drill and dancing features. Fancy dancing by the Misses Anna Powers and Veronica Gerrevoir, two little tots, also received much applause. The musiacl part of the program was well rendered by the Misses Delina and Florence Theriault, pianists and Miss Blanche Theriault, violinist. Solos were given by Miss Lillian Goss, Miss Lydia Terry, Miss Marion Sharkey and Mr. John Sharkey. The young women in the chorus were the Misses Gertrude and Bertha Farrell, Marie and Reita Tobin, Sara McCabe, Agnes Grundy, Lydia Terry, Marion Sharkey, Agnes Kiley Ellen Tighe, Loretta Finn Ursula Phillips, Anna Powers, Veronica Gerrevoir John Powers and Alfred Helfrich had charge of the door. George McNeil Fred Noonan were ushers. Mrs. Gertrude H. Helfrick was stage directress. The Choral society has done much in past for the church and is planning to do more in the future.

SUBMITS PLANS FOR MEMORIAL

A. E. Wright, the architect, has submitted plans for the proposed memorial chapel at the Mt. Wollaston cemetery to Arthur B. Hultman, assistant court officer, who suggested the idea shortly after his appointment to the Board of Managers of Public Burial Places.

The plans call for a Gothic memorial chapel, large enough to accommodate 125 people, with an organ and choir gallery, mourners' and ministers' room and an office. Provision is also made for a receiving vault and basement, the heating apparatus to be installed in the latter.

The memorial is intended to be a free will offering on the part of granite manufacturers of the city, many of whom have agreed to contribute one or more finished stones. Mr. Wright has contributed the plans.

NOT TO BE BLAMED.

It was not, of course, an Irish paper which was responsible for a recent advertisement as follows: "For sale, baker's business; good trade; large oven; present owner been in it for seven years; best of reasons for leaving."—Pathfinder.

If Rev. Courtland Myers is correctly reported he expressed a wish that Billy Sunday might come on to Boston and "give the Unitarians hell." Certainly a very charitable Christian expression of desire.—Waltham Press Tribune.

SUNNY SIDE of LIFE

THIS QUIETED HIM.

He—Do you think obtaining the vote would make women masculine?

She—Why no. It hasn't had that effect on you.—London Opinion.

KEEPS US AWAKE.

Howell—Edison says that we sleep too much.

Powell—Well, it isn't his fault; he has invented enough things to keep us awake.—Pathfinder.

APPLIED MATHEMATICS.

The teacher was hearing the youthful class in mathematics. "No," she said, "in order to subtract, things have to be in the same denomination. For instance, we couldn't take three pears from four peaches, nor eight horses from ten cats. Do you understand?"

There was assent from the majority of pupils. One little boy in the rear raised a timid hand.

"Well, Bobby, what is it?" asked the teacher.

"Please, teacher," said little Bobby, couldn't you take three quarts of milk from two cows?"—New York Evening Post.

SAYS WIFE GOES OUT TOO MUCH

Going out too much to dances, associating with other women and men to whom he objected were the contensions made by Silas Cannon when arraigned in court this morning for neglecting to support his wife. Mrs. Cameron is now living with her mother on Broadway.

According to the story that came out in court Cannon became disgusted with the way things were going on at home and left. He went West where he remained about ten weeks. During that time he claims to have sent his wife checks for money.

It was then claimed that he came home and threatened to fill his wife full of lead. She started to get out a warrant against him for threatening her life, but changed her mind, and later got out a warrant for non-support.

The Cannon family became prominent in the Quincy Point section several weeks ago when at attempt was made to kidnap the two children and was frustrated by Mrs. Cannon's jumping aboard a swiftly moving taxi and forcing the driver to stop and let out the children who were being held it was said at the time, by an unknown man.

After hearing the case Judge Pratt continued it for judgment until March 23 .

REPORT IS THAT NASH WANTS SENATORSHIP

Believed He Will Seek Republican Nomination

Kenneth Nash of Weymouth, representative from the 7th Norfolk district, is preparing to announce himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator according to unofficial but apparently reliable information.

The information comes almost on the heels of the announcement of Senator Langelier of this city, who is now serving his second term, that he will be a candidate for the nomination.

The entrance of Nash into the field means the commencement of an active campaign among Republicans of the district; and those in touch with the situation say a good deal will depend on the choice of Ex-Senator George L. Barnes of Weymouth who has been a big factor in assisting Senator Langelier to get the nomination since he declined to be a candidate for the third term.

Rep. Nash is now serving his second term in the house and is a member of the committee on legal affairs and towns. Last year he was a member of the public lighting committee. He is a graduate of Brown University and is at present enrolled at the B. U. Law school.

Rep. Nash is one of the best known professional base ball players in the county and is under contract with the St. Louis Cardinals. Early this season he was requested to return his contract unsigned on the grounds that he could not be a Massachusetts solon and a base ball player in the same season. It is understood however that the Cardinal management has since seen the situation from a different angle and requested the return of a signed contract, he to join the team at his convenience.

The Hospital Aid society meets with Mrs. Luther Glover on Dixwell avenue at 2.30 Thursday afternoon.

FIFTY CASES OF MEASLES

The new measles cards of the Board of Health are being used for the first time today. It is the first time that the Board of Health has placed cards on houses giving warning that there was a patient ill there with the measles. They are not confined to any particular ward but are scattered all over the city.

STATE OFFICER INVESTIGATING

Arthur S. Kimball of the state police is today making an investigation of the fire in the store of Orent, Payson Co. in city square which caused a damage of $15,000 and resulted in the temporary closing of the Daylight Store and a temporary change or location by C. F. Pettengill, the jewelers.

Accompanying Mr. Kimball is Chief Faxon Billings of the fire department and men representing companies carrying insurance.

Several causes have been assigned for the fire. One is defective wiring another is that flames fiared out of an open door of the furnace and started inflammable material near it, and another is a defective furnace pipe.

Nothing official has been stated relative to the cause but it is probable that a finding will be made within a few days.

Two adjustors, representing insurance companies, are making an examination of the stock today.

BOY DROWNS IN WILSON QUARRY

Lad Was Fishing and Lost His Balance

William H. Hannon, the 10 year old son of Mrs. Nancy Hannon of Hillside street, was drowned in the abandoned Wilson quarry, off Centre street, Saturday afternoon. The boy was a pupil of the fourth grade of the Willard school.

Chester Malcolm who heard his cries as he struggled in the water reached the scene too late to effect a rescue. He plunged in and recovered the body.

Malcolm attempted to resuscitate the body but was unsuccessful. When the police arrived with the pulmotor life was extinct.

Hannon was sitting on the edge of the quarry fishing for tadpoles with a can hitched to a string, and is thought to have lost his balance. The boy was drowned within a short distance of where his brother-in-law Bert Vanner was drowned while swimming last summer.

TWO BOWLING EVENTS TONIGHT

The other will be the match between the Larkin and Maloney quintettes at the Wardwell alleys to determine the championship of the Elks league. It is possible that the committee may have to make a reward of prizes, such action depending on whether or not the official records of the season are broken.

Both contests will draw a large gathering of fans, the first, officials and employees at the shipyard and the second, the members and friends of the Elks league bowlers.

A PARTY ASSET.

The Washington Star recently pointted out that the Republican party in Elihu Root had a valuable asset for the presidential contest of 1916. Not that Mr. Root is suggested as a presidential possibility himself but rather that the election of a Republican president would permit the appointment of Root as secretary of State.

There can be no question that the years following the Great War will need a skilled mind in the office of the secretary of state. There can be no question that Mr. Bryan has lost prestige even among Democrats since his assumption of the office. There can be no question that he has sometimes blundered and that if it were not for the close oversight of the President he would have blundered many more times. We believe that Mr. Bryan will be a handicap to the Wilson campaign of 1916, assuming that a Wilson victory would mean a Bryan in the premiers seat. Wilson would lose Republican votes which he might otherwise win.

Although Elihu Root is 70 years old there can be no question that no man in public life today or yesterday, save the late John Hay, could fill the office of secretary of state with such brilliancy. He is eminently fitted to the office and we agree with the Star that an intimation of his appointment to the office by a Republican president would go quite a way toward the latters election.

WORK WELL DONE.

One of the pleasant privileges of a newspaper, whose mission often is to point out negligence on the part of public officials, is now and then to make record of a task well done. The fire in the Dr. Welch block on Saturday might easily have wrought a damage twice as great and have endangered other buildings had the alarm not been sounded at an early stage of the blaze and had the firemen not fought a good battle.

Officer Farrell might have passed the building at three o'clock Saturday morning with a cursory glance. Accounts agree that at that time very little smoke was discernible. A sharp examination revealed the true state of affairs to the officer and he hastened to ring in the alarm. Some might say the officer did no more than his duty. If all of us did our various duties as faithfully as did Officer Farrell on that occasion this would be a pretty good old world.

A word of commendation should also be bestowed upon Chief Billings and his men for their "good stop." They confined the actual fire practically to one store and they did it without flooding the whole building. Too often fire departments of various cities think of nothing except to extinguish the fire and in accomplishing this pour on water and chop holes in walls with an exaggerated and thoughtless energy. The absence of this method in the local fire department is worthy of notice.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

Although Charles Francis Adams who died at his winter home in Washington Saturday had not lived here for some years, this city which has furnished two presidents from his family to the nation felt a natural and peculiar interest in the man and his notable career. For Quincy he had a certain sentimental regard for this reason and in a more practical way he evidenced his interest in the city. For many years he was technically librarian of the Crane Public Library although all of the actual duties of the office were performed by the assistant librarian. In this institution, founded by a personal friend of his, he always felt a deep interest. Member of a family which has throughout the history of the republic done much for the country Charles Francis Adams was never content to rest upon the fame of his ancestors. In many lines of endeavor he achieved success and the name he leaves is a name which he carved for himself.

After this proof of its efficiency as a prophet the ground-hog ought to be able to live comfortably for several years on its reputation.

Portugal now boasts of being two republics, but in this respect it has nothing on Mexico.

Financial Review

The most striking, also the most assuring fact in the outlook is the remarkably strong financial position of the United States. Our fiscal affairs are thoroughly mobilized upon a war basis. Our banking system is exceptionally strong; and the Federal Reserve system, with minor exceptions, is working very satisfactorily. Our gold supply is simply enormous, reaching about $1,800,000,000, which is vastly more than necessary for our requirements. Our merchandise exports are upon an enormous scale, and promise to so continue for months to come. As imports are declining the trade balance in our favor is steadily rising.

The home business situation, while far from satisfactory, shows improving tendencies at work. Of course business is depressed; that could not be otherwise. circumstances considered; but the same policy is to make the best of things and steer a steady course between blind optimism and deadening pessimism. Confidence is slowly reviving. Many industrial activities will resume with the coming of spring. Building operations are already on a rising scale. The steel trade is expanding slowly but surely, and is now running on a 60 per cent. basis. American ship owners are enjoying a positively boom, such as they have not witnessed in years. Implement makers are beginning to feel effects of the prosperity enjoyed by American farmers, which has done so much to offset industrial depression in other parts of the country. Our cotton industry is working under better conditions, thanks to lessened uncertainty regarding raw materials and labor. Our railroads, however, are still seriously hampered by diminished revenues and increased expenditures, so that the dividend outlook is still a problem for weakened lines. Nevertheless, it would seem as if the worst concerning the railroads had already been experienced; and a very important factor regarding their future is the steady subsidence of popular agitation against railroads and other large corporations.

The disposition to injure capital by ill-advised legislation and regulation is distinctly on the wane. Not only at Washington, but in State and municipal governments, a more rational and just spirit is developing, that is sure to encourage a slow but steady revival of confidence among business leaders as well as investors.

The labor situation here is better than in any other country of the world at this time. American labor is free from the curse of war. The proportion of unemployed may be large, especially in great cities, whither the shiftless always drift in the winter. But the number of jobless is much smaller than might have been expected in view of so much depression, because war has stopped immigration and induced a large number of aliens to return to fight for their native lands across the sea. This spring few if any aliens will come to the United States from Europe; and after the war is over labor will be in such large demand for reconstruction purposes as to restrain any sudden influx to this side.

Public attention has been largely concentrated upon the new form of blockade adopted by Great Britain and her Allies. Thus far movement has not seriously aggravated the export situation, but the outlook is full of rather serious possibilities. Yet, so long as a patient and considerate spirit is maintained between our Government and the Allies, the danger of trouble will be reduced to a minimum. It is fortunate that Congress is not in session. Our President is weighted with tremendous responsibilities, in the meeting of which he merits the support and not the criticism of the public in his present policy towards the belligerents: which while maintaining strict neutrality is also faithfully guarding legitimate American interests.

Peaceful Settlement of the Piute Indian Uprising

MANY OBSTACLES OVERCOME

General Scott Accomplishes Mission After Federal Posse Had Vainly Striven to Arrest Aecalcitrants—Residents of Utah District Peacefully Resting as a Result

Bluff, Utah, March 22.—The Piute uprising in Utah was ended when Brigadier General Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, returned to Bluff with Chief Old Polk, his son Hatch (Tse-Ne-Gat), Chief Posey and Posey's eldest son.

The capture of the ringleaders by the army officer and his small party of personal escorts accomplished the peaceful settlement of the Indian rebellion, which had resulted in the deaths of six men and the wounding of many others in the early fighting between a posse and the Indians.

The prisoners brought here were sullen and uncommunicative. Scott had assured them, however, that they will receive fair play from the Great White Father, who, through his agents here and in Washington, will deal with the recalcitrant Indians speedily in the federal courts for their parts in the uprising.

Scott's party and the prisoners encountered severe storms in their trip from Douglas Mesa, where the Indians were induced to surrender. The entrance into this town of the strangely assorted band created intense interest, and Bluff residents are having their first peaceful rest in more than a month.

Scott overcame many obstacles in adding this latest feat to his long list of pacifications of rebellious Indians. His mission to Utah, ordered by Secretary of War Garrison, was considered the last step before the calling out of federal troops to combat the Indians.

The outlaw Indians were encamped about seventy-five miles southwest of Bluff, in the washes and bad lands of Douglas Mesa. Scott waited at Medicine Hat, Utah, an Indian trading post run by John Wetherill, for the reply of the renegades to his peace proffers.

A posse of deputies, under United States Marshal Nebeker of Salt Lake City, recently made an unsuccessful attempt to arrest the Indians and in a battle between the posse and Piutes a member of the posse and two Indians were killed and several were wounded. Six Indians were captured and one of the number was later shot and killed while attempting to escape.

The party rode in just ten days after Scott, unarmed, and accompanied only by an orderly and two Navajo scouts, had started off on a snow-covered mountain trail for the distant hiding place of the Piutes.

Some of the older officers at the war department at Washington shook their heads gloomily and recalled harrowing experiences of their own in the Indian country when Scott undertook this mission. Scott started cheerfully, however, confident of success and scouting the idea that he was risking his life.

Throughout a long and distinguished careeer, the general has been noted for his success as a peacemaker, both with the Indians in the west and with the fierce tribesmen of the Philippines.

This is only one of many times that he has gone unarmed to seek out and bring into camp a fugitive savage, who, though willing to fight to the death for liberty, against a troop of cavalry, promptly succumbed to the persuasion of the eloquent White Chief.

Garrison Compliments Scott

Washington, March 22.—A laconic telegram to the war department from Brigadier General Scott, addressed to Secretary Garrison, said:

"Successful. Have four Piutes desired by Marshal Nebeker and am, at their desire, personally conducting them to Salt Lake to turn over to Marshal Nebeker. Am leaving everything peaceable behind us in southern Utah. Should reach Thompson Tuesday and Salt Lake Wednesday."

Secretary Garrison, gratified and relieved of more anxiety than he had cared to confess by the report, at once dispatched the following to the general:

"I heartily congratulate you in obtaining success in circumstances which seemed to make it impossible. I appreciate your work in the highest degree."

OFF FOR OLD WORLD

Steamers Leaving Boston Comply With Rigid Requirements

Boston, March 22.—Three foreign steamers sailed from Boston after complying with the rigid requirements of the port authorities. They were the Devonian for Liverpool, John Bakkee for Manchester, Eng., and the Nortonia for London.

The agents of the several vessels furnished the outward manifests to the customs officials, who scrutinized them in every detail before granting clearance papers. Each captain received a private signal, which he was told to display at the masthead before casting off his lines.

These were observed by the lookouts on the cruiser Brooklyn, at anchor off East Boston, and in each case the Brooklyn hoisted a signal to signify that the ship was permitted to proceed on her way.

MOTORED NORTH IN AUTO

Alleged Defaulting Postmaster In Florida Caught Near Boston

Boston, March 22.—Frank Weil, formerly pastmaster at Wade, Fla., and wanted since March 3 on the charge of stealing $7500 by means of money orders which it is charged he issued to a confederate while serving in the capacity of postmaster at Wade, was arrested just as he arrived in Revere in an automobile.

With Wade at the time was Claude De Rosa, who admitted that he had accompanied Weil during his trip north.

It is alleged that Weil, as postmaster, sent forged money orders to De Rosa at different points in Florida, and as there was no accounting or checking up of the orders for a period of three months, they were able to cash about $7500 worth.

TIRED SUPPORTING HIS TWO CHILDREN

Liebman's Excuse For Throwing Them Out of Window

Philadelphia, March 22.—Samuel Liebman of New York, charged by the police of that city with having thrown his two small children out of the fifth story window of a tenement, resulting in the death of one and the serious injury of the other, was arrested here.

Liebman admitted his identity and, according to the detectives, said he threw his children out of the window because he was tired of supporting them. The prisoner was turned over to New York authorities.

MIND PERHAPS DERANGED

Youthful Slayer of Comrade May Be Examined by Alienists

West Dennis, Mass., March 22.—In the belief that Elliott Wixon, the 21-year-old youth charged with the murder of 20-year-old Wilfred A. Cahoon, was mentally unbalanced and not fully responsible for the murder because of a recent illness, counsel for Wixon is taking steps to have his client examined by alienists.

Wixon had always borne a good reputation in West Dennis. He had never shown any disposition to quarrel with his companions nor was he of a troublesome nature.

It is believed by his counsel that, under stress of sudden insane thoughts brought on by taunts of his companion, Wixon's mind gave way and he became temporarily insane.

Dr. Sneath took for his subject: "Jesus, the Carpenter: a Parable." Mark 6: 3. He said in part:

"The choice of a lifes profession should not be made without careful thought on the part of both parent and child—but there need be no hesitation in deciding to live the Christian Life. As in all professions there is a growth—so in Christian living—one goes from the simple to the complex—not without mistakes, but all the time striving for what is true and noble. As a workman needs the best tools for his work, so the Christian should strengthen himself in his Christian growth by church attendance, prayer, the Bible and helpfulness to others."

In closing Dr. Sneath made an earnest plea for each one to be a spiritual carpenter building every day—a character approved of God and man.

HALL PLACE M. E.

Rev. P. S. Neldon of the Hall Place M. E. church preached another in the series of sermons based on events in the life of Christ during His last week on earth, at the morning service. He took for his text the words of the prophet Isaiah "He was wounded for our transgressions."

"The idea of substitution which this carries with it and which the crucifixion of Christ carried with it to the world has been one of the greatest truths of all revelation and we might say one of the greatest truths of all time and when we reflect on the words that were expressed by the writer of the Gospel that scarcely for a righteous man would one die, I always think of the Christ giving His life as a substitute for you and I as well as for the people of His day and generation.

"It was not for those people of that time that Christ laid down His life, but it was for the people of the world for the human race. But there have been people down through the years that have tried to discredit the act of Jesus Christ. Some have spoken of it as nothing more than a miracle, others have referred to the scene at the cross as being brought upon Christ by His own wilfulness and His determination thus to meet death.

"But when we think about Christ's life before that, the influence which Jesus Christ's life. death and resurrection has had upon the world since hat we cannot believe those things but there is driven home to us the fact that Christ became a substitute for such people as we.

"God accepted this substitution that was made for the human race and through that act of Jesus Christ there, a propitiation was made for the sins of the world, a satisfaction was made to God Almighty. But if it means anything to us and we are to get any help, any aid, we must accept that Christ as our Saviour. There is no other way."

Owing to the illness of the leader for the League Devotional service. the pastor led the service on the subject; "David: How God Develops Leaders"

TELLS OF LIFE ON BOWERY

David Ranney Speaker at Men's Meeting

David Ranney, a Bowery mission head, addressed the men's meeting in the Kincaide theatre Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The meeting was well attended and during the program there was singing of hymns by the men.

Mr. Ranney related how he was rescured from the "down and out" class, and converted. Among the interesting things he mentioned was his release from prison and the spending of $20.50 for drink, the money received for two years and nine months at hard labor.

His money gone, he said he was informed the saloon was not being run for fun and he went into the street "broke" and dejected. "Bracing" a man for money with the "old gag" that starvation was killing him he was surprised to receive an offer of a feed at Beefstead John's but admitted he would spend whatever coin he received for "booze.

The offering of half a dollar and the succeeding night spent in intoxication passed but he kept his promise and called at a place mentioned by the man.

A talk about clothes and other things led to a bath and new attire and then his new found friend and himself knelt and prayed.

Mr. Ranney said his conversion followed and he was given work. Since then he has devoted himself to religious work.

During his talk he gave reminiscenses of the Bowery and incidents connected with his work there. His talk, somewhat different from that usually heard at men's meetings made a deep impression on the audience.

POLICE WORK ON MYSTERY

Attempt to Solve Disappearance of Somerville Man

The Quincy police were asked Sunday to join the Somervilie police in solving the mystery connected with the disappearance of Charles E. Kimball of that city on Saturday.

Kimball, according to the information obtained at police headquarters, came here Saturday as a representative of the Ridgeway Furnace Co. of Boston and called at the home of Daniel J. Holmes of 22 Berkley street. Holmes accompanied him as far as Wollaston and then returned home. Kimball was then aboard a car. He has not been seen since.

SERG. LARKIN HOME.

Had Been At City Hospital For Several Days.

Sergt. John T. Larkin was taken to his home Sunday from the Quincy City Hospital where he had been a patient for several days. Sergt. Larkin was taken there when threatened with pneumonia. He is doing unusually well and it is thought he will be able to resume the desk at police headquarters before many days.

TRANDILLI CALDNA.

Trandilli Caldna, four years, died at the Brighton contagious hospital Saturday. The funeral took place several hours later from the parents' home Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Caldna, 34 Willard street. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The child was a patient at the hospital for scarlet fever.

YANNIGANS WIN.

The "Regulars" and the "Yannigans" of Hodenosaunee tribe I. O. R. M. rolled a match Friday evening, resulting in a sweeping victory for the Yannigans headed by Capt. O'Connell. The surprise of the evening was the defeat of "Kid" Williams of the Regulars by the diminutive "Jer" Maloney his opponent on the Yannigans.

Disappointing.

The young postmistress, says Everybody's Magazine, was reading a postal card from the morning mail. Finally she turned it over to the address.

"Huh," she said in a disappointed tone, "this card is for me!"

Carib Quickly Went Down After Being Struck by a Mine

OFFICERS TELL OF DISASTER

Three Men Killed When Great Hole Is Blown In American Steamer and She Settles In Seventy Feet of Water—German Patrol Steamer Takes Care of Survivors

New York, March 22.—The destruction of the American steamship Carib, which struck a mine off the German coast while en route to Bremen, was described by officers of the vessel who arrived here as passengers on the steamship Nieuw Amsterdam from Rotterdam.

The mine was hit, the officers said, when the Carib was within a two-hour run of the safe waters of the Weser river and within fifty miles of Nordeney. A Holland North sea pilot, taken on board off the Hook of Holland, was on the bridge at the time, and the explosion caused one of the Carib's boilers to blow up almost simultaneously.

Three members of the crew of the Carib, on duty in the engine and fire rooms, were killed, and several others had narrow escapes.

The contact with the mine came about amidships on the starboard side, and officers declared that a hole was blown in the Carib's side and bottom, extending from the keel to the rail, of such size that a lifeboat laden with men could easily have entered.

The twenty-eight survivors took to the lifeboats and were picked up by the German patrol steamer Anna Busse, a converted trawler, and were taken into Bremerhaven. The last seen of the Carib was when she settled, bows on, in about seventy feet of water.

The men who lost their lives were William Bazzel, third engineeer of the Carib, an oiler and a coal passer. They were evidently instantly killed, as nothing was seen of them or their bodies.

Other men of the fire and engine room watch fought their way through a blinding cloud of steam and coal dust and stifling fumes of the explosive up the ladders to the deck, falling exhausted into the arms of their companions waiting to receive them and carry them to the lifeboats. So rapid was the inrush of the water that some of the men had almost to swim to the ladders to reach the deck.

The Carib, a vessel of 1280 tons net register, was formerly in the Clyde line service out of New York. With other ships she was chartered by a Savannah firm to carry cotton to Bremen.

SMART EASTER TAILLEUR.

Dark Blue Gabardine Used In This Chic Spring Gown.

WITH SHORT SKIRT.

The tailored suit must be reckoned with in the spring as one of the necessities. Worn with a handsome blouse the tailored frock becomes suitable for an afternoon tea and with a plain blouse can be used for shopping and morning wear. The tailleur shown in this illustration is simple, but built along graceful lines. The skirt is short and gored; the hip length jacket has high placed, simulated pockets bound in braid. The buttons are of black satin, and the collar and cuffs are of blue and white checked pique.

SILK STOCKINGS.

Lengthen the Life of Your Hose by Good Care.

With a little care and attention silk stockings may be made to wear two and even three months. If before wearing they are washed through lukewarm water they become more glossy and also strengthened, as silk takes very kindly to water.

After each wearing, also, the stockings should be washed in lukewarm water and white soap.

If the stockings are white, they should be put in a dark room to dry. Never dry white or colored stockings in the sun. The Japanese are said to put all white silks in a dark closet to dry. This will absolutely keep them from yellowing. The use of hot water, according to those who know, is prohibited in the washing of silks. Also avoid rubbing.

And now as to the wearing of silk stockings. They absolutely must not be worn tight. If the stocking is pulled to its full length and caught at the hem there will be few, if any, "runners" occurring within a reasonable time. Wear your stockings comfortably, not too loose or too tight. One extreme is as bad as the other.

A stocking with a lisle top and foot will wear better than an all silk one.

Choice of a Room In Resting Eyes.

When your eyes are tired try bathing them at night time in a little warm water to which a pinch of boracic powder has been added. Use an eye cup for the purpose.

It is a good plan to lie down in a darkened room for about twenty minutes every day if you can. This rests the eyes splendidly. In choosing your room, if you have weak eyes be careful that it has not too sunny an aspect, and try if possible to have a bedroom with green blinds.

White blinds only serve to increase the morning glare, and if the sun beats down fiercely upon your face from early sunrise not only will your rest be disturbed, but your eyes will suffer as well.

WORTH KNOWING.

Orange blossom girdles are a feature on the new bridal robes.

Much in demand will be the buttons of brass, silver and steel.

A straight line at the base of the neck is decidedly trying.

Sashes now often mold the hips, but require the greatest care in arrangement.

The braiding on velvet gowns is most elaborate.

Half and half stockings are new and striking. The upper part of these new stockings is in decided contrast to the lower part.

In the coming season there will be a great deal of black millinery braid used, also neutral shades and shades matching the dress goods.

Long trains of white broche metal tissue are used in a detached way on robes of soft white chiffon or charmeuse.

The new blues for spring are powder, aero, artillery and blue gray.

Young girls are wearing the modified Cossack costumes with shorter waist lines.

Narrow scarfs of velvet embroidered with beads are among the new hat trimmings.

SUNNY SIDE of LIFE

STRANGE.

A teacher in a Liverpool school was trying to find from a tiny child the name of his father. He seemed quite unable to think of it, so to help him she asked:

"What do you call him?"

"I call him father," was the reply.

"Well, what does your mother call him?"

The response was eloquent of the manners of the neighborhood. "She doesn't call him anything—she likes him."—Liverpool Post.

NOW THE SECRET'S OUT.

He wants to make people believe he's hardy. Throwing his coat open to the wintry breezes this winter he has displayed a neat silk shirt, worked with multi-colored patterns. No other protection against the weather was visible.

"Talk about us poor girls with the low necks!" one sweet thing that boarded his car one night exclaimed. "I should think he would freeze to death."

The secret is out, though, and has been passed all along the line. A thick sheepskin vest, heavily padded, has been wrapped around his chest and backbone underneath the flaming negligee.—Good Afternoon in Brockton Enterprise.

SURE OF HIS MAN.

One afternoon a stranger entered a store in a Western town and asked the young clerk for a pair of boots. While trying them on, the prospective customer said he had only three dollars with him, and asked if he could be trusted for the balance of fifty cents until the next day. The young clerk willingly agreed.

After the boots had been wrapped and the customer had gone, the proprietor of the store sternly took the clerk to task.

"What in the world did you do a thing like that for?" he peevishly exclaimed. "You don't know the man, and he will never come back with that fifty cents."

"Oh, yes, he will be back all right," was the smiling assurance of the youthful clerk.

"You seem very certain of it," cried the displeased boss. "What grounds have you for thinking so?"

"The boots that I wrapped up for him," responded the foxy clerk, "are both for the left foot."—Christian Endeavor World.

SPORTING COMMENT

Providence won the annual Y. M. C. A. meet at Boston Saturday night. Boston was second and Fall River was third. Quincy did not get a winner's place.

J. F. Phelan the local boy won the 300-yard run but was disqualified for pushing. He got third place in the 40-yard dash. Ralph Prout did not qualify for the finals. He won his heat in the 50-yard handicap but was defeated in the finals. Fred Kingsbury finished in the 1000-yard run.

In the second interscholastic meet at Braintree Saturday, Weymouth High scored 57 1-2 points, Hingham High 29 and Braintree 21.

Kennedy, a runner on the Psi Upsilon team, was thrown and spiked in an inter-frat race at the Dartmouth meet Saturday and suffered severe injuries. He may never run again.

Two Worcester Academy boys who competed in the B. A. A. meet have been declared ineligible. The faculty blames the coaches and the school receives the blight. Qualification should be a serious matter for all schools to consider.

Most of the Braves are in better condition than at this time last year. Johnny Evers who has been ill is coming along finely. Saturday they beat Macon 6 to 1.

The Red Sox took an eight mile hike Saturday and Carrigan is satisfied the boys are right. He has great confidence in his pitchers. Walter Rehg has water on the knee.

Under the new rules of the U. S. Golf Association an amateur can only write on golf or supervise the construction of courses. That is their limit from now out.

A referee has not been selected as yet for the Johnson-Willard go.

Charles Wagner, the veteran Red Sox shortstop appears to be in fairly good condition again. His arm has improved considerably. Tutwiller looks like the real thing in many ways

Roger Upton of Boston has been elected chief commander of the United Power squadron.

Miss Molla Bjerstedt, a Norwegian girl, won the American tennis title at New York Friday.

The boxing committee of the N. E. A. A. A. U. has selected the following referees and judges for the New England amateur boxing championships at Mechanics Building this evening.

IN WOLLASTON

Statements of Wollaston Citizens Are Always of Interest to Our Readers.

To many of our readers the streets of Wollaston are almost as familiar as those of our own town, and we are naturally interested to read of happenings there. The following report from a well-known and respected resident will be helpful to numbers of men and women here in Quincy.

P. J. Garrity, National Sailors' Home, Wollaston, Mass., says: "I was so badly troubled by kidney disease that I could hardly work. My back was very lame. It hurt me to stoop over or straighten. The pains never left me, even at night. I could find no position in bed that gave me any ease. I had to get up during the night as often as ten times to pass the kidney secretions. I could see that my health and strength were declining and was at a loss to know what to do, as the various remedies and different treatments I had tried had been useless. Doan's Kidney Pills were strongly recommended to me one day and I began using them. Before I had finished the fourth box, my old-time strength and health had returned."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Garrity had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

COMEBACK LIST BIG FOR 1915

Baseball Fans Will See Many Old Faces This Year.

GIANTS WILL HAVE SEVERAL.

New York Nationals Will Try Out a Number This Spring—Coveleskie to Be Given Another Trial—Brief May Hold Down First For White Sox.

"Comebacks" to the big leagues for the 1915 season are fairly numerous, both major organizations being willing to give another trial to players who were found wanting upon their former visit to the big show and were sent back to the minors for seasoning.

Sometimes there is a pitcher who has all kinds of stuff, but lacks control, and the big league manager who has been giving him a trial figures he can get it better in the A. A. or the International than he can warming the bench in the A. L. or N. L.

Then there is the old timer who is sent back because Mr. Big League Manager thinks he has a youngster who is superior to the veteran. The youngster blows up and the veteran is recalled.

Such are the reasons why the two major leagues have bought and drafted a bunch of players who were up once before. The Cleveland club, for instance, is going to try George Kahlor, Lefty James, Josh Billings and Jack Knight again, as well as take a look at Rex De Voght, who was once with the Boston Braves.

Detroit, pleased with its success in giving Coveleskie another chance, is taking two of its Providence farm hands and a few Southern leaguers who have been up before.

Rondeau, who was a catcher when with Detroit, is to receive a trial as an outfielder with Washington. One of the stars of the American association, he is likely to make good in the American league. Killifer also goes from the A. A. to fast company. He used to be a second sacker with the Tigers. Now he is an outfielder. The Cincinnati Reds own him, having given up a bunch of players for his services.

The New York Giants have gone after a bunch of former big leaguers. Among them are Catcher Jack Adams of New Orleans, formerly of the Naps; Pitcher Gipe of Seattle, formerly of the Athletics; Pitcher Stroud of Sacramento, formerly of the Tigers; Pitcher Cook of Columbus, formerly of the Naps. When a Clevelander he pitched under the name of Winchell, the Sioux City club having bought him from San Antonio. Brooklyn's "comeback" is Pitcher Toney of Louisville, who was with the Cubs for parts of three seasons.

The Chicago White Sox will give another trial to First Baseman Bunny Brief, who was sent by St. Louis to Kansas City in exchange for Outfielder Clarence Walker. Boston recalled Pitcher Ruth from Providence, while St. Louis has yanked in Pitcher Miller from Burlington, Ia.

MIYAKE AFTER GRAPPLERS.

the world's champion catch-as-catch-can grappler—any style, jiujitsu or catch-as-catch-can.

Miyake claims that a number of the lesser lights in the grappling world have been evading him. The Jap met Will Bingham, the champion middleweight of England, in New York recently and threw him easily. In fact, the match was a farce. Miyake hurled Bingham to the mat about fifteen times in as many minutes.

Miyake is the greatest jiujitsu wrestler that ever appeared on these shores. He is also clever at catch-as-catch-can.

[BIG FIGHT IMMINENT

Carranza and Villa Forces Are Expected to Clash Near Tampico

Washington, March 22.—Indications are that the Carranza and Villa forces will soon clash in the vicinity of Monterey and Tampico, in one of the most important battles of the present civil strife in Mexico.

Advices received by the Carranza agency from Vera Cruz state that "the Villa troops evacuated San Luis Potosi, due to the approach of General Hill with the advance guard of General Obregon's division now moving north."

This is the first intimation of the direction which Obregon took on evacuating Mexico City, and with the advices Carranza officials admit that their forces are concentrating for the defense of Tampico. Obregon is reported to have an army of about 22,000 men. General Gonzales, the Carranza commander at Tampico, is said to have 12,000.

General Villa is at Monterey with the main column of 20,000, and is understood to have several thousand men along the railroad lines approaching San Luis Potosi and Tampico.

LANDS IN PORTLAND JAIL

Horn Will Go to Boston When Necessary Papers Are Issued

Portland, Me., March 22.—Werner Horn, the bridge dynamiter, was brought to Cumberland county jail from Bangor. He will be kept at the jail pending the issuance by Judge Hale of the United States district court of the papers necessary for his removal to Boston.

Horn will be taken to Boston for arraignment on the charge of illegally transporting dynamite to Vanceboro.

Federal Commissioner Reid, at Bangor, held Horn in $10,000 bonds for his appearance in the federal district court of Massachusetts to answer to indictments returned at Boston, charging him with illegal transportation of dynamite.

PRATT IS GIVEN A LIFE SENTENCE

Maine Farmer Says He Killed Davis While Intoxicated

South Paris, Me., March 22.—A confession that he alone was guilty of the murder of George W. Davis was made by Prescott Pratt of this town when taken into the supreme court for sentence, having been convicted by the jury.

"I am guilty myself, and nobody else. I was intoxicated. It was an accident."

This statement he made when Judge Spear asked if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. He was then sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor in the state prison at Thomaston.

BUMPAS HELL WAKES UP

May Have Something to Do With Lassen's Most Violent Eruption

Redding, Cal., March 22.—Both in magnitude and duration, Lassen peak's eighty-second outbreak exceeded all previous eruptions.

Beginning at dawn a mighty column of dense black smoke rose from the volcano's principal crater and spread a pall over the countryside for miles in all directions. At 3 p. m. the eruptions ceased.

Two other vents, one in a desolate region three miles away from the peak and known as Bumpas Hell, were unusually active.

Scientists, who inspected Lassen peak last summer, it is recalled, gave this warning: "If Bumpas Hell wakes up, look out."

TRIBUTE TO RUSSELL

Funeral of Schoolmaster Attended by Pupils In a Body

Lynn, Mass., March 22.—Tribute to Principal Eugene D. Russell of the Lynn classical high school, who dropped dead in his school office, was paid at his funeral services in the First Methodist church here.

Six hundred of his pupils marched to the church and occupied a space reserved for them. Reservations were also made for the Lynn Classical H. S. alumni, the Lynn city government and the Handel and Haydn society, of which he was president.

Four ministers conducted the services. The burial took place in Lowell.

BOMBS DROP IN FRENCH CAPITAL

City Calm While Aerial Invasion Is In Progress

BUT LITTLE DAMAGE IS DONE

Trumpeters Warn Populace of Presence of Zeppeline—Indications That Italy and Austria Are Close to Breaking Point—German and Austrian Consuls in Italy Advise Their Countrymen to Leave at Once—Greece Preparing to Adopt More Active Attitude—Fall of Constantinople Believed to Be Near—Bombardment of Soissons Is Renewed—Germans Pressed Back by Russians

London, March 22.—Zeppelin airships raided Paris Sunday morning and dropped a dozen bombs. Seven or eight persons were injured, but only one seriously. Four of the aircraft started for the capital following the valley of the Oise. Only two, however, reached their goal. Missiles also were dropped at Compeigne, Ribecourt and Breslincourt without serious result.

Paris remained calm while the aerial invasion was in progress, residents of Paris showing more curiosity than fear as to the results. Trumpets gave the signal that all lights must be extinguished as soon as warning was received of the Zeppelins' approach. Searchlights were turned upon the clouds, anti-aircraft guns opened fire and aeroplanes rose to attack the Germans. The operations of the French flyers, however, were hampered by a heavy mist.

The first bombs began to drop on the outskirts of Paris at 1:45 and the last at 2:25 o'clock. At 4:30 o'clock the firemen went through the streets trumpeting the signal that all danger had passesd, and the lights of the city were turned on.

An official communication regarding the raid declares it served only to show how well the defensive arrangements would work when put to the test.

Advised to Leave Italy

German and Austrian subjects who reside in Italy have beeen advised by their respective consuls to leave the country as quickly as possible.

It is reported at Rome that so many German military spies have entered Italy that the general staff has been obliged to change its mobilization plans, because there is reason to believe that some of the secrets connected with them have been revealed.

Parts of the Italian police force have been detailed to keep under surveillance Germans who recently have entered Italy under what are considered suspicious circumstances.

The Giornale D'Italia publishes an interview with General Pistoja, deputy from Cremona, who said:

"Now the moment has come to gather an army on the frontier in full war efficiency and strategically displayed, which would require a fortnight. Even admitting that concessions may be offered, a show of our force would give diplomacy possibility to speak loudly when the country is in a condition to have its fist raised ready to strike hard."

After examining the situation of the Austro-German forces, Pistoja said "the central empires cannot afford to have behind them a million first-line fresh troops ten days march from Vienna."

Italy Chafes at Delay

The relations between Italy and Austria are believed to have reached an acute stage. There have been reports for some days that Germany's efforts to secure the continued neutrality of Italy by inducing Austria to cede Trent and other territory to her were not meeting with success. Italy, it was said, was demanding that the territory be handed over to her at once, but the Teutonic allies desired to make the transfer after the war.

Following this came reports that Austria had commenced strengthening her southern frontier, and according to a dispatch received in Paris from Rome Italian officers of all arms belonging to the first line, who have been on half pay, have been called to the colors.

In London military circles this order is considered significant, it being contended that these officers belong to the public administration, from which they would not be called unless the situation was serious. No Austrian news on the subject is available in London, the censor in that country having, it is said, prohibited any comments.

There also are reports that Greece is preparing to adopt a more active attitude. Following a series of prolonged cabinet meetings at Athens, the Greek minister of marine is quoted as having said that the Greek government had received all guarantees and to have indicated that the country was about to engage in some enterprise.

As the chief objection to former Premier Venizelos' policy of helping the allies against Turkey was declared to have been that Greec had no guarantee that she would receive adequate compensation, this statement of the minister of marine is considered in high circles in London as an intimation that the new Greek government is now satisfied with the allies' guarantees.

Looks Bad For Turks

With the reinforcement of the fleets at the Dardanelles by the addition of the French battleship Henry IV. and the British battleships Queen and Implacable, and the announcement that the expeditionary army will be landed the moment Admiral De Robeck gives the word, every confidence is felt by both London and Paris that it is only a question of a relatively short time until Constantinople is surrendered to the British, French and Russian admirals.

The Russian Black sea fleet is now off the Bosphorus, but is reserving its fire until its co-operation will be the most effective in aiding operations of the warships in the Dardanelles.

Emperor William is reported to have given up hope that Constantinople will be able to hold out against the allies. His distress is said to be keen, not only because of the political consequences of the fall of the Turkish capital, but even more so on account of the great boom that thus will be given to Russian commerce by the opening of the straits as an international highway.

In an interview with Djavid Bey, the Turkish minister of finance, the kaiser is quoted as saying: "We cannot allow Odessa to become another Hamburg."

Fighting In France

The most interesting events along the battle fronts has been the renewed bombardment of Soissons, the French city on the Aisne, about sixty miles from Paris, which was the scene of a hard fought battle early in the year. The historic cathedral was the prime target, forty-seven shells having been hurled at it. The French declare the edifice was much damaged.

The German excuse for the bombardment is that they discovered a French observation post in a tower of the cathedral concealed under a Red Cross flag, and add that their guns succeeded in destroying the post. The French official statement flatly contradicts this, denying that an observation post has ever been located in the edifice or that a Red Cross flag was flown from the building.

On the Alsatian frontier, where the armies have been struggling for weeks for the possession of two commanding heights known as Big and Little Reichacker Kopf, the Germans succeeded in capturing both positions. The French subsequently retook the smaller one, and fighting is still going on around the other.

The Eastern Situation

On the eastern fronts the Russians, despite the swampy condition of the ground, are slowly, according to Petrograd dispatches, pressing the Germans back to the East Prussian frontier, their latest achievement being to defeat three German columns which had set out on the road to Ostrolenka from Myszynice, which is not far from the German frontier. From the same source comes a statement that Prezemysl is at its last gasp and that the garrison is getting rid of its ammunition preparatory to surrendering.

Mrs. Cameron Gets Divorce

Dedham, Mass., March 22.—Mrs. Frederica M. Cameron, prominent in Washington society and formerly a resident of Brookline and Boston, was granted a divorce in the Norfolk superior court from Evan S. Cameron, one time Princeton star football player, on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment. Mrs. Cameron was awarded the custody of their 3-year-old son and alimony of $10 a week.

Buried With Chinese Rites

Boston, March 22.—A hush and sadness pervaded Chinatown while funeral services were being held for two of the most prominent Chinese in this city. Almost the entire population of that district gathered at Mt. Hope cementery to pay their rast respects and shower the graves of the departed with money, food and other gifts.

BOYS ORGANIZE BASE BALL CLUB

The third meeting of the Wollaston Baptist Boys club was held at the residence of their Sunday school teacher, Frank Burgess of Highland avenue. As usual a "fine time" was enjoyed by all present. The entertainment consisted of instrumental music, games, and gymnastics including class work and dumb bell work for physical development.

Before leaving the Boys club organized a base ball team to be called The "Wollaston Stars." The officers elected were, Howard Walther, manager, Maurice Berry, captain; Frederick Cutler, treasurer.

The other members of the team are Collins Dresser, Everett Randall, Phillip Mooers, Spencer Gray, Elmer Houghton, Raymond Blanchard and Joseph Barber.

The first game was played on the Wollaston Meadows Saturday afternoon for practice only with local talent which proved to be of some interest to those looking on. The curves of Howard Walther's pitching somewhat baffled the opponents and brought more than one to the tune of "out on strikes."

The feature of the afternoon was the fine field work of Frederick Cutler who evidently is a real "star" as his one hand catch of a high ball did the trick and brought much applause. The battery was also good and the heavy hitting was the cause of cracking of more than one bat and bringing same to an untimely end. Harder wood will be used in future games.

The next game will be held at the same place at three o'clock next Saturday afternoon.

FIRST GRAND DANCE.

Finnish Temperance Society Make Initial Bow.

This dance was the first of a series of dances to be given by this newly organized club.

GETS JAIL TERM OF 3 MONTHS

Charles Hori of Pine road was brought into court this morning on complaint of Probation Officer Fahey for violation of probation. Hori was in court last December for non support of his minor children and was ordered to contribute $2.50 a week for their support.

This he failed to do and it was figured out that he now owed over $100 back money. After hearing the evidence the court imposed a sentence of three months in the house of correction. During his confinement at Dedham fifty cents a day of his earnings will be forwarded to the Probation Officer to be used toward the support of the children.

Murdock Martin who was in court Saturday morning and sentenced to the house of correction for a similar violation, made arrangements late in the afternoon whereby he made a deposit of $50 on account of the $100 which he owed. He was then placed on probation on his promise to pay more promptly in the future.

INSPECTOR SEES BOYS HIDE LOOT

Recovers Bicycles Stolen Short Time Before

The bicycles of Wellington Glover of Goffe street and Winslow Harlow of Mill street were stolen in City Square early last night and recovered several hours later by Inspector Goodhue of the police department.

The bicycles were left in front of the Brown stationery store by the boys while they were making a purchase in the store. They came out and found them gone. While they were making a search for them Inspector Goodhue was watching two boys with bicycles who were acting in a suspicious manner, and saw the bicycles hidden in the rear of the Crane Public Library. He accosted the boys and claims to have secured admissions of guilt. Both machines were returned to the owners. The boys will probably be placed in care of the probation department.

NEW THEATRE OPENS ITS DOORS

The Rex Starts Career Monday Night With Strong Program

BILL AT KINCAIDE'S

The Rex Theatre on Franklin street Quincy's new moving picture house opened its doors to a capacity audience Monday evening. It was opening night for the successor of the Old Auditorium.

The feature picture was the first episode of E. Philip Oppenheim's sensational detective story "The Black Box" featuring Herbert Rollinson and Anna Little.

"The Mystery of the Throne Room," a two reel picture, was also greeted with much applause. Francis Ford and Grace Cunard are the stars in this exciting drama.

"When Its One of Your Own," a picture showing the love that a father feels for his motherless daughter was also cleverly acted. The comedy picture "Love and Water" was full of laughs from start to finish as was the other comedy, "When His Lordship Proposes."

The theatre is run under the management of the Auditorium Amusement Company, former managers of the Auditorium Theatre on Hancock street, which was forced to close its doors last week. There will be a change of pictures every Monday Wednesday and Friday. "The Black Box" will be shown every Monday and Tuesday for fifteen weeks.

As an original show Monday's performance at Kincaides Theatre is the best yet. To introduce the play "The Girl of Golden West" Manager Wardwell transformed the stage into a garden, with a fountain, flowers and different colored lights which make a beautiful effect. The screen is at the back of the stage, which makes it possible to see equally well from all parts of the theatre. "The Girl of the Golden West" is taken from the opera Mabel Van Buren takes the leading part. The scene of the play is in California, and many Western scenes are introduced, cow-boys, gamblers stage coach and out-laws picture the life of the Forty Niners .The Girl protects a wounded out-law and finally saves his life on two different occasions, first by winning from the sheriff who holds the out-law and then again by picking out the cheat in a group who are about to hang the out-law.

The Pathe Weekly had some very interesting features among them pictures of the boys of Woburn High school who have military training in connection with the school work.

Chas. Porter the five feet of humor with his numerous songs about the Fair sex was well received. Bernard & Flinnerty singing and colored monologists also went well. Abbott & Mille in a talking, singing and dancing sketch were good.

FIRST DRILL.

The members of the M—G Co. appeared at drill in Union hall for the the first time Monday evening in their new olive drab uniforms. There were 20 so equipped and a number of others prospective candidates.

Charles Houghton of Clay street is ill at his home.

WILL PROBABLY GET CONTRACT

Local Firm Submits Lowest Bid For Subgrading

Twenty-three contracting firms submitted bids Monday for the sub-grading of the Metropolitan parkway from the Quincy Shore Boulevard to Hancock street, and it is interesting to note that of the 23 bids submitted that of John Cashman Co. of Quincy was the lowest by several thousand dollars. The bid of this firm was 23 cents per square yard for excavation; 43 cents per square yard for filling; $50 per 1,000 for planking for bulkheads and $2.15 per square yard for rip rap work. This brings the firm's total bid for the entire job as figured out at about $63,000.

There were other Quincy firms which figured with Boston men for the work but they were all high. The total of Messrs Cashman is understood to be somewhat lower than was anticipated and the chances are that the contract will be awarded to this firm.

The work, properly speaking, will be the subgrading of the so called missing link section of the boulevard which runs from a point a bit to the north of the Dorothy Q house to Fenno street in the rear of the Sailor's Home . The boulevard will cross Black's Creek. A bridge will be constructed over Black's creek but no bids will be submitted until the war department has approved the plans of the structure.

Perhaps a week will elapse before the contract is awarded but it is the general impression that it will be given to the Quincy firm. There will then be no delay in the starting of the work.

It is expected that a definite announcement will be made at the office of the Metropolitan Park Commissioners on Wednesday.

It was agreed some time ago that one of the provisions of the contract would be that Quincy men would be given the preference as employees.

Just how soon the commission will call for bids for finishing is not yet known.

SUFFRAGISTS ARE COMING HERE

The suffragists have begun a thorough house to house campaign in this city under the direction of Miss Mary A. Carson of the Massachusetts Political Equality League, Miss Edith Randall and Miss Miriam Marsh are the local suffragists in charge.

Miss Carson visited the Ledger office Tuesday afternoon and announced that she had secured a list of all the voters in the city and that before the campaign ended the suffragists would see every man, ask him if he would vote "Yes" on the suffrage amendment to the constitution which will appear on the ballot next November, and if he replied in the negative an attempt would be made to show him where he was wrong. The suffragists began with the Ledger staff and there were few members who were not asked the all important question.

There will be a propaganda meeting in Colonial hall on March 31, at which time prominent speakers will outline the arguments for the cause. Mrs. Susan Walker Fitzgerald will be one of the speakers.

The suffragists' campaign in this city will be carried on one day each week until all voters have been seen.

Conveyance of pupils 1,700.00

Article 50, dealing with the question of appropriating money for repairs on the Hollis school, raised a storm of discussion during which the building was referred to several times as a "lemon" Relative to the recommendation of the appropriation committee that $500 be appropriated to be expended under a special committee of three: Paul Monaghan, Peter Ness and C. O. Miller, it was voted that the article be laid upon the table, that this committee investigate the conditions at the school as regards needed repairs, and report at some future meeting.

Under article 51 it was voted that $300 be, appropriated to complete grading at the Abraham Lincoln school. It was also voted that a committee of six be appointed to procure plans for a four room addition to the school and report at the next annual meeting.

Article 52, relative to appropriating money for enlarging and altering the Pond school was laid on the table. In connection with this article and article 53, relative to the disposition of the Union school property it was voted that a committee of five be appointed to report at the next annual meeting.

Under article 54 the sum of $300 was voted for the completion of the hall at the Fenniman school.

During the evening a notice was given for the reconsideration of that part of article 49 in which the sum of $800 was voted for incidental expenses. The meeting was adjourned at 10.10 o'clock until next Monday evening at 7.45 o'clock.

A BLASPHEMOUS SLUR

In a recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor appeared a two column editorial entitled, "The Medical Goliath." As might be inferred the article is not in praise of medical science. The creed of the sect of which the paper is a representative, of course, is opposed to medicine, so that it is hardly profitable to attempt to answer the so-called arguments set down in support of the point the editorial is trying to make. One statement, however, should not pass unchallenged: "The world looks back on a past in which allopathy has for centuries had a clear field, and it does not see any decrease in sickness or disease."

How absurd such a statement sounds to Americans who read of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, an exposition celebrating the completion of the Panama Canal, a giant task which was made possible through a medical science which made habitable the fever infested district where the employees of the ill fated French company died in hundreds.

How absurd such a statement sounds to those who know the striking decrease in the number of victims of diphtheria, no longer dreaded as it was before the days of anti-toxin. Appendicitis is no longer a terror and the percentage of fatalities among those who submit to operations is impressively small. Vaccination has diminished the number of cases of small pox. There was a time when the bite of a mad dog brought one of the most awful deaths. The Pasteur treatment if taken early enough will save life. The list could be continued for many pages.

The examples given above are bare statements of facts. They are so generally recognized that it would be a waste of time and space to give the proofs which are accessible to all. Such a statement as that made by the Monitor is not only untrue, it is a blasphemous slur upon a noble profession.

MISS TARBELL ON SUFFRAGE.

Ida M. Tarbell, the noted writer on economic and financial subjects, says:

"My two real objections to "Votes for Women" are as follows:

"First. That I fear suffrage will take the attention of women from what I believe to be their real civic duties, by interesting them in the political game when they should be concentrating their attention on specific civic work.

"Second. I believe that universal male suffrage is still so far from being what it should be, that it is unwise to double its evils just at present, as we certainly should by extending the vote to all women. In some respects certain evils of the ballot would be more than doubled. I am far from denying that good might result in some way, but in my judgment it is more than counterbalanced by the harm that would come."

We should like to hear upon these objections the opinions of some of Quincy's women suffragists and anti-suffragists.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE.

"While fire was spreading through the wall and under the floors of Sacred Heart Parochial school on Cumberland avenue today, 307 boys, ranging in age from 5 to 11, marched from the building without mishap and remained in line in the school yard until all were dismissed." says a despatch dated Monday from Portland, Me.

Still another argument in favor of the fire drill in public schools. Do we care to picture the probable results if an agitation against the drill similar to that which fruitlessly directed itself against the Quincy School Committee this winter had been successful in Portland?

A LIVELY CONTEST

With Senator Langelier an avowed candidate and with Representative Kenneth Nash of Weymouth a possible candidate for the republican nominated as state senator from this district, to say nothing of other candidates who may bob up at any time, a lively little fight is probable. The fact that both Mr. Langelier and Mr. Nash are already in the legislature is an advantage to the republican voter because he can watch their work there and give his vote to the man with the best record, other things being equal.

NORTH WEYMOUTH

Combination One responded to four alarms Saturday, three of which were telephone calls and one a bell alarm. All were brush fires, one on Essex street, one on the Binnian estate better known as Mount Vernon, and the others on Green street and at Joseph Whall's on Ocean avenue. Monday at 11.30 A. M. the apparatus was summoned to the George Hunt place on North street to extinguish a grass fire and at 5.30 P. M. to a brush fire near McKenzie's barn on Neck street.

Mrs. Chester Stoddard who underwent a serious surgical operation Saturday will remain at the Boston hospital during her convalescence.

Monday a thief made away with $115 belonging to C. E. Poskus. The loss was soon discovered and officers in an auto gave chase to Quincy where train was held ten minutes and searched without success. A warrant was sworn for the arrest of the supposed culprit and a search instituted.

Mrs. Edward Butman and daughter are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs Richard Hesse.

At the Sunday evening meeting of the Y. P. C. U. held in the Universalist vestry, Miss Mary Ford was the leader, subject, "Literature," Miss Louisa Kittredge presided at the piano.

The Universalist Men's club enjoyed a banquet Monday evening followed by a business meeting. The banquet committee was Mrs. E. R. Sampson Mrs. J. A. Holbrook, Mrs. Miles Keene, Miss S. Lizzie Fisher, and the waitresses Misses, Lillian Fisher Elizabeth Holbrook, Venus Thayer and Lillian Hesse. After the business meeting George H. Hobbs held the attention of his audience for nearly two hours, his subject being "Experiences in Mexico and the Way Out." There were fifty members and guests present.

AMERICAN NOTE ON BLOCKADE

Will Be Sent to British Government In a Few Days

BLANKET PROTEST ABANDONED

Way Will Be Made Smoother If Allies Limit Activities and Admit Considering Their Action Actual Blockade —Representations to Germany Concerning the Frye Incident

Washington, March 23.—The United States' protest against the Anglo-French blockade of European waters is slowly taking form.

It was stated definitely at the White House that a note to Great Britain, making representations on some features of the order in council, is being framed and will be dispatched to London in a few days. The basis of the representations was not disclosed.

Representations to Germany for reparation for the loss of the American sailing ship William P. Frye and her cargo, sunk in the south Atlantic by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, also are being prepared and will be dispatched to Berlin in a few days.

The representations to Great Britain are expected to dwell chiefly on Great Britain's notice that she reserves the right to hold up all goods suspected of having an enemy origin or destination, even though they are consigned to neutral ports.

Meanwhile, it is already certain that the original plan of a blanket protest, couched in strong terms, has been abandoned. The promises made informally to Ambassador Page at London that the allies fully intend to limit their zone of action has solved one of the main points.

The United States government will be satisfied with a radius of 1000 miles from coast lines, and the allies do not want to assume responsibility even for that distance, according to the best word obtainable in Washington. The United States already is on record in the London conference of 1909 as believing that 1000 miles was a reasonable distance within which a blockade could be considered effective.

Naval experts, aiding in framing the protest, have called attention to the fact that if this government is ever compelled to go to war it might prove embarrassing to be on record as demanding a close coastal blockade, to enforce which would require far more warships than the nation could afford.

Consequently, if the allies are willing to limit their activities and admit they consider their action actually a blockade, the United States will not ask any material change along this line.

On the question of interference with neutral commerce it is expected the Scandinavian countries shortly will reach an agreement with England and France that imports through their territory to Germany will not be permitted.

This will solve part, at least, of the United States' contention that interference with the commerce of neutrals is a violation of international law and a change in the rules of warfare that the United States cannot tolerate.

It was said that the president sees no prospects of any contingency arising which would cause him to alter his present intention.

After the official inspection the grand officers witnessed an exemplification of the work of the Red Cross degree, and to the credit of Quincy commandery let it be said that better work is seldom if ever witnessed, a fact which the grand officers testified to when they congratulated the officers on the excellence of the work and the correctness of the rendition of the ritual, making special mention of the work of the senior and junior wardens.

At the close of the work of the evening the senior grand warde brought the greetings of the grand commander.

Following these presentations Warden Waldo B. Fay was presented with a like box of confectionery by Em. Com. Morgan with the request that he convey it to his father Em. Sir. Albert W. Fay and his honored mother. In making this presentation Commander Morgan spoke of the great work which Em. Fay, the first commander of Quincy commandery had done for it, of how much he had been missed from its council on this occasion, the first at which he had not been present, and how much sympathy went out to him from the sir knights. He also spoke of the devotion of Mrs. Fay to her husband and of the high regard in which she was held by all of the members of Quincy commandery.

The music during the evening was under the direction of Sir Herbert Y. Follett, and during the banquet the several courses were enlivened with the singing by the sir knights of popular airs, the words of which were printed on song sheets.

Merchants everywhere are making efforts to attract early Easter shoppers with special Easter windows. This year they seem to outdo all other years in beautiful displays.

Quincy merchants are boosting the "trade in Quincy" spirit and the store windows are taking on their Easter beauty. The Granite Shoe Store is showing a most handsome window display.

The color scheme is cream and gold and the many spring novelties are shown to the best advantage. All the popular styles, pumps, colonial ties and fabric tops in high and low shoes are in great variety, and are priced much lower than Boston stores. This is the fifteenth anniversary of the Granite Shoe Store under the present management.

You will save time, trouble, and car fare this Easter by making your Easter shoe selections from this store's immense stock. The Granite Shoe Store points with pride to the display of the new Spring models. It will pay Quincy people to see their offerings before making any selection in footwear.

well known social worker. Her subject was "Friendly Visiting," a subject which she handled entertainingly, yet convincingly.

To be a successful friendly visitor one must give of themselves, must enter into the life and spirit of the one they wish to help. Giving old clothes, or even new ones often harmed rather than benefited the recipient.

The speaker pointed out clearly the duty of all Americans to the newcomers in this country. They must be assimulated, taught how to become good citizens. A friendly relationship must be established in the home; the mother reached and made to feel that she has a real friend in the friendly visitor; one to whom she can turn in sorrow or pleasure and find a sympathetic response.

Mrs. Lothrop paid tribute to the work of Miss Purchase in Quincy and the splendid co-operation of Quincy men and women.

Miss Purchase when called upon for a few details of her work said:

"Since Sept. 1, 1914 there have been referred to the Associated Charities 130 new families, these with 100 referred again makes a total of 330 families dealt with through the office in six months. There are the names of 930 families now on the lists, 614 of which have needed attention more than once. About 225 calls per month are made. Four volunteer workers at present give time in the office and 20 friendly visitors working in the line of keeping the office informed of any need and in supplying the personal touch that the work requires.

"There are no debts except small bills for current expenses with over $400 in the treasury, but as the society is facing the summer months when no contributions come in the secretary urges that an effort be made to add to this amount so as to prevent a deficit at the end of the year."

Reference was made to the splendid work of the collectors in different districts through whose efforts the list of subscribers has been more than doubled. The relief fund has about $70 which consists entirely of sums held in trust to use for different individuals. Miss Gertrude Lacey is treasurer of the relief fund. Miss Purchase also referred to the splendid co-operation obtained in working out problems and spoke of several instances where results had been achieved quickly.

Mention was also made of the progress of Social work in general in the community, the work of the Girls club the School Nurse, District Nurses, Day Nursery, etc., also of the unemployment problem and the question of care for the tubercular. In looking forward, the suggestion was made that a visiting nurse for the tuberculosis work and several church visitors to go out among the people in their homes would help in making Quincy a better community in which to live.

An informal reception to Miss Purchase and Mrs. Lothrop was held at the close of the program during which tea was served, Mrs. E. Granville Pratt presiding at the tea urn assisted by Mrs. Thomas F. Lacey of Wollaston and members of the Philanthropic committees of the clubs.

At the next meeting on Monday afternoon at 3.30 in the visiting nurses room at the clubhouse the speaker will be Miss Josephine Blaikie. Subject "Mothers Aid."

Rev. Clarence E. Campbell, pastor of the Water Street Presbyterian church has the heartfelt sympathy of his parish in the loss of his mother who passed away last Friday in the South. Rev. Mr. Campbell was summoned to his mother's bedside ten days ago by her serious illness. The funeral of Mrs. Campbell was held Monday and it is expected that Rev. Mr. Campbell will return to Quincy some day this week, and will conduct services next Sunday.

CITY HALL NOTES

Mayor Campbell has heard nothing as yet from the civil service examinations that were held the first of the month for promotions in the police department. The mayor visited the office of the civil service commission last week and found that the department had not completed the marking of the papers but thought that it might be able to do so sometime this week.

The mayor is giving considerable time to looking at locations asked by petitions and orders for street lights which have been referred to him. He says that he has a large number of these and that it will be impossible to grant all on account of the lack of funds. He is going to look them all over however to see which are most needed.

Mayor Campbell has two speaking engagements for Wednesday evening, one before the men's club of the Water Street Presbyterian church and the other at the opening exercises of the Adams Academy building at the Young Women's club.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR KNIGHTS

King Albert E. Beach of the Knights of King Arthur and his court were entertained in the Bethany Chapel Monday evening by the Bethany Women's Union.

Mrs. MacDonald gave two readings and the Kitchen orchestra, composed of six Braintree girls, with Miss Clara Call as leader, closed the entertainment.

The affair was arranged by Mrs. Jonathan Swingle who was unable to be present.

The proceeds will be given to the knights.

GOOD FOR THE INSANE

Fox-Trotting Declared to Make Patients Temporarily Rational

Philadelphia, March 23.—Fox trotting is good for insanity, according to officials of the municipal hospital for the insane at Blockley, where the patients enjoy the modern dances at regular intervals under the auspices of the Association for the Employment of the Insane.

"The dance certainly has curative properties," says Miss McMurtrie, president of the association. "The patients know the modern steps and some display grace and elegance in the art. After a few dances the most irritable and wayward patients become amiable and seemingly rational for a while."

POWELL'S BOYS GAIN VICTORY

Fore River Officials Battle In Third of Series

The officials of the Fore River shipyard met in the third of their series of matches at the Coliseum alleys Monday evening and although Pres. Powell was not present his team copped the victory by 62 pins.

The individual star was Sedgwick who got high total of 289 and high single of 114. Sedgwick got two spares in the first string and closed with 96. Three spares and a strike netted the big single. His last string was 79, only one spare appearing.

Brown, vice president of the company and high man on the losers, had a tough break in his first string, his strike returning but three pins. His spare in the ninth box and eight pins in the last made it possible for an 80 closing. In his second string he got a 114 spare. He closed his third string with a 16 spare in the last box but failed to pass 77.

Larkin got one strike in the evening which gave him 77 his best single during the match.

MacQuarrie mildly flirted with the willows and during the evening got one strike and one spare.

Ewertz' solitary spare was made in the first and netted him one pin.

Wakeman lost an opportunity to do things when he spared in the first box of his first string and wasted the next ball. He came across with another 13 spare however and had 87 at the finish.

Smith got one strike in the first string and recovered four on it. He got another strike in the third which returned him 18.

Bennett got one spare during the contest. Kemp and Warriner each got one spare less than Bennett.

A buffet luncheon was served during the match and cigars a-plenty were on hand. The summary:

WOMAN LEAVES WORD THAT SHE IS SANE

Nails Herself In Home and Commits Double Crime

Kingston, N. Y., March 23.—Mrs. William P. Dutton and her 5-year-old daughter were found dead behind doors that had beeen nailed fast in their home at Ellenville. A note addressed to the coroner read:

"It is usual in cases like this to render a verdict of suicide while insane. Your verdict, to accord with the facts in this case, should be suicide with perfectly sound mind and body."

Neighbors said that for several weeks she had threatened to kill her husband, from whom she separated four years ago.

HORSES FOR FRENCH ARMY

Former Passenger Steamer Leaves New York With Record Cargo

New York, March 23.—The old-time passenger liner Gascogne, which up to a few years ago plied between New York and Havre, cleared for Havre with what is said to be the largest cargo of horses ever shipped out of New York. The animals are for the French army. There are nearly 1500 aboard.

The vessel has been entirely made over for this traffic. Even the fittings of the bridal suite had been ripped out and what had once been luxurious cabins were occupied by horses.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To increase the growth of the eyebrows rub pure olive oil in regularly each night.

To cure hysteria wrap mustard plasters on hands, wrists, soles and palms and allow patient to rest.

The juice of a lemon in hot water on awakening in the morning is an excellent liver corrective and for stout women is said to be a flesh reducer.

To treat frost bites rub part affected with snow or ice, or immerse in ice water. Later saturate cloth with warm water or alcohol and rub parts.

Almond milk is excellent for whitening and softening the skin, but its effect will not be noticed until after weeks of constant and regular application.

One teaspoonful of baking soda mixed with one-half glassful of water and applied with a soft cloth is good for pimples, fever blisters, burns and poison from ivy.

Were good, vigorous walking more generally and regularly engaged in by both sexes the necessity for gymnasia and other artificial substitutes would not be so apparent.

When a cramp in the leg comes on take a good, long string—a garter will do—wind it round the leg over the place that is affected and take the end in each hand and give it a sharp pull—one that will cause a little pain. Instantly the cramp will depart, and the sufferer can return to bed safely assured it will not come on again that night.

EVENING GOWNS.

After Easter Is the Time For Showing New Conceits In Filmy Frocks.

After Lent is past the spring girl shows all the new frocks she has gathered during that time of penance. The gown pictured in this illustration shows the tendency in evening frocks.

This gown is developed in white net embroidered in rose design and worn over a slip of white pussy willow taffeta. The bodice is girdled with a three inch band of white and rose colored tapestry, cloth finished, with a rosette at the side front. A gathered tunic falls over a short gathered foundation skirt.

PRETTY NEW CREATION.

About New Suits.

The strongest feature of the new suits is the fullness of the coats and skirts. The coats are very much shorter to allow the wider skirt full sway. They are cut in a variety of shapes. A great number of them dip in front and quite a few are belted. The belts are placed at both the normal and the high waist line, but the latter position is more noticeable on account of its contrast to the long waisted effect in vogue during the last season.

Yokes are seen on skirts. From them the material hangs either in folds or in plaits.

The materials used for the new suits are serges, poplins, coverts, novelty weaves, silks and gabardines.

Grays and tans in light shades are greatly favored. Among these are putty, sand, beige and battleship gray. For the people who cling to blues there are the beautiful shades of navy, dark Copenhagen, army and Belgian blues.

Smart Lace Trimmed Dresses.

Cotton dresses trimmed with cluny, valenciennes and fillet laces will register smartness, while bands for beading, flounces and ruffles will scarcely be less modish. Venise in light effects will feature, especially in conjunction with lingerie frocks.

PANTALETS AND WIDE SKIRTS

Yards and Yards of Material Needed For the New Models. Plaits and Gathers and Lace Pantalets Now the Vogue, Fashion Says.

FULL, fuller, fullest—this is the idea one is likely to carry away after visiting a few of the early spring exhibitions where gowns with tight little bodices and skirts many yards around the hem are the sensational novelties of the season. As the warm weather approaches skirts grow more and more commodious. At last will we be free from complaints about the binding, restricting garments which once made steps of a mincing nature nothing short of necessity. Now a full, free stride is not only possible, but it is highly fashionable, for the latest four yard skirt permits of great freedom—a fact registered in its favor.

Early last winter the straight silhouette began to change. A ripple or two were introduced in the form of a flaring tunic, but a tight binding underpiece still restricted the steps of the wearer, making walking something of a problem. Now, with the opening of the spring exhibitions, this last restriction is discarded, and the out and out full skirt is proclaimed the smart thing of the season.

This fullness is not attained by means of cutting the skirt circular—not at all. The gathered full skirt, which is full at the waist as well as the hips, is the model in greatest favor.

The frock shown here of black pussy willow taffeta is developed with a plain surplice bodice worn over a guimpe of white net. The sleeves are short and puffed. The full skirt is finished with a narrow plaiting, beneath which peep alluringly pantalets of finest val lace. Now, what do you think of that?

For the mid-Victorian era is with us, although the dress designers dart from epoch to epoch with a speed that would make the man who wore the seven league boots appear like a tortoise. We have been putting rings around the fairy tales in all achievements these days, and the apparel people have not been left in the background.

The startling feat in connection with this leaping from century to century is that the world of women are carried along with the designers as though the magic carpet of the Arabian was used for transportation. Sartorially speaking, we stand one day among the minarets of Persia, the next among the steppes of Russia; then we lightly pass into the depths of India, again we play with the peoples of Nippon, back we come to Alexandria in the Egypt of Aphrodite and Thais, and suddenly, without warning, we are landed in England in the days of prudery under its strictest queen.

Do we grow dizzy? Not at all. The American is not given to such weakness. She adores these magical carpet flights. She is never so happy as when bending her energies to stemming some current, although it may be mental or moral instead of physical.

Jet Very Popular.

There has been quite a vogue for cloth of jet both for hats and evening gowns. Tunics of crystal and beaded fabrics are well suited to the modes of the moment, and fringe of the same glittering fabric, together with one of these overdresses, will rejuvenate the evening dress which is beginning to show wear after a winter of hard use.

Feather Fans.

Large feather fans of all kinds are fashionable, particularly those of ostrich or peacock feathers. Even the plebeian turkey feather is mounted with gold and pearl and posed as an aristocrat, a rival, for the moment, of the rich ostrich and glorious peacock plumage which has for ages met with the approval of royalty.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Jameson, a newspaper man. Enraged at the determined effort which Elaine and Craig Kennedy are making to put an end to his crimes, the Clutching Hand, as this strange criminal is known, resorts to all sorts of the most diabolical schemes to put them out of the way. Each chapter of the story tells of a new plot against their lives and of the way the great detective uses all his skill to save this pretty girl and himself from death.

THIRTEENTH EPISODE

THE DEVIL WORSHIPERS.

Elaine was seated in the drawing room with Aunt Josephine one afternoon, when her lawyer, Perry Bennett, dropped in unexpectedly.

He had hardly greeted them when the butler, Jennings, in his usual impassive manner announced that Aunt Josephine was wanted on the telephone.

No sooner were Elaine and Bennett alone than Elaine, turning to him, exclaimed:

"Last night I dreamed that father came to me and told me that if I would give up Kennedy and put my trust in you, I would find the Clutching Hand. I don't know what to think of it."

Bennett, who had been listening intently, moved over nearer to Elaine and bent over her.

"Elaine," he said in a low tone, his remarkable eyes looking straight into her own, "you must know that I love you. Then give me the right to protect you. It was your father's dearest wish, I believe, that we should marry. Let me share your dangers and I swear that sooner or later there will be an end to the Clutching Hand. Give me your answer, Elaine," he urged, "and make me the happiest man in all the world."

Elaine listened, and not unsympathetically, as Bennett continued to plead for her answer.

"Wait a little while—until tomorrow," she replied finally.

"Let it be as you wish, then," agreed Bennett quietly.

He took her hand and kissed it passionately.

An instant later Aunt Josephine returned. Elaine, unstrung by what had happened, excused herself and went into the library.

Involuntarily, her mind traveled back over the rapid succession of events of the past few weeks and the part that she had thought, at least, Kennedy had come to play in her life.

Then she thought of their recent misunderstanding. Might there not be some simple explanation of it, after all, which she had missed? What should she do?

She solved the problem by taking up the telephone and asking for Kennedy's number.

* * * * * * *

I was chatting with Craig in his laboratory, and, at the same time, was watching him in his experimental work. Just as a call came on the telephone, he was pouring some nitro-hydrochloric acid into a test tube to complete a reaction.

The telephone tinkled and he laid down the bottle of acid on his desk, while he moved a few steps to answer the call.

Whoever the speaker was, Craig seemed deeply interested, and, not knowing who was talking on the wire, I was eager to learn whether it was anyone connected with the case of the Clutching Hand.

"Yes, this is Mr. Kennedy," I heard Craig say.

I moved over toward him and whispered eagerly, "Is there anything new?"

A little impatient at being interrupted, Kennedy waved me off. It occurred to me that he might need a pad and pencil to make a note of some information, and I reached over the desk for them.

As I did so my arm inadvertently struck the bottle of acid, knocking it over on the top of the desk. Its contents streamed out saturating the telephone wires before I could prevent it. In trying to right the bottle my hand came in contact with the acid which burned like liquid fire, and I cried out in pain.

Craig hastily laid down the receiver, seized me and rushed me to the back of the laboratory, where he drenched my hand with a neutralizing liquid.

He bound up the wounds caused by the acid, which proved to be slight, after all, and then returned to the telephone.

To his evident annoyance, he discovered that the acid had burned through the wires and cut off all connection.

* * * * * * *

At the other end of the line, Elaine was listening impatiently for a response to her first eager words of inquiry. She was astonished to find, at last, that Kennedy had apparently left the telephone without any explanation or apology.

"Why—he rang off," she exclaimed angrily to herself, as she hung up the receiver and left the room.

* * * * * * *

In the center of a devious and winding way, quite unknown to all except those who knew the innermost secrets of the Chinese quarter, and even unknown to the police, there was a dingy tenement house, apparently inhabited by hard-working Chinamen, but in reality the headquarters of the notorious devil worshipers, a sect of satanists, banned even in the Celestial empire.

The followers of the cult comprised some of the most dangerous Chinese criminals, thugs and assassins, besides a number of dangerous characters who belonged to various Chinese secret societies. At the head of this formidable organization was Long Sin, the high priest of the devil god, and Long Sin had, as we know, already joined forces with the notorious Clutching Hand.

The room in which the uncanny rites of the devil worshipers were conducted was a large apartment decorated in Chinese style, with highly colored portraits of some of the devil deities and costly silken hangings. Beside a large dais depended a huge Chinese gong.

On the dais itself stood, or rather sat, an ugly figure covered with some sort of metallic plating. It almost seemed to be the mummy of a Chinaman covered with gold leaf.

Into this room came Long Sin attired in an elaborate silken robe. He advanced and kotowed before the dais with its strange figure, and laid down an offering before it.

This performance was witnessed by twenty or thirty Chinamen who knelt in the rear of the room.

At the same time an aged Chinaman carrying a prayer wheel entered the place and, after prostrating himself devoutly, placed the machine on a sort of low stool or tabourette and began turning it slowly, muttering.

A few moments later Long Sin, who had been bowing before the metallic figure in deepest reverence, suddenly sprang to his feet. His glazed eye and excited manner indicated that he had received a message from the lips of the strange god.

The worshipers who had prostrated themselves, in awe at the sight of their high priest in the unholy frenzy, all rose to their feet and crowded forward.

Long Sin struck several blows on the resounding gong and then raised his voice in solemn tones.

"Ksing Chai the Terrible, demands a consort. She is to be foreign—fair of face and with golden hair."

* * * * * * *

At the same time, in a room of the adjoining house, the Clutching Hand himself was busily engaged in making the most elaborate preparations for some nefarious scheme which his fertile mind had evolved.

The room had been fitted up as a medium's seance parlor.

Two of the Clutching Hand's most trusted confederates and a hard-faced woman of middle age, dressed in plain black, were putting the finishing touches to this apartment, when their chief entered.

Clutching Hand gazed about the room, now and then giving an order or two to make more effective the setting for the purpose which he had in mind.

Finally he nodded in approval and stepped over to the fireplace where logs were burning brightly in a grate.

Pressing a spring in the mantelpiece, the master criminal effected an instant transformation. The logs in the fireplace, still burning, disappeared immediately through the bottom of the brick tiling and a metal sheet covered them. An aperture opened at the back, as if by magic.

Through this opening Clutching Hand made his way quickly and disappeared.

Emerging on the other side of the peculiar fireplace, Clutching Hand pushed aside a curtain which barred the way and looked into the Chinese temple, taking up a position behind the metallic figure on the dais.

The Chinamen had by this time finished their devotions, if such they might be called, and the last one was leaving, while Long Sin stood alone on the dais.

The noise of the departing satanists had scarcely died away when Clutching Hand stepped out.

"Follow me," he ordered hoarsely, seizing Long Sin by the arm and leading him away.

They passed through the passageway of the fireplace and, having entered the seance room, Clutching Hand began briefly explaining the purpose of the preparations that had been made. Long Sin wagged his head in voluble approval.

* * * * * * *

Elaine was standing in the library gazing sadly at Kennedy's portrait, thinking over recent events and above all the rebuff over the telephone which she supposed she had received.

Jennings entered with a card on a salver. Elaine took it and saw with surprise the name of her caller:

MADAME SAVETSKY,
Medium.

Beneath the engraved name were the words written in ink: "I have a message from the spirit of your father."

"Yes, I will see her," cried Elaine eagerly, in response to the butler's inquiry.

She followed Jennings into the adjoining room and there found herself face to face with the hard-featured woman who had only a few moments before left the Clutching Hand.

Elaine looked rather than spoke her inquiry.

"Your father, my dear," purred the medium, with a great pretence of suppressed excitement, "appeared to me the other night from the spirit world. I was in a trance and he asked me to deliver a message to you."

"What was the message?" asked Elaine breathlessly, now aroused to intense interest.

"I must go into a trance again to get it," replied the insinuating Savetsky, "and if you like I can try it at once, provided we can be left alone long enough."

Seated in her chair, the medium muttered wildly for a few moments, rolled her eyes and with some convulsive movements pretended to go into a trance.

Suddenly the curtains were pulled aside and Aunt Josephine and Bennett, who had just come in, entered.

"I can do nothing here," exclaimed Savetsky, starting up and looking about severely. "You must come to my seance chamber where we shall not be interrupted."

"I will," said Elaine, vexed at the intrusion at that moment. "I must have that message—I must."

"What's all this, Elaine?" demanded Aunt Josephine.

Hurriedly, Elaine poured forth to her aunt and Bennett the story of the medium's visit and the promised message from her father in the other world.

Aunt Josephine, who was not one easily to be imposed on, strongly objected to Elaine's proposal to accompany Savetsky to the seance chamber, but Elaine would not be denied.

"It might be safe for Elaine to go," Bennett finally suggested to Aunt Josephine, "if you and I accompanied her."

A few moments later, in the Dodge car, Elaine, the medium and her two escorts started for the Chinese quarters.

* * * * * * *

At the house the medium opened the door with her key and ushered in her three visitors.

Entering the room, the medium at once prepared for the seance by pulling down the window shades.

Suddenly an indistinct face was seen to be peering through the black curtains. A voice, deep, sepulchral, was heard in slow and solemn tones.

"I am Eeko—the spirit of Taylor Dodge. I will give no message until one named Josephine leaves the room."

No sooner had the words been uttered than the medium came writhing out of her trance.

"What happened?" she asked, looking at Elaine.

Elaine reported the spirit's words.

"We can get nothing if your aunt stays here," Savetsky added, insisting Elaine Is Hurried Through the Hidden Passage in the Fireplace.

that Aunt Josephine must go. "Your father cannot speak while she is present."

Aunt Josephine, annoyed by what she had heard, indignantly refused to go and was deaf to all Elaine's pleadings.

"I think it will be all right," finally acquiesced Bennett, seeing how bent Elaine was on securing the message. "I'll stay and protect her."

Aunt Josephine finally agreed. "Very well, then," she protested, marching out of the room in a high state of indignation.

She had scarcely left the house, however, when she began to suspect that all was not as it ought to be. In fact, the idea had no sooner occurred to her than she decided to call on Kennedy and she ordered the chauffeur to take her as quickly as possible to the laboratory.

* * * * * * *

Kennedy had not been in the laboratory all the day after my experience with the acid, and I was impatiently awaiting his arrival. At last there came a knock at the door and I opened it hurriedly. There was a messenger boy who handed me a note. I tore it open. It was from Kennedy and read: "I shall probably be away for two or three days. Call up Elaine and tell her to beware of a certain Madame Savetsky."

I was still puzzling over the note and was just about to call up Elaine when the speaking tube was blown and to my surprise I found that it was Aunt Josephine who had called.

"Where is Mr. Kennedy?" she asked, greatly agitated.

"He has gone away for a few days," I replied blankly. "Is there anything I can do?"

She was very excited and hastily related what had happened at the parlor of the medium.

"What was her name?" I cried anxiously.

"Madame Savetsky," she replied, to my surprise.

Astounded, I picked up Craig's note from the desk and handed it to her without a word. She read it with breathless eagerness.

"Come back there with me, please," she begged, almost frantic with fear now. "Something terrible may have happened."

* * * * * * *

Aunt Josephine had hardly left Savetsky when the trance was resumed.

Suddenly, from the mysterious shadows of the cabinet, there appeared the spirit of Long Sin, whose death Elaine still believed she had caused when Adventuress Mary had lured her to the apartment.

Elaine was trembling with fear at the apparition.

As before, a strange voice sounded in the depths of the cabinet and again a message was heard, in low, solemn tones:

"I am Keka, and I have with me Long Sin. His blood cries for vengeance."

Elaine was overcome with horror at the words.

Then a dim, ghostly figure, apparently that of Long Sin, appeared.

With arms outstretched, the figure glided from the cabinet and approached Elaine. She shrank back farther in fright, too horrified even to scream.

At the same moment, the medium drew a vapor pistol from her dress, and, as the ghost of Long Sin leaped at Elaine, Savetsky darted forward and shot a stream of vapor full in Bennett's face.

Bennett dropped unconscious, the lights in the darkened room flashed up, and several of the men of the Clutching Hand rushed in.

Quickly the fireplace was turned on its cleverly constructed hinges, revealing the hidden passage.

Before any effective resistance could be made, Elaine and Bennett were hustled through the passage, securely bound, and placed on a divan in a curtained chamber back of the altar of the devil worshipers.

* * * * * * *

It was at that moment that I, little dreaming of what had been taking place, arrived with Aunt Josephine at the house of the medium.

She answered my ring and admitted us. To our surprise, the seance room was empty.

"Where is the young lady who was here?" I asked.

"Miss Dodge and the gentleman just left a few minutes ago," the medium explained, as we looked about.

I happened to notice a torn handkerchief lying on the floor. It flashed over me that perhaps it might afford a clue.

As I passed it, I purposely dropped my soft hat over it and picked up the hat, securing the handkerchief without attracting Savetsky's attention.

Aunt Josephine was keen now for returning home to find out whether Elaine was there or not. No sooner had she entered the car and driven off, than I examined the handkerchief. It was torn, as if it had been crushed in the hand during a struggle and wrenched away. I looked closer. In the corner was the initial "E."

That was enough. Without losing another precious moment I hurried around to the nearest police station.

The sergeant detailed several roundsmen and a man in plain clothes, and together we returned to the house, having a careful plan to surround it secretly, while the plainclothes man and I obtained admittance.

* * * * * * *

Meanwhile, the Chinese devil worshipers had again gathered in their cursed temple and Long Sin, in his priestly robe, appeared on the dais.

The worshipers kotowed reverently to him, while at the back again stood the aged Chinaman patiently turning his prayer wheel.

Woodward Alumnae Will Meet Tonight

The ever present Equal suffrage question will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Woodward Alumnae Association at the Alma Mater tonight if the intentions of some of the members are carried out. As far as is known it will be the first time that the suffrage question has been presented to an organization of young ladies interested in schools

Miss Elsie Patterson, president, will preside at the meeting. After the annual election of officers there will be a social .

DIDN'T WANT UNION MEN.

Admits Trying to Keep Non Members From Affiliating.

Supt. A. L. Ward of the power house of the Bay State St. Ry. Co., at Quincy Point admitted at the arbitration hearing in Boston Monday that he had made an attempt to prevent men in his employ from affiliating with a union.

During the hearing he was roundly criticized by Atty. James L. Vahey of the union for a conversation he had with C. N. Gill, an arbitration witness as well as for his personal efforts to prevent the organization of a union.

Gill, who is employed at the Quincy power station and who had given testimony previously regarding a mistake he made with the rotary machines which tied up the lines for 15 minutes, was recalled in the morning. He told of being approached by Supt Ward on Sunday, while he was at work, and quoted the superintendent as saying: "I don't want you to get in bad, what you said was not strictly true."

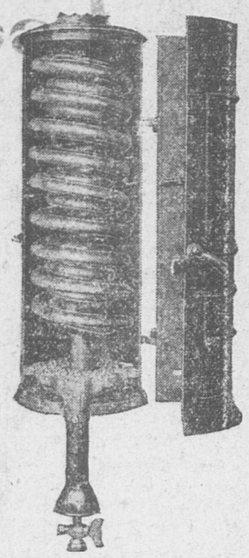
TripleX Gas Water Heater

Three Distinctive Features

Economical Convenient Efficient



ECONOMICAL because when you have sufficient hot-water, whether it be for a Real Hot Bath or Hot water for dish washing, you can shut off the Gas, and the expense ceases. You can't do that with a coal range.

CONVENIENT because hot water can be obtained in a few minutes. You can get sufficient hot water for dish washing in three minutes - - Think of it - - Then again if you want a reserve supply of hot water you can heat the entire contents of the tank.

EFFICIENT because it is always ready for duty, it is entirely independent of the coal range and is so constructed that the heat from the burner goes into the water instead of the room which means plenty of Hot Water and a Cool Kitchen, which will be mighty comfortable the coming summer.

How Nationally Advertised Goods Help Keep Down the Cost of Living

Have you ever thought of how the price of a particular advertised article is the same now as it was ten years ago?

Rumford's Baking Powder, Kellogg's Corn Flakes, Shredded Wheat Biscuit, Sunkist Oranges, Campbell's Soup and Welch's Grape Juice. The cost of the raw material has gone up, wages have increased, but the price of these articles today is practically the same as ten years ago. And you are getting more quality, stronger and improved goods that do the work better than ever before. Ten years ago Welch's paid $15.00 per ton for grapes. Last year they paid $30.00. The price of a bottle of Welch's has not changed.

One of the reasons for this is the increased sales made possible through magazine advertising. With the careful censorship of Advertisers' claims and the elimination of fakirs, confidence has grown in the people who have bought heavily of nationally advertised goods and been satisfied.

Attend This National Celebration OF ADVERTISED GOODS

Now we offer you nationally advertised goods made by the country's biggest and most reputable manufacturers who sign their names to every package or article because they are proud of the quality and excellence of the goods they offer you. And such goods are guaranteed to give you satisfaction. If anything should go wrong the manufacturer and we will make good.

So with increased manufacturing expenses, the price of advertised goods has not risen. These same goods through quality save you money by cutting out the waste.

Save money, buy Nationally Advertised Goods.

BUILDING SUBMARINES FOR FOREIGN POWER

Ten Under Water Craft to Launch Here in May or June

The Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation is preparing for a series of launchings to take place in May and June which will be of world wide interest.

The boats to be sent over will be the submarines now under construction at the shipyard for a foreign power, presumably Great Britain, and foremen have been instructed to rush work so that there will be no delay.

When launched the submarines, with a few minor exceptions, will be practically completed and the flotilla of ten will be anchored in yard waters until after the war, when there will be a wholesale delivery.

The actual dates of the launchings have not been announced as yet but it is thought that the first of the submarines will take its maiden dip about May 15.

It is understood that the reason the workmen are rushing on the foreign contract is that the company has an immense amount of work in view and needs the building ways now occupied by these ships.

While it is somewhat difficult for strangers to secure permission to tour the yard a trip down the Fore River gives a full view of the foreign submarines as they set on the ways.

Considerable interest has been aroused throughout the country in the foreign contract because of the many stories that have appeared in the metropolitan dailies to the effect that a delivery of parts to Montreal has continued despite the promise of Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Co. of which the local company is a subsidiary, that there would be no delivery until after the war.

These stories, together with others that have appeared, have whetted an unusual curiosity among attaches of the German embassy and resulted recently in representatives of the German government filing a protest with Washington officials against such delivery particularly at Seattle, Washington, and Quincy.

Proof of these allegations have never been submitted to the United States government and a unique development of the entire situation was the recent arrest of the German consul at Seattle on a charge of having conspired to secure plans and specifications of work being completed on the Pacific coast.

None of the Fore River officials would make any statement on the story which appeared in a Boston paper this morning in which it was stated that parts were being shipped from Quincy and they were being assembled in Montreal by local shipbuilders. This given as an explanation of the rise in Bethlehem Steel stock which within the past week has advanced 12 points.

Although frequent attempts have been made to discover whether or not any shipments were being made from Quincy to Montreal nothing has ever been learned and men living in the vicinity have never seen, they say, car or boat shipments of parts or metal which might be assembled into an engine of war.

There is more activity at the shipyard at this time than at any time within the past ten years. The force of workmen employed totals nearly

NOTED MEN ATTEND FUNERAL SERVICES

Senator Lodge, President Lowell of Harvard and Others Present

IN MEMORY of C. F. ADAMS

Men prominent in national life were present Tuesday afternoon at the funeral services of Hon. Charles Francis Adams. The services were held at 3 o'clock in the historic First Parish church and were conducted by Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson, minister of the church. The services were simple in the extreme, in accordance with an expressed wish of the family.

As the casket was brought into the church the sunshine streamed between the pillars and the flagpole on city hall opposite, with its flag at half mast, cast its shadow on the stone portico.

The casket was almost buried beneath a wealth of beautiful flowers. Upon it rested a beautiful spray of Easter lilies and a large wreath. At the head of the casket was a pillow tied with blue and old gold ribbon sent by the Massachusetts Historical society. Surrounding this were large wreaths of roses and violets, being remembrances sent by the City of Quincy, the Loyal Legion and loving friends. In front of the altar were also great set pieces of beautiful flowers while beneath the busts of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, ancestors of the distinguished American were hung beautiful wreaths.

William Ellis Weston presided at the organ and as the honorary bearers, who preceded the mourners, came into the church and down the centre aisle, he played Handel's "L'Argo."

During the services the quartette choir composed of Mrs. James H. Slade, soprano, Miss Angelina McCarthy, contralto, Herbert Kearns, tenor and Tracy R. Engle, bass, sang "Hark, Hark My Soul" and "How Blest the Righteous When He Dies," the latter hymn was that sung at the funeral of the illustrious father of the deceased.

At the conclusion of the short service the body was taken to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Hudson. As the body was borne out of the church the organ played Handel's "Dead March from Saul."

The ushers at the church were Charles F. Adams, 2d, and Arthur Adams, nephews of the deceased, Robert Homans, F. Lathrop Ames, A. Wadsworth Longfellow, Edmund D. Codman, Charles A. Price and Henry M. Faxon.

The honorary bearers were George Duncan, Moorfield Story, Maj. Henry L. Higginson, Francis L. Higginson, Col. Charles F. Morse, Col. Charles L. Pierson, James F. Rhodes and Wellington C Ford.

Among those who attended were: Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, Hon. John D. Long, Pres. A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard college, Hon. Chester I. Campbell, mayor of Quincy, Hon. John O. Hall, Emery L. Crane, secretary of Quincy Historical society, Hon. Josiah Quincy, Fred B. Rice, Dr. John A. Gordon, Rev. James De Normandie, Hon. Samuel McCall, Hon. Louis A. Frothingham, Rev. Edward Norton, Rev. NO DEBATE ON EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Alumnae Association of Woodward Institute Meet

The expected debate on Equal Suffrage at the meeting of the alumnae association of the Woodward Institute in the school hall Tuesday evening did not materialize owing to the absence of those interested in the movement. President Miss Elsie Patterson stated she was not aware the question was to be discussed until she read an intimation of it in the Ledger and that she was quite surprised to learn that the meeting of the association might resolve itself into a suffrage rally.

Several anti-suffragists were present and prepared to place their side of the topic before the gathering. The meeting had an unusually large attendance. The suffragists may bring up the matter at the next meeting.

The reports of Miss Amy Fallon secretary, and Miss Esther Beckford, treasurer, were accepted. Mention during the evening was made of the prize offered by the alumnae for the best essay by a member of the graduating class and the offer will be renewed this year.

An entertainment program followed which included vocal solos by Miss Mariam Miller, Spanish dances by Miss Mary Murray and Miss Ruth Bass. Miss Amy Fallon played the piano and Miss Marion Fallon sang during a reading by Miss Catherine Yule. The minuet was danced by the following pupils at the school: Misses Mary and Roxanna Schenkelberger, Edith Bixbee, Ruth Whiton, Doris Fraser, Anna Dinegan, F. Emery and C. Crane.

Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

EXPLOITS OF ELAINE.

Through unforeseen circumstances "The Exploits of Elaine" could not be run today. The installment will be printed in Thursday's paper.

LOYAL LADIES PRESENT DRAMA

The two act drama "Our Church Fair," which was so successfully presented by the ladies at the First Presbyterian church last week, was given again Tuesday evening for the entertainment of the Loyal Ladies of Clan MacGregor. It was the regular meeting of the Loyal Ladies and was held in Clan MacGregor hall. After a short business session at which Mrs. Flockhart was elected a pianist the play was presented.

The several characters in the drama were soley impersonated and their work was greatly enjoyed and heartily encored by the audience.

FRIENDS ATTEND BIRTHDAY PARTY

A very pretty birthday party was given Tuesday evening by Isabelle and John Murray at their home on Kendrick avenue.

The house was decorated with green and white crepe paper and in the dining room was a large birthday cake with lighted candles which was later cut by Miss Murray, each guest receiving a piece.

Games were played and music was furnished by Hattie Raiche at the piano and singing by those present.

Dainty refreshments were served and all had a very pleasant evening. Friends were present from Dorchester, Weymouth and Quincy and left them both best wishes in a happy year.

Those present were, Misses Elizabeth McLay, Annie Cotter, Mildred Durgin, Harriet Raiche, Mary Barton, Susie Tytler, Ruth Tytler, Dana Warrington, Laura Jones, Isabel Murray, and Frank Raiche, Jack, McLay Nathaniel Barton, Robert Lowe, Will Owens, Fred Bergfors, Arthur St. John, Francis Lawler, John Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Hughes, Jennie Barton, and Mr. and Mrs. G. ESCAPES BEING SHOT AS SPY BY STRATEGEM

War Correspondent Tells Experiences on Great Battlefield

With a personal story fresh from European battlefields, overflowing with the horrors and sufferings of war, and told only as a newspaper man could tell it. was the lecture "Through the German Lines." delivered by Albert R. Williams, Tuesday evening, at the Wollaston Congregational church before an audience that filled the entire seating capacity.

While collecting material for a series of articles in the "Outlook" Mr. Williams was not only arrested as a spy by the French. Belgians and Dutch. but was tried for his life before a German military tribunal from which he escaped by a fortunate circumstance.

The lecture was illustrated by a large number of stereopticon views from photographs taken by Mr. Williams on the battlefield. It was guest night of the Congregational club. under whose auspices the lecture was held and a large number of the members' friends were present.

It was at the time when the heart of the German fighting machine was smashing its way into Antwerp that Mr. Willams was taken into custody his baggage searched and he was escorted to German headquarters.

There he was thrown into a prison pen with many military offenders. On account of the German system of espionage distrust was everywhere and suspicion that one's neighbor was a spy prevented fraternizing.

While detained he managed to masticate several papers that might prove embarrassing. He succeeded in this but some scribblings he had made the morning of his arrest had been taken from him. The brief notes were not readily readable and Mr. Williams was asked to translate before the military tribunal. All were innocent enough except one phrase. Mr. Williams was much wrought up over the German arrogance toward the Belgians and this note read "If I were a Belgian I would join a posse against the Germans myself." He managed to twist it to "If I were among the Belgians I would possibly join the Germans myself."

After several hours grilling and a day's detention he was able to secure his acquittal and sustain his identity by displaying a watch. the gift of East Boston parishioners.

The horror-written faces of his companion prisoners the nerve wracking suspense in awaiting the arbitrary decision of the military tribunal from which there was no appeal, were all vividly described.

"The bayonet." said Mr Williams. "assumed an entirely different aspect. Formerly it had seemed to decorate the end of a rifle, Now it seemed to be pointed at the pit of your stomach, ready to be turned around in it It no longer looked natural in a vertical position.

"Such were my experiences and the feelings of distrust created that I would not have spoken to my own mother without a permit from the German government."

The views of the speaker led through the ruined villages of the Bel-

Don't Buy a Cat in a Bag

His price is anything he can get—his goods are of very uncertain value—his labels don't tell you who the manufacturer is who you can hold responsible if you buy trash. The world swallows him up when he gets your money, you lose—This may be an extreme example of the back door fakir, but it illustrates what goes on daily in a milder form in buying goods without a reliable manufacturer behind them. The result, however, is the same—

YOU LOSE.

Truth and Quality

are as necessary to the makers of Nationally Advertised goods as a man's right arm. The reliable home magazines such as Good Housekeeping, will not allow a manufacturer to even infer anything that the product cannot prove up to. Truth underlies the success of every popular Nationally Advertised product. And even if the manufacturer, were able to deceive in his ads, if the product did not excel, the wide use that the advertising would give them would bring down a nation-wide condemnation from the housewives which would put the untruthful manufacturer out of business.

This is headquarters for truthfully described products, with excellence that's good for your household.

HER FAITH.

"Some day I feel, a most wonderful thing will come into my life," said Helen Keller. "It will be a miracle that will make my eyes to see. When it comes I feel objects will look no different than I now picture them in my mind's eye.

"Only a miracle can give me that wonderful sense and make my eyes perform their functions. But the Creator has been wonderfully kind to me. He has given me fingers with which I can talk, hear and see, and some day I feel He may place His hand upon my eyes and take away the dark.

"No, I shall not become hysterical if that time ever comes, but I may faint from joy."

There is something wonderfully pathetic in that last sentence and we may all pray that the miracle may come to pass and that the woman who has done so much without sight and whose faith is so strong may have that greatest of blessings bestowed upon her.

A STATEMAN'S TASK.

Formal announcement was made at the White House Monday that, at present, President Wilson had no intention of calling an extra session of the Senate or of Congress before the regular session next December. Undoubtedly the President feels that he has quite enough to occupy his mind in the complications arising from the Great War without being vexed by the deliberations of Congress and undoubtedly he feels that he can handle the situation quite as well without the aid of Congress. Surely the task is big enough for anyone. Upon the manner in which President Wilson guides the ship of state through the perils of an age of war will depend in large measure his place in history.

A POWERFUL AID.

There should be a decided decrease in the ravages of the tent caterpillars, this year! For the past two or three years their destructiveness has gone on space, despite the determined efforts to get rid of them. This year the State Board of Agriculture wisely intends to enlist the help of Massachusetts' 575,000 school children.

The Board is offering four silver cups to the schools whose children collect the greatest number of egg masses between March 20 and May 1. It would undoubtedly stimulate interest and help the community's caterpillar situation if someone in each school district should offer a prize to the pupil collecting the greatest number of egg masses. Will one of Quincy's schools win a silver cup?

Last fall a Brockton department store gave the idea a practical impetus by offering substantial prizes to school children for building bird houses. The children took up the plan with enthusiasm and a number of excellent bird houses were built. Here is a good opportunity for some good advertising and at the same time help a worthy object.

When will people learn not to be always seeking to get something for nothing The Postoffice Department states that the mail swindlers won $68,000,000 from American easy marks last year. And they say the worst mail order swindling class is the fake medical cure-alls.

gians and showed the shattered defenses of the Belgians once erected against the German invasion.

The green gray tide of the magnificent German fighting machine offered a striking contrast to the unprepared makeshifts of the Belgian troops. German camp life, with its songs of the Fatherland, its complete kitchens, its 42 centimeter "pea shooters," as the speaker termed them, were all cast on the screen

"War once encountered," said Mr. Williams, "loses all of its glamour and glory. It is one great smell." This was explained by the lack of bathing facilities, the necessary precautions against disease and other features

Cities steam rollered by the German horde, ugly scars on the landscape, once beautiful buildings, the breadline at Malines and other sights were shown. Mentioning the atrocities charged by either side Mr. Williams concluded by saying: "War itself is but one great massacre." The singing of "America" brought the evening to a close.

The presidents of local mens clubs were the guests of President Campbell at the supper which preceded and each was called on for brief remarks. President Charles W. Bailey of the Baptist Mens assembly told of the warm spot in his heart for the Congregational church Seventeen years ago, for about a year, he had been a member of their choir. His resignation, he hastened to say, was voluntary

President Charles E. Monroe of the Wollaston Unitarian club spoke in favor of one large community club and President Thomas G. Breen of the Park and Downs Forum seconded this sentiment Chairman Mann issued a challenge to the Unitarian bowling team in response to a hint sent out

"Tipperary" and other songs were sung, President Campbell leading the chorus with characteristic enthusiasm A challenge for a baseball match was received from the Methodist club.

Decorations appropriate to the subject of the evening consisted of French, English, Russian and German flags. Each diner had a paper fez placed on his head by a fair waitress and the members as they later filed in to the auditorium, looked like a delegation from some fraternal order.

President Campbell, the speaker of the evening and "Chef" Mann were conspicuous for their head coverings of red, white and blue.

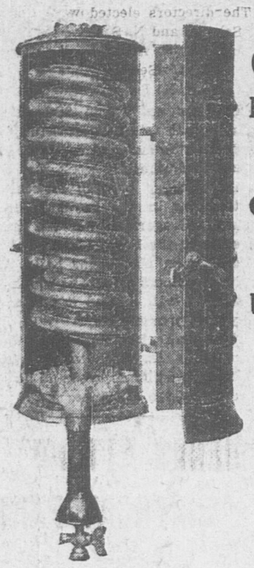
TRIPLEX Gas Water Heater

Three Distinctive Features

Economical

Convenient Efficient



ECONOMICAL because when you have sufficient hot-water, whether it be for a Real Hot Bath or Hot water for dish washing, you can shut off the Gas, and the expense ceases. You can't do that with a coal range.

CONVENIENT because hot water can be obtained in a few minutes. You can get sufficient hot water for dish washing in three minutes - - Think of it - - Then again if you want a reserve supply of hot water you can heat the entire contents of the tank.

EFFICIENT because it is always ready for duty, it is entirely independent of the coal range and is so constructed that the heat from the burner goes into the water instead of the room which means plenty of Hot Water and a Cool Kitchen, which will be mighty comfortable the coming summer.

SCHOOL BOARD SCORES COUNCIL

Points Out In Annual Report That Its Advice Is Not Heeded

IS VOLUME OF 102 PAGES

The report of the School Committee for the past year, a book of 102 pages, is off the press. There was some curiosity a few weeks ago as to what the board would have to say in the report regarding the action of the City Council in selecting the Lowe street lot over the advice in favor of the South street lot. Following is the paragraph in which they pay their respects to the City Council:

"Your committee, whose acts are largely legislative and judicial, are in a position to judge best, and should be able to judge more wisely, questions of public school policy; yet, although we were twice asked to make a recommendation to the City Council relative to a site for the proposed school house in the Bigelow district and each time went over the grounds suggested and after giving careful consideration to the comparative merits of the different lots, unanimously recommended the South street lot, the City Council, in this case as in the case of the Adams school site, rejected our recommendations and voted to purchase the Lowe street lot."

The report goes on to discuss other matters and observes that the closeness of the Committee's calculation in preparing the budget was proved by the fact that it had only $1.71 unexpended at the end of the year.

The report also says that criticism of the Committee is often unjust because of "inadequate knowledge of conditions."

NEEDLE ENTERS WOMAN'S ARM

W.s Trying to Hold Mother of Drowning Boy

The efforts of Mrs. James Hastings of Hill street to reach the Wilson quarry Saturday so she could save little Willie Hannon from drowning resulted in her jabbing a needle in her arm and an operation at the Massachusetts General Hospital for its removal

Mrs. Hastings was sewing at her home, a short distance from the quarry when she heard the anguished appeal of the boy for some one to save him. Placing the needle in her waist she ran to the spot.

Mrs. Hannon, the mother of the boy, had also heard his cries reached there at the same time, and when she learned it was her son she made an attempt to jump in and recover the body. Both women grappled on the edge of the quarry, one trying to enter the water and the other fighting to prevent her.

Mrs. Hastings efforts were successful and as she assisted the heart broken, weakened mother back home, she felt a sharp pain.

An examination showed that somehow or other the needle had become imbedded in her flesh. Mrs. Hastings was placed on the operating table Monday and the needle removed. She has recovered from the effects of the operation.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB.

Gentlemen's night was celebrated by the club Friday evening when Albert L. Squier gave a most interesting and instructive stereopticon lecture on "In the High Places of South America." Starting form the Canal Zone, through the Panama canal down the west coast and across the continent to the Atlantic ocean, Mr. Squier held the attention of all with the beautiful illustrations and vivid descriptions of all the points visited. At the close all must have felt the absence of the Stars and Stripes as the merchant marine in these wonderful and fast growing republics.

A reception preceding the lecture during which a most excellent trio composed of Miss Olney, Miss Moorhouse and Mr. Ricker rendered many selections. Those in the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur I. Ropes, Mayor and Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Nickerson.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB. ....

Tuesday's meeting of the Quincy Women's club at the clubhouse was a delightful affair throughout; a large attendance, a charming entertainer an enjoyable musical program and a social tea, all combining in making it one of the best meetings of the season.

The president, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith presided calling for the usual business reports.

Mrs. Mellen of the Education committee told of a visit to the school for feeble minded at Waverly of which Dr. Fernald who addressed the club in November, is head. She gave a brief review of the work as she saw it. There are 1500 inmates all known by name by Dr. Fernald. Some attend school, others are in manual training, each being trained and helped according to his ability. Dr. Fernald extended an invitation to the Quincy Women's club to attend a clinic at the school and members desiring to atttend are asked to arrange with Mrs. Mellen for date and other details.

Mrs. Arnold who had the meetings in charge for the relief work for the hospitals in Northern France said a gratifying amount of work had been done and sent to Boston for shipment. The Quincy Hospital had been of great assistance. The club extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. Arnold and her committee.

1500 and there is a dearth of mechanics. A feeling of optimism pervades the entire plant and it is the general impression that the company in the near future will receive another batch of ship contracts from private firms who are making a firm and gradual effort to build up a merchant trade with foreign countries.

Many naval men have been assigned to the ship yard by the United States Navy Department as inspectors and work on the Dreadnought Nevada and submarines for this country is being done under their direction.

It has always been understood that these men have been instructed to see that there was no violation of neurality such as a shipping of submarines, and as far as can be learned they have never reported that such violations have ever existed.

It has been said that their initial report on the foreign contract was, "submarines for a foreign power—not for the United States government are being built at the shipyard."

FIVE FIRES.

The firemen were called this morning to Newcomb Square, where a livery fire was in progress among some dead leaves and grass.

Shortly after 11 o'clock the Central station auto was called to a fire in the rear of the greenhouses on Hancock street, nearly opposite Merrymount park, for a grass fire, and a few minutes later the apparatus went to a grass fire on Linden street in the rear of the Woodward school.

At 12.37 an alarm was sounded from Box 58 for a grass fire in the rear of the Joe Robertson estate on Beale street near the Milton line. While the auto chemical was at this fire a call came in for a grass fire in the vacant lot at the junction of Granite and School streets, which was extinguished by the central station combination.

HEAR FROM EXAMS.

The mail this morning contained the findings of the Civil Service examination of the recent examinations for promotion to Lieutenant and sergeant of the police department.

All of the percentages were not available. Sergt. Bishop got 88.32 in his examination for promotion and Patrolman Milford 84.99 for the sergeant's position.

Message No. 4

To the Business Men of Quincy

A young doctor, making a start in a small town, decided that to be prosperous he must look prosperous. He bought a new buggy and two good horses. Although he had only a few patients he always kept on the jump, attending to his patients' smallest needs. People began to notice this young doctor driving about town and they called him because he looked busy and prosperous. He got his start—a start that led to a comfortable practice.

Our town, like this doctor, must look prosperous to be prosperous.

Clean streets, attractive store windows, well-painted buildings and dwellings give the prosperous air. Well-painted buildings are greatest of these.

Beyer-Bauman White Lead
(Dutch Boy Painter Trade Mark)

and pure linseed oil make a most durable and protective paint that keeps buildings well painted. These materials can be mixed to suit conditions and tinted any color desired. We sell these good-paint ingredients as well as other paint necessaries. Better get in touch with us in the interests of prosperity.

GIVE PI ETA SHOW TONIGHT

Paul Blackmur, Author, Plays Title Role

"Robin the Robber," a musical comedy, will be presented by the Pi Eta society of Harvard in Quincy Music hall Thursday evening under the auspices of the Quincy Tennis club. The depression which has affected so many things theatrical appears to have left the Pi Eta show unscathed and a large number of tickets have been sold.

The piece is declared by the Harvard Crimson, whose critic saw the first performance in the Pi Eta theatre on March 19. to be the best yet in the way of college theatricals. The books is by Paul Blackmur, '15, of this city. Mr. Blackmur plays the title role of Robin, the robber chieftain. J. S. Pfaffmann, '16 also a Quincy boy, takes the part of Billie Turner, the Movie agent.

CLEANING OLD BURYING GROUND

The old Hancock cemetery is receiving the attention of workmen and dead trees and rubbish is to be removed and the doors of the tombs are to be resealed.

The work is being done under the direction of James Nicoll, superintendent of the Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The improvements are in line with recommendations made by the Board of Managers of Public Burial Places.

PAY VISIT TO BROCKTON CLUB

Several members of the Seneca Social club of South Quincy paid a visit in automobiles to the Mystic club of Brockton Tuesday night.

An entertainment was held in the rooms of the Mystic club. Allen Daw of the Senecas and several members of the entertaining club rendered solos.

The trip was taken by the committee in charge of the dance on April 16th in Alpha hall. In the party were Robert Grassick, Theodore Turier, Walter Main, William Faulkner, James Copeland, Allen Daw and Chester Moyle.

OPEN AGAIN FOR BUSINESS.

Some extra good bargains may be expected tomorrow when the store of C. E. Sherman Co., opens again for business after being closed several days on account of the fire in the block.

They have not occupied their present location very long and when moving across the street added a large stock of new goods which new facilities and ever increasing patronage demanded. This stock has been increased from time to time and at the time of the fire was one of the largest and best stock of goods carried by any dry goods store this side of Boston.

All this merchandise, much of which is only slightly damaged by smoke, is to be sacrificed to make way for new spring goods, which offers the buyers an exceptional opportunity to pick up household goods, underwear and dry goods at real bargain prices, and will find not only their regular but many new customers right on hand when the doors open. In their advertisement will be found a few of the many bargains to be offered.

MRS. CHARLOTTE S. TARBELL.

Miss Charlotte Sophia Tarbell, 78 years, who has been a long time resident of this city, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. John R. Wade on Quincy avenue Tuesday.

The funeral will take place there Thursday afternoon. Rev. William Grainger of the Christ Episcopal church will officiate at the services. Burial will be in the family lot at Randolph, Vt.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

The largest attendance that the Loyal Ladies' No. 1 O. S. C. ever had at their meeting was present Tuesday evening.

The meeting was brief to allow the cast that presented "Our Church Fair" at the First Presbyterian church again to perform for the members of the society.

AMONG THE CLUBS

mittee announced the annual Children's party at the clubhouse Saturday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock. The entertainment would be by the Dorothea Dix children of Boston. There would also be refreshments and dancing. Children would be admitted on presentation of their mother's or club members calling card, and they could also bring a guest on the payment of 25 cents.

Mrs. Pfaffmann for the Young Women's club told how happy the club was in the possession of a club home, the Adams Academy having been given over to their use, the official opening to be on Wednesday night.

A pleasing announcement was made by the president of a gift from the Music committee of the two desks and four chairs which adorned the platform. Among other announcements was a series of four charity conferences, the first of which was held at the clubhouse Monday afternoon. The others to be held on the following Mondays at 3.30, the next one at the clubhouse and the two following at Wollaston in the school hall. The Norfolk County Farm Bureau recently organized was spoken of and memberships asked for. Its scope was to encourage agricultural work, summer gardens, etc., Mrs. Kitson head of the Civics committee was a Quincy representative of the Bureau. The next speaker at the club would tell of the work. Members were asked to endorse the great peace movement by attending the mass meeting April 18 at 4 P. M. in the first Parish church, Quincy Centre when Dr. William Jay Hudson the best lecturer on the subject today would be the speaker. The Quincy Choral society would furnish the music.

Mrs. Whitcher of the Legislative committee announced that the last meeting of the parliamentary law class would be held Monday afternoon at 2.15 at the clubhouse, and would be followed by a talk by Mrs. Andrews who would tell of some of the bills and measures before the legislature. Mrs. Ray Blanchard would render violin solos and there would be a tea. It promised to be a profitable and enjoyable afternoon and members were urged to attend. Mrs. Whitcher also asked the endorsement of the club of the prison reform bill, which would prevent herding of prisoners together the old and hardened and the young, and would give an unpaid commission oversight of all prisons in the state and also county institutions. Mrs. Z. S. Arnold spoke in favor of the bill and the club voted to endorse it.

Mrs. Tenney announced the printing in leaflet form of the anniversary poem by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, which were on sale at five cents each.

The president announced several conferences and meetings by departments of the State Federation. She also read a recommendation from the new officers of the club which will be acted upon at the next meeting, as follows: "A member may serve on only one standing committee of the club." Members were invited to a sale Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. L. Crane, Whitney road by the Katharyn Crane Memorial club, to raise funds for its charitable work.

Miss Randall announced an Equal Suffrage meeting March 31 at 8 P. M. in Colonial hall.

Mrs. Blanchard of the Art and Arts and Crafts committee told of the Indian exhibition to be held at the clubhouse, when beside many articles made by the Indians there would be Panama hats, wicker window boxes and many attractive articles on sale.

The afternoon's program opened with music by the Suburban sextet, made up of Mrs. Laura McLean, Mrs Louise Smith, Miss Alice Cooper, Miss Laura Coles, Miss Vora Moore and Mrs. Grace Snow, two of whom are club members. They gave an enjoyable program. In the first group was, "The Dancing Girl and a Norwegian Slumber Song;" the second Italian melodies and the third melodies of the British Isles. The encores were frequent showing appreciation of the artists.

As anticipated the reading of "The Prince Chap" by Miss Irene Bewley was delightful, especially so when combined with such charming personality. She received the cordial approval of her audience whether in the lighter parts of the story or in the pathos so understandingly interpreted and the encores were hearty and prolonged after each scene.

A social tea brought the afternoon to a close the hostess being Mrs. Walter C. Brady and the pourers Mrs. Charles R. Safford and Mrs. Redfield H. Allen.

Rev. William H. Osmond rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Marlboro, will be the special preacher at Thursday evening's service at St. Chrysostoms church.

MAYOR GIVES BOOST TO McGREGOR BOOM

Declares Him Man For Lieutenant Governor In Banquet Speech

Alexander McGregor Also Speaker Before 1st Presbyterian Men's Club

The boom which would place Alexander MacGregor in lieutenant governor's chair was given a good sized boost Wednesday evening by Mayor Campbell in the course of his address before the First Presbyterian church Brotherhood. "Tonight you are to listen to a gentleman who has been in the Governor's council several times," said his honor, "a gentleman whose business affiliations bring him in contact with people of all classes; a gentlemen of the highest personal standing; the ideal man for Lieut. Governor this year, the man for Governor another year." The Mayors observations regarding the political future of his fellow Scotchman were greeted with great applause.

The occasion was the first annual banquet and it proved to be an evening of rare enjoyment.

The banquet was served in the vestry of the church and was partaken of by upwards of 125 men of the church. The guests of the evening were Mayor Chester I. Campbell, Alexander MacGregor, a former member of the Governor's council, Mr. Campbell of the Port of Boston Directors and Rev. A. B. McLeod formerly of Montreal, Canada, who represented the church in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Clarence W. Campbell, who has not yet returned from the south where he was called by the serious illness of his mother, who has since passed away.

Promptly at o'clock the gathering sat down to a most appetizing supper which was served by the ladies of the church, the menu including, roast beef with brown gravy mashed potatoes, spring peas, pickles, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

Music during the banquet was furnished by Provost's orchestra and the speaking which followed was interspersed with selections by the Orpheus Male quartette. There were also vocal solos by E. M. Clark.

At the conclusion of the banquet Councilman Charles A. Ross in a few words welcomed those present and introduced as the first speaker Mayor Chester I. Campbell. His honor was in a particularly happy mood and after a few opening pleasantries said:

"It was very kind of you to invite me here this evening and I assure you I appreciate the cordial greetings extended. Not only is it a pleasure to accept such a cordial invitation, but it gives your Mayor an opportunity to sort of rub elbows, so to speak, with the citizens in the various sections of our city. We have a city of which we should be proud; a great city from a historical standpoint, yet I often wonder if we fully realize it.

"Do we as citizens do our part towards advertising this city of ours" not altogether as one for great industrial opportunities, but one that is a good place to live in; one that history has placed among the cities as having furnished to the cause of Freedom and the Flag, men who did things, two men who were called to the highest office in the land. Men such as John Hancock, born in Quincy, although a Bostonian most of his life, but a comrade of John Adams, and who took a Quincy girl for a wife. A man who wrote his signature so that the then King of England could make no mistake who signed the Declaration of Independence.

"All these great and good men Quincy can boast of, as well as women of note. While Abigail Adams was born in Boston she married John Adams the first Vice President and second President of the United States, and was the mother of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of this country. John Adams was appointed to the Court of London by President Washington as the representative of the New Nation. It called for the greatest tact and diplomacy on her part, for at that time Britain was aflame against anything having the name or brand of an American. Her work there as wife of our representative won for her a world wide reputation, and it is said that to her much credit is due in bringing more cordial relationship between the Mother Country and her so-called Unruly Colony. We should feel proud that we are citizens of such a city, and let us do what we can towards keeping Quincy before the world as the one best place in this Commonwealth in which to live.

FINES HIGH SCHOOL BOY

Set Bon Fire In Yard Without Permit

Glen Arthur, 18 years, of 139 Hollis avenue and one of the High school athletes, was in court this morning charged with setting a fire without a permit. He was fined $5 and placed on probation until July 31.

Arthur was the first taken into court for violation of the new fire Hazard law. Patrolman Hollingshead, the complainant, testified that Arthur burnt rubbish in the yard of his home two feet from the rear steps.

Arthur was unaware of the new regulations, the enforcement of which has been ordered by Capt. McKay, because of the calls upon the fire department for grass and slight fires recently.

Patrolman Hollingshead has made another complaint against a Norfolk Downs young man and the case will be heard Friday. Patrolman O'Neil has made four complaints for further violation of the rules.

THROWN FROM AUTOMOBILE

John G. Whitman, superintendent of the water department, was thrown from his auto early this morning when it collided with a delivery truck of the Drake Cake Co., at Beale and Safford streets. He escaped without injury.

Mr. Whitman was driving down Beale street, in a southerly direction when his machine collided with the truck as it turned from Safford street onto Beale. The cars struck head on and he was thrown over the side. He landed on the mud guards of the truck and bounced to the ground.

The front of his machine was badly damaged.

LOSES GOLD WATCH.

Police Seek to Solve Its Disappearance.

The police have been asked to clear up the mystery surrounding the loss of the valuable diamond studded gold watch of Mrs. James Christie of 139 Bromfield street.

The watch disappeared while Mrs. Christie was a passenger on a Norfolk Downs car Wednesday afternoon. Inquiry among passengers and the crew of the car by Mrs. Christie when she discovered her loss were without results.

The watch bore the monogram "C. E. C."

APPLIES FOR DIVORCE.

Clarence H. Niles of Randolph has filed a petition in the superior court at Dedham for divorce from Mrs. Mabel B Niles of Quincy, charging unfaithfulness. They were married Jan. 29, 1911 at Nashua, N. H. and have lived at Braintree.

LENTEN SERVICES.

The regular Lenten services were held Wednesday evening in St. Mary's church. The services consisted of the recitation of the rosary by Fr. Duffy and a most eloquent sermon on "The Means of Salvation" by Rev. William J. Twoohig of St. Mark's church, Dorchester. The sermon was followed by benediction.

It was announced that the charter would be opened in May, June and July and that an invitation had been received from Brockton lodge to visit that city and attend a class initiation.

RENOVATE COURT HOUSE.

Painters Are At Work In Building Today.

John Drummond, custodian of county buildings, has ordered a renovation of the interior of the district court house and today painters are at work in the building.

The building has been in constant use since its erection several years ago. The paint of late has shown a tendency to crack and in some places is badly worn. The work will be completed within a week.

ORDERS ARREST OF 60 MEN

Judge Avery Grants Default Warrants

The wholesale arrests of all who have violated their probation has been ordered by Judge Avery at the request of Probation Officer Francis J. Fahey.

Mr. Fahey made application for default warrants this morning for upwards of 60 men who have failed to comply with the provisions of their probation.

It is probable that when the men are arraigned the court will order the probation decree vacated and impose the original sentence.

FALLS FROM CHURCH ROOF

Carpenter Suffers Fracture of Left Leg

Hilmer Johnson, 33 years, of 84 Farrington street, while doing carpenter work on the roof of the Unitarian church at Wollaston this morning, fell from the roof to the ground a distance of 25 feet and suffered a fracture of the left leg.

People who witnessed the fall ran to his assistance and medical aid was summoned. He was removed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

MUST BACK UP TO CURBSTONE

Capt. McKay of the police department inaugurated a new scheme in the arrangement of automobiles coming to city hall this morning. The custom has been for automobiles to drive up to city hall and leave their cars standing parallel with the street. The result has been that when a number of cars are left standing the street is blocked up.

The scheme of Capt. McKay put into effect this morning was for automobiles coming to city hall to back up to the curbing. In this way about twice the number of automobiles can be accommodated and there is no crowding.

DROWN—ORR.

Montclair Young People Wed This Morning.

Miss Sarah Eleanor Orr and Frederick J. Drown, residents of the Montclair district, were married at 11.30 this morning in the presence of their immediate relatives and friends

The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the Atlantic Memorial church by Rev. T. W. Davison, pastor. Miss Marion Orr was maid of honor and the bridesmaid was Miss Gladys E. Parlee. James E. Orr was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Drown held a short reception after the ceremony and then left on their wedding trip. On their return they will reside at 83 Sagamore street, Montclair.

CROWD SIDEWALKS.

The grand fire sale at C. E. Sherman's daylight store opened at 9 o'clock this morning, and at that hour there was a large crowd of women bargain hunters on the sidewalk waiting for an opportunity to get in and take up some of the bargains. So great did the crowd become that it was found necessary to close the doors and to allow but a limited number in the store at one time.

HOBSON TO SPEAK.

On Sunday April 18, there will be a National Prohibition rally at the Bethany church. The speakers will be Dr. A. C. Bain, national lecturer of the National anti-saloon league, and Congressman Richard P. Hobson of Alabama. The meeting will be held in the morning at 10.30.

HISTORIC ACADEMY REOPENS ITS DOORS

Mayor and Others Address Young Women's Club

The historic Adams Academy, abandoned several years ago as an educational centre, was reopened Wednesday evening as a Recreation Home for the girls of the city. Upwards of 300 women and girls, and a few men who are prominent in the public life of Quincy, attended the exercises held under the auspices of the Young Women's club, which has been granted the use of the building for recreation purposes

The building has been entirely renovated, the large room on the south side of the building being fitted up for gymnasium purposes and the large room on the north side of the building being called the assembly hall. The room between both will be used for class work. New heating apparatus has been installed and heat circulated through the pipes for the first time since the building was officially closed because of lack of funds.

The opening night program was of unusual interest, for not only were here speakers from the women's clubs of the city but members of the city government and civic organizations also attended.

The program included vocal solos by Mrs. James H. Slade, Miss Angela McCarthy, Miss Lora Church of the club, and John Greene. Mrs. Paul Blackmur was the accompanist of the evening. While the guests were arriving orchestra music was furnished by Miss Marion Moorhouse, cellist, Mrs. Moorhouse, pianist and Roscoe Ricker, violinist.

Assisting the committee of young women in charge of the evening were Mrs. Trask Emery, Mrs. Wison Marsh, and Mrs. George Pfaffmann, a committee of the federated cubs whose efforts resulted in the building being turned over to the girls.

The invited guests were the women who taught classes of the club and Mrs. Alice P. Delano who gave a Russian afternoon at the home of Mrs. Pfaffmann, the proceeds of which started the fund for recreation house purposes.

Frappe and fancy cakes were served at the close of the speaking by Misses Anna Lord, Ruth Dow, Marguerite Hill, Lydia Djerf, Sadie Abrams and Blanche Hayden.

One of the pleasantest features of the evening was the presentation of a basket ball and nets for the court by Miss Natalie Saville in behalf of the Katharyn Crane Memorial club. The presentation was a surprise to most of those present and the little president and club were enthusiastically applauded.

Mayor Campbell, speaker of the evening, in praising the women of Quincy spoke of the school nurse idea inaugurated by the Quincy Women's club. He said that while that organization would assume the cost for this year it was only a matter of time before the city would take it over. "It is a good thing for such an organization to put something across on the city now and then," he said, "It has a tendency to awaken it to its responsibilities."

He spoke of the department of the work of Miss Huston, overseer of the poor.

He said that in her short time in office she had visited many needy families and found many lacking a knowledge of housekeeping. He said it had been suggested that a city housekeeper be appointed to teach those needing it what is required and recommended the idea to the club.

He then mentioned the department of the overseer and said that it had always been mismanaged and misruled and that there had always been an utter lack of discipline at the City Home. He said he believed all of these things were now being remedied.

The Mayor's address in part follows:

"I am indeed very glad to be here and extend to you all the greetings and good wishes of this great city. Great in so many ways—historically, industrially, and as a City of Homes. To me, the first and last are the most important: Historically and Home Life.

"As I stand here tonight I cannot but think of what this building and these grounds stand for. Right here more work and thought was given to the preparation of the Declaration of Independence than even when that group of men got together and signed the document now known as the Declaration of Independence. For we read that John Adams and John Hancock did much towards shaping public opinion and bringing the work to such a point that final action was taken.

"It was on this very spot of land that John Hancock was born, and it was here that John Adams came. While it is true that Mr. Hancock lived in Boston after he became a young man, yet it is also true that a well worn path was made across yonder field to Miss Dorothy's house.

"Again, it was a Quincy woman to have the honor of being the first mistress of the White House, for it was Abigail Adams, the wife of John Adams and mother of John Quincy Adams, who had that honor.

"Again, it was the same Abigail Adams who went with her husband to the Court of St. James as representative of the new nation, and through her diplomacy, wit and humor, she did more to bring about cordial relationship between England and America than any other person. We owe much to Abigail Adams.

"Women have done and are doing much for our city. It is a great pleasure for me to note the varied and good work which they undertake for the good of the community. Their co-operation with the Associated Charities, their various suggestions for the betterment of existing conditions, their classes in various lines of work and their most generous gift for a school nurse, are all of such importance that not one should be overlooked.

"The work which an organization of the character of this club can do is tremendous. The gathering together of the young women of the city on a basis to further their well-being is one that should receive the support of every well meaning citizen, and I can assure you of my cordial co-operation It is certainly a matter to be proud of to think that the Academy, with all its romances, should be taken over—so to speak—by the young women of our city. It is certainly an action on the part of the young women that the city should be proud of. We are proud of our women, and I heartily congratulate you all on the business-like way and manner in which you have handled your organization."

President Miss Minnie Packard, who

A VICIOUS CUSTOM

Among the disheartening features of politics is the working of the spoils system. For 32 years Joseph M. Hollywood was postmaster of Brockton. An eloquent tribute to his ability and faithfulness in that office is paid him by the Brockton Enterprise:

"The retiring postmaster, Joseph M. Hollywood, will take with him on retirement the knowledge that the city realizes that he has given Brockton in his thirty-two years of service as postmaster service of the best quality. Under his charge the business of the office has grown mightily. The duties have become more and more onerous, but have found Mr. Hollywood ever equal to the situation, growing with the growth of his office, now one of the most important in New England. As he looks over the office of to-day, with its sub-stations and its spreading out and growth, in all directions, the office when he took it must seem like a toy to Mr. Hollywood by contrast yet Brockton was no mean city when he first took up the reins. It has been a long and valuable service which Mr. Hollywood has performed, and he will take with him into retirement the cheerful knowledge that he has done his duty ably and well, has worked long and hard, and has not spared himself. His steady devotion to duty has been notable; he has been right on the ground nearly all the time, closely in touch with the details as well as the broader general affairs of the office. The people of Brockton will wish him every success in his future career."

Mr. Holywood has been superceded Why? Not because he was not efficient, but rather because he was a republican and the national administration is democratic. Ex-Congressman Edward Gilmore becomes postmaster. Mr. Gilmore is an able man but no one would seriously contend that his experience as a grocer and a politician fits him for the office as did Mr. Hollywood's third of a century of faithful service. Mr. Gilmore is a democratic politician, nothing more, and a vicious custom, for which republicans are as responsible as democrats, gave him the office because "To the victor belongs the spoils."

RECOGNIZES ITS VALUE.

A major in rural journalism has been authorized for the Massachusetts Agricultural college. The Trustees Committee on Faculty and Course of Study at a recent meeting, voted that such a major be established in accordance with plans outlined by Prof. Robert W. Neal. The new major will be effective, beginning with the fall semester, 1915, under the direction of Professor Neal.

"A major in rural journalism," said Professor Neal, "is a natural development in our college. M. A. C. has come to look upon agriculture as inseparably bound up with the economic and social life of the country and the small town. To deal with any one of these interests is to deal with all of them. Thus the agricultural colleges are compelled to concern themselves, not with farming as an isolated industry, but with country life as a whole."

A good many sneers have been cast at the country weekly and the editor has long been the butt of would-be humorists but there can be no question that, even the poorest of the journals have been of benefit to their communities Find a town without a weekly paper and you have found one of the most benighted and uninteresting of places. The country editor and his paper has been a real force for good in American life. It is pleasing to note that the Massachusetts Agricultural college has recognized this fact.

An eminent psychologist says everyone has at least one superstition. The Somerville Journal evidently agrees for in its last issue appears the following: "Most of the people who don't believe there is any such thing as luck believe firmly in bad luck."

LOCAL BUILDING STILL BOOMING

Dwellings and Business Blocks Going Up Throughout City

W. QUINCY NOT SO ACTIVE

That building is booming in Quincy as has been noted several times in the Ledger will be borne out by a visit to the Wollaston Park and Atlantic district. In this section at the present time there are upwards of 25 dwelling houses in the process of building.

Then again on Hancock street near the corner of Beale street ground had been broken by S. T. Wyman for a large store. Several lots have recently been sold on the old Faxon estate on Beale street and Lora C. Merrill has commenced active work in altering the old stable on the lot into a tenement house. It is also said that Cushing street is to be extended from Beale street to Woodbine street which will furnish access to property in this vicinity upon which it is expected building will soon commence.

It is also said that Mrs. Frances Schroeder is about to commence work on the erection of an $8,000 house in the vicinity of Hancock and Beale streets.

Coming up to the centre it is understood that Henry M. Faxon is to erect a block of stores on the west side of Hancock street between the Music hall block and the Kincaide theatre, and that he contemplates cutting a street through from Hancock street so as to open up the property in the rear between Hancock street and the railroad tracks.

Mr. Faxon is also erecting several houses on Miller Stile road, near the Miller Stile Inn, and he also contemplates the erection of two dwellings on Whitwell street near the corner of Granite street.

There is also some new building at West Quincy but not as much as in the northerly part of the city. At Quincy Point there is a little doing and that part of the city known as the Penn's hill district toward Braintree is building up very fast.

Down on Newport avenue between Adams street and Beale street Henry L. Kincaide has erected four dwellings on the westerly side of Newport avenue. These houses it is understood were built for investment and not for rental. They are medium size houses, attractive and situated on high ground.

Some idea of what is being done in the new building line may be had when it is known that thus far this year the water department of the city has made 56 new connections with dwellings.

AUTO CLIMBS BARN WALL

Walter Packard's electric runabout attempted a barnclimbing stunt recently.

The machine was run into the barn by Mr. Packard. Through some defect the current did not shut off when the plug was pulled and the car headed for the rear wall.

Brakes were unsuccessfully applied and the front wheels commenced to climb. When the machine was almost perpendicular the front spring caught and held the car upright after the power was cut out.

Mr. Packard narrowly escaped being thrown out. With the assistance of Patrolmen Farrell and Corbett the machine was taken down.

ALL DAY SEW.

The Ladies Society of the Wollaston Congregational church met in the vestry of the church Wednesday for an all day sewing session. At noon a lunch was served, which was in charge of Mrs. Hathaway and Mrs. Embleton. In the afternoon a short business session was held which was followed by a food sale. There was a good attendance.

WOMAN'S ALLIANCE MEETS.

The Womans alliance of the Wollaston Unitarian church met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Frank A. Page on Grand View avenue. The entire afternoon was given up to sewing for the hospital and for the Belgians.

State House News

The committee on education will give a public hearing within a few days on a bill to establish university conditions and correspondence school courses under the auspices of the Commonwealth. The State Board of Education and an advisory committee of prominent educators and others appointed by the Governor have been at work on the matter for some time.

Congressman Tinkham appeared before the committee on banks and banking recently in support of his bill which forbids officers or directors of any trust company to make a profit out of transactions of the trust company with which he is connected. Mr. Tinkham says that it is wrong to allow a director to make a personal profit out of a deal which he as director, advised the trust company to make. Former State Treasurer Stevens, and some bankers and trust companies appeared in opposition.

The House has accepted the adverse report of the committee on rules on E. Gerry Brown's request for a legislative investigation of his removal as supervisor of small loans by Governor Walsh and the 1914 Council.

Mayor Curley and representatives of the city law department and the city health department urged the committees on public health to report a bill forbidding the use of chemical preparations in the making of bread. Corporation Counsel Sullivan says that plaster of paris is not put into bread to improve its condition or to improve the health of the public.

A clever bit of politics has been pulled off in the Senate. The Committee on Constitutional Amendments had reported to the Senate adversely on the initiative and referendum. Now a committee report must be accepted by both branches of the legislature, whereas a bill or resolve if killed in either branch, is thoroughly dead without action by the other. The Senate accordingly, in the present instance, substituted a resolve for the adverse report and then killed the resolve, thus saving the House the embarrassment of having to vote upon the matter.

The surprise of the week was the Senate voting to overturn the adverse committee report on the proposition to make New Year's a legal holiday.

LEAVES HOSPITAL.

James H. Lalley who has been at the City Hospital for several weeks as a result of a fracture to his hip received by a fall at the parochial residence of St. John's church was removed to his home on Edison street Wednesday. It will be some weeks yet however before he is able to be about.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

GOLDEN CROSS HOLD MEETING

Dorothy Quincy commandery, United Order of the Golden Cross, held its regular meeting in Franklin hall Wednesday evening, over forty being present.

The society voted not to hold a meeting on the 14th of April, which was to be the regular meeting night, because of the Division 5, A. O. H. ball which will require both Quincy Adams and Franklin halls on that evening.

The society is planning on a social to take place after the April 28th meeting, the committee in charge of the affair being Michael Griffin, Helen Connors and Bessie Burke.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A pretty birthday party was given Monday evening to the Misses Mildred and Maud Jones at their home, 58 River street in honor of their 14th birthday. Games were played and piano solos were rendered by the Misses Irene Pitts, Agnes Mathieson, Ellen Wright and Helen Jones. Refreshments were served and all had a pleasant time.

Those present were the Misses Florence Huber, Doris Jones, Helen Jones Jessie Marr, Mabel Marr, Bessie Graham, Jessie Graham, Katie Graham, Ellen Wright, Lillian Dorley, Jeanette Barrows, Agnes Mathieson, Edith Lee, Marjorie Mayer, Maggie Robertson, Annie Robertson, Grace Robertson, Irene Pitts, Margaret Pitts, Ethel Jones, Albert Jones, Irving Dorley, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Huber.

FIRE UNDER CAR.

The Brockton car due in Quincy Square at 7.15 P. M. developed a hot box which took on fire at the corner of School and Franklin streets at about 7.15 P. M. Wednesday night. The fire was quickly extinguished by sand. The car was stailed, however, until the car from East Milton due at Quincy Square at 7.30 P. M. arrived and pushed it to the centre.

Anyone having a house, farm, cottage or desirably located land for sale or exchange, or a summer place to rent for the season, will do well to secure advertising space in this issue, for it will have a wide circulation among interested people all over the United States.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Editor of the Ledger:

In discussing the question of the wisdom or the unwisdom of woman suffrage, the type of woman to be considered is not the woman of leisure, restless to find some avenue for her activities; nor the spectacular woman, the woman of cross-country hikes, of street parades, of soapbox oratory; nor the young woman fresh from college, who has not yet found herself, nor had time to appraise fairly the values of life; but the average, normal woman.

The average woman of the home is busy—in most cases happily busy—with the cares of home and the rearing of her children. She has no sympathy with "ten minutes a day housekeeping," nor the advocacy of "state nurseries for children." It is no kindness to ask her to assume a part of man's work in addition to her own. Her interests, as far as legislation is concerned, are far better protected, on the average, in male suffrage states than in equal suffrage states. The suffrage is in no sense a right; it is not a privilege; it is, first of all, an obligation—and not an obligation which can be met, as the suffragists lightly assert by dropping a piece of paper in a box on the way to market.

The great majority of American women do not want the ballot—the suffragists admit this, saying, "The majority never wants a progressive measure." In other words the majority must have the burdens of suffrage thrust upon them because the small and noisy minority thinks that suffrage is a progressive measure. In Massachusetts the Woman Suffrage Association claims a membership of 40,000. But the women of the state, of voting age, number more than 1,100,000. Shall the principle of the control of the majority prevail?

If space did not prohibit I should like to bring to your attention the names of the women who make up the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association from the president who has been for many years on the State Board of Charities, a manager of a large private hospital, through a list of disinterested, public spirited women, who give their time and strength freely to charities and philanthropies and measures for public welfare, without any thought of recognition or public preferment.

They oppose woman suffrage because they believe it to be a menace both to women and to the state, to thrust women into the strife of politics and load them with men's responsibilities.

Ira N. Marsh.
Chairman of the Anti-Suffrage Association of Quincy.

Editor of the Ledger:

One could not help being impressed by the men who came from out of town Tuesday to attend the funeral of the late Charles Francis Adams. They were truly impressive in their quiet dignity as they passed into the church and took their seats. Here we had what might well be declared some of the best men that New England had produced during the 19th century.

One did not have to refer to history or biography to learn what manner of men these were. One glance at them would satisfy any observing person that they were men of thought and action,—men whose hearts, shoulders and heads were well fitted for carrying heavy responsibilities.

The thought that occurred to me was this: Will our country continue to produce such men,—the big, silent, forceful individuals? Let us at any rate hope so.

PARCEL POST AUCTION.

Unique Entertainment at Universalist Church Sale.

A largely attended and most successful sale and entertainment was held Tuesday evening by the women of the Universalist church, the affair being held in the vestry of the church. The entertainment included selections by an orchestra, a vocal solo by Miss Rebecca Andrews and a humorous sketch by Harry Slade and Miss Minnie Packard.

In addition to the entertainment there was a sale of ice cream and home made candy, fancy articles and a parcel post table. Mrs. F. A. Harris had charge of the fancy table, Mrs. Walter Andrews the ice cream and Mrs. Clara Hyland the candy table.

The parcel post table, which was in charge of Mrs. Charles Green, was a novel affair and netted quite a sum. The ladies of circle had written to friends all over the United States requesting them to send some package by parcel post for this feature. The result was that a large number of packages were received coming from many places in the United States. It required two carts in which to transport them about the vestry to the table where they were placed on sale.

When it came time for this feature of the evening to take place Miss Mildred Stoddard, dressed to represent one of Uncle Sams letter carriers, came into the room with the two wagons and after marching about the audience, she reached a table on one side of the room where the articles were placed. The packages were sold at auction, and then opened by the purchaser.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

Among the books lately added to the library are three very helpful ones on the art of selling. The first, "Salesmanship and business efficiency", by James Samuel Knox, is one which is filled with good general advice not only for the salesman and others engaged in business, but also for anyone seeking to develop his personality in the best possible way. Each paragraph in this book is separated from the others in such a way as to make it stand out, and on whichever paragraph the eye rests, one will be sure to find some very terse and comprehensive statement of wise advice. Thus it is not necessary to read the book through to get a great deal of help from it.

The second book is "Human nature in selling goods", by James H. Collins. This begins by showing what the salesmanship of to-day is, and goes on to explain some of the difficulties which the salesman will meet, and also gives instructions as to how to meet and overcome them.

The last of the three is "Salesmanship for women", by Adelaide Benedict-Roche, which is "a complete analysis of the fundamental principals of salesmanship, and a discussion of sales principles as womankind should apply them". The aim of this book as stated by the author is to supply the deficiency in books "specifically applicable to woman's selling problems". In it she seeks to show that women are especially qualified for this work and to tell them what requirements are most neeeded in this field

INFORMATION ON CENSUS.

The schools have been supplied with copies of the Governor's proclamation relative to the census to be taken in April, together with a sample of the question forms to be used and a brief history of the census and an explanation of its use.

The Governor has asked that in public schools, the children receive instruction as to the census in order that the matter may be brought to the attention of the homes especially where the fathers and mothers are foreign born.

One great obstacle to an accurate census is the suspicion in which it is held by certain foreign nationalities. Many of these people, especially those who have fled to this country to avoid persecution at home, hold the census taker in distrust and avoid answering properly the questions which are asked them. A thorough discussion of the census in school is designed to help to obviate this difficulty.

EVENING SCHOOL

It is planned to have brief public exercises at the close of the term of the Adams evening school next month. The School Committee and the Mayor will be invited to be present and speak and the evening school certificates will be publicly awarded. A number of those in attendance have made such progress that their "Illiterate" labor certificates will now be cancelled and a certificate of literacy given.

O'KEEFE IS COMING

The Superintendent of Schools has been notified that Fire Commissioner O'Keefe of the Metropolitan district will soon come to Quincy to inspect the school buildings, the exits therefrom and the means of giving fire signals and carrying out fire drills.

The Wollaston Parent-Teachers association is planning to give a series of entertainments in the school hall for the purpose of supporting the Free Kindergarten which is conducted in the school building.

The associated charities is also planning two conferences open to the public, to be held in the same hall on an afternoon early in April, for the purpose of discussing health topics with mothers.

At a meeting of the grammar masters yesterday afternoon, Dr. Diehl of the Board of Health explained the new rules of his department. As there have been some changes from the rules existent last year, his explanation was of considerable interest.

HISTORIC ACADEMY

presided, welcomed the guests and just before the speaking closed expressed the hearty and deeep felt thanks of the Young Women's club to those who were instrumental in getting the building for recreation purposes.

Mrs Wilson Marsh president of the Federation of Women's clubs spoke of the value of the home and the opportunity offered girls who had freedom and independence but no opportunity for recreation.

Edith M. House of Boston, president of the Massachusetts association of Women Workers, said she represented 35 organizations similar to the Young Women's club and that all aided in developing fair play and good judgment. She spoke of the desire for a home by most clubs and of the ideal qualities of the academy building, surpassed by none, she said, in the state. She said the motto should be "to have and to share". Many girls without the social training will be shy and backward but the success of having anything is sharing it with others and she recommended the growth of a community spirit.

Mrs. Herbert Gurney of the Wollaston Woman's club and instructor in dramatic art of the club, spoke in a happy vein. A favorite with the girls, her few words were kindly and inspiring. She said creation was the greatest thing in the world and that recreation was next. Real recreation she said is making the place refreshing and strengthening to body and soul and spirit. Our recreation house cannot be refreshing until we make it so to others.

"William Sayward, aroused the curiosity of those present when he said that he selected his subject by cutting a pack of cards on which topics were written. The subject, he announced after some entertaining delay, was "Some of the advantages of having been on earth longer than someone else".

He asked all to retain their expectant spirit and said it was not necessary to lose it as the years roll by. "Life," he said "is really made up of getting acquainted with women and in it one has one of the greatest experiences that can come to anyone. Women's clubs offer such opportunities and in getting acquainted with others people become acquainted with themselves".

He recommended a study of faces and said if it is done in the right spirit people will find the spark which answers all of the mysteries of life. In closing he said there is a lot of fun in life if you find the spirit in others.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of the Women's club, the mother club of the younger organization, touched on the happiness of the members of the mother club that the girls had a home, and she said that her club, like real mothers, was always ready to receive the girls back if the time ever came when they were unable to shoulder the burdens now imposed on them. She spoke of the fine work accomplished in the building when it was a prep school and asked that the standard be maintained.

After the excercises there was a social hour during which the building was examined by those present.

ENTERTAINMENTS FOR EASTER TIME

Lenten Meditations May Take a Trend Toward Easter Festivities and the Best Way to Entertain One's Guests Upon That Feast Day.

LENT is a dull season for the hostess, with the exception of the mi-careme festivities, which do something to enliven the penitential season. Holy week calls for perfect quiet in the world of social activity, but with Easter comes a rejuvenated set of entertainers, with enlivened minds and rested bodies, to enter into the fray.

A large part of Easter entertaining takes the form of luncheons or dinners, and attractively decorated tables are the demand of the day.

Eggs, chickens and rabbits are the signs of Easter, and these may be used to make most charming Easter table decorations. One table may be decorated entirely with eggs, real or imitation, in the following way: For a centerpiece a cluster of ferns may be arranged in a dish made to resemble a jagged eggshell. These dishes may be purchased in almost any store around Easter time.

At each plate colored imitation eggs may be placed. These eggs open and are filled with little candy Easter eggs. The menu for a table decorated with eggs should contain eggs in as many forms as possible. Eggs Benedictine may take the place of the first, and for a vegetable spinach with eggs on the side carries out the color scheme excellently.

Egg shaped sherbet cups are not uncommon and will heighten the effect. Dishes with a yellow touch are quite in the picture, and yellow candle shades on the candelabra complete the whole.

A "bunny" table is charming for a children's party, and even grownups would enjoy it. The centerpiece is a large sized rabbit, from which various colored ribbons lead to the plates. At each place a little furry bunny filled with candy bears a card telling who is to take this particular seat.

These bunnies are attached by ribbons to the big one in the center. The ribbons enter the neck of the big one where the head fits on to the rest of the body. When the dessert course comes the child who is acting as hostess may remove the big bunny head and tell each little guest to pull her ribbon in turn. These ribbons are attached to large chocolate marshmallow eggs wrapped in colored tissue paper and bearing the name of the child to whose ribbon it is attached.

The chocolate eggs when placed inside the big bunny with the head closed tight are quite invisible to the little guests, and the subsequent pulling of the ribbons affords an element of surprise which all children love.

Afterward, if desirable, some game may be played with the big rabbit as the prize. An excellent game for such an occasion and one that children dearly love is "hunt the peanut," substituting candy eggs for the peanuts.

To those who do not know this very old game it may be said that peanuts or candy eggs are hidden in every available corner of the room before the guests arrive, and then the one who finds the greatest number wins the prize.

Ignore Your Nerves.

No one can help feeling nervous at times in this age of rush and racket, but it is quite possible to put on the brake, as it were, and not let the nerves run away with us.

If people fret you it is not necessary to be rude to them. Try instead to avoid them.

Don't read books that irritate you. Books are plentiful; therefore put away the offending volume and choose another.

If a noise at night worries you don't let it continue to do so. Get up and see to the matter and put it right.

Don't let yourself get into the habit of being bored. It is not worth while. When you feel it coming on plunge at once into some task that will take all your time and energy. It is better to run away from certain things than to let them irritate you. Such martyrdom is usually unnecessary and bad for you all round.

MODISH MOIRE COAT.

A Fabric Which Is Recurrently Fashionable Shown In New Guise.

FANCIFUL EASTER STYLE.

The coat shown in this illustration is built of black silk moire. It is cut with rippling skirt, the ripples mostly at the sides. The sleeves are long and full, the fullness held in at the wrists by narrow bands of silk braid. The collar is of white satin cut sailor fashion and trimmed with braid. The jaunty hat is of white tagal straw ornamented with a wreath of red cherries.

SILK FRUITS FOR TRIMMING.

Make Them at Home and Cut Down the Cost.

Silk fruit in pale colors, silk fruit in intense colors or, for that matter, silk fruit in any color will continue to be a most popular trimming this spring. Purchased at a shop, the prices are prohibitive for many girls; but, made at home, the cost is proportionately nothing.

Circles of silk or kid, firmly packed with cotton and drawn up snug, is the recipe. Add a French knot, drawing the silk thread all the way through the fruit so that it flattens it correctly, and fasten the thread tightly to the other side, or, in gold or green silk or some contrasting color, work a tiny circle in chain stitch (before filling with cotton); then fill and draw up the cover. In the center of the circle place a French knot and tighten firmly to the opposite side.

Laces to Be Used.

Nets, first of all, in the all over laces will be in great demand for dresses and accessories for the smartest of spring and summer frocks. The nets of great modish prominence are the fillets. Those samples already received from foreign markets are supplemented by those of domestic manufacture, which compare very favorably with the foreign product. For instance, in those which duplicate the weave of Brussels nets the imitation is perfect. In those where pearled edges are desirable factors even these are accomplished.

Combinations of chantilly and fillet are to be featured. These will be especially desired in white, ecru and in black. Black applique laces will be in vogue.

HOUSEHOLD SPICE.

A man cannot serve two masters even when he's master of his own house.

Did you ever hear of a woman being so absentminded that she forgot her own trouble?

Don't try to be happy without making others happy. Only way.

A woman's fears are always ahead of danger.

The kitchen is the chief temple wherein we worship, its roaring fire is our vestal flame, and the cook is our great high priest.

Love is a fire, but you have to keep putting fresh chips on it to keep it going. If you don't somebody else will.

Don't trust a girl, however pretty, if her heart is as cold as a dog's nose.

The more polite two women are to each other the less they love each other.

The wise wife never insists on having her way. She merely takes it and says nothing.

"What do the suffragettes want, anyhow?" "We want to sweep the country, dad." "Well, do not despise small beginnings. Suppose you make a start with the dining room, my dear."

MAYOR GIVES BOOST

"Your district is ably represented in the council by your presiding officer. As you of course know, he is chairman of that very important committee of fire and police. Both of these departments are most important to the welfare and success of the city as a whole. While negotiations are under way for the improvement of the fire alarm system, yet I feel safe in saying that all things considered I believe Quincy has one of the best fighting squads in the state. Since the first of March the department has answered 160 calls of an average of seven every twenty-four hours. Many of these have been grass fires, but many times they are difficult to manage.

"Our police department has been recently reorganized to some extent as you know, and there has been splendid improvement. Men now feel that they will be given full credit for their service. As I stated to them in a recent 'sermonette' which I gave them at roll call, their routes were not designed as 'pleasure jaunts' or 'lover's lanes,' they were laid out for work, and careful watching was expected of them. If they gave it they would be given proper credit, if not they would be called to account. I believe they are trying to give their best and so long as they do I shall do my part in assisting them.

"This grand old commonwealth of ours has had many well learned, clear-headed business men at its helm. It has been steered as a rule in a good, safe, course, but at times in years past we have felt that although the captain in charge was capable, the mate did not measure up to the standard we believed was required for advancement to the highest office which the citizens of this commonwealth can bestow. There seems to be but little doubt that this fall will see one of two great statesmen elected to the office of Governor, and while I am free to admit that in my opinion either one of these gentlemen who are seeking the Republican nomination will be an honor to our state if elected. I sometimes feel that we look too lightly on the nominee for the "Mate" or Lieut. Governor. I think I am safe in saying this has been the case on several occasions in the past, hence let us consider.

Alexander MacGregor, a former member of the Governor's council was the next speaker introduced and he received a most cordial greeting.

In opening Mr. MacGregor said that he regretted that Mayor Campbell had been obliged to leave early for he understood that he was going to be a member of the Governor's council next year and he wanted to give him a few points. The speaker then gave a most interesting and illuminating address on the beginning and workings of the Council. He spoke of the first charter of the Massachusetts Bay Company when the executive department consisted of the governor, deputy governor, and sixteen councillors. From that day to this the Council has exerted a great and far-reaching influence over the affairs of the commonwealth.

Mr. MacGregor particularly dwelt on the charitable institutions of the state, the money which was practically wasted in the purchase of the East Boston flats, land which is now lying idle with no definite improvement or development in sight. He also said he unreservedly favored biennial elections and that the state would reap a great benefit if the wasteful and unnecessary stirring up of passions, prejudices and animosities, resulting from the annual elections, could be done away with. He also pointed out that the building of the dry dock would entail an expenditure of $5,000,000 instead of the $1,800,000 called for in the appropriation and that he considered it unwise for the state to undertake a work of such magnitude during the present business conditions brought about by the European war.

Mr. MacGregor closed his remarks with quoting Senator Lodge's "Tribute to Massachusetts."

Mr. Campbell of the Directors of the Port of Boston commended Mr. MacGregor as a business man and not as a politician.

Alfred Bishop and Rev. A. B. MacLeod spoke briefly of the need of men in church work. The last speaker of the evening was ex-Councilman Alexander Clark who extended an invitation to the men to come to the reception next Wednesday evening and get acquainted with their new pastor, Rev. Mr. Campbell whom he regretted was unable to be present on this occasion.

The evening was brought to a close with all joining in singing the Doxology.

CITY HALL NOTES

The City Council committee on streets has a meeting scheduled for Friday evening. The committee has a large amount of business, which has been referred to it and plans will probably be made at this meeting for a trip about the city to see the streets which are asked to be accepted as well as those streets for which an appropriation has been asked for rebuilding.

The special committee of the council appointed to investigate the water department meets this evening with Mayor Campbell in the Mayor's office. A meeting of the committee on gas and electric lights of the Board of Trade is also scheduled to be held at city hall.

The Committee on fire department matters of the City Council plans a trip by automobile to some of the fire houses north of Boston Sunday to look at motor fire apparatus.

FIRE IN NEW HOUSE

Seven was the total number of calls received by the fire department Wednesday. Most of these calls came in the morning and were noted in yesterday's Ledger.

The other calls were at 4.20 for a grass fire near the city bath house in Quincy Point and an alarm from Box 152 at 3.57. This latter was for a fire in a house in the process of building on Royal street. There were a lot of painters rags and papers in one of the rooms and while the workmen were absent from the room the fire started. The fire was confined to this room. The hard wood floor was scorched and the varnish on the sides of the room blackened. The loss will not be over $100.

BRIEFS

The regular meeting of the school committee will be held in the rooms next Tuesday evening.

It is understood that Councilman Frank F. Prescott is soon to remove from Bigelow street to Wollaston.

Q. H. S. TENNIS OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Quincy High school's tennis outlook is particularly bright. Arthur Favreau who won the junior State tennis championship will again be with the squad.

Captain Willard Crocker who suffered a knee injury during the basket ball season and could not play the entire schedule is in fair condition. His knee is mending slowly and it is barely possible that he will be able to enter the game.

Thomas Barstow, manager of the team will be available and Carl Pfaffmann, a freshman, will also be a candidate. Pfaffmann last summer showed good possibilities. Several new men have signified their intention of coming out for the team.

OBJECTS TO MR. THOMAS.

Declares He Is Not Resident of Milton.

Arthur L. Thomas, a local attorney, was the centre of a heated debate before the selectmen of the town of Milton Thursday evening when he appeared as counsel for East Milton residents who opposed the construction of a public garage on the McDonnell land on Adams street, opposite the Hodges Drug Co.

His appearance was protested by John Morgan of the Morgan Construction Co., which has petitioned for permission to build the garage, on the ground that he was not a resident of the town.

Mr. Thomas replied that that was correct but that he represented a number of people who were included in the 80 people of the immediate vicinity who opposed the petition.

The board dismissed the objections of Mr. Morgan and at the close of the hearing took the petition under advisement.

SHARP PRACTICE.

Isn't it rather sharp practice on the part of our National administration to wait until Congress adjourns before removing Republican postmasters whose terms of service under their commissions have yet a few months to run or reappointing as ad interim incumbents men whose nominations had been rejected by the Senate. Such acts only prove eventually to be boomerange affairs.—Taunton Herald.

ROGERS WINS POOL SERIES

Defeats Josephine 100 to 83 In Final Game

The final game in the pool series for the championship of Quincy was won by Rogers, the West Quincy shark. The game was played at The Alpha hall pool parlors before a large audience. Rogers played his best game and had confidence all through the match while Josephine was away off his usual form and missed many easy shots. The game opened with the men playing nearly even but after the third rack Rogers took a lead of about ten points which seemed to take the heart out of Josephine and he could not overcome the lead. The final score was 100 to 83.

Gardner, the Braintree player, sent a challenge to the winner to play a series of games for a purse of money. After the game Rogers stated that he would be pleased to meet Mr. Gardner at any time on any table. It now looks as though there would be several other players who would like to meet Rogers here in this city. The series between Rogers and Gardner will be arranged this week.

WINNER ROLLS ONLY 296

There were 28 men in the weekly rolloff at the Wardwell alleys Wednesday evening. Although the entry list was the largest of the season Matty Nicolls won the event with the smallest score of the season, 296. The other winners were Peter Morton 288, A. Riley 286, R. Mahoney 285, Stevens 278. Special prize for high single went to Dr. Hoy.

RUSSIANS MOVE ON CARPATHIANS

Plan to Hurl Thousands Toward Hungary

AUSTRIANS GETTING BUSY

Bring Up Reinforcements In Effort to Check Czar's Troops In Mountains—Germans Start New Offensive In North Poland—Austria Not Quite Ready to Seek Peace Terms—German Submarine Base Destroyed by Airships—Quiet In West—Forcing of Dardanelles Will Prove a Difficult Operation

London, March 25.—Russia's supreme attack against Austria has begun.

One of the most desperate battles of the war in the east is raging along the entire western Carpathian front from Sandee, below Cracow, to the Uzsok pass. Official dispatches indicate that the Russians, evidently stimulated by their great victory at Przemysl, have joined into one great army the several forces that have been fighting for nearly a month at the various passes, the new united front being many miles long.

Thousands of the Russian soldiers released by the fall of Przemysl are hurrying southward to back up the army already in the Carpathians, and it is estimated that within forty-eight hours there will be fully 500,000 of the czar's troops hurling themselves toward the plains of Hungary.

It is apparent that the Austrians, knowing that it is only a question of time when this avalanche of Russian veterans will descend upon them, have brought up reinforcements with the object of trying to check the czar's forces in the mountains. Failing this they face the overrunning of Hungary, with Budapest in danger.

Germans Busy In North Poland

Simultaneously the Germans have started a new offensive in northern Poland, evidently with a view to distract Russian attention from the Austrian frontier as much as possible.

A desperate battle is developing on the banks of the Narew and Orzyc rivers, just east of the East Prussian frontier, and, according to official Petrograd statements, is being most bitterly fought. The Germans, it is stated, have brought up reinforcements here at the expense of their other fronts, the new troops presumably having been moved from East Prussia and from the right bank of the Vistula.

They are fighting stubbornly, and even the reports of Grand Duke Nicholas admit that they are pouring a deadly fire into the opposing Russian forces. New and vigorous counter-attacks are being opened, and it is apparent that General von Hindenberg is doing everything in his power to counterbalance the blow to the Teutonic allies caused by the loss of Przemysl.

Germans Claim Victory

Berlin reports of the fighting here say that in actions northwest of Ostrolenka the Germans captured more than 2500 Russian prisoners, including twenty officers, with five machine guns.

Berlin also continues to insist that the Russians looted Memel in northern East Prussia, and says German troops have effectually cleared all Russians from this section, being assisted by German warships in the Baltic, which shelled all the roads over which the Russians were retreating.

One of the most interesting unofficial developments is the report from the Exchange Telegraph's correspondent at The Hague saying that he has learned through diplomatic sources that Austria is endeavorng to arrange a separate peace through the Vatican.

It is only a report. While it is believed this will be true a little later, as the Hapsburg dynasty seeks to save its dual kingdom, it is not yet quite ready.

German Base Destroyed

The British admiralty made the announcement that a British air raid on Hoboken, three miles outside of Antwerp, had caused destruction of the German submarine base at that point. Five aviators started from Dunkirk, but only two of them reached the goal, two turning back on account of thick weather, and a third being compelled by engine trouble to land in Holland, where he was interned.

On the western line events have not been abundant nor important, following the habit of the last few days. The most serious fighting apparently was in the vicinity of Hartsmannsweiler Kopf in Alsace, where both sides claim the advantage.

In Champagne there were some artillery duels and on the extreme western end of the line the Belgians are reported to have again advanced on the right bank of the Yser. Along much of this western line the spring floods may be expected to seriously interfere with the fighting for the next two or three weeks.

Hard Job Ahead

Witnesses of the desperate attempt of the fleet of the allies last week to smash its way through the straits into the Sea of Marmora are of the opinion that the forcing of the Dardanelles without the aid of land forces is impossible.

Consequently it is expected that the allies will endeavor to land troops for a second time on the peninsula of Gallipoli to co-operate with the fleet, which has renewed the bombardment of the forts.

The giant superdreadnought Queen Elizabeth again steamed into the channel, accompanied by other battleships and by a fleet of mine sweepers, and from time to time discharged shots from her big 15-inch guns. Bad weather forced an early suspension of the operations. Thus far the damage to the forts has not beeen great.

The resumption of activities was the first definite action on the part of the fleet since the sinking of the Bouvet and two British battleships last week.

Many Ships Crippled

In addition to the ships lost, several others were severely crippled by the accurate fire of the forts. One torpedo boat destroyer was sent to the bottom with the three battleships, and it is reported that three torpedo boats went as well. A battleship which managed to escape was so badly riddled by the fire from the shore batteries that it was left almost in a sinking condition.

The attack on the straits, which resulted in losses so heavy for the offensive, lasted seven hours. At times the fire from the warships was most severe, and the sound of the cannonading was terrific.

Throughout the action the Turkish troops acquitted themselves splendidly. Exploding shells at times threw earth and debris from the fortifications over the men, almost burying them, but they maintained their positions.

GERMANS INSULTED

Swiss Said to Have Indulged In Hisses and Window Smashing

"In future no self-respecting German will expose himself to insults of the rabble by whom German money never has been despised but to whom the German people are so repugnant," says the Cologne Gazette.

This utterance was inspired by reports of numerous anti-German demonstrations in Switzerland in connection with the passage of trains conveying to their homes interned Germans who had been exchanged for French and British prisoners. Accounts of these demonstrations are published in several German newspapers.

The largest of these demonstrations occurred at Freibourg, where, it is said, a crowd stoned the residence of one of the German professors of Freibourg university, hissed German-speaking inhabitants, and smashed windows of their houses, being finally dispersed by soldiers.

Mayor Curley, telling the members of the Catholic Club of Tech last night about his campaign to suppress plays that he considers improper, declared that he encounters the greatest opposition from the people of influence, education and wealth, who ought to aid him in his fight against entertainments that "aim at our most sacred institutions, the home and morality."

Despondent because he had been long out of work, Charles Cooteware, 42 of 66 Green street, Charlestown, walked into the Elm street engine house, handed a note to a friend and went to an empty stall in the rear, where he shot himself, last night. He died while being removed to the Relief Hospital in a police ambulance.

The bill for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the construction of a metropolitan hospital for the insane on land already purchased for the purpose in Waltham, was accorded large support at the hearing before the committee on public institutions Wednesday.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE
The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company. All Foreign Rights Reserved

Two braziers, or smoke pots, had been placed on the dais, one of which Long Sin touched with a stick, causing it to burst out into dense fumes.

Standing before them, he chanted in nasal tones: "The white consort of the great Ksing Chau has been found. It is his will that she now be made his."

As he finished intoning the message, Long Sin signaled to two young Chinamen to go into the anteroom. A moment later they returned with Elaine.

Frightened though she was, Elaine made no attempt to struggle, even when they had cut her bonds.

They carried her up to the dais, and now Long Sin faced her and sternly ordered her to kotow to the gruesome metallic figure.

She refused, but instantly the Chinamen seized her arm and twisted it, until they had compelled her to fall to her knees.

Having forced her to kotow, Long Sin turned to the assembled devil dancers.

"With magic and rare drugs," he chanted, "she shall be made to pass beyond and her body encased in precious gold shall be the consort of Ksing Chau—forever and ever."

With callous deviltry, the oriental satanists made every arrangement for embalming and preserving the body of Elaine.

At last all seemed to be in readiness to proceed.

"Hold her," ordered Long Sin in guttural Chinese, to the two attendants, as he approached her.

Long Sin held in his hand a small, profusely decorated pot from which smoke was escaping. As he approached he passed this receptacle under her nose once, twice, three times.

Gradually Elaine fell into unconsciousness.

* * * * * * *

While Elaine was facing death in the power of the devil worshipers, I had reached the house of Savetsky next door with the police, and the place had been quietly surrounded.

With the plainclothes man, a daring and intelligent fellow, I went to the door and rang the bell.

"What can I do for you?" asked the medium, admitting us.

"My friend here," I parleyed, "is in great business trouble. Can your controlling spirit give him advice?"

Savetsky set to work preparing the room for a seance. As she moved over to the window to pull down the shades she must have caught sight of one or two of the policemen who had incautiously exposed themselves from the hiding place in which I had disposed them before we entered. At any rate, Savetsky did not lose a jot of her remarkable composure.

"I'm sorry," she remarked merely, "but I'm afraid my control is weak and cannot work today."

She took a step toward the door, motioning us to leave. Neither of us paid any attention to the hint, but remained seated as we had been before.

Almost before I knew what she was doing, she made a dash for something in the corner of the room. It was time for open action, and I seized her quickly.

My detective was on his feet in an instant.

"I'll take care of her," he ground out, seized her wrists in his viselike grasp. "You give the signal."

I rushed to the window, threw up the shade and opened the sash, waving our preconcerted sign and turned again toward the room.

With a sudden accession of desperate strength, Savetsky broke away from the plainclothes man and again attempted to get at something concealed on the wall. I had turned just in time to fling myself between her and whatever object she had in mind.

As the detective took her again and twisted her arm until she cried out in pain, I hastily investigated the wall. She had evidently been attempting to press a button that rang a concealed bell.

What did it mean?

* * * * * * * *

Elaine, now completely unconscious, was being held by the Chinamen, while her arm was smeared with sticky, black material from the cauldron of Long Sin.

Suddenly the aged Chinaman with the prayer wheel stopped his incessant, impious turning, and, rising, held up his hand as if to command attention.

"This is nonsense," he cried in a loud voice. "Why should our great Ksing Chou desire a white devil? I, a great-grandfather, demand to know."

Shaking with rage, Long Sin ordered the intruder off the dais. But the aged devotee refused to go.

"Throw him out," he ordered his attendants.

For answer, as the two young Chinamen approached, the old Chinaman threw them down to the floor with a quick jiu-jitsu movement.

Furious now beyond expression, Long Sin stepped forward. He seized the beard and queue of the intruder. To his utter amazement they came off!

It was Kennedy.

With his automatic drawn, before the astonished devil dancers could recover themselves, Craig stood at bay.

Long Sin leaped behind the big gong. As the Chinaman rushed forward to seize him, Kennedy shot the leader of Long Sin's attendants and struck down the other with a blow.

Kennedy seized Elaine's yielding body, and, pushing back the curtain to the antercom, succeeded in gaining it and locking the door into the main temple.

Bennett was still lying on the floor tightly bound. With a few deft cuts with a Chinese knife which he had picked up, Kennedy released him.

At the same time Chinamen were trying to batter down the door, Kennedy's last bulwark. It was swaying under their repeated blows.

* * * * * * *

While Kennedy was thus besieged by the devil worshipers in the anteroom, several policemen and detectives gathered in the seance room with us.

Elaine Is Forced to Kotow to the Gruesome Metallic Figure.

urged on by the insane exhortations of Long Sin.

To my utter amazement, I recognized Kennedy's voice.

In the first onslaught Craig shot one Chinaman dead, then closed with the others, slashing right and left with the Chinese knife he had picked up.

Bennett came to his aid, but was immediately overcome by two Chinamen, who evidently had been detailed for that purpose.

Meanwhile Kennedy and the others were engaged in a terrible life and death struggle.

Finally, Long Sin, seizing a large wall-hanging, leaped upon Kennedy from the back and threw it over his head, almost suffocating him.

It was just as the Chinese was about to overpower him that I led the police and detectives through the passageway of the fireplace.

It was a glorious fight that followed. But Long Sin and his Chinamen were no match for the police and were soon completely routed, the police striking furiously in all directions and clearing the room.

Instantly Kennedy thought of the fair object of all this melee. He rushed to the divan on which he had placed Elaine.

As she opened her eyes for an instant she gazed at Craig, then at Bennett. Still not comprehending just what had happened, she gave her hand to Bennett. Bennett lifted her to her feet and slowly assisted her as she tried to walk away.

Kennedy watched them, more stupefied than if he had been struck over the head by Long Sin.

* * * * * * * *

Police and detectives were now taking the captured Chinamen away, as Bennett, his arm about Elaine, led her gently out.

A young detective had slipped the bracelets over Long Sin's wrist, and I was standing beside him.

Kennedy, in a daze at the sight of Elaine and Bennett, passed us, scarcely noting who we were.

As Craig collected his scattered forces Long Sin motioned to him, as if he had a message to deliver.

Kennedy frowned suspiciously. He was about to turn away when the Chinaman began pleading earnestly for a chance to say a few words.

"Step aside for a moment, you fellows, won't you, please?" he asked. "I will hear what you have to say, Long Sin."

Long Sin looked about craftily.

"What is it?" prompted Craig, seeing that at last they were all alone.

Long Sin again looked around.

"Swear that I will go free and not suffer," he whispered, "and I will betray the great Clutching Hand."

Kennedy studied the Chinaman keenly for a moment. Then, seemingly satisfied with the scrutiny, he nodded slowly assent.

As Craig did so, I saw Long Sin lean over and whisper into Kennedy's ear.

Craig started back in horror and surprise.

SPORTING COMMENT

Attempts to revive baseball in Rockland seemed to have been a flash in the pan. Rockland used to be one of the best baseball towns in this part of the state but that was years ago and judging from appearances the time is not ripe for anyone to invest any money in a baseball team in Rockland if he is looking for return only from his investment.—Rockland Standard.

There are plenty of candidates for the base ball team of Quincy High school. Fifteen men are out for fielding positions, six are making a try for twirlers position and there are eight men who want to catch. The boys have been indulging in batting practice and Reardon and Di Senso are clouting the ball in good style. Both will probably make the regular team. The battery candidates have not been given a real workout as yet, their drilling to date being on infield plays.

City employees are improving the base ball diamond at Merrymount park and within a week the grounds will be in perfect condition. George E. Pfaffmann chairman of the board of park commissioners, is superintending the work. Mr. Pfaffmann is a base ball enthusiast, having played the game some years ago.

The Yannigans beat the Red Sox 6 to 2 Wednesday. Henriksen, Tutwiler and Gainor were the hit-leaders.

The Braves went on an outing Wednesday as the guests of the Macon citizens. Manager Stallings again said his boys would be there this season.

Charley Buckley smashed a homer in Harvard practice Wednesday. "Tack" Hardwick of Quincy is again out for the left field position.

The bets favor Johnson 11 to 5 over Jess Willard.

Paul Poehler has severed his connections with the Chauncey team of the Boston City league. He will rejoin the team next fall.

Gov. Walsh will follow the long distance men over the Marathon course on April 19.

MONTVID IS HELD FOR PRIEST'S DEATH

Also Charged With Killing New Britain Housekeeper

New Britain, Conn., March 25.—Bernard Montvid, who was brought to this city from Wilmington, Del., was arraigned in the police court charged with the murder of Rev. Joseph Zebris, pastor of the Lithuanian Catholic church, and his housekeeper Miss Iva Gilman, in this city on Feb. 8.

Montvid was charged with first degree murder. He paid little attention to the reading of the complaint against him by Prosecutor Klett.

When asked if he had anything to say he declined to make any statement. A plea of not guilty was ordered by the court.

Judge Meskill bound Montvid over to the June term of the superior court in Hartford without bonds. He was not represented by counsel in court.

NEW HALIBUT GROUND

One Found Off Coast of Oregon Covers About 250 Square Miles

Washington, March 25.—Preliminary reports of commerce department exploration of the Washington and Oregon coasts show a halibut ground of some value has been found off Newport, Ore., covering 250 square miles.

An immediate result of the findings, it is stated, was a yield of halibut taken by fishermen valued at $24,000. The fish run on the Newport bank reaches its maximum in August and September.

Several small areas off Coos bay and Gray's harbor, it is said, may be expected to produce halibut in limited numbers.

SLEEPS UPSIDE DOWN

Queeer Character Found In Vacant House Is Sent to City Home

Pittsburg, March 25.—"I've seen people sleeping standing on their feet, and I've seen people sleeping while they were sitting, but I've got to hand it to you if you can sleep while standing on your head," said Magistrate Robertson to Thomas Simeral, 50 years old.

Simeral was arrested in a vacant house. Policeman Neville testified he had found Simeral standing on his head sound asleep in a room of the house. Simeral was sent to the city home in Marshalsea.

WOMAN'S GUILD SEWING MEETING

The Woman's Guild met with a good attendance at 10 o'clock Wednesday in the Guild room of St. Chrysostom's parish house for a sewing meeting. Luncheon was served by Mrs. George J. Poch, Mrs. Alfred J. Fox and Mrs. Eleazer F. Drew and the same committee will serve next Wednesday.

At 2.30 P. M. the regular missionary meeting of the Guild was called to order by the president, Mrs. Daniel C. Miller. The secretary and treasurer Miss Annie Clean read the usual reports.

Several gifts have been recorded; a sofa for the Guild room from Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bean; a chiffonier from Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Hallett and Mrs. Landry; two gas plates for the kitchen from Mrs. Herbert H. Albee; a clock for Assembly hall from Mrs. Herbert F. Price, hemstitched curtains for Guild room from Mrs. John E. Walter; curtain rods from Mrs. Horace W. Richmond, put up by Mr. Walter; a waste paper basket from Mrs. Alice J. Bainbridge; a cutting table and a curtain for parish house, upon which lantern slides may be thrown from Frank E. Cleveland.

Mrs. Herbert L. Packard gave a report of the Auxiliary meeting of Feb. 17 which included an interesting sketch of the "Nu To Pao" or Woman's Messenger, published in China by Miss Laura M. White, who is a pioneer in this field, starting the magazine three years ago and is now spending a furlough year in America.

Mrs. Percy L. Davidson, gave an excellent report of the Auxiliary meeting held March 17 which included an interesting letter from Rev. Mr. Snaverly of La Gloria, Cuba, also one from Bishop Aves of Mexico City who wrote vividly describing the horrors they are compelled to endure.

Mrs. Steenstra's reading at each meeting of "The social aspects of foreign missions" by Dr. Faunce of Brown University is not only richly worth while but intensely interesting.

James Mellen, recently injured in a shipyard accident, is recovering.

Mrs. Mabel Myers of Billings road is visiting relatives at Lake George, N Y..

SCISSOR PASTE

BRYAN AND MEXICO.

Secretary Bryan has warned all Americans in Mexico to leave that country or remain at their peril. Is that the right way for a great nation to treat its citizens who reside in a foreign land? If it is, then there is need of a change. Americans have been well received in Mexico and up to the time of the Madero rebellion their capital was welcome as a means for developing the natural resources of the country and their presence in the cities was in no way objectionable. That many of them did not leave Mexico at the beginning of the troubles is easily explained by the fact that to do so they must go empty handed and return to the United States as refugees and objects of charity. Mexicans have some reasons for considering the United States as a joke. A caricature artist has some excuse for a picture which shows Carranza with feet upon his desk, and in one corner of the room is a pile of ultimatums, threats, requests, etc., from the United States. A servant brings in a roll addressed "To General Carranza, from Secretary Bryan, Washington, U. S. A." Carranza is reading "Mexico City news. Riots. Foreigners starving. Americans ill treated. Property destroyed." Carranza turns with the remark, "Over in the pile, sir!" From Washington the news comes that the government is considering the advisability of asking European nations to join in an invasion of Mexico, as was done in China at the time of the Boxer rebellion. Under the Monroe doctrine the United States is supposed to guarantee the lives and property of the people of other nations as though they were our own. We known how Mexico regards this country, and if the idea of a joint invasion is seriously proposed, we will soon learn the opinion of Europe concerning our federal relations. How long will the American people be obliged to endure what is so distasteful to them?—Lynn Item.

CROWDED STREET CARS.

The bill proposing to prohibit the carrying of standing passengers in excess of 50 per cent. of the seating capacity of the street cars which was offered by Representative Cotter, has been defeated in the House. The need of something to overcome the nuisance of overcrowded street cars is generally admitted and how to do it is the problem. The public service commission would seem to be the board best fitted to handle this question, but in some of the large cities where it has been attempted it has failed. The boards of health have proved most effective as an enemy to the overcrowding habit, and the railway corporations have been obliged to respond to their demands by increasing the number of cars on the congested routes. A determined agitation of this subject on the ground of public health is very likely to bring about the change that is so generally desired Another result is likely to follow the agitation and that is, not a few passengers on short routes who have acquired the car riding habit will resume walking as a healthful and, in fair weather, a not unpleasant substitute for the crowded car.—Lynn item.

BIENNIAL ELECTIONS DOOMED.

Massachusetts still refuses to adopt biennial elections. The legislative committee as usual has reported adversely on the proposition and there by doubtless reflected the opinion of the legislature and the majority of the people Most of the states—all but one or two, in fact—think every other year is often enough to choose their lawmakers but here we persist in doing it annually. The weight of argument seems to be with those who oppose the change, although there is a good deal to be said in its favor. Friends of biennials have still a lot of missionary work to do before they can concert their opponents. Waltham Free Press.

REASONABLE SUGGESTION.

Grumpy Straphanger (loudly)—I wish you'd move those confounded valises out of the aisle.

Indignant Sitter—Those ain't valises—those are my feet.

Grumpy Straphanger (more cheerfully) Well, you might at least pile one on top of the other.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

REBUILDING OF HANCOCK STREET TO BEGIN SOON

This Section of the Street Will be of First Class Construction

Active work will be commenced in a few days rebuilding Hancock street between Granite and School streets. The preliminary work was commenced late last fall but was obliged to be postponed on account of the winter weather until this spring. The new street line on the easterly side however has been established and the curbing set, and the gas company is now at work laying its new main through the street.

The street railway company is also about ready to begin work changing its tracks to the new location granted it by the city council. When completed the street will be the only one in the city constructed in what is known as first class construction. The paving will be set on a concrete base and the top will also be gravelled and concrete so that when completed the street will be level. This is an improvement that was a hobby with the late William T. Shea and when under his administration the first steps toward the rebuilding of the street were undertaken by the taking of the land necessary for the widening the ex-mayor said that he felt satisfied in going out of office he had seen started the most important piece of work the city had ever undertaken. Another improvement which he desired was the cutting of a street from Hancock street to the land between this street and the railroad tracks and this now seems likely to be consummated, if the reported plans of Mr. Faxon are carried out.

MILTON MAN DIES ON BATTLEFIELD

Harvard Graduate Meets End As Soldier Of Foreign Legion

Was Only 28 Years Old

Edward Mantell Stone, a prominent Milton man, died at the military hospital in Romilly, France, Feb. 28, according to correspondence received here today.

Stone was the son of the late Henry Baldwin Stone of Milton, and a soldier in the Second Regiment of the Foreign Legion. He was 28 years old and was graduated from Harvard in 1908. He afterward studied at Harvard Law school and the graduate school.

Stone went abroad in 1912 on a pleasure trip and was in France when war broke out. Last August he enlisted in the Foreign Legion.

After the usual training period his regiment was sent to Craonne in October, where it has since been fighting in the trenches and where, it is presumed, he received wounds or contracted disease which caused his death. A letter from the hospital to the young man's uncle, N. H. Stone announced the death, but contained no particulars. Memorial services for Stone will be held at the residence of his sister, Miss Elizabeth Stone in Milton with whom he made his home, on Saturday.

Governor Signs Bill Creating Office

Ex-Councilman George E. Adams has been appointed by District Attorney Albert F. Barker as assistant district attorney. Mr. Adams has been an assistant to the district attorney for the past four or five years and is horoughly familiar with the duties of the office. The bill which provided for another assistant district attorney for Plymouth and Norfolk counties has recently passed the legislature, and it was in conformity with the provisions of this act that Mr. Adams was appointed. Mr. Adams has been presented by Gov. Walsh with the quill with which the bill was signed.

A telephone call was sent to the central station and Chief Billings and the central station auto chemical responded. The workmen, however, had succeeded in getting the fire out by the time the department arrived.

TO FIGHT LIQUOR LICENSE GRANT

President Whiton Will Oppose Saloon at Neponset Bridge

OTHER CITIZENS AROUSED

The fact that a Boston liquor dealer has made application to operate a saloon at Neponset bridge, beside the street railways waiting room, has become generally known throughout the city, and many of the leading citizens have interested themselves in the proposition because of the effect they believe it will have on Quincy.

The first to make a protest against the grant of the license was Joseph L. Whiton, president of the city council, Mr. Whiton intends to protest personally against the license and states he will have a resolution of protest introduced at the next meeting of the City Council.

Mayor Whiton told a Ledger reporter that he believed the citizens of Quincy should rise in vigorous protest against it. He said:

"I understand application has been made to the Board of License Commissioners for permission to conduct a saloon at the waiting stations at Neponset bridge, in Neponset. The citizens of Quincy should rise in vigorous protest against this being granted.

"Neponset is one of the busiest transfer points to the south of Boston and a great many people coming to and going from Quincy transfer there. The sale of liquor at that point would be a serious detriment to the welfare of Quincy.

The question is not, is Neponset entitled as far as population goes, to another license The citizens of Quincy who will be affected and who are the real abutters should most strenuously oppose such license being granted.

"I hope the Quincy No-License league will look into the matter and file a strong protest. I shall see that an order is offered in the council at the next regular meeting protesting against the application."

EXEMPT FROM FIVE DAY LAW

Rev. Mr. Hudson Marries Couple This Morning

A romance of the business world came to light this morning when Elmer Harriman Warren of 17 Webster street, Atlantic and Grace May McNutt of New York, asked Judge Avery of the District Court to exempt them from the provisions of the five day law relative to marriages so they could go to New York tonight. Judge Avery granted the request and the couple were married shortly after at the First Parish church.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson, pastor of the heurch. There were no attenddants.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren went to Atlantic after the ceremony where they received the congratulations of Mrs. Warren, mother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren are both representative of business houses and became acquainted during business trips. The bride represented a New York firm and the groom a Boston firm.

Tonight they will leave on their wedding trip after which they will take possession of their new home.

MISS HUSTON SPEAKS.

Miss Mildred Gray Huston, overseer of the poor, was the speaker Thursday afternoon before the C. H. club at the home of Mrs. Reginald F. Shaw at 116 Davis street. Miss Huston had no prepared address but spoke informally, her idea being to have the women become interested in the work of the Overseers department.

PI ETA SOCIETY SCORE IN "ROBIN THE ROBBER"

Paul Blackmur, of This City, Author Plays Title Role

With a musical comedy which afforded plenty of opportunity for rollicking music, stricking costumes and pretty scenic effects the Pi Eta club of Harvard entertained about five hundred of its Quincy friends in Music hall last evening. The comedy was called "Robin the Robber" and the words were by Paul Blackmur of Quincy, the music by Murray F. Hall who led the orchestra, and the lyrics by Phillip S. Davison. The production was given under the auspices of the Quincy Tennis club and had a long list of patronesses.

The plot of the piece was simple, as all good musical comedy plots should be according to Philip Hale. Two cousins are rivals for the Princess Gretchen's hand and heart and by the king's will the one who wins the fair lady inherits his realm. One cousin, who is the villain, called Prince Hal, imprisons his cousin, who escapes, and becomes a terror to the land, Robin the Robber. He in this disguise wins the princess' love, and at the correct moment discloses his identity, foils the villain and inherits the kingdom.

Paul Blackmur took the part of Robin, and sang his four solos with much spirit, being forced to respond repeatedly. His acting, make up, and costumes were extremely good. His princess, interpreted by Rolland H. Allen, was some few inches taller, and and the love-making scenes between these two kept the audience in gales of laughter. Robin had to stand on tiptoes to reach his fair lady's ear. The princess was a stunning looking personage in the first act and it was rather too bad to spoil that impression by presenting her in a decidedly decollette gown in the last act. Her arms and neck were incongruous with so fair a face.

Jack Pfaffmann, the other Quincy boy to take part, was a "movie agent" and received a flattering ovation when he appeared. He did well and was heartily encored.

The best actor, perhaps was S. F. Haines who took the part of Agnes Gottem, a Jewish lady with great social ambitions and a tendency to use French phrases, her pronunciation of which was ridiculous. A close second was her husband Ichabod Gottem, taken by F. F. Munroe. He is a real comedian, and put in some funny business worthy of a professional. Unfortunately his Yiddish was not always understandable.

Mention should be made of J. W. D. Seymour as Prince Hal, his clear enunciation and facial expression being splendid.

The choruses and ballet dances were especially good. It was a mighty well-trained chorus that danced those complicated fancy steps and sang and danced in perfect time the catchy songs the piece called for. One dance was exceptionally good, and that was the one in the forest when as wood maidens in russet and green costumes, the chorus danced, carrying bouquets of flowers in which were cleverly placed tiny electric lights.

Another dance that pleased the audience was a pony ballet with pretty red and blue lighting effects. This dance called for some fancy toe steps which brought forth many hearty laughs.

MISS MARY TIMMONS.

Miss Mary Timmons, a well known resident of West Quincy, died at the home of Mrs. Henry Coram of West street Thursday evening after a short illness. Miss Timmons was seventy-four years of age and has resided in the section for the past two years. She was a faithful member of St. Mary's church and despite her age was a regular attendant at all the services which meant a walk of about two miles. Miss Timmons is survived by a brother who resides in Allston.

A WORTHY OBJECT.

We commend the following editorial from the Foxboro Reporter to the attention of our readers:

"Have you thought anything about putting out a bird house on some convenient tree, post, or attached to your home. This is being urged on the part of those who love wild birds and enjoy seeing them around the home.

"During the past two years wild birds of various kinds, some very beautiful in their plumage and song, have become more and more plentiful, and this includes bluebirds and robins. Wise laws now govern the killing of song birds, the most of which are true friends of man and do much toward the destruction of insects and worms which work havoc in the field or garden. The time may come, under these sane laws, when these birds may surround our homes in as great numbers as they did fifteen or twenty years ago.

"In the meantime encourage them by putting up a bird house. We imagine that a mechanic who started in building these little houses of one or more apartments, at a reasonable price, could find a sale for every one of them, owing to the idea having become so popular in Massachusetts. It certainly ought to be a pleasure for any one to welcome back the birds into the same little home each year and everybody can have this pleasure. It brings a man or woman one more real pleasure out of life, a pleasure that touches the tender chords of the heart again in addition to all our other blessings."

BOOMING QUINCY.

"The come and live in Quincy" advertisement which appeared in the local and Boston papers last September and which resulted in a number of families seeking homes in this city made its appearance again today in metropolitan newspapers, and should bear good results. The advertisement sets forth some of the many advantages of Quincy as a place in which to seek a home. The advertisement is not in the interest of any particular individual, but of the entire city, being financed by the merchants in city square and the local real estate men. The one prominent thing in the advertisement above all others is the name Quincy which is set forth in large black face type. The gentlemen who are financing the advertisment deserve the thanks of the citizens in general.

If the truth be known, perhaps President Wilson is rather pleased to have Secretary of State Bryan put on his cocked hat and go out on pilgrimages far away from Washington and the important matters of state that are weighing down upon the United States government. Perhaps President Wilson prefers to solve the problem without interference or advice from the man who holds the title of secretary of state.—Barre Times.

The time will soon come, in the opinion of a contemporary newspaper, when a girl will refuse to be seen on the street with a stick-up feather in her hat. Her escort without doubt sincerely hopes the contemporary is right.

The course of events begins to make it clear why so many Mexicans would rather be soldiers than taxpayers.

Gen. Scott's mission to the Piute Indians calls attention to the fact that the best peace ambassador is a man who has some reputation in the other direction.

Expatriated Americans long have boasted that they could live cheaper abroad, and life certainly does seem to be cheaper in Europe than in America.

Margaret Winship, the infant daughter of Robert and Margaret Winship of 55 Summer street died this morning. The little girl was born five weeks ago.

SURVEY BOARD TO MEET.

A meeting of the Board of Survey will be held in the office of City Engineer Sargent tonight.

CHILDREN TAKE SACRED VOWS

Three Hundred Girls at Reception at St. John's

The vows of the Society of the Children of Mary were taken by 300 girls of St. John's parish at St. John's church Thursday afternoon. Four of the girls who took part in the reception received their first communion in the morning. The others were pupils at the parish, grammar and high schools.

All were dressed in white, wore white veils and carried bouquets of flowers, and as they marched into the church the sight was most impressive. As they marched they sang the Litany of the Blessed Virgin, in English, and while the medals to be worn about the neck were distributed by Fr. M. J. Owens, pastor and Fr. John B. Holland pastor of the Sacred Heart parish of Weymouth, the girls sand, "Mary, How Sweet Sounds Thy Name," and "O When Shall We, Like Angels Bright." When all were invested with the medals Miss Alda Rice sang "The Vow is Made."

Father Owens gave a short address on the mission of the society and officiated at the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament which brought the reception to a close. Miss Eva Rice was soloist at the benediction. She sang the "O Salutaris." The "Tantum Ergo" and the "Holy God." Hymns were sung by the children. As the children marched from the church they sang the hymn of their society, "Children of Mary."

The organization was completed under the direction of Sister Angela of the parish. Miss Eva Rice assisted her in the musical portion of the preparations.

FIREMEN RESPOND TO EIGHT CALLS

Thursday was another busy day for the fire department, eight calls having been received during the day, bringing the number for the month up to 168. The first call came at 12.40 when the Houghs Neck combination went out on a call for a grass fire on Rogers street. The fire had nearly reached three cottages when the combination arrived on the scene.

About the same time the West Quincy apparatus went out for a grass fire on Rogers street, West Quincy, which was getting near some houses.

The department was also called out twice for grass fires off Hancock street near the street railway car barn. The trees caught making a spectacular fire.

At 2.10 a fire which started in the swamp near the Wollaston foundry was threatening the foundry buildings and the auto combination from Atlantic was called.

Combination 4 of Quincy Point went out on a still call about 4 o'clock for a fire in the grass near the Bakers Yacht Basin and the apparatus had hardly returned to quarters when the alarm from Box 273 was sounded, the fire having broke out again.

Thursday evening the Wollaston apparatus went out at 7.15 for a grass fire on Norfolk street that was getting near a stable.

SENIOR CLASS HOLD MEETING

The Senior Class of the Quincy High school had another interesting meeting in the High School yesterday noon. The case of the class photographer was again brought up. A heated discussion took place, some members claiming that why some of the class did not want individual pictures taken was that they did not have enough class spirit to buy a picture but wanted a group picture taken where they could be in the picture for nothing. Other members claimed that the class photographer was trying to fool the class. A rising vote was taken and the group picture advocates won. The Senior Dramatics committee reported that it was making some progress and the committees appointed last meeting were heard from. The class adjourned at 1.30.

The Young People's Society of the Swedish Congregational church meet this evening with Rev Mr. Sporrong at his home on Euclid avenue.

PRAISES WORK OF LANGELIER

The Fall River News makes the following comment upon one phase of Senator Langelier's work as a legislator:

"The committee on harbors and public lands, of which Louis F. R. Langelier, of Quincy, is senate chairman, and of which Representative Herbert Wing of South Dartmouth is a member, is one committee which conducts its hearings with a dignity and regard for propriety in keeping with the distinction of a state government. One finds upon entering the room assigned to this committee that he has suddenly left behind him the turmoil and buzz of the corridors; left behind him the carefree whistle of the youthful messengers and the raucous laughter of legislators seeking to impress the upstate visitors with how much as home they are in the marble halls of state. Instead of these, there is the quiet of a court in session, or even of a library, in which men speak quietly and with a sort of deference to their surroundings. If somewhat spoiled by attendance before certain other committees, you slip across to a friend on the other side of the room and have a word with him. Senator Langelier requests, "Will the gentlemen who are standing please be seated and refrain from conversation out of courtesy to the one who is speaking." That means you, but you are so pleased to find standards of this sort that you feel like hustling up to shake hands with the senator for his remark. There is no smoking in this committee room either, and it is rather amusing to see legislators who have come from other committee rooms where smoking is allowed punctilicusly leave their weed behind them when they enter room 431"

The same conception of their duty is shown by the committee on harbors and public lands when they are out on a look-see trip to view the territory for which they are considering legislation The committee's trip to Fall River, illustrated how they do it. About two o'clock in the afternoon the committee arrived in machines which they had provided themselves, having ridden down from Boston. No, they could not stop for dinner, they would go around and look at the harbor. They looked at it from all the points of near approach on the Fall River side and then went across the river to look at it from the other side. Lunch was offered them. They had not had any, but they had another visit to make, the Apponegansett River at Padanaram and they would not stop By evening they were back at Boston presumably. Evidently the committee whose affairs deal with lands the breadth of the State and waters the length of it is not a junketing committee."

EGGS NO LONGER ONLY FOR RICH

Many Vegetables in Local Stores Betoken Advent of Spring

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

The appearance of appetizing looking vegetables in the markets this week makes one realize that spring is indeed approaching and not many weeks will elapse before there will be an abundance of fresh vegetables in the markets and at reasonable prices. Of course most of the vegetables that are on the counters are not have that exquisite taste of vegetables that are southern grown, and while they do not high at 12 cents, when everything is considered. Then there is some native rhubarb that can be bought for 10 cents a pound while the southern grown variety can be had for 5 cents a pound. Tempting looking dandelions can be had for 15 cents a pound and spinach for 30 cents a peck. Then one fond of a boiled dinner will find some native cabbages selling at 5 cents a pound and crisp looking lettuce at 8 cents. It will be seen, therefore, that vegetables are becoming more plentiful and that very soon the price must drop to such a figure that ordinary mortals may indulge There are a few strawberries in the markets but the price is still high.

Of fruit there is an abundance in the way of oranges, grape fruit, etc. and the prices are within reason and well within the price most people can afford.

The season for the ban on meats is nearly at end. and after Easter the chances are that the demand will increase. There are no changes in the prices of meats and fish. Fish is plentiful and there is variety enough to satisfy the most exacting taste. Oysters, scollops and lobsters still remain almost at the prohibitive stage but there is plenty of cod, haddock, mackerel, halibut, butterfish, etc.

About the only thing upon which the price has dropped this week is flour. Three weeks ago flour was advancing by starts and jumps but of late it has been steadily dropping until today the best brands can be bought for $1.15 per bag. This is a drop of ten cents a bag from the price of last week. Sugar however still remains high, the price for anything less than 100 pounds being at the 6.1-2 cents a pound rate. Now that flour has descended to somewhere near a reasonable price the agitation about bakers raising the price of a five cent loaf to six cents is no longer heard.

Eggs are still plentiful and are about as cheap as anything in the food line in the markets today. The price of eggs has been dropping steadily so that strictly fresh Quincy eggs can be had for 35 cents. This is a drop of about 15 cents during the past few weeks.

During the past few weeks demonstrators of many food products have been in the local stores and one who cares to sample these goods has had ample opportunity to do so. In fact one who cares to take the time to make a round of the different stores will have little difficulty in obtaining at least one meal even if it is made up of a number of different varieties.

The coming into general use the telephone has in a great measure taken the place of personal visits to the stores to do shopping but nevertheless the wise housewife will not depend upon her telephone to do her ordering but, as has been stated in other letters, she will visit the markets in person and see just what she is getting.

Arrangements were made during the business session for a lecture to be held at the parish house Monday April 12 by Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus who will talk on St. Catherine. Her talk will be illustrated with some fine stereopticon views. This meeting will be in charge of Mrs Otho Hayward.

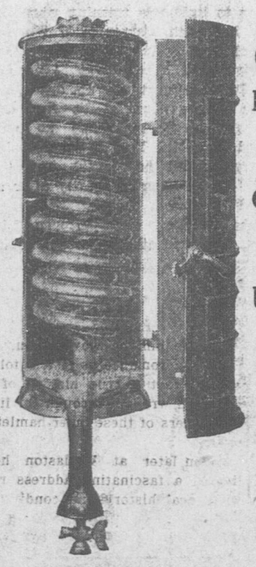
Convenient Efficient



ECONOMICAL because when you have sufficient hot-water, whether it be for a Real Hot Bath or Hot water for dish washing, you can shut off the Gas, and the expense ceases. You can't do that with a coal range.

CONVENIENT because hot water can be obtained in a few minutes. You can get sufficient hot water for dish washing in three minutes - - Think of it - - Then again if you want a reserve supply of hot water you can heat the entire contents of the tank.

EFFICIENT because it is always ready for duty, it is entirely independent of the coal range and is so constructed that the heat from the burner goes into the water instead of the room which means plenty of Hot Water and a Cool Kitchen, which will be mighty comfortable the coming summer.

News of Interest to Granite Manufacturers and Workers

The general condition in the granite industry remains the same as it was last week. There are a few cemetery orders coming in for immediate delivery but business has not got the rush and bustle to it it usually has in the latter part of March. While the dealers expect a slow season are prepared for a large month in April and many of them are getting out work for random trusting that there will be a large demand the last few weeks before Memorial Day.

The yard of Forbes Craig & Co., on Gilvert street is a very busy yard at this writing. There are several fine memorials being cut at this yard to be erected before Memorial Day. In their show yard there may be seen many beautiful monuments of many different kinds of granite and design. Any possible kind of stone or design will be executed by this up to date firm.

During the past week the mast of the new derrick being erected by H. Gerrior and Co., at its new plant, corner of Garfield and Quarry streets. The boom will be put in place this week. The plant will probably be in operation within the next few weeks.

A large stone fell off a team coming from a quarry onto the sidewalk at Brewer's Corner last week. It seems as though more care would be taken when stones are loaded at the quarry. There is hardly a week passes that some team does not drop a stone along the road.

During the past week several fine Westerly memorials have passed through the Center on their way to the cemetery.

Arthur Tremayne who has been the business agent of the Granite Cutters in this city the past few years has the well wishes of every member of the union in his new business. Mr. Tremayne has entered the manufacturing of granite and his resignation as business agent was received with regret by the union.

It is rumored that the old Merrymount quarry is to be opened again. There is a lot of good stone in this quarry but it will take some time before the quarry can be opened sufficiently to get at it. Many handsame memorials have been cut from this granite in past years.

Christie & Co., have completed installing their new compressor and motor. The new machinery is working in perfect order and the work at this yard is being rushed. They have a number of orders for fine Westerly work on their order book for delivery before Memorial day.

Even though business is not rushing as usual there are very few cutters who are not at work at their trade today. There are many cutters who are not at work cutting but have positions either at the shipyard or at the Metropolitan Park.

TRIBUTE TO MR. ADAMS.

Editor of The Ledger:

Will you kindly permit me as an old resident of his native town to pay tribute to the memory of Col. Charles Francis Adams.

I met him for the first time nearly fifty years ago, just after we had left the army, from which he had brought home a brilliant reputation deservedly won. We were a simple old fashioned folk in Quincy in those days; but such has been the great change. I believe there are not living today here, one hundred of the people who made up the few thousand then with us. I saw little of Col. Adams until after becoming justice of the local court and then found him taking a very human interest in aiding the helpless living about him, without wish or thought that it should ever be known to the world.

It was my privilege to tell him of deserving cases coming within my knowledge, to which he always responded with a helping hand.

I happened to be at the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the town of Weymouth where he delivered I believe his first historical address.

I can see him now in the full flush of his fine manhood, surrounded by the old fashioned men of that day whose forebears had been friends and compatriots of his eminent ancestors. Inspired by what this meant to him he wove for us what seemed a romance as it was told, but was in fact a true history of what had been wrought through the lives of the fathers of these quiet hamlets and towns.

Again later at Wollaston he delivered a fascinating address replete with local history and conditions.

"Three Episodes of Massachusetts History" was a brilliant sequence to these earlier addresses.

I wonder if we appreciate the great worth of that work, particularly in its application to this community, in the patriotic and other lessons it taught, and the inspiration it has given to the betterment of manhood.

I further wonder if we people of Quincy ever appreciated this man whose energies were directed to the creation of a financial system for the town, relieving us from debt, from which we have sadly departed, and for the other public services he rendered the town so long as he lived here. I happened to be upon a committee urging him to become a candidate for Governor, at a time when it seemed as if he might be elected to this office, but he put it one side, saying he could do better work as a private citizen, and he did.

To that service he devoted himself and of all the men who have lived in our midst, he seems best entitled to be called a great citizen.

E. C. Bumpus.

CHICKENVILLE IN DISPLAY.

On the corner of Hancock street and Merrymount road there is a window display which is highly attractive. The display represents the town of Chickenville, including the Chicken hotel, the fire department, hospital, school; in fact everything to represent the name of the town. One cannot help but stop and look at this unique display. The store belongs to C. A. Clapp.

ODD LADIES MEET.

Pneumatis Scale Teams Have Plenty of Enthusiasm.

Capt. Robinson 3, Capt. Sprunk 1.
Millers 4, Draftsmen 0.

The matches of the Pneumatic Scale Co., employees at the Coliseum alleys Thursday evening did not develop surprising scores but what was lost in form was made up in enthusiasm. The Millers had no difficulty in taking all four points from the draftsmen and the team of Capt. Robinson would have taken four points from the Sprunk quintette if Moody hadn't beaten Raick by one pin in the third string. The teams will meet again next week. The score:

SURPRISE PASTOR ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Rev. A. G. Sporrong, who has been conducting a series of revival meetings for the past week at Springfield, returned to Quincy Wednesday night, the 48th anniversary of his birth. Thursday evening he went to the church on Garfield street for the evening service and was surprised to find the auditorium of the church filled with his people. They had learned of his birthday anniversary and took the first opportunity to give his a surprise party. It was certainly a genuine surprise to the pastor to see so many of his people gathered together in his honor.

John S. Anderson, chairman of the church society had charge of the program and welcomed the pastor back to Quincy. Speeches were also made by Deacon C. O. Lindberg, P. Palmgren of Young People's society and others. C. Satterlund superintendent of the Sunday School read a poem written for the occasion. During the evening there was music by the choir, male chorus and mixed quartette. Rev. Paul Hallin of the Swedish Baptist church was present and made a few remarks.

Rev. Mr. Sporrong was presented with a purse of money by his people as a token of their appreciation and well wishes and Mrs. Sporrong was presented with a bouquet of flowers The presentation of the purse was made by Edward Granlund, church treasurer The church was prettily decorated with potted plants and flowers for the occasion.

OPIUM RAID ON CHINESE CREW

Panic as Revenue Officers Search Steamer at Boston

GET LARGE SUPPLY OF DRUG

Great Scurrying of Orientals on British Vessel When She Is Boarded by Armed Men—Smugglers Would Have Made Small Fortune Had They Got "Hop" Ashore

Boston, March 26.—In the most spectacular raid on a foreign vessel in years in this port, United States customs inspectors, with revolvers drawn, clambered over the sides of the British steamship Lingan at quarantine and, though bombarded with missiles by some of the Chinese crew, seized enough opium in the raw and finished state to supply Chinatown for many months.

Never before has such a large amount of "hop" been confiscated by Uncle Sam from a ship. While the Orientals were poor "shots" and none of the inspectors was hurt, all the Chinamen were in such an ugly mood that only the sight of the weapons in the officers' hands prevented them from overpowering the party.

Surveyor Maynard and Deputy Surveyor Mann had definite suspicions that an opium haul could be secured on the Lingan. So the "opium squad," consisting of Inspectors Sleep, Finnegan and McKenna, were requested to join Captain Tuckett and Guard Dowd of the United States customs guards and all hands were ordered to proceed aboard the coast guard cutter Winnisimmet for the trip. Boarding Officer Kilner accompanied the party but not as a raider.

The cutter on its way down the harbor had not yet reached the vessel's side, before the watchful eyes of the Chinamen on the Lingan detected the cutter approaching. When the half-dozen armed men, without a moment's delay, were seen climbing over her rails, with a business looking "gun" ready for action in the right hand of each, the word was passed through the ship by the Orientals in record time.

One Chinaman ran forward and another aft, but before they could conceal much of the "stuff" the federal officials were on their heels and they were caught with the goods.

More than $1200 worth of opium, much of it gum opium, was discovered in the after part of the Lingan. The ship's officers, who are all Englishmen, gave every assistance to the boarding party, and two members of the crew of the cutter Winnisimmet also helped. Complete layouts were found and can after can of opium, ready to smoke, were landed on the Winnisimmet's deck. It was said that if the "hop" could have been gotten ashore the smugglers would have reaped a fortune.

Sleep had a narrow escape from being hurt as one of the Chinamen hurled wooden-soled shoes at his head. They missed him by an inch. The Chinamen kept up an incessant chatter as the inspectors were busy looking into all corners of the big vessel.

Federal officials regard the raid on the Lingan as the most successful ever engineered on the waterfront. The Lingan has made many trips to this port from Louisberg, bringing Cape Breton coal to the coke works in Everett.

GOING BACK TO BRAZIL

Real Wandering Jew Has Traveled 33,000 Miles on a $45 Ticket

New York, March 26.—Nathan Cohen, the "Wandering Jew," will start tomorrow on another six weeks' ocean trip to Brazil. Cohen gains his title from the fact that he has been refused admission as an immigrant by the United States, Brazil and other nations, and Russia will not take him back on account of a streak of insanity.

The steamship line which brought him here must keep him on the go. He has already traveled 33,000 miles on a $45 ticket. A Hebrew aid society maintains the voyages have made Cohen sane and will fight to have him admitted.

AMUSEMENTS

BOSTON THEATRE.

New England music lovers will be pleased with the announcement of the coming of the Aborn English Grand Opera Company to the Boston Theatre for a limited engagement, beginning Monday, April 5. This organization has played many successful engagements in Boston and therefore needs little introduction. Since they last presented grand opera in English, at the Boston Opera house, Milton and Sargent Aborn have added new laurels to their reputation by their two successful seasons as general managers of the Century Opera Company in New York and Chicago. The favorite artists who have been heard in Boston before will return for the coming Spring season, with many other notables added. The chorus and orchestra have been reinforced and strengthened, and new and complete and artistic productions have been made for the operas of their repertoire There will be eight performances each week, including Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

The world's greatest oriental dancer, Princess Rajah, direct from her tour of the capitals of the Old World, will come to B. F. Keith's Theatre this week at the head of a splendid bill of novelties and stars. Rajah will present two magnificent scenic spectacles, "The Cleopatra Dance" and "The Arabian Chair Dance," presented with all the gorgeous pageantry of the Orient, and introducing the most startling and spectacular terpsichorean offerings ever staged. Rajah will be assisted by a large company of dancers and musicians. Frank Fogarty, the Dublin minstrel, will be the old comedy star of the show. Mr. Fogarty will relate some of his very newest and funniest stories. Other strong features of a grand international bill of stars of all nations will include Marion Littlefield and her group of Florentine Singers; Catherine Calvert and Company in Paul Armstrong's drama, "To Save One Girl," a powerful New York playlet by the author of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and "The Deep Purple;" Flanagan & Edwards in their amusing specialty, "On and off;" Robert Emmet Keane and Muriel Window, late features of the Passing Show of 1914; El Rey Sisters, tangoing on roller skates; Lucille and "Cockie," the human bird; Grace DeMarr; and others.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

With the opening of the eleventh week of "Common Clay," the record that "Believe Me, Xantippe," last year's Harvard prize play, made was tied and the coming week will break all records for runs made in the history of John Craig's Castle Square Theatre.

It seems fitting that at this time should come the news that a new $500,000 theatre is to be built this summer for John Craig and Mary Young at the corner of Boylston and Ipswich streets. It will be an ideal location and the Craigs feel they may depend upon their clientele to follow them to their new home at the Fenway The theatre will be ready for occupancy by the first of November. This will be the fourth move the Craigs have made since they first appeared in Boston at the Globe Theatre in 1905. They transferred in 1906 to the Bijou Theatre for a season of summer stock. They returned to the Globe and the following fall removed to their present location at the Castle Square Theatre.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"The Lilac Domino" continues to attract large and enthusiastic audiences to the Majestic Theatre, Boston, where it enters on its last week, Monday, March 29, and many of the people have already seen this phenomenal success several times. Nothing quite so beautiful in the way of a musical production has been offered this or any other year, and the myriads of singing and dancing girls make up by far the prettiest chorus Boston has been privileged to see.

The splendor of the scenic effects, the magnificent vocal and acting opportunities and the wonderful collection of artistic talent, youth, beauty and regal costumes, all contribute heavily to make this brilliant masterpiece stand out pre-eminently and alone. It creates an atmosphere that lifts you at once from the realm of the sordid, from business cares and home responsibilities. The holiday spirit—that is the mood of it—and you catch it yourself before the opening chorus is well on its way.

Between the second and third acts an immense white curtain takes the place of the actors, and upon it is thrown kinemacolor pictures of a gorgeous carnival at Nice—moving pictures of the most marvellous floats that imagination could conceive, and some of them so ridiculous in their gigantic proportions and comic representation that the audience joins in the roars which seem to rise from the spectators in the pictures. The battle of the flowers is beauty unparalleled, which prepares the way for the carnival scene in the last act of the play.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

"No grouch could live in the atmosphere of 'Kitty MacKay,'" is the way one New York newspaper described Catherine Chisholm Cushing's brilliant comedy, which is seen at the Shubert Theatre for the second and last week, beginning next Monday, March 29th.

"Kitty" comes from New York where the play was enjoyed by audiences that taxed the capacity of the Comedy Theatre for more than a year.

"Kitty MacKay" is a saucy, winsome Scottish lassie, with a quick tongue and a vivid imagination, and when the fairy prince comes to take her to London town she takes it all as a matter of course.

"Kitty MacKay" outlasted every other play presented in New York last season. Catherine Chisholm Cushing's brilliant comedy caught the public fancy from the very start, and not even through the warmest of the summer months was the attendance at the performances diminished.

The story of "Kitty" has to do with the adventures of a winsome Scottish Cinderella in London, and comprises so many funny situations and so much brilliant dialogue that it must be seen to be enjoyed.

WILBUR THEATRE.

"A Pair of Sixes" is now in its fourteenth week of wonderful success at the Wilbur Theatre, and it is creating just as much hearty and unbounded enthusiasm, as it did the first week of the Boston engagement. Every other man, woman or child in Boston has already seen this remarkable farce at the Wilbur, and the others are doubtless preparing to see it before it leaves the city. For only once in years are the theatre-goers given such an opportunity for rich and wholesome laughter as is to be found in the performance of "A Pair of Sixes." Already it has broken all records for a farce runs in Boston, and there is not the slightest decrease in the interest displayed in the piece.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

The engagement of Mrs. Patrick Campbell and her excellent company at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, is now drawing to an end. The last opportunities to see this greatest of all English-speaking actresses is at hand. Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Bernard Shaw in alliance offer what may be called in the appreciative phrasing of theatrical truth a very distinguished event. That is the impression to be conveyed by the announcement that Mrs. Campbell and a complete London Company are appearing at the Colonial Theatre in Shaw's latest play, "Pygmalion." In this play the noted dramatist who has made all of us merry for years by his intellectual hootings of everything which the average middle-class Briton holds sacred has become romantic and in "Pygmalion" has written a love story. Shaw's pure and sexless pen must have shuddered and rebelled when urged to the task of writing in the vocabulary of the tender passion. There are no kisses in "Pygmalion." For terms of endearment there are, from the Shavian Pygmalion, such caressing words as, "idiot," "gutter-snipe" and "squashed cabbage-leaf;" and, from the Shavian Galatea, an occasion "brute." But it is a love story nevertheless and a big departure from the beaten track of Bernard Shaw. Mrs. Patrick Campbell's advent as a comedienne is one of the distinct surprises of the current season., America has heretofore seen her only in problem and other highly dramatic offerings.

LOGGIO ROMA TO DANCE.

Loggio Roma, Figli d'Italia, an organization of Italians of the city, will make its social debut in Alpha hall on April 12 with a dancing party. The entire membership of 125 are included in the committee of arrangements, the chairman of which is Arnaldo Di-Nicola.

LUTHER LEAGUE VISIT WALTHAM

The members of the Luther League of the Quincy Lutheran church were the guests of the Luther league of Waltham Thursday evening. There were 30 who took part in the program rendered by the visitors and the address was by Rev. Leander Hokenson of this city.

The program included musical selections by a trio, Miss Esther Viden, Rudolph Nelson and Arthur Richardson; violin solos by Rudolph Nelson, cornet solos by Arthur Richardson, piano duets by Miss Esther Viden and Miss Hilma Viden, vocal solos by Miss Sigred Lundquist and recitations by Raymond Swanson.

Rev. Mr. Hokenson in his address spoke of the pleasures in visiting friends and how the Quincy Luther league accomplished its purpose. Refreshments were served in the church parlors.

THE LEOPARD MOTH.

A member of the Civics Committee of the Quincy Women's Club who is interested in trees and their care has sent in the following suggestions about the Leopard moth

"Now is the time to look out for the leopard moth. If we get at the work of extermination early this spring we shall be able to get ahead of it, otherwise it will beat us and ruin our trees. The leopard moth is the deadliest of all the foes to tree life, in comparison to the destruction that it can work the gypsy moth and the brown tail are of little consequence, and yet it was worth while to rid the trees of them in order to promote their growth and save them from deterioration. This has been so effectively accomplished that for the present we can stop worrying about the lesser evil and put all our attention upon the leopard moth. The gypsy moth is easily seen if one looks for it. The yellow patches which look like pieces of chamois skin on the bark of the tree are very apparent. The brown-tailed moth which looks like a curled up withered leaf hanging on the branches could not be missed after careful scrutiny of the tree. These nests can be cut off, burned and disinfected.

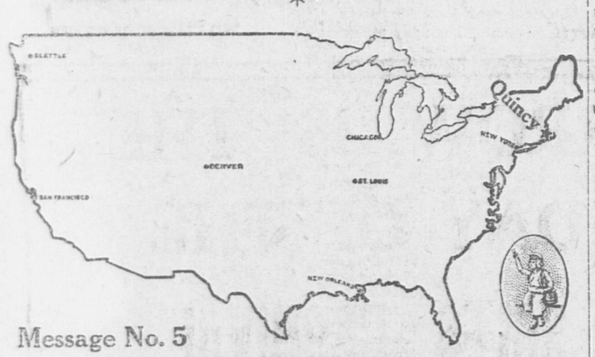
It is not easy to detect the leopard moth, his work of destruction is well under way before he is discovered. Sometimes the first indication of his existence in the tree is when the branches at the top of the tree begin to die without any particular apparent cause Do not wait until decay begins to make its appearance in your trees and then begin to work, but get after them early and make sure that they are free from this deadly pest which has made its appearance in our city, as well as in other parts of Massachusetts

Last year splendid work was done in Quincy by nearly all the owners of the fine estates. Adams street and President hill residents realized the importance of attending to this menace to their trees and had the work of extermination carried on in a scientific manner. These trees should be in good condition this spring, and yet their owners will keep close watch so that the leopard moth does not gain any headway.

There is grave danger to the maple trees from this pest, but it also attacks other trees. In March these worms begin to bore and bore, they will bore through the trunk of a tree or tunnel up under the bark, and get at the heart of a tree before they are discovered. When the worms begin to hatch out there is a small army at work. Each female lays about five hundred eggs and in fifteen days these eggs are hatched and at work under the dead bark. Then the newly hatched larvae immediately they emerge from the eggs, invariably begin to climb to the tops of the trees and bore their way into the woody tissues of the young branches, causing them to wither and die. After a while they bore their way out and attack the branches.

The best way to attack the leopard moth to destroy it, is to cut down the branches which are affected and burn them. Careful examination of the tree will often reveal small holes around which fine sawdust may be seen. Carbon bi-sulphide should be put into the holes, and then the holes should be plugged with putty or soap to hold in the liquid. It is also a good plan to probe into the hole with a piece of pliable wire made with a small bend on its end and thus draw out the worms.

The leopard moth can be easily distinguished from other tree insects because of its white appearance with black glossy spots resembling the spots of the leopard. And these same designating marks together with a blackish segment next the head is also to be seen on the larvae.



Message No. 5

To the Business Men of Quincy

The prosperity of a city is in direct proportion to the local pride. Where local pride runs high, prosperity has a firm foothold. Such a town is a good place to live and do business in.

Paint helps to a remarkable degree in spreading an impression of prosperity throughout a community. It gives a fresh, new, inviting look wherever it is used. Municipal buildings, stores and homes feel its good effects. Growing business is bound to be one of the direct results of a liberal use of paint, not from any magic in the paint, but because of the pride which is stimulated.

WRITER ROBERTSON'S END

Once Popular Novelist Found Dead Standing Against Bureau

Atantic City, N. J., March 26.—Morgan Robertson, the writer of sea stories, was found dead in his room in a hotel here. He was standing when found, and leaning against a bureau, on the top of which his head rested.

On the bureau was a bottle containing a drug, which Robertson had been using to induce sleep, and it was first thought that death had resulted from an overdose. A physician, however, said heart failure was the cause. Robertson came here some time ago to recover from nervous breakdown.

Robertson was a few years ago one of the most popular novelists of the seas, but more recently misfortunes had reduced him to straitened circumstances. He was born at Oswego, N. Y., in 1861.

EPXECTS REPORTS.

Tells Committee Result of Water Rate Investigation.

The special committee of the city council appointed to investigate the water department of the city held an executive session in the Mayor's office at city hall Thursday evening at which the expert employed by Mayor Campbell, some weeks ago to go over the matter of water rates in Quincy was present and made a report. The committee asked the expert a number of questions, which will probably be embodied in its report when it is made.

HOSPITAL AID.

The Hospital Aid association appropriated the money to cover the cost of setting sign boards along the route to the City Hospital from city square and other points at its meeting Thursday afternoon but deferred action on the resolution to affiliate with the Federation of Women's Clubs.

The meeting was at the home of Mrs. L. W. Glover on Dixwell avenue, and was attended by 24 members. During the afternoon the members sewed for the babies born at the hospital.

Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

LAND SPRINKLERS.

The virtues of automatic sprinklers are lauded by Fire Commissioner Grady of Boston in his report. He simply sets down the results of his experience in the fire department and shows how many fires are prevented or checked by a proper system of automatic sprinkling.

AT THE THEATRE

"The Bargain," a five reel photoplay, made in the Grand Canyon of Arizona, and the Exploits of Elaine are the two feature pictures at the Kincaide theatre this half of the week. The story of the capture of a bandit and abounds in thrilling Wild West scenes. A new departure in the play is the relenting of the sheriff who for the sake of home and the little wife of his prisoner, allows the man to escape.

Elaine again held the centre of the stage with Craig Kennedy, the sensational detective created by Al Reeves in another rescue of Elaine from being sacrificed by Chinese in religious worship. The vaudeville, a little different from the regular line has The Kentucky trio, three Morans, musical performers, Retti Murri, songs and songs.

The new setting for the motion pictures was received with applause Thursday.

COURT FINES ANOTHER BOY

Leslie Arthur On Probation For Setting Fire

Leslie Arthur of 139 Hollis avenue was before the District Court this morning for setting a fire in the open air without a permit from Chief Billings of the fire department. He was fined $5 and placed on probation until May, 12.

Leslie, is a brother of Glen Arthur who was placed on probation Thursday for a similar offence. Neither of the boys said they knew of the new rule of the Fire Hazard Commission. Patrolman Hollingshead was the complainant in both cases.

The complaints were made as a result of a general order read topolice recently by acting Chief McKay instructing the men to take all violators into court.

The charges against the Arthur boys were the first since these instructions were given. Patrolman O'Neil has filed charges against four others.

THAT FORE RIVER FURORE

A general impression prevails throughout the city that the publication of rumors relative to shipment of parts of engine of war from the Fore River shipyard to Montreal where they are assembled is an attempt to create a "tempest in a tea pot".

That the local company is completing a foreign contract is no secret to Secretary Bryan and it is thought that the order for an investigation of the last rumors by Sec. Daniels of the Navy is merely a matter of form.

New equipment toha ndle the incoming business is being installed and there is an urgent need of ship ways.

Other equipment which has been set up already or is now being installed at Fore River includes three large travelling cranes with motors for running them by electricity and three new gantries, another type of crane, for handling materials and minor parts.

It may be said that, in view of the fine showing which he is making at present with the Fore River plant, Mr. Schwab is greatly pleased and he is having figures prepared for still more important and more expensive enlargements and improvements at the shipyard.

SCISSOR PASTE

THE LITTLE NICKEL.

Our fellow-citizens the Washakie Indians of Utah are wholly within their rights when they criticise our small coinage, but they exhibit ignorance of fundamentals when they assume that the profile on our 1-cent piece is that of a squaw. On the contrary, it is meant to do honor to the Goddess of Liberty, and the head dress which our aboriginal countrymen mistakenly regard as an Indian war-bonnet is that which Liberty, with some variations, has worn from the beginning.

The Washakie complaint that the nickel is not big enough is another matter, and a good many white men will join in the protest. There was a time right here in New York recently when it was not big enough to buy a 5-cent loaf of bread.—New York World.

A FAMILY MATTER.

The staff humorist approached the editor with a lugubrious expression and tendered his resignation.

"What's the matter?" asked the editor. "You're doing all right."

"Well, it's this way," replied the humorist. I got married a few weeks ago, and now if I print a joke about wives my wife thinks I mean her; and if I mention a mother-in-law there is trouble again. Then, one of my wife's brothers is a plumber, another an iceman, and another a coal dealer. Besides, she has a half-brother who is a book agent, and they are all big, husky fellows with ugly tempers. If you don't mind, I'd like to retire from the humorous department and take a position as obituary editor."—Grit.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

One of the best meetings for boys held this season will be held Saturday morning at nine o'clock. To accommodate the large number of boys who will want to hear the speaker of the morning it has been decided to hold it in the gymnasium. H. W. Gibson, State Boys' Work secretary for Massachusetts and Rhode Island will be the speaker, "Nuf Ced."

The boys in the Cadet and Junior classes are working hard these days in preparation for the gymnasium exhibition which will be given in the gym the evening of A. M. 23d. From the way the boys are getting into things this year should be the best ever.

The Junior basket-ball teams will play a return game with the Clapp Memorial Juniors from E. Weymouth tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock. Both the Quincy teams last week were defeated and will have to play hard to win.

The Senior teams in their second games of the series with the Makaria Fives for the championship of the city will meet the Makaria boys again tomorrow evening at eight o'clock. A large crowd of interested people were out to see the games last week and an equally large crowd is expected this week. The Y. M. C. A. First team though defeated last week is ready to put up a hard game.

The bowling tournament among the Seniors is being run off in good order. The high men to date include such men as C. Thomas, A. Thomas, L. LaRose and H England Some high scores have been rolled but with the tournament opened until May 1st even the new comers have a chance to beat them.

Miss Annie L. Laing is going to be a big hit as Sally, the Maid in the three act comedy "A Family Affair" which is to be presented at Music hall, Wednesday evening, April 7th, 1915. From the outlook now the S. R. O. sign will surely be out on the night of the show.

The Employed Gym club expects to have a supper followed by a good time this evening. This club is getting on in fine shape and having some good times.

The Employed Boys basket-ball team met defeat at the hands of a team from West Quincy Wednesday evening.

The members of the Bible Classes are working hard in preparation for the International Examinations which will be given in April. Both classes are reviewing and hope to make a good showing. The classes meet Friday afternoon at four and Sunday afternoon at three. The Sunday afternoon class goes for a walk at the conclusion of their lesson each week.

DANGEROUS GRASS FIRE AT POINT

The fire department put in a busy half hour this noon before they got a dangerous grass fire on the Arnold estate between South and Main street under control. The fire started on the South street side of the lot and spread with amazing rapidity and was dangerously near the barn of Meyer Abrams on North street when the department was called.

Both the central and Quincy Point apparatus responded to the call and it was necessary to lay several lines of hose before the fire was got under control. It was by far the most extensive grass fire in this district for years, and the whole section was for a time enshrouded in smoke. The unusually high northwest wind this noon together with the dry grass caused the fire to spread over a large territory, and as noted it gave the firemen a hard job to get under control.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Tupper, nee Nightingale, who were married last December and who have been on the pacific coast on their honeymoon, returned to Quincy Thursday night.

MISS CHARLOTTE S. TARBELL

The funeral of Charlotte Sophia Tarbell was held Thursday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Wade on Quincy avenue. Rev. William Grainger of Christ Episcopal church officiated at the services. The body was taken to Randolph Vermont, for burial. Miss Tarbell died Tuesday in her 78h year.

FLEE BURNING HOUSE IN SCANTY CLOTHES

Stunkel Family Fight Way Out of Smoke Filled Building

Richard Stunkel of 103 North street was awakened about 2.45 this morning by a loud and ominous crackling at the rear of his house. He sprang from bed and flung open his bedroom door only to be driven back gasping, by a thick cloud of smoke. He aroused his wife and their two children and with wet towels over their heads they rushed scantily clad through the smoke laden hall, down stairs and stumbled out doors, gasping for breath. Stunkel hastened to box 174 and pulled in the alarm.

When Chief Billings arrived the flames were coming up through the roof at the back of the house, and owing to the high wind it looked for a few minutes as if the building was doomed. The firemen, however soon had several streams of water playing and finally were in control. The building is a small affair and was assessed for $375 and the damage to the building and contents is estimated at $200.

The fire evidently started about the kitchen stove. According to the owner he built a wood fire in the kitchen stove Friday night and went to bed leaving it burning. There was also considerable wood piled up in back of the stove and it is thought that a spark from the burning wood was blown out by the high wind or the fire got so hot that it ignited the wood.

It was a hard fight for the firemen who suffered from the extreme cold wind. It was necessary to use considerable water before the fire was under control and the spray froze as fast as it struck the men, causing them to become coated with ice.

The entire family, clad only in their night clothes sought refuge in a neighbors house, and one group of firemen on their arrival went through the house at considerable risk to themselves believing the family was inside.

Mrs. Stunkel said that when smoke was first detected they gave it but little thought and soon after on opening the kitchen door the place was found in flames. She said all just reached the steps when the entire structure was enveloped and that an instant later all would have been badly burned and all avenue of escape and rescue cut off.

SEPT. 1 IS LATEST DATE

City Must Erect Tuberculosis Hospital By Then

Every city in Massachusetts and every town of more than 10,000 inhabitants will receive formal notification from the state department of health this week that the requirements of the law relative to the establishment and maintenance of hospitals for the care of patients afflicted with tuberculosis and other diseases dangerous to the public health must be met prior to Sept. 1.

Failure to meet the order of the health department through its health commissioner, Dr. Allan J. McLaughlin will result in formal proceedings against the offending municipalities by the attorney general.

While many of the 35 cities of the Commonwealth and some of the towns of more than 10,000 inhabitants already have hospitals that meet the requirements of the statutes, it will devolve upon these municipalities to satisfy the department of health that they are within the law in this matter and to secure in each instance the written approval of the state health department thereon.

MAYOR SPEAKS TO PORTLAND CLUB

Mayor Campbell who was the guest and the principal speaker before the Rotary club of Portland Me., Friday evening, returned to his office at City hall this morning. His honor said that he had a pleasant visit and that he had been given a most cordial reception by the citizens of Portland.

He further said that the Rotary club was an organization of business men and that he spoke to them along the line of city building. He expressed his belief that it was better to boom cities as a residential section rather than as a place to locate business enterprises.

During the course of his remarks he frequently referred to the City of Quincy as being one of the most desirable residential sections with the result that the business men probably heard more about our own city than ever before. His honor also urged the business men of Portland to give their support to the exposition building which the citizens of Portland had just erected.

MORE FIRES THIS FORENOON

The alarm from Box 161 at 12.36 this noon was for a fire in the meadow near the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co. plant. The fire worked in among the undergrowth and the firemen had to use a big line of hose in order to get it out. Mayor Campbell who was at home to lunch at the time was one of the first to arrive in response to the alarm.

Other alarms answered by the department this morning were as follows:

The central station apparatus was called to the Fore River plant at 10.07 for a slight fire in one of the yard shops. The fire was out when the apparatus arrived.

The Wollaston apparatus went out at 10.45 to a fire on Presidents bridge. Wollaston also went out at 12.30 on a still alarm for a grass fire on Wilson avenue. The apparatus was at this fire when the alarm from Box 161 sounded.

SERVE REFRESHMENTS

Under red streamers surrounded by scores of college banners and red paper flowers the Young People's Religious Union of the First Parish church gave the last entertainment of the season's course in the form of "College Night" Friday evening in the chapel.

The audience sat at small tables decorated with red flowers while pretty waitresses in white with red and blue streamers across their shoulders served cocoa crackers ice-cream cake and candy. These waitresses were: Misses Dorothy Hall, Marjorie Brooks, Lillian and Roxanna Schenkelberger Natalie Saville, Norma Johnson ,Rose Bussing, Constance Fryer Alice Parmenter, Josephine Smith and Beatrice Johnson. They were under the direction of Miss Marie Bass.

The entertainment consisted of popular music by William E. Westons orchestra a mixed quartette, three short farces college songs a monologue and a fancy dance.

REFUSE PERMIT TO BERGFORS

The Board of Health has refused to grant permission to Frank Bergfors to erect a stable on Weston avenue.

A hearing was held before the Board of Health on the petition several days ago at which a number appeared in opposition. The Board of Health turned the petition down for the reason that there was no way to connect the stable with the public sewer.

SPECIAL LECTURE.

The Scandinavian public is invited to attend a special lecture in John Ericson hall on School street at three o'clock Sunday afternoon. Evangelist C. Mileen from Worcester will speak on "The Great Controversy Between the Woman Clothed With the Sun and the Great Red Dragon," as pictured in the 12th chapter of Revelation.

TO EXTEND CALL TO REV. B. A. WILLMOTT

Roxbury Church to Invite Pastor of Bethany

The Immanuel-Walnut Avenue Congregational church of Roxbury voted unanimously at a meeting last night to extend a call to Rev. Benj. A. Willmott, pastor of the Bethany Congregational church of this city. The action of the church will be considered by the Society, which is legally distinct from the church, and if the action of the church is ratified a call will be extended to Mr. Willmott by both the church and the Society. A meeting of the society will be held Monday evening.

It is not believed there is any question of ratification by the Society. The general feeling is, that Mr. Willmott will accept the call, as a call usually is not extended in the Congregational church until after careful consideration by all parties concerned Mr. Willmott refuses to state what his action will be if the call is extended to him.

Mr. Willmott has been pastor of the Bethany church for three years and has been markedly successful. He has never been troubled with empty pews and at both services on Sundays the church is filled by members and non members, too. The church which will probably extend the call to him is one of the largest in greater Boston.

Mr. Willmott lives in the Bethany church parsonage on Goffe street with his wife and son John.

Mr. Willmot last year was president of the Quincy Minister's association. He has been prominent in the life of the city and has been much in demand as a speaker by various organizations of Quincy and vicinity.

CONTINUE CASES.

Maurin Blank of Holbrook, charged with selling cigarettes to minors, did not appear in the district court this morning to press his larceny charge against six Holbrook boys and their cases were continued.

Blank alleges that John H. Cox, Harry C. Jennings, Charles Gallagher Royce Perkins, all of Holbrook, and Owen S. Schofield of Brockton, on March 21, took bowling balls owned by him valued at $7.50.

The complaint against Blank is preferred by Chief Crooker of Holbrook.

VOTE THANKS TO DELCEVARE KING

The New England Watch and Ward Society at its 37th annual meeting passed resolutions extending the thanks of the society to Delcevare King, who for thirteen years served the society as a director, three years as vice-chairman and five years as its treasurer.

The resolution also extended to him its congratulations for the sterling integrity of his character, the excellent judgment he has manifested, the rare devotion to the work he has given and the financial ability he has shown in our behalf in securing a large increase in the income of the society, and in successfully closing each of the last three years with all bills paid."

LEARNING SONG.

The "Franklin Associates" are busy learning their new club song, "Us Boys."

The words of the song were written by Florence E. Steele, and the music by William E. Clements. Both are well known throughout the city.

THE MODERN WAY.

This is the age of advertising and no city just as truly as no business, can attain the success to which it is entitled without advertising. The advertising campaign which was conducted in the Boston daily papers on Friday could not help produce good results. It brings Quincy into notice and acts as a suggestion to many persons who have not decided where to make their homes.

Commenting upon Quincy and its campaign the Boston Journal today says editorially:

"The organized business men of Quincy believe that what is good for a merchant who has something to sell is good for a community that has something of value to offer. Yesterday in the Boston Journal and other newspapers people who are looking for homes received an earnest and striking invitation to "Come and Live in Quincy." The invitation was concise and logical. The advantages of accepting it were set forth briefly and clearly.

It is not Quincy's first invitation of that kind. The other met with a direct response, and the second, undoubtedly, will have the same result. The effect, let it be understood, will be of mutual benefit in more than one way. The people of Quincy accept responsibility for the invitation extended in their behalf and will try to stand behind it to all comers. One man in that city remarked yesterday: "I know real estate, and I know how to sell it, but I couldn't have put so many arguments for a home in Quincy into so few words if I tried a month. That argument hereafter shall be my argument."

Quincy is a wide-awake and progressive city but there are many others in this Commonwealth of that type. Are the business men doing for those communities what the wide-awake business men of Quincy are doing for theirs."

AWAKE AND ACT.

The citizens of Quincy should not slumber through the announcement that a Boston liquor dealer has made application to operate a saloon near the Neponset bridge and should not wait for someone else to take action.

The saloon will not be in Quincy and Quincy has no legal right to say that it shall not be located in Neponset. But the effect of a saloon in that location will be much the same as if it were in this no-license city itself and morally Quincy has a right to protest.

Citizens should appear at the hearing before the license board of Boston and should express their opposition to the application with all the eloquence and logic which they can summon to their aid. We feel sure that if the protest strikes the board as coming from a united city it will give heed.

Let us not wait for someone else to act. Let us all act to prevent the city from losing some of the advantages which have accrued to it as a no-license city.

DONT DELAY.

The city government should not delay about taking the proper steps to meet the state's requirements in the matter of a tuberculosis hospital. Quincy has never distinguished itself for over liberality in guarding the health of its citizens. The 'pest house' near the city home is a disgrace. The appropriation for the city hospital of $5000 yearly is none too large, to say the least.

Public health, although an important subject is not very generally understood. Women of the city will have an opportunity to learn about this matter at the conference at the Women's club house Monday afternoon.

LENTEN DEVOTIONS.

The regular Lenten devotions were held in St. Mary's church Friday evening. The devotions were conducted by the pastor Rev. Thomas R. McCoy. The services consisted of the recitation of the Rosary Stations of the cross followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The musical portion of the services was by the regular church choir under the direction of Mrs. Mary McKay Reardon.

The Board of Directors, of the Y. M. C. The resolution follows:—

Voted—That the gentlemanly and sportsmanlike conduct of the members of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. basket ball team, under great provocation in recent games with Cunningham gymnasium, receives the commendation of this board.

ST. MARY'S ELECTION

The annual election of officers of St. Mary's guild was held Friday evening after the Lenten services in the music room of the church. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

President—Mrs. William Callahan.
Vice President—Miss Annie McGilvary.
Secretary—Miss Annie Healy
Treasurer—Miss Helen Burke.
Directors—Mrs. Stephen B. Little, Mrs. Mabel Fennessey.

A rising vote of thanks was given the retiring board of officers for their good work of the past year. The special guest of the evening was the Rev. Thomas R. McCoy pastor of the church who thanked the members of the guild for the good work they are doing among the poor. He said that he hoped that this year would be a banner one and that at the next election every woman in the parish would be enrolled in a society whose work although not generally known was a work that was especially blessed by God.

CLAIM CHAMPIONSHIP.

The West Quincy Five have put in a claim to be the 17 year old champion Basket Ball team of Quincy. They feel that having defeated the Employed Boys of the Y. M. C. A. twice and having defeated several strong teams in and around Boston that they have good reason to make the claim.

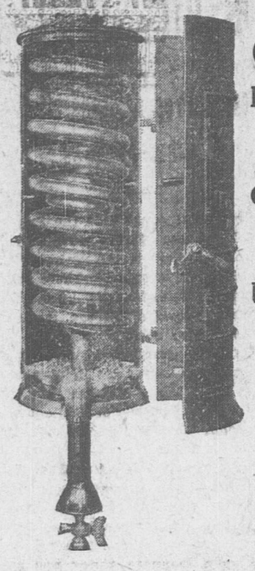
They have received a challenge from the Makaria second team which they are willing to play but think they are a little bit outclassed by the latter team. The team is composed of Bennett, O'Connor and Schatzel as forwards. Jerome Reinhalter and Chester Steadman take good care of the backfield positions and Al Desmond the star center of the Quincy High second team plays that position.

TRIPLE X Gas Water Heater

Three Distinctive Features

Economical

Convenient Efficient



ECONOMICAL because when you have sufficient hot-water, whether it be for a Real Hot Bath or Hot water for dish washing, you can shut off the Gas, and the expense ceases. You can't do that with a coal range.

CONVENIENT because hot water can be obtained in a few minutes. You can get sufficient hot water for dish washing in three minutes - - Think of it - - Then again if you want a reserve supply of hot water you can heat the entire contents of the tank.

EFFICIENT because it is always ready for duty, it is entirely independent of the coal range and is so constructed that the heat from the burner goes into the water instead of the room which means plenty of Hot Water and a Cool Kitchen, which will be mighty comfortable the coming summer.

MAYOR ANGRY AT STATE BOARD

Mayor Campbell will probably not announce the promotions in the police department until first of next week. The mayor says that he did not receive his lists from the civil service commission until this morning and that he thought it strange that newspapers should have been given a list of those who had successfully passed before he was notified and that he had told the commissioners so, in forcible language.

The Mayor further said that the civil service commissioners did not send him a complete list of those who had successfully passed the examination for promotion to sergeant but the three highest names on the list and that but for the list as published in the Ledger he would not have known how the other men stood.

Q.H.S. WANTS REAL SUPPORT

Believe Citizens Should Back Their Teams

Recently there was inaugurated the most complete and widespread plan for putting athletics in the Quincy High school on a firm financial footing that has ever been attempted here. The plan is based on the promise that Quincy people ought to be actively interested in the athletics of the school and is being carried on by the pupils among the citizens of the city.

The financing of athletics carried on without enclosed grounds to furnish a revenue has always been a hand to mouth proposition. The result has been that the teams have gone season after season without equipment that was really necessary to carrying on the sports to the best advantage. In the past five years no complete new outfit has been provided for any team. Football and baseball uniforms six and seven years old, in the condition in which these strenuous games have left these suits, are still being used.

A campaign committee of twenty-seven boys has been chosen to carry out the scheme. Each of the boys is endeavoring to secure as many men as possible to stand behind the school athletics to the extent of purchasing a two dollar ticket. The tickets are to be known as "Subscriber's Tickets" and will admit to all home games in football, baseball and basket ball until April 1, 1916. It is hoped in this way to build up a list of guarantors who will become actually interested in the local school boy activities.

"There are no conditions attached to the purchasing of the tickets," says one of the backers of the idea. "It is an attempt to put squarely up to Quincy people the question of whether or not they are really interested in the situation. The school represents Quincy. It is not "a" school; it is Quincy High school That Quincy people should be interested in its athletic teams—its best advertisers, as things go nowadays—is very evident. The question is, are they? The boys believe they are, and are out to prove it." &

Princess Mary, Daughter of King George of England.

© by American Press Association.

Since the European war broke out Princess Mary of England has been untiring in her efforts to aid the soldiers in France and their dependents at home. She was largely instrumental in gathering a fund before the holidays to purchase comforts for the men on the fighting line. Princess Mary, or May, as her brothers call her, is the pet of the royal family of England, although no longer a little girl. She will be eighteen next April and, of course, is quite grown up. The princess is the only daughter of King George V. and Queen Mary and has been brought up in quite an old fashioned way. She was taught to sew and is said to be an expert at embroidery. She has also studied the preparation of food and during her vacations at Sandringham was initiated into the art of making cheese and other dairy products. Quite unusual employments for a royal princess. But that is her mother's idea of bringing up a girl.

NORFOLK COUNTY FARM BUREAU

The Norfolk County Farm Bureau has been formed following similar action taken in Hampden, Plymouth, Bristol and other counties in Massachusetts. The Farm Bureau is an organization of farmers and business men of towns and cities to develop the industrial and especially the agricultural resources of the county or district represented.

Its purpose is to manage and direct the work of one or more agricultural agents or other employees. The work involves the expending of considerable sums of money in order to carry the work forward, and a careful study of the needs of the county or district, the best means of meeting these needs, and well thought out execution of the plans when once decided upon

The advisory committee appoints the county agent, who is the working member of the organization. The agent is a mature man of good scientific training and a sufficient amount of farm experience secured by actually managing a farm to enable him to advise farmers on matters pertaining to their business.

The county agent corresponds to the efficiency man employed by large concerns to look after their special branches. No one farmer could employ such a man but a group can collectively command the services of such a man who will be at the disposal of all. The agent makes a study of the needs of the county, the adaptability of different localities to certain crops or specialized lines of farming. He demonstrated the most approved agricultural methods and farm practices. But his work is much broader than simply the productive side of farming. Among other things he keeps the farmers informed as to the prevailing prices of commodities and the state of markets so far as the information is available.

These are but a few of the lines of work which the county agent is called upon to undertake and the position requires a man of large calibre and broad vision. If he is asked for information which he does not possess he knows where to secure it from the department of agriculture down to the state forester, including the agricultural college and all intermediate sources of information, with all of which he is in touch

Contrary to general opinion, Massachusetts is, or can be made an important agricultural state. The latest census reports estimate the value of farm property at over $226,000,000. There are about 2,800,000 acres of farm land of which only 40 per cent is improved. Only 56 per cent of the area of improved land is now used for crop production.

Massachusetts produces about $73,-000,000 worth of agricultural products annually and imports about $300,000,000 or in other words, we produce approximately one-fifth of what we consume and this wide margin between production and consumption consists very largely of those products adapted to our climatic conditions and which ought to be grown here.

There is another side of the question. Of the 3,400,000 people residing within the commonwealth, fully fifty-seven per cent are non-producers of food products. There are thousands of acres of land which ought to be devoted to poultry raising to help produce the $25,000,000 worth of poultry products brought into the state every year.

Such a condition at once appeals to the business man as whatever adds to the productive capacity of the state helps the state in all its diversified industries. It is not open to question that if the $25,000,000 which is expended every year for poultry products outside the state should be spent within its limits, business of every nature would be given a strong impetus. Add to this the amounts expended for other farm products which are imported and which could be raised at home and you have a problem which at once challenges the attention of every man interested in the prosperity and development of Massachusetts, regardless of whether he is a farmer, a manufacturer or a merchant.

The Farm Bureau has been organized to arouse the people to a realization of the extent of our resources and an appreciation of our opportunities. The machinery is ready and the only thing lacking is the motive power which must be furnished by the people, the Bureau drawing its support from the people, the county and the federal government.

The County Commissioners are authorized by law to appropriate for this work not less than $1,000 a year and as much more as the commissioners deem proper provided that an equal amount is received from other sources.

The federal department of agriculture is contributing through the agricultural college at the present time, so far as its funds will permit, $1,200 a year toward the salary of a county agent in such counties as have the approved type of organization.

The directors of the Norfolk County Farm Bureau have started out to raise $2,500 from the people of Norfolk County to commence the work. The membership list is open to any person on the payment of $1 . per year and subscriptions of larger amounts are solicited from farmers and business men to whom the work appeals.

The director from Quincy, T. A. R. Kitson, has been asked to raise $500 in this city to start the work and she will be glad to receive membership fees or voluntary subscriptions in larger amounts toward this total.

As to tangible results which are what count, Hampden County has had such an organization for one year and seven months. Careful records have been kept and it is found that for an outlay of $19,096, a net return of $546,767 in additional farm crops, farm values, etc., has come to the county which would not have come had it not been for this work.

This is a "Better Farming, Better Business, Better Living" proposition. There is no person in the county who will not benefit by it. Let us promptly meet the other towns of the county financially and allow the work to be started at once.

KNOCKS DOWN POLICEMAN

Henry Trask of the Y. M. C. A. team was slightly injured while refereeing the Braintree-Cunningham gym game at Braintree Thursday night and Patrolman Qualey was knocked down when he went onto the floor to restore order among the players who started a melee.

Trask, incurred the displeasure of one of the Reid boys on the Cunningham team through a decision. Reid pushed him against the side of the hall and Trask's right foot caught between the settees. In pulling away he wrenched his ankle.

The attack by Reid took place in a corner of the hall and when the other players realized something had happened all swarmed toward the spot and clashed.

Patrolman Qualey, who escorted a player from the floor last week during the first of the series, attempted to duplicate the performance and one of the Cunningham boys hit him a heavy blow on the side of the head just as the crowd surged on to prevent him taking the player out.

Qualey fell to the floor and was assisted to the side lines. He quickly recovered from the effects of the attack.

The "rough house," inaugurated by the Cunningham boys, occurred within a few minutes of the close of the last period of the first game and created no end of excitement among the spectators.

The Braintree team won the victory by a score of 32 to 22. Joe O'Rourke and "Billy" Manning featured for the winners. Duggan was the star of the losers.

Between the periods the Cunningham second team defeated the second team of the A. A. 26 to 19. The summary of the first teams game:

FIRST CUT IN BASEBALL

The first cut in the base ball squad of the Quincy High school took place Friday afternoon when Teacher-Coach Mansur, who is developing the outfield, dropped seven of the 15 men seeking outer garden places.

Those who now remain are Buck Reardon, Whet Browne, Hibbard, Carlson, Simmons, Likander and Di Senso. Reardon, Brown and Di Senso have all had the benefit of a years experience and are likely boys for this season.

Teacher-Coach French, who is working out the battery candidates, has eight boys under his care at the present time and has no intention of making a cut until after the first game. Some of the boys are developing well. Hamlin is showing an early effect of coaching and is perfecting fine control on his wonderful drop.

The student body this season has so far evinced an unusual interest in the base ball team. The nine will play with the South Shore Interscholastic league and will meet Rockland, Milton, Weymouth, Brockton High schools

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

PEACE AND WAR.

Editor of the Ledger:

The recent public hearing held to influence the City Council to appropriate money to pay the expenses of a Machine Gun Company in this city was largely attended by the agents of the interests and their friends who are financially interested in the organization of this company. It was a bitter disappointment and surprise not to see present advocates of peace, viz: pastors of churches and laymen who preach the gospel of the brotherhood of man and who do not favor the war spirit. It is this spirit which has plunged Europe back to barbarism.

Why do we who proclaim our Christianity extol and glorify war. This war spirit which was so urgently voiced by the gentlemen who spoke in favor of the appropriation, who profess to be Christians. Oh, this hypocrisy, is it true of the nation? No, none of those present who advocated this measure will they enlist or join the company except those who are financially interested or desire an outing to the annual state musters where they can show off their gorgeous uniforms to the admiration of their lady friends or at such other social functions as they may attend.

"The great menace of the country" which one advocate spoke off, who receives a salary paid by a public corporation which favors unrestricted emigration that they may employ labor at cheap rates; if society is menaced by this type of citizens, why do they employ them, and do they expect to control their acts and minds by a show of force patriotism, is not cultivated or taught by armed men. See Europe today. The preeminent danger of the welfare of this state and nation is not the working man who pays all the expense of government, but the privileged classes who the gentlemen represents and who know no law or justice except their own class interests, and it is this class that your state militia will be called on to protect them in their vested privileges to exploit the unforgotten man, on whose shoulders all the burdens of government rests.

We don't need or want a gun company in this City. It would be a useless appendage to the municipality. Furthermore, in no instance has the state militia proved of any source of assistance in trouble. Witness the Lawrence fiasco, "where a baker's dozen of policemen would have handled the situation with ease." This was the statement of a regular army officer. Any sheriff of this state can summon by writ pro bono publico all the able bodied men in the county to his assistance in case of trouble, and the U. S. Dick Military Law obliges every man between the age of twenty-one and forty-five to serve the nation at home or abroad.

The citizens of Quincy should be proud of the fact that it never has nor is there any great danger of the need of a gun company. One of the sponsors stated, "our big business industries may have a flare up (whatever this means) among the employees at any moment." This is a fantasy of mind and if the big business ever needs greater protection than it has at present it can no doubt increase the present number of gun men now employed, to protect them from hostile acts of the men who they imported and who are not citizens of the U. S.

Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war.

CHAS. W. HANSCOM.

Editor of the Ledger:

In answer to the misrepresentations about suffrage in Colorado, the Colorado Senate passed unanimously on January 22, the following resolution:

"Whereas, the question of woman suffrage has become an inportant issue in many states of the union, and

"Whereas, woman suffrage was made a part of the organic law of the State of Colorado more than 22 years ago, and

"Whereas, the operation and effect of woman suffrage in this state is being made the subject of misrepresentation in other states where the question is an issue, "Therefore, We deem it to be our duty to say that experience has demonstrated that woman suffrage is not only a just recognition of the rights of all before the law, but has proved in all respects materially helpful to good government among the people, and to a noticeable degree has inculcated a higher respect for the majesty and supremacy of the law."

This official endorsement is of special interest to Massachusetts in this campaign year.

The question of granting the franchise to the women of our State will be the submitted to voters at the polls next November.

Many men and women are sincerely desirous of informing themselves on this great public question.

A meeting will be held in New Colonial hall on Wednesday evening, March 31, at 8 o'clock, at which the arguments in favor will be presented by able speakers. All, of whatever shade of opinion, are cordially invited to come, and questions are solicited.

OPPOSITION TO SALOON AT NEPONSET CROWING

Prominent Citizens Tell Reporter What They Think of Application

That the operation of a saloon at Neponset would be an unfitting adjunct to the proposed new bridge to which Quincy is to contribute and will tend to make such a bridge again a lodging place, which Quincy officials have tried to do away with in the past as far as possible, is only one of the few opinions expressed to the Ledged reporter when he interviewed prominent men on the question this morning..

A F. Bromley of the Quincy Y. M. C A., although his resignation as secretary takes effect in May is among those who have taken up the standard against the grant of such a license and J. J. McAnarney, a leading local attorney, also gives pointed views in opposition.

John D. Mackay, chairman of the School Committee and also prominent in legal circles, takes occasion in his protest to censure the action of past city councils in their grants of pony express licenses. His view is that because of this a protest from Quincy might seem insincere.

Mr. Mackay states: "It would be deplorable for Quincy to have a saloon on her threshold, and it behooves our citizens to do whatever they can to prevent it. But the ease with which pony express licenses are obtained in Quincy makes an opposition to the saloon sound insincere. If I had my way only one would be granted, and that one merely because the law makes it obligatory to grant at least one."

Mr. Bromley said his views on the license question are very pronounced and that there was no question in his mind that one at Neponset would be a detriment to Quincy.

"I want to protest vigorously against such encroachment on the daily life of our city," said Mr. Bromley. "Braintree is better off because Quincy has no license, and Quincy would be better off without a saloon at Neponset bridge, just over the line, and at a busy car terminal."

Mr. Bromley states his opposition is based on experiences elsewhere, where license was voted annually by the voters, and said that unless one knows what it is to live in a license city there can be no appreciation of the benefits of life in a no-license city.

Mr. Bromley states the further away liquor is the better and that he cannot too strongly join in the protest to be made to the license commissioners.

J. J. McAnarney was interviewed between conferences with a client at the court house. He said the protest of the government, press and citizens of Quincy, expressing disapproval of the proposed granting of a liquor license near the terminal of the Bay State St. Ry. and the Boston L road at Neponset is timely.

The license commission of Boston should know Quincy's attitude and while in one sense we have no right in the matter, Mr. McAnarney states that that comity which exists between different governments should induce the Boston license commission to respect Quincy's position.

Continuing, he said: "As stated by President Whiton of the city council, it is not a question of whether or not Neponset is numerically entitled to another license for as before stated with that question we have no rights, but the particular location requested in this instance is obviously to enable whoever obtains said license to take advantage of the fact that many people who have to wait about these terminals will be attracted by the display of goods and induced to purchase

"It cannot be said that this locus will later be more thickly populated as the flats in the rear and the coal sheds in front preclude this. There must be other locations in Neponset said Mr. McAnarney, where this business may be conducted. If, however, this particular location be the only one desired it is obvious that Neponset does not need another license but that an attempt is being made to put one in Quincy.

The fact that the Ledger is gathering opinions from the men of the city on the matter of a bridge license has given many people opportunity to air their views . The reporter, to be frank, has not found all opposed to such a grant, but those in favor of it are few. It is also true that there are a number who nave no positive views on the matter, having given it as yet no consideration.

Nevertheless the average run of people met in City Square Friday afternoon and this morning frankly admitted their opposition and it was stated by several they knew that clergymen were to make a vigorous protest from the pulpit Sunday.

Mrs. Juditha Peterson, wife of Robert Peterson the local oil dealer was taken from her home on Cotton avenue, East Braintree, to the Quincy City hospital where she will probably be operated upon.

SPORTING COMMENT

Editor of The Ledger:

In your paper of Thursday, March 25, 1915 is an article stating that the Cubs of Mt. Wollaston Lodge, No. 80. I. O. O. F., decisively defeated the Regulars which is an error.

The match was bowled for points and as the Regulars won two strings, and the Cubs one string and the total it is considered an even break by all persons connected with the bowling game.

In view of the fact that the Regulars won two of the strings it is really a victory for the Regulars and is so considered by all the supporters of the team. Of course the record breaking string won by the Cubs gave them a good margin but really the single strings are the ones that count most

Hoping you will give this item some consideration in the next issue, I am,

Very truly yours,

A TRIBUTE.

Charles Francis Adams And The School Children.

Editor of the Ledger:

Much may be written, for much can be written, of the conspicuous public services of Charles Francis Adams in timely address, scholarly publication and patriotic deed. In this respect he is in line with his eminent forbears. But it may easily happen that passages in his life not so open to the public gaze might slip away as mere alms for oblivion. There, for instance, is his generous devotion, with his brother, John Quincy Adams to the fine uplift in common school education which became known as the "Quincy System." What disinterestedness, what increase of cares in a busy life his activities in this direction implied! Two or more mornings of every week this man of affairs, this President of the Union Pacific, visited school rooms of the town to observe, to question, to direct and then hurried to catch a train for Boston where a day's work awaited him.

At first when he entered a school room filled with pupils he was manifestly embarrassed. Mrs. Follett (afterwards Mrs. George Morton) a teacher in the Coddington school, said that he tried to hide his embarrassment by proceeding briskly to the duty of the hour. This abrupt, this matter-of-fact entrance upon an unfamiliar scene was disturbing to the teacher and somewhat awed the pupils. No time was spared to greet teacher or children. Such omission was not polite. The "New Education," thought Mrs. Follett, should include manners. So a morning or two afterward Mrs. Follett, fortified by the courage of her convictions, said to Mr. Adams, "We do not think, Mr. Adams, that you are very polite." "Why, how is that?" cried the impressive presence taken all aback. "You don't say 'Good morning' to us when you come into the room." "Oh, that is it; well, we will amend that." Upon the next visit Mr. Adams was careful to say, "Good morning, Mrs. Follett; good morning children!" At once the children responded in chorus, "Good morning Mr. Adams!" And this to the end was the happy ritual never departed from. A little later when the first Christmas of his administration came round another interesting thing occurred. Following a reference to the coming holiday Mrs. Follett intimated that some half dozen children from the almshouse would not be likely to receive anything to help make their Christmas a merry one. This was before a Quincy reformer had succeeded in getting the children. then herded in the almshouse, dispersed among genuine homes. Mr. Adams was quick to appreciate the situation. On Christmas morning every boy was surprised with a pair of skates, a silver dollar, an orange and a bag of candy and every girl with the same gifts except that a doll stared brightly up at her instead of the skates. From that time onward no little ward of the town went lacking on Christmas day. When Mr. Adams was told of the delight his gifts had created in the hearts of the children he was so deeply moved that for a little he was unable to go on with his customary questioning and observations.

This entrance into the lives of these waifs proved an opening into a wider field of beneficence. Children kept from school for lack of clothing were generously supplied. Better still, boys and girls of unusual talents were noted, were sought out and advanced in their career. Today there are successful artists, business men, teachers who owe not a little to the thoughtful encouragement of Mr. Adams. John Quincy Adams was also quick to stimulate the uplift of promising youthful lives. Indeed, it seemed almost as if one were conferring a favor upon either gentleman by drawing his attention to the deserving and the talented young people of the community. Were they not the children of neighbors? Their interest in the school children was real, it was vital, and so in spite of acaumulating cares registered no small measure of satisfaction in the full lives of three eminent volunteer School-Committee men.

Arthur L. McGilvray Involved In Tragic Accident

Elmer Marble, the five year old son of Charles F. Marble of 698 Main street, South Weymouth, was struck in front of his home at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon by an auto driven by Arthur L. McGilvray, the local druggist and died six hours later at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

McGilvray appeared in court this morning on the verbal summons of patrolman Elbert Ford of Weymouth but no charge has been placed against him. An inquest will be held Thursday to place the responsibility for the accident. The police are understood to feel that the accident was unavoidable.

Witnesses said the boy was playing with a young companion and jumped in front of the auto. When picked up he was unconscious and physicians found his left arm and left leg broken and his skull fractured. He was immediately removed to the hospital. McGilvray has retained J. J. McAnarney as counsel.

ROLL OF BILLS LOST IN FIRE

Rare Pieces of China Smashed Into Bits

George A. Young and family of 27 Crescent avenue, South Braintree were awakened from their slumbers shortly before 5 o'clock Sunday morning by volumes of smoke which were coming into the upper rooms from the floor below through a register. Mr. Young made a hurried search and found a brisk blaze in progress in a china closet in the sitting room.

Controlling the flames as best he could by throwing on water, he sent his daughter Mrs. Elsie Brown to sound the alarm from box 43 which she did with the assistance of an employee from the car barn. Chief Tenney and his men responded quickly with auto-combination 1 and in a short time the blaze was extinguished by a chemical stream, the hydrant hose being coupled and laid but not being needed, so quickly did the chemical smother the fire.

The contents of the closet including some expensive china and a handbag containing eighteen dollars in money were a total loss. Mr. Young stated that fifty dollars would not cover his loss and that he carried no insurance. The house, which is owned by Wilford F. Woodsum of Hobart avenue and is insured, was only slightly damaged owing to the efficient work of the firemen in command of Chief Tenney. No cause has been assigned for the fire as the closet contained nothing inflammable of any kind.

GIVE CHILDREN ANNUAL PARTY

Quincy Women's Club Entertains Young Friends

The Quincy Women's clubhouse was the scene of the annual children's party Saturday afternoon from 3 until 5.30 o'clock. Entertainment by pupils of Miss Doris M. Horslin was an ideal one for children and it was obvious that the grownups enjoyed it also. It was followed by dancing, Mrs. Charles A. Price at the piano.

Miss Edith Randall, chairman of the program committee under whose auspices the party was given, proved a charming hostess in her inimitable manner and with her able assistants made it a festivity long to be remembered. For an hour the entertainers whose ages ranged from seven to fourteen years gave a program that was enthusiastically received, each number called for a change of costume which was picturesque and added to the jovial songs and sprightly dances. The program:

Opening Chorus—"Tipperary"
Reading—Hooking sister up the back,—Dorothy McKay.
Song, duet, I am going to tell on you
Dance—Prince Charming—Ruth Horan.
Song—Little Mr. Farmer, Dorothy McKay.
Solo dance and song—Mr. Dutchman Eva Roberts.
Duet—The Lyre bird and the Jay
Dance with tambourine—Mildred Coughlan
Song—"I am a cowboy" Eva Roberts
Sketch—"Silver bells"
Fairy—Mildred Coughlan
French doll—Ruth Horan.
Sailor doll—Leontia Flynn.
Wooden soldier—Dorothy McKay
Jack in the box—Eva Roberts

Miss A. M. Sullivan accompanied at the piano.

A pleasing feature was two cello solos by Master Theodore Smith of High land avenue, Wollaston with Mrs. Chandler W. Smith accompanist.

Mrs. Walter E. Burke assisted by her committee served ice cream and fancy cakes.

BELIEVE DEFECTIVE WIRING WAS CAUSE

Conclude Inquest on Fire In Dr Welch Building

"Cause unknown, probably defective wiring" will doubtless be the finding as to the cause of the fire in the Orent-Payson clothing store of a week ago, as the result of the fire inquest held this morning at the central fire station The inquest was held by Inspectors Rice and Kimball of the district police and eight witnesses were summoned to give testimony.

The witnesses were John Payson, one of the proprietors, Leo Moran, the man who did the electric wiring in the store, and all of the regular clerks as well as the extra clerks employed at the store Friday and Saturday nights. Mr. Orent, the senior partner, was not summoned as a witness. Mr. Payson was represented by counsel in the person of J. J. McAnarney but he was not allowed in the room where the evidence was heard and all of the witnesses were examined separately and alone.

It is reported that the evidence brought out the fact that for several days there had been a flickering of the lights and that one time they went out altogether. This it is reported was caused by a loose connection or rather a partly broken or a swinging connection which would cause the flickering. A jar might have caused the circuit to arc, thus creating a spark, which started the fire.

The hearing lasted all the morning and as soon as it was over Inspectors Rice and Kimball left for Boston. The facts noted above however were communicated to Chief Billings and will probably be embodied in the report of the inspectors when made.

The many friends of James H. Lalley who fractured his hip several weeks ago will be glad to learn that he is convalescing at his home on Edison park.

OBEY THE LAW

The visit of the mayor to Houghs Neck Sunday to see for himself if groceries were being sold contrary to the law, brings up an interesting question.

There have been many complaints in the past years about the places which have held Sunday fruit licenses selling groceries on the Lord's Day. It is claimed by many that the Sunday fruit license is simply a cloak, behind which the holder can conduct a grocery business on the Lord's Day the same as on week days. Proprietors of regular grocery stores, naturally complain. The city council has had this proposition to contend with every year, but the license committee has always taken a broader view of it.

Some of the claims made are that Sunday is a day upon which many who can not get away from their work on other days visit the beaches, that many of them do not take any lunches with them, depending on getting what supplies they may need when they arrive at the beach. Another argument is that people who reside at the beaches during the summer months often have unexpected callers, on Sundays and that it not infrequently happens that their supply of food is not sufficient to provide for these callers. To them, therefore the open fruit store is a welcome relief, as they can visit these places and purchase such groceries, in the way of canned goods etc. as they desire.

Last year the police did close up several places at Houghs Neck that were actually doing nothing but a grocery business. In fact one of the places that was closed held a license from the city council to sell ice cream. fruit, confectionery, and cigars on the Lord's day but as a matter of fact there was no fruit, confectionery or cigars in the store, nothing but groceries.

The solution of the problem does not appear to us a a difficult one. The law forbids the selling of groceries on the Lord's Day. The city authorities should see to it that the law is obeyed. It is not conducive to good citizenship to wink at violations of the law simply because the law itself has its disadvantages and faults.

If the law is a bad one then it should be repealed. So long as it is the law it should be obeyed.

HARMFUL FRICTION.

Some of those who composed the city council of last year do not take kindly to the allusion made to that body by the school committee in its annual report, and they believe that it was entirely uncalled for.

It is claimed that it was not the city council which sent a request to the school committee asking it to express its choice as to a school lot in Ward Two but that it was the finance committee which did this. The school report would make it appear that the city council had asked advice and then turned it down. There has always been more or less friction between the city council and school committee.

So long as this friction continues the schools will suffer. We regret that the friendlier relations which appeared to exist this year have been thus rudely disturbed.

The other day we noted in a news story that Capt McKay of the police department had adopted certain traffic regulations in city square. The regulations were wisely adopted. Several other little improvements which have been made show that the acting chief of the Quincy police force is "on to his job"

CASE CONTINUED.

James Mulhoof of Boston was in court this morning on a charge of carrying a loaded revolver and his case was continued to Thursday.

Mulhoof was arrested Saturday at the Braintree station by Patrolman Shay, who found the revolver in his pocket, while he was questioning him about a fight which took place in a South Braintree factory on that day.

Financial Review

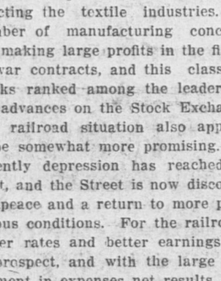
Redundant money and more hopeful views in regard to the war are working out their inevitable influence upon financial sentiment. Sharp advances occurred this week in a number of stocks, chiefly industrials benefiting from war contracts and a few of the leading railroad shares. Some recessions followed, owing to the disposition to take handsome profits; but aside from this development there is an unquestionable change for the better in the financial undertone.

The chief trouble in our foreign trade lies in the great falling off in imports. Our foreign purchases from abroad have, of course, been somewhat affected by depressed conditions at home; but the main difficulty has been in the stoppage of imports from Germany, and the inability of Great Britain and France to sell many of the goods to this country which come under ordinary circumstances, because the war has either destroyed some industries or turned others into supplying war materials. As to exports, these have been swollen chiefly by the great demand for food products, cotton and war materials. The season for the outward movement of wheat and cotton is drawing to a close; but every indication points to still larger shipments of munitions of war than have hitherto taken place. No reliable estimates have yet been formed as to the amounts of purchases by European governments of war material, but the figures are expected to be somewhere between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000.

February returns of foreign commerce were very remarkable. The exports for the month amounted to $298,000,000, which was about $100,000,000 above any previous February; while the imports were only about $125,000,000, the smallest of any February since 1911. The excess of exports for the month was $173,000,000, or $147,000,000 greater than a year ago, and about $90,000,000 greater than in any previous February. Since this extraordinary excess has continued for several months, it follows that Europe is very largely in our debt, and is virtually a heavy borrower upon this side. The estimated effect of this movement will be to greatly lessen our foreign obligations, inasmuch as it means a large return of foreign capital now invested in this country. This spring and summer there will be no remittances to Europe on tourists' account, an item of large importance in the international trade balance. The remittances by aliens and others to their friends abroad will also be very light this year; all of which tends to create conditions difficult to estimate in the foreign exchange situation.

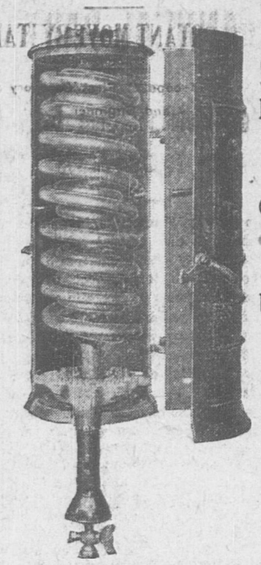
In home trade circles, a somewhat hopeful feeling prevails. This must be attributed to the stimulating effect of easy money, the return of spring and consequent resumption of outdoor work, the satisfactory agricultural outlook, the higher prices for wheat, cotton and other staples, the slightly better demand for iron and steel at better prices, and also the moderate improvement in conditions affecting the textile industries. A number of manufacturing concerns are making large profits in the filling of war contracts, and this class of stocks ranked among the leaders in the advances on the Stock Exchange. The railroad situation also appears to be somewhat more promising. Apparently depression has reached its limit, and the Street is now discounting peace and a return to more prosperous conditions. For the railroads, better rates and better earnings are in prospect, and with the large curtailment in expenses net results have not only seen their worst but should improve.

There is another factor in the general situation which, though a silent one, is of much importance; that is the very evident subsidence of political agitation against big business. Washington has already become wise to the harm being done to labor as well as capital by persistent corporation baiting. Radicalism is happily on the wane, and "trust busting" is no longer a vote winning issue. This is an important element in the revival of confidence, and as soon as larger prospects materialize more definitely we may anticipate a revival of enterprise in this country.



TRIPLEX Gas Water Heater

Three Distinctive Features



Economical

Convenient Efficient

ECONOMICAL because when you have sufficient hot-water, whether it be for a Real Hot Bath or Hot water for dish washing, you can shut off the Gas, and the expense ceases. You can't do that with a coal range.

CONVENIENT because hot water can be obtained in a few minutes. You can get sufficient hot water for dish washing in three minutes - - Think of it - - Then again if you want a reserve supply of hot water you can heat the entire contents of the tank.

EFFICIENT because it is always ready for duty, it is entirely independent of the coal range and is so constructed that the heat from the burner goes into the water instead of the room which means plenty of Hot Water and a Cool Kitchen, which will be mighty comfortable the coming summer.

We look for an erratic but ultimately higher market. The extreme advances of the last few days are sure to bring reaction, especially should the war temporarily take an unfavorable turn. The feeling, however, grows that the end is not far distant; the more sanguine opinion being that peace will be attained soon after midsummer. It is certainly to be hoped that such a happy result will be reached then, if not sooner; but nothing is so uncertain as war, and it would be unwise to be overanguine in the settlement of such a vast and highly complicated struggle as the one now in progress. Even if a truce were declared, it would be months before many of the delicate and strenuous questions at issue could be satisfactorily adjusted.

RAID SEVEN OAKS AGAIN

The Seven Oaks Motor Inn at East Braintree was raided again Saturday night by Chief Hunt and Braintree officers. Two cases of beer were seized. Albert W. The woman was placed on probation until Sept. 30 and the court recommended that she leave the premises.

Mitchell was also charged with violation of the liquor laws. His case was continued to Friday and sureties set at $300.

MISS WILSON'S FIFTH LETTER

Those at Exposition Miss Whirr of Beachey's Wings

Last week came the dedication of three of the big eastern state buildings:— Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and New York. To me, of course, Massachusetts day was the most interesting, and I was very proud of the magnificent building, standing at the junction of the Avenue of States and the Avenues of Nations. As one of the speakers said, referring to the location of the building, Massachusetts evidently considered that she was still the hub of the universe.

Benjamin Ide Wheeler, President of the University of California, was the chairman of the day, and made a splendid address. There were addresses also by Mr. Alexander Sedgwick of the Massachusetts Commission, and by Third Assistant Secretary of State Phillips, representing the President, and by the Mayor of San Francisco, who delighted the Massachusetts audience by proving that he knew Paul Revere's Ride by heart, although he is a "native son" of California.

Pennsylvania had a special poem written in her honor by Harvey Maitland Watts of which everyone present was given a souvenir copy. There is a good deal of disappointment on the part of the Exposition officials because The Liberty Bell isn't here. It was expected, and the Pennsylvania building has been made with a beautiful central arcade especially designed to give it a suitable setting, but the city of Philadelphia hasn't done its part, though everybody is hoping that it may be persuaded to be generous a little later.

New York, of course, which has one of the finest state buildings, had also very impressive dedication exercises with the Hon. Seth Low to give the dedicatory address, and the Hon Norman E. Mack to preside, and former Vice-President Fairbanks to sit on the platform, it was a memorable occasion.

All these dedications are held out of doors, in the beautiful California sunshine. Sometimes there are various distractions and interruptions such as practice runs of the fire department, or little showers; but this week the dedications went off very quietly, and the chief distraction of all, which used to interrupt the speaker of the day in the midst of his most eloquent paragraphs, disturbs the quiet of the warm afternoons no more. For Lincoln Beachey, the official aviator, who used to make his wonderful, spectacular ascents in the middle of the afternoon, just when the dedications were in full blast, has made his last flight. The great buzzing dragonfly no longer whizzes overhead, doing loops and spirals, holding thousands of people breathless with wonder and delight. We sit quietly through the dedications, undistracted, while over in the big transportation palace, Beachey's aeroplane, suspended from the roof by long wires, swings idly in the passing breeze;—not the new one, that betrayed him to his death, but the old one which served him so faithfully

On Sundays the special attraction is music,—and plenty of it. Here is a sample musical program for the entertainment and refreshment of Sunday visitors. 12.30 P. M. organ recital; 1.00 P. M. band concert in the Zone; 2.00 P. M. concert by the Hawaiian Glee Club; 2.30 P. M. concert by the Philippine Constabulary Band; 3.00 P. M. Symphony concert in Festival Hall; 5.30, an hour of song, Y. W. C. A. building; 6.30 another band concert in the Zone; 7.30, band concert in the Court of the Universe; 8.30 a concert by the French band in Festival Hall.

Indeed, the chief trouble is that there is so much going on all the time, that one has no time to see the Exposition itself, and all the wonderful exhibits. There is enough in the Fine Arts building alone to occupy many, many hours.

This week, Vice President Marshall and his party are here, and the whole week will be devoted to their entertainment. Yesterday afternoon the warships in the harbor were firing reverberating salutes; and there will be banquets and dances and receptions.

The weather, for a week has been uncomfortably warm; spring is coming on at a great rate. The cherry and plum trees are already through blooming, but the apple orchards are in their glory. Sunday, I went out and climbed a small neighboring mountain with the Sierra Club, and we all came back desperately sunburned. The bare, green California hills, were streaked everywhere with huge orange patches of the California poppies; ripe olives were dropping from the trees, and gardens were in full bloom. It is surely the best time of year to see California.

Same thing is true of a seedy town. To be prosperous we must look prosperous and show local pride.

PARK AND DOWNS CHURCH.

Rev. Wm. B. Ayers, gave a most interesting sermon Sunday morning: "Some Reflections on Palm Sunday." The sermon constituted a review of Christ's work since the first Palm Sunday.

After tracing the influence of the Master down through the Christian centuries, showing His influence upon the world's thought, the world's affection and the practical conduct of humanity. The speaker showed that the judgment of Christ must be based upon the enormity of this accomplishment.

He said that people generally accepting the fact that the good that is in the world has come through Him and in His name yet consider the Spirit of Christ as something with which they have nothing personally to do. His spirit is not only a general impulse that ministers to the world but ought to be a very personal inspiration to each individual: the chief interest for every life. He ought to have a personal meaning for everybody. Human nature has not dealt justly by itself until it has provided a place for Christ.

At the evening service the pastor traced the motives and impulses that prompted England's entrance into the present war. He showed the change in England's attitude toward war. Though she has acquired a great portion of the earth as her own yet she recognizes the fact that war is immoral and unchristian and it would not be surprising to see as the outcome of this war an alliance of the United States with England and France to prevent wars and keep the peace of the world.

This feeling that war is immoral is shown by the best people of all countries.

The speaker then traced the development of this feeling and man's efforts to give it adequate expression. After war is ended there will still be a thousand miseries making sad the lot of man. How are these to be removed? There is but one way. Man has recognized the evils in the world from earliest times yet he has been powerless to remove them. And alone he cannot. Christ came for that purpose and seeks to do that very thing. He will work through us if we let him. He will take possession of our lives and if we give them into his care and will show us how to lighten the burdens of mankind.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

At the morning service the Rev. Dr. Sneath preached upon the topic of Christs triumphal entry and drew forth three suggestions for ourselves. The entry was a prophecy of victory. Calvary was a defeat but it was like Bunker Hill, the beginning of a victorious triumph. It is proper to say "Christ is King" because we do it proleptically. It is morally certain that Christianity will ultimately be victorious over the earth. The great problem with the church is the hypnotism of the crowd. The multitudes that hailed Jesus king on Sunday cried "crucify him" on Friday. The crowd today is in the direction of selfishness and the church must courageously face it and influence it the other way.

It is a great lesson for all to learn that God needs us in winning this world to righteousness. This is the vision that our time needs to behold.

At the evening service of the Y. P. S. C. E. Mrs. I. W. Sneath presented original stereopticon views of life in China taken by a friend of hers It was in connection with the monthly missionary study class work.

In addition to the three union services this week in the Baptist, Methodist and Congregational churches there will be a Communion service in the church on Friday evening at which time H. F. VanBuskirk will render several solo selections and Dr. Sneath will preach.

Rev. George M. Bailey will preach at the union service in this church on Thursday evening.

There will be a rehearsal for the May Pageant in the vestry of the church at 3.30 P. M. Wednesday.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

The day, Palm Sunday, suggested the treme of Mr. Willmott's morning sermon.

When Jesus was about to enter Jerusalem amid all the rejoicing and seemingly in triumph as he looked upon the city instead of sharing the general joy he looked upon it with tears. His sympathy was for the city which meant much to him because of its traditions and its people.

There is not a person here but has had vast love and patience lavished on him like that lavished on Jerusalem. Whatever we believe or whatever our intellectual development we are all beneficiaries of the divine patience. None among us could stand if judged without mercy. As he looks at some of us this morning he knows his work and love have been in vain. In many of our lives the spirit of religion has seeped out of our devotion. Here as in Jerusalem of old only the form is left.

The tears of Jesus were shed not because of any emotional pity but because he was suffering with his beloved city. He felt the tragedy of his people. So he must ever suffer as he beholds us losing the faith we have held. We know the things that belong to our peace. Are they the things we are working for? Religion is not a thing to die by but to live by. To live and not to hope, to lay away our dead and not have faith to be empty of God is the only desolation.

The executive committee of the C. E. met in the ladies parlor at 5:15. The devotional meeting followed. Miss Jessie Pratt was leader. The endeavorers are looking forward to having R. H. Magwood of Boston as speaker at the next meeting.

Between 11 A. M. and 4 P. M., the church will be open during Holy Week for silent prayer. On Tuesday evening the pastor will preach. Rev. Edward Norton will preach Thursray evening, On Friday evening Communion service will be held. The Junior Christian Endeavor will meet Thursday afternoon.

FIRST PARISH.

Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson Sunday morning preached the second of his sermons preparatory to Easter, using for his subject the story of the garden of Gethsemane and the lessons to be drawn from it, taking his text the last clause of the 42d verse of the 26th chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew "Thy will be done." From this text he drew a lesson for today.

On Friday at 2.30 the Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet with Mrs. Laura Tirrell of Upland road.

On Easter Sunday a special service will be held, and at this service the annual collection for the use of the American Unitarian association will be taken.

Rev. Mr. Hudson announces that he will be glad to meet and talk with any who are considering the question of uniting with the church on Easter Sunday. Sunday morning after the regular church service he spoke on the significance of such membership.

SHADE FOR LAMP.

Upon Its Selection Depends Beauty of Room.

CRETONNES OR CHINTZ USED.

Pretty Accessories For a Room May Be Inexpensively Made at Home With the Expenditure of Little Time and Energy.

There is no pleasanter task for a young girl than to fix up her own room. Few girls have a sitting room or den in addition to their bedroom. Others must even share their bedrooms with a sister. But if it is possible every girl should have a special sanctum.

If it must be bedroom and den combined it must be especially neat, because in most cases girlish visitors are ushered right in and expect to see an attractive, cozy room.

A little cretonne drapery will do wonders toward making the barest of rooms homelike. This should be plain if the walls are figured or figured if the walls are striped or merely bordered with flowers.

The latest fancy is to decorate the bureau china to correspond with the embroidery pattern of the cover. The girl with a taste for china painting can decorate her own boxes, trays and brush backs, piece by piece, and if she cares to do so can use the same design for the cups and saucers and teapot on her tea table, copying the designs in colors on her tablecloth, doilies and whatever covers she needs on her various dressing tables, chiffoniers and tables.

She might even add an embroidered pillow cushion or two to her window seat. To correspond she should use a design as similar as possible to the wall paper or drapery. Of course, the large splashy cretonne patterns could not be satisfactorily reproduced on chintz even though the cretonne itself could be bordered with lace and used for covers, but a flower design from the mass on the cretonne could be used.

But even with all these preparations her room will be incomplete without a proper shade for her lamp. It may be a kerosene, gas or electric lamp, it may be a tall piano lamp, as shown in the illustration, but whatever she may chose or have thrust upon her in a lighting way must be properly shaded, for upon this depends the success of her room after lamplight.

The lamp shade in the illustration is made on a wire frame, which can be bought in almost any fancy workshop. Rose colored cretonne, with an overcovering of dotted muslin, was used in its development. First the cretonne was stretched plainly upon the frame, and then the muslin was shirred over the cretonne. Flowered cretonne without the covering could be used, as the girl with a talent for this sort of thing will soon discover as she experiments.

Candle shades may be made in the same way, and bits of all over lace may be used for a covering instead of the muslin.

NEW FABRICS.

The vogue of the ruffled dress has turned the tide of the popular embroidered voiles, and instead of the heavy ordered fabrics of other years there are daintier patterns of flowers in silk or cotton scattered not too closely over white or delicately colored grounds and as quant as the blooms from an old fashoned nosegay.

Some of the designs echo the familiar cubist colorings in their gaudiness, but they are usually toned down with touches of black. Black and white embroidery on white promises to be as much a favorite as ever, while gray on white is another attractive combination. Where the material is bordered the design is usually scalloped at the bottom, and one piece of goods has the very commendable feature of three distinct borders to simulate three ruffles when the goods shall be used crosswise for a skirt.

CZAR'S FORCES INVADE HUNGARY

German Reserves Rushed to Aid Austrian Troops

IMPORTANT MOVE BY ITALY

Alpine Troops of First Category and Artillery and Engineer Reserve Officers Called to Colors—Denial That Italy Has Dickered With Austria Concerning Territorial Concessions—Greece Says Maintenance of Neutrality Will Not Interfere With That Nation's Best Interests

London, March 29.—Russian forces are now overrunning the eastern sections of the Hungarian plain, the Austrians having fallen back about thirty miles from the Dukla pass, where the czar's soldiers won a decisive victory.

The Austrians have brought up the last reserves assigned to the Carpathian battle fields, but Russian troops are moving forward unchecked, the spirit of victory animating the czar's soldiers since the fall of Przemysl being truly remarkable, according to observers.

A German reserve force has been sent to the Austrian battle front east of Cracow, where it is expected the all destroying Russian aggressive will next be developed. The advance on Cracow, which Emperor William will defend to the last possible expedient, probably will be made from the direction of Tarnow, although several maneuvers of the Russians recently have indicated that they may wait until they are well advanced into Hungary before they strike at the capital of ancient Poland.

Russia's forces are smashing their way through Bukowina, but not without suffering heavily at the hands of the Austrians, who are maintaining a splendid resistance. Battles of great severity are in progress along the Pruith river.

Destruction In Austrians' Wake

The fact that the Austrians regard their present retreat as a final one is illustrated by their burning of villages and destruction of property as they fall back. Nothing of value is left for the Russians.

In reply to the assertions made by the Germans to the effect that the Russians also were destroying towns in Galicia the Russian war office has issued an official statement setting forth that the czar's troops have not razed any town or village in Galicia.

An official statement issued at Petrograd places the number of Austrians captured at Przemysl at 125,000. There were found in the city 1350 Russian prisoners of war.

In northern Poland Field Marshal von Hindenburg is being hard pressed by the Russian right wing army, which is moving forward steadily west of the middle stretchs of the Niemen river, on the right bank of the Narew and on the left bank of the Vistula. The fighting in this section is continuous and severe, the Germans clinging desperately to the vantage points which they captured in the great raid of six weeks ago.

Italy Nearer War

Italy took an important step towards war by calling to the colors all the Alpine troops of the first category, born in 1883, comprising twenty-three regiments of infantry and mixed artillery and also all artillery and engineer reserve officers.

This mozilization is the more significant as following so closely on the announcement of Austrian troops being massed at Trieste, on the Adriatic coast.

The call created the greatest enthusiasm in Rome, where a big pro-war meeting was held, at which a resolution was unanimously passed requesting the government to obtain, "by arms, the frontiers of Italy." At the close of the meeting a great crowd made a dash for the Austrian embassy, but was charged by troops and dispersed after a number of arrests had been made.

The Alpine troops which are ordered to mobilize are frontier forces especially organized and trained for the defense of Italy's mountain frontiers. They comprise eight regiments (twenty-eight battalions) of Alpine infantry, two regiments of heavy artillery of ten batteries each, one regiment of horse artillery of eight batteries, and ten regiments of fortress artillery.

The Alpine troops are called out for forty-five days and the reserve officers for sixty days from April 16.

The engineers are organized as six regiments, two of them consisting of pioneers, one of pontoon troops, one of telegraph troops, one of railway troops and one of sappers and miners. Their peace strength is 12,000 officers and men. Italy's artillery force consists of 263 batteries, 110 companies and fifty-one depots.

Doings of Von Buelow

Significant in conjunction with the mibilization is the statement coming from Rome, evidently emanating from high official sources, denying the widespread stories that Italy has ever had any direct negotiations with Austria regarding possible territorial concessions on Italy's northern borders.

SCISSOR PASTE

SHIP YARDS ARE BOOMING.

The remarkable change since the time of the Napoleonic wars has come suddenly in the American ship-building industry. The last day of December, 1914, closed one of the poorest years the American ship yards have had in a decade. Today every ship building concern from Bath, Me., down to Newport News in Virginia is working to its fullest capacity, says the New Republic.

One of the largest companies has orders sufficient to keep 6,000 men employed full time for two to three years. Contracts have been closed for forty-eight ocean vessels, and negotiations are pending for sixty more. Prices have been advanced 15 per cent although that fact is not significant. A British company has placed an order for the building of two ships in an American yard, a thing never heard before, and is likely to order two more.

Apparently the American merchant marine has entered upon another period of expansion. The ships ordered and those for which marine architects are now drawing plans embrace not only passenger vessels for the coastwise trade, but freighters for the Pacific and South American service, big cargo carriers for the transatlantic business and oil tankers to go anywhere and everywhere.—Mansfield News.

WATCHFULNESS NECESSARY.

Grass fires are common enough at this season but this year they seem to be more numerous than ever before. Newspapers from all parts of New England says that the firemen are making new records for responses to alarms within a limited period. That is the fact in this city but there have been more fires of the kind in other places. The statement carries its warning. It is that everybody should be exceedingly careful not to start a fire out doors. Exceeding watchfulness in this respect should be the present rule.—Framingham News.

WOMEN POLICE.

Marlboro, which has had two women on its police force for some time, likes their services so well that it has added a third. Cities in the East are a little slow to recognize the value of women in police departments, but the progressive West is wiser. There is much work falling to the lot of the constabulary which women can do better than men. They can keep a watchful eye on their sisters and materially help in the preservation of social order and morality. —Framingham News.

Houghs Neck received an early and unexpected visit from Mayor Campbell Sunday morning. The visit of the mayor was due to many complaints that have been received that grocery stores were being kept open for business on Sunday the same as on week days. In order to satisfy himself on this point the mayor went to see for himself. Just what will come as a result of this visit the residents are in doubt.

New Haven, March 29.—The writ of Miss Susanna E. M. Wahlers of this city against Virginius J. Mayo for support of her 2-year-old daughter was heard before Justice of the Peace Lond in Hampden and after an all-day session adjournment was taken for a week.

The opposing counsel had a fruitless conference lasting several hours, in an effort to effect a settlement out of court.

Mayo heard Miss Wahlers, his former typist, give her testimony. Until the disclosures following the death of Lillian M. Cook by her own hand on West Rock March 4, Miss Wahlers had kept the name of the father of her child from all but her family. Then she brought the suit for support of her child.

This suit has no connection with the $150,000 damage suit brought by Miss Wahlers against Mayo.

GENERAL WHITNEY DEAD

Veteran Soldier Was Chief of Massachusetts State Police

Medford, Mass., March 29.—General Jophanus H. Whitney, chief of the Massachusetts state police, died at his home here. He had been ill since last Christmas with successive attacks of malaria, which developed heart trouble.

In 1862, when 16 years old, Whitney enlisted in the Fifth regiment and served throughout the Civil war. He was commended for personal bravery on several occasions.

Returning from the Civil war, Whitney continued in the state militia and was among the first to respond when the call went out for volunteers in the Spanish war. He went to the front as colonel in command of the Fifth and upon his return from service was breveted brigadier general.

PLATES UNABLE TO STAND THE STRAIN

Probable Cause of the Sinking of Steamer Denver

New York, March 29.—Captain Avery of the American steamer Denver, which was abandoned March 23 after wireless calls for help had brought half a dozen rescuing steamers to the vicinity, arrived here with Mrs. Avery and several members of his crew on the steamer Megantic.

Avery declined to talk of the loss of the ship until he could consult her owners, but from members of the crew it was learned that the Denver had been leaking for several days before her abandonment and that for two days the fires under the boilers had been out.

The Denver was heeled over to an angle of 42 degrees, an exceedingly dangerous position, when the rescuers hove in sight.

From members of the crew of the Denver it was learned the cause of the ship's plight was probably the giving way of plates amidships, following a storm of exceptional violence through which the Denver had fought her way.

TIME IS ALMOST UP

Eitel Friedrich Must Soon Go to Sea or Submit to Internment

Washington, March 29.—Not many more hours remain for the German commerce destroyer Prinz Eitel Friedrich to hold her status in American refuge at Newport News. While government officials still maintain secrecy as to the time given the vessel to make repairs, that time is known to have almost expired, and Commander Thierichens either must dash soon for the open sea, where enemies are lurking, or submit to internment of his ship by the United States for the remainder of the European war.

Although officials generally have believed that the Prinz Eitel would eventually be interned, the dispatch of the battleship Alabama to Hampton Roads on neutrality duty has served to indicate that the navy department may have reason to think she will put to sea.

In view of the fact that British and French warships have been waiting outside the three-mile limit, it is declared, the Washington authorities deem it essential to have means of enforcing neutrality within the waters of American jurisdiction.

SPORTING COMMENT

Quincy athletic followers should be elated with the performance of Allen Connor who won the ante-marathon of St. Alphonsus Saturday afternoon. His time, 46 minutes, was three less than the record made during the race by Clif Horne.

Connor entered the running game because he liked it. He took to it as naturally as a duck to water. Last week it was stated in this column he would make a brilliant showing. Not only did he do that but he came to the fore, 75 yards ahead of his nearest competitor.

It has been with pardonable pride that this friends extolled his virtues and the indications are now that he will bear out their beliefs and fittingly uphold the city's reputation made by Miller, Gram, and Marceau boys, and others who won fame in track events. It is too much to ask Connor to enter the Marathon on April 19 and expect him to finish that grind. If he does enter we hope to see him run his ten miles and then drop out.

COUNTRYSIDE MAGAZINE.

While the April issue of The Countryside Magazine and Suburban Life contains a large amount of planting information of interest to amateur gardeners it also includes many articles that will interest every lover of the great out of doors.

J. Horace McFarland continues his interesting series "My Growing Garden," this instalment headed "Planting of all Sorts with Some Results" being a sympathetic but thoroughly practical account of the work in an ideal garden during April. "Two Ways in which Schools Serve a Suburban Community," by William Merriam Rouse, describes the housemaids' classes and the work for subnormal children in the Montclair, New Jersey, school system. Edward Harrington Lawton tells in "A Country Pastor's Effort to Perfect the Hardy Rose" of the work in rose culture of an obscure parish priest in Oregon. "The 'Made-at-home' Pageant; How to Write and Stage It," by Constance D'Arcy Mackay, is a practical talk on staging local out-door dramas without professional help.

FAITHFUL FOUR ARE DISPERSED

Police End Adventure of Knights of Road

Four boys were taken from the rooms of the North Quincy A. A. Sunday evening by Patrolman McNamara and all are now in charge of Probation Officer Fahey of the district court The police say the boys made their home at the club the past few days.

When taken to police headquarters the prisoners said their names were Albert Francis Murphy 14, of 227 Davis street, and James Clark of 220 Davis street, both of Fall River, William Field 14 years, of 8 Clark avenue, Taunton and James Kell 16 years, of 399 Hancock street, Atlantic.

The quartette when placed on the carpet furnished considerable amusement for the officers Clark claimed to be a singer and was booked as one. Murphy said that was "up and coming and looking for a job." Field was the Lord Chesterfield of the quartette, being gentlemanly in his answers and making no comments, while Kell was quiet.

Clark said he had worked in a mill and earned about $1.25 per week, too little for an active boy, so he became a knight of the road with Murphy. A freight brought them to Taunton and there they met Field, whom they christened "moonface," because of his large round cheeks and baby brown eyes.

All three decided to cast their lot together and chose Boston as their destination. One night was spent in Braintree, in an unknown place, and last Thursday night they reached Quincy and made the acquaintance of the boys of the club.

Clark's voice and his claim to being a quick change artist gained them the friendship of the members and there were no objections to their remaining in the quarters.

Patrolman McNamara learned of their presence and made an investigation. He found Kell had joined the trio and feeling that they shouldn't be leading such a life he telephoned police headquarters.

When taken to police headquarters the boys were attired in ordinary clothing but they declared they were prepared for the worst and exhibited extra sweaters, coats and trousers.

It was then that Clark renewed his claim to being a quick change artist and a singer. He declined to entertain the officers and his only request was to be put with Murphy. This morning the sound of his voice floated into the court room while he was in the detention room, waiting for Judge Avery to give them a little fatherly advice. Probation Officer Fahey found Murphy had been in care of the probationers department before and today officials of the Lyman school will take him back to complete a term.

After the regular session this morning Judge Avery considered the case of Kell. He was adjudged a habitual school offender and was committed to the training school for Bristol and Norfolk County at Walpole. Clark and Field were charged with being runaway boys and held over until Thursday.

"Good Night," said Clark when he heard the decision of the judge, while Moonface said "I should Worry."

ALLEGE ASSAULT AND BATTERY

Daniel J. Moore, 29, of 70 Germaine avenue was charged in court this morning with assault and battery. The police believe he is connected with an assault in a boarding house Saturday night, during which Albert Foy was thrown downstairs and suffered a fracture of the left leg.

Foy was taken to the City Hospital. Moore was arrested at 2 A. M. Sunday morning by Patrolman Broberg on a charge of drunkenness. The second charge was later preferred against him. Moore was fined $15 on the first complaint and the second was continued to April 6. Sureties were placed at $200.

Foy told the police he had been hit over the head with a bottle and had been thrown down stairs.

DOMESTIC TOPICS.

Try having a supply of paper napkins and a roll of oiled paper on hand if there are school lunches to pack. The paper napkins save washing and the oiled paper keeps the lunch from drying out.

To make mock whipped cream use one cupful of milk, sweetened, and a scant teaspoonful of flour. Cook to a cream. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff, pour the boiling cream over them and beat for a minute or two.

Hard boiled eggs should be plunged into cold water as soon as they are removed from the saucepan. This prevents a dark ring from appearing around the yolk.

A thin coating of the best varnish twice a year will do much toward keeping the linoleum bright and shiny and preventing wear.

Anchovies may be used as a garnish for cold meats, and anchovies on toast furnish a nice relish.

Never pierce meat while it is cooking, thus allowing the juice to escape.

A sprig of parsley heated with canned peas gives them a fresh and delicious flavor.

As soon as macaroni has been drained and blanched by throwing it into cold water mix with a little butter to keep it from sticking together.

HOUSEHOLD GENERALIZATION

How to Get the Most Out of Your Income.

In the poor family the larger part of the income is spent for the household needs—food, service, laundry, clothes and household supplies. These lie in the woman's province, and it is therefore fairer for the man to lay aside such a sum as shall cover rent, insurance, heat, light and his own personal needs and bank the rest of the income in a checking account for his wife.

Rent in this land of high rents is often calculated at one-third of the income, but that is too large an obligation to assume, and one-fifth or one-sixth is the only safe reckoning.

Heat and light it is impossible to generalize about, as these expenses will depend entirely on how and where you live. If you live in an apartment you can afford a higher rent in proportion, as your heat will be provided. The heat and light bills are usually better left to the man to regulate and settle, as he is better fitted to cope with the furnace, and in the matter of using light men are naturally the more extravagant and careless. They should therefore have the payment of the bills and the understanding that that brings. Also in the matter of a mistake in the gas or electric meter a man usually feels that he is better able to attend to the subject than a woman.

Food, however, comes entirely in the woman's province, and too large a sum often is allowed for it. This is often not the woman's fault, but is due to the man's insistence on too much and too expensive meat. The man who thinks that he must have a roast, steak or chops every day is an impossible man to cater to economically or efficiently. A variety of cuts, fish once or twice a week and an occasional meatless supper or high tea for a change will keep the meat bill down most amazingly, and the careful and efficient housewife should have no difficulty in keeping her household bills down.

Timely Tip.

When choosing a cream consider the nature of your skin. If it is at all dry do not use a cream with peroxide in it. If, however, the skin is inclined to be oily get one with as little grease in it as possible.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Woolen materials can be cleaned with a dry rubber sponge, care being taken to rub the wrong side of the nap.

Nothing makes better wash cloths than white stockings cut open. The edges may be finished with pink or blue crochet.

For salad dressing three tablespoonfuls of oil, one and one-half of vinegar, quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of pepper.

If you keep a canary see that his cage is spotlessly clean. It is better for his health as well as for the cheerful aspect of the room.

Make a batter with six ounces of flour, one egg and three-quarters pint of milk or milk and water. Pour over the meat and bake for one hour. For serving cut in squares and pile on a hot dish.

New dishes are not so apt to break if they are put into a pan of hot water and set on the stove. Let the water come slowly to a boil. Then take them off the stove and when the water is cool take them out. After this you can put them in as hot water as you wish and have no fear of cracking them.

Delicious Boiled Custard.—Boil an ounce of rice in a pint of milk until the latter is quite creamy. Then strain out the rice, sweeten the milk to taste and add a well beaten egg. Pour into a jug and proceed as directed in the above recipe. This is both economical and nourishing, also suitable for delicate folk or children.

THEN CONVERSATION CEASED

The following story which is going round Washington points a moral too obvious for comment. A man with a very important air recently got on board a Western train, seated himself beside a quiet, unobtrusive stranger and began a conversation. "I'm on my way to the capital," said the important one, "to get a pardon for a convicted thief. I am not acquainted with the governor personally, but he will have to listen to me because he can't afford not to."

"Is the man guilty?" asked the stranger.

"Certainly he is, but that doesn't matter. His friends have promised me $500 if I get him out and it's a pretty cold day when my line of talk runs out. Where are you travelling?"

"I'm going to the capital, too."

"Do you live there?"

"Yes."

"Perhaps you could help me. May I inquire what business you are in?

"Im the governor."—Pathfinder.

BANDIT LEADER LANDS IN JAIL

Shot From Horse by Young Son of Town Marshal

OTHERS ARE SURROUNDED

Chances Are, However, That Men With Price on Their Heads Will Make Their Escape—Posse Battles With Gang Following Daylight Robbery of Banks In Oklahoma

Stroud, Okla., March 29.—Henry Starr, most notorious of modern bank robbers and leader of the gang which has terrorized Oklahoma for more than a year, was shot from his horse by Paul Curry, 18 years old, son of the town marshal, and is in jail here under heavy guard.

Starr and his gang had looted the First National and the Stroud National bank and were trying to escape.

One of the robbers, Bill Estes, fell from his horse badly wounded a mile out of Stroud and was captured. Estes told his captors he had but lately joined the gang. He had $75 in silver with him.

Jerry Turner, a farmer, who was in one of the banks, was fatally wounded when he refused to comply with the robbers' orders to throw up his hands.

When Starr was shot from his horse citizens of Stroud engaged in a desperate battle with eleven other members of his gang.

The bandits, firing as they went, took refuge in a pasture. They rode into a draw, where they were surrounded by a posse of 300 men. Every one of the men in the bandit gang has a price on his head.

Paul Curry is expected to collect the $1000 standing reward for Starr's capture, dead or alive.

Despite the fact that the pasture is surrounded fear is felt that they have escaped through the draw, which is a narrow gully leading almost inaccessibly into the mountains.

Starr has served prison sentences for bank robberies in the southwest and has been accused of others. It is said that in 1902, after Starr's band had robbed a train near Bryor Creek, Okla., they discovered, while galloping to their camp, a Joplin (Mo.) girl, who had fled from the train in terror at the band's shots. The meeting ended in the marriage of Starr and the girl. Mrs. Cora Starr, said to be the heroine of the romance, obtained a divorce two days ago.

When the bandits appeared in Stroud they left their horses in various parts of the town, and were not noticed especially. They divided into two groups. One band went into the First National and the other into the Stroud National.

In both banks the robbers covered the officers with revolvers, and took all of the cash in sight. None of the bank forces offered any resistance. Most of the bandits had mounted their horses before the alarm was given.

ENERGY MEASURED

"Respiration Calorimeter" Shows Many Improved Methods.

ALSO VALUE OF FOODS.

Complete Kitchen Sent by Department of Agriculture to San Francisco Is Composite of Many Model Kitchens, Illustrating Convenient Arrangement.

A machine by which may be measured the amount of energy expended by housekeepers in doing various tasks in different ways is a feature in the department of agriculture's office of experiment stations. By this machine, which is called a "respiration calorimeter," many other experiments may be carried out, such as, for example, determining the relative values of various foods. The accompanying illustration shows a model of this machine, which the department has sent to San Francisco for its exhibit at the Panama-Pacific fair. Within is shown the chair where the subject of the experiment sits, and without are seen the various pieces of apparatus used in measuring and recording the energy expended by the body in doing various tasks and in collecting data in experiments regarding the relative value of foods, etc.

A complete kitchen with a real stove, refrigerator, sink, work table and other necessaries has also been sent. This kitchen is not a model in the sense that every housewife is to try to make hers as nearly like it as possible, but is rather a composite of many possible model kitchens and is designed to illustrate various essential principles of convenient kitchen arrangement. The American housewife, for whose special benefit the model has been constructed, must judge from it what appliances and improvements in arrangement will best fit her peculiar household needs and those of her purse.

One general idea emphasized by the department's San Francisco kitchen is that the size of the ordinary kitchen should be small rather than large if the room is to be used only for the preparation of the meals. It should be as compact as possible to save traveling back and forth. The stove, table and sink should be as near together as is convenient, and the distances to supplies and the dining room or pantry should be short. On the floor of the model room the distances most commonly traveled in preparing and serving meals are indicated by straight lines.

"The fewer ornaments the better in a housewife's workshop" is the text of another lesson of this little exhibit. Corners are rounded; surfaces are plain; there are as few moldings as possible to catch dirt, which must be removed with so much effort. One feature is a table with legs that may be raised or lowered to suit the height of the worker.

The refrigerator as it stands would never in the world recommend itself to any thrifty housewife, for one part of it is lined with solid porcelain, another with enameled steel, another with zinc painted with enamel paint and another with unpainted zinc. However, this refrigerator preaches a sermon of its own, for the advantages and disadvantages of each particular lining are explained in labels attached. Each woman who reads may look for what suits her own refrigerator, and housewives from the north or from the south, from a high, dry region or a low, moist region, may each decide which feature is most adaptable for her own use and pocketbook.

A stew kettle is shown in several common materials in the model kitchen, but no particular make is recommended. The aim is to show sauce pans or kettles made of steel, aluminum, enamelware, copper and earthenware, and descriptive labels explain how each material excels in its own way and its disadvantages.

On the walls of the model are shown samples of the more common floor coverings and wall finishes, with labels setting forth the relative merits and drawbacks of each. Linoleum and oilcloth have their strong points, and so have tinted, painted and undressed wall surfaces. Varnished wall paper is good for some purposes and unvarnished for others.

To Set Stencil Colors.

If you will press a hot flatiron over a pattern that has been stenciled you will find that it will make the color fast so that it cannot be washed out when the fabric is laundered. If you have mixed too much oil with the paints and smeared the fabric, place a blotter over the smear and press with a hot flatiron. The oil will have been absorbed when the blotter is lifted so that it is not noticeable.

"Typhoid Mary" Leaves Trail of Diseased Persons After Her

New York, March 29.—Mary Mullen, typhoid germ carrier, is back under quarantine in her old quarters in North Brothers island, where she spent three years. She was taken there by order of the health board, whose inspectors found twenty-five cases of the disease in her trail.

Miss Mullen, who is known to doctors the country over as "Typhoid Mary," is not ill of the malady herself, but wherever she has been in recent years typhoid has followed.

Her last job was as a cook in the Sloane hospital here. While she was there twenty-five women were stricken with typhoid and two of them died.

WOULD STRENGTHEN JAPANESE ARMY

Election Shows Large Majority In Favor of Militarism

Washington, March 29.—Returns from the election in Japan, cabled to the Japanese embassy here, show that the government party, which favors increase of military strength, will have a large majority in the new house of representatives.

In support of the government there will be 231 members out of a total of 381 in the new house, and possibly several more.

The embassy announced that the Doshi-Kai, which is the Constitutionalist or chief government party, had elected 150 members, while others in support of the cabinet, including the Chusei-Kai party, independents and Count Okuma's supporters, brought the total government strength up to 231.

The Seiyo-Kai, or chief opposition party, elected 108 members, and the Nationalists and independents opposed to the cabinet elected 37. Four ballots are unopened and one independent member is not uncertain.

NOT TOO OLD TO WORK

Woman of Ninety-Eight Warns Court Not to Be "Fresh"

Atlantic City, March 29.—"I had to beg. They all said I was too old to work, but I'm not," declared Mrs. Edna Sheppard when arraigned before Recorder Gaskill on a charge of seeking alms on the streets.

Well, you don't look exactly like a spring chicken. Just what is your age?" inquired the court.

"None of your freshness, young man. I'm only 98 and I'm not ashamed to tell it, either," was the reply.

"Prisoner discharged," was the quick verdict. An investigation later proved that she really was 98 years old.

ESCAPE IN TAXICAB

Highwaymen Hold Up Paymaster and Get $1895 In Cash

New York, March 29.—Detectives are searching for the three highwaymen who felled and robbed Alexander Ogilvie, paymaster for the New York Steam company, of $1895 and then escaped in a taxicab amid a rain of bullets and bricks.

The police have only meagre descriptions of the bandits, although a group of twenty-five workmen watched the robbery from start to finish, and a throng of several hundred gathered before the trio left the paymaster senseless on the sidewalk.

COMMENTS ON STATE'S DEMAND

The Barre, Vt., Times makes the following editorial comment upon a story in the Ledger of March 17 regarding the demand of the state that his city erect a tuberculosis hospital:

"The city of Quincy, Mass., has been ordered by the state of Massachusetts to provide a tuberculosis dispensary at once, the order being issued under the state law which provides that communities having more than 10,000 population shall make such provision for the care of persons having tuberculosis. Quincy has delayed action in the matter for some time, the reasons for the delay being the low financial condition of the municipality and the fact that there was a tuberculosis camp nearby. One of those excuses has now been wiped out by the discontinuance of the tuberculosis camp but we presume the same condition as to finances of the municipality exists; indeed, we never heard of a municipality that had more money than it knew what to do with. No doubt Quincy will find the means to carry out the order of the state, just as most cities do find means for projects when they are forced to provide them. The initial cost of the dispensary is not prohibitive by any means, the sum being set at $35,000; but the upkeep of the institution in the proper manner both summer and winter is likely to make a rather heavy demand upon the taxpayers inasmuch as Quincy has many tuberculosis patients. The Ledger of that city being authority for the statement that all the tuberculosis camps in Massachusetts have patients from Quincy, it will follow that Quincy will be called upon to care for its own people and that the Quincy patients now being treated at other tuberculosis camps and dispensaries will be returned to Quincy for maintenance just as soon as the proposed new institution is in working order. Quincy's problem, we should say, is a good deal like Barre's problem along the same line, only Quincy is in better financial shape to meet the insistent demand for a local dispensary, being a much richer city and having far more diversified industries. Moreover, in the case of Quincy there is a legal, as well as a moral demand, that a tuberculosis dispensary be provided, Vermont not having a state law so drastic as that of Massachusetts."

FIRE ALARM STILL BUSY

A telephone call was received at the central fire station shortly after midnight Saturday night stating that there was a brisk brush fire off Robertson street near the Gridley Bryant school which was getting close to a house in which the family were asleep. Chief Billings sent the auto chemical from the central station whose crew extinguished the blaze.

Sunday afternoon the central station apparatus also went out for a grass fire on South street. The fire was in a swamp covered with bushes through which the fire rushed with great speed spreading to the woods on one side. One dwelling was for a time in immediate danger.

The Wollaston apparatus went out at 11 o'clock for a grass fire on Fenno street.

At 5.20 the Atlantic apparatus put out a grass fire on Squantum street near the Quincy Shore boulevard.

NO APPOINTMENTS YET.

The mayor did not announce the promotions in the police department this morning as anticipated. In fact he said that he did not know just when he should announce them, although it would probably be in a few days. The three names certified to him for promotion to the sergeancy were Jeremiah Hinchon, Edward Johnson and Henry F. Corbett. He must take one of these three names, unless there is some good reason why he should not. As for the promotion to the position of lieutenant it lies between Ernest H. Bishop and John T. Larkin.

HARMONY CLUB MEETS.

The Harmony club held its regular meeting Sunday afternoon in St Marys hall. Plans were made for the fourth annual dance which will be held in St. Mary's hall Wednesday evening May 5th. Several city and state officials will be invited. It is planned to hold a grand opening of the cottage at Nantasket on May 30th.

ALLEN CONNOR WINS GLORY

Allen Connor, son of John Connor and brother of Miss Helen Connor of South Walnut street, won the handicap road race of the St Alphonsus club Saturday afternoon. His elapsed time for the eight miles was 46m 30s and his corrected time 46m. Connor ran a remarkable race, having to battle with a stiff wind and 56 well conditioned athletes.

Clifton Horne of the Dorchester club, the organization which Connor represented, held to his reputation as the New England ten-mile champion by covering the distance in 43 minutes and establishing a record for the course Horne only beat his rival, James Henigan of the same club by ten seconds

Connor's handicap was only four minutes, or 30 seconds less than the limit men He took the lead two miles from the start and was never headed. After the grueling grind he was examined and found to be in good condition.

The toughest part of the grind came along Beacon street where the wind almost swept the lighter men from the course. Connor, although a bantam weight bent forward and skipping lightly in a swinging fashion that wedged him through the small gale, fought his way along.

Turning into the home stretch Connor was leading by 75 yards. with N. R. Betchell of Cambridge in second place, and Connor, running as he never did before faced the finish willingly and with so much reserved strength his rival had no chance of catching up.

Connor's work was wonderful for a 19 year old boy. He entered athletics about three years ago and wanted to be a miler. He trained with that end in view and one of his first trophies was won at the Fourth of July games of 1913 when he beat the field in the mile event. Up to his affiliation with the Dorchester club last November, he wore the colors of the local Y. M. C. A. Last November he finished fifth in the 10-mile championship on Thanksgiving Day. On Washington's birthday he finished seventh in the 10-mile run of the St. Joseph's T. A. S.

Since joining the Dorchester organization he has had the benefit of running with boys of experience and the services of William McVicar, the coach and former distance man.

ASSESSORS START WORK THIS WEEK

The assessors will start their field work Thursday morning and they are hoping for a pleasant day. Usually the boards start in one of the outlying wards. This year, however they will commence in Ward One. The reason for this is that usually there is a good deal of rain the first week in April, and the board say that if they are out in the centre and are caught in a shower it will be easy to go to city hall and do some of the office work. Then if it should come out pleasant again they can resume field work. If they were in one of the outlying wards and had to stop for a shower the remainder of the day would probably be lost.

KATHARYN CRANE HAS CLUB SALE

The sale which was held under the auspices of The Katharyn Crane Memorial club at the home of Mrs. Emery L. Crane last Saturday afternoon was a most gratifying success. Early in the morning patrons dropped in and they continued to come until six o'clock. proving to be most generous buyers.

A long table of necessary household articles attracted every housekeeper as well as the table well laden with most delicious cakes of every description. The grabs were exhausted long before the children had had an opportunity to solve the mysteries of the grab boxes, and cold as it was outside the ice cream found ready sale.

The fancy table was a delight to all, filled as it was with most attractive articles, and the candy table presented the most delicious home-made candies. As a result over one hundred dollars has been added to the treasury. This money will be spent only for philanthropic objects. The club wishes to express most grateful thanks for the co-operation of both those who contributed, and bought, and not least of all, the encouragement and loyalty of its friends.

SAY FIREMAN SET FIRE ILLEGALLY

Samuel Hanson of Brooks street, a call member of the fire department, was one of four men arraigned in court this morning on charges of setting fires in the open air without permits.

Patrolman O'Neil charged that Hanson built a fire within 50 feet of buildings on the property of George Stone, Grand View avenue. Hanson was represented by Atty Frank Tirrell and in his direct testimony said he believed the distance to have been 75 feet. The case was continued to March 30 and he was held in $100. personal recognizance. The actual distance will be determined.

Lawrence Lynch, Old Colony Avenue and George R. Reimer of Billings road pleaded guilty to similar complaints and Judge Avery imposed fines of $10, double the amount of fines imposed in similar cases last week.

John G. Doten of Channing street pleaded nolo and the case was placed on file on payment of $10 costs.

MRS. CATHERINE SHEA.

Catherine, widow of the late John B. Shea, died at her home at 26 Baxter street this morning. She was in her 83rd year and grandmother of Leo Moran o fthis city. Her funeral will take place Wednesday morning with a high mass of requiem at St. John's church.

NOTHING BUT SMOKE.

The central station auto chemical responded to a still alarm on East Elm avenue this morning at 9.40. A fire had been built in a furnace where the smoke pipe was not connected with the chimney, with the result that the house was filled full of smoke.

AT ST. MARYS.

Palm Sunday was observed at St. Mary's church Sunday. The palms were blessed by Rev. William J. Duffy before the ten o'clock mass and were distributed among the people by the altar boys.

The regular meeting of Div. 5, A. O. H., was held Sunday afternoon more than 100 being present. Several applications for membership were received. The division voted to attend Holy Communion in a body at the 9 o'clock mass Sunday, April 11.

REV. P. S. NELDON TO LEAVE HERE APRIL 5

Pastor of Hall Place M. E. Church to Take Up Work in West

Rev. P. S. Neldon, pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church, together with his family will leave next Monday for the West, going to Coshocton, Ohio, where they will spend the summer visiting relatives and taking a rest. In the fall Mr. Neldon will take up work in the North East Ohio Conference.

Next Sunday morning Mr. Neldon will speak on "The Value of the Resurrection." As Mr. Neldon closes his pastorate at this church Easter Sunday, this wil be his last sermon. The Sunday school will give their Easter concert in the evening.

REV. P. S. NELDON.

Since his coming to West Quincy the church has shown a decided improvement along all lines and throughout all departments. In the Sunday school there has been an increase of 40 per cent. in attendance. The teachers have been very faithful and have shown an interest in their work, the Sunday school being especially favored in having such an efficient superintendent. The graded lessons have been adopted.

The membership list of the Epworth League has been revised and is now very much alive. The league was a close second once during this year for the Circuit banner, having had the honor last year of being the first league to win the banner.

During the year the Brotherhood has held several open-nights, at which times some very good addresses were given by A. F. Bromley, A. T. Betts, W. M. Chase, Rev. B. A. Willmott and Prof. H. F. Ward.

The Ladies' Aid has shown how to do things this year. This is a working organization and it has been a strong financial as well as social help.

The Junior league has had a very good year. The little folks have been fairly faithful in their attendance.

The Queen Esther circle was organized during the winter and the young women have had a very profitable time working for, and becoming acquainted with the Home Missionary work.

The Modern Knights of St. Paul, has just been started and they hope eventually to have every fellow over ten years of age in the work.

The morning and evening services have been very well attended. In November a week of special services were held and a great good resulted. On Jan. 3 nineteen persons were received into full membership. Four persons have been received by transfer. Two members have passed away and two have removed by letter.

During their pastorate at West Quincy Rev. and Mrs. Neldon have endeared themselves to the people by their efficient, conscientious efforts and work which have been productive of good results.

The text of the sermon Sunday morning was taken from Matt. 27-35 "And they crucified Him." Mr. Neldon drew a word picture of that terrible event in the life of the Christ as He was crucified, pointing out various things that took place during those hours when Christ was on the cross and then applied to these modern days and showed how some of those things actually take place today.

At the evening service he took for the basis of his thought "The Coat without seam" given in St. John 19-23, applying the thought to the taking of Christ wholly into the life, not accepting Him partially.

The Epworth League Devotional service at 6 P. M. was led by Miss Edna Burke on "The Nation's Wards: the Black men and the Red Men," being assisted by Mrs. F. W. Fuller.

At the session of the Sunday school about 25 persons received the silver pin, having covered the third lap in the "Cross and Crown Attendance contest," started last July.

A special meeting of the Brotherhood is called for this evening in the vestry.

Wednesday evening the Knights of St. Paul will meet at their usual hour.

APPOINTS BISHOP TO POLICE LIEUTENANCY

Edward Johnson Is New Sergeant And Walter Ferguson Becomes Regular

Mayor Campbell has selected Sergt. Ernest H. Bishop for promotion to lieutenant in the police department, Edward Johnson to the position of sergeant and Walter Ferguson for promotion from the reserve force to the position of regular patrolman to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Officer Johnson to sergeant.

The mayor will visit police headquarters at roll call tonight and personally announce the promotions.

Lieut. Bishop has been a member of the police force since 1905 having been appointed Feb. 18 of that year. He was first assigned to the beat at South Quincy, known as the plains. Here he did duty for a time and was then shifted to the Quincy Point beat. His first promotion came in April, 1908, when he was assigned to the night beat in city square, which has always been looked upon as the most important of the city and an assignment to this beat has always been regarded as a promotion. He served here for four years.

On May 13, 1912 he was promoted to the position of sergeant and was assigned to duty at the police station. When the department was put into eight hour shifts he was assigned to the first half of the night desk duty. When Lieut. Hanson retired he was assigned to day duty at the station where he is now stationed. Lieut. Bishop has always been looked upon as one of the best officers of the department and his promotion will give general satisfaction.

Edward Johnson who has been promoted to the position of sergeant has been a member of the police department for a number of years having been appointed June 20, 1903. He has done duty at South and West Quincy and Quincy Point. He is now doing day duty at Quincy Point.

Patrolman Ferguson is in his 24th year and is now the youngest man on the department. He was born in this city and graduated from the Adams school and attended High school two years. He was 22 years of age when he took the police examinations and was soon after appointed a special officer. On Dec. 31, 1913 he was appointed to the reserve force by Mayor Stone. He is a member of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, Clan MacGregor, O. S. C., John Adams court, Foresters of America; Massachusetts Police Relief association and the Holy Name society of St. John's parish.

The promotions will probably go into effect tonight. Sergt. Larkin, who has been on sick leave for several days, returns to duty tonight and it is probable that he will have charge of the desk from 4 P. M. until midnight. From midnight to 8 A. M. the desk will be in charge of Sergt. Johnson and from 8 A. M. until 4 P. M. Lieut. Bishop will be in charge of the desk.

Officer Holloran who has been acting sergeant during the illness of Sergt. Larkin will probably be re-assigned as night wagon man.

There are some other changes that will be necessary by the promotions. A new man will have to be assigned to the day beat of Sergt. Johnson. Officer Olson who has been the night wagon man will be re-assigned and a man will be promoted from the special to the reserve list.

SUFFRAGISTS TO HOLD MEETING

Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald One of Speakers

The first public meeting in the Equal Suffrage campaign being conducted in Quincy will take place in New Colonial hall Wednesday evening and the committee which has been making a personal canvass of the local voters, assisted by Quincy women, will be in charge of the event.

Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald probably one of the best known exponents of the Equal Suffrage propaganda, will be one of the speakers of the evening. Rev. William Lord of Dover, a Unitarian minister and a former local pastor, will be the male speaker. Rupert F. Claflin will be the presiding officer. Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney and Miss Edith Randall, local workers in the cause, will be present.

A small table will be set just inside the entrance to the hall and the literature advocating the extension of the franchise to women will be distributed by Miss Mary Carson. Arrangements have been made for a capacity house, the fine support the campaigners are receiving indicating a large attendance.

Many men of the city have signified their intention of being present, most of them being undecided as to whether they favor votes for women.

MEETINGS AT CLUBHOUSE.

At a conference of the philanthropic workers committee of the Quincy Womens club, Wollaston Woman's club and the Associated Charities association Monday afternoon at the clubhouse an interesting talk was given by Mrs. Josephine Blaikie on "Mothers Aid law" Mrs. Blaikie is thoroughly familiar with her subject and she went into the law at length, explaining in a concise manner its aims and objects.

Following the address there was a meeting of the parliamentary law class at which talks were given by Mr. Stone and Miss Dickerson. Both of these speakers talked about the law relative to contagious hospitals and the care of tubercular patients.

MAMMOTH WHIST PARTY.

The Ladies Catholic Benevolent association has planned a mammoth whist party for April 8 in Cathedral hall, and assisting in the affair will be members of the Quincy branch.

The arrangements were made at a state meeting in Boston Sunday afternoon when the local branch contributed the proceeds of a recent whist party to the fund for the bed at St. Elizabeths hospital. The mammoth whist will be for that fund also.

The Quincy committee consists of President Mrs. William J. Walsh, vice president Miss Elizabeth Mahoney and financial secretary Mrs. Mary McKay.

EASTER SALE.

On the afternoon and evening of March 30th and 31st at the home of Mrs. Bryant 123 Beach street, Wollaston Park, there will be a sale of Easter plants and cut flowers. Also Easter gifts, hand work and Greeting Cards. adv. 27-3t

REV. A. E. HILLMAN GIVES RESIGNATION

St. Paul's Swedish Methodist Church to Lose Its Pastor

NEXT SUNDAY LAST HERE

Quincy is to lose another of its ministers in the person of Rev. A. E. Hillman of St. Pauls Swedish Methodist church who has tendered his resignation. It is announced that he will preach his farewell sermon in Quincy next Sunday. Rev. Mr. Hillman has been pastor of St. Paul's church for several years and has been an untiring worker for its interests. Under his ministration the church has grown rapidly and has increased its usefulness to a wonderful extent.

MAY ASK FOR SIX CENT FARE

The members of the Quincy branch of the Street and Electric Car Employees of America, consisting of employees of the Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth barns, are earnestly discussing the statement made at the arbitration hearing in Boston Monday by James M. Swift, representing the railway, to the effect that the road was too poor to grant an increase in wages and will seek a return to the scale paid in 1912, which was in effect before the present scale.

In some corners the statement is taken as a forerunner of Bay St. St. Ry. Co's request for permission to increase railroad fares throughout its entire system from five to six cents.

The present demand by the blue-uniformed men, according to James M Swift, counsel for the company, is appalling, especially as the financial condition of the company is "critical" The plan to be offered by the company will be a cooperative one, and men entitled to increases will get them.

"The rate of wages asked for by the motormen and conductors," said Mr. Swift, "is appalling. Although the men have suggested that the financial condition of the company be not taken into account, it is quite essential to take it into account. Last fall, when the agreement with the men expired, Pres. Sullivan said at first that he couldn't afford any increase. Then he promised one-half cent an hour increase for one year, and other half-cent increase for the succeeding year. The reduced earnings since last fall show that even that increase would have been unwise. Pres. Sullivan was over-generous. Such an increase would have disturbed the fair balance between the public and investors.

"We shall ask the board therefore to return to the scale of wages in force before the agreement of 1912 was made."

The first witness offered by the company was Albert S. Richey, a professor of electric railway engineering at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and the head of the timetable department of the Bay State. With the use of carefully prepared statistical tables and blueprint charts, Mr. Richey showed that although since the beginning of 1909 the cost of living in the towns and cities where Bay State employees have their homes, has increased 10.41 p. c., the rate of wages paid to the Bay State employees has increased 13.2 p. c. The figures show three wage increases since Jan. 31, 1909—one to 5.9 p. c., the second to 10.8 p. c. and the third to 13.2 p. c. These increases were by agreement.

HOLD SPECIAL MEETING.

The St. Mary's C. T. A. & M. R. society held a special meeting Monday evening with President O'Brien in the chair. The entertainment committee reported a large sale of tickets for the Easter Monday dance and promised to put out the best time ever held under the auspices of the society.

The debating club reported that the first debate will be held April 12. The subject has not yet been selected.

FIND HANSON NOT GUILTY

Fireman's Blaze Was Four Feet Outside Limit

Samuel Hanson, the Wollaston fire man arraigned in court Monday on a charge of setting a fire without a permit, was found not guilty by Judge Avery this morning.

Hanson's case was continued to today so the actual distance between the fire and premises of George Stone of Grand View avenue where he is employed could be determined. The measurements by the police disclosed that he escaped a violation by four feet.

The case of Hanson attracted considerable attention in the courthouse Monday. He was represented by Atty Frank Tirrell. The complainant in the case was Patrolman O'Neil.

COUNCIL DEBATE ON APPROPRIATION ORDER

After Few Changes Measure Is Passed To Be Ordained

The principal debate at the special meeting of the city council Monday evening was on the annual appropriation order. On notice sent out by Mayor Campbell practically every city official was present ready to answer any questions that might be asked of them. A number of these were asked about the amounts for their departments, Councilman Smith being particular in inquiring of several how the item "other expenses" was made up. Although an hour or more was spent in the discussion of the budget but few amendments were made. The amount for care of public buildings was increased from $11,000 to $12,000. The amount of $1,000 for July Fourth celebration was cut out and an item of $250 for the planning board was added, so that the budget was increased by $250, the grand total as passed being $580,457.

The first matter on the call was the drawing of jurors. Two venires were received, one for one grand juror and one for six traverse jurors. The following were drawn: grand juror. John S. Johnson; traverse jurors, William J. Parker, Edward A. Myatt, Timothy J. Golden, Moreton T. Swallow, William E. Barnes and George S. Burr.

The committee on water supply reported a substitute order for $20,000 for water extensions. On motion of Councilman Craig the order was recommitted.

The same committee reported a substitute order for $40,000 for sewer extensions. Referred to finance committee.

The street committee reported the annual street watering order. The order provided for the street watering to commence April 20 and continue until Oct. 20. The amount as appropriated in the budget was $10,000, or $1,000 less than last year. The schedule of streets was practically the same as last year.

In reporting the order the committee state that "there are many streets that have been built in recent years that are being oiled out of the street maintenance account, which the committee believes should be included in the street watering schedule, but can not on account of lack of funds. The committee therefore recommends that the Mayor be requested to forward a supplementary budget to the city council for $5,000 to take care of these streets."

The report was accepted and Councilman McGrath moved that the order be recommitted that the other streets referred to might be added.

It was explained that these other streets were some that had recently been rebuilt and that last year they were taken care of out of the maintenance account. The committee had considered the matter carefully and said it would require at least $5,000 to take care of them.

Councilman Smith asked the Mayor if he would submit a supplementary budget.

"I don't know," replied the Mayor. "As I recall it the amount was fixed upon after a conference with the commissioner and the amount was considered amply sufficient. However, I will give the matter consideration."

In reply to questions Commissioner Brown said that he thought that the schedule as reported could be taken care of for the amount named, $10,000 for the reason that oil was a little cheaper this year and that the season might not be as dry as last year.

The motion of Councilman McGrath was rejected and the order was referred to the finance committee.

The annual appropriation order then came up and took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

The items in the budget were then taken up item by item and adopted. Several of the department officials were asked questions about how the "other expenses" was made up but there was but little debate until the item regarding the repair and care of public buildings was reached.

Councilman Smith moved to amend the amount so as to read $12,000. Several spoke in favor and the motion was adopted.

Capt. McKay of the police department was questioned at length about the cost of the upkeep of the police auto. He said that the amount asked was needed to make some repairs, painting and overhauling.

Under the appropriation for the Board of Health Chairman Buchan told the council what had been expended last year for certain items but

Q. H. S. ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Every High school graduate should be interested in the alumni association formed this winter. It's a good thing for a school to have a live body of men and women interested in its welfare. It's a good thing for a city to have an organization, comprising all sections, with a unified interest. It's a good thing for the graduates to have an opportunity to meet old classmates and keep in touch with their school.

One thing, however, should not be forgotten by those interested in this organization: high school graduates have a habit of growing up and getting married. A wife is not likely to take an active interest in the success of an organization of both men and women from which her husband, not a graduate, is barred. And the husband, of course, is similarly affected when his wife is barred from his alumni association.

Would it not, perhaps, be wise to include the wives or husbands of graduates on the list of those eligible to attend the meetings. Let them be honorary members with no voice in the deliberations of the association but with the privilege of attending.

WITH GRAINS OF SALT.

A press despatch states that on Sunday a German submarine torpedoed a British passenger steamer, the "Falaba," off Milford Haven, South Wales, and it is estimated that one hundred persons, mostly non-combatants were drowned. The German submarine is reported to have circled about, watching the passengers drown without offering aid.

This report, apparently indicating an unbelievable cruelty on the part of the Germans, should be taken with several good-sized grains of salt. Unless the submarine was of a truly unusual size, it would have been next to impossible to take care of 100 persons. And it is not impossible that the condition of the sea or some other consideration not revealed in the meagre information at hand rendered it impossible for the German submarine to approach the steamer and take on even a few of those on the steamer.

THE GRIZZLY BEAR.

According to a recent press despatch from Palm Beach Edward B. McLean, whose chief claim to fame appears to be that he is the father of the "millionaire baby" purchased a real live grizzly bear with which to give an exhibition of the dance of that name. The story goes that McLean entered a cafe with the bear, which he had purchased from an Italian. The first act in the edifying drama was the furnishing the bear of a gallon or so of beer by the refined Mr. McLean. The bear having thereby been brought to a state of sufficient insobriety Bartender McLean sought to induce some of the young women of the place to dance with his fourfooted slave. The women were timid but McLean's checkbook was active and after passing round some $2400 he induced the fair visitors to take a turn with Bruin.

McLean deserves a great deal of credit for devising this new method to aid weary millionaires in getting rid of some of their superfluous wealth. Undoubtedly the dea will become popular and no doubt among the very select and really fashionable teacher of the "Grizzly Bear" will be the beast from whom the name is derived. We trust it will not always be found necessary to give Bruin a gallon of beer.

The clean up, paint up week, which was inaugurated by the Board of Health a year ago, will probably be repeated this year although the exact dates have not as yet been fixed upon. During this week the regular ash teams will carry off old papers and other rubbish in connection with the regular collections of ashes. It is a grand good scheme and affords the housekeeper an opportunity to get rid of the winters accumulation of rubbish.

A contemporary editor gets it about right when he points out that the one-cent postage has one drawback in that we will have to open all envelopes to tell the letters from the circulars.

"MUSICAL ENGINEERS"

Combined Clubs of M. I. T. To Give Concert

Arrangements have been completed for the appearance of the combined Glee, Mandolin and Banjo clubs of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a concert at Alpha hall on Tuesday evening, April 13th under the auspices of the Quincy committee of the Simmons club of Boston.

Although Boston Tech has acquired world-wide fame as the largest technical school in the world, her student activities have in no wise been neglected. In addition to the famous engineers, architects, and scientists, who have gone forth from her halls, several men, famous in other fields, claim Technology as their Alma Mater. Of these Bullard the composer and Gelett Burgess, the humorist, are best known.

The combined clubs are now well advanced in their thirtieth season and enjoy an enviable reputation among the various college musical organizations. Many features will be introduced in the local concert, among which will be an Hawaiian quintet, a Glee club semi-chorus, an instrumental trio and readings. The Hawaiian quintet is composed of members of the Mandolin club, the instrumentation consisting of Ukylelees and a steel guitar. The men appear in the native costume, playing Hawaiian music and singing melodies in the native tongue.

COMBINED MUSICAL CLUBS

THIRTY MEN IN UNIFORMS

Officers Inspect Local Machine Gun Squad

Lt. Col. J. S. Barrows, state inspector, and Lt. W. E. Grey, United States Army inspector, inspected the personel and equipment of the Machine Gun Co., being organized in this city at Union hall Monday evening.

Accompanying them was Col. Warren E. Sweetser of the 6th Regt., to which the company will be attached. Lieut. George M. Downes, detailed to organize the company, and several officers of the 6th regiment who attended as observers.

The company was put through the movement and close orders drills and the school of company and school of squad.

There were 30 uniformed men who lined up for inspection. Arthur B. Hultman, assistant court officer and the biggest militia man in the state, was inspected in citizen's dress, his uniform of extra size not being completed by the tailors.

Lieut. Downes announced that commencing in April the drill evenings would be Tuesday of each week. There are many applications on hand.

AT THE THEATRE

Mary Pickford was the leading light at the Kincaide theatre Monday. She appears in a five reel picture entitled "Such A Little Queen." She is the unrivaled "queen of the Movies" and Manager Wardwell should be congratulated in getting the Paramount films in which she performs. These films are to appear regularly every week at Kincaides. Beautiful scene settings are one of the chief assets of this picture. The plot concerns two foreign countries which want to unite by marrying their prince of one country and the queen of another. Revolution causes the two principals, who do not love each other, to flee to America. There they meet and what happens then can be learned by attending the performance today or Wednesday.

The Pathe Weekly has some interesting pictures of the Boy Scouts of England, showing how they are helping the soldiers.

Rice Bros., two comical German comedians with a slight Jewish accent head the vaudeville. They are willing funmakers and respond with many jokes and humorous songs. Rice & Overholt and Rose Enkle were well received.

The management announces that Thursday besides the Exploits of Elaine Maclyn Arbuckle will appear in the photo play, "Its No Laughing Matter."

PRES. WHITON IS ON GUARD

President Whiton of the city council visited the office of the licensing board of the City of Boston Monday to inquire about the application for a liquor license at the Neponset bridge about which so much has been heard. He was informed by Mr. Fogarty of the board that no application had as yet been made for a license at the Neponset bridge. However, said President Whiton in speaking of it. "Where there is smoke there is apt to be some fire and it will be well for the citizens of Quincy to be alert."

APPOINTS TWO LOCAL DEPUTIES

Asa B. Smith of Boston, grand warden of the Massachusetts N. E. O. P., has appointed Mrs. Isabella V. Sawin and Chester D. Brown of Quincy chapter as deputies. Both received their commissions on Monday.

Mrs. Sawin was warden of the local organization in 1911 and has been chairman of practically all of the important committees for several years. Two years ago she was appointed a deputy and was the first Quincy member to receive that commission. She has been assigned to Pomemah lodge of Brockton.

Chester D. Brown served as warden last year. He is one of the active workers of the organization and is the second local member appointed a deputy. He has been assigned to Tuckawanda lodge of Brockton. At present he is chairman of the degree team committee.

Both will attend the deputies banquet in Kingsley hall, Boston, this evening.

POLICE BOUND TO STOP PRACTICE

The police are determined to put a stop to the riding of bicycles on the sidewalks, and Capt. McKay of the police department has issued orders to the officers strictly to enforce this law. One sees but little riding on the sidewalks in the centre but let him go just outside the shadow of city hall and plenty of men and boys will be seen using the sidewalks in place of the streets and pedestrians have to keep sharp watch or be run down.

TOWN MEETING OF BRAINTREE

The Braintree town meeting was called to order at 7.45 Monday evening.

Article 55 is "to see if the town will authorize and request the school committee to include cooking and sewing among the subjects taught pupils in the public schools and if so to see if the town will vote to raise and appropriate a sum of money to defray the expense thereof and to take any other action in regard thereto."

It was voted that action under this article be referred to the school committee.

Under article 56 it was voted that the Thayer public library be kept open one more week and that the following sums be appropriated for its maintenance:

For general expenses $1,500.00
For distribution of books (East Braintree) 150.00
For Janitor 250.00

Under article 57 it was voted that the sum of $1000 not to be included in the tax levy, be appropriated to be used for the support of a library in Precinct 3, where there shall be furnished in said precinct without cost to the town a building site and library building, the building to cost not less than $5000.

At this time article 80, relative to what action the town might take to allow boating and canoeing on Sunset lake was taken up for consideration.

After considerable argument, it was sense of the meeting that the whole matter be referred to the Water Board.

There was still more argument under article 58 relative to the election of a board of park commissioners.

It was finally voted that the town elect such a board and prescribe the terms of office and the following were elected by ballot:

For one year J. F. Kemp of Precinct Three; for two years, Ray S. Hubbard of Precinct One; for three years Prison Commissioner James H. Stedman of Precinct Two.

Relative to articles 59 and 60, all action on appropriating the sum of $1000 to be expended on park, playground and public lands of the town under direction of park commissioners or otherwise, was indefinitely postponed and the sum of $150 was appropriated to be expended on the Town lands.

Under article 61, last year's balance $202.23 was re-appropriated to be expended on the Hollis playground.

Under articles 62 to 65 the following sums were voted:

Miscellaneous expense—$2000.

To assist Post 87 G. A. R. to defray expenses of Memorial Day—$200.

In accordance with the acceptance of chapter 807 by the Acts of 1913, the sum of $350, was appropriated for compensating certain public employees for injuries sustained in the course of their employment.

Under articles 65 and 66 no money was voted as a reserved fund for extraordinary expenses and action on appropriating $500 for the George Washington memorial building at Washington, D. C., was indefinitely postponed.

Article 67, voted to appropriate from the income of the Electric Light Department the sum of forty-six hundred seventy and 62-100 ($4,670.62) dollars for the Depreciation Fund, the sum of six hundred sixty ($660.00) dollars for interest on bonds; the sum of four hundred thirty ($430.00) dollars for the Sinking Fund; the sum of five hundred three and 38-100 ($503.38) for street light extensions and the sum of three hundred (300) dollars for the salaries of the Municipal Light Board.

Article 68, voted to appropriate the remainder of the income of the Electric Light Department, together with the remaining balance of the income for 1914, for operating expenses, repairs, renewals and new construction.

Under article 69, all action relative to appropriating money for installing and maintaining a street light at the corner of Prospect and Abbott streets.

The meeting was adjourned at 10.30 o'clock until the following evening.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Editor of the Ledger:

Correcting a recent erroneous statement made by an anti-suffragist speaker in this city last week to the effect that one of the first acts of the Nevada legislature after the women in that state got the vote was to re-enact the easy-divorce laws which made Reno a national scandal, it is a fact that the Nevada legislature that originally passed the easy-divorce bill was elected by men alone. All the successive legislatures that kept it on the statute book for many years were elected by men alone; and the legislature that has just restored it was elected by men alone. Nevertheless, Eastern anti-suffragists are pointing to its restoration as an instance of the baleful effects of equal suffrage. Nevada has not yet had a legislature elected by men and women together. On the contrary an easy-divorce bill was defeated by a unanimous vote in the Wyoming house of representatives, the other day after a strong protest against it from the women of the state. The Wyoming legislature was elected by men and women.

And that it is not true that Votes for Women spells inefficiency as several recent letters in your columns would lead the unadvised reader to believe the following editorial from the Boston Transcript of March 26, 1915 most significantly substantiates:

"So far as Tyro, the celebrated feminist metropolis of Kansas, is concerned, "petticoat government" is a failure, and the entire suffragist movement throughout the country has been so completely discredited that it cannot be doubted the cause has sustained a set-back from which it is not likely to recover in this generation. In 1913 Tyro in a moment of madness elected a municipal ticket headed by women. They have had their opportunity to show their capacity for government, and no candid person can successfully deny that they have been found wanting. That the male "Tyros," should now be seeking to wrest the business of government in their town from the hands of these incompetent Amazons is no more than natural and logical under the circumstances, for Mrs. Defenbaugh, the mayorette, and her ignorant associates have well-nigh ruined the city.

"When they entered upon their official duties Tyro was a typical American city. Its treasury was empty, its bills unpaid, its financial problems of such a dignity as to give it a standing with New York and Boston. It was obliged to borrow money to pay its bills. In a little more than one year's time under the suffragettes the town was wrecked. The officials had antagonized the saloon element, had widened several of the streets in the face of logic and common sense, had laid a new system of gas pipes over the protest of prominent citizens, had paid up all debts and current bills, and had actually dared to accumulate a surplus in the town treasury of $1400. No wonder the progressive men have organized a "Tyro for the Tyros" movement. They are confronted by a situation calculated to give them the support and sympathy of every alderman in the land."

Yours very truly,

Wollaston Equal Suffrage league

Handsome Blouse Developed In Cream Georgette Crape

PRETTY WAIST FOR SPRING WEAR.

THE waist illustrated is one of the very handsome spring models for the separate blouse. The material is the durable georgette crape in cream color tucked in clusters of fine pin tucks. A directoire collar and revers open over a vest and high collar of cream colored net tucked and braided. The buttons are covered with the silk.

A New Brassiere.

The newest corset cover combines with it the ruffles needed by flat chested women. The corset cover itself is usually of all over embroidery and buttons down the back. In front a number of tapes run from the low cut neck and on these tapes are run several ruffles. These are drawn to the required fullness in the needed place and then the other end of their tapes are fastened to the waist and belt of the corset cover. The ruffles run up and down instead of across, but are more easily manipulated and more readily laundered, as the tapes can be loosened when the cover is ready for washing.

Chiffon Underbodices.

Dainty little underbodices of chiffon, crepe de chine, wash silk and net are made to wear under transparent blouses.

These charming garments, descendants of the old fashioned corset cover, are as different from that practical and all covering garment as a cup of dainty porcelain is from a stoneware bowl.

Yet both serve the same purpose—that of giving a satisfactory foundation for the outer bodice. To wear with a transparent blouse of lace and chiffon an underbodice must be at once dainty and sufficiently large to serve as a real lining.

Quaintly Pretty New Afternoon Model In Soft Checked Taffeta

CHECKED AFTERNOON GOWN.

THE pretty frock which is pictured here is quaint enough to have been taken out of the pages of Godey's Lady Book. It is of blue and white checked pussy willow taffeta and has the skirt gathered in by a narrow band at the sides to form a hip yoke. A double frill of plain navy pussy willow taffeta borders the skirt. The bodice is belted like a jacket the pointed cuffs and revers being faced with the checked pussy willow silk. The vest and the frilled cuffs are of white net.

TIED UP UNTIL WAR IS ENDED

What Naval Sharps Think of Eitel Friedrich

CAPTAIN ENJOYS TROUBLE

Keeps British and French Cruisers on the Alert Until Time Limit For Repairs Expires—Battleship Alabama In Hampton Roads to Reinforce Destroyers and Submarine

Washington, March 30.—While every precaution is being taken to guard against possible violations of American neutrality, in the event of a dash for sea through the Virginia capes by the German commerce raider, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, naval officers here are almost a unit in the belief that the Eitel Friedrich will cruise no more until the war is over.

They think Captain Thierichens is enjoying the trouble to which he has put the British and French cruisers patrolling the Virginan coast, and is merely awaiting the expiration of the time limit given him for repairs before permitting the collector of customs at Newport News to intern his ship.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, called at the navy department and had a talk with Rear Admiral Fiske, aide for operations. It is supposed he gave assurances that the allies waiting for the Eitel Friedrich would not come within the three-mile limit or do anything else in violation of neutrality.

It was learned that the British government had made representations to the state department in regard to the Eitel Friedrich, taking the ground that in allowing the ship to dock, clean and be painted, the port authorities at Newport News had not observed the treaty stipulations against increasing the naval strength of the ship under the circumstances. Department officials, however, do not accept this view.

The battleship Alabama, which left Philadelphia yesterday afternoon, arrived in Hampton Roads today to reinforce the two destroyers and the submarine on duty there.

It was said at the navy department that in the event of the occurrence of a storm, such as might be expected at any moment in the spring equinoctial season, the submarine and destroyers could not maintain a safe patrol and would have all they could do to protect themselves.

CASH STRANGELY MISSING

Ex-County Treasurer Cannot Account For Its Disappearance

Machias, Me., March 30.—Nearly half of the total amount collected by George H. Harper, as county treasurer of Washington county, in 1914, is missing.

Harper went out of office last January, being defeated for re-election in September. An investigation into his accounts, begun after he left office by Calvin Clark of Lubec, chairman of the county commissioners, shows a deficit of about $22,000.

The books in the county treasurer's office were also gone over by an auditor employed by Harper. His report to the county authorities, it is said, confirms their investigation of the shortage.

Where the money has gone to remains a mystery. Harper claims he does not know where he made his mistakes and knows nothing about the shortage.

MORAN PLEADS GUILTY

Held Without Bail For the Killing of Elizabeth Pelrine

Boston, March 30.—Francis F Moran was arraigned before Judge Barnes, charged with the murder of Elizabeth Pelrine. Moran pleaded guilty and was held without bail for the grand jury.

The courtroom was packed. Moran seemed unaffected by either the crowd or the gravity of the charge against him. He was not represented by counsel.

Moran was taken to the Charles street jail. He did not seem any more affected by the precautions taken to prevent his escape than he did by the scene in the courtroom.

BANDITS' TRAIL IS LOST

Oklahoma Bank Robbers Successfully Elude Their Pursuers

Stroud, Okla., March 30.—Posses that have been searching for the robbers who held up two Stroud banks have returned, having had a fruitless journey trying to pick up the trail of the bandits, which was lost at sundown Sunday.

Members of the posse believe the robbers are now safe in the hills of the Osage nation between Tulse and Bartlesville, and hope of capturing them has been abandoned.

The loot the robbers carried away amounts to $4500, a large part of which is in gold.

SPRING CONCERT BY WOLLASTON GLEE CLUB

Mme. Scotney of Boston Opera Co. Responds With Many Encores

An audience, which overflowed the seating capacity of the Wollaston School hall, attended the spring concert of the Wollaston Glee Club, Monday evening. The club was assisted by Mme. Evelyn Scotney, soprano, of the Boston Opera Company, and William Ellis Weston, accompanist.

Mme. Scotney, who but last week became a resident of Wollaston, was most generous in her encores and was accorded an extended ovation. She brought with her, her own accompanist, Herbert Seiler, who acceptably filled the role.

The opening number was a spirited "Spring March" by Pache, well sung by the members of the club. Mme. Scotney followed with "Una voce poco fa" from "Il barbiere de Siviglia," by Rossini. The soloist had all the high notes and finished touches of the accomplished singer. She was loudly applauded and responded with "Will o' the Wisp."

"A May Night" my Abt, with a tenor solo by E. M. Clark was the next offering of the club. Mr. Clark's voice was most pleasing and with the harmonious background of the chorus the effect was very beautiful.

Hammond's "Lochinvar," with baritone solo by S. B. Bates, brought part one to a close. The recitative was one well suited to the club and Mr. Bates responded finely to the solo parts. Mr. Weston was, as usual, all that could be desired in an accompanist. During intermission the usual mingling of members and friends ensued.

Part two opened with a sad, but sweet melody from a German folk song entitled "Ring and Rose." A group of three German pieces was sung by Mme. Scotney. In these, as in fact throughout the program, Mme. Scotney truly interpreted the words and music of the composers.

The selections were: Standchen, by Strauss; "Du bist die Ruh," by Schubert and "Elfenlied" by Wolf. She was forced to give two encores, "If No One Ever Marries Me" and "Comin' through the Rye." As the strains of the latter began, a wave of spontaneous applause swept over the house.

"The Scissors-Grinder" by Jungst, with its articulated "Yu, Yu" proved popular and the club responded with one of the successes of the last concert, "The Monk of the Mountain." "More and More," by Seifert, was given as the second part of this number.

"The Star," by Rogers; "To a Messenger," by LaForge and "Fairy Pipers," by Brewer, were offerings of Mme. Scotney. The last, a tripping elusive strain, provoked unbounded applause and two encores "To wit, to woo" and "My Lips," resulted.

The closing number was a timely one. "Palm Branches" was sung by the club, with solo by Mr. Clark. The program as a whole was a pleasing one and deserves to rank among the successful productions of this popular organization.

The feature of young women for ushers was a new departure. Those serving were Misses Elizabeth Hubbard, Carolyn Lewis, Muriel Badger, Elizabeth Sayward, Charlotte Barstow and Catherine Follett. Through the courtesy of Charles Luard an attractive floral display graced the stage.

COMMENDS MRS. HASTINGS.

Mayor Campbell believes that, any meritorious act on the part of any official or citizen of the city should not pass unnoticed, and he has taken occasion several times during the past few months to acknowledge and commend meritorious acts. This morning he took occasion to acknowledge another such act. That is the self-sacrificing efforts of Mrs. Mary Hastings to prevent a frantic mother from committing a deed that would have resulted most disastrously. The acknowledgment came in the following letter sent to Mrs. Hastings:

March 29, 1915

Mrs. Mary Hastings,
17 Hill St.,
Quincy, Mass.

My dear Mrs. Hastings:—

My attention has been called to your self-sacrificing attempt to prevent the frantic mother of the little Hannon boy from committing a deed which would have resulted most disastrously

It has been shown repeatedly that our women stand ready and willing to sacrifice all for their families and friends, and this act of yours again proves to us the unselfishness and the high motives which fill your thoughts for the welfare of others.

We are proud of what you did.

Yours very truly.

CHARTER TINKERING.

From the day that the wrecked city of Galveston found it beyond the power of any one man to bring about its rehabilitation and so chose a commission of five to oversee the enormous work and expense involved, the agitators for change in other cities have been continually straining at the leashes of alleged reform in municipal affairs. That a large number of them view all changes as necessarily improvements seems evident from the persistency with which they decry present conditions without being able to specify anything that is askew. It is well to note, however, that none of them follows the model of the progenitor and as fault after fault develops in every new scheme already tried there are hardly any two in the country working on the same plan and changes are frequent where any departure has for the time prevailed. We have before us a clipping from the Elgin Courier of last Tuesday telling of a most pronounced modification in the laws of Illinois regarding Commission City government which has been introduced into the Illinois Legislature and which, if it is enacted will reduce the number of Commissioners in such governments from 5 to 2. One more similar change would put them all on a city manager basis. The Illinois law is to apply to cities of 50,000 inhabitants or less. With the immense diversity of opinions regarding such matters, Waltham's true course is to hold fast to what has proved good.—Waltham Tribune.

ANOTHER BARKIS.

Undisturbed by his lack of success in the Baltimore Democratic convention of 1912, Eugene N. Foss, three times Governor of Massachusetts, has started his boom for the Presidency in 1916. He is a Vermonter, and at the annual meeting of the New England Alumni association of the University of Vermont, of which he is a graduate, he suggested the possibility of his going back into office again. The statement was taken as one of the Foss jokes of which he has a large collection, and which sometimes some of them come true. The alumni having promoted their vice president to the presidency, Foss is reported as saying: "Some of you members seemed troubled as to what you would do with your vice president. You settled the difficulty by making him president. Well, what are you going to do with ex-Governor's?" Another case of "Barkis is willin'," but the "Peggotty" are not worrying. --Lynn Item

SPORTING COMMENT

An interesting athletic exhibition drill was given Friday evening at the Braintree town hall by the boys of Thayer Academy. The proceeds of this affair support their base ball team and the boys get a lot of good training and exercise without having to beg the men of the town for financial aid. An athletic meet is run in connection with the drill and keen competition is shown. This year there was a large program with advertisements which more than paid for the printing. A candy sale also brought in good returns.

In fact the meet was a big success, clearing about two hundred dollars. Thayer always turns out a good base ball team and the equipment is much better than that of the local High school, which has to beg for money to run the teams. Many men would rather buy a ticket to one thing they could attend, than a season ticket, admitting them to afternoon games, which they could not attend.

A meet could be held in the High school gym, which is large enough to have several events that Thayer could not have. If a sufficient amount of enthusiasm among the students could be aroused a successful exhibition might be held.

MOTION PICTURE FILM BILL

Mrs. Julius Andrews chairman of the Legislature committee of the State Federation of Women's clubs, who spoke at the Quincy Women's clubhouse Monday afternoon said she hoped there would be a large delegation from the Quincy Women's club at the Senate chamber, State house, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock when bill 202 ,"To provide for examination and licensing of motion picture films by the State board of labor and industries." comes up. It is a vital question and several of those at the meeting signified their intention of being present.

Senator Langelier has expressed himself as in sympathy with the bill and when he sees the large attendance of those favoring the bill it is hoped he will vote for the measure.

CITY COUNCIL

his figures did not agree with the statement made by the auditor. The City Auditor said that last year his department and the Board of Health did not agree in their methods of bookkeeping but that this year it was all right.

There were no more debates of any moment until the appropriation for the July Fourth celebration was reached.

Councilman Craig moved to amend by striking out the amount $1,000. In support of his motion he said there were many unemployed in the city and that the $1,000 would furnish employment for fifty men for ten weeks.

Councilman Smith opposed the appropriation. The amount could be much better expended in some other way for there were many departments that could well use this amount in their appropriation. He also read a report of the speech of Senator Lodge at Nahant in opposition to an appropriation of $500 in that town for July Fourth, saying that the arguments there were applicable to Quincy.

Councilman Beeman said: "He did not mention the important thing. The city gets back dollar for dollar in property saved because of the celebration. It is not money wasted. It might be a good idea however to omit it one year so that people could see how much it was missed."

Councilman Ross was called to the chair and President Whiton taking the floor spoke at length in favor of the appropriation.

He denied that he needed a celebration to keep his patriotism alive. It was not all for a celebration but it furnished entertainment for thousands. "Would anyone begrudge $1,000 if thereby a child's life was saved or an eye saved? Is it not worth the price? The $1,000 will entertain 30,000 people. I would not have the nerve to stand up here and offer a motion to cut the amount out. If you think it is economy why all right. I will venture to say that the very ones that oppose making an appropriation will be the very first to go to Merrymount park to see the fireworks."

Councilman McGrath: "It is all right to provide for the children, but to go down to Merrymount park to see fireworks is a farce. If the president needs that to bolster up his patriotism he should get another method. As for trouble, the police were so busy watching the parade that they did not see what was going on in the outskirts. Considering everything it would be better this year to sit on the front stoop and think things over."

The council then voted to eliminate the item of $1,000 from the budget.

On motion of Councilman Griffin the amount of $250 was added for the Planning Board.

When the amount for the water department was reached Councilman Prescott moved to strike out the words "Maintenance, clerk, clerk, clerk, and repairs" and insert in place therefor the words "Maintenance, repairs, meters and construction $25,000."

There was considerable opposition to this as it did not state the number of clerks to be employed or the amount they would receive.

Councilman Prescott replied that the commissioner should have the power to employ as many clerks as he desired.

The motion was rejected.

The order was then passed to be ordained and the council adjourned.

APRON SALE.

An apron sale was given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the First church of Squantum Saturday evening in Richard's Memorial hall. Dainty aprons for every occasion were sold at reasonable prices and went quickly. A feature of the sale was the white elephant table where one could purchase most anything with which to decorate the home. It is estimated that about twenty dollars was cleared.

The success of the evening was due to following ladies who assisted Mrs. Richardson, president of the society; Mrs. Matthew McGrain, Mrs. Lingren, Mrs. John Currie, Mrs. C. E. Carlson, Mrs. Gregory, Mrs. James Sumner.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Helen Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron C. Day of Botolph street celebrated her seventeenth birthday Friday evening in a most fitting manner. Her friends assembled at 8 o'clock and the evening was spent playing games and singing, after which refreshments were served.

Those present were:—Bertha Fuller, Viola Jackson, Mary Draper, Marion Wilson, Marion Williams, Waldo Clark, John Reardon, Paul Larkin, James Smith, Harold Sherwin, Glen Arthur and Edwin Day.

F-4 SURELY LOCATED

Efforts Will Now Be Bent Toward Recovery of Sailors' Bodies

Washington, March 30.—Searchers for the lost submarine F-4 reported that they had determined the location of the vessel within a radius of fifty yards, and that she lay at the bottom of the mouth of Honolulu harbor in water ranging from forty-three to sixty fathoms in depth.

This confirms the earlier theory of the naval officials that the F-4 is submerged close to the harbor entrance. They based their opinion largely on reports of fuel oil seen on the surface of the sea, on the stream of air bubbles rising to the surface, and also on the recovery of a piece of the F-4's brass work brought up by a line from the tug Navajo.

Naval officers have abandoned hope of rescuing the twenty-one men aboard the submarine. They say their work now is to recover the bodies and get what salvage there may be in the vessel.

PREFERS CELL TO FINE

Man Who Shot a Cat Will Spend Two Months In Jail

Trenton, March 30.—William Wall was fined $10 in the police court here for killing a neighbor's cat with a bullet because the cat would not let him sleep.

"I'll rot in jail before I'll pay that fine," yelled Wall at the court. He then was sentenced to sixty days in jail, where he can stay, the court declared, until he does rot.

"I'll take a chance," was Wall's comment as he was led to a cell. Friends of the prisoner wish to pay the fine, but he declares he will live on bread and water for the next two months in his cell before he will yield.

SISTERS VICTIMS OF "DOUBLE INSANITY"

Overcome by Strain In Studying Mental Healing

Chicago, March 30.—Local alienists and medical circles exhibit deep interest in the cases of Mrs. Clara L. Kittredge and Miss Mary L. Stephens of Springfield, Mass. Physicians have diagnosed the cases as "double insanity," one of the rarest and most peculiar mental diseases known to medical science.

Mrs. Kittredge and Miss Stephens came here six months ago to study mental healing. The mental strain, according to physicians, proved too much. The women, scantily clad, dashed from their apartment. Trained nurses were placed in charge of them, when they again became suddenly violent. They were removed to a city institution for observation.

"Such cases," explained Dr. Bastall, police physician, "are exceedingly rare. They usually develop when people are together constantly with their minds completely centred on one thing, to the exclusion of everything else. They get to be influenced mutually, one leading the other along."

NO OUTRAGES IN TURKEY

Washington Is Informed That Order Will Be Maintained

Washington, March 30.—The Turkish government denies there have been any disorders at Urumiah, Persia. Ambassador Morgenthau, at Constantinople cabled the state department that the grand vizier had so informed him.

Morgenthau reported that further instructions that order must be maintained had been sent to Urumia at his request, and that Turkish troops were on their way to the scene.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE

The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company All Foreign Rights Reserved

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Jameson, a newspaper man. Enraged at the determined effort which Elaine and Craig Kennedy are making to put an end to his crimes, the Clutching Hand, as this strange criminal is known, resorts to all sorts of the most diabolical schemes to put them out of the way. Each chapter of the story tells of a new plot against their lives and of the way the great detective uses all his skill to save this pretty girl and himself from death.

FOURTEENTH EPISODE

THE RECKONING.

Pacing up and down his den in the heart of Chinatown, Long Sin was thinking over his bargain with Kennedy to betray the infamous Clutching Hand.

At length he seated himself on a teakwood table still deliberating over the promise he had been forced to make to Kennedy.

Suddenly an idea seemed to strike him. Lifting a little hammer, he struck a Chinese gong on the table at his side. At the same time he leaned over and turned the knob at the side of a large roll-top desk.

A few seconds later a sort of hatchway, covered by a rug on the floor, in one corner of the room, was slowly lifted and Long Sin's secretary, a pale, cadaverous Chinaman, appeared from below. He stepped noiselessly into the room and shuffled across to Long Sin and handed him a letter.

Long Sin scowled, as though something had interfered with his own plans, but tore open the envelope without a word, spreading out on his lap the sheet of paper it contained.

The letter was a typewritten message, all in capitals, which read:

"BE AT HEADQUARTERS AT 12. DESTROY THIS IMMEDIATELY."

At the bottom of the note appeared the sinister signature of the Clutching Hand.

Bowing low again, the secretary shuffled across and down again through the hatchway, closing the door as he descended.

Long Sin read the note once more, while his inscrutable face assumed an expression of malicious cunning.

With an air of deliberation he reached for a match and struck it. He had placed the paper in the flame when suddenly he seemed to change his mind. He hastily blew out the match, which had destroyed only a corner of the paper, then folded the note carefully and placed it in his pocket.

A few moments later, with a malignant chuckle, Long Sin rose slowly and left the room.

Meanwhile the master criminal was busily engaged in putting the finishing touches to a final scheme of fiendish ingenuity for the absolute destruction of Craig Kennedy.

He had been at work in a small room fitting up a sort of laboratory, in the mysterious house which now served as his headquarters.

Clutching Hand, at a bench in one corner, had just completed an infernal machine of diabolical cunning, and was wrapping it carefully in paper to make an innocent package.

He was interrupted by a knock at the door. Laying down the bomb he went to answer the summons with a stealthy movement. There stood Long Sin, who had disguised himself as a Chinese laundryman.

"On time—good!" growled Clutching Hand surlily as he closed the door with equal care.

No time was wasted in useless formalities.

"This is a bomb," he went on, pointing to the package. "Carry it carefully. On no account let it slip, or you are a dead man. It must be in Kennedy's laboratory before night. Understand? Can you arrange it?"

Long Sin glanced at the dangerous package, then with an expressive look, replied, "Have no fear. I can do it. It will be in the laboratory within an hour. Trust me."

* * * * * * *

In Kennedy's laboratory I was watching Craig make some experiments with a new X-ray apparatus.

We were oblivious to the passage of time, and only a call over our speaking tube diverted our attention.

I opened the door and a few seconds later Long Sin himself entered.

Kennedy looked up inquiringly as the Chinaman approached, holding out a package which he carried.

"A bomb," he said, in the most matter-of-fact way. "I promised to have it placed in your laboratory before night."

Kennedy took the bomb and carefully placed it under the wonderful rays, then with the fluoroscope over his eyes studied the shadow cast by the rays on its sensitive screen.

"It's a bomb, sure enough," Craig exclaimed, looking up from it at last to me. "It's timed by an ingenious and noiseless little piece of clockwork, in there, too. And it's powerful enough to blow us all, the laboratory included, to kingdom come."

As he spoke, and before I could remonstrate with him, he took the infernal machine and placed it on a table where he set to work on the most delicate and dangerous piece of dissection of which I have ever heard.

Carefully unwrapping the bomb and unscrewing one part while he held another firm, he finally took out of it a bottle of liquid and some powder. Then he placed a few grains of the powder on a dish and dropped on it a drop or two of the liquid. There was a bright flash as the powder ignited instantly.

"Just what I expected," commented Kennedy with a nod, as he examined the clever workmanship of the bomb.

One thing that interested him was that part of the contents had been wrapped in paper to keep them in place. This paper he was now carefully examining with a microscope.

As nearly as I could make it out, the paper contained part of a typewritten cremical formula, which read:

TINCTURE OF IODINE
THREE PARTS OF——

He looked up from his study of the microscope to Long Sin.

"Tell me just how it happened that you got this bomb," he asked.

Without hesitation the Chinaman recited the circumstances, beginning with the note by which he had been summoned.

"A note?" repeated Kennedy, eagerly. "Was it typewritten?"

Long Sin reached into his pocket and produced the note itself, which he had not burned.

As Craig studied the typewritten message from the Clutching Hand I could see that he was growing more and more excited.

"At last he has given us something typewritten," he exclaimed. "To most people, I suppose, it seems that typewriting is the best way to conceal identity. But there are a thousand and one ways of identifying typewriting.

"Look, Walter," he remarked at length, taking a fine tipped pencil and pointing at the distinguishing marks as he talked. "You will notice that all the 'T's' in this note are battered and faint as well as just a trifle out of alignment. Now I will place the paper from the bomb under the microscope and you will see that the 'T's' in the scrap of formula have exactly the same appearance."

I strained my eyes to look. Sure enough, Kennedy was right. There was that unmistakable identity between the T's in the formula and the note.

Kennedy had been gazing at the floor, his face puckered in thought as I looked. Suddenly he clapped his hands together, as if he had made a great discovery.

"I've struck it!" he exclaimed, jumping up. "I was wondering where I had seen typewriting that reminds me of this. Walter, get on your coat and hat. We are on the right trail at last."

With Long Sin we hurried out of the laboratory, leaving him at the nearest taxicab stand, where we jumped into a waiting car.

"It is the clue of the battered 'T's,'" Craig muttered.

Aunt Josephine was in the library knitting when the butler, Jennings, announced us.

"Where is—Miss Dodge?" inquired Kennedy, with suppressed excitement as we entered.

"I think she's out shopping, and I don't know just when she will be back," answered Aunt Josephine, with some surprise. "Why? Is it anything important—any news?"

"Very important," returned Kennedy excitedly. "I think I have the best clue yet. Only—it will be necessary to look through some of the household correspondence immediately to see whether there are certain letters. I wouldn't be surprised if she had some—perhaps not very personal—but I must see them."

Kennedy lost no time. He went to a desk where Elaine generally sat, and quickly took out several typewritten letters. One after another he examined them closely, rejecting one after another, until finally he came to one that seemed to interest him.

He separated it from the rest and fell to studying it, comparing it with the paper from the bomb and the note which Long Sin had received from the Clutching Hand. Then he folded the letter so that the signature and the address could not be read by us.

A portion of the letter I recall read something like this:

"This is his contention: Whereas, TRUTH is the only goal and MATTER is non-existent—"

"Look at this, Walter," remarked Craig, with difficulty restraining himself. "What do you make of it?"

A glance at the typewriting was sufficient to show me that Kennedy had, indeed, made an important discovery.

We stared at each other almost too dazed to speak.

At that moment we were startled by the sudden appearance of Elaine.

She entered the room carrying in her arms a huge bunch of roses which she had evidently just received.

The moment she saw Craig, however, she stopped short with a look of great surprise.

Her keen eye had not missed the fact that several of her letters lay scattered over the top of the desk.

"What are you doing with my letters, Mr. Kennedy?" she asked, in an astonished tone, evidently referring the unceremoniousness with which he had apparently been overhauling her correspondence.

As guardedly as possible, Kennedy met her inquiry, which I could not myself blame her for making.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Dodge," he said, "but a matter has just come up which necessitated merely a cursory examination of some purely formal letters which might have an important bearing on the discovery of the Clutching Hand. Your aunt had no idea where you were, nor when you might return, and the absolute necessity for haste in such an important matter is my only excuse for examining a few minor letters without first obtaining your permission."

She said nothing. At another time such an explanation would have been instantly accepted. Now, however, it was different.

Kennedy read the look on her face and an instant later turned to Aunt Josephine and myself.

"I would very much appreciate a chance to say a few words to Miss Dodge alone," he intimated. "I have had no such opportunity for some time. If you would be so kind as to leave us in the library—for a few minutes—"

He did not finish the sentence. Aunt Josephine had already begun to withdraw and I followed.

For a moment or two Craig and Elaine looked at each other, neither saying a word, each wondering just what was in the other's mind.

Craig cleared his throat, the obvious manner of covering up his emotion.

"Elaine," he said at length, dropping the recent return to "Miss Dodge," for the moment, "Elaine, is there any truth in this morning's newspaper report of—of you?"

She had dropped her eyes. But he persisted, taking a newspaper clipping from his pocket and handing it to her.

Her hand trembled as she glanced over the item:

SOCIETY NOTES.

Dame Rumor is connecting the name of Miss Elaine Dodge, the heiress, with that of Perry Bennett, the famous young lawyer. The announcement of an engagement between them at any time would not surprise.

Elaine read no farther. She handed back the clipping to Kennedy. As her eyes met his she noticed his expression of deep concern, and hesitated with the reply she had evidently been just about to make.

Still, as she lowered her head, it seemed to give silent confirmation to the truth of the newspaper report.

Kennedy said nothing, but his eyes continued to study her face.

He suppressed his feelings with a great effort then, without a word, bowed and left the room.

"Walter," he exclaimed as he rejoined us in the drawing room, where I was chatting with Aunt Josephine, "we must be off again. The trail follows still farther."

An hour or so later, Elaine, whose mind was now in a whirl from what had happened, decided to make a call on her lawyer and the confidant of her father, Perry Bennett.

As Elaine entered his private office, Bennett rose to greet her effusively and they exchanged a few words.

"I mustn't forget to thank you for those lovely roses you sent me," she exclaimed at length. "They were beautiful, and I appreciated them ever so much."

A moment later Bennett led the conversation around until he found an opportunity to make a tactful allusion to the report of their engagement in the morning papers.

He had leaned over, and now attempted to take her hand. She withdrew it, however. There was something about his touch which, try as she might, she could not like. Was it mere prejudice or was it her keen woman's intuition?

Bennett looked at her a moment, suppressing a momentary flash of anger that had reddened his face, and controlled himself as if by a superhuman effort.

"I believe you really love that man Kennedy," he exclaimed in a tone that was almost a hiss. "But I tell you, Elaine, he is all bluff. Why, he has been after that Clutching Hand now for three months—and what has he accomplished? Nothing!"

He paused. Through Elaine's mind there flashed the contrast with Kennedy's even temper and deferential manner.

Bennett, by another effort, seemed to grip his temper again. He paced up and down the room. Then he changed the subject abruptly, and the conversation was resumed with some constraint.

While Elaine and Bennett were talking Kennedy and I had entered the office.

Craig stopped the boy who was about to announce us and asked for Bennett's secretary instead, much to my astonishment.

The boy merely indicated the door of one of the other private offices, and we entered.

We found the secretary hard at work at the typewriter, copying a legal document. Without a word Kennedy at once locked the door.

The secretary rose in surprise, but Craig paid no attention to him. Instead he calmly walked over to the machine and began to examine it.

"Might I ask"—began the secretary.

"You keep quiet," ordered Kennedy, with a nod to me to watch the fellow.

Kennedy Is About to Shoot When He Discovers That It Is Jameson and Not the Clutching Hand Who Lies There Before Him.

"You are under arrest—and the less you say the better for you."

I shall never forget the look that crossed the secretary's face. Was it the surprise of an innocent man?

Taking the man's place at the machine Kennedy removed the legal paper that was in it and put in a new sheet. Then he tapped out, as we watched:

BE AT HEADQUARTERS AT 12. DESTROY THIS IMMEDIATELY.
TINCTURE OF IODINE
THREE PARTS OF—
This is his contention — whereas TRUTH is the only goal and MATTER is nonexistent—

TTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTT

"Look, Walter," he exclaimed as he drew out the paper from the machine.

I bent over, and together we compared the T's with those in the Clutching Hand letter, the paper from the bomb and the letter which Craig had taken from Elaine's desk.

As Craig pointed out the resemblances with a pencil my amazement gradually changed into comprehension and comprehension into conviction. The meaning of it all began to dawn on me.

The writing was identical. There were no differences!

While we were locked in the secretary's office Bennett and Elaine were continuing their chat on various social topics. Suddenly, however, with a glance at the clock, Bennett told Elaine that he had an important letter to dictate and that it must go off at once.

She said that she would excuse him a few minutes, and he pressed a button to call his secretary.

Of course, the secretary did not appear. Bennett left his office, with some annoyance, and went into the adjoining room, the door to which Kennedy had not locked.

MAYOR SEEKS BEST OBTAINABLE

Mayor Campbell held several conferences of late with the school committee relative to plans for the proposed new school building at Quincy Point. The idea is that the city may get the best there is in school equipment for the amount to be expended. It has been pointed out that the Wollaston school is a good building to copy but there have been many improvements in school equipment since that building was erected and the idea of the mayor is to get the best that can be obtained.

The mayor intends shortly to visit Providence, R. I., where a large school building is now being erected which it is said contains the last word in school buildings. The mayor will be accompanied on this visit by Chairman Mackay and Superintendent Barbour of the school board.

A recent engagement is that of John L. Maynard, South Weymouth's superintendent of streets to Mrs. Bertha Carr of South Braintree.

CITY HALL NOTES

Some of the city officials in attendance at the meeting of the city council Monday evening were noticed drawing sighs of relief when the appropriation for their department was passed without their being put on the carpet and asked questions.

The derailment of a locomotive near the Harrison square station early Monday evening delayed all out trains for some time with the result that some of the councilmen who depended on the trains to bring them to the centre were half an hour late in arriving. The street cars did an unusual amount of business owing to the accident.

Lynn, Mass., March 30.—A baby girl weighing fifteen ounces was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Mower of this city. The child is perfect in every way, has a lusty pair of lungs and, according to the physician, has more than an even chance of becoming a full grown person.

The baby can easily be held in the palm of the hand. She is so small that she has to be kept wrapped in cotton batting in a basket kept on a radiator. She has to be fed with a medicine dropper, the little mouth not being large enough to perform natural functions.

REFUSE DINNER FARES FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Committee Recommends Purchase of Playground at Houghs Neck

The school committee at its meeting Tuesday evening turned down the petition of the Squantum Improvement association that pay the fares of the school children from that section so that they might go home to dinner

The committee also voted to recommend to the city council the purchase of 60,000 square feet of land in the rear of the Atherton Hough school building at Houghs Neck which could be used as a playground as well as be available should the city at any time desire to enlarge the present school

The residents of Houghs Neck have frequently petitioned the city council to provide a public playground for the children of that district but nothing has ever been done.

INSP. GOODHUE STOPS RUNAWAY

Inspector Goodhue proved himself a good sprinter Tuesday night and by his activity probably prevented a serious accident. The Inspector stood near the corner of School and Hancock streets about 6.15 Tuesday night, when he saw a runaway coming down Quincy avenue.

The horse was attached to a fruit wagon of Masino Bros. and was in charge of a small boy who had lost control of the animal. The wagon was swaying from side to side and it looked as though it would be smashed at any minute. Had the animal continued on its way to city square where there were many teams, automobiles and pedestrians, a bad accident might have resulted. Inspector Goodhue saw the danger and rushing into the street made a grab for the animal and succeeding in bringing him to a stop near Hancock court.

DISTRICT COURT.

Frank Ericson, 54, of North Abington, was fined $25 on a charge of disorderly conduct on a car.

Walter A. Rowell, 25 Farmington avenue, Braintree, was charged with neglect of family. His case continued to April 3.

LEVY ASSESSMENT.

The trustees of the Wollaston Land company have levied an assessment of 60 cents a share, payable April 8, to provide funds for the payment of interest, taxes expenses and improvements.

MAYOR TALKS TO NEWSBOYS

Gives Some Good Advice To Young Club

Mayor Campbell, in speaking before the Newsboys club in the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night said he had been a newsboy in Providence and that he never regretted it He also promised the members a prize if the plans for their base ball team were perfected.

Mayor Campbell was given a rousing welcome when presented by President William O'Neil. Other speakers were Samuel T. Drew, vice president of the Quincy branch of the Irish Land League, and George F. Angell, one of the local printers.

Mayor Campbell told the boys he was glad to attend a gathering of happy young fellows and said he knew he was right when he said they were all glad they were living .

"You boys" said his honor, "are the future city officials of Quincy, and we older ones are of course anxious that you should receive from time to time such information of the city and what it expects from you as will fit you to assume these great responsibilities later on in life. Now, I do not want you fellows to say that I do not know anything about the newsboy's business, for it is a fact that I was a newsboy myself once and I carried, distributed and sold papers in Providence when I was a fellow just about your own age, so I know that you have your trials as well as we older fellows.

"I have often thought as I looked at some progressive newsboy what a good bright fellow he was going to make when he was a little older, for I have in mind at the present time a boy who has a stand on Essex street in Boston and who has I think one of the best memories of any boy I ever saw.

"Some three years ago I purchased a certain paper from him for two or three nights in succession and since that time he has never failed to draw from the pack the correct paper when he saw me approaching without a word from me. This is all the more remarkable to me owing to the fact that there are times when he does not see me for a period of three or four weeks, yet he never fails to draw that particular paper from the pack. That particular boy has trained his mind to think and remember and it is a great asset to him at the present time, and he will find as he grows older that the training which he is giving himself at the present time will prove of great value to him. Then again, the smiling newsboy is the one we like to do business with. We do not like to do business with the grouchy boy, but the fellow with a smile. You will recall the little saying—'It is easy enough to be pleasant when life goes along like a song, but the boy worth while is the boy who can smile when everything goes dead wrong.'

"The point, therefore, boys is to do your work willingly, conscientiously and at all times with a smile. Have a pleasant 'Thank you' when you sell a paper, and even though the person might find a little fault at a mistake in change or a mistake in a paper, remember that you are a polite little fellow and that you are going to excuse yourself and tell him that you will endeavor to prevent a mistake again. Get yourself in the habit of smiling, be polite, which will include

GIRL HEARS FROM BRITISH SOLDIER

Miss Marion Hewson Gets Letter Thanking Her For Gift

SHE SENT HIM SOCKS

The similarity between the names Hewson and Dewson prompted an English soldier to write little Marion Hewson of Newcomb place one of the saddest letters ever received in Quincy.

Little Marion was one of those who contributed to the war chest sent from Quincy by the English Ivy lodge and in one of the socks she sent a few words of cheer.

The socks were given to Sergt. Charles P. Dewson of the Eighth Battalion of the South Sheffordshire Regiment of the English army, now quartered at Dorset, and in the letter of thanks mention is made of a little girl the daughter of the soldier who hopes to write again but if he doesn't it "will be because he has gone up."

The letter follows:

The Camp,
Bovington, Wood, Dorset,
Feb. 27, 1915.

Dear Marion:

"Thank you so much for the socks you so kindly sent. I think perhaps you will be disappointed that your gift did not actually reach a soldier while still at the front, although I have been and shall be going again soon.

"Believe me, little girl, the soldiers at the front do think very kindly of the generous American people who provide all these necessary articles, although you must forgive the fellows who do not respond to your kindnesses as they are very busy indeed.

"I am sorry that I am not exactly a soldier boy, as perhaps, I am older than your dad. I too have a little girl just two years younger than you and she sends her thanks to you as well.

"What a curious thing that my name should be similar to your own. Thank you once more, little girl. I shall often think of you and if I come back will write to you again. If I do not write, it will be because I have gone up. My love to you."

Yours very sincerely,
CHARLES P. DEWSON, Sergt.,

CHAS. M. BRYANT TO LEAVE CITY

Will Establish Legal Residence at Orleans

It is understood that Charles M. Bryant, three times mayor, many times a councilman and one time a member of the mayors advisory board has shaken the dust of Quincy today and for a brief time at least will claim Orleans, Mass., as his home.

In other words by being in Orleans on April 1, when the assessors start out, his personal estate will be assessed there instead of in Quincy. The reason for his going is understood to be dissatisfaction with the way he was used by the assessors last year. As a result of his change of residence the city will lose the assessment on his personal estate, which last year was valued at $17,600. In other words allowing that the rate this year is the same as in 1914 the city would lose about $400 in taxes.

The tax at Orleans is $3 on a thousand.

CHARLES NICOL.

Charles Nicol one of the best known members of Clan MacGregor, O. S. C. of Quincy, and tanist of the lodge, died at his home on Dysart street this morning after a short illness.

Mr. Nicol was well known in Quincy. He was a member of the first regular police force of the city and covered the South Quincy beat. He resigned in 1902. Shortly after he became associated with his father, James Nicol superintendent of the Mt Wollaston cemetery, and has been connected with the cemetery ever since.

RETURNS HOME.

Rev. A. G. Sporrong of the Swedish Congregational church, who preached and sung at services in the Swedish Congregational church at Woodstock, Ct., returned Tuesday.

This week he will officiate at the holy week service of the congregation which include cottage prayer meetings. On Tuesday evening the parishioners met at the home of John Frederickson at East Braintree. Tonight they meet with Nils Johnson at 197 Centre street and Thursday night with Edward Granlund at 180 Glendale road.

AT ST. MARY'S.

Regular Lenten services will be held at St. Mary's this evening consisting of Stations of the Cross, Rosary and Benediction. Thursday morning at the eight o'clock mass there will be a procession in which the little girls and boys of the Sunday school will take part.

ANTIS MEET.

The Anti-Suffragists lunched at Milton Tuesday with the Milton Anti-Suffrage League. There were 250 guests from Milton, Wollaston, Quincy, Braintree and vicinity.

Members of the junior league of Milton High school attended. The address was by Mrs. Thomas Allen of Boston.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

Dr. A. N. Abbott of South Boston, will address the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Laura Tirrell, 49 Upland road.

Dr. Abbott will discuss "Medical Temperance." He is State superintendent of that work. Members are urged to attend.

SUBMARINE L-4 CAUGHT ON WAYS

Launching at Fore River Yard Halts Abruptly

The L-4, built by the Electric Boat Co., launched at the Fore River shipyard this morning, did not reach the water, getting caught on the ways after she had gone about a boat length. She will be sent the remainder of the distance Thursday morning.

The incident was the result of an attempt to avoid launching the boat with as much speed as one of the submarines launched several months ago which got away from the chains and buried its nose in the mud on the opposite bank. Officials of the company said the ways had been slowed down too much. All of the other ceremonies were held.

Florence Loomis Gardner wife of Stephen A. Gardner, manager of the Quincy plant, was the sponsor. Mrs. Gardner carried a monster bouquet of Milady roses, given her as she ascended the launching stand.

After the ceremonies there was an informal reception and she was presented with the fragments of the christening bottle encased in a Teakwood box and a silver plate suitably inscribed. H. F. Epes, assistant manager of the Quincy plant, made the presentation.

The L-4 is one of seven contracted for by the Electric Boat Co. Three have been launched. The ship is about 175 feet long and costs about $530,000. She has a cruising radius of about 2500 miles and is built to make 14 knots on the surface and 11 submerged. The submarine is of the coast and harbor defense type.

WILL JITNEY BUS COME TO QUINCY?

One Man Considers Feasibility of Quincy to Wollaston Line

Will the jitney bus supplement the street cars? That is the burning question today among some street railway officials. Quincy has no such conveyance as yet but like death and taxes it is almost sure to come.

A year ago there was a sort of jitney bus arrangement started between Quincy depot and Houghs Neck. The affair was like an ark, being home made. The top was built over the chasis of a motor truck. The thing looked top heavy and many hesitated to use it for fear of being capsized. Before this was put on however an enterprising owner of a motor truck tried the scheme of transporting passengers between city square and Houghs Neck but he only ran two days when he gave it up. The other arrangement however ran until it had a breakdown and blocked up Sea street for two or three days.

However, the jitney bus seems likely to come sooner or later. In Brockton ten such licenses have already been issued and thirty other applications have been filed. Whether the jitneys have come to stay or are only temporary only time will tell.

No licenses have been issued in Quincy as yet, as far as known no application for licenses have been filed with the licensing board. The matter however is being agitated by one person at least, although he is not a resident of Quincy. This man visited city hall the other day and interviewed the city clerk to whom he suggested that it would be a good idea to establish a jitney bus that would run between Wollaston and Quincy. The city clerk however said that he had plenty to occupy his time without going into the jitney bus business.

In Washington a women who owned an automobile was in the habit of taking her friends from a suburb when she went to business in the morning. This gave her an idea and now she is reported to be doing a land office business.

IS MR. BRYANT TO BLAME?

Quincy regrets the decision of Hon. Charles M. Bryant to surrender his citizenship in a city to whose public life he has contributed so much. Doubtless he will continue to live here a certain portion of the year but his residence on the first day of April will be Orleans, Mass., which rejoices in a tax rate of three dollars. Mr. Bryant makes no attempt to conceal the reason for his taking up a legal residence in some place other than Quincy. Last year's assessors boosted his property valuation sever al thousand dollars. We are sorry that Mr. Bryant is going to leave Quincy but we really cannot blame him over much.

"A tax of $22 or so on a thousand, when applied to personal property, is abominable. This means a tax of 2.2 per cent on stock, which usually doesn't pay more than 6 per cent, a net income of 3.8 per cent, which is less than can be secured from many savings banks.

Mr. Bryant is hardly to be blamed for disliking to pay so high a tax. The assessors are certainly not to be blamed for assessing an individual on full valuation. That is what they promise on oath to do when they assume the duties of the office.

If the blame cannot be placed upon the individual or upon the assessors where should it be placed. Not upon the city, because a tax rate in Quincy of $20 on a thousand, 2 per cent. would still be scandulously large for personal property and yet would not be excessive upon real property. Isn't the solution as clear as day?

Should there not be a different system of taxation for personal and real property?

It is pretty generally admitted that there should be a distinction and yet that is about as far as the matter has gone. There is a bill before the present session of the legislature framed to draw this distinction. It would impose a small tax, three or four mills, instead of two or three per cent, upon personal property, this tax to be paid to the state and then redistributed in the proper ratio among the cities and towns.

The enactment of some such constitutional amendment, with a penalty attached for non declaration of taxable property, would bring millions of dollars into the treasuries of cities and towns of Massachusetts and would not impose a heavy burden on any individual. It would remove the temptation for persons with business interests in Quincy or with real estate in Quincy to flee from the necessarily high tax rate of a city to the low tax rate of a country community. The three mill tax rate of Orleans is high enough for personal property in Quincy.

The Ledger has spoken editorially upon this subject before. At the risk of becoming wearisome it is likely to do so again, because it believes that the subject is a vital one and that the changing of the present abominable statute on the subject would do more real good for Quincy and for Massachusetts than any other single thing we have in mind.

If Quincy's representatives at Beacon hill would put their energy toward this purpose they would deserve the gratitude of the voters and could rest assured that they had done something far more important than securing bridges, state roads or any other minor improvement. If we had the benefit of a three mill tax in Quincy we could build roads and bridges of our own whenever the fancy struck us.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION

When men like ex-Governor Foss and the British Chancellor of the Exchequer come out flatly for national prohibition it is time to sit up and take notice. David Lloyd George, what ever else may be said of him is one of the shrewdest politicians in England today, and Mr. Foss has more than once proved his ability along that line. The latter has exhibited on several occasions an uncanny premonition of what would soon become a popular demand and has clambered onto the wagon before any of his political rivals could see the reason for his action.

Mr. Foss declares that it is inconsistent for him to vote to retain license in Boston and vicinity and yet to give orders to his factory superintendents to discharge all drinking men.

This nation, declares the ex-governor, cannot exist half wet and half dry. The expression, if a trifle grandiloquent, may have an atom or two of truth. At all events the question is an important one and it can no longer be disregarded. It must sooner or later be squarely faced, the sentiment of the people must be secured.

David Lloyd George expresses the proper attitude which should precede national prohibition when he states that the public sentiment on the matter should be ascertained.

PLACES WOMEN ON PROBATION

Three women, were before Judge Avery this morning on a charge of practicing medicine without being registered with the State Board. Two were placed on probation for a year, with the understanding that they would refrain from further activities and the case of the third was continued.

The defendants were Mrs. Wendli Pyyny of Buckley street, Mrs. Plaudilla Jacobucci of Whter street and Alma Stem of Norwood, formerly of Quincy.

Inspector Alfred W. Goodhue of the police department was the complainant in all three cases. State Officer Keating was in court as the representative of the State Board.

Mrs. Pyyny and Mrs. Stem were placed on probation and Mrs. Jacobucci will be given a hearing Friday.

The specific complaint alleged that the defendants were not lawfully authorized to practice medicine within this commonwealth and registered as required by law, to practice and attempt to practice medicine, the same not being medical and surgical service in the case of emergency, or the domestic administration of family remedies.

Judge Avery in accepting pleas of nolo contendere and imposing probation intimated that if the probation was violated fines of $100 would be imposed.

MAYOR SPEAKS AT ROLL CALL

Officially Announces Police Promotions

As was announced in Tuesday's Ledger, Mayor Campbell paid a visit to police headquarters that evening and officially announced the promotions in the police department which were made necessary by the retirement some weeks ago of Lieut. Mark E. Hanson. His honor arrived at headquarters shortly before 7 o'clock at which hour the patrolmen were lined up in the guard room for the nightly roll call. After roll call Capt. McKay introduced the mayor, the patrolmen standing at attention:

The announcement of the promotions has been delayed somewhat for the reason that it was necessary to hold a civil service examination. This examination was held on March 1, but it was not until this week that the Mayor received the official standing of those who took the examination from the civil service commission.

In making the announcement of the promotions the mayor said in part:

"I want you to feel, men, that my coming occasionally to your roll-call does not indicate that I have criticism to make or censure to give Oh the other hand I have always felt that it was good policy and the right thing to do occasionally to express to you gentlemen—appreciation.

When last here you were notified of several changes, especially in routes, and you were asked to co-operate with your superior officers and myself in caring for and protecting the interests of our citizens. I want to tell you tonight gentlemen that I feel that you are endeavoring to do this and I appreciate it and thank you for it. There are still many things to do but I feel that with your co-operation we will accomplish what is best for the protection of our city.

The Mayor then asked Sergeant Bishop to step forward and said: "It is certainly a pleasure to notify you officially that I have appointed you to the higher office of lieutenant of the Police Department. Your services in the ranks as sergeant have been most satisfactory and the excellent standing which you made at the examination is another proof of your ability. I extend to you the thanks of the city for your services in the past and extend to you my best wishes in your new position.

Sergt. Johnson was unable to be present and Mayor Campbell requested Acting Chief McKay to deliver his commission to him. This formality was complied with when Sergt. Johnson took charge of the desk at midnight.

In speaking of the appointment Mayor Campbell said he had carefully considered the matter of a sergeant and that the choice of Sergt. Johnson brought him into the official family of the police department. He said the duties were important and that it was with pleasure he made the appointment.

The Mayor then asked for reserve officer Walter Ferguson to step forward, and said: "In selecting you for promotion from the reserve list to the permanent list I will confess it was somewhat of a serious problem. There were several officers on this list whose experience and work has been satisfactory, but I have decided that you should be the appointee at this time. Your work as a reserve officer has been satisfactory, you have had a great deal of work to do as such an officer, and your experience should place you where it would be possible for you to take hold of the new work without delay, and with credit to the city and to the entire force as a whole, and it is with pleasure that I hand you notice of your appointment to that office."

LINEN SHOWER FOR MISS BRUNET

A linen shower was tendered to Miss Delma Brunet at the home of Miss Maud Johnston, 181 Granite street Tuesday evening.

Miss Brunet had been invited to spend a quiet evening with her friend Miss Johnston and as she entered the parlor where her young girl friends awaited her arrival she was showered with many handsome pieces of linen.

At 9.30 all adjourned to the dining room which was prettily decorated with pink and white festoons. From the chandelier was suspended two large pink and white hearts, while pink and white carnations were arranged in the center of the table.

Refreshments were served and all were requested to partake of some "chicken pie." A large dish, from under the cover of which hung small strands of ribbon, was then placed on a small stand; each one took hold of the ends of the ribbon and were instructed to pull when the cover was raised.

When the word was given, the ribbons were pulled and there were many exclamations of surprise and delight to find that tiny Easter chicks were attached to the other ends of the ribbons.

Games were indulged in and all made merry until nearly midnight, when they departed for their homes, extending their good wishes and congratulations to Miss Delma who is soon to become the bride of Howard Johnston.

Among those present were the Misses Margaret Raab, Muriel Tregaskis, Mabel and Alice Dickie, Elizabeth Schatzel, Mildred Moyle, Mary Geary, Jennie Dugan, Elemore Brunet, Mary Pinardi, Libbie Wetherspoon, Maud Johnston, Etta Williams, Mrs. Minnie Tregaskis, Mrs. Joseph Brunet, Mrs. Franklin Johnston, and Mrs. Thomas Johnston.

LIQUOR DEALER ADMITS DEFEAT

Applicant For License Withdraws From Fight

No application for a license to conduct a saloon at Neponset bridge has been filed and probably will not be filed this year as a result of the firm opposition on the part of leading citizens of this city.

A visit to the Board of License Commissioners of Boston revealed that fact and indicated that the person who intended making such application had decided to delay filing it until a more opportune time.

It was early last week that the facts of the case were published and without delay the Ledger reporter sounded local sentiment. A firm opposition was uncovered and one of the first to give his views was President Whiton. Not only did President Whiton point out the danger of the location to the city but his position was backed up by Atty. J. J. McAnarney, A. F. Bromley of the local Y. M. C. A., Atty. John D. Mackay, Charles H Johnson and others. Not all of the interviews secured by the Ledger man have been published the delay in filing the application, becoming known and making it unnecessary.

A resolution has been prepared opposing such a grant and will be presented to the City Council at the meeting on April 5 and the Quincy No-License league has prepared an elaborate resolution on the question. The resolutions are not only vigorous protests but they also will put Quincy on record so that the License Board of Boston can in the future always refer to them and know local sentiment if the unnamed applicant should again change his mind and want the license privilege

HEAR PETITION ON SEWAGE

That Hull has no bonded indebtedness and is able to assume the cost of a permanent sewage system was one of the principal arguments advanced at the hearing before the Port Directors Tuesday on the petition of the town to maintain a pipe line for the disposal of sewage in Weir river. Some speakers expressed a willingness to assume 100 per cent. of the cost of a permanent system instead of the customary percentage assessed on abuttors.

More than 70 leading citizens opposed the granting of the petition, and included in the group were representatives of the Brewer estate of Hingham and William R. and Arthur L. Thomas of Quincy. Quincy and Hingham were not officially represented.

The opposition pointed out the pipe line would cost $40,000 and be temporary and that Hull was in a position to assume the cost of a permanent and complete system, estimated to cost $250,000.

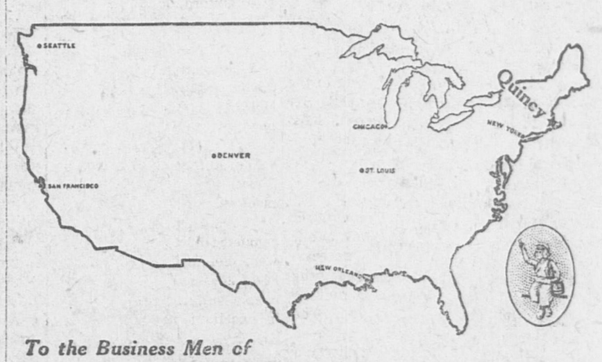
It was also stated that the pipe line would be a menace to navigation on account of its proximity to the channel and would endanger the public health.

Those in favor of the petition spoke of the needs of a system.

The Port Directors took the matter under advisement.

ANNUAL EASTER SALE.

The annual Easter sale of the Ladies circle of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church was held Tuesday evening in the chapel of the church. Supper was served at six o'clock by the members. Useful and fancy articles in great variety were on sale at the several tables arranged about the vestry.



To the Business Men of
QUINCY

When a good salesman goes out after business, he first puts on a clean collar and gets his shoes shined. Then he looks like more business—and he's made a flying start toward getting it.

Likewise, a community can go after more business—and get it. The "clean collar and shiny shoes" of this town are the well-painted stores, the bright, cheery homes, the fresh, clean-looking buildings. The part paint plays in building up local pride cannot be put in figures—but its good effects are recorded on the local merchants' sales sheets. Buy good paint. We recommend and sell and pure linseed oil. We know of nothing else so satisfactory, so lasting and cheap in the long run. We sell all other paint necessaries as well. Get in touch with us today.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB

A large number of members and friends attended the conference in the Methodist vestry given under the auspices of the Home Economics committee Monday afternoon In the absence of the chairman Mrs. John O. Short, Mrs. Albee took charge of the meeting.

The musical part of the program consisted of two violin solos which were delightfully rendered by Miss Field accompanied by Mrs. Roach and a solo sung by Miss Ripley who was in excellent voice, accompanied by Miss Ross. Mrs. Ripley is the possessor of a very rich contralto voice.

Mrs. Miller of the Filene Co. when introduced gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "The Economical Buying of Cloths." Mrs. Miller called attention to the fact that the public creates the demand, therefore it is necessary to demand that which is of most practical service and not too extreme in style The necessity of encouraging American made goods was also shown. Mrs. Miller told several instances where goods which were made in America had to be shipped to Europe and resold in this country labeled "Imported" before they were appreciated.

Mrs. Miller told how to take care of stockings and shoes in order to prolong their life, and of the value of the properly fitted corset. Unlike tradition the slender woman can no longer close her eyes and say "I want the best thing you have for a dollar." A little insight was given into the way the buyers of various departments buy their goods and a very interesting talk on the manufacture of woolens and the scarcity of the so-called "all wool."

The amount of lead and zinc put into tafeta silk to cause the rustle, incidentally caused the cracking There is however a material known as silk-fibre which in reality is not silk at all but closely resembles it and is a soft and durable fabric.

Much time was spent in explaining intelligent buying of underwear gloves etc. It was necessary to find the best color and by a symphony in that color one would be well dressed.

At the close of the talk Mrs. Albee invited those present to remain for a cup of tea and a social half hour which was much enjoyed.

CLOSING MEETING OF CLASS.

Mrs. Julius Andrews of the State Federation legislative department gave a talk on the bills before the Legislature that have been endorsed by the Federation, at the last lecture of the Parliamentary law class of the Quincy Women's club at the clubhouse Monday afternoon.

Preceding the talk the last meeting of the class in parliamentary law instructed by Mrs. Electa C. Sherman was held and was a review of the course, members taking part in the drill. Many club members accepted the invitation to be present.

The afternoon was in charge of Mrs. W. Ward Whitcher, chairman of the Legislative committee who said the State Federation was most fortunate in having Mrs. Andrews to take care of its interests.

Mrs. Andrews said Bill 202 "To provide for examination and licensing of motion picture films by the State board of labor and industries" was a most important one and told why the state should have this supervision. Given into the hands of this commission incurs no extra expense. Mrs. Andrews said that Senator Langelier had expressed himself in sympathy with bill. A show of hands indicated that many women from the Quincy and Wollaston clubs would be at the senate chamber Thursday afternoon when the vote was taken.

The bill "To provide for a school for the feeble minded in the western part of the Commonwealth" is a vital question, appreciated fully by those who have visited Dr. Fernald's school at Waverly. This school is the best argument for another. Figures were given to show the great need and how the community would be benefited if the bill goes through.

The bill "To protect the public health against danger from the sale of impure milk and cream, to authorize the expenditure of money for the inspection of dairies and milk plants outside the Commonwealth," which has been favorably reported has been endorsed by the Federation as well as Bill 4 "State Control of County prisons." The great need of such a law as the Probation bill provides was explained. Mrs. Andrews said she had been impressed with the economic side of probation work, which is enormous but still more by the fact that young men and women are being saved to themselves, given a chance to get on their feet physically and morally, offered a helping hand.

Mrs. Andrews made an earnest appeal that women make a personal effort toward the passage of these bills by personal word or letter to representatives or senators in their district Senators she said had spoken highly of the good work done by the Federation and one man said "there is no man's organization in the state equal to the State Federation of Women's clubs."

Miss Jenny Purchase secretary of the Quincy Associated Charities introduced Seymour H. Stone, secretary of the Massachusetts Anti-Tuberculosis League who spoke on the Laws relating to the local Tuberculosis Hospital and Dispensary.

Mrs. T. Ray Blanchard gave two violin selections "Meditation" by Thais and "Adagio Pathetique" by Benjamin Godard with Mrs. John F. Hunt as accompanist. The musical program was very much enjoyed, Mrs. Blanchard playing with pleasing touch and interpretation.

Refreshments of cocoa, fancy cakes and crackers were served under the direction of Mrs Charles W. Guy. The pourers were Mrs Victor E. Miller, Mrs. William G. Shaw and the servers Mrs. George C. Fuller, Miss Eva M. Brown and Miss Addie J. Park.

CAPTAIN PENSIONED AGAINST HIS WISHES

Court Says Aged Police Official Must Be Reinstated

Somerville, Mass., March 31.—Captain Robert R. Perry of the Somerville police department, who last June, against his wishes, was retired on a pension, was ordered reinstated by justice Farrell in the Somerville police court. In his finding Farrell stated that Perry had been lowered in rank and compensation, and was removed from the force without cause.

The removal of Perry caused friction both within and outside the police department. Despite his protest he was retired and pensioned, but subsequently petitioned for a review of the evidence by the Somerville police court.

Before the case was heard City Solicitor Kain asked for a writ of prohibition to restrain the justices of the lower court from reviewing the case. Thereupon it was taken to the supreme court, which ruled that the lower court had the right to review the evidence. Perry is in his 73d year.

LIABILITIES OF $220,000

Receiver Appointed to Protect the Interests of Hammerstein

New York, March 31.—Federal Judge Hunt appointed Irving M. Ditterhoeffer receiver for Oscar Hammerstein, operatic impressario. The American Seating company sued Hammerstein for $6000.

The operatic producer's assets were stated to be realty of $700,000, mortgaged for $350,000, on which renewals are refused. His liabilities are said to aggregate $220,000.

Hammerstein was released Monday from a hospital following an operation, and is said to be still in precarious condition. The receivership was decided upon to protect his interests.

Mayor Curley of Boston was given a practical lesson in pruning yesterday, when the finance commission reported privately to the city council committee on appropriations a proposed cut of $450,000 in the mayor's $22,000,000 budget.

John Q. Robertson, 82, of 14 Laurel street, Waltham, was burned to death yesterday when a spark from his pipe ignited his beard and the flames burned it off and set fire to his clothes.

The views of the United States government regarding the sinking by the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich of the American ship William P. Frye finally have been put in the form of a note, which, it is expected, will soon be communicated to the German government through Ambassador Gerard at Berlin.

DETECTIVE TELLS STORY

Appears as Witness For Prosecution In Cathedral Bomb Case

New York, March 31.—Amedeo Poignani, the detective who uncovered the St. Patrick's cathedral bomb conspiracy, testified at the trial of Frank Abarno and Carmine Carbone, charged with making and placing a bomb in the cathedral. Poignani, while posing as an anarchist, gained the confidence of the defendants and he associated with them until they were arrested.

The detective explained his association and conversations with the defendants and told of their alleged plans to blow up the cathedral. Poignani also testified that Carbone had said "we want to get after Carnegie and the Vanderbilts," and that Rockefeller "would be blown up."

A vigorous cross examination by attorneys for Abarno and Carbone failed to cause the detective to change his testimony.

BANDITS SURROUNDED

Men Who Robbed Two Banks May Not Be Taken Alive

Chandler, Okla., March 31.—Sheriff Wilder says he has located the robbers who looted the two banks at Stroud. The outlaws are in the Osage hills about fourteen miles from Stroud and have been surrounded, the sheriff says. He is planning to close in on the band as soon as he has enough picked men.

The fugitives had no provisions with them when they fled from Stroud, and the sheriff believes they have had no opportunity to get any.

The robbers still have their own horses and, according to Henry Starr, their leader, who is in jail, they are well armed. Starr does not think any of the men will be taken alive.

AMERICAN TROOPS ARE IN READINESS

Prepared to Enforce Order on Mexican-Texas Border

Washington, March 31.—While the Villa forces are marking time in their attack on Matamoros, awaiting the arrival of artillery, the stage is being set for another battle at Lampazos, about seventy miles from Nuevo Laredo.

Advices from the border to the state and war departments say the Villa forces bound to attack the Carranza garrison at Nuevo Laredo are expected to reach Lampazos today.

Carranza troops are being assembled at Nuevo Laredo. The garrison will number 1200 in all.

The situation at Matamoros and at Brownsville, across the border, is unchanged. The Villa troops, repulsed Saturday in their first attack, are encamped five miles from the city

With the arrival of United States troops at Brownsville to prevent the firing into American territory by the Mexican forces contending for possession of Matamoros, war department officials are confident that they now have the situation well in hand.

F-4 IS WATERLOGGED

Breaking of Hawser Suspends Work of Raising Submarine

Washington, March 31.—Efforts to raise the sunken submarine F-4, outside Honolulu harbor, were temporarily suspended after a hawser with which the boat was being dragged toward shore snapped.

Rear Admiral Moore reported from Honolulu that the submarine evidently was waterlogged and too heavy to be raised by the equipment employed by the searching fleet.

The vessel with her crew of twenty-one men lies in 270 feet of water and her position is being held while preparations for raising her by pontoons are made.

STEAMER GOES ON ROCK

Three Hundred Persons Are Rescued by Men From Warships

San Francisco, March 31.—With 300 passengers on board, mostly women and children, including forty-five orphans, the General Frisbie, a bay steamer, struck a submerged rock 100 yards off shore and began to sink.

Lifeboats from United States warships anchored close by immediately took off all hands and brought them ashore. Panic prevailed on the steamer.

The vessel is supported by the rock and probably will be saved.

High Price For Chicago Land

Chicago, March 31.—The Fine Arts building and the land it stands on was sold by the Studebaker estate to the estate of Charles A. Chapin for $3,000,000—$15,000 a front foot.

KEITH FAVORED HALL'S PARDON

Did Not Try to Influence Action of Council

SYMPATHY WAS AROUSED

Former Councilor Moved by Gallant Fight Put Up by Wife of Bank Looter—Former Warden Bridges Says No One Consulted Him In Connection With Release of Prisoner

Boston, March 31.—The pardoning by Governor Walsh and the 1914 executive council of John A. Hall, former treasurer of the Southbridge Savings bank, was defended as justifiable before the special house committee investigating the pardon by Eben S. S. Keith of Bourne, a member of last year's council.

Keith, a close friend for many years of Mrs. Hall's father, has been reported to be the man "behind" the pardon in the council.

He declared to the investigating committee that he had never known either Hall or his wife until last year, when Mrs. Hall aroused his sympathy by her untiring endeavor to effect her husband's release. Then, he stated, he visited Hall in prison, and as the result of seeing him there came to the conclusion that the former bank treasurer's mental and physical condition made a pardon necessary.

The destitute condition of Hall's family, Keith said, also influenced him. Keith declared he had asked no member of the council to vote for the pardon, nor had he asked any witnesses to appear before the council in Hall's favor.

He admitted, under questions from Representative Washburn of Worcester, chairman of the committee, that he had never asked the physician at the state prison about Hall's mental or physical condition, but claimed he did not consider that necessary. Mrs. Hall had talked with the physician, Keith said, and the physician told her Hall had been frequently in the prison hospital from attacks of abdominal trouble.

When Hall was released, he had served about four and one-half years of a twelve-year sentence for larceny of more than $300,000. Keith admitted he did not think the sentence given Hall was excessive, but stated that Hall's mental and physical condition grew such as to warrant his pardon.

Dr. McLaughlin, prison physician, testified at a hearing held by the committee last week, that Hall was not in danger of death. McLaughlin was not called to testify before the governor's council.

Benjamin F. Bridges, former warden at the state prison, declared, after being sworn, that no one had ever asked him any questions in connection with Hall's pardon. There were men in the prison at the time in worse condition than Hall, he declared.

Asked by Washburn whether he thought Hall should have been pardoned, the former warden said he thought the matter "worthy of inquiry." Hall, he said, had been listed in the "corrected class" of prisoners. Prisoners of this type, he said, seldom come back to prison after release. The hearing was adjourned.

CONTRIBUTION OF $100,000

Colorado Miners Will Receive Aid From Rockefeller Foundation

New York, March 31.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in a telegram to the Colorado state committee on unemployment and relief, announced that the Rockefeller foundation stood ready to contribute $100,000 to relieve distress among the workers in Colorado, particularly in the mining districts.

On March 25 the committee sent a telegram to Rockefeller saying that there was considerable distress in Colorado, and that although contributions had been received or pledged from various sources, the indications were that the funds so gathered would be insufficient to meet the needs.

No Evidence to Show They Caused Death of Young Woman

Cambridge, Mass., March 31.—Joseph St. Pierre and Bernard P. LeHand, held on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Esther H. Ryan, 22, on the morning of March 12, were discharged from custody in the district court here for lack of evidence.

An examination of the internal organs of the girl by an expert revealed no traces of poison, Police Captain Hurley asserted, and he asked that the men be discharged.

Chicago, March 31.—Seven thousand painters here were ordered to strike when the employers' committee failed to keep an appointment with the labor representatives.

SPORTING COMMENT

Poehler and Cole may team up in the monster A. C. B. A. tournament in Mechanics building, Boston. Cole has not signed up with a team but Poehler has intimated he would like him with his quintette. It has been reported that there was nothing unfair in the recent Cole-Walsh match except the actions of a Boston girl who leaned forward in Cole's path several times and once interfered with his delivery. Cole, gallant and cool, never remonstrated.

Just when that bout between Eddie Sammon and Gus Lenny will take place is not known. South Boston boys promised it for this month but arrangements have not been completed. Sammon says he is ready to talk business.

There has been a heavy sale of seats for the Johnson-Willard fight on April 5, at Havana. Thousands are following the training chaps. Locally, there is little betting, Johnson's admirers of a week ago have swung into the doubtful column and now say it is a question of stamina. At last reports the local betting was even, with little money in sight.

The MacGregors had no difficulty in showing the Caledonian clubs the way at Boston, getting a two to one victory.

Hot weather is putting the Braves in form and Stallings has taken advantage of conditions to put the squad through a strenuous drill.

Hot Springs, Ark., is in the path of the showers, rain put a stop to the Monday games of the Red Sox nines.

Five of the 33 men on the Lynn, N. E. league team have been released.

Football summons at Harvard got a poor response Monday.

Benjamin Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Johnson of Merrymount road has been measured for a base ball uniform for the Munson Academy team. He will rejoin the squad on his return from an Eastern visit to his parents.

Capt. Coyle and his five are weekly nailing another spike in the Knights of Columbus league championship. The finals take place in two weeks. The Sullivan quintette is runner up.

Members of the Board of Park Commissioners are regular witnesses of the practice of candidates for the High school base ball team. We heartily commend a recent suggestion that a dressing room be erected at Merrymount Park for the convenience of the visiting players.

We are on the horns of a dilemma. Several boys, actually necessary to a first class base ball team, are down in scholarship and not eligible. Should their names be printed. Will spanking them in public serve to sharpen their wits. Some aspirants, not as good as players, have jealously guarded their percentages and these boys have "sacrificed" before the season opened.

"Dutch" Carson, the Milton twirler, is considering offers from three managers. He declined to mention their names until he has made a decision.

The Feds have not fully decided to place a "pro" team in Quincy. Until then they will probably hesitate arranging for a diamond.

ALL STARS LOSE.

Geo. White Has Slump In Last String.

The slump of George White in his last string brought about the defeat of the Wardwell All-Stars at the Wardwell alleys Tuesday night by the Weymouth Juniors. White got a century his first two strings and dropped to 63. Dexiel was high with a total of 317. A return match will be rolled next Tuesday for a purse.

CANDIDATES OUT FOR TENNIS TEAM

The call for Q. H. S tennis candidates was issued by Captain Willard Crocker Tuesday afternoon and the first practice was held in the High school gym. The boys had a fine work-out and they expect to have a fruitful season. If Captain Crocker's knee holds out, Quincy expects to have one of the fastest teams in greater Boston.

A large number turned out. Favreau, the junior champion, will undoubtedly play the first single, Pfaffman will probably play the second round. It is not to be expected that Captain Crocker can play much but if he does play he will save himself for the doubles, having Favreau for his partner. The third singles will be a toss-up between Rasmussen, Barstow, and Crosscup, if he competes. Pfaffman and the successful candidate of the trio will play the second doubles.

As soon as the weather turns warmer and the courts are in shape, out-door practice will be held. The Quincy Tennis club has offered to let the boys practice on its courts.

CALL OUT INFIELDERS.

The diamond at the upper field at Merrymount Park has been put in sufficiently good condition for the infielders of the Quincy High squad to be called out and a big bunch aspires to make the infield. At the practice so far the following have reported: Captain Larkin, Arthur, Desmond, Jepson, Catler, Reinhalter, Baker, Jenkins Burgin, Schools, Pfaffman, Crosby Ford and VonColin.

The Exploits of Elaine

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE

The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company

He hesitated a moment, then opened the door quietly. To his astonishment he saw Kennedy, the secretary and myself apparently making a close examination of the typewriter.

Gliding, rather than walking back into his own office, he closed the door and locked it. Almost instantly fear and fury at the presence of his hated rival, Kennedy, turned Bennett, as it were, from the Jekyll of a polished lawyer and lover of Elaine into an insanely jealous and revengeful Mr. Hyde. The strain was more than his warped mind could bear.

With a look of intense horror and loathing Elaine watched him slowly change from the composed, calm, intellectual Bennett she knew and respected into a repulsive, mad figure of a man.

His stature even seemed to be altered. He seemed to shrivel up and become deformed. His face was terribly distorted.

And his long, sinewy hand slowly twisted and bent until he became the personal embodiment of the Clutching Hand.

As Elaine, transfixed with terror, watched Bennett's astounding metamorphosis, he ran to the door leading to the outer office and hastily locked that also.

Then, with his eyes gleaming with rage and his hands working in murderous frenzy, he crouched nearer and nearer, toward Elaine.

She shrank back, screaming again and again in terror.

He was the Clutching Hand.

In spite of closed doors we could now plainly hear Elaine's shrieks. Craig, the secretary and myself made a rush for the door to Bennett's private office. Finding it locked, we began to batter it.

By this time, however, Bennett had hurled himself upon Elaine and was slowly choking her.

Kennedy found that it was impossible to batter down the door in time by any ordinary means. Quickly he seized the typewriter and hurled it through the panels. Then he thrust his hand through the opening and turned the catch.

As we flung ourselves into the room Bennett rushed into a closet in a corner, slamming the door behind him. It was composed of sheet iron, and effectually prevented anyone from breaking through. Kennedy and I tried vainly, however, to pry it open.

While we were thus endeavoring to force an entrance Bennett, in a sort of closet, had put on the coat, hat and mask which he invariably wore in the character of the Clutching Hand. Then he cautiously opened a secret door in the back of the closet and slowly made an exit.

Meanwhile the secretary had been doing his best to revive Elaine, who was on the floor, hysterical and half unconscious from the terrible shock she had experienced.

Intent on discovering Bennett's whereabouts, Kennedy and I examined the wall of the office, thinking there might be some button or secret spring which would open the closet door.

While we were doing so the door of a large safe in the secretary's office gradually opened, and the Clutching Hand emerged from it, stepping carefully toward the door leading to the outer office, intent on escaping in that direction.

At that moment I caught sight of him, and, leaping into the secretary's office, I drew my revolver and ordered him to throw up his hands. He obeyed. Holding up both hands, he slowly drew near the door to his private office.

Suddenly he dropped one hand and pressed a hidden spring in the wall.

Instantly a heavy iron door shot out and closed over the wooden door. Entrance to the private office was absolutely cut off.

With an angry snarl the Clutching Hand leaped at me.

As he did so I fired twice.

He staggered back.

The shots were heard by Kennedy and Elaine as well as the secretary, and at the same instant they discovered the iron door which barred the entrance to the secretary's office.

Rushing into the outer office they found the clerks excitedly attempting to open the door of the secretary's office, which was locked. Kennedy drew a revolver and shot through the lock, bursting open the door.

They rushed into the room.

Clutching Hand was apparently seated in a chair at a desk, his face buried in his arms, while I was apparently disappearing through the door.

Kennedy and the clerks pounced upon the figure in the chair and tore off his mark. To their astonishment they discovered it was myself!

My shots had missed, and Clutching Hand had leaped on me with maddened fury.

Dressed in my coat and hat, which he had deftly removed after overpowering me, Clutching Hand had by this time climbed through the window of the outer office and was making his way down the fire escape to the street. He reached the foot of the iron steps, leaped off and ran quickly away.

Shouting a few directions to the secretary, the clerks and Elaine, Kennedy climbed through the window and darted down the fire escape in swift pursuit.

The Clutching Hand, however, managed to elude capture again.

While these exciting events were occurring in Bennett's office some queer doings were in progress in the heart of Chinatown.

Deep underground, in one of the catacombs known only to the innermost members of the Chinese secret societies, was Tong Wah, popularly known as "the hider," engaged in some mysterious work.

Before him were eight odd-shaped Chinese vials, and from these he was carefully measuring certain proportions, as if concocting some powerful potion.

He stepped back and looked around suspiciously as he suddenly heard footsteps above. The next moment Long Sin, who had entered through a trap door, climbed down a long ladder and walked into the room.

Approaching Tong Wah, he asked, "When will the death drink be ready?"

"It is now prepared," was the reply.

A few minutes later the Clutching Hand drove up to Long Sin's house in the taxicab and, after paying the chauffeur, went to the door and knocked sharply.

In response to his knocking, Long Sin appeared on the threshold and motioned to Bennett to come in, evidently astonished to see him.

As he entered, Bennett made a secret sign and said: "I am the Clutching Hand. Kennedy is close on my trail, and I have come to be hidden."

In a tone which betrayed alarm and fear the Chinaman intimated that he had no place in which Bennett could be concealed with any degree of safety.

For a moment Bennett glared savagely at Long Sin.

"I possess hidden plunder worth seven million dollars," he pleaded quickly, "and if by your aid I can make a getaway, a seventh is yours."

The Chinaman's cupidity was clearly excited by Bennett's offer, while the bare mention of the amount at stake was sufficient to overcome all his scruples.

After exchanging a few words he finally agreed to aid the Clutching Hand. Opening a trap door in the floor of the room in which they were standing, he led Bennett down a step ladder into the subterranean chamber in which Tong Wah had so recently been preparing his mysterious potion.

As Bennett sank into a chair and passed his hands over his brow in utter weariness, Long Sin poured into a cup some of the liquor of death which Tong Wah had mixed. He handed it to Bennett, who drank it eagerly.

"How do you propose to help me to escape?" asked Bennett huskily.

Without a word Long Sin went to the wall, and, grasping one of the stones, pressed it back, opening a large receptacle, in which there were two glass coffins apparently containing two dead Chinamen. Pulling out the coffins, he pushed them before Bennett, who rose to his feet and gazed upon them with wonder.

Long Sin broke the silence: "These men," he said, "are not dead; but they have been in this condition for many months. It is what is called in your language suspended animation."

"Is that what you intend to do with me?" asked Bennett, shrinking back in terror.

The Chinaman nodded in affirmation as he pushed back the coffins.

Overcome by the horror of the idea Bennett, with a groan, sank back into the chair, shaking his head as if to indicate that the plan was far too terrible to carry out.

With a sinister smile and a shrug of his shoulders Long Sin pointed to the cup from which Bennett had drank.

"But, dear master," he remarked suavely, "you have already drank a full dose of the potion which causes insensibility, and it is overcoming you. Even now," he added, "you are too weak to rise."

With a malicious chuckle Long Sin moved closer to his victim and spoke again.

"Divulge where your seven million dollars are hidden," he suggested craftily, "and I will give you an antidote."

By this time Bennett, who was becoming more rigid each moment, was unable to speak.

Slowly, and after a desperate struggle, he managed to raise one hand and pointed to his breast pocket. The Chinaman instantly thrust in his hand and drew out a map.

For some moments Long Sin examined the map intently, and, with a grin of satisfaction, he placed it in his own pocket. Then he mixed what he declared was a sure antidote, and, pouring some of the liquor into a cup, he held it to Bennett's lips.

As Bennett opened his mouth to drink it, Long Sin with a laugh slowly pulled the cup away and poured its contents on the floor.

By this time I was slowly recovering my senses in the secretary's office, where Bennett had left me in the disguise of the Clutching Hand. Elaine, the secretary and the clerks were gathered around me, doing all they could to revive me.

Meanwhile Kennedy had enlisted the aid of two detectives and was scouring the city for a trace of Bennett or the taxicab in which he had fled.

Somehow, Kennedy suspected, instinctively, that Long Sin might give a clue to Bennett's whereabouts, and a few moments later we were all on our way in a car to Long Sin's house.

Though we did not know it, Long Sin, at the moment when Kennedy knocked at his door, was feeling in his inside pocket to see that the map he had taken from Bennett was perfectly safe. Finding that he had it, he smiled with his peculiar oriental guile. Then he opened the door and stood for a moment, silent.

"Where is Bennett?" demanded Kennedy.

Long Sin eyed us all, then, with a placid smile, said, "Follow me. I will show you."

There was Bennett, seated rigidly in the chair beside the table, from which the vials and cups, about which we knew nothing, had been removed.

"How did it happen?" asked Kennedy.

"He came here," replied Long Sin, with a wave of his hand, "and before I could stop him he did away with himself."

"Well, we've got him," mused Kennedy, shaking his head sadly, adding after a pause, "but he is dead."

Elaine, who had followed us down, covered her eyes with her hands and was sobbing convulsively. I thought she would faint, but Kennedy led her gently away into an upper room.

As he placed her in an easy chair, he bent over her, soothingly,

"Did you—did you—really—love him?" he asked in a low tone.

Still shuddering, and with an eager look at Kennedy, Elaine shook her beautiful head.

Then, slowly rising to her feet, she looked at Craig appealingly.

"Forgive me," murmured Elaine, holding out her hand. Then she added in a voice tense with emotion, "Thank you for saving me."

Kennedy took her hand. For a moment he held it. Then he drew her toward him, unresisting.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

The Cunningham gym bowling team continued its successful career Monday evening when it defeated the well known Marker team of Boston on the gym alleys by the score of 3—1. The gym's total amounted to 1416 as against 1378 for the Market boys. The visitors were able to win but one of the three strings, that being the first. The 122 single string bowled by "Dick" Ried of the gym was the high one of the match. Haley of the losers bowled the highest three string 326. The gym bowlers were: Joblin, D. Reid, E. Cummings, J. Cummings and Wood.

Work has commenced in the construction of the large garage on the McDonald lot.

The Morgan Construction Co. is erecting another single dwelling on Edge Hill road, neighboring the First Baptist church.

Charles Kelley and family have moved from their home on Belcher Circle and are now occupying their new dwelling on Adams street.

The annual banquet of the Cunningham gym bowling league will take place Tuesday evening, April 6, at the gym. Any member of the gym may come by applying for tickets of the committee or "Jim" Cummings. The members of the committee are: Harry Bierley, "Jack" Reid and "Dan" Duggan.

The boy's afternoon class of the gym will give its annual exhibition Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the gym floor.

The annual parish meeting of the East Congregational church was held Monday evening and was largely attended. The business meeting was preceded by a chicken pie supper at 6.30 o'clock. This supper was in charge of Mrs. C. Crawford Hollidge and proved to be a fine treat to the large number who enjoyed it. At 8 o'clock moderator Orin A Andrews called the business meeting to order. Treasurer Jesse B. Baxter was re-elected as was clerk James H. McGuire. The committees elected were prudential, Samuel W. Kirkland, chairman, John Marr and E C. Wheelock; music, J. L. MacLary, chairman, Miss Orissa B. Beals, Mrs. Louis Harlow, Mrs. Benjamin Fuller and Mrs. Lawrence Frazier.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Editor of the Ledger:

In view of the prominence of the equal suffrage question this year in Massachusetts and the meeting this evening at Colonial hall in its interests, a condensed statement of its present status in the United States would seem to be timely.

It is difficult to estimate accurately what proportion of the women of Massachusetts are for or against, but a conservative estimate shows, 10 per cent. to be enrolled for it and 3 per cent against it.

In six states suffrage on taxation and bonding propositions has been granted women under certain restrictions. In one state municipal suffrage, in one the vote for Presidential electors, certain state officers and all municipal officers.

In twelve states full suffrage beginning in the year 1869.

This aggregate represents nearly 4,000,000 women voters and 91 Presidential electoral votes.

It has been adopted in states which in every instance but one bordered on a neighboring state or states which had already adopted it.

If its results are as disastrous as is claimed, would neighboring states have passed such an amendment? Would Quincy adopt a policy of government which had been in operation many years in Milton, Braintree and Weymouth and had proved to be a deplorable failure? And if the results are so deplorable why has it never been repealed?

Suffrage has always gained. Anti-suffrage has always lost. This relative situation can only be changed by a repeal. Equal suffrage has been endorsed by the following organizations representing women, "International Council of Women." National Federation of Women's clubs, 400 to 28. Every State Federation of Women's club where women vote and many where they do not. National Women's Trade Union League, National Order of Maccabees. International Council of Nurses. By the following organizations representing men and women. "National Educational Association, National Grange, American Federation of Labor, National Miners' Federation, National Purity Conference, National Association of Letter Carriers, Grand Council of United Commercial Travelers. These represent millions of men and women

If equal suffrage is a "fad" or an "hysterical outburst," if the "noisy minority" to whom it is attributed, includes such names as Thomas A. Edison, Theodore Roosevelt, Julia Lathrop, M. Carey Thomas, President of Bryn Mawr, David Stan Jordan, president of Leland Stanford and Jane Addams, and if the above is the result merely of "soap box oratory," "street parades" and "college girls who have not found themselves," then the American public is more easily fooled than I thought it could be and the American public in this case means the men, for it is the men only who in the last analysis have the power to grant or withhold the ballot

CITY HALL NOTES

The time for filing applications with the city council for permits to transport liquor and for licenses to drive wagons for the collection of junk expires next Monday evening. After that date no applications for liquor permits of junk collectors' licenses can be received unless the rules are suspended.

The finance committee of the city council will meet Friday evening.

The public buildings committee of the city council will give a hearing to residents of the Massachusetts Fields school district Friday evening in the matter of providing additional accommodation at that school.

With the providing of a hospital for contagious diseases which must be done this year at a cost of at least $35,000 and the building of a new school building in the Ward Two district at a cost of $75,000 it does not look very favorable for the acceptance of many new streets. Then again it will also be necessary to do something about rebuilding the fire alarm system and two new pieces of motor fire apparatus are needed. Surely there is no lack of things absolutely necessary for which the city must spend its money this year.

Mayor Campbell has appointed Joseph L. Moriarty as assistant assessor for Ward Two in place of William M. Prime resigned. The assistant assessors will begin their labors bright and early tomorrow morning.

A meeting of the city Planning Board was held Tuesday evening in the office of the city engineer at city hall. The evening was devoted to an informal discussion of matters, which included a comfort station in city square which has long been talked of. No definite action however was taken on any matter.

Although it has been understood that several petitions for approval of new streets through private property are to be filed with the Board of Survey for approval, it was not until this morning that the board received its first official plan and petition. This petition was for the extension of Bushing street, in the Wollaston district, from Woodbine to Beale street. The petition was filed from the office of H. T. Whitman.

The Ledger stated last week that there was a project on foot to extend this street in order to open up some available building land. It is understood that several house lots have recently been sold on this property and that active building will be commenced at an early date.

SERVICES FOR MRS SHEA.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Shea was held this morning from St. Johns church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. Walter Quinlan. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

WINS AWARD.

New Bedford has been awarded the semi final game in the National Challenge Cup soccer series between the J. & P. Coats team of Pawtucket and the Brooklyn Celtic team. The game will be April 10. The Bethlehem and Homestead teams play their semi-final at South Bethlehem, Pa., Saturday.

An interesting lecture on birds, illustrated with numerous stereopticon views, was given in the Wollaston school hall at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by Rev. William Lord, formerly of Quincy. The proceeds of the afternoon will be devoted to the kindergarten school at Wollaston.

SCISSOR PASTE

DISORDERLY CITIZENS.

There are many people who are thoughtful for the appearance of their own home places, yet who are absolutely careless as to the general appearance of their town.

Comparatively few persons, who have any sense of cleanliness at all, would litter up their own home grounds by throwing refuse out of the windows. Yet the same people will scatter paper bags and other waste matter about the streets of their town. Then they complain against the local officers if the place is not kept in a neat condition.

Most people also feel some pride about keeping up home places. They will take pains not to run over grass bankings, and will scrupulously follow paths. But when they go down town they will cut corners, gradually wearing down plots of grass, and give the town an unfinished and run down air. No matter how much money a town spends to keep its public ways in good shape, it will never have a neat and tidy appearance unless its citizens co-operate.

People should feel a positive sense of shame in throwing broadcast anything that would make their streets look unattractive.

In some places boys and girls are trained to pick up waste paper that is flying about the streets. With a lot of youngsters active in that way not merely to remove evidences of other people's disorder, but not to make any of their own, it is astonishing how a town's appearance can be transformed.

Allowing public streets to remain in a disorderly condition must hurt the reputation of a town. In these days of automobiles a town receives visitors constantly from far and near. Residents of other cities come in a critical spirit. They are quick to see evidences of public disorder, and they bear away the news that this or that town is dirty.

Spring is the time for cleaning up Let us all resolve to keep the streets neat this season.—Rutland News.

LEARNING TO SHOOT.

It may not be generally known that Congress has passed a law under which any group of 10 or more persons who so desire will be given guns and ammunition and an opportunity for target-practice free by the United State government. But such is the fact and one high school battalion in Massachusetts has availed itself of the privilege. Adjutant General Cole says "I stand ready to advise any group of citizens on the process of organizing a rifle club and I hope there will be 100 this year in the State. The details are very simple and the expenses low." The Woburn High school is the only one that has applied in Massachusetts for the rights of a rifle club. The city of Woburn has furnished the bond required to cover the value of the property loaned, and the boys will receive their equipment in a short time. General Cole believes there are few schools which could not easily comply with the regulations and obtain for their pupils the value and discipline to be obtained from taking advantage of the offer of Uncle Sam. Officers of the national guard in Massachusetts are somewhat divided on the scheme of a national reserve which is being formed outside of the regular army. Naturally they prefer to have the young men enlist in the organized militia, but they seem to forget that from this reserve they could easily secure recruits to fill the ranks should necessity arise. The organization of school battalions ought to be encouraged. —Lynn Item.

STILL PLENTY OF GRASS FIRES

The members of the fire department answered several still alarms for grass and woods fires Tuesday. The first call came at 12.50 for a grass fire on Independence avenue near the Braintree line. The apparatus also went out for grass fires on Bryant avenue, Quincy avenue, Liberty street and Hall place. The fire on Hall place was getting dangerously near the stable of W. F. Loud & Son.
